The convention was a grand success, not only on account of the number of delegates and visitors present, the brotherly love, peace and harmony which prevailed, the dispatch of business by the noble, Christian characters constituting the convention; the bearing with each other's infirmities; the attention to prayer and business; the wonderful and perfect expose by Past Master Ronayne, but also to the immense numbers which crowded Corinthian Hall and the multitudes that could not gain admittance. To pacify these they were informed that another opportunity would be given for their benefit to take place some time in February next. I must not forget to mention the noble bearing of Deputy Sheriff Ritter from whom we rented the Hall, and through whose influence the crowds, some of whom were disposed to be disorderly, were "regulated." We won't say who they were, you can guess; for indeed the sight was too painful for them as they beheld the degradation through which they had once passed, portrayed by Ronayne. At one time during the evening these gentlemen made a general stampede, tramp! tramp! tramp! in true "military skill" only they were not covered all o'er with gorgeous attire, with swords, helmets, cked hats and white feathers, as recently in parade, till they found themselves out in cool air where they could breathe freely and the sight of their eyes would not so affect their nervous sensibilities. Their presence was scarcely missed only so far as disturbance was concerned.

But these gentlemen are to be pitied, great allowance must be made for them, they do not really know what they do. This throws a greater burden upon reformers for such must be borne with. May God have mercy upon them, especially on ministerial brethren who pass through the blasphemous, abominable, heaven-daring, godless—but let not God be mentioned in this connexion—deplorable, degrading, soul-cursing, loathsome, filthy, lying, hell-exulting, lecherous, shameless, reckless, horrifying, lawless, mean, low ceremonies and obligations of the order and from thence go away and extol this abomination, even saying in some instances in substance, if not in plain language, they can see nothing in Freemasonry that is not in perfect accord with holiness. Let all good people beware of these misguided men: are they the wolves in sheep's clothing? O brother, you cannot imagine how my soul was burdened, finding relief only in a fountain of tears as I witnessed the expose by Ronayne and thought of the criminality of our church in dermitting this temple of perdition to be built up among us which makes "hell howl and heaven let fall a tear."

Dear brethren, time fails me to tell all, but let me say such floods of light have never been poured on Rochester, nor such an intense desire manifest to know of this great evil since Morgan was abducted and paid the penalty for exposing the craft which John Quincy Adams and C. G. Finney and multitudes of just such men have denounced as a curse to any country.

Yours truly, W. Post.

Lectures and Incidents in the Indiana Work.

Pekin, Ind., Dec. 9, 1875.

I left Terre Haute on Monday, Nov. 29th, and arrived at Indianapolis at half-past six. Here I had nearly an hour to wait for the train going south, which I spent "pleasantly and profitably" by running over to "Bryce's Bakery" and indulging in a cup of coffee and lunch, and enjoying the eloquent and humorous conversation of my good friend Bryce. I hoped to have met brother Robinson, but was disappointed. Leaving the Union depot, we passed on south through Columbus, Seymour, Jeffersonville, crossed the Ohio on a bridge, said to be a mile and one eighth in length and landed in Louisville, Kentucky, at one o'clock in the morning.

New Albany is five miles below Louisville on the Indiana side of the river. Here I put up at the Commercial House till nine o'clock A. M., when I took the train for Pekin, at which place I arrived at half past ten. Here I put up with brother Jacob Bixler who conveyed me to Martinsburg in the evening, where I spoke in the Disciple church to a large audience. Much excitement had been produced among the cable towed when the announcements were made before I came. The Worshipful Master, who, I am told, is a skeptic, threatened to break up the church if they allowed the lectures in their house. Thus here, the lodge practically demonstrates the determination to throttle the discussion of its principles, and to "rule or ruin." But with all his bullying, the Master (!) succeeded but poorly in his attempt to scare the people. He finds that "mastering" a lodge and "mastering" everything outside is too great an undertaking for him. With all his blustering he put in his appearance but once, at the first lecture, and did not attempt to defend his order, though I gave him an opportunity.

Here, at Martinsburg, I spoke seven times, twice at Palmyra and three times at Pekin. The meetings, twelve in all, were well attended throughout, and on the whole, I think much good will result from them. A large majority of the young men of these communities are enthusiastic anti-lodge men. This is true also of the members of the churches—Methodists, Disciples, United Brethren, all seem to flow together in their support of the Gospel as against the Christ-rejecting orders. I have not for a long time visited a place where the people generally receive the truth more willingly than here. Brethren Bixler, Ezra Martin, Isaac Hustin, J. Martin, Weasley, Motsinger and Brock, are especially entitled to my thanks for the hospitality of their homes to which I was welcomed. Rev. Wm. Frantz, an old man, and a minister of the Christian church attended most of the meetings, riding six miles through bad weather part of the time. His son, A. B. Frantz, is a talented young man, whom I hope to see on the walls of Zion "earnestly contending for the faith delivered to the saints." He was largely instrumental in securing my services here, and with brother Jacob Bixler in securing funds to compensate me. God bless all these good men and women. Let the friends remember that the permanency of the good work begun here will depend, largely, upon the circulation of the Christian Cynosure. Brother Frantz proposes to raise a club of ten. Let our friends all rally to his aid and hurry up the club.

I go on to Leesville in an hour, where I am to speak this evening.

John T. Kiggins.

N. B.—Let those who may desire to write to me, address me at Terre Haute, Ind., up to the 22d instant.

J. T. K.

From the Wisconsin Work.

Geneva Lake, Wis., Nov., 29, '75.

Editor Christian Cynosure:

The secret orders have been considerably disturbed in these parts by the presence and lectures of Rev. Philo Etzes, who gave us four lectures in the old Baptist church in the town of Lima, and three in Walker's Hall, Geneva.

Although the "cloven-foot" of the lodge showed the same old malignant disposition to abuse both the speaker and the listeners, yet we believe that the seed sown will bring forth fruit, and the good work has been commenced in these parts which ought to be followed up by more lectures. If we could get the use of a church in Geneva, instead of a hall, such lectures would do much more good.

Bro. Etzea is laboring hard in the work of reform, with very little support for himself and family. His heart is in the work, and he makes it his business, pay or no pay. At Lima Baptist church there were two collections taken up, one amounted to 58 cents, the other some over $1 50, one brother putting in $1.00 of this sum; and one strong Anti-mason, (who gives over fifty dollars a year for the support of a Masonic preacher,) put into the hat ten cents, but afterwards gave Bro. Etzea a barrel of apples.

I said that he worked pay or no pay, but he cannot stand it much longer, but will have to leave the work unless there is some arrangement made for his support. He has some eight or nine paintings, life size, which finely illustrate the inside workings of the lodge, and is well armed and equipped for the fight. H. W. Clark.

Correspondence.

Lectures and Tracts.

Wellington, Ill., Dec. 3, 1875.

Editor Christian Cynosure:

It is truly gratifying to see the increased interest almost everywhere against the lodge; and no better evidence of this can be found than in the fact that our lectures are almost constantly on the move carrying the "light" to the people. Yes, "many are running too and fro," and light, or "knowledge is increased;" and thus the Bible idea or plan is carried out with victory certain. I had calculated with others to have secured Mr. Ronayne for a series of lectures in these parts soon but find he is engaged two months ahead elsewhere. We are absolutely needing another Ronayne—am satisfied he will be forthcoming.

The tract cause is an important auxiliary in the movement against the lodge. When at Chicago not long since, I obtained two thousand tracts. These I tried to distribute to the best advantage—all gone—and have just received one thousand more. We want workers or "laborers in the vineyard" and every Cynosure reader should keep his side pockets full of tracts, so that if from any accident in traveling or on trains or by lodge violence he should be taken away suddenly these tracts would assist a jury in arriving at one point and that point the identity of the subject. These tracts keep the lodge and people stirred up, and keep them awake. In traveling on trains see that the passengers in every coach are supplied with these small missives. I usually supply those standing on the platforms at the various stations by either passing them out at the windows or else handing them out to some boy or farmer-like man to distribute. Fops often belong to the lodge. I usually inquire "Will you please distribute these papers." And I find I can depend on boys generally, as they are not "roped" "chained," "hood-winked," and foresworn like boys generally are of larger growth. In short, keep the enemy awake; for like an army they will die unless they get rest and sleep. The Cynosure, our lectures and tracts are if properly supported, encouraged and circulated will in the end rout the lodge. J. S. Hickman,

Bro. Hankins and Church Relations.

Moran City, Iowa, Nov. 20, '75.

Dear Cynosure:—I am more perplexed since I read the last Cynosure than before. You advise separation from the church as the last resort, and Bro. Ball would do it immediately. Now here are two men claiming to be guided by that spirit that cannot err, giving divergent advice upon the same subject. I know Bro. Ball, and have confidence in his sincerity and piety, and while I am not personally acquainted with you, I have no reason to doubt your integrity, yet what shall I do for light. Did any reform ever take place in any one or any party, or organization, in and of itself? How can I fellowship men who will stand up and deliberately deny the revelations of the lodge, and attempt to make me the liar, when they know what I say is true in regard to Masonic oaths. I say there is no chance for representation. Hell is full of better men, and yet men do it who make more pretension to piety than I do, or ever did. I have about made up my mind to do as Bro. Ball suggests, and walk no more with them and if I cannot find a branch of Christ's church uncontaminated with the lodge, I will go in a gang alone. Yours for truth.

J. Hankins.

Note.—We agree entirely with Bro. H., if he has no faith in the efforts to cleanse his church from secrecy by all means leave it. The Christian has no choice here, he is to be separate from that evil. From the tone of his first letter we inferred that the church was free from the lodge but the new preacher was not. In such a case an effort to save him might be hopefully undertaken. If the church members, however, are on the same side the question should have been raised before and labor undertaken with them. Our advice is not infallible. Bro. Hankins knows all the circumstances, and we believe the Lord will guide him if he asks through Christ for light.

OUR MAIL.

S. Hillman, Mantorville, Minn., writes:

"I intend ere long to do something for the Carpenter fund, that a place to publish papers, tracts, etc., may be had. I consider all secret combinations dangerous to national advancement, political or religious. I am glad that there are those that manifest an interest in this great and very much needed reform. I hope the number may be greatly increased and that speedily."

A. I. Jones, Keithsburg, Ill., writes:

"I have not done anything for the Cynosure yet, but I intend to try to secure some subscribers when I send again. I am heart and hand with you in this reform."

Rev. S. Smith, Manchester, Ia., writes:

"I cannot get along without the paper although money is scarce and hard to get.

I will try and get enough to keep it along if it is only a little at a time."

Of course it is a more convenient way to send for a year at a time, but we hope all friends in this brother's situation will follow his example.

W. Sperry, Waupun, Wis, writes:

"For many years I have been watching the onward march of secret societies and their blighting influence on church and state. The Masons, Odd fellows and grangers are very numerous in this community, and they have here as elsewhere encompassed the camp of saints. But the agitation has begun in good earnest and fire from heaven has already begun to fall which will eventually consume them root and branch."

Wm. Brownell, Belmont, Wis., writes:

"The Cynosure is just such a paper as I want my family to read. 1st, on account of its religious sentiments; 2nd, its anti-secretism in every form. Just my ticket from top to bottom. I will never vote for a man to fill an office who belongs to any secret society. I live in one of the strongest Masonic communities there is in the county at least, and a man has to have grit and fortitude to oppose them."

P. W. Talntor, Chapin, Ill., writes:

"The cause is gaining ground in this part of the county, although many friends are afraid to act on account of Masonic vengeance and the dollar in their business. Harmony Lodge, No. 3 at Jacksonville, I fought three years ago alone and single-handed. At that time it was not considered dangerous by the people. I voted for Wm. Wirt for President in 1831."

Benj. Uish, Silver Lake, Ind., writes:

"I succeeded in getting the hall in Manchester for lectures and an exhibition here, and have the U. B. church in Silver Lake and the Opera hall in Warsaw, hoping that Bros. Stoddard and Ronayne will find it convenient to occupy soon. The idea of having lectures and an exhibition in Warsaw and Manchester seems to create a considerable excitement. Manchester is a good place to lecture in as it is full of Freemasons and Odd-fellows."

Jas. Andruss, Amboy, Ill., who is almost eighty-three years old sends his renewal and writes:

"I am sorry that I cannot help you to subscribers and money to help the good cause, for if it does not succeed we shall lose our liberty. The best I can do is to pray for its success."

The great need of this cause is earnest prayer.

John Bradley, Wyanet, Ill., writes:

"We have been engaged in a revival. We have received thirty-eight members into the Wesleyan church and there are many more that will come in yet."

Zeba Smith, Montpelier, Vt., writes:

"I like your paper very much and am glad of its weekly visits."

A. Peck, Ligonier, Ind., writes:

"I have been a strong advocate of the Anti-masonic principles ever since the abduction of Morgan. I was living near Canandaigua at the time. My brother-in-law living at Middleport at the same time was the means of saving Miller's office from being burned. He overheard the Masons plotting the fire and notified Miller."

A subscriber in Oakland, N. Y., writes:

"I have had two sons addicted to that terrible curse, intemperance. I have been a strong active temperance worker from my youth up, but the rumseller and lodge are my bitter foes, and two weeks ago they brought home my boy dead, drowned while intoxicated. Only twenty-four years old, a kind, good boy, but the rumseller has done his work."

How can such things as this occur in almost every village of our land without arousing temperance people to use every effort to close all drinking saloons!

Job A. Talmage, Port Oram, N. J., writes:

"I have tried hard to get new subscribers but all seem too poor or afraid of having their business injured. I will still try and get some names, however.

Mrs. Sarah Lingo, whose beloved husband died last March, writes of him as follows:

"He esteemed the Cynosure above all other papers. He was opposed to all secrecy, and stood up for everything that was right. His death was triumphant in God."

L. L. Martin, Somerville, Ind., writes:

"Your paper is doing much good in our part of the country."

The Sabbath School.

Lesson for Jan. 2, 1875.—Saul Rejected.

SCRIPTURE.—1 Sam. xv. 10-23. Commit vs. 17-23.

10 Then came the word of the Lord unto Samuel, saying,

11 It repenteth me that I have set up Saul to be king: for he is turned back from following me, and hath not performed my commandments. And it grieved Samuel; and he cried unto the Lord all night.

12 And when Samuel rose early to meet Saul in the morning, it was told Samuel, saying, Saul came to Carmel, and behold, he set him up a place, and is gone about, and passed on, and gone down to Gilgal.

13 And Samuel came to Saul: and Saul said unto him, Blessed be thou of the Lord: I have performed the commandment of the Lord.

14 And Samuel said, What meaneth then this bleating of the sheep in mine ears, and the lowing of the oxen which I hear?

15 And Saul said, They have brought them from the Amalekites: for the people spared the best of the sheep and of the oxen, to sacrifice unto the Lord thy God; and the rest we have utterly destroyed.

16 Then Samuel said unto Saul, Stay, and I will tell thee what the Lord hath said to me this night. And he said unto him, Say on.

17 And Samuel said, When thou wast little in thine own sight, wast thou not made the head of the tribes of Israel, and the Lord anointed thee king over Israel?

18 And the Lord sent thee on a journey, and said, Go, and utterly destroy the sinners the Amalekites, and fight against them until they be consumed.

19 Wherefore then didst thou not obey the voice of the Lord, but didst fly upon the spoil, and didst evil in the sight of the Lord?

20 And Saul said unto Samuel, Yea, I have obeyed the voice of the Lord, and have gone the way the Lord sent me, and have brought Agag the king of Amalek, and have utterly destroyed the Amalekites.

21 But the people took of the spoil, sheep and oxen, the chief of the things, which should have been utterly destroyed, to sacrifice unto the Lord thy God in Gilgal.

22 And Samuel said, Hath the Lord as great delight in burnt-offerings and sacrifices, as in obeying the voice of the Lord? Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams.

23 For rebellion is as the sin of witchcraft, and stubbornness is as iniquity and idolatry. Because thou hast rejected the word of the Lord, he hath also rejected thee from being king.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"When he would have inherited the blessing he was rejected."—Heb. xii. 17.

Repentance is attributed in Scripture to God when bad men give him cause to alter his course and method of procedure and to treat them as if he did "repent" of kindness shown.—Carmel in the South of Judah (Josh. xv. 55; ch xxv. 2.)—"Set him up a place," i. e., a pillar (2 Sam. xviii. 18), literally, a hand; indicating that the monument was surmounted, according to ancient fashion, by the figure of a hand, the symbol of power. The erection of this vain-glorious trophy was an additional act of disobedience. v. 13.—Saul was either blinded by a partial and delusive self-love, or he was, in his declaration to Samuel, acting the part of a bold and artful hypocrite. He professed to have fulfilled the Divine command, and that the blame of any defects in the execution lay with the people. Samuel saw the real state of the case, and, in discharge of the commission he had received before setting out, proceeded to denounce his conduct as characterized by pride, rebellion, and obstinate disobedience.—Jamieson.

—Do not explain so much that the scholar will have no chance left to find and see things for himself. There is a peculiar delight in the ecstacy of discovery. It richly repays all attention and effort. It is an enviable knack which some have of telling just enough, but no more.

Home and Health Hints.

From an excellent little volume of "Health Maxims Physical, Mental and Moral," by Dr. W. W. Hall, editor of Hall's Journal of Health, the following useful maxims are selected:

In no case is habitual night study an economy of time.

Marriage is the natural condition of man, and without it no man or woman ever feels settled in life.

While women should not marry under twenty, men should wait until twenty-five.

No man's likes or dislikes for a particular article of food should be made a rule for another.

Debt is a fire which will consume your substance, a viper which will poison your life, a hyena which will eat out your very entrails; it is a heart without joy, a face without a smile, a word without a sun. Therefore shun debt as you would a plague, pestilence or famine.

Hard thinking tires the body more than hard work.

The man who has the power of success is he who controls circumstances, instead of allowing them to control him.

The six cardinal "dont's" are, don't drink, chew, smoke, swear, deceive, nor go security.

Next to religion there is no element so essential to success in life, as vigorous, robust health.

To live well is a glory, to die well is a bliss.

Be your own master, and master of your calling, and you will soon become the master of others.

A cheerful disposition is the sunshine of the soul.

Never sit or stand with the wind blowing on you for a single moment. Never sit with the back to a window or door, even if closed, for the air coming in at crack and crevice will certainly give a cold.

The worst cold may be promptly cured if, within twenty-four hours after it has been taken, the patient will keep warm in bed, and eat little or nothing for a day or two.

He who does his work promptly, courteously and well, will in the long run, have as much as he can do.

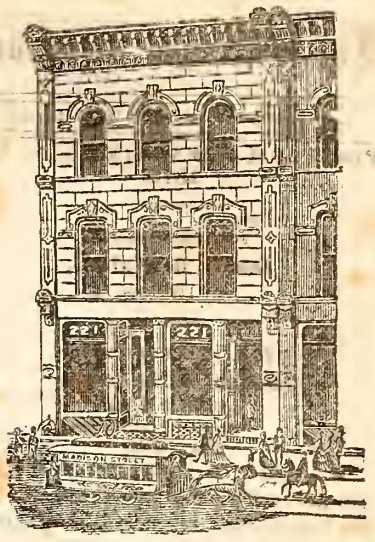
The man who has a single idea and pursues it with a passion, will nearly always meet with triumph and success.

That man lives the longest who wisely divides the occupations of life between brain and muscle.

Cultivate an even temper; many a man has dropped dead in a fit of passion.

The best recreation for a student is to ride on horse back, to cultivate fruits and flowers, or walk an hour or two, and then return to his studies.

Neither body nor brain are safely, truly and happily rested by doing nothing.



Those who know most, seldom make positive statements on any subject. The weakest minded and the least informed are habitually the most positive.

No medicine ever cured or can cure dyspepsia; the infallible remedy is to eat plain, nourishing food regularly, and live out of doors industriously. The almost universal cause of dyspepsia is eating too fast, too often and too much.

It is not he who works the hardest who has the best health; it is the deliberate steady laborer who lives the longest.

One of the best ways of living long and healthfully, is to gather around you, early in life, all the conveniences and comforts possible, and then to stay home of nights and enjoy them.

No one ought to make himself a galley-slave to any observance.

THE CARPENTER DONATION.

The above is a front view of the fine stone-front building on Madison street, Chicago, which Mr. Carpenter proposes to give the National Christian Association for head-quarters and publishing house. The terms of the donation are that $30,000 shall be raised by Apr. 1, 1875, to carry on the work of the Association. Send contributions to Treasurer of the N. C. A.

The National Christian Association.

PRESIDENT.—Philo Carpenter.

DIRECTORS.—Philo Carpenter, J. Blanchard, Archibald Wait, I. A. Hart, C. H. Hagerty, E. A. Cook, O. F. Lumry, C. A. Blanchard, H. L. Kellogg, I. R. B. Arnold, E. S. Cook.

COR. SECRETARY.—C. A. Blanchard.

TREASURER.—H. L. Kellogg

GEN. AG'T & LECTURER—J. P. Stoddard

—The object of this Association as expressed in its constitution is:—"To expose, withstand, and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved; to redeem the administration of justice from perversion; and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform to aid the Association in either of these ways: (1) to establish a Publishing House and Head-quarters in Chicago; (2) to carry on the general work; (3) to maintain the State agents. All donations (drafts or P.O. orders) should be sent to the Treasurer; general correspondence, etc., direct to the Corresponding Secretary. Address both at 13 Wabash Ave. Chicago.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—I give and bequeath to the National Christian Association, incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois, the sum of——dollars for the purposes of said Association, and for which the receipt of its Treasurer for the time being shall be a sufficient discharge.

Address of Anti-masonic Lecturers.

General Agent and Lecturer, J. P. STODDARD, Christian Cynosure Office, Chicago.

State Lecturers:

Indiana, J. T. Kiggins, Portland, Jay Co.
Illinois, H. H. Hinman, Wheaton, Ill.
Ohio, Wm. Dillon, Dayton, O.
New York, Z. Weaver, Esq., and J. L. Barlow, 65 Johnson St., both Syracuse.
Pennsylvania, J. W. Raynor, Uniondale, Susquehanna Co., Pa.
Wisconsin, Philo Ezra, Delavan, Wis.
Michigan, A. H. Springstein, Ypsilanti.
New Hampshire, S. C. Kimball, Centre Strafford.

Lecturers at Large:

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
W. A. Wallace, Dublin, Ind.
J. B. Nessell, Ellington, N. Y.
D. P. Rathbun, Lisbon Center, N. Y.
John Levington, Detroit, Mich.
James Hankins, Mason City, Iowa.
R. B. Taylor, Summerneld, O.
L. N. Stratton, Syracuse, N. Y.
N. Callender, Green Grove, Pa.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
P. Hurless, Polo, Ill.
J. C. Graham, Viola, Mercer Co., Ill.
J. R. Baird, Templeton, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Bourbon, Ind.
Josiah McCasaey, Fancy Creek, Wis.
C. F. Hawley, Millbrook, Pa.
W. M Givens, Center Point, Ind.
J. L. Andrus, Mt. Vision, N. Y.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
D. S. Caldwell, Nevada, Wyandot Co., O
Samuel Hale, Mallett Creek, O.
A. Mayn, Promise City, Wayne Co. Ia
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
C. Wiggins, Angola, Ind.
S. L. Cook, Albion, Ind.
E. Ronayne, Cynosure office, Chicago.
J. M. Dosh, Van Meter, Iowa.
W. M. Love, Baker, St. Clair Co., Mo

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY DEC. 23, 1875.

PLATFORM AND NOMINATIONS FOR 1876.

FOR PRESIDENT
James B. Walker,
of Illinois.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT
Donald Kirkpatrick,
of New York.

PLATFORM.

We hold: 1. That ours is a Christian and not a heathen nation, and that the God of the Christian Scriptures is the author of civil government.

2. That God requires and man needs a Sabbath.

3. That the prohibition of the importation, manufacture and sale of intoxicating drinks as a beverage, is the true policy on the temperance question.

4. The charters of all secret lodges granted by our Federal and State Legislatures should be withdrawn, and heir oaths prohibited by law.

5. That the civil equality secured to all American citizens by article 13th, 14th and 15th of our amended Constitution should be preserved inviolate.

6. That arbitration of differences with nations is the most direct and sure method of securing and perpetuating a permanent peace.

7. That to cultivate the intellect without improving the morals of men, is to make mere adepts and experts; therefore the Bible should be associated with books of science and literature in all our educational institutions.

8. That land and other monopolies should be discountenanced.

9. That the Government should furnish the people with an ample and sound currency, and a return to specie payment as soon as practicable.

10. That maintenance of the public credit, protection to all loyal citizens, and justice to Indians are essential to the honor and safety of our nation.

11. And finally, we demand for the American people the abolition of Electoral Colleges, and a direct vote for President and Vice-president of the United States.

$1.50 A YEAR IN CLUBS OF 10

Our special offer of the Cynosure to Clubs of 10 or more (old or new) at $1.50 expires January 1st, 1876.
Have you sent in a Club yet?—You have only a few days to work in, but now is the time to work

IMPORTANT SUGGESTIONS FOR OUR NEXT ANNUAL MEETING.

This has been set for Chicago next June, hoping the ten thousand dollars will be raised and our head-quarters be at the Carpenter building, where we can hold our meetings for prayer, consultation and business.

It has been suggested that a form of petition be issued to every subscriber to the Cynosure addressed to the local lodges, wherever there are friends of our cause to do it, asking the members of these lodges to give up their secret sworn allegiance to the dark empire or "order" which surrounds the globe to come out and become Americans, and citizens of a Christian Republic, which ours was intended to be and may yet become.

What say brethren and friends? We call Masons aliens and seek to exclude them as such from juries. We call them idolators, and as such seek to exclude them from the churches of Christ. Shall we be consistent and seek to reclaim them by prayer and this labor of love, every one working in his own particular neighborhood. Please answer and give suggestions. Shall this work be done.

CHRISTMAS.

Day after to-morrow, Dec. 25th, on which day Jesus was not born, because the shepherds of Palestine are not out nights in winter,—yet this day will be observed by millions as the very day on which Jesus was born in Bethlehem. The day will be observed by some with religious fantasies, by multitudes with harmless or harmful drolleries, and by a few, perhaps, with acceptable, because sincere gratitude to God for the gift of Christ. It is become common for spiritual Christians to keep Christmas with a protest. The late Dr. Kirk, of Boston in the last sermon we ever heard him preach, began by explaining to his people that "the birthday of Christ" was not his birth-day; that if it was, its observance was extra-Scriptural and invented; that the things told little children about Santa-Claus were fictions displacing loving parents in their gratitude, and exposing them to doctrines of devils in spirit-circles and fortune tellers, or to infidelity when these religious cheats are discovered in after life.

Well, the Cynosure has done some good in its annual testimony.

1. It has sharply defined and set before its readers the sin and blasphemy of "teaching for doctrines the commandments of men;" and practicing for worship the contrivances of men.

2. It has endeavored to "Prepare the way of the Lord and make his paths straight," right through and over popish, Masonic, and ritualistic counterfeits, and substitutes for the religion of Christ.

3. It has gladdened the hearts of thousands who have escaped these contrivances, and troubled many who have not. "It is written, he that glorieth let him glory in the Lord." Ritualism glories in priests.

The Cynosure would be an acceptable present to many a pastor who has more wants than dollars.

THE MOTHER OF HARLOTS.—We commend to the special notice of our readers the sermon of Rev. D. D. Hill of the New England church, Aurora, Ill., which appears in this and next number. The damage of false religious rites and ceremonies to nations appears in Mr. Hill's discourse in statistics which cannot be blinked or denied. And every American should read and ponder these statistics. Every secret society with its solemn oath and ritual—nay, every religious ceremony of mere human origin, whether in church, lodge or pagoda, puts the mind on the road to the Romish apostacy which is the mother of them all because it contains the nature and substance of them all; and all who practice these rites are helping to sink the civilization of Americans to a level with that of Mexico and French Canada. Mr. Hill has laid the Christian public under obligation by his clear and forcible presentation of these terrible facts.

THE MESSAGE ON CHURCH TAXATION.

President Grant made a serious blunder or two in his message in recommending the taxation of church property. He says: "In 1850, I believe, the church property of the United States which paid no tax, municipal or state, amounted to about $3,000,000. In 1860 the amount had doubled; in 1875 it is about $1,000,000,000; by 1900, without check, it is safe to say this property will reach a sum exceeding $3,000,000,000. So vast a sum receiving all the protection and benefits of government, without bearing its proportion of the burdens and expenses of the same, will not be looked upon acquiescently by those who have paid taxes."

It is surprising that the discrepancy did not jog him into accuracy; from three to a thousand million in fifteen years is beyond reason. It is, moreover, not true. Had the President taken care to examine his own census tables he would have found the value of church property in 1850 to be $87,328,801; in 1860, $171,397,932; and in 1870, $354,483,581, and no one believes the present value thrice what it was five years ago. To tax the churches for twice or three times the value of their property is not a very reverential treatment of religious bodies, to say the least. Arguing from such an erroneous statement the recommendation, to say no more, would be doubtfully received. But there is another reason. By express terms of the constitution, "Congress shall make no law respecting the establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." The recommendation says that "without check," the church property will be so increased as to become an element of discord in the nation. If people zealously inclined toward religion choose to dedicate their property to the erection of church buildings, the "free exercise" of religion will certainly be infringed if restraints are put upon the practice by law. This matter has always been left to State legislation; and church property is now taxed in California, the only State where such a measure has yet been adopted. But not only is the message at fault in these two respects, it recommends the usurpation of authority over the religious by the civil power, which would be a most odious union of church and state. The President might have spared himself the trouble of recommending the violation of a principle so jealously guarded by the American people.

Incidentally ex-Speaker Blaine would shut off legislation on this ground even from the States by an amendment to the Constitution to prevent the capture of the public school funds by the Jesuits, which begins, "No State shall make any law, respecting the establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

In criticising this portion of the message, we understand that "church property" means places of worship. When churches step outside their place and begin to hold and speculate in real estate or other property they are in that respect no longer religious, but commercial bodies, and property owned by churches not held for religious uses is as justly taxable as any other.

MASONIC HONOR TO WILSON.

The death of Mr. Wilson, Vice-President of the United States, was by the political element of the country duly and very properly honored, and demonstrated the esteem in which he was held for his party and other services as a politician. As a citizen, we mourned with our fellow-citizens; but as a Freemason, inasmuch as our society debars us from interference with politics or religion, we had nothing to say, inasmuch as the late Mr. Wilson was not only not a Mason, but on the other hand an Anti-mason of the John Quincy Adams school.

We were, therefore, astonished to learn that the Masonic flag, by order of our Grand Master, was placed at half-mast on the staff of the Masonic temple, the property of Freemasons, whose fraternity, if the late Mr. Wilson had the power, while living, would have been destroyed, in honor of the memory of that Anti-mason; but that the Grand Master, with two associates not members of the Grand Lodge, actually walked between the carriages and the hearse at the funeral pagent on the 27th ult., as a delegation of the Freemasons of New York, astonished us.

It may be proper that our lamb should lay down along side of the dead lion of Anti-masonry, but we can't see it in that light. There is such a thing as being too much of a Grand Master.—The Square.

Here's music. The most universally respected citizen (outside Freemason lodges) in the Republic, and the second in its government is dead, and because a flag of his country is dropped in token of respect and mourning, and because a lodge officer thinks he is yet a citizen and mourns the dead as such, behold how is the lodge in New York taken aback. For once the real desire of the lodge has unwittingly escaped it duplicity and its hypocrisy is self-betrayed. "As a citizen we mourned" to hide our hellish heart; "but as a Freemason"—ah! curses on a man who respected the judgment and was convinced by the logic of John Quincy Adams. The flag at half-mast over the Masonic temple in respect to an Anti-mason! Death and destruction! Well, gentlemen of the craft, don't any longer sail under false colors. Get out your own black pirate flag. No one will ask you to lower that. Its scutcheon is a wolf in a lamb's skin. Perhaps the lion of Anti-masonry is yet enough alive to tear off the disguise and crush the beast under it.

The Publishers try to make their department on the sixteenth page attractive. Some persons think they succeed.

The Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union.

We are publishing an exposition of the above named order, but lack a little information. To any one who will send us this information we will be greatly obliged and will send, post paid, half a dozen of the Exposition. In the President's "charge" to candidates after the obligation he says: "Should you at any time be without the password, (changed semi-annually) report yourself to the outside doorkeeper of your own union, give your name and state to him that you have not got the pass-word: he will first report you to the President by whose order you will be admitted. You will enter the room displaying the sign of recognition, proceed to the center, still with the sign in view, and salute the President and Vice-president thus:—— They will acknowledge the salutation thus:—— How is this "Salute" and the acknowledgement given? Address answer to Ezra A. Cook & Co., 13 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

—The New York and Massachusetts fields are prominent this week. Let us all help on the good cause in the Old Bay State by prayer to God, in whose hands are the hearts of men.

—A good way to make the coming New Year a time of blessed memory—send something from the Lord's treasury to help on with the Carpenter Building fund.

—The Wesleyan in a good account of the Rochester Convention says, "Spectators said to each other—'These men mean business.' A Mason said, 'All our state and municipial affairs are manipulated and controlled by secret rings; and I hope this movement will help to disclose one source of their rascality.' We answered, 'Sound!'"

It reports the expenses of the meeting met on the spot and one hundred dollars paid on the deficiency due the former State Agent. Now are there not a dozen brethren in all New York who can share the remaining debt without delay? Elder Barlow is now in Michigan (see notices), but funds can be sent him through the New York agents and treasurer.

—Mr. McPherson, the late clerk of the House of Representatives is now released from public duty and will immediately finish his life of Hon. Thadeous Stevens, some time since begun. Mr. McPherson has fine abilities and integrity for this work, and will not neglect the Anti-masonic career of the "Great Commoner."

—In the last Telescope the respected Bishop Dickson, of Illinois has an article on Christmas, written with the purpose of calling the attention of all observers to the gracious gift of the Son of God to the world, and pointing out some flagrant errors usually connected with the celebration of the day. May we suggest to the Bishop whether the fact of so many evil associations does not mark the character of the day as one appointed by man's device to make the "offense of the cross to cease?" The Lord's day, for which we have the warrant of Scripture, brings in no such disorders. The day is a popish fiction, and operates much as the Jesuit practices in China do now. The Chinaman beholds a cathedral more splendid than his joss temple; within he finds idols and pictures as many and finer, music more grand than from his rude instruments, and priests genuflecting in the way he has become used to. There is no difficulty in drawing in worshipers. They have no changes to make in heart or life, no cross to bear; and our missionaries find the Romish system an increasing difficulty in the way of evangelization.

Isaac Preston.—A letter from Mrs. Preston dated 18th inst., informs us that this aged friend is yet suffering from his accident but there is hope of his ultimate and full recovery.

Announcement to the Friends of Reform in Michigan.

Your Executive Committee are happy to be able to state that the mode of operation in regard to the lectureship in this State, as provided for at the Convention at Ypsilanti, has been set in motion. The delay has been greater than was expected, but it has been overcome and the forces are now at work. Rev. J. L. Barlow, late State Lecturer of New York, arrived in this State on the 11th inst. and has entered upon his labors. To those who were not present at the convention at Ypsilanti, it may be necessary to state that the plan adopted is this: A State Financial Agent has been appointed in the person of Mr. C. B. Remington of Fenton, Mich., whose business it is to precede the lecturer and solicit funds and pledges, secure halls in which to hold meetings, advertise the meetings and work up an interest, and in every way possible aid the lecturer in his work and in organizing local societies auxiliary to the State Association.

Now, friends, we want your earnest and ardent co-operation. First, resolve to put yourself in communication with Mr. Remington at Fenton. Then write. Don't delay. First come, first served. If you want lectures, say so, and say when you want them, and he will attend to your wants. Give these workers a hearty welcome, for they are worthy of your confidence. And don't forget the financial support necessary.

We have a good team in the field and we want to see this fair State of Michigan plowed and cross-plowed till the weeds of error and secretism are killed out and the seeds of truth and righteousness sown in their place. There never was a time more favorable for this work than the present. Let it be thoroughly and vigorously pushed.

Your servant, Cornelius Quick.

The International Review.—A. S. Barnes & Co., New York, publishers of this leading journal in American literature, announce that the January number will contain articles on the political situation in Europe with reference to Turkey and the Herzegovinian question, a criticism of Draper's "History of the conflict between Science and Religion," a paper on "Retrospective Legislation and Grangerism," another on the "Psychology of Murder," and another by Prof. Proctor on the astronomical discoveries in regard to the structure of the universe.

The Christian Patriot.—The first number of the Christian Patriot is now issued. It contains articles on Society, Temperance, Bible in the School, Secret Orders, the Currency Question, Infidel Testimony, the Sabbath, Strikes, etc. Terms one dollar a year, single copy ten cents, postage prepaid. Send and get it. Address Rev. T. H. Pollock, 4½ Magnolia Avenue, Jersey City, N. J.

—A Presbytery has been organized in Newfoundland, and its first meeting was held on the 4th of November. This is one of the fruits of the union of Presbyterians in the British provinces, and is regarded as a hopeful step for the interests of Presbyterianism in the provinces.

The Board of Directors of the National Christian Association have published a statement of the organization and objects of the Association. It is a legal corporation composed at present of 46 members of various Christian denominations. Its main object is to create a fund to be used against secret societies. One of the board, Mr. Philo Carpenter, has offered to give a valuable property to the society provided a certain amount of money can be raised. The next annual meeting of the Association is to be held in June, 1876. —N. Y. Tribune.

Religious Intelligence.

—At a recent meeting of the Methodist ministers in Boston, Bishop Haven, just from the South, asked the brethren present to pray for the renomination of Pres. Grant as necessary to the protection of the Freedmen's interest. His remarks were exaggerated by the reporters and telegraphed everywhere as a renomination of the President by this ministers' association.

—A Sabbath-school convention at Sevierville, Tenn., has unanimously adopted resolutions disapproving the running of trains and boats, and distribution of mails on the Lord's day and has arranged to petition the State Legislature and Congress to remedy the evil.

—The Scotch Presbyterian church of this city, Rev. James McLaughlin, recently received twenty-two new members.

—Arrangements are being made for the dedication of Rev. Moody's Church in this city on the first Sabbath in the new year. Moody and Sankey will be present and take an active part in the exercises. The building is centrally located and is large, plain, pleasant, and shows an economical use of funds in happy contrast with other churches in the city whose extravagant adornings have overburdened them with debt.

—The Advance says, "The Weekly Offering plan, adopted by Plymouth Church, Syracuse, a little more than half a year ago, has resulted in liquidating arrearages which had accumulated, of several hundred dollars, and greatly increasing the benevolent fund. The superintendent and some of the teachers in the Sunday-school a short time since undertook to interest the corps of boot-blacks in the city in religious matters, giving them a supper, replenishing their wardrobe and adding spiritual instruction. It was so successful an effort that the Y. M. C. A. solicited the privilege of assuming the continuance of the work, and it was granted, and is being prosecuted with much promise of good.

—The police authorities of New York have begun a raid on charitable gambling by enforcing the laws against lotteries. A Hebrew charity fair was not allowed to introduce raffling.

—Rev. C. D. Helmer, for eight years pastor of the Union Park Church of this city, presented his resignation and gave his farewell address Sabbath before last. The condition of his health makes it necessary to leave his work and this city. The church has increased from a small number to 800, and they have built one of the largest and costliest churches of the city, but are overborne with a load of debt too great for either pastor or people.

—The Telescope says, "Rev. Mr. McCune, formerly editor of the Christian Unity, has succeeded in the organization of a church after his ideal, thus adding one more to the number of sects, to all of which he is so intensely hostile."

News of the Week.

The City.

A French Catholic church took fire last Sabbath as the congregation was leaving it, and for a time a fatal crush was imminent. The building was saved by the Fire Department.——The first trial for illegality at the late election came off last week with a disagreement. The prosecution used every lawful means to procure a fair jury, but were obliged to take finally the low crowd picked out by the Sheriff who is a party to the infamous ring now managing affairs here.——The Babcock Military commission has been disbanded, as the trial in St. Louis rendered it unnecessary. Late developments indicate that the connection of Babcock with the whiskey ring was not a guilty one.——The American Board of Transportation and Commerce met at the Grand Pacific Hotel last week.

General.

The greatest Congressional excursion on record took place last week on the invitation of the Phila. Centennial Commission. The President and members of the departments joined both branches of Congress filling two trains. The Centennial managers want an appropriation of $1,500.000 and are likely to get it.——Pres. Grant and a number of officials attended Moody's meeting on Sabbath evening, and were much impressed with the sermon.——A resolution was introduced in the House last week declaring a third Presidential term unwise and unpatriotic, and it passed by the extraordinary vote of 282 yeas to 18 nays. There were a great many dodgers on the Republican side.——Three negroes were hung in the Tombs of New York last Friday for the murder of a Jew peddler. On the other hand several murderers have been freed by New York courts lately.

Foreign.

The Prince of Wales left Madras for Calcutta last week. He visited Kandy on the first of the month and was received with the greatest enthusiasm. A dispatch from there, Dec. 8th, gives an incident of the visit thus: The ceremonies to-night were very interesting. Buddha's eye-tooth and various holy books were displayed. The Prince gave a medal to the chief man in the temple, and Tamil-English dictionaries to the chief priests. There was a great gathering of priests. After the tooth was exhibited, two chanted passages for the Prince from the books. They presented two beautiful manuscript volumes to the Prince who accepted them graciously.——While the steamer Mosel was waiting at Bremer some two weeks ago ready to begin the trip to New York a terrible explosion took place on the wharf among the luggage. Over 200 persons were killed or wounded and the vessel seriously injured. A day or two later a man at Southampton attempted twice to take his life but was prevented and placed in charge of officers when he confessed himself one of a gang engaged in the Bremer explosion. They had prepared a cask of dynamite, arranged with clock-work to explode in ten days. This was to be put on board the Mosel, and at Southampton several boxes of rubbish, insured as goods of great value were to be also shipped. In mid-ocean the explosion would destroy the vessel and the insurance money could be collected. This plot of unparallelled atrocity was prevented by the premature explosion. The latest despatches from England throws doubt on this version of the mysterious affair.——Japan papers just received state that the political crisis appears to have passed over, the Mikado and his Government having triumphed over those who wished to involve the country in war or revolution. A proclamation has been issued intimating that the age of feudalism is past forever

The Home Circle.

Come, Labor On.

Come, labor on!
Who dares stand idle on the harvest plain?
While all around him waves the golden grain,
And to each servant does the Master say,
"Go, work to-day!"

Come, labor on!
Claim the high calling angels cannot share—
To young and old the Gospel gladness bear;
Redeem the time; its hours too swiftly fly,
The night draws nigh.

Come, labor on!
The laborers are few, the field is wide.
News, stations must be filled, and blanks supplied:
From voices distant far, or near at home,
The call is "Come!"

Come, labor on!
The enemy is watching, night and day,
To sow the tares, to snatch the seed away,
While we in sleep our duty have forgot,
He slumbered not.

Come, labor on!
Away with gloomy doubts and faithless fear;
No arm so weak but may do service here;
By feeblest agents can our God fulfill
His righteous will.

Come, labor on!
No time for rest, till glows the western sky,
While the long shadows o'er our pathway lie,
And a glad sound comes with the setting sun,
"Servants, well done!"

Come, labor on!
The toil is pleasure, the reward is sure;
Blessed are those who to the end endure—
How full their joy, how deep their rest shall be,
Oh Lord with thee!

—Selected.

The Argument of Prayer.

A frequent and favorite contributor reports the true story of a layman who is now preaching Christ in the Eastern States, and who recently related these facts before a large audience. It is a touching and remarkable testimony to the efficacy of prayer when prompted by a heart in accord with the Holy Spirit:

"I am nearing the sunset," said the venerable speaker. "A long life has been passed; and as I look back upon the route over which I have traveled, I can say it has been a land of deserts and of pits—a land of drought and of the shadow of death which has brought to me a thirst which only the water of life could quench. My childhood was spent in a prayerless home, my manhood was given to the study of those books which were the principal ones in my father's library as far back as I can remember. Of a studious nature, I read them carefully, and sought to satisfy the demand of the soul in the reasonings of Tom Paine, Voltaire, and Rosseau. They did not satisfy. Later I studied A. J. Davis, and in the Spiritualism found only a temporary relief Compte and Darwin were favorite authors, and their arguments were perfectly familiar to me. I read the Bible only to misinterpret its truths and to pervert its teachings; was ever ready to dispute with Christians, and prided myself on my power to puzzle them with my atheistical doctrines. One evening a neighbor, a devout Christian woman, came in, and I at once beset her with my favorite topic, seeking to undermine her faith and trust. She made but little reply; and, after a few moments, surprised me with the remark, 'Father L., hadn't we better pray?' and before I was aware of it, I was on my knees listening to a most wondrous prayer. She seemed to be before the open door of heaven, leading me, a way-worn pilgrim, to its very gates. She prayed as the birds sing, and with holy earnestness that light might flash into my darkened soul. Rising, she quickly bade me good night and left. Then the Holy Spirit took possession of my heart. The Christian boldness united to a womanly modesty and simplicity, the peaceful joy which irradiated her countenance, compelled me to ask, What is the cause of such serene joy?

"I had seen Christians die in triumphant peace, and the question came up, What gives them this trust, and what sustains them in an hour when they stand on the confines of the other life? That night I prayed and no light came to me. I read the Bible, but it was a sealed book. My skepticism and infidelity were so dark and dreary, and the long, wasted, worse than useless life, stood out in such appalling contrast with the life of my little friend who seemed to live in an atmosphere of joy and song, that again I prayed and begged for light, and at last my prayers were answered, and for a year I have rejoiced in Christ my Saviour, my Redeemer. My wife has become a Christian, and my joy and sunshine and prayer and peace are abiding guests in my home."

Such is the testimony of the old patriarch who the past year has been actively engaged in service for his new-found King.—Advance.

No Burden.

There is a gateway at the entrance of a narrow passage in London, over which is written, "No burdens allowed to pass through."

"And yet we do pass constantly with ours," said one friend to another, as they turned up this passage out of a more frequented and broader thoroughfare. They carried no visible burdens, but they were like many who, although they have no outward pack upon their shoulders, often stoop inwardly beneath the pressure of a heavy load upon the heart. The worst burdens are those which never meet the eye.

There is another gate—one which we are invited to enter, must enter, if we would ever attain to rest and peace, and over which is also inscribed, "No burdens allowed to pass through." This is the straight gate which leads to life; and by it stands One who opened the narrow way to which it leads, saying to each one of us, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy-laden, and I will give you rest."—Congregationalist.

Are We Bible Christians.

This is a very simple question, and each may answer, "I hope so," and then dismiss the question. But stop! This will not do. To hope so is not sufficient. The interests at stake are too vast to be left in any doubt. Life, eternal life, with all its unspeakable joys, is at stake. There must be no doubt but certainties. If we are Bible Christians, we must be living in strict accordance with all the Bible's teachings and requirements. If we are not Bible Christians we are not true Christians. This proposition is self-evident, but it does not the less need our most solemn thought, for what we are most willing to admit, and most firmly believe we are most apt to disregard.

Jesus declares, "Not every one that saith unto me Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven: but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven" We are then to be judged by the obedience we yield to His will, that is, the law of the Father. We are to be judged, not by our favorite commentator, not by our pet sermonizer, not by the teaching of priest or minister, not by our own self-established standard, not by the opinions and customs of the circle in which we move, not by the church which accident, interest, or our friends, have induced us to join, but by the Bible alone. By the Bible we must live, for by the Bible we shall be judged.—Sel.

Tell-Tale Lips.

I have observed that lips become more or less contracted in the course of years in proportion as they are accustomed to express good humor and generosity, or peevishness and a contracted mind. Remark the effect which a moment of ill-temper and grudginess has upon the lips, and judge what may be expected from an habitual series of such movements. Remark the reverse and make a similar judgment. The mouth is the frankest part of the face; it can't in the least conceal its sensations. We can neither hide ill-temper with it, nor good; we may affect what we please, but affectation will not help us. In a wrong cause it will only make our observers resent the endeavor to impose on them. The mouth is the seat of one class of emotions, as the eyes are of another; or, rather, it expresses the same emotions, but in greater detail, and with a more irrepressible tendency to be in motion. It is the region of smiles and dimples, and of trembling tenderness; of a sharp sorrow, or a full breathing-joy, of candor, of reserve, of anxious care, or liberal sympathy. The mouth out of its many sensibilities, may be fancied throwing up one great expression into the eye—as many lights in a city reflect a broad lustre into the heavens.—Leigh Hunt.

The Music of Silence.

There is scarcely a substance in nature out of which some kind of music has not been evoked. Metals, wood, air, water, have all through the agency of human intelligence, been made subservient to musical tones. Even stones, and hills of sand, we are told by travelers, have been known to emit sounds resembling an instrument being played at a distance. Thus, we see nature, unassisted by art or ingenuity, furnishes for us music—sometimes grand and awful, again soft, soothing, until at last it hushes into silence. Even in silence there is a kind of music, as every musician well understands. And in every composition do we not see nature's music mirrored? There is the rush of the current in grand crescendos, the moaning and shrieking of the winds, the dashing of the pelting rain, then the gradual dying away of the storm in graceful diminuendos, until all is hushed to silence. Then comes the rest. We all know the beautiful effect of the rest in music, which is the symbol of the music in silence. There is majesty in absolute silence often grand, awe-inspiring, more than is produced by the loftiest strains or richest harmonies. When we are told by the writer of the Revelations that there was silence in heaven for the space of half an hour, what a magnificent idea it conjures up in the mind! Thousands of thousands and tens of thousands of bright and glorious angels, who swell the choir of heaven, lay down their harps, with one accord for the sublime rest in the mighty song.

An Idol! Give it up! Not he.

You can't make him, he's been talked to, and talked to, urged, importuned, besought again and again, for his own good and the good of others. Still he clings to the idol, holds it fast, rolls it as a sweet morsel under his tongue and beside his teeth. He says he only takes a little about the size of a pea now and then, and so cautious is he and sly, very few unless he open his mouth, or come in contact with his breath would suspect him to be a tobacco chewer, especially as he never spits, but swallows the poisonous juice. So he goes, year after year, with a tawny look and stenched breath, in open face of public opinion and the light of grace. He knows full well it is grievous to his brethren. His example too is very bad for the youth. The dirty habit greatly injures his usefulness as a professor of religion, and public teacher. What influence for good at the present day can a tobacco chewer or smoker have on the drunkard, or in exhorting sinners to repentance. How can any one that is a slave to appetite, preach temperance or holiness? "Physician, heal thyself."

But the plea of this brother is, he only takes a little, and this little is for his health. And these little foxes are the very ones that destroy the vines—do all the mischief. How different the case of brother Benton, a noble soul. He thought it impossible to do without it. His physician told him he would die—he must use it—what did brother Benton do? He too only took a little about the size of a pea—and no one suspected him to be a tobacco chewer, so very genteel was he in the use of the weed. As light dawned gently—conscience whispered in a soft tone—"stop,"—Did he stop? The very instant he saw it hindered prayer, grieved the Holy One, he put down his foot, come life or death, he resolved never again to put the dirty thing in his mouth—never more to eat tobacco while the world standeth if it caused his brother to offend. From that very time his health improved. The truth was he had become fond of it. So it is in nine cases out of ten, where the plea is health there is a secret fondness—a desire to gratify a depraved appetite, "Ephraim is joined to his idols, let him alone."

The excuses for using the dirty tyrant are numerous and frequent. One uses it for his teeth; another for his general health; a third, for his corpulency; a fourth, for his leanness; a fifth, for a watery stomach; a sixth, to help digestion; another, because some ignorant, sottish, winebibbing, tobacco-chewing or smoking doctor recommends it:—thus and thus, till the catalogue of excuses and subterfuges is filled out.

It is a matter of devout and happy thanksgiving to God, that the most respectable, learned, and eminently successful of the medical faculty, with united voice, veto the "accursed thing," warn their patients to lay it aside forever.

As Paul said to Timothy, so say we to you, reader, "Keep thyself pure." Be clean in your person, and be clean in your heart. But, depend upon it, you can be neither if you use tobacco.

"Where lurk ye, thou blot on thy race?
Still dwell ye with civilized men?
Why crawl ye not into some desolate place,
The lair of a wolf, or a den
In the clefts of the rocks, in the desert, away
From the gaze of mankind and the light of the day."

—Author of "Home Thrusts."

Is Green Tea a Poison.

A new law, entitled the Sale-of-Food-and Drugs act, goes into force in England next New-Year's day. The Commissioners of Customs are given certain extraordinary powers by it in regard to the stoppage of imports of adulterated edible goods. A remarkable correspondence between the Commissioners and a firm of London tea-merchants has recently been published, much to the horror of devotees of the cup that cheers. The firm inquired whether the Commissioners meant to confiscate all adulterated tea after Jan. 1, and explained that such a course would put a summary stop to the supply of green tea, inasmuch as every particle of that tea is "faced." "Faced" is a pleasing paraphrase for "adulterated."

Black tea is the leaf in its natural state. Most of the varieties are, however, too mild to satisfy a palate used to pickles and mustards, and pepper-sauces, and like condiments. The dealers, therefore, kindly poison the leaf and produce what they are pleased to advertise as a "superior quality of green tea." At one time, ten pounds of green tea were sold in the American market for every pound imported. The process of adulteration was performed at the seaboard. A long cylinder, turning slowly over a fire, was half-filled with black tea. Then handfuls of turmeric, indigo, and other poisonous matter were thrown in. After the whole had been cooked together, the stuff came out as green tea. Each leaf was perhaps coated with copper! Since then "Chinese cheap labor" has supplanted Caucasian cunning. The Mongolian ships the tea already greened, and so saves the importer trouble. The change, however, is a bad one for the consumer. The almond-eyed heathen have surpassed their Christian teachers in the art of adulteration. A member of a Manchester tea firm writes to the London Times that the coloring matter used is a "filthy compound" of silicate of magnesium, Prussian blue, "and other dirt" and that the leaves colored are faded and old, and mixed with leaves of a plant bearing the suggestive name of "lie tea." The "lie tea," we may add, flourishes in New Jersey, and is carefully cultivated there,—it is not difficult to surmise why.

There is such a thing as pure green tea, but it is much weaker than the artificial stuff, and has to be prepared by a process of drying that is long and costly. It is rarely exported from China.

Recent reformers have argued that excessive tea-drinking does as much harm to women as excessive consumption of alcohol does to men. The comparison of the two may be an exaggeration, but it is not to be denied that tea has many victims, and that they one and all prefer it in its poisoned state.—Chicago Tribune.

Noah Webster's Work.

There is no doubt that Webster was right when he sat himself the task of Americanizing the English language by a recourse to the spelling-book. He has succeeded very largely in determining the forms of words, but he did more than this, while he failed in the more ambitious task he set himself. He did more, by his shrewdness and his ready perception of the popular need, he made elementary education possible at once, and furnished the American people with a key which moved easily in the lock; he failed where he sought the most, because language is not a toy nor patent machine which can be broken, thrown aside at will, and replaced with a better tool ready-made from the lexicographer's shop. He had no conception of the enormous weight of the English language and literature when he undertook to shovel it out of the path of American civilization. The stars in their courses fought against him. It is so still. We cannot dispense with European culture, because we refuse to separate ourselves from the mighty past which has settled there in forms of human life unrepresented among us. We cannot step out of the world's current, though it looks sluggish beside our rushing stream, because there is a spiritual demand in us which cries louder than the thin voice of a self-conscious national life. This demand is profoundly at one with the deeper, holier sense of national being which does not strut upon the world's stage. The humility of a great nation is in its own past, and, where that is incomplete, in its admiration for whatever is noble and worthy in other nations. It is out of this reverence and humility and this self-respect that great works in literature and art grow, and not out of the overweening sensitiveness which makes one's nationality only a petty jealousy of other people.—Atlantic.

Many cannot endure the excitement of prayer who are fond of the excitement of carousal.

He is not the happiest or the most successful man who has accumulated the most money, but he who has done the most good with it for others.

Children's Corner.

History of Zero.

"Zero," on the common thermometer, like the fanciful names of the constellations, is a curious instance of the way wise men's errors are made immortal by becoming popular. It may be worth while to say that the word itself (zero) comes to us through the Spanish from the Arabic, and means empty, hence, nothing. In expressions like "90deg Fahr." the abbreviation, Fahr. stands for Fahrenheit, a Prussian merchant of Dantzic, on the Baltic Sea. His full name was Gabriel Daniel Fahrenheit.

From a boy he was a close observer of nature, and when only nineteen years old, in the remarkable cold winter of 1709, he experimented by putting snow and salt together and noticed that it produced a degree of cold equal to the coldest day of the year. And that day was the coldest day that the oldest inhabitant could remember. Gabriel was the more struck with the coincidence of his little scientific discovery, and hastily concluded that he had found the lowest degree of temperature known in the world, either natural or artificial. He called the degree zero, and constructed a thermometer, or rude weather-glass, with a scale graduating up from zero to boiling point, which he numbered 312, and the freezing point 32—because, as he thought, mercury contracted the thirty-second of its volume on being cooled down from the temperature of freezing water to zero; and expanded 180th on being heated from the freezing to the boiling point.

Time showed that this arrangement, instead of being truly scientific, was as arbitrary as the division of the Bible into verses and chapters, and that these two points no more represented the real extremes of temperature than "from Dan to Beersheba" expressed the exact extremes of Palestine.

But Fahrenheit's thermometer had been widely adopted with its inconvenient scale; and none thought of any better until his name became an authority, for Fahrenheit finally abandoned trade and gave himself up to science. Then habit made people cling to the established scale, as habit makes the English cling to the old system of cumbrous fractional currency.

Our nation began to use Fahrenheit's thermometer about the middle of the last century, or not far from the time when old style was exchanged for new style in the writing of dates.

The three countries which use Fahrenheit are England, Holland and America. Russia and Germany use Bauner's thermometer, in which the boiling point is counted 80 degrees above the freezing point. France uses the centigrade thermometer, so called because it marks the boiling point 100 degrees from freezing point.

On many accounts the centigrade system is the best, and the triumph of convenience will be attained when zero is made the freezing point, and when the boiling point is put 100 or 1000 degrees from it, and all the subdivisions are fixed decimally.

If Fahrenheit had done this at first, or even if he had made it one of his many improvements, after the public adopted his error, the luck of opportunity, which was really his, would have secured to his invention the patronage of the world.—Northern Christian Advocate.

An Acrostic.

I would be glad to impress the young folks with the importance of beginning early to study the Bible. What you learn of its truths and precepts will dwell in your heart, like a sweet melody, all your life. I give a copy of a very pleasant and profitable manner of searching the Scriptures. I expect to receive so many good proverbs, that there will be no necessity of another from me. The acrostic formed is an old Greek proverb. The subject—

WISDOM.

K—eep thy heart with all diligence, for out of it are the issues of life.

N—ow there was found in it a poor, wise man, and he by his wisdom delivered the city; yet no man remembered that same poor man.

O—nly by pride cometh contention; but with the well-advised is wisdom.

W—isdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom; and with all thy gettings, get understanding.

T—he fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge; but fools despise wisdom and instruction.

H—e layeth up wisdom for the righteous; he is a buckler to them that walk uprightly.

Y—ea, also, when he that is a fool walketh by the way, his wisdom faileth him, and he saith to every one that he is a fool.

S—o shall the knowledge of wisdom be unto thy soul when thou hast found it; then there shall be a reward, and thy expectation shall not be cut off.

E—ven a fool when he holdeth his peace is counted wise; and he that shutteth his lips is esteemed a man of understanding.

L—abor not to be rich; cease from thine own wisdom.

F—or wisdom is better than rubies; and all things that may be desired are not to be compared with it.

—Interior.

STORMY DAY.—A young contributor writes to The Advance, "I want to tell you how I spent a stormy day. My little brother and I got two pieces of plain white paper, about eight inches long and six inches wide, and sewed them together at one side, so as to make a four-page sheet. Then we cut capital letters out of papers, and pasted them on the top of our sheet, so that they spelled The Children's Journal. Then we cut out pieces of poetry and stories, and pasted them on. When it was done, we let papa and mamma take it, and charged them each a cent for the reading. I do not know when we shall publish another. It depends upon the weather."

Masonic Books,

FOR SALE AT THE CYNOSURE OFFICE.

Those who wish to know the character of Freemasonry, as shown by its own publications, will find many standard works in the following list.

No sensible Mason dares deny that such men as Albert G. Mackey, the great Masonic Lexicographer, and Daniel Sickels, the Masonic author and publisher, are the highest Masonic authority in the United States.

Allyn's Ritual of Masonry,

Illustrated by a large number of engravings, and containing a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, Orange and Odd-fellows' societies. Price, $5.00.

Mackey's Masonic Ritualist;

OR

MONITORIAL INSTRUCTION BOOK

BY ALBERT G. MACKEY,

Past General High Priest of the General Grand Chapter of the United States, Knight of the Eagle and Pelican, Prince of Mercy," Etc. Etc. Price, $1 75

Mackey's Lexicon of Freemasonry,

Containing a Definition of Terms, Notices of its History, Traditions and Antiquities, and an account of all the Rites and Mysteries of the Ancient World. 12 mo. 526 pages, $3 00

MACKEY'S MANUAL OF THE LODGE,

OR

Monitorial Instructions in the Degrees of Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft, and Master Mason; with Ceremonies relating to Installations, Dedications, Consecrations, Laying of Corner-stones &c. Price, $2 00

MACKEY'S TEXT BOOK

OF

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

Illustrating the Laws of Freemasonry, both written and unwritten.

This is the Great Law Book of Freemasonry 670 pages. Price, $2.50.

Webb's Monitor of Freemasonry,

LARGE EDITION, WITH NOTES

By ROB. MORRIS, Price, $1.50.
Pocket Edition, 75 cts.

SICKELS' FREEMASON'S MONITOR.

Containing the Degrees of Freemasonry embraced in the Lodge, Chapter, Council and Commandery, embellished with nearly 300 symbolic Illustrations. Together with Tactics and drill of Masonic Knighthood. Also, forms of Masonic Documents, Notes, Songs, Masonic dates, installations, etc. By D. Sickels, 32 mo tuck. Price $1.50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry.

A Practical Guide to the Ceremonies in the Degrees conferred in Masonic Lodge Chapter, Encampments, etc. Illustrated Edition. In cloth, $1 25; paper, 75 cts.

Chase's Digest of Masonic Law.

Comprises a Complete Code of Regulations, Decisions and Opinions upon Questions of Masonic Jurisprudence. Price, $2 25.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor

Illustrated with Explanatory Engraving Price $2.50.

HAND BOOK OF FREEMASONRY.

By EDMOND RONAYNE.

Entered according to Act of Congress in the year 1875.
BY EDMOND RONAYNE.
In the office of the Librarian of Congress at Washington, D. C.

MASTER MASON'S DEGREE. Continued.

Secretary—Most Excellent King Solomon, the several rolls of the workmen have been called as ordered, and three Fellow Crafts are found to be missing, namely: Jubela, Jubelo and Jubelum, who from the similarity of their names are supposed to be brethren and men of Tyre.

Just then three loud and distinct knocks are sounded on the door from the outside and the secretary, still standing at the altar, proceeds:

Secretary:—(making due-guard as before) Most Excellent King Solomon, there are without twelve Fellow Crafts clad in white gloves and aprons, tokens of innocence, who say they have important tidings to communicate and desire an audience with your Majesty.

Worshipful Master:—Admit the twelve Fellow Crafts.

Junior Deacon:—(opening the door) Enter, you twelve Fellow Crafts.

The brethren in the ante-room now enter the lodge and marching straight to the East, arrange themselves in a line in front of the Master's chair when one of their number who is well posted, becomes spokesman and makes the following report:

Spokesman:—(making due-guard) Most Excellent King Solomon, fifteen Fellow Crafts seeing the temple about to be completed and being desirous of obtaining the secrets of a Master Mason or Master's word, whereby we might travel into foreign countries, work and receive Master's wages, entered into a horrid conspiracy to extort them from our Grand Master Hiram Abiff, or take his life. But, reflecting with horror upon the atrocity of the crime, twelve of us have recanted. The other three, however, we fear have persisted in their murderous design. We therefore appear before your Majesty, clad in white gloves and aprons, (extending his hands) tokens of innocence, freely acknowledge our premeditated guilt and most humbly implore your pardon. [They all kneel upon the left knee at the same time making the due-guard of a Fellow Craft.]

Worshipful Master:—Arise, you twelve Fellow Crafts. It is my order that you now divide yourselves into parties and travel three East, three West, three North, and three South, with others whom I shall appoint in search of the ruffians, and return not without tidings. Depart.

All except the three best posted brethren, whom I shall designate as Fellow Crafts No. 1, 2, 8, now take their seats and these proceeding very slowly in search of the ruffians pass out by the "preparation-room" door and after a short delay enter the lodge-room again by the ante-room door, supposed to be the port of Joppa, inside of which they meet the Junior Deacon as before, when the following dialogue takes place:

Fellow Craft:—[in search of the ruffians] Halloo, friend! Have you seen any strangers pass this way?

Junior Deacon:—[at the port of Joppa] I have, three.

Fellow Craft:—What sort of appearing men were they?

Junior Deacon:—They appeared to be workmen from the temple at Jerusalem seeking a passage to Ethiopia, but not having King Solomon's pass were unable to obtain a passage and returned back into the country.

Fellow Craft:—[addressing his companions] Why, these are the very men of whom we are in search. [turning to Junior Deacon] You say they returned back into the country?

Junior Deacon:—They did.

Fellow Craft:—[to his companions] Why, these are important tidings; let us go up and report this to King Solomon.

Three Fellow Crafts:—[altogether] Agreed.

They now proceed to the East and standing in front of the Master's chair, Fellow Craft No. 1 makes the following report:

Fellow Craft No. 1:—[makes due-guard of Fellow Craft] Most Excellent King Solomon, tidings.

Worshipful Master:—Report.

Fellow Craft No. 1:—We being of a party who pursued a westerly course from the temple, on coming down near the port of Joppa, fell in with a wayfaring man of whom we inquired if he had seen any strangers pass that way? He informed us that he had, three; and described them as workmen from the temple at Jerusalem, seeking a passage into Ethiopia, but not having your Majesty's pass were unable to obtain a passage and returned back into the country. Deeming these to be tidings of importance we have returned back to communicate them.

Worshipful Master:—These are doubtless the ruffians. It is my order that you now disguise yourselves and travel as before with positive injunctions to find the ruffians, and with as positive assurance that if you do not the twelve Fellow Crafts will be deemed guilty of the murder and severally suffer for the crime committed. Depart [gives a loud rap with his gavel as if angry].

The three Fellow Crafts now travel as before in search of the ruffians proceeding slowly towards the "preparation-room" door, and spending more time than usual outside, they again enter the lodge-room by the ante-room door and approaching the spot where the candidate representing the murdered and buried Hiram is all this time lying, the following conversation takes place between them:

Fellow Craft No. 1:—Well, here we are back again in sight of the temple and no tidings yet, (that is, of the ruffians) now what shall we do?

Fellow Craft No. 2:—Let us go up and report ourselves and suffer the penalty of our conspiracy.

Fellow Craft No. 3:—Ho! that will never do, for if we do those poor Fellow Crafts will be taken and executed.

Fellow Craft No. 1:—Well, what shall we do?

Fellow Craft No. 2:—Let us take a north-easterly course.

Fellow Craft No. 3:—Well comrades, arrange it among yourselves. I am weary, I shall sit down to rest and refresh myself (and suiting the action to the word he seats himself near the candidate's head).

The other two Fellow Crafts move off a little way-walking very slowly and as it were arranging what route they shall take next, when one of them looks back and beckoning to him who is sitting down says: "Come on, comrade, come on, and let us pursue our search." The weary Fellow Craft now in attempting to arise catches hold of the Warden's column, representing an acacia as before mentioned, and pretending to pull it up by the roots stumbles a little in rising, looks at the supposed acacia in astonishment and exclaims:

Fellow Craft No. 3:—Hail, companions! (they turn around and walk back hurriedly.) On attempting to arise I accidentally caught hold of this acacia which easily giving way excites my curiosity.

Fellow Craft No. 1:—Well, let us look around here and see what we can find. (Pretends to search.)

Fellow Craft No. 2:—(in surprise) Why, this has the appearance of a new-made grave.

Just as the word "grave" is pronounced the three pretended ruffians, Jubela, Jubelo and Jubelum, supposed to be hiding in in the clefts of an adjacent rock, and who for the time being are sitting immediately inside the door of the "preparation-room," now utter the following exclamations, the three Fellow Crafts, in the meantime, intently listening and commenting upon each exclamation as it is made:

Jubela:—O that my throat had been cut across, my tongue torn out by its roots and buried in the rough sands of the sea at low water-mark, where the tide ebbs and and flows twice in twenty-four hours, ere I had consented to the death of so great a man as our Grand Master Hiram Abiff!

Fellow Craft No. 1:—(to his companions in a low tone) Hark! that's the voice of Jubela.

Jubela:—O that my left breast had been torn open and my heart plucked out and given as a prey to the wild beasts of the field and the fowls of the air, ere I had been accessory to the death of so good a man as our Grand Master Hiram Abiff!

Fellow Craft No. 2:—(as before) Hark! that's the voice of Jubelo.

Jubelum:—O that my body had been severed in twain, my bowels taken from thence and burned to ashes and the ashes scattered to the four winds of heaven, so that no more trace or remembrance might be had of so vile and perjured a wretch as I, who caused the death of so great and so good a man as our Grand Master Hiram Abiff! Ah! Jubela and Jubelo, it is I woo am more guilty than you both; it is I who struck the fatal blow, it was I who killed him.

Fellow Craft No. 3:—(excitedly) That's the voice of Jubelum; these are the ruffians, they are confessing their guilt. Now what shall we do?

Fellow Craft No. 1:—Let us rush in, seize and bind them and bring them before King Solomon.

Fellow Craft No. 2:—But they are desperate men.

Fellow Craft No. 3:—Well, but we have got truth and justice on our side; let us rush in.

Altogether:—Agreed.

They then make a sudden rush for the "preparation-room" where a sharp and short scuffle is supposed to take place between the pursuers and pursued, and in a little while the three Fellow Crafts again enter the lodge-room, each one leading a pretended murderer as prisoner, whom they march up to King Solomon (Worshipful Master) and cause to kneel in front of the Master's chair. The following report is then made:

Fellow Craft No. 2:—(making due-guard of Fellow Craft) Most Excellent King Solomon, tidings from the West.

Worshipful Master:—Report.

Fellow Craft No. 2:—We being of the party who pursued a westerly course from the temple a second time, after several days of fruitless search and when on our return, one of our number becoming more weary than the rest sat down upon the brow of a hill west of Mount Moriah to rest and refresh himself. On attempting to arise he accidentally caught hold of an acacia which easily giving way excited his curiosity. Whereupon he hailed his companions and upon our return and examination found what had the appearance of a new-made grave. And whilst meditating upon this singular circumstance we heard the following horrid exclamations issuing from the clefts of an adjacent rock. The first was the voice of Jubela who exclaimed, "O that my throat had been cut across, my tongue torn out by the roots," etc., (as already given). The second was the voice of Jubelo who exclaimed, "O that my left breast had been torn open, my heart plucked out," etc. And the third was the voice of Jubelum who exclaimed in tones of greater horror than the others, "O that my body had been severed in twain, my bowels taken from thence," etc., whereupon we rushed in, seized and bound them and now have them before your Majesty (pointing to the kneeling ruffians).

Worshipful Master:—(sternly] Are these the ruffians?

Fellow Craft No. 3:—[making due-guard] They are, Most Excellent King Solomon.

Worshipful Master:—(addressing ruffians) What say you, Jubela, are you guilty or not guilty?

Jubela:—Guilty, Most Excellent King Solomon.

Worshipful Master:—Jubelo, are you also guilty or not guilty?

Jubelo:—More guilty, Most Excellent King Solomon.

Worshipful Master:—Are you guilty or not guilty, Jubelum?

Jubelum:—Most guilty, Most Excellent King Solomon.

Worshipful Master:—[very sternly] Vile miscreants and impious wretches that you are. You have slain your Grand Master Hiram Abiff and have not obtained that for which you have so long sought. Reflect with horror upon the atrocity of the crime ou have committed and consider the amiable character of im whom you have so basely assassinated. Hold up your eads and receive your sentence. [The three kneeling persons old up their heads and look at the Master] It is my order that ou be now taken without the gates of the city, and be there xecuted according to your several imprecations whilst hidden in he clefts of the rock. [Addressing the Fellow Crafts] Guards, way with them. [Gives a loud rap and displays considerable nger.]

The ruffians are now marched very slowly back again into the "preparation-room" where they are supposed to be slain accord. ng to the strict injunction of King Solomon, and which is usual. y done in the following manner: The Fellow Crafts having he ruffians in charge, balance three times with the right hand nd right leg; the third time stamping the right foot on the floor nd striking the palm of the right hand against the palm of the eft. This they do three times and the pretended execution is ver, affording considerable mirth to those outside and often orcing a delicate smile from the brethren in the lodge. The hree Fellow Crafts now return to the East and one of them aking the due-guard as usual, reports: "Most Excellent King olomon, your orders have been duly executed."

Worshipful Master:—It is my order that you now go in search. f the body; and when found you will observe whether the Mas. er's word or a key to it or anything appertaining to the Master's egree be found on or about the body.

They move away very slowly towards the Senior Warden's tation, where the candidate is all this time lying, and as they go ne of them asks: "Where is that weary brother who sat down o rest and refresh himself?"

Fellow Craft No. 3:—Here I am.

Fellow Craft No. 2:—Do you think you can find the place?

Fellow Craft No. 3:—I think I can, (stepping forward towards he candidate's head and picking up the little column before eferred to). Here is the acacia and this is the place.

Fellow Craft No. 1:—Well, Let us dig down here and see what ve can find.

The candidate up to this time has been snugly covered up in he canvass, and this they now roll back, which in the scientific anguage of Masonry means digging down, and having come to he supposed body they spread their hands over the pretended rave in the manner of the due-guard of a Master Mason (See g. page 21). They at the same time slightly avert their faces owards the right shoulder and exclaim, "Phew! this is indeed he body of our Grand Master Hiram Abiff."

Fellow Craft No. 1:--What was that King Solomon ordered s to do?

Fellow Craft No. 2:—He ordered us to observe whether the Master's word or a key to it or anything appertaining to the Master's degree be found on or about the body.

Fellow Craft No. 3:—What do we know of the Master's word r a key to it? We are but Fellow Crafts.

Fellow Craft No. 1:—True, but we must obey orders.

Fellow Craft No. 2:—Well, let us search and see what we can nd.

The three Fellow Crafts now begin to fuss and fumble about he candidate's body, pretending to search on his person for the ost word or key to the secrets of a Master Mason, and after a few econds thus spent Fellow Craft No. 1 laying hold of the minia. ure plumb suspended from the candidate's neck as already ientioned, he enquires in some astonishment:

Fellow Craft No. 1: Why, what is this?

Fellow Craft No. 2:—(also handling the plumb) This is the ewel of his office.

Fellow Craft No. 3:—Well, let us take this and carry it up to King Solomon and if he says nothing about the Master's word r a key to it we will not.

Fellow Crafts:—(together) Agreed.

One of the supposed Fellow Crafts now removes the pretended ewel from around the candidate's neck and they again proceed o King Solomon's throne-room (Worshipful Master's chair) where the following report is made by the third Fellow Craft:

Fellow Craft No. 3:—(making due-guard) Most Excellent King olomon, tidings from the body.

Worshipful Master:—(representing King Solomon) Where was found?

Fellow Craft No. 3:—The body of our Grand Master Hiram biff was found in a grave dug due East and West, six feet erpendicular, a westerly course from the temple where a weary rother sat down to rest and refresh himself.

Worshipful Master:—Did you observe whether the Master's ord or a key to it or anything appertaining to the Master's egree was on or about the body?

Fellow Craft No. 3:—(making due-guard) Most Excellent ing Solomon, we are but Fellow Crafts and know nothing of he Master's word or key of it.

Worshipful Master:—True.

Fellow Craft No. 3:—There was nothing found on or about he body by which it could be designated except this (handing he little plumb to the Master), the jewel of his office.

Worshipful Master:—(receiving the plumb and rising to his eet) This is indeed the jewel of our Grand Master Hiram Abiff. There can be no longer a doubt of his untimely end. You Fel. ow Crafts will now form a solemn procession and go and assis he in raising the body; and, my worthy companion of Tyre addressing the Senior Warden, as Hiram, king of Tyre) since he Master's word is now lost I propose that the first sign made pon arriving at the grave and the first word spoken after the ody shall be raised shall be adopted as the sign and word for he regulation of all Master's lodges until future generations hall find out the right.

The Worshipful Master then gives three raps which call all he brethren to their feet and they proceed to the esupposed grav tanding in a circle around where the candidate is lying. The Master also proceeds towards the pretended prostrate Hiram and as he arrives at the feet of the candidate the Senior Warden slips the hoodwink from his eyes. The Worshipful Master then spreads his hands over the supposed grave in the manner of the due-guard of a Master Mason (see fig. page) the rest of the brethren doing the same, and then they all raise their hands perpendicularly above their heads and let them fall by three distinct motions (This is the grand hailing sign or sign of distress of a Master Mason, and is more fully explained on page .) The Master now proceeds to the head of the grave, the Senior Warden being on his right hand and the Junior Warden on his left, and they all march three times slowly around the grave or the prostrate candidate, singing as they go the following funeral dirge to the tune of Pleyel's hymn:

Solemn strikes the funeral chime,
Notes of our departing time,
As we journey here below
Through a pilgrimage of woe.

Mortals now indulge a tear,
For mortality is here.
See how wide her trophies wave
O'er the slumbers of the grave.

Here another guest we bring;
Seraphs of celestial wing,
To our funeral altar come,
Waft our friend and brother home

There enlarged thy soul shall see
What was veiled in mystery.
Heavenly glories of the place
Show his Maker face to face.

Lord of all! below—above,
Fill our hearts with truth and love,
When dissolves our earthly tie,
Take us to thy Lodge on high.

The singing of this hymn, or a portion of it, is so timed that at least the first, second and last stanzas are concluded by the time the Master arrives at the head of the grave, the third time when the procession is halted all the brethren standing around the body as before. The Worshipful Master then addresses one of the brethren usually one of the three Fellow Crafts as follows:

Worshipful Master:—One of you Fellow Crafts will now take the body by the Entered Apprentice grip and see if it can be so raised.

One of the brethren now steps forward to the right side of the candidate and taking him by the right hand presses the top of his thumb hard against the first knuckle joint of the fore-finger next the hand. (See fig. page) He also lays hold of his right arm above the elbow firmly with his left hand and holding the candidate thus he pretends to put forth very great exertion in attempting to pull him out of the grave, or in Masonic parlance to raise him by the "Entered Apprentice grip" and after one long vigorous effort he forcibly slips his hand from that of the candidate and reports as follows:

Fellow Craft:—(making due-guard) Most Excellent King Solomon owing to the high state of putrefaction, the body having been already dead fifteen days, the skin slips from the flesh and the body cannot be so raised.

The Worshipful Master and all the brethren now raise their arms perpendicularly above their heads and let them fall by three distinct motions, at the same time exclaiming, "Oh Lord my God, was there no help for the Widow's Son?" (This is the grand hailing sign or sign of distress. See fig. page)

Worshipful Master:—(addressing Senior Warden) My worthy companion of Tyre, you will now take the body by the Fellow Craft's grip and see if it cannot be so raised.

The Senior Warden now steps forward and takes hold of the candidate's right hand and arm as the "Fellow Craft" had done, at the same time pressing his thumb hard against the second knuckle of the right hand which is the Fellow Craft grip (see fig. page 80) and bracing himself firmly as the previous brother did, he makes another vigorous effort to raise the body as before but permits his hand to slip off as in the former case and reports:

Senior Warden:—(making due-guard) Most Excellent King Solomon owing to the reasons already assigned the flesh cleaves from the bone and the body cannot be so raised.

The Worshipful Master and all the brethren again raise their hands perpendicularly and let them fall by three distinct motions as before, at the same time exclaiming, "O Lord my God, I fear the Master's word is forever lost!"

In order to understand more distincsly how this sign is made and the exclamation given, I will here offer the following explanation: It will be remembered that the arms when raised perpendicularly are to be let fall by three distinct motions. The exclamation is also divided into three distinct parts with a slight pause between each, thus: "O Lord—my God—was there no help for the Widow's Son?" Or, "O Lord—my God—I fear the Master's word is forever lost!' In letting the arms fall you make the first motion and give the first part of the exclamation, "O Lord," together. This brings the arms from the shoulder to the elbow in a horizontal position and the fore-arms perpendicular, as seen in fig. page . Now drop the arms by another motion still holding the hands in an upright position and repeat the second part of the exclamation, "My God," and lastly, let the hands fall perpendicularly to the side using the third part of the exclamation, "Was there no help for the Widow's Son?" or, "I fear the Master's word is forever lost." Thus it will be seen that the first motion and first part of the exclamation are made together, the second motion and second part together, and the third motion and third part together. For the manner of giving the sign outside the lodge, see page .

Worshipful Master:—[turning to Senior Warden] My worthy companion of Tyre, what shall we do?

ANTI-MASONIC BOOKS,

(Not our own Publications.)

For Sale by EZRA A. COOK & CO

13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

[FOR CATALOGUE OF PUBLICATIONS OF EZRA A. COOK & CO., See page 15.]

All books sent post paid, on receipt of retail price, but BOOKS SENT BY MAIL ARE NOT AT OUR RISK.

Books ordered by express are sold at 10 per cent. discount and SENT AT OUR RISK. Party ordering must pay express charges.

Elder Stearns' Books.

Stearns' Inquiry Into the Nature and Tendency of Masonry With an Appendix.

SEVENTH EDITION.

338 Pages, in Cloth.....60 cents.
" " " Paper.....40 "

Stearns' Letters on Masonry.

Showing the antagonism between Freemasonry and the Christian Religion.
Price, 30 cents.

Stearns' Review of Two Masonic Addresses.

In this scathing review the lying pretentions of the order are clearly shown.
Price, 10 cents.

Levington's Key to Masonry.

This is Rev. Mr. Levington's last, and in the judgment of its author, best work on Masonry. The contents of the first chapter are as follows:

"Commencement and growth of Speculative or Symbolic Freemasonry—A table showing the thing at a glance—The use that the Atheists made of it—Identical with Illuminism—Its connection with the French Revolution, and with the Irish Rebellion—The action of the British Parliament with regard to it—Proofs of its diaholical purposes—Its Introduction, doings, progress and designs in the United States."

The contents of the Eleventh chapter are thus startling:

"Knights of the Golden Circle—Graphic account of them by a seceding Knight, and remarks thereon, showing the identity of the order with Masonry—Quotations from Sir Walter Scott."

This work is thrilling in statement, and powerful in argumt. 425 pagenes,
Price. $1.35.

Light on Freemasonry.

BY ELDER D. BERNARD,

TO WHICH IS APPENDED A

Revelation of the Mysteries of Odd-fellowship by a Member of the Craft.

The whole containing over five hundred pages lately revised and republished. Price $2,00

The first part of the above work, Light on Freemasonry, 416 pages in paper cover, will be sent post paid on receipt of $1.

FOR SALE BY

United Brethren Publishing House,
DAYTON, O.
and by
EZRA A. COOK & CO.,
13 Wabash Ave, CHICAGO.

Walsh's Review of Freemasonry

REVISED EDITION,

Is a Scholarly Review of the Institution, by Rev Jno. T. Walsh.

Price 25 cts.

Finney on Masonry.

BOUND IN CLOTH, PRICE $1,00.

CHEAP EDITION,

Twenty-five dollars per hundred, by express and not less than 25 copies at that rate.

BY MAIL, POST-PAID:

Per doz.....$3 75,
Single copy,..... 35 c

ODD-FELLOWSHIP

JUDGED BY ITS OWN UTTERANCES;

Its Doctrine and Practice examined in the light of God's Word.

BY REV. J. H. BROCKMAN.

This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-Fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. It was originally published in German.
Price, bound in Boards, 75 cents.

GOOD TEMPLARISM EXPOSED.

Obligations, of the Initiatory Fidelity, Charity, and Royal Virtue Degrees.

This is a small book containing only the Obligations and some of the Odes of the Good Templars.

Single Copy, Post paid,..... 10cts.
Per Doz. 75
Per 100 by Express,..... $4.50

Bernard's Appendix to Light on Masonry,

Showing the Character of the Institution by it's terrible oaths and penalties. Paper covers, 25 cents.

ANTIMASONIC TRACTS.

WE NOW HAVE 25 ENGLISH TRACTS, ONE GERMAN, AND ONE SWEDISH

These tracts are sold at the rate of $1.00 per 1000 pages.

"THE ANTI-MASONS SCRAP BOOK."

Containe 24 Cynosure Tracts, bonnd together, and is jnst the thing to select tracts from. Price 20 cents. See advertisement.

For information abont Free Tracts see advertisement headed Free Tracts."

Address EZRA A. COOK & Co.,
13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

TRACT NO. 1:
HISTORY OF MASONRY.
BY PRESIDENT J. BLANCHARD, OF WHEATON COLLEGE.
This is now published in three tracts of four pages each. Price of each, 50 cents per 100; $4 per 1000.
TRACT No. 1, PART FIRST—Shows the origin of Speculative Freemasonry, and is entitled "HISTORY OF MASONRY."
TRACT No. 1, PART SECOND—Is entitled "DESPOTIC CHARACTER OF FREEMASONRY"
TRACT No. 1, PART THIRD—Is entitled "FREEMASONRY A CHRIST-EXCLUDING RELIGION."

TRACT NO. 2:
MASONIC MURDER,
By REV. J. R. BAIRD, of Pleasantville, Pa., a seceding Mason who has taken 17 degrees. A 2 page tract at 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 3:
SECRETS OF MASONRY,
BY ELI TAPLEY.
This is a 4-page Illustrated Tract, showing the signs, grips and pass-words, of the first three degrees. 50 cents per 100, or $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 4:
GRAND! GREAT GRAND!!
BY PHILO CARPENTER.
This is a 2-page tract, calling the attention of the public to the despotic and ridiculous titles of Freemasonry. Price 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1,000.

TRACT. NO. 5:
Extracts From Masonic Oaths and Penalties, as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.
This tract is a reprint of a tract published in 1834, and is a very weighty document. A 4-page tract at 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 6:
Hon. John Quincy Adams' Letter.
Giving His and His Father's Opinion of Freemasonry (1831.);
AND
Hon. James Madison's Letter,
Giving His Opinion of Freemasonry (1832).
Both of these letters, in one 4-page tract, at 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 7:
SATAN'S CABLE-TOW.
A 4-page tract. This is a careful analysis of the character of Masonic oaths, and shows them to be most blasphemous and unchristian; and the Masonic Cable Tow is clearly shown to be the Cable Tow by which Satan is leading thousands to eternal death. 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 8:
Is a 2-page double tract, "ILLUSTRATED." The first page represents a Mason proclaimimg the wonderful wisdom and benevolence of the order, with an article below, entitled "Freemasonry is only 152 Years Old," and gives the time and place of its birth.
The second side is entitled, "Murder and Treason not Expected," and shows that the Masonic order is treasonable in its constitution, and is both anti-Republican and anti-Christian Price 25 cents per 100; $2 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 9, ILLUSTRATED:
FREEMASONRY IN THE CHURCH.
Copy of a petition for the higher degrees of Freemasonry, in which Blasphemous and Despotic Titles are enumerated and prayed for. The Copy was printed for the use of "Occidental Sovereign Consistory S. P. R. S." 32d degree—a Chicago Lodge—and was ordered by a deacon of a Christian Church who is Grand Orator of the Grand Lodge of Ill.

TRACT NO. 10:
CHARACTER AND SYMBOLS OF FREEMASONRY.
A 2-page tract, (ILLUSTRATED) by its "Grand Secretaries, Grand Lecturers, Perfect Prince Freemasons, Grand Inspector, Inquisitor Commanders, Grand High Priests," etc. The wonderful symbolical meaning of "the Cable Tow," "the Square and Compass," "the Lamb Skin, or white Apron," and "the Common Gavel," are given in the exact words of the highest Masonic authority. 25 cents per 100 or $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 11:
Address of Niagara County Association, New York,
TO THE PUBLIC;
Concerning the Morgan Murder, and the character of Freema shown by this and other Masonic murders. 50 cents per

TRACT NO. 12:
JUDGE WHITNEY AND MASONRY.
This tract contains a condensed account of Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois, on charge of unmasonic conduct in bringing Samuel L. Keith the murderer of Ellen Slade, and a member of his Louge, to justice, with Judge Whitney's subsequent renunciation of Masonry.
An 8-page tract, $1.00 per 100; $8.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 13:
DR. NATHANIEL COLVER ON MASONRY,
and
HOWARD CROSBY, D. D.,
Chancellor of the University of New York, on SECRET SOCIETIES.
A double 2-page tract 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 14:
GRAND LODGE MASONRY,
ITS RELATION TO CIVIL GOVERNMENT AND THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION.
Opening address before the Monmouth Convention, by PRES. J. BLANCHARD of WHEATON COLLEGE. This is a 16-page tract at $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 15:
MASONIC OATHS NULL AND VOID.
A clear and conclusive argument proving the invalidity of any oath or obligation to do evil. By REV. I. A. HART, Secretary National Christian Association. Published by special order of the Association. 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 16:
HON. SETH M. GATES ON FREEMASONRY.
PROOF THAT THE INSTITUTION THAT MURDERED MORGAN IS UNCHANGED IN CHARACTER
This is a letter to the Monmouth Convention by Hon. Seth M Gates who was Deputy Sheriff of Genesee County, and also Secretary of the Leroy Lodge at the time of Morgan's Abduction. A 4 page tract, 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 17:
Origin, Obligations and Expenses of The Grange.
WITH A CONSTITUTION OF A FARMERS' CLUB.
This little tract ought to be put into the hands of every Farmer in the United States. Four-page tract, 50 cents per 100; $4 00 per 1000

TRACT NO. 18:
HON. WM. H. SEWARD ON SECRET SOCIETIES.
Extracts from a Speech of now-not ingt m in the U. S. Senate in 1855.
The testimony of JOHN QUINCY ADAMS, MILLARD FILLMORE, CHIEF JUSTIC MARSHALL and others, is added.
A 2-page tract, 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO, 19.
BRICKS FOR MASONS TO LAY.
WASHINGTON, MADISON, MARSHALL, RUSH, HANCOCK ADAMS AND WEBSTER, give brief clear testimony against the Lodge A 2-page tract 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 20:
OBJECTIONS TO MASONRY.
By A SECEDING MASON, of Cornton, Vermont.
This tract contains many strong arguments against the Lodge drawn from personal experience, observation and study of its character. A 4-page tract at 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

TRACT NO. 21:
MASONIC CHASTITY.
BY EMMA A. WALLACE.
The author, by wonderfully clear illumination and argument, shows the terribly corrupt nature of Freemasonry. No true woman who reads this will ever speak with approbation of this institution A 4-page tract 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

TRACT No. 22.
LINUS CHITTENDEN ON FREEMASONRY.
The Author a Seceding Master Mason states his objection to the Lodge, drawn both from experience and observation, in a clear concise and forcible style.
A 2 page tract, 25 cents per 100, $2.00 per 1,000.

TRACT No. 23.
MASONIC OATHS AND PENALTIES.
ADDRESS OF REV. A. M. MILLIGAN AT THE PITTSBURGH CONVENTION.
This is the clearest and most conclusive argument to show the wickedness of masonic oaths and the duty to disregard and repent of them that we have ever seen.
A 4 page tract, 50 cents per 100, $4.00 per 1,000

TRACT NO. 1, IN SWEDISH;
Translated by Prof. A. R. CERVIN. A 15-page tract at $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

ENOCH HONEYWELL'S TRACT.
TO THE YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA. Postage 5cts. per 100.
TRACTS FREE.

GERMAN CYNOSUCE TRACT A.
Six Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason.
By Rev. A. GROLÆ, Pastor, German M. E. Church, Worchester, Mass
This is our first German Tract, and it is a good one; it ought to have a large circulation. A 4 page tract, Price 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

FREE TRACTS.

A Tract Fund for the Free Distribution of Tract

HAS BEEN SECURED AND SHOULD NEVER BE EXHAUSTED. A friend has pledged this fund a dollar for every other dollar received, so EVERY NEW SUBSCRIPTION TO THE TRACT FUND COUNTS DOUBLE, and thus $10.00 pays for 20,000 pages of tracts.

The distribution of these tracts has already saved hundreds of young men from the lodge, but there is a great lack of funds to supply the constantly increasing demand for Free Tracts.

During the year ending July 1st, 1875 a little less than 150.000 pages of Cynosure Tracts were gratuitously sent out, mostly in very small lots. The present demand is fully 100.000 pages per month, but funds are lacking to meet it.

Many of our most earnest workers in thiscause of God are poor men, who would be gladto circulate thousands of pages of Antimasonic literature if they could have them free.

SHALL WE NOT HAVE AN INEXHAUSTIBLETRACT FUND?

"THE ANTI-MASONS SCRAP BOOK."

Contains 24 Cynosure Tracts, bound together and is just the thing to select from Price 20cents. See advertisement page 15.

Enoch Honeywell Esq., pays for an unlimitednumber of his tract addressed "To THE YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA." It is anexcelent tract, bearing the printed endorsement of Executive Committee of the National Christian Association. He has furnished the public over 150.000 pages ofthese tracts during the past year.

TRACTS FREE. If sent by mail, 5 cts. per 100 is charged for postage,

Send Contributions and orders to

EZRA A. COOK.

Secretary of Tract Committee 13 Wabash Ave, Chicago, Ill.

Descriptive Catalogue of Publications of Ezra A. Cook & Co.

13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

BOOKS.

FREEMASONRY EXPOSED,

by CAP'T. WILLIAM MORGAN.

THE GENUINE OLD MORGAN BOOK:—republished with engravings showing the Lodge Room, Dress of candidates, Signs, Due Guards, Grips, Etc.

This revelation is so accurate that Freemasons murdered the author for writing it. Thousands have testified to the correctness of the revelation and this book therefore sells very rapidly.

Price 25 cents.

Per Doz. Post Paid..... $2.00
Per hundred by express, (express charges extra.).....$10.00

ODD FELLOWSHIP ILLUSTRATED.

A complete exposition of the Lodge Encampment and Rebecca (Ladies') Degree. The Signs, Grips, &c., shown by engravings.

Single copy, post paid,..... $ 25
Per Doz., " " 2 00
Per Hundred, Express charges extra,..... 10 00

EXPOSITION OF THE GRANGE.

EDITED BY REV. A. W. GEESLIN.

Illustrated with Engravings showing Lodge Room, Signs, Signals, etc.

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 25
Per Doz., " " 2 00
Per 100 Express charges extra..... 10 00

Judge Whitney's Defense Before the Grand Lodge of Ill.

Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the Lodge when S. L. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the Lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry.

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 20
Per Doz. " " 1 50
Per 100, Express charges extra..... 8 00

History of The Abduction and Murder of Cap't. Wm. Morgan,

As prepared by Seven Committees of Citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan.

This book contains indisputable, legal evidence that Freemasons, abducted and Murdered Wm. Morgan, for no other offence than the revelation of Masonry. It contains the sworn testimony of over twenty persons, including Morgan's wife, and no candid person after reading this book, can doubt that many of the most respectable FREEMASONS, in the Empire State, with others were concerned in this crime.

Single Copy, post Paid,... ..... 25 cents.
Per doz. " ..... $2,00.
Per 100, Express Charges Extra,..... 10.00.

Valance's Confession of The Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan.

This confession of Henry L. Valance, one of the three Freemasons who drowned Morgan in the Niagara River, was taken from the lips of the dying man by Dr. John C. Emery, of Racine County, Wisconsin in 1848; The confession bears clear evidence of truthfulness.

Single copy, post paid,..... 20 cents.
Per doz. " ..... $1.50.
Per 100 Express Charges Extra,..... 8.00.

The Mystic Tie or Freemasonry a League with the Devil.

This is an account of the Church Trial of Peter Cook, and wife of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a Reverend Freemason; and their very able defence presented by Mrs. Lucia C. Cook, in which she clearly shows that Freemasonry, is antagonistic to the Christian Religion. Single Copy, post paid,..... 20 cents
Per dozen, post paid..... $1 50
Per hundred Express charges Extra,..... 9 00

NARRATIVES AND ARGUMENTS.

Showing the Conflict of Secret Societies with the Constitution and Laws of the Union and of the States, by FRANCIS SEMPLE.

The fact that Secret Societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of Law is here clearly proved.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 20
Per doz. " " $1.75
Per 100 Express charges Extra..... 9.00

THE BROKEN SEAL.

OR PERSONAL REMINISCENCES OF THE ABDUCTION AND MURDER OF Wm. MORGAN,

By SAMUEL D. GREENE,

Price in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.
In Paper Covers per Doz. Post paid..... $4 50
" per hundred by express (ex. charges extra $25.00

Capt. Wm. Morgan was Mr. Greene's neighbor in Batavia, N. Y., and a member of the same lodge with him at the time of the great excitement in 1826. The titles to these chapters are sufficiently exciting to give the book a large sale:—"The Storm Gathering;" "Abduction of Morgan;" "Attempted Abduction of Miller and his Rescue;" "What became of Morgan;" "What Morgan Actually Revealed;" "Confession of the Murderer;" "Allegations against Freemasonry, etc."

THE ANTI-MASON'S SCRAP BOOK.

CONSISTING OF 21 CYNOSURE TRACTS.

In this book are the views of more than a Score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of Secret Societies.

The dangerous tendency and positive evil of organized Secrecy is here shown by the most varied and powerful arguments and illustrations that have ever been given to the public.

Lecturers and others who wish to find the best arguments against the Lodge, should send for this book.

Those who wish to circulate Antimasonic Tracts ought to have the book to select from.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 20 cents.
Per Doz. " $1.75
Per 100, Express charges Extra..... $10.00

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion.

A clear cutting argument against the Lodge, from a Christian Stand point.

Single Copy post paid..... $ 05
Per doz. " " 50
Per 100 Express Charges Extra..... 3 00

President H. H. GEORGE, On Secret Societies.

A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian Churches, to disfellowship Secret Societies.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 10 cts.
Per doz. " ..... 75 "
Per 100, Express charges Extra, ... $4.00.

PHELPS' SECRET SOCIETIES Ancient and Modern.

A NEW BOOK OF GREAT INTEREST.

This work is particularly commended to the attention of Officers of The Army and Navy, The Bench and The Clergy.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

"THE ANTIQUITY OF SECRET SOCIETIES, THE LIFE OF JULIAN, THE ELEUSINIAN MYSTERIES, THE ORIGIN OF MASONRY, WAS WASHINGTON A MASON? FILMORE'S AND WEBSTER'S DEFERENCE TO MASONRY, A BRIEF OUTLINE OF THE PROGRESS OF MASONRY IN THE UNITED STATES, THE TAMMANY RING, MASONIC BENEVOLENCE, THE USES OF MASONRY, AN ILLUSTRATION, THE CONCLUSION."

Single Copy, Post Paid..... 50
Per Doz " " $4 75
Per Hundred, Express Charges Extra..... $25 00

HON. JOHN QUINCY ADAMS' LETTERS to Col. Wm. Stone, Edward Livingstone,

and others, on the nature of

Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties.

Price, post paid..... $ 50
Per Doz., " 4 50
Per 100, Express Charges extra..... 25 00

COLLEGE SECRET SOCIETIES.

Their Customs, Character and the Efforts for their Suppression.

BY H. L. KELLOGG.

Containing the opinion of many prominent College Presidents, and others, and a FULL ACCOUNT OF THE MURDER OF MORTIMER LEGGETT

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 35
Per Doz " " 2 50
Per 100 Express charges extra..... 15 00

MINUTES OF THE SYRACUSE CONVENTION,

Containing addresses by Rev. B. T. Roberts, Chas. D. Greene, Esq., Prof. C. A. Blanchard, Rev. D. P. Rathbun, Rev. D. S. Caldwell, Mrs. M. E. Gage, Elder J. R. Baird and others. Unpublished Reminiscences of the Morgan Times, by Elder David Bernard; Recollections of the Morgan Trials, as related by Victory Birdseye, Esq., and presented by his daughter, Mrs. C. B. Miller; Secretary's report; roll of delegates; songs of Mr. G. A. Clark, paper by Enoch Honeywell; Constitution N. C. A.; reports of committees, and a report of the political meeting.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 25
Per doz. " $2.00
Per 100 Express Charges Extra..... 10.00

Proceedings of the Pittsburgh Convention,

Containing Official Reports; Addresses by Rev. D. R. Kerr, D.D. Rev. S. T. Roberts, Rev. G. T. R. Meiser, Prof. J. R. W. Sloane, D. D., Pres't. J. Blanchard, Rev. A. M. Milligan, D. D., Rev. Woodruff Post, Rev Henry Cogswell, Prof. C. A. Blanchard, and Rev W. E. Coquilette, also Report of the POLITICAL MASS CONVENTION, with Platform and Cadidates for the Presidential Campaign of 1876.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 25 cts.
Per doz " $2,00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 10.00

SERMON ON MASONRY,

BY REV. W. P. M'NARY,

Pastor United Presbyterian Church, Bloomington, Ind.

This is a very clear, thorough, candid and remarkably concise Scriptural argument on the character of Freemasonry.

Single Copy, Post Paid,..... 5
Per Doz,..... 50
Per Hundred, Express Charges Extra..... $3 00

THIRTEEN REASONS

Why a Christian Should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong.

The author states his reasons clearly and carefully, and any one of the thirteen reasons, if properly considered, will keep a Christian out of the Lodge.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 5
Per doz. " " 50
Per 100, Express charges extra, ... $3.00

SERMON ON MASONRY,

BY REV. JAMES WILLIAMS.

Presiding Elder of Dakota District North-western Iowa Conference, M. E. Church, A SECEDING MASTER MASON.

Published at the special request of the Nine Clergymen of different denominations and others.

Single Copy, post paid 10
Per doz. " " 75
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... $4.00

MASONRY A WORK OF DARKNESS

ADVERSE TO CHRISTIANITY, and Inimical to a Republican Government.

BY REV. LEBBEUS ARMSTRONG, [Presbyterian.]

A Seceding Mason of 21 Degrees

This is a very telling work and no honest man that reads it will think of joining the lodge. Single Copy, post paid,.....20cts.
Per doz, post paid,..... $1.50.
" 100, Express Charges Extra..... 8.00.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy.

Address of Prest. J. BLANCHARD, before the Pittsburgh Convention.

This is a most convincing argument against the lodge.

Single Copy, Post Paid ..... $ 05
Per Doz " 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

GRAND LODGE MASONRY.

Its relation to civil Government and the Christian Religion.

By Prest. J. BLANCHARD, at the Monmouth Convention.

The Unchristian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is here proved from the highest masonic authorities.

Single Copy, Post Paid,..... $ 05
Per Doz..... 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

SERMON ON SCERETISM

BY REV. R. THEO. CROSS.

This is a very clear array of the objections to Masonry that are apparent to all.

By Rev. R. T. Cross, Pastor Congregational Church, Hamilton, N.Y.

Single Copy, Post Paid..... $ 05
Per Doz..... 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

HISTORY OF THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought; The Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association, Conditions of the Carpenter Donation with Engraving of building to be donated by Mr Carpenter; Tables showing the number of Pastors and communicants in churches that exclude members of Secret Societies, Tabular view of Local, County State and National Conventions, and list of organizations Auxiliary to the National Christian Association; Brief opinions of Eminent Men on Secret Societies, and Testimonies of Religious Bodies against them. This book will be found invaluable by all who wish to know the character of this reform and how they may do the most to further its objects. It should be in the hands of every Antimason.

Price post paid,.....25 cents each,
per doz:.....$1,50
25 copies or more by express at 8 cents each.

IN PRESS.

HAND BOOK

—OF—

FREEMASONRY,

A COMPLETE

Illustrated Exposition,

—OF—

BLUE LODGE

MASONRY

—BY—

EDMOND RONAYNE,

LATE PAST MASTER OF KEYSTONE LODGE, NO. 689, CHICAGO, ILL.

Price not yet decided on.

RITUAL OF THE

GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC

WITH SIGNS OF RECOGNITION, PASS WORD GRIP ETC,

—AND THE—

RITUAL OF THE

MACHINISTS AND BLACKSMITHS UNION,

(THE TWO BOUND TOGETHER.)

Single Copy, post paid,..... 25
Per doz. " $2.00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra,..... 10.00

Publishers' Department.

Prospect for Clubs.

In imagination we see a small but resolute, brave, and successful army of Anti-masons soliciting subscriptions for the Cynosure. We have heard from several of them during the past week and hope to hear from more during the week to come.

The Anti-secrecy Association of Westfield, Illinois, sends, by Prof. Elliot Whipple, a club of fourteen names. The members took up the matter at a regular meeting and secured this fine club. Is there another society that will do as well? Or better? Mr. Ronayne sends a club of thirteen from New York. This is the first club of ten or more, sent at one time, from New York this year, but not the last, is it? S. B. Huston, Pittsburgh, Ind., sends a club of ten and writes: "After a long pull and a strong pull, I have succeeded in raising a club of ten." Indiana has sent us more clubs of ten (or more) this fall than any other State?

Do you realize that there is but one more week in December? DECEMBER IS THE MONTH FOR CLUBS, although January and some other months are not bad; yet DECEMBER IS THE BEST MONTH for canvassing.

Does your subscription expire in December? Have you sent the publishers your renewal for another year?

SUBSCRIPTIONS RECEIVED DURING WEEK ENDING Dec. 18, 1875, FROM J E Arter, M Artman, L Austin, N B Briggs, O C M Bates, A Backus, O C Blanchard. J Bunting, O Brooks, J S Bell, J Backus, S Cook, Mrs. M Carnes, E J Chalfant, J Catterlin, Mrs. H M Cushman, B C Culter, A Davidson, J Divoll, J Downs, M Devoe, S H Falley, C W Fry, A Good, M A Gardner, A Honeywell, T R Holland, J Hankins, S B Huston, H H Hioman, W N Hartupee, L R P Hall, J M Henderson, T F Hallowell, J Haverfield, C W Hauptman, J S Hickman, S Lingo, C W Loney, L R Livingston, L L Martin, A Mayn, L Mann, S Y Orr, S B Patterson, W Post, W I Phillips L Prindle, J S Perham, G W Patterson, D Pinkley, B Rohrer, W Rhoads. W Sterling, J P Stoddard, R L Smith, C Stegner, S C M Smith, J Steel, J A Talmage, D Tuttle, H VanAsselt, D C Vaughan, F Walthall, L Wing, Wallace Brothers, A Wisely, J P Yocom

SOMETHING NEW.

A CHART OF MASONRY

Showing the degrees from the first to the thirty-third, entitled

Degrees of Ancient Accepted Scottish Freemasonry,

According to a Manual by Wm. M. Cunningham 33d Degree.

Designed by Rev. P. Stoddard, to explain Freemasonry, as shown by Morgan's Exposition and Richardson's Monitor.

A Neat Lithograph 22x28 Inches.

Single copies finely colored, post paid	$ 75
Per dozen " " "	5 00
Per 100 " " " " Express charges extra	35 00
Single copy, colored, varnished and mounted postpaid	1 00
Per dozen colored, varnished and mounted, post paid	7 50
Per 100, colored, varnished and mounted, express charges extra	50 00

25 COPIES OR MORE SENT AT THE 100 RATES.

THE CYNOSURE

AT A

GREAT REDUCTION TO CLUBS

UNTIL JANUARY 1, 1876.

(NO COMMISSION IS ALLOWED ON CLUB RATES.)

THE CYNOSURE WILL BE SENT ONE YEAR POST PAID TO

CLUBS OF 10 OR MORE

SENT AT ONE TIME WITH THE CASH.

FOR

$1.50 each.

To Clubs of 5 to 9 at $1.75 Each.

Club of Five or Ten can be raised in nearly every town by persistent earnest effort.

Now for "a long pull, a strong pull and a pull all together."

$250 A MONTH—Agents wanted everywhere. Business honorable and first class. Particulars sent Address J. WORTH & Co., St. Louis, Mo 1yrJul

SAVE MONEY

by sending $4.75 for any $4 Magazine and THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE (regular price $6), or $5.75 for the Magazine and THE SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE (regular price $3). Address

THE TRIBUNE, New-York.

Agents Wanted!

TO SELL THE PUBLICATIONS OF

EZRA A. COOK & CO.

Liberal Terms Offered.

Capable persons who are in need of pecuniary aid may clear

Handsome Profits,

While at the same time aiding the cause of Reform. Apply to EZRA A. COOK & CO., No. 13 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO, Dec. 20, 1875.

Grain Wheat—Spring, No. 1	$	1 03
" No. 2	98	98½
" No. 3	79	79½
" Rejected	64	65½
Corn—No. 2 Old	49	50
Rejected	48	49¼
New Corn	35	42
Oats—No. 2	8	30½
Rejected		26
Rye—No. 2		68½
Bran per ton	9 50	10 00
Flour—Winter	5 00	7 50
" Spring	3 00	5 25
Hay—Timothy	10 00	16 75
Prairie, "	8 00	10 50
Mess Beef	9 75	11 00
Tallow	8¾	9 00
Dressed Hogs	7 50	8 75
Lard per cwt	12 80	12 82½
Mess pork, per bbl		19 25
Butter fancy yellow 32c.; common to choice roll	18	25
Cheese	8	13
Eggs	20	25
Seeds—Timothy	2 00	2 25
Clover	7 40	7 50
Flax	1 45	1 47½
Poultry—Turkeys per lb dressed	8½	11½
Chickens " "	8	9
Potatoes	35	40
Apples from store	3 00	3 50
Broom corn	8	11
HIDES green to dry salted	5½	12½
Lumber—Clear	38 00	42 00
Common	11 00	12 00
Fencing	12 00	13 00
Shingles	2 75	3 00
WOOL—Washed	38	52
Unwashed	25	33
LIVE STOCK Cattle, Choice	5 25	5 75
Good	4 50	5 00
Medium	4 00	4 50
Common	2 75	3 75
Hogs	6 85	7 50
Sheep	3 75	5 50

New York Market.

Flour	$ 4 25	9 00
Wheat—Winter	1 15	1 50
Spring	98	1 33
Corn	64	77
Oats	44	51
Rye	88	95
Lard		13⅛
Mess pork		21 75
Butter	16	25½
Cheese	6	12
Eggs	28½	30

ESTABLISHED 1867.

EZRA A. COOK & CO.,

STEAM PRINTERS

LITHOGRAPHERS,

STATIONERS

—AND—

Book Binders.

NOS. 7, 9, 11 & 13

Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

We were in the Stationery, Printing and Litho graphing business before the Cynosure was started.

WE PRINT

Books, Pamphlets, Catalogues, Business Cards, Show Cards, Letter Heads, Bill Heads, Note Heads, Circulars, Hand Bills, Posters, Checks, Drafts, Notes, Certificates of Deposit, Certificates of Stock, Diplomas, etc.,

WE BIND

Blank Books, Magazines, Catalogues, Checks, Drafts, Notes, Certificates, Bank Pass Books, Etc., Etc.

WE LITHOGRAPH

Business Cards, Letter Heads, Note Heads, Bill Heads, Circulars, Checks, Drafts, Certificates of Stock, Certificates of Deposit, Plats and Charts; also elegant Diplomas for Colleges, Literary Societies, and Agricultural Societies, in one, two or three Colors. Samples and Prices sent on Application.

All work executed in the

BEST STYLE,

at the

LOWEST MARKET RATES.

WE FILL ORDERS PROMPTLY, and

GUARANTEE GOOD WORK.

SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO ORDERS

BY MAIL.

Samples and prices sent promptly when desired.

Address:

EZRA A. COOK & CO.,

7, 9, 11 & 13 Wabash Avenue,

CHICAGO.

C & N-W LINES

This great corporation now owns and operates over two thousand miles of road. With one branch it reaches Racine, Kenosha, Milwaukee, and the country north thereof; with another line it pushes through Janesville, Watertown, Oshkosh, Fond du Lac, Green Bay, Escanaba, to Negaunee and Marquette; with another line it passes through Madison, Elroy, and for St. Paul and Minneapolis; branching westward from Elroy, it runs to and through Winona, Owatonna, St. Peter, Mankato, New Ulm, and stops not until Lake Kampeska, Dakota, is reached; another line starts from Chicago, and runs through Elgin and Rockford, to Freeport, and, via the Illinois Central, reaches Warren, Galena and Dubuque, and the country beyond. Still another line runs almost due westward from Chicago, and passes through Dixon, Sterling, Fulton, Clinton (Iowa), Cedar Rapids, Marshaltown, Grand Junction, Missouri Valley Junction, to Council Bluffs and Omaha. This last-named is the "GREAT TRANS-CONTINENTAL ROUTE," and the pioneer overland line for NEBRASKA, COLORADO, UTAH, IDAHO, MONTANA, NEVADA.

CALIFORNIA and the PACIFIC COAST.

It runs through the Garden of Illinois and Iowa, and is the best, safest, shortest and quickest route for OMAHA, LINCOLN, and other points in NEBRASKA; and for CHEYENNE, DENVER, SALT LAKE CITY, VIRGINIA CITY, CARSON, SACRAMENTO, SAN FRANCISCO, and all other points west of the Missouri River.

If you want to go to Milwaukee, Manitowoc, Sheboygan, De Pere, Ripon, Baraboo, Eau Claire, Hudson, Stillwater, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Breckenridge, Morehead, Fort Garry, Winona, Plattville, Dubuque, Waterloo, Fort Dodge, Sioux City, Yankton, Council Bluffs, Omaha, Lincoln, Denver, Salt Lake City, Sacramento, San Francisco, or a hundred other northren, north-western or western points, this line is the one you should take. The track is of the best steel rail, and all the appointments are first-class in every respect. The trains are made up of elegant new Pullman Palace Drawing Room and Sleeping Coaches, luxurious Day Coaches, and pleasant lounging and smoking-cars. The cars are all equipped with the celebrated Miller Safety Platform, and patent Buffers and Couplings, Westinghouse Safety Air Brakes, and every other appliance that has been devised for the safety of passenger trains. All trains are run by telegraph. In a word, this GREAT LINE has the best and smoothest track, and the most elegant and comfortable equipment of any road in the West, and has no competitor in the country. It is eminently the favorite route with Chicagoans traveling west, north, or northwest, and is acknowledged by the traveling public to be the popular line for all points in Northren Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Northern Michigan, Dakota, Western Iowa, Nebraska, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Montana, Idaho, Nevada, California and the Pacific Slope.

On the arrival of the trains from the East or South, the trains of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway leave Chicago as follows:

For Council Bluffs, Omaha and California, Two through trains daily, with Pullman Palace Drawing Room and Sleeping Cars through to Council Bluffs.

For St. Paul and Minneapolis, Two through trains daily, with Pullman Palace Cars attached on both trains.

For Green Bay and Lake Superior, Two trains daily, with Pullman Palace Cars attached, and running through to Marquette.

For Milwaukee, Four through trains daily, Pullman cars on night trains.

For Winona and points in Minnesota, One through train daily.

For Dubuque, via Freeport, Two through trains daily, with Pullman Cars on night train.

For Dubuque and La Crosse, via Clinton, Two through trains daily, with Pullman Cars on night train.

For Sioux City and Yankton, Two trains daily. Pullman Cars to Missouri Valley Junction.

For Lake Geneva, Four trains daily.

For Rockford, Sterling, Kenosha, Janesville, and other points, you can have from two to ten trains daily.

MARVIN HUGHITT, Gen'l. Superintendent, W. H. STENNETT, Gen'l. Pass'r. Ag't.

THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.

"In Secret Have I Said Nothing."—Jesus Christ.

EZRA A. COOK & CO., PUBLISHERS, NO 13 WABASH AVENUE.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 30, 1875.

VOL. VIII., NO. 12.—WHOLE NO. 299
WEEKLY (post paid) $2 20 A YEAR

Contents.

	Page
TOPICS OF THE TIME	1
EDITORIAL ARTICLES:
The Closing Year	8
Princeton College Troubles	8
CONTRIBUTED AND SELECT ARTICLES:
Great National Questions	1
Our Foreign Letter—Leipsic	2
Secret Societies at Princeton College	3
Masonic Traditions Exploded	3
REFORM NEWS AND NOTICES.
P. M. Ronayne in Tioga, Co., N. Y.; Notes of Work in Wisconsin	4,5,
CORRESPONDENCE:
A Sister's Experience at Rochester; Masonry in the M. E. Church; An Ex-Oddfellow Testifies; Capt. Morgan's Family; Lodge Work Exemplified; Our Mail	5,6
OUR LECTURERS	8
HAND-BOOK OF FREEMASONRY, by Past Master E. Ronayne	12
THE HOME CIRCLE	10
CHILDREN'S CORNER	11
The Sabbath School	7
Home and Health Hints	6
Farm and Garden	7
Religious Intelligence	9
News of the Week	9
Publishers' Department	16

See the New Club Rates on 16th Page.

Topics of the Time.

THE WEEK OF PRAYER.—Thousands of churches in the country will be uniting the voice of prayer for the various subjects suggested by the Evangelical Alliance. Friends of our reform will find it presented in the general terms of these topics for nearly every day, and especially on Tuesday, and Saturday. "The removal of error, the increase of godliness, and a clearer testimony among believers to the doctrines and power of the Gospel of the grace of God;" and "for the removal of intemperance, immorality and infidelity" come legitimately within the work of the National Christian Association. Let this organization and its measures be remembered before God, that they may be done in truth and be blessed with a glorious and successful issue. In churches which do not observe the week of prayer may be many individual members whose souls burn with love to God and his truth. Let them singly, or with their families unite in calling upon God. In this work against the "power of darkness" vain is the help of any man. Pray, every redeemed soul, pray. God will hear and help.

To Mr. Charles Francis Adams is accredited with putting the sum of the character and necessities of this nation in the pointed saying, "Moody first, mammon afterwards." In the midst of unusual and severe attacks upon religion, the opinion of this experienced statesman, that this same religion, the religion of Christ, is the nation's need must surely have an effect.

The 22nd of December was Forefather's day, the 355th anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims. Gen. Sherman in a speech before the New England Society in New York, President Grant being present, said that the civilization of America is based on the civilization of New England, which would remain and govern the continent; a noble tribute from a high but unlooked-for source. It will be remembered that these same principles of liberty in religion and state were made firm and clear-toned because these Pilgrims rejected all shams and human inventions in both. The lodge has nothing in harmony with them.

A late election for judge of the Supreme Court of Illinois again shows how near the American people are to that condition where law is used for the protection not the punishment of crime, an engine of misrule and not justice. Instead of the interpretation of the unchangeable rule of right it is become too much the pliant tool of party. Two years ago a vacancy on this same Bench was filled by a granger candidate, elected for the very purpose of securing party ends. Last week Mr. Dickey of Chicago was elected to the same court. He is the legal adviser of the corrupt city ring; under fine for contempt of court, which fine he has not paid but appealed to the Supreme Court, of which he sought, and has become a member before his case was decided; the adviser of Mayor Colvin to retain his office eighteen months beyond the time for which he was elected in the face of a constitutional provision to the contrary, which question will come before the Supreme Court. Whatever may have been the character of his opponent, or his own private reputation, the election of a judge with such relations gives to the electors the appearance of joking with sacred integrity of the nation. A few weeks since, the election, of a mere money holder was the occasion of the most excited election when over fifty thousand votes were polled in Chicago. The indifferent citizens cast about one fifth that number for a member of the highest court in the State.

Dr. Talmage of Brooklyn, in his recent sermon on the school question said the Catholics did not object to the Bible in the schools, but to the school system itself. And as for the Jews, he had been around among them and they were not opposed to it. There were three classes, he said, who opposed the Bible in the public schools—men loose in religion, men loose in morals, and base politicians. "What do they care for the Bible in the schools? They want nothing but votes. I see some of them here now. I can tell them by their lecherous lips and bloodshot eyes. There is a place for them to go to, with thieves, pickpockets, canal contractors, rings and law-breakers generally."

Great National Questions.

THANKSGIVING SERMON PREACHED BY REV. D. D. HILL, IN GALENA STREET M. E. CHURCH, AURORA, NOV. 25, 1875.

[Concluded from last week.]

There are those among us who say that the expulsion of the Bible is an insignificant matter; that it will not hurt the Bible or Christianity: that the Catholics never can break down our public school system.

You think it is insignificant! Not so think the enemies of the Bible and of the schools, for they are making strenuous efforts to overthrow both! You think there is no danger! Not so thinks ex-Premier Gladstone, the great English statesman. He thinks that it means something that the Pope, at his own request, has been declared infallible and incapable of error, in all his official acts and opinions; thus creating himself a god on earth; his commands as binding on all true Catholics as if delivered amid the thunders of Sinai, by the voice of God himself; that every true Catholic owes the Pope civil allegiance rather than allegiance to the country in which he lives. If he declares our laws void, obedience to them becomes a mortal sin. All literature and education must be regulated by him.

Men, who, in the nineteenth century, believe in such a system, oppose popular enlightenment, of course. They ply their schemes with Jesuitical cunning. Silently, secretly, the whole complicated machinery moves under the control of a single will, to the accomplishment of its purpose. In some parts of the country it has already succeeded. In others it has failed, only to be renewed with greater vigor at the first opportunity.

You think there is no danger! Not so thinks Bismarck, the ablest and most brilliant diplomatist of all Europe. He is engaged in a mighty struggle with the "Man of sin."

You think there is no danger! Not so thinks President Grant! Few and short are the speeches he makes but the one he made at Des Moines is one of the grandest ever uttered by a President of the United States. He says: "If we are to have another contest in the near future of our national existence, I predict that the dividing line will not be Mason & Dixon's; but between patriotism and intelligence on the one side, and superstition, ambition and ignorance on the other. Now, the centennial year of the nation I believe is a good time to begin the work of strengthening the foundations of the structure commenced by our patriotic forefathers one hundred years ago at Lexington. Let us all labor to aid all needed guarantees for the security of free thought, free speech, a free press, pure morals, unfettered religious sentiments and of equal rights and privileges to all men, irrespective of nationality, color or religion. Encourage free schools and resolve that not one dollar appropriated for their support shall be appropriated to the support of any sectarian schools. Resolve, that neither the State, nor the nation, nor both combined shall support institutions of learning other than those sufficient to afford every child growing up in the land the opportunity of a good common school education, unmixed with sectarian, pagan or atheistical dogmas. Leave the matters of religion to the family altar, the church, and the private school, supported entirely by private contributions; keep the church and state forever separate; with these safeguards I believe the battles which created the army of the Tennessee will not have been fought in vain."

But why not let each denomination educate its own people? This is to split up into miserable fragments our school system. This is to go back to the dark ages for our thought and practice. The denominational system has been tried for ages in the old world. That is the system in Spain, and out of 15,000,000 of people 12,000,000 cannot read; in Tuscany, seven-tenths of the people are unable to read; in Naples and Sicily 870 in every 1,000 do not know their letters, and only sixty-two women in a thousand can read. Even Protestant England tells us through her Parlimentary statistics that less than twenty years ago, out of a population of 22,000,000, 7,000,000 could not read or write. But to her glory be it said that the facts took hold of British statesmen. Cobden first and Bright afterwards led the way to the abandonment of the denominational system, and the adoption of a public school system like our own.

According to the United States census of 1870, out of 9,400,000 voters, 1,600,000 could not write or in effect read their ballots; leaving out the colored population, a vast majority of these were produced by the denominational system. Adopt the denominational system! What! ask us to stultify ourselves? What puts Prussia at the head of European powers? Chief among the causes is her system of public instruction, the finest in the world. But it brings her squarely into conflict with Rome. The common school is the very life of the republic. The government cannot leave the instruction of the young to sectarian schools, for the Catholic church leaves her people lamentably ignorant of some things which is very essential that they should know. Hence it is that some children must learn honesty, decency and morality at the public schools or not at all. The only point at which a Christian civilization touches them with the tip of one of its fingers is at the public school.

Ours is either the best or the worst form of government possible, and the pivotal point on which everything turns is the intelligence and morality of the people. Men talk as if republicanism was a certain cure for all political evils. But is not republicanism a failure in most of our large cities? Does not each have its corrupt ring? Are not the active, leading politicians in the interests of, and controlled by the grog-shops? What lesson does this late election in Chicago teach? Good and true men rally to expel Hesing and his corrupt ring from office. To carry the election they feel that they must conform to the following principles in the selection of a candidate:

1st. He must be a foreigner.
2d. He must be a beer-man.
3d. He must be a politician.

The Christian men, the moral men, the intelligent men, the good men of Chicago elect just such a man as they had before, only not quite so bad. Let him be in office a few years and you would not throw up a penny to choose between them. Victory is it! A sacrifice of principle for a temporary advantage. Such victories give the city over to the control of the worst people in it. And how is it about New York, Philadelphia, Brooklyn and Washington, with their bosses, rings, defalcations and enormous debts? If the common school system is to be undermined and destroyed, let us celebrate no centennial of American Independence. We must rather prepare for the sad funeral of American Liberty.

People come to us from all countries and climes, with language, manners, customs and ideas all different—pagans, Jews, Mohammedans, Christians, cannibals, Chinamen—all varieties of men found on the planet are found in our country. What is to unite, assimilate and cement all this mass into one nation? An American education for all Americans. The grandest school of democracy is the public school. Here the principles of liberty and equality are taught, Class and caste distinctions are removed. The rich and poor have an equal chance. Merit not money sends the scholar to the head of his class. Young "know nothings" become know somethings. Self reliance, yet profound obedience to law, is inculcated. Eight millions of children yearly gather in our public schools. See them on the play ground like colts let loose from pasture, but at the tap of the bell, like Napoleon's veteran troops at the roll of the drum, they fall into their places, ready for action. It is the sublimest sight on this continent. The common school begets the spirit of inquiry and reasoning. The scholar's whole life afterwards is a series of interrogation points. Asking questions is a national characteristic, and the would-be keeper of the Americans' conscience finds he has a troublesome customer.

It is said, let us yield the Bible and thus conciliate the Catholics and all will go on well. Whom do you propose to conciliate? A week ago last Tuesday, Guibord was buried in Montreal, but he died six years ago. The bishop would not allow him to be buried in his own lot in the Catholic cemetery, because he belonged to a literary society called the Institute Canadien, which had in its library books which the bishop did not approve; "Horace Greeley on Liberty" being specified as one of them. Guibord's wife became insane over the trouble in trying to have him buried, and two years ago died. The matter was carried through the courts and up to the privy council, and now, after six years of controversy, the civil authorities bury the man in his own grave. But they have to order all the military and police under arms to do it without a riot, and the bishop has to content himself with simply anathematizing and cursing that part of the cemetery in which the body is laid. The man's only offense was membership in this literary club. This in the nineteenth century, in free America! But this is the spirit of the Catholic church the world over, and you are going to conciliate it, are you?

Those who would expel the Bible from the school are not acting in the interest of any reasonable liberty. They ask liberty to weaken the State. They ask liberty to impair that in which all our liberties are embodied. What is the result where the Bible is kept from the people? Bushnell says statistics which cannot lie prove that there are 237 times as many chances of being murdered in Rome as in England. In England, a Bible land, there is one murder for every 170,000 inhabitants; in Holland, also a Bible land, one for every 160,000 inhabitants; in Prussia, where the Bible is less honored, one for every 100,000; in Austria, a half-and-half Bible land, one for every 57,000; in Spain, where here is no Bible, one for every 4,113; in Naples, where there is no Bible, one for every 2,750; in Rome, the seat of opposition to the Bible, one for every 950. Look at the influence of the Bible on common morality. In London, a Bible city, for every 100 legitimate children there are 4 illegitimate children; in Leipsic, where there is more opposition to the Bible, there are 20; in Paris there are 45; in Munich, where few have the Bible, there are 91 illegimate out of 100; in Vienna, for 100 legitimate there are 118 illegimate births; in Rome, for every 100 legitimate there are 248 illegitimate children.

Shall we put out the light at the Pope's curse and the crack of the free-thinker's whip? Our fathers fled from Catholic persecution to found this nation; if the Catholics do not like our principles, let them go where they came from. One would think from the demands they make that the Catholics composed half the nation, at least; but there are more members in the Methodist church of the United States to-day than there are of the Catholic church. I call on the Methodist church, over two millions strong, to stand firm for an open, unfettered Bible! There are almost as many Baptists in the United States as Catholics. I call on the Baptist church to rally around God's Holy Word! I call on the Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Lutherans, Congregationalists, Christians of every name. Rally, Christian freemen, and let us keep an open Bible in the church, in the school, in the family, in the workshop, in the halls of legislation and the courts of justice. An unfettered Bible everywhere. My creed is a short one: A personal God, a supernatural Christianity, and an open Bible.

"The Bible is God's great instrument for governing men and nations. They must be governed either by an open Bible with its hallowed influences or a standing army with its bristling bayonets. One the product of God's wisdom, and the other of man's folly. The nation which will not yield to the moral power of the one, must yield to the brute force of the other."

When you hear the morning bells call the 2,247 pupils of our Aurora public schools together, shall not fervent prayers arise for teachers and taught? Shall we not all take a greater interest in the public schools? And in the contest which is at hand let every man do his duty. Let there be no backing down, no surrender of principle. God reigns in heaven and on earth. History does not go backwards. In the march of progress we keep step to the music of God's Providence. The temporal power of the Pope is gone. The days of the Cardinals are ended. Red hats and scarlet cloaks are so useless now that they could afford to give one to McCloskey. Henceforth the prattle of children's voices shall be heard rehearsing their lessons in school, where Cicero recited his orations. The Bible is sold where Savonarola and Galileo suffered at the hands of the Inquisition. Popes, cardinals and priests, though claiming to represent Christ on earth, no longer have power to prevent the reading of God's Word in Italy, Spain or Austria. Not the Pope, but Victor Emmanuel is King of Italy. Not Catholic France, but Protestant Prussia is at the head of all Europe. The night is past; the morning cometh.

How to Pass from the Old into the New Year.—One, when dying, said, "My last act of faith I wish to be to take the blood of Jesus, as the high priest, when he entered behind the veil; and, when I have passed the veil, I would appear with it before the throne." So in making the transit from one year to another, this is one most appropriate exercise. We see much sin in the retrospect; we see many a broken purpose, many a misspent hour, many a rash and unadvised word; we see much pride, and anger, and worldliness, and unbelief; we see many a long tract of inconsistency. There is nothing for us but the great atonement. With that atonement let us, like believing Israel, end and begin anew. Bearing its precious blood, let us pass within the veil of a solemn and eventful future. Let a visit to the Fountain be the last act of the closing year; and let a new year still find us there.—Hamilton.

Our Foreign Letter.—Leipsic.

There is little about this city to show that it is the seat of the first or second in rank of the German Universities. The buildings and grounds are insignificant and when compared with Oxford, seem inadequate to the work proposed; but one look at the catalogue of the institution is sufficient to show that intellectually the University is a power. In the theological faculty there are twelve professors, and three 'privat-docenten;' in the faculty of law fifteen professors and two docenten; medicine, twenty-four professors and seventeen docenten; in philosophy (which includes philology, mathematics, mental and natural sciences) sixty-three professors and twenty docenten; making a total of 114 professors and 42 docenten. These are all men of the highest culture; the docenten or tutors having reached the first round of the ladder that reaches to the full professorship. The number of matriculated students in the winter semester of 1873–74 was 2876, larger than in any other University except Vienna. The latter University is isolated while Leipsic has Halle, Jena, Berlin, and Gottingen, within a hundred miles. The great Michaelmas fair is the distinguishing feature of the city. There are three fairs held annually—Michaelmas, Christmas, and Easter; each continuing three or four weeks. Merchants from different countries of Europe come here, sometimes to the number of twenty or thirty thousand. They crowd into every available room; build long rows of booths in the market places, and along the wider streets, store and display their wares in the open air. Clothing, dry-goods, furs, pottery, glass-ware, jewelry, knick-knacks, fruit, vegetables, tobacco, in short, everything that can be sold is brought here, and several days may be spent in an interesting way in walking about looking at the goods, and studying the traders. Shows of every description are not wanting. The whole city is bustling, but remarkable order is kept, considering the numbers that are gathered. The greatest evil attending the fair is Sabbath-breaking. We went to one of the largest churches last Sabbath, and found the sidewalk in front of it lined with booths, with just open spaces enough left to get into the church comfortably. When, after listening to an earnest sermon we walked into the street again, crowded with eager sellers and buyers. The Sabbath is too little reverenced at any time of the year, but as a man told me "During fair time, the city has no Sunday." This gentleman was a railway officer, and also said that railroads never have Sundays. Trains run regularly and all railroad business is carried on every Sunday of the year. This evil appears to me far more threatening than drunkenness. During nearly a week's stay here I have seen only one man drunk; whereas in Scotland, it was rather unusual not to see several each day. This is owing, partly, no doubt, to the fact that German drinkers learn to consume immense quantities of beer without getting drunk, while the Scotch drink whiskey r gin, and show the effects. The eer glasses in use here hold about a int, and seem not less than eight inches igh. Everybody apparently drinks eer without distinction of sex, age, or osition. Some go to the saloons, thers send the servants, and mine ost met me on the stairs carrying a "seidel" with him for his dinner. Several Americans whose acquaintance ve formed on the way predicted that we would drink beer or wine before we got back home, but thus far there nas been very little to tempt us. In Great Britain there was too much drunkenness to make drinking attractive to the sober, and here lager beer saloons are far from being neat and pleasant. Smoking is another prevalent disagreeable custom. Women are excluded from this entertainment, but the men try to make amends by smoking in their presence on all occasions possible, in restaurants, railway cars, and sitting-rooms. There are, however, waiting rooms in most stations for ladies only, where the cigar cannot enter, and "coups" on most trains for "nichtraucher" of both sexes, and others for ladies only. The compartments for "not smokers" are pleasant for another reason; they are hardly ever crowded. The German "Herr" considers smoking as one of the luxuries of a railway ride. Once we asked the guard to take us to a second-class coupe and neglected to add "fur nichtraucher." He took us into one where two young men were leaning back in the comfortable seats, puffing away at their weeds and filling the little room with smoke while a young lady looked on admiringly. Every gentleman is supposed to smoke unless he specifies the contrary. We were careful to specify after this hour's experience in a smoking car, and had very comfortable compartments, and plenty of room.

H. A. F.

Secret Societies at Princeton College.

Old Princeton College has been attracting much attention in the vicinity of New York city of late, on the subject of secret societies which have crept into the institution. It appears that every student upon entering the institution is required to sign the following pledge:—

"We, the undesigned, do individually for ourselves promise, without any mental reservation, that we will have no connection whatever with any secret society, nor be present at the meeting of any secret society in this or any other college, so long as we are members of the college of New Jersey; it being understood that this promise has no reference to the American Whig or Cliosophic societies. We also declare that we feel ourselves bound to keep this promise, and on no account whatever to violate it."

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted by the trustees at their meeting in June, 1855, and have for a number of years past been published in the Annual Catalogue:

Resolved:—That with respect to prohibited secret societies, the trustees approve of the action of the Faculty in their requiring students about to enter college to pledge themselves not to join any secret societies; and that they urge the faculty to put an end to those secret societies.

Resolved:—That the President be directed at the opening of the next session of the college to announce publicly to the students, that the subject of prohibiting secret societies was deliberately considered by the trustees, and that the faculty were, by a unanimous vote, required promptly to dismiss any student known after that date to be a member of such an association.

It is at the student's option to enter the college with this condition, or to go elsewhere. It is not compulsory in any sense, but when the pledge is once taken, it is binding on every young man of honor as any other promise he makes.

Last term it was reported to the faculty that secret societies were in existence, and were working serious injury to the two great literary societies, and to the students themselves. An investigation was begun this term, which resulted in the discovery of the fact, and, after all milder measures were exhausted in an effort to procure an abandonment of the societies, Dr. McCosh, the President, and all the professors concurring, fifteen students, acknowledging the violation of their pledge, were dismissed from the college. Six others, for offences arising out of the conflict were dismissed also.

The New York Tribune gives the following authenticated letter—probably from one of the professors—in regard to this matter, That paper says:—"The following communication comes from a well-informed college correspondent. It corrects some of the minor errors which have appeared in many of the published accounts of recent troubles at Princeton."

"The number of students who have been dismissed for belonging to prohibited secret societies is 15—not 20, as has been stated. They have not been expelled—they have been dismissed; and the faculty may review their judgment should the circumstances change. They are nor the 'flower of the college;' they stand considerably below the average in the college grading. They belong to five or six prohibited societies. The trustees and the faculty have all along opposed these secret fraternities, and only last year two students were dismissed for belonging to them. The college authorities have thrown their whole influence in favor of the Whig and Cliosophic societies, which contain each two hundred members, and are about the best literary societies in America, having trained a great many eminent statesmen, and still carrying on their work with great spirit. Of late years a third society has been instituted, in connection with the School of Science, and has upward of forty members. The authorities of the college believe that the small Greek letter societies tend to injure these great secieties, and do not elevate those that join them. That this is also the opinion of the great body of the students is evident from the circumstances that the great college societies do not allow those who belong to the secret societies to join them.

I am happy to be able to report that the dismissed students do not seem disposed to resist the sentence. Five of the societies have given the names of their members in confidence to the President or individual professors, and have signed papers engaged to oppose every attempt to reinstate the fraternities. All this is well known in college, and should be known to the public. The students are cherishing, right or wrong, the hope that the faculty may now feel itself placed in a position in which it may review its judgment with consistency, the ends of discipline being gained by the college being delivered from the corrupting influences which have seduced many a youth of promise. Should this be the issue, Princeton College will stand higher morally in the view of the community than it has ever done before."—Am. Wesleyan.

Masonic Traditions Exploded.

From an address at Keokuk before the Grand Commandery of Iowa by Prof. T. S. Parvin, P. G. M., and G. Sec'y of the Grand Lodge, and G. Orator of Grand Commandery.

We are wont to meet annually and as often to tell the old story of the origin of the institution, and present the people who honor with their presence our public assemblies, that same old dish of hash called Masonic history, tracing the institution back to the time "when the morning stars sang together and all the sons of God shouted for joy." Or if they (that is the grandiloquent orators), be a little modest or doubting in faith, they will drop off a few cycles and come down to the time when "Adam delved and Eve spun" without the garden from which they had been expelled by an angry God whose laws they had put at naught in presuming, as some of our illustrious brothers and Sir Knights have since presumed, to rebel against constituted authority and set up their will as the law for all to follow or be forever "anathema maranatha." Such oracles are always proclaiming as Masons, Enoch, the translated, Solomon, the wise, and the St. Johns of Christian sanctity. It is amusing to note how they always enroll among their numbers the noble and the good of all nations, and all the time as carefully excluding the opposite class. Another and a large number more of our anniversary orators drop the antediluvian chapter and are even so considerate as to come down to the period of the building of the first temple, and trace its origin to that event, and make Solomon its great founder, as God's vicegerent in its creation. And it is indeed only within a few years past that a generation of doubting Thomases have arisen who demand the proof that even these things are so, and have applied the same tests to the Masonic history as has been for a century past applied to all sacred and profane history—to the end that the truth might be eliminated from the myths and traditions which have so long misled even the world of letters.

My hearers (whether Masons or no) can recall the times almost a score when they have heard not only the nonsense we have related as touching the times so long remote, but coming down to our own day and country, these blind leaders have time and again, so often proclaimed as a fact, that they no doubt believe that "all the general officers of the revolution were Masons except the traitor Arnold, and that all the Presidents of the Republic were Masons." As we penned these lines we received through the mail a circular, from a publishing house at the national capital, named for a man, who when a boy would not tell a lie, asking our aid as a Mason, to further the sale of a series of Presidential portraits they had executed. And what think you was the consideration upon which they presumed to invoke our aid as a Mason and an officer in a Masonic body whose juris-diction is co-extensive with that of the State. That circular publishes to the world with solemn emphasis that all the Presidents were Masons. As happily there have been no traitors (as in the case of the Generals) so the usual exception of one as in the case of Judas and Arnold is not made by this class of buncombe orators—of which orator Puff is a fair exponent.

But you, my brethren, must not think this class of speakers are all foreign for we have some of the most famous within our own grand bodies. You have only to examine the proceedings of one of the grand bodies here and now represented to find published an oration from which we quote as follows. In speaking as usual of the antiquity of Freemasonry, the orator says: "Masonry and Christianity were married and the union was designed by Omnipotence himself, and that this marriage took place in the reign of the Roman Emperor Constantine, [who died A. D. 337] and the union so consummated continued until the Reformation [A. D. 1517, a period of twelve centuries] when in consequence of the intolerance, bigotry and corruption of the Romish church, the twain were separated, never to be reunited again." Warming with his subject our eloquent brother adds, "that the studious Knight Masons of to-day know that the intimate union of religion and Masonry is something older than the marriage order with the church of Christ before the inauguration of the church [A. D. 33] Masonry was (the emphasis is his) and when the church was born it was promptly adopted by the fraternity, the which with reverent humility abdicted its right as elder sister and exponent of the will of the Deity." Verily our Iowa exponent is not to be outdone by the long line of his illustrious predecessors.

Now, in all candor and with all proper respect to our brethren, to this audience, not overlooking my own self-respect as a Mason and a man of mature age, I must declare that such stuff, while it may possibly (though we can divine no good reason) be "told to the marines," certainly to all such heresies we may apply the injunction of David in his lament over Saul, and "tell it not in Gath, publish it not in the streets of Askelon." Such tales will surely, sooner or later, return to our hurt, as they ever should.

It is always the safest course to presume that the audience is quite as intelligent as ourselves, and likely to be as well informed upon historical topics, whether relating to the history of the world, the church, the nation, or to Masonry even, as an institution of great age and universal diffusion among men. History of Freemasonry is not one of our mysteries—secrets we truly have, and

"All secrets till they are once known,
Are wonderful———"

Now it is too bad upon these annual occasions, and at home, to repeat parrot-like such stale legends—no they are not legends even, which are defined to be "doubtful narratives," for there is no tending to mislead. How much more grievous would be the sin to go to Philadelphia the coming year and harrangue the assembled Masons of the world in the language of these legends, fables, myths—falsehoods in plain English, the language of freemen. This is no way to celebrate the nation's jubilee or the Mason's part of it, however humble it may have been. Nor may it be amiss to repeat our previous utterance, that the tests which enlightened and judicious criticism has applied to the unraveling of the fabulous history of the early nations of the world have been assuccessfully applied to the elucidations of Masonic history, and to the separation of the truth from the fables that have so long led as willing captives so many of our brethren who are fond of the marvelous.

In the light of this evidence, then, we can assure, even the enemies of our order, that Adam and Enoch, and their long line of successors, ante and postediluvian, are perfectly free from sin and odium the anti's would attach to the "Morgan killers" of the nineteenth century.

"—'t is true, 't is pity:
And pity 't is 't is true," that even Solomon was no Mason. With all his wisdom, great as it was, he knew no more of the mysteries of Freemasonry than did the beautiful (of course she was beautiful) queen of Sheba who came from afar to adore his wisdom and the temple he built, if not to love his person. Nor is there any evidence, however faint, to prove that either of the St. Johns, the austere and the lovely followers of all that is good in heaven or on earth, were Masons, beyond the wish that it were so, of the Christian portion of the universal brotherhood. Nor is it true, that all the presidents, from Washington to Grant included, were or are Masons. The first was, the last is not. And what would the spirits of those Anti-masons, the elder and younger Adams, and VanBuren, and Fillmore say to the cruel accusation, could they but wing their way back to the earth and throw back the lie in the face of their falsifiers. It is true, however—and the truth should be told—that Arnold, the single traitor of his age and country, was a Mason, as is well attested by the records of his lodge in Connecticut, his native State. So much the worse, both for the traitor and those who, without evidence or trial, would exclude him from their associates.

But all these sins of commission affect only a profane history, whose antiquarian critics have successfully exposed and corrected the errors.

There yet remains the last and greatest: the charge that Freemasonry is a Divine institution; that it was wedded to the church, and usurped from it the office of "exponent of the voice of Deity," and such declarations are worse than heresy—they are blasphemous and calculated to degrade the institution in the estimation of every believer in the Christian religion, and bring it into just contempt among all honorable men, of whatever name they be called.

The institution of Freemasonry did not originate amonu the Jews, nor even in Asia, nor at the time nor under the circumstances so commonly, by even the moderates, assigned to its origin. It sprang, according to the best evidence attainable, in Europe, and during the so-called dark or middle ages, and originated with the architects and builders of those times. The oldest Masonic book in existence is not two centuries old, and it would be charitable to add five centuries to the oldest date or record that enlightened and persevering research has yet assigned to anything connected with the origin of the institution of Freemasonry. And the remotest, even of these dates, fall far short of the reign of Constantine the Great, when, as has been represented, Masonry was married to the church. The bones of that great emperor had crumbled to dust a thousand years before the world, circumscribed to atomic limits knew of Masonry, or of that famous wedding.

When and wherever Masonry did originate, it was the work of man's hand, and although we believe it to be the oldest, if not the best, of human benevolent and social institutions, it certainly commends itself to the enlightened consideration and unprejudiced judgment of men for what it is, and what it has done as one of the the conservators of human actions. . . . . Freemasonry of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries exists under two distinct forms or rites, the York and the Scotch, each having symbolic Masonry of three degrees in common—the York rite of universal diffusion has but the three degrees, while the Scotch rite has thirty in addition. The Scotch rite universally prevails among the English and the Latin nations of Europe and America.

In the United States and Canada, Freemasonry is practiced under what is called the "American System," as such, which was largely manufactured by Thomas Smith Webb, during the closing year of the last century. Under this system, the York rite consists of lodges, chapters, councils, and commanderies—though the Templars are only Masonic in name. The Royal Arch degree, which is the chapter in fact, the council degrees and the orders of the Temple are taken largely from the Scotch rite and moulded into the York system. The Royal Arch and the chapters is confined wholly to England and its colonies and the United States, and originated in its English form (which is quite different from the American) about the middle of the last century. The councils, as separate from the governing bodies of the Scotch rite, are of very recent origin and are outgrowths of the chapters designed and perpetuated to gratify the unholy ambitions for separate organizations—and are confined wholly to the United States and Canada.

The order of the Temple exists in France, where it originated about a century ago, and in England an independent form, and in the United States where it has a quasi connection with Masonry under the modern nomenclature of "The American System." Our fathers a century since, were content with the three degrees of symbolic Masonry, which are universally diffused among men—but their children fell from the state of purity through the sin of ambition, which is older than the original sin of the most orthodox theologian of the old school—for by it an archangel fell, and men and Masons have inherited the taint, and we of to-day are taxed to keep up the cumbersome machinery in order to gratify our pride and inherit the honors of official rank. Templars and Royal Arch Masons could accomplish in the lodge all they do in the chapter and commandery. To-day, as ever, when these several bodies "met upon a level," the Templars become the "observed of all observers." There is in their order a something which we dare not call "fuss and feathers" in sympathy with our natures which calls forth our admiration, and awakens our interest. It is not its universality, for Templarism, as we practice the rite, is wholly American, and the order of the Temple is confined to England and France. It is not its antiquity, for it has not yet reached its centennial anniversary. It is true, however, with it, as with symbolic Masonry, that pretentious claims of remote antiquity, have been advanced——many, even in this State, have been asked, breathes there a Knight Mason with soul so dead as not to be proud of the distinction of being, by adoption, the successor of DeMolay, the martyred Grand Master, and the last of the line of the old Templars, which, as such, became extinct A. D. 1314, or more than five centuries before the modern order of the Temple had its rise. So it may be humiliating to the pride of the Mason to learn that the boastful antiquity of the institution has no basis, in fact, upon which to stand, and that in the future the historians and anniversary orators must drop off some ten centuries before, and as many since the founding of the Christian church, to which it has been claimed our institution was wedded. All this we must do if we would perform our vows of truth, which is the first lesson taught in Masonry, and the cornerstone upon which Knighthood is erected as a system and an order. In future, then, men and brothers and Sir Knights, let us be content to own the truth we profess to revere and yield a willing allegiance to the spirit of research which is the grand characteristic of the age. The most notable event in the history of modern Masonry is the spirit of inquiry which now animates the intelligent brotherhood. The labors of such historians and antiquarians as Findell in Germany, Lyon in Scotland, and Hugan and Woodford in England, have done much, very much, to remove the rubbish which has so long blinded our way in our efforts to find the truth.

THE NAT'L S. S. TEACHER enters on the new year with contributions from C. F. Deems, W. A. Bartlett, W. H. Daniels, and Margaret Sangster, who add to the interest of the lessons of the month, and assist the teacher in their preparation. The notes, etc., on the lessons are as usual very full, practical and Scriptural. Chicago: Adams, Blackmer & Lyon Pub. Co.

THE SANITARIAN for January introduces such topics as Sanitary Resorts, Pollution of Rivers, Value of Health to a City, A City of Health, The Medico-Legal Society of New York, and the Am. Public Health Association. New York: McDivitt, Campbell & Co.

THE GALAXY contains a defense of West Point in The National Surveys, some good advice and a sharp criticism of fashionable life in Woman's Occupations and The English Interregnum tells of some of the manners of the English royal family, and their political effects. Paperson the origin of the privileged classes in France, about "Bankers" and Walter Savage Landor, with scientific miscellany add to the value of the January number. New York: Sheldon & Co.

THE ADVANCE closes the year with a handsome number dressed in new type and remodeled columns. We are sorry to see a revamped Catholic story burdening them as a holiday gift to its readers. This is Christmas aggravated.

VICKS FLORAL GUIDE.—This brillient quarterly is as usual full of useful information to every one who has a garden with flowers or vegetables. It has beside in the January number, some sharp and sound criticising of our postal management. Mr. Vick is well known as a valuable seed-man. Rochester, N. Y., James Vick.

Notices.

Wisconsin.

The annual convention of the Wisconsin State Christian Association opposed to secret societies will be held in the Wesleyan Methodist church at Sugar Creek, Walworth Co., Wis., on Wednesday and Thursday, the 2d and 3d of Feb., 1876. Elkhorn is the nearest rail road station. Teams will be in readiness, after the arrival of trains, to carry delegates to the place of meeting. Efforts will be made to secure able speakers for the occasion.

By order of the
EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

Wisconsin Readers of the Cynosure,

You can do much for the cause in this State, by taking the paper in your hand, going to your county or local papers and get the notice for our annual State meeting inserted two or three times before it comes off. Suppose that it does not increase the numbers in attendance, it will, perhaps, for the first time bring before the readers of those papers the fact that there is an organized opposition to the lodges, and set hundreds to thinking, and soon become earnest workers in the cause. It was designed by the friends to have our State meeting commence on the first day, at 10 o'clock, A. M., but our "Executive Committee" have left us all in the dark so far as that is concerned; would it not be well to insert it in the notice? PHILO ELZEA.

GROTON, N. Y.—The quarterly-meeting of the Groton Association was appointed at its last session to meet at McLean on Tuesday, Jan. 18th. Keep the wheels of reform moving.

PAST MASTER E. RONAYNE, of Keystone Lodge, No. 639, Chicago, will hold himself in readiness to lecture and publicly work the degrees of Masonry wherever his services may be needed. A fair compensation and traveling expenses is all that is required. Address him at the office of this paper.

See Publisher's Department on the sixteenth page.

Reform News

Marching on—P. M. Ronayne in Tioga Co., N. Y.

SPENCER, Tioga Co., N. Y.
Dec. 21, 1875.

Editor Christian Cynosure:

Last Spring brother Barlow came to Spencer and gave a course of lectures, holding up to our view the beast of secretism described by John the Revelator so as to cause us to take immediate action. and we organized a Christian Association for the purpose of resisting the encroachments of the lodge. Our organization numbered about fifty at first, but when the churches put the guillotine in operation and the heads began to fall, the weak ones dropped out of line until our numbers did not exceed twenty. We had among our number a Baptist deacon named Watson, who was the boldest of the bold. He declared publicly that a man could not be a Christian and a Mason at the same time and also that he would not support a Mason minister, but he has turned his back upon his friends and has eaten his own words.

I attended the State convention at Rochester and saw Mr. Ronayne's grand exposition of Freemasonry, and came to the conclusion that such stuff as Masonry could not be hatched except in the infernal regions. Believing Mr. Ronayne's exposition true, I engaged him for two evenings, the 17th and 18th inst. I had a lot of handbills struck off and members of the association posted them about town. Several of the fraternity declared their readiness to fulfill their Masonic obligations by cutting Ronayne's throat from ear to ear; others who had not the courage to come in so close contact with a determined man declared that they would put a ball through him; others said he never would leave Spencer alive. It seems to me that Isaiah must have had these people in view, Isaiah lix. 3: "For your hands are defiled with blood and your fingers with iniquity; your lips have spoken lies, your tongues have muttered perverseness."

Ronayne came here on the 16th. The Association fitted up the hall under his direction and on the evening of the 17th the hall was well filled, with a fair sprinkling of members from various churches, although in each church a Masonic minister had issued orders prohibiting members from attending the lectures. Mr. Ronayne, fully equipped in Master's costume and with all the necessary tools, then proceeded step by step to show us how Masons were made. Is it not strange that a minister will submit to such degradation and wickedness? How plain Isaiah speaks of such iniquity, lix. 5 and 6: "They hatch cockatrice' eggs and weave the spider's web: he that eateth of their eggs dieth, and that which is crushed breaketh out into a viper. Their webs shall not become garments, neither shall they cover themselves with their works: their works are works of iniquity and the act of violence is in their hands."

Mr. Ronayne proceeded in his masterly manner to dissect the institution and as he explained the whys and wherefores, the audience became spellbound and gazed with amazement to see what a cursed institution was prevailing throughout our land. He has caused the people to think, and left an indelible impression upon the minds of the people. They are discussing secretism in every corner. He stayed over Sunday with us and attended our worship and left Monday morning for Scranton, Pennsylvania, hearty, hale and in good spirits; long may he live to work in the cause of humanity. We have marched but once around Jericho and given one blast on the ram's horn, and the walls are tottering already.

Respectfully yours, E. DODGE.

Notes of Work in Wisconsin.

Editor Christian Cynosure:

Since my last writing, have given four lectures in the Norwegian Lutheran church, on the State line south of Clinton Junction in Rock county. Had very good audiences, and good attention. They are a people who only need the right kind of instruction on this subject to become earnest opponents of all kinds of secrecy. They are but very little connected with any of the secret organizations.

The next week was so stormy and bad that no lecturing was done, but spent some time to put in motion a movement that it is hoped will result in an organization for Walworth Co. for political action, at the same time and place where the State meeting is held. There are friends in this county who have long been anxious for an opportunity to vote for men that are not slaves and tools of the lodges.

On Monday evening, Dec. 13th, commenced and gave four lectures in what is called the Dunham schoolhouse, to good audiences. The Masonic chickens, the grangers, fluttered a little, but that only has a tendency to convince the people that they are hearing the truth.

In this place there is a small Wesleyan church, and if it was less in numbers, at least to the extent of excluding the Odd-fellows from it, it would be a blessing to the cause of Christ. If Wesleyans cannot organize churches without taking in unrepentant Odd-fellows, who have only taken withdrawal cards, because they had trouble in the lodge with their fellows, my judgment is that such organizations should be indefinitely postponed.

Gave three lectures in schoolhouse No. 9, in the town of Lafayette, commencing Dec. 17th, with fair attendance, and good has been done.

For the war, P. ELZEA.

This is the last number of the CYNOSURE sent to persons, not renewing, whose time expires in December. If your time is out or nearly out, please renew.

Correspondence.

A Sister's Experience at Rochester.

VARICK, Seneca Co., N. Y.,
Dec. 20, 1875.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—Ere this you have received full accounts of the Rochester Convention. Permit me to add my impressions also, as it was the first meeting of the kind I ever attended. I was particularly impressed by the earnestness of the delegates as they invoked God's blessing morning, noon and night, and think this is the Sampson of the movement; may it never be shorn of its strength! Such earnest pleading of the promises, such consecration and dependence on the arm of the Eternal it has never been my privilege to listen to before. I felt as I listened God must answer such earnest prayers.

In the evening Mr. Ronayne in his inimitable style lifted the curtains of the lodge and had I not been in great measure prepared for a look into its secret chambers by reading the Cynosure and from other sources I could not have believed my senses. After his lodge was duly formed he described to us what was going on in the ante-room where the "reverend" gentleman was disrobing. When he announced "notwithstanding the candidate had long preached the Gospel he had now come to seek light in the lodge," an intense feeling of interest and expectation pervaded that large assembly. He led him in hoodwinked, cable-towed and in his half-naked condition. I never saw an audience give vent to such disgust in all my life. I think I can safely say if Juggernaut with all its heathen rites had been displayed before the people it would not have caused so great a sensation. They would have expected something shocking in heathen, but for intelligent men, to say nothing of Christians and ministers, to appear in that plight it was truly dreadful. Had he appeared clothed and seated on the old-time "goat," striving to keep his equilibrium, adapting himself to the antics of his strange steed and succeeded he might have retained some of his clerical dignity; but as it was it seemed gone forever.

The next evening we found the passages leading to the hall partly filled when we arrived before seven, and the crowd soon extended down the stairs to the sidewalk. At seven the door was opened and there was a rush; a stalwart stranger said apologizingly as he strove to keep back the rushing multitude so we should not be run over, "The people are so hungry for the truth." The hall was packed and we had to sit in close proximity to the secretists. We were both annoyed and amused by their remarks. Annoyed when one said, "That old fellow (meaning the General Agent) is making a fool of himself" when he made a slight mistake which was quickly noticed by the craft. But Ronayne in his happy repartee "brought down the house" by saying "These men (meaning the lodge men) are so full of Antimasonry they can't act the Mason worth a cent."

Some of the fruits of the lectures.

Before the lecture commenced the second evening a very intelligent-looking lady said to me, "Did I not see you in the hall last evening?" (I was questioned as Peter was in the judgment hall for I was with some of the prominent members of the convention the evening before.) I assented. Her husband said, "That fellow (Ronayne) ought to be arrested. They are never taken into the lodge in so baudy a manner," and his wife, wife-like, apologizingly whispered to me, "My husband is a Mason." I replied "I had suspected as much." The first words Ronayne said when he commenced his lecture were, "You will hear it said on every hand, 'He lies! He lies! The minister is never taken into the lodge as you saw represented here last evening,'" etc. The wife and I exchanged amused glances, and the poor man looked as though he wished his wife, at least, was at home.

When the lecturer came to administer the dreadful oaths of the third degree the Masons present made a great noise on purpose I thought to drown the speaker's voice so he should not be heard or understood by the audience. The wife looking very much annoyed turned to me and said so that the husband could hear, "I think this shows what company they keep." My impression was that all Masons who were present with their wives will not attend the lodge very soon again; for they looked as though they expected a good "curtain lecture" when they reached home if not before. I think it should be the rule not to admit a Mason to these lectures or exposures unless accompanied by his wife or some lady relative, and I will guarantee you will always have perfect decorum. After the lecture I heard a lady say in a very excited manner, "I will never hear a minister preach again who is a Mason; never, no never!" The circle gathered around her seemed of the same opinion. Such remarks as these were heard from the gentlemen, "I would not have been present to these lectures if I were a Masonic minister in company with my wife for the world." "How I did pity the ladies present who had Masonic husbands." Eternity alone will reveal the good this God-fearing man has accomplished in Rochester alone. May he long be spared to unvail the lodge is the earnest prayer of the writer.

Perhaps I may write of the doings of our town society at another time. Ronayne came to us from Batavia on his way to the Pennsylvania convention, lecturing two evenings.

MRS. H. BALDRIDGE.

WHEATON COLLEGE LIBRARY
Wheaton, Illinois

Masonry in the M. E. Church.

A few words may not be uninteresting from this part of the field. Last August I was requested by my presiding elder to take charge of a circuit in an adjoining county. I did so. My position in regard to secrecy was well known. The first man I encountered on the work was an Odd-fellow, and sternly objected to my preaching against secrecry, but I as firmly refused to compromise. The quarterly-meeting came off in a week from my first visit. At first I was placed in charge by a letter from the P. E. of the circuit for half the year, the health of the former preacher failing. But now in the concluding exercises of the quarterly-meeting, the P. E. stated to the congregation that he would place me in charge of the circuit for the next quarter. (He is a Mason.) I saw he had been posted in regard to my firmness, and it was concluded among the clan to shorten the time for fear I might do irreparable damage to their cause. During the quarter I was able to fill punctually all the regular appointments, and visited, and preached often week-day nights. The last week before the next quarterly-meeting I lectured some four times and had been leaving Honeywell tracts in every available place for people to get them. The magazine of lodge ire was ready to burst by the time of holding the quarterly conference. Though the lodge-men did not rally to the dirty and unpleasant work themselves, they made a jack of a man I thought would stand by me in the hottest fight. When the question was asked by the P. E., "Is there any complaint?" Jack Mason said, "Yes;" he found a great deal of grumbling on the circuit. He said it was because of my opposition to secrecy. My preaching was good enough, no objection to that. The P. E. stated to the conference that he had sent me there to preach and not to lecture. Thought I would not meddle with secrecy. I then stated that as a watchman on the walls of Zion I thought it my duty to oppose everything that affected the destiny and spirituality of the church. That I considered Masonry anti-Christ and the most dangerous devil the church had to contend with. This brought a Mason to his feet. He said he knew what Masonry was; it was better than the church; far above the church; far more charitable than the church; and when his toes were trampled upon he would let the preacher know that he had to get off his toes. My lectures were now defined and it was done in five minutes. Odd-fellow now said that I did not know what I was opposing. He knew what Odd-fellowism was. The more he knew of it the better man it made him. He demanded the removal of the preacher; would not support such a preacher. Wanted preaching, not lecturing. This same Odd-fellow had been clerking in a dram-shop, I was informed, for some time; is circuit steward, a good member, good Christian, good Odd-fellow, grange master (the lodge was held in church), and of course a man of such position and influence in society would have no difficulty in annihilating a one-horse preacher. The P. E. wished Bro. Mason to modify his statements but he three times refused. Whereupon the elder said he had not so learned Masonry; he was told it should not conflict with his religion, neither would he so understand it, as being above the chur h or more charitable. When Bro. Mason again growled out, "You are the most curious Mason I ever saw." Why? because he esteemed the church and Christianity above Masonry and theism (for he had told me it was theism). I fear he will have to have another lesson from the lodge. Here are three circuits without preachers, and before the lodge-men will tolerate an anti-secret minister in their midst they prefer seeing the church destroyed utterly. Yet I believe that the anti-secret membership is larger than the secret orders and their jacks. Territorial limits shall not circumscribe us for the future, we will make our own circuit. Yours for the war,

E. G. Cooper.

An Ex-Odd-fellow Testifies.

Canyonville, Oregon.

Editor Christian Cynosure:

I have been looking over the book, "Light on Masonry and Odd-fellowship," and in the closing remarks on Odd-fellowship the writer appeals to every true American citizen to do his duty in checking the encroachments of secret societies. As I can be one among so many I will be brief. The exposition of Odd-fellowship, as contained in this book, is, as my knowledge serves me, correct to a letter, i. e., as far as I went in the order, which was to attend two meetings. The lodge in which I was initiated, contained the skeleton of a poor unfortunate miner, who was killed by the falling or caving of a bank in the mines. After he was peacefully laid in his grave, his bones were taken up by order of the lodge, and laid in the vault of the lodge-room.

A Seceder.

Captain Morgan's Family.

Casey, Iowa, Dec. 10, 1875.

Editor Christian Cynosure:

Seeing a quotation in the Cynosure of Dec. 9th, from the Chicago Times in reference to Mrs. William Morgan, calls for the following information which I consider reliable: W. W. Morgan, residing in Adair Co., Iowa, informs me that he is the grand-child of Capt. William Morgan's brother. His father resides here also, who would be the nephew of Wm. Morgan. He says Mrs. Morgan married a Mr. King, and that she died at Schenectady, N. Y. Her daughter Louisa Morgan married Mr. John G. King, who is dead, but when last heard from Mrs. Louisa King was still alive and residing at Schenectady. Some of our New York workers might obtain some valuable information by calling on this lady. Yours for the truth,

G. A. Loomis.

Lodge Work Exemplified.

Yates City, Ill., Dec. 20.

Mr. Editor:—It appears that one, Andrew Alpaugh, of this place, some eight or nine years ago made regular application to Yates City Lodge, No. 448, to be made a Mason; but as he had had a personal difficulty with a prominent member of the lodge he was, of course, black balled. Some time during the summer of 1870, while he was a resident of Ipava, in Fulton county, Mr. Alpaugh made application to Ipava Lodge to be made a Mason and in due time he was informed that he was elected. When he presented himself for initiation he was asked if he had ever made application to any other lodge and on his answering that he had made application to Yates City Lodge and was rejected, he was informed that he could not be initiated without the consent of Yates City Lodge. In a few days he was informed that all objections against his initiation was removed and accordingly he was made a Mason in due form, and was then informed that Yates City Lodge objected to his advancement. Mr. Alpaugh has therefore been a Mason for five or six years, but the Yates City Masons refuse to recognize him as such, and declare that he is an imposter who has got into the lodge by fraud. Mr. Alpaugh, having first provided himself with abundant proof (in the shape of letters from the Grand Master) that he is a Mason in good standing, demands the 2d and 3d degrees unless some good reason can be shown why he should not receive them, or in other words he demands specific charges and an opportunity to defend himself as provided for in the new code of Grand Lodge by laws adopted in 1874. But the lodge cannot prefer charges against Alpaugh without acknowledging him as a Mason and that they are determined they will not do under any circumstances.

W. H. Robinson.

OUR MAIL.

Michael Artman, Hillsdale, Mich., writes:

"I would be glad to have some lecturer visit this place as the Odd-fellows are having lectures on their side of the question, and the pastor of the F. W. B. church delivered two of those lectures; and I am told that one of our city papers stated that he was an ardent member of the lodge."

J. S. Hickman, Wellington, Ill., writes:

"I am now working in season and out of season for the Cynosure, and find I can get subscribers more or less every day. It is no trouble to get subscribers when we try, and present the merits of the paper as they should be presented and as it deserves."

R. L. Smith, DeWitt, Ia., writes:

"The Cynosure ought to be read all over this green earth and its principles believed and obeyed, and then would this land blossom as the rose."

S. C. M. Smith, Belpre, O., writes:

"I think if we could have a lecturer like Mr. Ronayne it would be a good thing for the cause."

Azel Backus, Pittsford, Mich., writes:

"I must have the Cynosure continued another year, yes, and I may say so long as I live if secret combinations are not annihilated before I die."

C. W. Loney, Fennimore, Wis., writes:

"I am sixty-eight years old and have been investigating Masonry and secrecy ever since Morgan's time, and must say that today I hate it with a perfect hatred as I do its father the devil. There is quite a number of the secret folks around me here and I sometimes rouse them up a little; they flutter terribly but it does them good."

W. S. Barnes, Farmer's City, Ill., writes:

"I am glad to know that you stop every man's paper who does not pay or order it continued, for one that does not pay for his paper has not the interest in the cause he should have."

Joseph Catterlin, Kewanee, Ill., writes:

"I have been more or less sick for thirteen or fourteen months; that is the reason you have not heard from me before. My heart is with you and I bid you God-speed in this good cause."

Rev. S. T. Devoe, Red Oak, N. Y., writes:

"The Masons and grangers have become very strong in this vicinity, yet there are a few of them becoming dissatisfied and have ceased attendance. Quite a revival spirit is manifested in the different churches."

He sends a list of five subscribers and says he hopes to make it ten.

G. W. Smith, Glendale, N. Y., sends his subscription and writes:

"I chanced to pick up an old paper while at a friend's and saw the peculiar title, Christian Cynosure. After examining it I found it to be just the paper wanted in this place as secret societies are plenty here. I have ever been an anti-secret man and may get some subscribers for your paper if the neighbors could see one and peruse it."

Every friend should do all he can to circulate the Cynosure, for many only need to see it to subscribe for it.

Joseph Day, Markesan, Wis., writes:

"I am alone here in the cause. We need a good lecturer to wake up the people."

David Keister, Mt. Pleasant, Pa., writes:

"I cannot do without the Cynosure. I think it is one of the best papers I know of."

A. Putman, Justus, O., writes:

"I cannot get any subscribers here now. The people are asleep on the subject of secrecy. If we had a lecturer here to rouse up the people we might expect to get subscribers."

G. Crosby, Churchill, Vt., writes:

"I have been distributing my papers and they have done good. There are a great many would like to have it if they could raise the money."

Henry De Jongh, Rochester, N. Y., writes:

"I am unable as before to send you any but my own subscription. I think the lodges swallow up all the substance in our cities. I expect them to be sick after the medicine Mr. Ronayne has applied to them. The broadcast scattering of Cynosures may bring some subscribers that I have failed to get, though trying at every opportunity."

The Sabbath School.

Lesson for Jan. 9th, .—David Anointed King.

SCRIPTURE.—1 Sam. xvi. 1-13. Commit vs. 7-13.

1 And the Lord said unto Samuel, How long wilt thou mourn for Saul, seeing I have rejected him from reigning over Israel? fill thy horn with oil, and go, I will send thee to Jesse the Beth-lehemite: for I have provided me a king among his sons.

2 And Samuel said, How can I go? if Saul hear it he will kill me. And the Lord said, Take a heifer with thee, and say, I am come to sacrifice to the Lord.

3 And call Jesse to the sacrifice, and I will shew thee what thou shalt do: and thou shalt anoint unto me him whom I name unto thee.

4 And Samuel did that which the Lord spake, and came to Beth-lehem. And the elders of the town trembled at his coming, and said, Comest thou peaceably?

5 And he said, Peaceably: I am come to sacrifice unto the Lord: sanctify yourselves, and come with me to the sacrifice. And he sanctified Jesse and his sons, and called them to the sacrifice.

6 And it came to pass when they were come, that he looked on Eliab and said, Surely the Lord's anointed is before him.

7 But the Lord said unto Samuel, Look not on his countenance, or on the height of his stature: because I have refused him: for the Lord seeth not as man seeth; for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart.

8 Then Jesse called Abinadab, and made him pass before Samuel. And he said, Neither hath the Lord chosen this.

9 Then Jesse made Shammah to pass by. And he said, Neither hath the Lord chosen this.

10 Again, Jesse made seven of his sons to pass before Samuel. And Samuel said unto Jesse, The Lord hath not chosen these.

11 And Samuel said unto Jesse, Are here all thy children? And he said, There remaineth yet the youngest, and behold, he keepeth the sheep. And Samuel said unto Jesse, Send and fetch him: for we will not sit down till he come hither.

12 And he sent, and brought him in. Now he was ruddy and withal of a beautiful countenance, and goodly to look to. And the Lord said, Arise, anoint him; for this is he.

13 Then Samuel took the horn of oil, and anointed him in the midst of his brethren: and the Spirit of the Lord came upon David from that day forward. So Samuel rose up and went to Ramah.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"And the Spirit of the Lord came upon David from that day forward."—1 Sam. xvi. 13.

TOPIC.—"The Lord looketh on the heart."

HOME READINGS.

M. Lev. 8: 1-12. The Anointing of Aaron.
T. 1 Sam. 10: 1-12. The Anointing of Saul.
W. 1 K. 1: 23-40. The Anointing of Solomon.
Th. 2 K. 9: 1-13. The Anointing of Jehu.
F. Ps. 89: 1-20. Anointed with Holy Oil.
S. Mark 14: 1- 9. Anointed for Burial.
S. 1 John 2: 15-29. The Anointing of the Spirit.

Stones for the Sling.

1.—Saul's kingdom was taken away because he did not obey the voice of the Lord. We hold all our gifts, of whatsoever sort they may be, subject to an obedient and wise use of them, Matt. iii. 10; xxi. 43; xxv. 29; Luke viii. xviii. John xv. 2; Rev. iii. 1-3.

2.—Those kingdoms only are strong that are founded and governed by righteousness. Victories can make no throne secure. Popularity is no evidence of stability. For there is One that teareth down and buildeth up whom and when he will. 1 Sam. ii. 7; Job xii. 18,19; Ps. lxxv. 6, 7; cxiii. 7, 8; Prov. xiv. 34; Jer. xxv. 5; Dan ii. 21.

3.—The fear of man is at the bottom of half of our spiritual troubles. And now it is not what men will do to us, but what they will say! The saints of God have no business to be in such bondage. They will get free from it only when they have an adequate fear of God. Ps. xxvii. 1; Prov. xxix. 25; Is. viii. 12; xli. 10; li. 12, 13; Matt. x. 28; John xiv. 27.

4.—But if the fear of man is evil what shall we say of such a fear of God as was shown by the elders of Bethlehem when Samuel appeared before their city—the fear of a guilty conscience. One indicates weakness, but the other iniquity. Righteous fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, but the sinner's fear is a dread of judgment. Is viii. 13; John xiv. 27; Heb. x. 27; 1 Pet. iii. 14, 15; Rev. vi. 15-17.

—David needed no long training in schools or in court-life to fit him to rule Israel, because he had a better preparation—the anointing of the Lord. The anointing which David received is possible to all those who have been made "kings and priests unto God." No one should lack this divine aid to the discharge of duty. John xiv. 26; xvi. 13; 2 Cor. i. 21; 1 John ii. 20, 27. —Natl. S. S. Teacher.

Truth is simple, requiring neither study nor art.

The American Peace Society, Boston, announces through its agent, Rev. H. C. Dunham, that it will send to ministers and theological students "Dymond on War," a book of 124 octavo pages, on the reception of ten cents for postage.

Farm and Garden.

Practical Suggestions.

—Gypsum and ashes are valuable in the compost heap. Twenty pounds of plaster to each good load of manure is sufficient, since one hundred pounds of gypsum will fix twenty pounds of ammonia. Quick lime should not be used with fermenting manure, since it sets the ammonia free, instead of fixing it. Ashes contain largely phosphoric acid and po ash. When leached, the phosphoric acid remains, and also a good deal of the potash. The phosphoric acid is in a finely divided state, and in combination with peroxide of iron, magnesia and lime; so the carbonic acid generated in the compost pile will liberate it from its bases, and render it immediately available to plants.

—It would be a good plan to keep a note of every little thing that needs attention, so that by and by all may be done in order. There will be drains to make and repair, fences to close that have been opened, stacks to top off and prop up, leaves to rake up in the wood lots, brush to clear off, roads and lanes to repair, stables to clean out and whitewash, and a hundred things to do that must be provided for or they will go undone. Every farmer should carry a note book and pencil in his pocket and make use of them.

—To cure a horse of bridle-breaking, get a piece of bed-cord four times the length of the horse and double it in the middle, and at the doubled end make a loop, through which pass the animal's tail. Then cross the cord over his back, and pass both ends through the halter-ring under his chin and tie both ends of the cord to the trough-ring, through which the halter-strap plays, the end of the halter being attached to a billet of wood. Should the horse attempt to pull back the strain will all be on the root of his tail before the halter-strap will become tightened, and he will at once step forward to avoid it. After so fixing him a few times in the stable he will abandon any such propensity.

—To prevent a cow from choking, should a case occur from accidentally swallowing a whole potato, turnip, apple or the like, the first effort should be to remove the obstruction by pushing it up. Standing up close to the neck of the cow, with one arm over it, place the thumbs below the obstruction, one on each side of the neck, and push up gently at first, but steadily and gradually harder, and after a little it will generally yield to the constant and heavy pressure. Once started it will fly out of her mouth by the force of the gas behind it. An expert who has practiced this mode of relief in a large number of cases says he has never failed. It will be some help if something like a billet of wood is fastened crossways in the cow's mouth to keep it open. It will prevent her swallowing to crowd it down any harder. We have the authority of Prof Law for saying that letting the cow go with her mouth propped open will often be enough to remove the choking. As she cannot crowd it any further by swallowing, the pressure of the gas which forms in her stomach will, by jumping or some sudden effort, throw the potato or other obstacle out of her mouth. Another mode is to remove the obstruction with the hand by reaching down the throat and grasping it, the mouth of the cow being propped open with a large clevis, or ring, or other prop that the hand and arm of the operator can pass through. A small hand and arm are required for this. It may also be pushed down into the stomach with a rod having a cup-shaped enlargement to prevent its sliding by the potato—a probang or its equivalent.

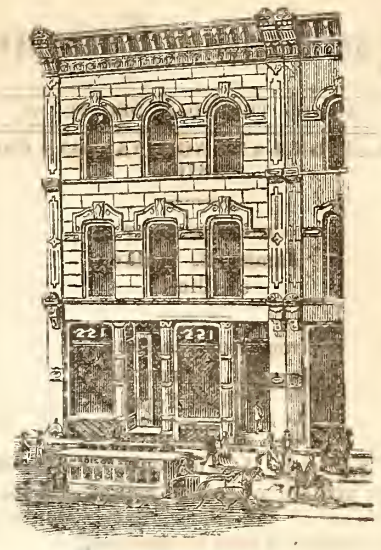
Home and Health Hints.

A Fine Arrangement for Baby can be made from boards of black walnut, or any other wood neatly finished, five, six or seven feet long, and from twenty to twenty-four inches wide, each furnished with two iron hooks at one end and two eyelet screws at the other, so as to be easily hooked together, forming an enclosure five, six or seven feet square. Early in the morning six feet square of the carpet are carefully swept, no pin, piece of thread, stray bit of cloth or paper allowed to remain; the inclosure is erected; baby, a pillow, and half a dozen of toys are placed within, and mamma is free! Baby plays with his toys, or, perhaps, throws them one by one over the fence—a great delight in itself, and one which can be indefinately protracted according to the number of articles provided—then he rolls, stretches his little limbs, and crawls about ad libitum, peeping over the wall and ccquetting with mamma. If he wishes to walk the fence affords a firm and safe support. And while he is trying his experiments, mamma is at liberty to follow her own pursuits. In summer the enclosure may be set up on the piazza, or, if a blanket is spread out under it, on the grass, in the shade of some fine tree—baby enjoying hours of fine fresh air, and mamma having leisure to cultivate her flowers or admire the scenery.

Dangerous Medication.

Thousands of deaths occur every year from the unadvised use of dangerous medicines. It often arises in this way: A person is suffering, the family physician is called, he writes a prescription, it is taken, an instant and grateful relief is experienced, the patient desires to know the name of the marvelous remedy, bears it in mind and if there is something similar, he ventures to send for it (the remedy) direct to the druggist. On being relieved again he becomes enthusiastic, and volunteers advice to his friends. They are relieved—sometimes!—and forthwith he begins to think he knows "about as much as any of the doctors." A little later it is not unusual to see a record in the newspapers that Mr. ——— was "found dead in his bed this morning."

In the cases above, all were men of intelligence and position, and yet they allowed themselves to fall into the habitual use of the most dangerous remedies known to science. We would advise every one:—



1. Never to keep dangerous medicines in the house.

2. Never to use a dangerous drug except by the immediate advice of your family physician.

3. When in the use of any remedy, you find yourself inclined to employ it oftener, or in larger quantities to produce the same effects, whether it be spirits, tobacco, snuff, tea, coffee, chloroform, ether, or any other stimulant or poison, be assured that you are on the very verge of destruction, and that you are liable any day to instant death.

4. When you find yourself inclined to "take" anything, even a cup of tea or coffee, to enable you to perform any work in hand, mentally or bodily, avoid it as you would a deadly poison. The three greatest men of this century in our country, in pulpit, bar and forum, died drunkards: and long before their deaths it was known to their friends that they were "incapable of an effort" without being first "fortified" by a glass of brandy.—Hall's Journal of Health.

It is a citizen's duty to know whether secret societies are an evil or not.

THE CARPENTER DONATION.

The above is a front view of the fine stone-front building on Madison street, Chicago, which Mr. Carpenter proposes to give the National Christian Association for head-quarters and publishing house. The terms of the donation are that $30,000 shall be raised by Apr. 1, 1878, to carry on the work of the Association. Send contributions to Treasurer of the N. C. A.

The National Christian Association.

President.—Philo Carpenter.
Directors.—Philo Carpenter, J. Blanchard, Archibald Wait, I. A. Hart, C. R. Hagerty, E. A. Cook, O. F. Lumry, C. A. Blanchard, H. L. Kellogg, I. R. B. Arnold, E. S. Cook.
Cor. Secretary.—C. A. Blanchard.
Treasurer.—H. L. Kellogg.
Gen. Ag't & Lecturer—J. P. Stoddard.
The object of this Association is:—

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved; to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform to aid the Association in either of these ways: (1) to establish a Publishing House and Head-quarters in Chicago; (2) to carry on the general work; (3) to maintain the State agents. All donations (drafts or P.O. orders) should be sent to the Treasurer; general correspondence, etc., direct to the Corresponding Secretary. Address both at 13 Wabash Ave. Chicago.

Form of Bequest.—I give and bequeath to the National Christian Association, Incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois, the sum of——dollars for the purposes of said Association, and for which the receipt of its Treasurer for the time being shall be a sufficient discharge.

Address of Anti-masonic Lecturers.

General Agent and Lecturer, J. P. Stoddard, Christian Cynosure Office, Chicago.
State Lecturers:
Indiana, J. T. Kiggins, Portland, Jay Co.
Illinois, H. H. Hinman, Wheaton, Ill.
Ohio, Wm. Dillon, Dayton, O.
New York: L. N. Stratton, Syracuse; D. P. Rathbun, Lisbon Center; Woodruff Post, Rochester; A. F. Curry, Almond
Pennsylvania, J. W. Raynor, Uniondale, Susquehanna Co., Pa.
Wisconsin, Philo Elzea, Delavan, Wis.
Michigan, J. L. Barlow, Fentonville.
New Hampshire, S. C. Kimball, Centr Strafford.
Lecturers at Large:
O. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
W. A. Wallace, Dublin, Ind.
J. B. Nessell, Ellington, N. Y.
John Levington, Detroit, Mich.
James Hankins, Mason City, Iowa.
R. B. Taylor, Summerfield, O.
N. Callender, Green Grove, Pa.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
P. Hurless, Polo, Ill.
J. C. Graham, Viola, Mercer Co., Ill.
J. R. Baird, Templeton, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Bourbon, Ind.
Josiah McCaskey, Fancy Creek, Wis.
C. F. Hawley, Millbrook, Pa.
W. M. Givens, Center Point, Ind.
J. L. Andrus, Mt. Vision, N. Y.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
D. S. Caldwell, Nevada, Wyandot Co., O
Samuel Hale, Mallett Creek, O.
A. Mayn, Promise City, Wayne Co. Ia
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
C. Wiggins, Angola, Ind.
S. L. Cook, Albion, Ind.
E Ronayne, Cynosure office, Chicago.
J. M. Dosh, Van Meter, Iowa.
W. M.. Love, Baker, St. Clair Co., Mo

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY DEC. 23, 1875.

PLATFORM AND NOMINATIONS FOR 1876.

FOR PRESIDENT.
James B. Walker,
of Illinois.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT
Donald Kirkpatrick,
of New York.

PLATFORM.

We hold: 1. That ours is a Christian and not a heathen nation, and that the God of the Christian Scriptures is the author of civil government.

2. That God requires and man needs a Sabbath.

3. That the prohibition of the importation, manufacture and sale of intoxicating drinks as a beverage, is the true policy on the temperance question.

4. The charters of all secret lodges granted by our Federal and State Legislatures should be withdrawn, and heir oaths prohibited by law.

5. That the civil equality secured to all American citizens by article 13th, 14th and 15th of our amended Constitution should be preserved inviolate.

6. That arbitration of differences with nations is the most direct and sure method of securing and perpetuating a permanent peace.

7. That to cultivate the intellect without improving the morals of men, is to make mere adepts and experts; therefore the Bible should be associated with books of science and literature in all our educational institutions.

8. That land and other monopolies should be discountenanced.

9. That the Government should furnish the people with an ample and sound currency, and a return to specie payment as soon as practicable.

10. That maintenance of the public credit, protection to all loyal citizens, and justice to Indians are essential to the honor and safety of our nation.

11. And finally, we demand for the American people the abolition of Electoral Colleges, and a direct vote for President and Vice-president of the United States.

THE CLOSING YEAR.

As this paper reaches its readers almost on the threshold of a new year we pause a moment to review the year now departing.

We look back upon it with a feeling of devout humility and thanksgiving.

Our hopes have not all been realized fully, yet the prospect is brighter than we have deserved and we believe that the obstacles which tower up before the Cynosure will be used of God to make its readers more skillful and effective in his service by the efforts which they put forth to overcome them. We have received unnumbered testimonies from lecturers and readers of the Cynosure as to the great good it has accomplished during the past year.

Our faithful Editor, President Blanchard, although taxed with his professional duties, has filled his position in connection with the paper vigorously and well. He also sets an example of self-denial which some of our readers have nobly followed. Working for the paper early or late, as he could, in health or in sickness, without compensation save that which Christ gives to those who deny themselves, take up their cross and follow him.

Mr. Kellogg, his able assistant, by his good taste and judgment has won the confidence and esteem of those who know him.

Our correspondence during the past year has been varied and valuable.

Rev. J. P. Stoddard, assisted by the State Agents, has kept the progress of the Anti-masonic movement clearly before the minds of the Cynosure readers.

Mrs. Pettengill with her clear and educated mind has given us warm and accurate views of Florida and to some extent of the South.

Professor Fischer has given us interesting sketches of travel in Europe.

Numerous correspondents from all parts of the country have added to the value and interest of the paper.

It is appropriate to say here that those who have labored to obtain readers for the Cynosure have done an extremely important work, for however meritorious the paper may be, without readers its value is unavailable for practical use.

We think that the Cynosure in all its departments during the past year has been a power for good, and that our beloved America is holier and hence happier than she would have been without it.

And now "reaching forth unto those things which are before," as you will see in our next issue, we remain yours sincerely, EZRA A. COOK & Co.,

PUBLISHERS.

THE PRINCETON COLLEGE TROUBLES.

The origin and progress of the secret society imbroglio at Dr. McCosh's College is republished elsewhere from the columns of the American Wesleyan. The action of the faculty has been heartily sustained by the trustees and the petty imitations of the lodge have come to an end. As if to break the force of this blow at secretism, the force of which is augmented by the almost universally adverse criticism of the system in public journals, some Freemason, or other person not inspired by a love of religion and of his race, has donated to the institution five billiard tables for use in the gymnasium; and here and there we read flings at the institution as if it were straining at a gnat while swallowing a camel in accepting the donation. It certainly is a gift that will make room for other and grosser evils, but is not to be compared to the power of secretism to break down the conscience as is shown by these very Princeton students. The only journal of importance in which we have seen any defense of the college fraternities is the Interior of this city, which says its this notice of the case:

"As to the Greek-letter societies which exist in nearly all first class institutions, if they have been productive of evil, the fact has never come to our knowledge. Their influence, in so far as we know of it, is to make the members stand first in the class-room, first on the forum, and first on the campus. That is the chief ambition of the college Greeks. It is charged that they employ unfair means to that end. It is not easy to win the first place in the class by unfair means—in fact it cannot be done. However, if the directors and Faculty of Princeton are convinced that the societies are injurious to discipline, and think they can withstand the reaction which wholesale expulsions are sure to produce, they have the right to take that course. Hitherto the history of American colleges has shown such experiments to be dangerous to the institution making them."

The weakness and error of this apology for college societies must be put to the account of its author's prejudice or ignorance; since there are from sixty to a hundred institutions which positively exclude these pests.

The exception in favor of two literary societies in the pledge given by Princeton students may cause some to question, with us, the meaning. A New York correspondent sends the following explanation, which, if the true one, degrades the action of the Princeton authorities to simple favoritism without regard to principles:

CARMEL, N. Y., Dec. 21, 1875.

Editor Christian Cynosure:

SIR: In two of your late issues I have read articles in reference to the recent action of the Faculty of Princeton College, which led me to believe that the true state of affairs there is not generally understood.

The promise which the students are compelled to sign after pledging them in very stringent terms to have no connection direct, or indirect, with any college secret societies contains the following, viz: "It being understood that this promise has no reference to the American Whig, and Cliosophic Societies."

Now, why is this clause inserted? Simply because the A. W. and C. Societies are secret societies—as secret as any college society that exists. No outsider is ever admitted to their halls, their transactions are kept a profound secret and it is considered a violation of the pledge of membership to even divulge the plans on which their halls are constructed. Their existence is approved of by the Faculty, and at least one case has occurred in which students have been dismissed from college for exposing their secrets. The tendency of other societies is to weaken these, and for this season and not from opposition to secrecy the pledge was established.

I have no desire to defend the cause of the students in violating their pledges but would like to see the motives of the Princeton Faculty shown in their true light. Yours etc. FAIR PLAY.

—Rev. J. P. Anthony, a United Brethren pastor of Mt. Alto, Franklin Co., Penn., who has contributed much by pen and voice for the success of the anti-lodge reform in his locality has commenced the publication of a monthly, The Highway of Holiness.

—Bishop Bedell of the Episcopal church, Ohio, preached at Kenyon College, Gambier, a Thanksgiving Day sermon on the public schools. He argued that there must be public schools under the protection of and supported by the State; that morals and religion are identical, and must be inculcated; that the Bible and the Lord's Prayer should be used, and concluded by declaring that our common school system is in danger, and must be preserved at all hazards.

1875—OUR LECTURERS.

BY THE CORRESPONDING SECRETARY.

WISCONSIN.

In this State Rev. Philo Elzea has labored during the past year. From personal acquaintance and from reports received of his labors, we have no hesitation in stating our conviction that he has been earnest and successful in the work of calling public attention to our reform. He was employed by the State Christian Association for Wisconsin, and has not reported to this office regularly. By a report which reached us from him last month, we learn that in the five months from the February Convention to the middle of July, he delivered:

Lectures:—	49
Sermons:—	15
and that he received	$140.25

for his services. This twenty-eight dollars per month was to pay his expenses and support his family. We hope that at the next State meeting a better provision for the maintainence of a lecturer will be made, and brother Elzea will be encouraged for further labors by receiving compensation for those of the past.

ILLINOIS.

Rev. H. H. Hinman, as is known from his report to the State Convention, labored throughout the past year. He has been a judicious and successful advocate of our cause, and his services have been secured for another year. He has been in the field the most of time since the meeting at Peoria and although his report to that meeting has been published the summary is inserted at this time.

Lectures in eighteen counties,	142
Sermons preached,	20
Expenses and salary,	$651.20
Of which he collected on the field,	$274.56
And received from Treasurer of the State Association,	$376.64
He also collected for the Publishing house, notes, cash, etc.,	$516.00

There are already pledges for about two hundred dollars on the work this year, last year's expenses being all paid. We need subscriptions to the amount of three hundred dollars for the current year. It is hoped that the faithful friends of this important work in Illinois will at once send to the State Treasurer, Mr. H. L. Kellogg, their pledges for large or small sums to be redeemed during the year.

IOWA.

This State has had the advantage of visits from our General Agent, Rev. J. P. Stoddard, Mr. Edmond Ronayne, of Chicago, and of lectures from a number of gentlemen residing within the State. Rev. J. Hankins was enthusiastically endorsed by the Convention at Clear Lake, and was willing to devote himself to the work, but means were not supplied, and the effort failed though he labored well and faithfully during several months. Doubtless the Iowa friends will be more careful and successful during another year. Certainly when Royal Arch Masons are willing to take the field against the lodge, money should be forthcoming to set them at work and keep them at it.

INDIANA.

Rev. J. T. Kiggins, has as heretofore labored in this State as all readers of the Cynosure know from his frequent reports. He was elected by the State Convention of Indiana, as agent for the coming year; and has since that Convention presented the work with his usual ability. An abstract of his report from January, 1st, 1875, to Oct. 1st, is as follows:

Lectures and sermons delivered	150
Expenses and salary	$676.84
He has raised on the field	$305.90
Received from the Treasurer	$228.28
And we owe him for labor performed	$142.66
He also sent in for the Publishing House	$1.00

Will not the friends of our cause in Indiana see to it that the sum now due Mr. K. is speedily raised. So long as our General Agent is working for the support of State lecturers and the Publishing House fund, let all who value this reform against the works of darkness put their shoulders to the wheel and help.

MICHIGAN.

D. P. Rathbun was elected State Agent at Fenton, but it seemed unadvisable to take the field, as his church did not wish to spare him. Rev. A. H. Springstein was chosen to fill the vacancy. He was engaged for three months, and did some work, exactly how much we are unable to state. At the annual meeting held at Ypsilanti, this year, Rev. J. L. Barlow was elected State lecturer, and C. B. Remington, financial agent. We wish for these brethren the support, moral, financial, and prayerful that the interests of our civil and religious institutions demand.

NEW YORK.

In this State Rev. J. L. Barlow, just elected to Michigan, has been prosecuting our work. We are unable to give an itemized report of his work, as he reports directly to the New York Association. His "Jottings from the New York Field" have been read we doubt not with interest by all the Cynosure subscribers.

PENNSYLVANIA.

In this State Rev. J. W. Raynor was elected agent, and has labored somewhat east of the mountains. We are unable to give a report of his labors for the reason given in the case of New York. We have also had in the columns of the Cynosure interesting notes from his pen.

OHIO.

From Ohio we have no report. Rev. William Dillon, an eminent worker was elected at the Xenia meeting, and has been at work with success in the Southern and Western portions of the State.

OUR GENERAL AGENT.

Rev. J. P. Stoddard has been in labors unusually abundant during the past year. His efforts have been directed; 1st, to securing the thirty thousand dollars, necessary to obtain the Carpenter donation; 2nd, toward raising salaries for State Agents; and 3rd, to enlighten the masses on the subject of secret organizations. He has cared for others so much more successfully than for himself, that there is now due him over five hundred dollars for services performed.

CONCLUSION.

All who love the free and open Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, and who desire its triumph over the selfish secret kingdom of Satan, are invited to aid us in our work by contributing to the General or any State work. Contributions may be sent to the Treasurer at 13 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

FATHER PRESTON'S pastor writes as follows of his continued improvement in health in which all friends of the cause will rejoice and give thanks:

LOCKPORT, Ill., Dec. 26, '75.

Editor Christian Cynosure:

A few lines concerning Isaac Preston were sent to the Cynosure last week, but were not received. Mr. Preston is gaining very fast. Last Friday, 17th, was his eighty-third birth-day, and he was as young as any of the company. Mrs. Isaac Preston, now in her eighty-fourth year, reads to her companion all the current news. We are very glad that the Lord has spared him to us, for neither church nor village can get along without him.

Very truly yours, J. E. STORM.

HONOR TO WHOM HONOR.—Rev. D. Berger, former editor of the Religious Telescope, who in years past was lukewarm on the question of lodgeism, in a recent letter to that paper expresses great satisfaction in its conduct under Professors Wright and Tobey and believes its circulation hardly affected by the discussion of secretism; and as for the Masonic Tribune, he cannot regard it, "as conducted, otherwise than an enemy to the best interests of the church."

Read sixteenth page, Publishers' Department.

—Pres. J H. Fairchild of Oberlin, is editing an autobiography of the late President Finney.

—If the lodge must abuse somebody for unveiling its hypocrisy and swindling, it may exhaust itself on Prof. Parvin, of Iowa, part of whose address before the Grand Commandery of the State we print this week. By the way, we found this article reprinted in a late number of the Western Light, the lately established student's paper of Western College, Iowa. True to the principles of the United Brethren, it sheds light on the darkness of the lodge.

—A letter from the General Agent received too late to print in full tells of an interesting trip to northern New York, to the home of Elder Rathbun, where he was cordially welcomed by brethren Forrester, Benton, Martin, McFarland and others. With Bro. Rathbun he filled appointments of Parishville, Colton and Lisbon. After having engaged a Congregational church in the latter place, it was closed against the lecture, but a Wesleyan chapel stood ready and received the people. From thence he went to Scranton, to attend the Pennsylvania State meeting.

Shall we bring the CYNOSURE subscription list up to ten thousand during the year 1876?

—Past Master Ronayne returned from Scranton on Saturday. He reports a large and good meeting there, though opening with few; crowded houses rewarded the efforts of each evening. Mr. Ronayne has now met the lodge in several States and in its centers of power, he believes more and more deeply that nothing but Divine power can wholly uproot the incantations of secretism, and that no advance step now suggested is more important than the securing of the Carpenter building and the establishment of a daily meeting for prayer. An opinion from his position is valuable. Hear friends and help.

—A good New Year's gift—send the Cynosure for 1876 to a friend. Another—send some of the Lord's money lent you to help establish this reform in the Carpenter building.

—Bro. H. H. Hinman reports the work in Illinois steadily going on to the victory of truth. At Caledonia, where he preached twice and lectured three times, the Masons seemed to be rowdies to a man. On Wednesday last he spoke in a Wesleyan church three miles away. On Saturday and Lord's Day evenings he had appointments at a school-house near Belvidere, and later in the week at the Presbyterian church near Caledonia. His note closes: "O that there might be more united and earnest prayer for a spirit of reformation to be poured out on the churches! They have had an extensive revival in Belvidere and the same evangelist (Brown) is laboring with much success in Marengo. What the people are converted to I cannot say, but let us hope it is something better than they have been."

—Elder Barlow writes hopefully of the beginning of his work in Michigan. One town organization was organized last week at Atlas, Genesee county, and another is ready at Fenton. The lodge is dark and overbearing in its opposition and to some extent succeeds in constraining many to stand aside and take no stand for the truth. But this state of things can be only for a short time.

Religious Intelligence.

—Mr. Spurgeon has come out strongly against excluding religion from the national schools. He calls it making infidelity the national religion, and he prefers even the Church of England to having Bradlaugh for Archbishop of Canterbury.

—Rev. L. Taylor of the College church at Wheaton, read a paper on the subject of holiness at the weekly meeting of Congregational ministers in this city on Monday.

—Rev. R. B. Howard, brother of the well-known general and late of Illinois, takes charge of the New York office of the Advance, and of the church at East Orange, N. J.

—Revivals of great power are reported in Milwaukee, under the labors of Bliss and Whittle, and in Rev. J. K. Nutting's church at Austinburg, O.

—Two Presbyterian clergymen of St. Louis, Drs. Nicolls and Brooks have rented De Bar's Opera-house with the design of holding Sabbath evening services for the masses.

—The Moravians in this country purpose raising a permanent church extension fund of $50,000.

—Our Banner says, "A series of very interesting meetings to consider the question of the Bible in the public schools, are now being held in New York City. Recently, a very large assembly gathered in the 1st R. P. church, and subsequently one in the Third church. These meetings are under the auspices of an association, that has resolved to press the question to an issue.

—The next General Assembly of the Presbyterian church is to be overtured to create the Synod of Oregon.

—Dr. J. D. Fulton of the Hanson Place Baptist church, Brooklyn, has finally withdrawn from that body. It is believed that another Baptist church will be established in consequence, a considerable number of his old members having joined him. It is hoped the movement will be successful, and the slanders circulated about Dr. Fulton be disproved; of which no doubt the lodge has done its share.

News of the Week.

The City.

Leading Democrats are reported arranging for a party organ in this city. M. M. Pomeroy ("Brick") has announced his intention of beginning again in the newspaper business. So low has Chicago sunk to attract such men as he!——The Inter-Ocean came out last week with charges against Secretary Bristow of complicity with the whiskey-ring in Cincinnati and Louisville; but they appear to be thoroughly refuted by news from those cities. The effort was likely started by the ring here which found the columns of that paper open to them.——Moody has sent word that the work at the East is too pressing for him to come to dedicate his church and anyhow he wants it finished and paid for first.——A German theater was opened in the heart of the city not long since on Sunday, and now another prominent place of such resort is thrown open and crowded on that day.

Congress.

Just before adjourning for the holidays Speaker Kerr announced his committees. The leaders of the Democrats were left out of important places to their open disgust. The chairmanship of the committee of Ways and Means which leads the business of the House, was given to Morrison of Ill.——There is a very prevalent belief in some quarters that a vast number of Southern claims will be brought before the House of Representatives this session, and that the Committees had been specially framed with the view of their acting favorably upon such claims.

The Country.

The libel suit of Henry C. Bowen against the Brooklyn Eagle, for defamation of character, has been decided in his favor with $1000 damages. He has two more suits pending against the same journal.——The explosion of a gas main last week in Boston tore up some 150 feet of pavement, killing and wounding a large number of people.—President Perkey of Abingdon College, Ill., was struck on the head while attempting to enforce order at a meeting on Christmas day; and the blow is said to be fatal.

Foreign.

Ex-President Thiers, after declining invitations from eleven departments to stand for election as a Senator in the new branch of the French Legislature about to organize, he accepted a similar proposal from the town of Belfort. The Republicans are confident of a majority in the body.——The Royal palace at Barcelona, Spain, was almost entirely destroyed by fire on the 26th.——The Sultan and the insurgents of Montenegro, are each endeavoring to obtain means to carry on the war.——A battle recently occurred between the Russian troops and a body of insurgents in Khokand, in which 300 of the latter were killed, It is believed that the disturbances in Khokand will be made the pretext for annexation by Russia.

The Home Circle.

The Finished Year.

Another year has flown! months, weeks and days,
Each marked with mercy, stand recorded now:
While each vain promise, each forgotten vow,
Conscience accusing to my face arraye,
And tells of faithlessness in all my ways;
But these confessing, at the throne I bow,
And sovereign grace lifts my dejected brow,
And fills my mouth with canticles of praise.
With daily thanks from strength to strength I go;
With grateful songs I crown the finished year;
And when I end my pilgrim-path below,
And in the city of my God appear,
With praise untiring shall my lips o'erflow,
Unmarred by evil, and unchecked by fear.

—Sunday at Home.

Hogmanay.

This is the Scotch name for the last day of the year, and it reminds us of a little story: The Commodore of the Allan Line, numbering some twenty-two first-class ocean steamers, is a fine, hearty, whole-souled sailor, a warm, active Christian, a zealous temperance man and withal a Methodist local preacher, who is in fully as great demand for addressing religious and temperance meetings as any Rev. or D. D. of them all. This genial Christian, whose name is Captain Dutton, in the course of an address at a temperance meeting in Montreal, told an experience the repetition of which will be to the point on this last day of the year. He said that when he was a young sailor he led a careless, roving life like others, till he made a voyage to the South Seas in a vessel in which there was one, and only one Christian—an elderly seaman of few words. There in the vast, lonely Southern ocean young Dutton turned to the Bible he had been taught to read in youth, and was brought to Jesus by its instrumentality. In his new life he began to feel certain common practices to be inconsistent, if not sinful. Swearing he had no doubt about, but he had some doubts about grog and tobacco. In this state of mind he consulted the old Christian sailor, and received for answer that if he was a Christian he would have, as he went on, to pitch many bad things overboard. "If this is so," said Dutton, "and if they have to go sooner or later, they may as well or better go now, and with the Lord's help overboard they went, swearing, grog, tobacco and all."

The application we wish to make of the little story is, that all our readers who are conscious of any bad or doubtful habits or practices, which they mean to give up sooner or later, should, in the strength of the Lord, pitch them all overboard at once, on this last day of the year.

"He will give you grace to conquer."

In ascending a mountain, it is both necessary and delightful to pause occasionally, looking back upon the paths we have trodden, around upon the view opened to us, and forward to the heights which still invite our approach. Such halts do more good for us than the mere rest they afford. They give new and larger views of the beauty and sublimity of nature, bestowing little by little the reward of our toil, and encouraging to renewed efforts. It is well, too, for us to have occasional pauses in our restless, hurried lives—pauses in which we may look back upon the past, and, by the clearer and broader views they give us, gather fresh inspiration for the labor before us.

New Year's Hymn.

A year of life has glided by,
I trace its course with thoughtful eye;
For rich in blessings from above
It shines with marks of heavenly love—
My Father's love.

From day to day by him were given
Each earthly good, each hope of heaven;
Nor did his hand correction spare,
But even his chast'nings proved his care—
My Father's care.

And now a year before me stands,
The future hidden in its hands,
I know not what it may disclose;
But One who loves and sees me knows—
My Father knows.

Upheld by him, I will not fear
To meet the secret of the year:
Its changes follow his command;
I know my times are in his hand—
My Father's hand.

My foes are strong, and I am weak,
But help divine I still may seek;
Look up, my heart, and fear no harm,
Almighty strength is in his arm—
My Father's arm.

For as his love hath wonders done,
For as he spared not his Son;
O Christ, my unbelief remove!
Nor ever let me doubt that love—
My Father's love.

And when my days and years are past,
And all life's training ends at last,
May I, accepted through his grace,
Behold for evermore his face—
My Father's face.

—Selected.

The New Year.

Again we stand at the threshold of the New Year and pause in the midst of holiday rejoicings and festivities to review the twelvemonth just passing away. One hour, one day, one week, one month at a time it has gone, just as the year now coming in will go. The grand sum total of the past year is made up of ten thousand little items, and thus will the sum total of our lives be made up. We cannot go back to mend what is broken in the past, to correct errors committed, to improve opportunities wasted, to repair injuries done. But seeing wherein we have failed, we may in the future avoid what is wrong in the past. Only so far as repentance and regret lead us to amend our lives and stimulate us to more vigorous efforts in well-doing in the future, are they at all profitable. We are to "forget the things that are behind and press forward to those that are before."

This is a good time to mark out and enter upon general courses of action in life that upon calm reflection seem wise and just; enter upon them with a quiet deliberation to live just one day at a time and let each day, so to speak, take care of itself. The resolutions formed on New Year's will not sustain us during the entire year in right action any more than the New Year's dinner we eat will last us a twelvemonth. The moral nature requires daily moral aliment to keep it in healthful condition just as does the physical. Herein is the error many young people make in trying to lead a new life. They fancy that if they start right the moral machine will run itself without much attention; so when at the end of the year they look back and see how lamentably their good resolutions have failed them, how little of what they intended has been accomplished, discouragement paralyzes them. We all need to remember that the petition, "Give us this day our daily bread," applies with as much force to our moral and spiritual natures as to our physical. So in the plans we arrange for our conduct we must provide means whereby this daily moral food shall be supplied. Just as we allow ourselves time to eat and to sleep in order that our physical strength may not waste, so we must give ourselves time and means to tone up and recuperate our intellectual and moral natures if we wish really to lead constantly a higher life.

In a charming temperance story entitled, "Our New Crusade," by Edward Everett Hale, are four mottoes that should be engraven on the hearts of all those who in familiar phrase are "turning over a new leaf." They are these: "Look up and not down;" "Look out and not in;" "Look forward and not back;" "Lend a hand." These mottoes rest upon the fundamental principle that growth is from within out; that we shall judge the tree by its fruits and not by digging it up to see how far the roots penetrate the soil, or by splitting it open to find if it is sound at the heart.

In the retrospect of the past year every noble heart must admit that his highest joys and satisfactions have come from a sense of duty faithfully done, of burdens patiently borne, of temptations to evil steadfastly resisted, of opportunities for doing good gladly embraced. Is there one of us who would not if we could recall the ungenerous act of which we have been guilty, the unkind word, the selfish feeling! The only thing which we can do to atone for the past is to avoid all these errors in the future, and make the year to come one of sunshine and joy to all around us.

Not a few look wearily forward to months of anxiety, of want, of toil and pain that must come to them as the year wears away. It is enough to live one day at a time, and not make its burden intolerable by adding to it the burden of to-morrow or of yesterday. "As thy day so shall thy strength be." How often do we pass even with cheerfulness the most dreaded ordeal, and find our fears and apprehensions infinitely more painful than the reality. In this sense we are to take no anxious thought for the morrow; sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof.

So, trusting, hopeful, patient, let us enter upon the new year, looking up and not down, out and not in, forward and not back, and lending a helping hand to all who ask and all who need.

—N. Y. Tribune.

No government constituted as ours is can long exist without intelligence among the people. Ignorant and unthinking men are the tools of unprincipled demagogues. Vice and crime flourish as intelligence disappears. From the Sixth ward of New York, where most of the people lack intelligence, John Morrisey who keeps the most noted gambling house in America, was sent to Congress, and Tweed was elected to the State Senate after having been proved to be the greatest defaulter of the age. And this is usually the way with ignorant and unthinking men; they go in a crowd; they do as others do; they are incapable of independent action. The ignorant and vicious are the dangerous classes. Popular enlightenment never has existed and never will, save as authorized and controlled by the government. Compulsory education is the only safe ground for a government like ours. Public schools are the corner-stone of American liberty and ours is the best system known.

A Foot out of Joint.

Come to the place of prayer!
Parents and children, come and kneel before
Your God, and with united hearts adore
Him whose alone your life and being are.

What stronger or surer indication of backsliding, worldly-mindedness, and almost entire destitution of the fear and love of God, than the omission of domestic duties, of morning and evening devotion, the reading of God's word, singing his praise, and bowing the knee in humble, fervent adoration around the family altar! Are there not thousands of parents called Christians, who neglect, wholly or in part, this solemn, all important, indispensible requisition! Meanwhile are not their children growing up impenitent, harder than the nether millstone! If you see a boy that don't mind his mother nor take the trouble to ask her leave when he wants to go up street, you may feel pretty certain that "they don't attend family prayers down to his house." If you hear a little boy in the streets using wicked words, taking God's name in vain, you may be quite sure that "they do not attend family prayers down to his house." If a boy is quarrelsome, if he is headstrong and overbearing among his playmates, set it down for a certain sign that "they don't have family prayers down to his house." If a boy is allowed to stay at home from church, and not required to keep the Sabbath as more holy than any other day, depend upon it "they don't have family prayers down to his house." If he steals fruit from a neighbor's garden, if he early contracts pilfering habits abroad or at home, it is one of the sad signs that "they don't attend family prayers down to his house." You need not ask him the question, you need not inquire of the domestics. The inference is strong enough, without giving yourself that trouble.

And then that neglect is not the only one. Duties as well as vices go together. The father who does not pray in his family, will scarcely take much pains to bring up his children 'in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.'

Some of these delinquents, to lull or stifle conscience, equivocate and sophisticate—pretend that God, in his Word, has left no special intimation of his will touching this matter. To meet this doubting, hesitating, or cavilling spirit, we select the following (among many others) Scriptural items, bearing on this point.

The patriarchs, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, wherever, in their pilgrimages, they fixed on a place of residence, erected an altar to God for worship and devotion, and called on the name of the Lord.

Joshua resolved that, as for himself and his family, they would serve the Lord, that is, worship him.

Job practiced family worship. "He sent and sanctified his children and rose early in the morning, and offered burnt offerings according to the number of them all. Thus did Job continually."

David, having spent one day in bringing the ark from the house of Obed-Edom to the place he had prepared for it, and in presenting peace-offerings before the Lord, returned at night to bless his household, that is, to pray for a blessing upon his family, or to attend upon family devotion.

Cornelius, the centurion, it is said, "feared God with all his house," meaning, worshiped him with his family.

The Apostle speaks, in his epistles, of churches in private houses. By this phrase he means religious families, or families where religious services are observed.

In the Lord's prayer we have a command for family devotion. "After this manner, therefore, pray ye—Our Father who art in heaven." The form of prayer is plural. It must, therefore mean social prayer, and, if social, then family prayer, for a family is the most proper society to engage in this devotion.

Paul, in his epistle to the Colossians, having pointed out the duties of husbands and wives, parents and children, masters and servants, adds, "Continue in prayer, and watch the same with thanksgiving." The subject upon which he was speaking, and the manner of his speaking, lead us to conclude he meant family prayer. In his epistle to the Ephesians, he enjoins it as a duty to pray always with all prayer; that is to offer prayer of every kind, and in every form, and at every proper season. Family prayer must therefore be included in this injunction.

The apostle Peter exhorts husbands and wives to live together in the discharge of conjugal affection and Christian obedience, that their "prayers be not hindered;" that nothing may occur to indispose them to social or family devotion.

John Howard, the philanthropist, is said never to have neglected family prayer, even though there is but one, and that one his domestic, to join in it; always declaring that where he had a tent, God should have an altar.

Come in the morning hour—
Who hath restored you from the dream of night?
Whose hand had poured around you cheering light
Come and adore that kind and heavenly power.

Come at the close of day,
Ere wearied nature sinks to gentle rest,
Come, and let all your sins be here confessed,
Come, and for his protecting mercy pray.

—Author of "Shining Light."

Health Habits of Young Men.

A very curious and interesting table might be made by a thoughtful physiologist and hygienist, showing each person where his strength goes, and I am not sure that a young man could do a better service for himself than seek counsel of some wise physiologist, tell him frankly all his habits, and have such a table prepared, not only to guard him against excess, but to show him his weak places, and point out where he will be most likely to fail. Some of these tables would no doubt read very much as follows:

Spent in digesting a big dinner, which the body did not need, force sufficient to raise thirty tons of matter one foot high.

Spent in getting rid of several drinks of wine and brandy, force sufficient to raise twenty tons one foot high.

Spent in smoking cigars, force sufficient to raise ten tons one foot high.

Spent in breathing bad air, force sufficient to raise fifteen tons one foot high.

Spent in cheating a neighbor out of $30 in a business transaction, force sufficient to raise fifteen tons one foot high.

Spent in reading worthless books and newspapers, force sufficient to raise five tons one foot high.

Spent in hesitation, doubt, and uncertainty, force sufficient to raise five tons one foot high.

Total—120 tons one foot high.

Left for practical and useful labor only enough to raise fifty-five tons one foot high, or to do less than one-third of a day's work.

Sometimes there would be a draft on the original capital of considerable force, so there would not be enough to keep the body warm, or the food well-digested, or the muscles plump and full, or the hearing acute, or the eyes keen and bright, or the brain thoughtful and active.

Very often a single debauch would use up the entire available power of the whole system for a week or a month.

There is no end of multitudinous ways in which we not only spend our working capital, but draw on the original stock that ought not to be touched, and the result is imperfect lives, rickety bodies, no ability to transmit to our children good health and long life, much physical premature decay, with all the ends of life unaccomplished. How sad is all this! How terrible to be born into this world and leave it without adding something to its wealth, its virtue, and progress!—Herald of Health.

Children's Corner.

The Old Year and the New.

Farewell, little children, the Old Year said,
I shall leave you to-night when you're snugly in bed:
But come, let us gather around the bright fire,
And converse a short time before you retire.
I leave you to-night, but with me I bear
A record from each—I have drawn it with care.
Now listen! Each word you have carelessly spoken,
All promises made, and promises broken;
Each little unkindness you've felt, or have shown
In action and feeling, in word or in tone;
Whene'er you've forgotten in warm earnest prayer
To thank our great Father for his kindly care;
Whene'er you've forgotten his pardon to plead
For sinful desires and feelings and deeds;
Whene'er you've offended your father or mother,
Been fretful or peevish to sister or brother;
All the grief you have caused, all the sorrow you've given,
Are recorded by me—are recorded in heaven.
Kneel down, little children, in deep sorrow kneel,
As you look o'er the record the old year reveals;
Ask pardon of God for all that is past,
On the mercy of Jesus your burdened souls cast;
Resolve that the New Year shall never record
So many offenses in thought, deed, and word,
Oh, children, remember, and earnestly pray,
Whenever you're tempted to wander astray;
Pray for light from above to guide your young feet
O'er the rough road of life to that happy seat
On the right hand of God, where the happy ones claim
Peace, pardon and love in the Saviour's dear name.

—Children's Friend.

The Penny and the Ducat.

A STORY FOR THE CHILDREN.

[From the German.]

In the mint, where all our pounds, shillings, and pence are made, there once lay a gold ducat and a penny just coined. There they lay shining and clean, close together on a table, and the bright rays of the sun glanced and sparkled on them.

Then said the sovereign to the penny, "You jump and get away from me! You are only made of common copper, and are not worthy of the sunlight that shines on you. You will soon be lying all black and dirty on the ground, and no one will take the trouble of picking you up. I am made of costly gold. I shall travel about the world with great lords and princes; I shall do good things, and perhaps, some day, shine in the Emperor's crown."

In the same room there lay by the fire an old gray cat. When he heard this he licked his paws thoughtfully, turned himself round on the other side, and said: "Some things go by the rule of contrary."

And so it proved with the pieces of money. It turned out the very contrary of what the gold ducat expected.

It fell in the possession of an old miser, who locked it up in a great chest, where it lay idle and useless with hundreds of others like itself. But when the old miser found that he should not live much longer, he buried all his money in the ground, that no one might get it, and there lies the proud ducat to this day, dirty and black, and no one will ever find it.

But the penny traveled far about in the world, and it came to high honor. And this is how it happened:

First one of the poor boys at the mint received it in his wages. He carried it home, and his little sister was so delighted with the clean shining penny that he gave it to her.

The child ran out into the garden to show it to her mother and saw a poor, lame beggar passing by, who begged for a piece of bread.

"I have not got any," said the child.

"Then give me a penny to buy some," said the beggar, and the child gave him her penny.

The beggar limped off to the baker's. Just as he came to the shop an old friend of his passed by, dressed as a pilgrim, with mantle, staff and scrip. He gave to some children, who were standing around the baker's door, pictures of good and holy men, and the children in return put some money into the little box he had in his hand. The beggar asked, "Where are you traveling to?"

The pilgrim answered, "Many hundred miles away to the city of Jerusalem, where the holy Christ dwelt and died. I wish to offer up my prayers at his grave, and redeem my brother, who is a prisoner in the hands of the Turks; it is for this purpose that I beg for money."

"Then take a mite towards it for me," said the beggar, and he gave his penny to the pilgrim, and would have gone away as hungry as he came had not the baker, who saw all that had passed, given him the loaf that he had wished to buy.

And now the pilgrim wandered through many lands and went in a ship far over the sea to the holy city of Jerusalem. When he arrived there he first offered up a prayer at the sepulcher and then went to the Turkish Sultan, who kept his brother a prisoner. He offered the Turk a large sum of money if he would set his brother free. But the Sultan wanted more.

The pilgrim said: "I have nothing more to offer you than this copper penny, which was given me by a poor hungry beggar, out of compassion. May you also have pity as he had, and this copper penny will secure you a reward."

Then the Sultan took compassion on him and set his brother free, and he received the penny from the good pilgrim.

The Sultan put the copper penny in his pocket, and after a little while forgot all about it. Now, it happened that after a time, the Emporer of Germany came to Jerusalem to fight against the Sultan. So the Sultan fought bravely at the head of his army, and was never wounded. But one day an arrow was aimed at his right breast; it struck him indeed, but glanced off from his clothes without wounding him. The Sultan was very much surprised, and when his clothes were examined, after the battle, the penny was found in his pocket, and this had caused the arrow to glance off. So the Sultan prized the penny very much, and had it fastened with a chain to the hilt of his curved sword. Some time afterward the Sultan was made prisoner by the Emperor and had to yield up his sword to the conqueror. So the penny came into the possession of the Emperor.

One day when the Emperor was sitting at the table, and was just in the act of raising his goblet to his lips, the Empress said she was anxious to see the curved Turkish sword. So it was brought in, and as the Emperor was showing it to the Empress, the penny became unfastened and fell into the goblet of wine. The Emperor saw it, and before drinking the wine he took out the penny. But when he looked at it he perceived the penny had turned quite green. This showed everybody there was poison in the goblet. A wicked servant had mixed the poison, hoping to kill the Emperor. The servant was ordered to execution, but the penny was set in the Emperor's crown. So this penny made a child happy, gave bread to a beggar, delivered a prisoner, saved a Sultan from being wounded, and preserved the life of an Emperor. It deserved to be set in an Emperor's crown. Perhaps it is there to this day if we could only see the crown.

Let us read the Gospel, not so much to know what truths it contains, but as we say our prayers, that we may possess our hearts with the same spirit which Jesus Christ discovers in them; observing his actions and manner of life, and striving continually to imitate them, following his instructions and believing his promises and threatenings.

Masonic Books,

FOR SALE AT THE CYNOSURE OFFICE.

Those who wish to know the character of Freemasonry, as shown by its own publications, will find many standard works in the following list.

No sensible Mason dares deny that such men as Albert G. Mackey, the great Masonic Lexicographer, and Daniel Sickels, the Masonic author and publisher, are the highest Masonic authority in the United States.

Allyn's Ritual of Masonry,

Illustrated by a large number of engravings, and containing a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, Orange and Odd-fellows' societies. Price, $5.00.

Mackey's Masonic Ritualist;

OR

MONITORIAL INSTRUCTION BOOK

BY ALBERT G. MACKEY,

"Past General High Priest of the General Grand Chapter of the United States, Knight of the Eagle and Pelican, Prince of Mercy," Etc. Etc. Price, $1 75

Mackey's Lexicon of Freemasonry,

Containing a Definition of Terms, Notices of its History, Traditions and Antiquities, and an account of all the Rites and Mysteries of the Ancient World. 12 mo. 526 pages, $3 00

MACKEY'S MANUAL OF THE LODGE,

OR

Monitorial Instructions in the Degrees of Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft, and Master Mason; with Ceremonies relating to Installations, Dedications, Consecrations, Laying of Corner-stones &c. Price, $2 00

MACKEY'S TEXT BOOK

OF

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

Illustrating the Laws of Freemasonry, both written and unwritten.

This is the Great Law Book of Freemasonry 570 pages. Price, $2.50.

Webb's Monitor of Freemasonry,

LARGE EDITION, WITH NOTES

By ROB. MORRIS, Price, $1.50.
Pocket Edition, 75 cts.

SICKELS' FREEMASON'S MONITOR.

Containing the Degrees of Freemasonry embraced in the Lodge, Chapter, Council and Commandery, embellished with nearly 300 symbolic Illustrations. Together with Tactics and drill of Masonic Knighthood. Also, forms of Masonic Documents, Notes, Songs, Masonic dates, installations, etc. By D. Sickels, 32 mo tuck. Price $1.50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry.

A Practical Guide to the Ceremonies in the Degrees conferred in Masonic Lodge Chapter, Encampments, etc. Illustrated Edition. In cloth, $1 25; paper, 75 cts.

Chase's Digest of Masonic Law.

Comprises a Complete Code of Regulations Decisions and Opinions upon Questions of Masonic Jurisprudence. Price, $2 25.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor

Illustrated with Explanatory Engraving Price $2.50.

HAND BOOK OF FREEMASONRY.

By EDMOND RONAYNE.

Entered according to Act of Congress in the year 1875.
BY EDMOND RONAYNE.
In the office of the Librarian of Congress at Washington, D. C.

MASTER MASON'S DEGREE. Continued.

Senior Warden:—(representing Hiram, king of Tyre) Let us pray.

Worshipful Master:—Brethren, let us pray.

All the brethren now kneel on one knee arouud the candidate, and the Master removing his hat offers the following so-called

PRAYER.

Thou, O God! knowest our downsitting and our uprising and understandeth our thoughts afar off. Shield and defend us from the evil intentions of our enemies and support us under the trials and afflictions we are destined to endure while traveling through this vale of tears. Man that is born of woman is of few days and full of trouble. He cometh forth as a flower and is cut down; he fleeth also as a shadow and continueth not. Seeing his days are determined, the number of his months are with thee: thou hast appointed his bounds that he cannot pass; turn from him that he may rest till he shall accomplish his day. For there is hope of a tree if it be cut down that it will sprout again and that the tender branch will not cease. But man dieth and wasteth away: yea, man giveth up the ghost and where is he? As the waters fail from the sea and as the flood decayeth and drieth up so man lieth down and riseth not up until the heavens shall be no more. Yet, O God, have compassion upon the children of thy creation, administer them comfort in time of trouble and save them with an everlasting salvation. Amen.

Response by the brethren, "So mote it be."

They all now stand up and the Master resuming his hat again spreads his hands over the supposed grave (the candidate) as in the due-guard of a Master Mason (see fig. page 21) exclaims:

Worshipful Master:—I now command the most perfect silence. And my worthy companion of Tyre (addressing Senior Warden) with your assistance I shall now take the body by the strong grip of a Master Mason or "lion's paw," and raise it upon the "five points of fellowship."

The Master then steps forward and taking the candidate by the right hand—grasping it firmly—presses the tops of his fingers very strongly against the joint of the candidate's wrist where it unites with the hand, the candidate pressing his fingers against the corresponding part of the Master's hand and the space between the thumb and first finger of each being interlocked. (This is a very firm grip and is called the "strong grip of a Master Mason" or "lion's paw," see fig. page .) The Master also with his left hand lays hold of the candidate's right arm near the shoulder, while the Senior Warden takes him by the left arm and then both Master and Senior Warden exerting considerable force they lift him to his feet, the Master still retaining his grasp of the candidate's right hand, and placing the inside of his right foot against the inside of the right foot of the candidate, the toe of the one being towards the heel of the other, his right knee against the candidate's right knee, the right breast of the one close against the right breast of the other, the Master's left hand against the candidate's back and the candidate's left hand against the Master's back, also the Master's right cheek against the right cheek of the candidate, or the mouth of one to the ear of the other; the Worshipful Master then whispers into his ear the word, Mah-hah-bone, at the same time instructing the candidate to whisper the same word into his (the Master's ear) which he does. They then release each other and the Master steps back a few paces, the Senior Warden in the meantime gives one rap which seats all the brethren leaving the Master, candidate, and Senior Deacon standing on the floor together.

The foregoing ceremony is called raising and in connection therewith the following is frequently proposed by Masons as a sort of "catch" or test question, "From what, to what, by what and on what were you made a Master Mason? Answer:—From a dead level to a living perpendicular; by the strong grip of a Master Mason or "lion's paw," on the Five Points of Fellowship.

Worshipful Master:—(to candidate) The word which I have just given you [meaning Mah-hah-boue] is that which you have solemnly sworn never to give in any other manner or form than that in which you have received it and then only in low-breath. [See Master Mason's obligation page .] You have received it upon the "Five Points of Fellowship," which are foot to foot, knee to knee, breast to breast, hand to back, cheek to cheek or mouth to ear.

Foot to foot; that you will be ever ready to go on foot and out of your way if necessary to assist a needy, worthy brother.

Knee to knee; that you will ever remember a brother's welfare as well as your own in all your addresses to the Deity.

Breast to breast; that you will keep inviolable within your breast the secrets of a brother Master Mason as your own when communicated to, and received by you as such, murder and treason excepted and then only at your own option.

Hand to back; that you will be ever ready to stretch forth your hand to assist and save a fallen brother, and vindicate his character behind his back as well as before his face, when falsely traduced.

Cheek to cheek, or mouth to ear; that you will ever whisper words of good counsel in the ear of an erring brother; in the kindest manner possible remind him of his fault and aid in his reformation; giving him due and timely notice that he may ward off approaching danger, if in your power.

I will now instruct you more fully in the signs of this degree. This, you will remember, was given you as the due-guard (makes the due-guard) and this the sign of a Master Mason (makes the sign, see fig. page .) These, however, have a further allusion. Our ancient brethren on arriving at the grave of our Grand Master Hiram Abiff involuntarily found their hands in this (makes again the due-guard) or this position (places the right hand as in fig. 2, page 21, at the same time averting the face a little toward the right shoulder) to shield their nostrils from the offensive effluvia which assailed them from the grave. (See scene at the grave, page)

This is the grand hailing sign or sign of distress of a Master Mason (see fig. also page) and is made by raising the hands above the head in this manner (he raises both hands perpendicularly above his head) and letting them fall by three distinct motions; and is that sign which you have solemnly sworn never to give "except in real distress, in case of the most imminent danger, within a regularly constituted lodge of Master Masons or in some secure place for Masonic instruction. (See obligation page .) Should you be in real distress and make this sign a brother Master Mason seeing it is bound to repair immediately to your assistance should there be a greater probability of saving your life than of losing his own. Should you see the sign given your obligation will be equally binding upon you. The words which are to be used in the dark or when the sign cannot be given are "O Lord my God, was there no help for the Widow's Son?" and are equally binding upon you as if you had seen the sign given. This sign, however, has a further allusion. Our ancient brethren on arriving at the grave of our Grand Master Hiram Abiff, and seeing the mangled condition of his remains involuntarily raised their hands above their heads in this manner (he raises his hands perpendicularly as already explained) and exclaimed "O Lord my God, was there no help for the Widow's Son?"

From the great prominence of the Grand Hailing Sign to which reference is had both in this and preceding pages. I will here offer a few words of explanation in addition to what has been already said so that no doubt can possibly exist as to the proper manner of making or giving it.

The Grand Hailing Sign or sign of distress of a Master Mason is made by raising both arms perpendicularly above the head and letting them fall by three distinct motions. The first motion brings the arms to the position as seen in the figure, from the shoulder to the elbow horizontal and from the elbow to the finger-tips perpendicular. In the second motion the arms from the shoulder to the elbow are nearly close to the sides, from the elbow to the finger-tips still upright, and in the third motion the hands are dropped to the side. The words "O Lord my God, was there no help for the Widow's Son?" are never to be given with the sign outside the lodge-room. They are given only in the dark or when the sign cannot be used.

Grand Hailing Sign —Second position.

Worshipful Master:—(to candidate) I will now instruct you in the grips of this degree.

Taking candidate by the right hand as in ordinary hand-shaking, he presses his thumb hard against the space between the second and third knuckles, the candidate returning a like pressure on the Master's hand. (See fig. page .) This you will remember is the pass-grip of a Master Mason. We get from this by saying:

Worshipful Master:—[to Senior Deacon] Will you be off or from?

Senior Deacon:—[answering for candidate] From.

Worshipful Master:—From what and to what?

Senior Deacon:—From the pass grip of a Master Mason to the real grip of the same.

Worshipful Master:—Pass.

The Master now quits his hold of the candidate's knuckles and grasping his right hand more firmly, with the thumbs of both interlaced, he presses the tops of his fingers against the wrist of the candidate where it unites with the hand, the candidate at the same time being instructed to pass his fingers against the corresponding part of the Master's hand and the fingers of each being somewhat apart.

Worshipful Master:—[to Senior Deacon] What is this?

Senior Deacon:—(for candidate) The strong grip of a Master Mason or Lion's Paw.

Worshipful Master:—Has it a name?

Senior Deacon:—It has.

Worshipful Master:—Will you give it to me?

Senior Deacon:—I will if you place yourself in a proper position.

Worshipful Master:—What is that proper position?

Senior Deacon:—The five points of fellowship.

Worshipful Master:—Which are the five points of fellowship?

Senior Deacon:—Foot to foot (Master and candidate extend their right feet, placing the inside of one against that of the other). Knee to knee (they bring their right knees together); breast to breast (they bring their right breasts together); hand to back (Master places his left hand on the candidate's back, the candidate's is placed by the Deacon on the Master's back); cheek to cheek or mouth to ear (Master puts his mouth to candidate's right ear thus bringing the right cheek of each together. See figure).

Five Points of Fellowship.

The Worshipful Master then whispers in the ear of the candidate the word Mah-hah-bone, after which the candidate whispers the same word in the Master's ear.

This is the only manner in which this word can be given whether in the lodge-room or out of it. (See obligation, page .)

Worshipful Master:—(addressing candidate) You will now approach the East and I will give you the historical lecture of this degree.

The Master here retires to his seat and the Senior Deacon conducting the candidate towards the East, places him in front of the Master's chair where he is permitted to sit or stand (as the Worshipful Master may see fit) until the remaining section of the degree is concluded.

This closes the "legend of the Tyrian artist," or dramatic part of the sublime degree of Master Mason and comprises those ceremonies in which the brethren feel the deepest interest and which they are the most anxious to witness of all the degrees in Freemasonry. In many lodges in Chicago the foregoing ceremonies are conducted with great exactness and precision the requisite number of members in each lodge being thoroughly drilled so that each one can correctly perform his own part in the drama. This is especially the case in "Keystone," "Oriental," Dearborn," "Garden City," "Blancy," and "Blair" Lodges while the country brethren are but very poorly "posted" and hence in many of their lodges they do very bungling "work."

THIRD SECTION.

The only preparation necessary for working the third section of this degree is to place the Master's chart, or as it is sometimes called, the "Master's carpet," in a conspicuous place in front of the candidate, so that he may be enabled to see the various figures displayed thereon whenever referred to by the Worshipfu Master in the course of the ensuing lecture. It may also be proper to remark that the Master's chart or carpet is a painting either on canvass or paper, and on which is delineated the different hieroglyphical emblems which are peculiar to this degree such as the three steps, the pot of incense, the beehive, etc., etc. Many of these emblems have already been alluded to in the two preceding sections, the others will be fully explained according to the standard work in the section which is now to follow.

Worshipful Master:—(to candidate) Bro. Jones, you have this evening represented one of the greatest men, if not the greates man and Mason that the world has ever produced, being no less a person than our Grand Master Hiram Abiff who was slain immediately before the completion of King Solomon's temple and the manner of whose death was as follows:

Fifteen Fellow Crafts seeing the temple about to be completed and beiug desirous of obtaining the secrets of a Master Mason or the Master's word whereby they might travel into foreign countries, work and receive Master's wages, entered into a horrid conspiracy to extort them from our Grand Master Hiram Abiff or take his life. But reflecting with horror upon the atrocity of the crime twelve of them recanted, the other three, however, persisted in their murderous design. Our Grand Master Hiram Abiff was slain at the hour of high twelve. It was his usual custom at that hour, while the craft were called from labor to refreshment, to enter in to the unfinished "sanctum sanctorum" or "Holy of Holies" of King Solomon's temple, there to offer his adorations to the Deity and draw his designs upon the trestle-board. The Fellow Crafts who persisted in their murderous design knowing this to be his usual custom placed themselves at the South, West, and East gates of the inner court of the temple and there awaited his return. Having finished his usual exercises he attempted to pass out by the South gate, where he was met by the first ruffian, Jubela, who thrice demanded of him the secrets of a Master Mason or Master's word and being thrice refused he struck him with the twenty-four inch guage across the throat. He then attempted to retreat by the West gate where he was met by the second ruffian Jubelo, who also demanded of him the secrets of a Master Mason, or the Master's word, and being again refused he struck him with the square across the breast. He now attempted to make his escape by the East gate where he was met by the third ruffian, Jubelum, who in like manner thrice demanded of him the secrets of a Master Mason or the Master's word, and upon a like refusal he struck him a violent blow with the setting maul on the forehead which felled him dead upon the spot. They then buried him in the rubbish of the temple until low twelve or twelve at night, when they met by appointment and conveyed him a westerly course from the temple to the brow of a hill west of Mount Moriah, where they buried him in a grave dug due East and West, six feet perpendicular, and planted an acacia at the head of the grave to conceal it and that the place may be known should occasion thereafter ever require it. They then attempted to make their escape out of the country. Our Grand Master was not known to be missing until the following day when King Solomon arriving at the temple and finding the craft in confusion he enquired the cause, and being informed that there was no work laid out and no designs upon the trestle-board, he enquired where was our Grand Master Hiram Abiff. He was informed that "he had not been seen since high twelve yesterday," and fearing that he might have been indisposed he ordered strict search and due inquiry to be made in and about the several apartments of the temple to see if he could not be found. But strict search and due inquiry having already been made and our Grand Master Hiram Abiff being nowhere to be found he feared that some fatal accident had befallen him and ordered the Grand Secretary to cause the several rolls of the workmen to be called to see if any were missing and that returns be made as soon as possible.

Upon roll-call three Fellow Crafts were found to be missing, namely, Jubela, Jubelo and Jubelum, who from the similarity of their names were supposed to be brethren and men of Tyre.

About this time the Fellow Crafts who recanted presented themselves before King Solomon, clad in white gloves and aprons, tokens of innocence, freely acknowledged their premeditated guilt and most humbly implored his pardon. King Solomon ordered them to divide themselves into parties and travel three East, three West, three North and three South, (with others whom he should appoint) in search of the ruffians and return not without tidings. The party who pursued a westerly course from the temple on coming down near the port of Joppa fell in with a wayfaring man of whom they inquired if had seen any strangers pass that way. He informed them he had, three, and described them as workmen from the temple at Jerusalem seeking a passage into Ethiopia but not having King Solomon's pass were unable to obtain a passage and returned back into the country. Deeming these to be tidings of importance they returned back to communicate them.

He then ordered them to disguise themselves and travel as before with positive injunctions to find the ruffians and with as positive assurance that if they did not the twelve Fellow Crafts would be deemed guilty of the murder and severally suffer for the crime committed. They departed a second time and after several days of fruitless search and when on their return one of their number becoming more weary than the rest sat down upon the brow of a hill west of Mount Moriah to rest and refresh himself. On attempting to arise he accidentally caught hold of an acacia which easily giving way excited his curiosity, whereupon he hailed his companions, and upon their return and examination found what had the appearance of a new-made grave. And whilst meditating upon this singular circumstance they heard the following horrid exclamations from the clefts of an adjacent rock. The first was the voice of Jubela, who exclaimed, "O that my throat had been cut across, my tongue torn out by the roots and buried in the rough sands of the sea at low water mark, ere I had consented to the death of so great a man as our Grand Master Hiram Abiff." The second was the voice of Jubelo, who exclaimed, "O that my left breast had been torn open my heart plucked out and given as a prey to the wild beasts of the field and the fowls of the air, ere I had been accessory to the death of so good a man as our Grand Master Hiram Abiff." The third was the voice of Jubelum who exclaimed in tones of greater horror than the others, "O that my body had been severed in twain, my bowels taken from thence and burned to ashes and the ashes scattered to the four winds of the heavens, so that no more trace or remembrance might be had of so vile and perjured a wretch as I, ere I had caused the death of so great and so good a man as our Grand Master Hiram Abiff. Ah, Jubela and Jubelo, it is I who am more guilty than you both; it was I who struck the fatal blow, it was I who killed him!" whereupon they rushed in, seized and bound them and brought them before King Solomon, who upon a due conviction and confession of their guilt ordered them to be taken without the gates of the city and be there executed according to their several imprecations whilst hidden in the clefts of the rock. King Solomon then ordered the Fellow Crafts to go in search of the body and when found to observe whether the Master's word or a key to it or anything appertaining to the Master's degree be on or about the body. The body of our Grand Master Hiram Abiff was found in a grave dug due East and West six feet perpendicular, a westerly course from the temple, where a weary brother sat down to rest and refresh himself, but there was nothing found on or about the body by which it could be designated except the jewel of his office which they bore up to King Solomon. He then ordered the Fellow Crafts to form a solemn procession to go and assist him in raising the body and as the Master's words was then lost, he proposed that the first sign made upon arriving at the grave and the first word spoken after the body should be raised, should be adopted as the sign and word for the regulation of all Master's lodges until future generations should find out the right.

The body of our Grand Master Hiram Abiff was buried three times first in the rubbish of the temple, secondly on the brow of a hill west of Mt. Moriah, and thirdly and lastly as near the unfinished "sanctum sanctorum" or "Holy of Holies" as the Jewish law would permit, and Masonic tradition informs us that there was erected to his memory a marble monument, consisting of a beautiful virgin weeping over a broken column; before her a book open, in her right hand an acacia, in her left an urn, behind her, Time, standing unfolding her ringlets and counting her hair.

The Beautiful Virgin weeping over a broken column, denotes the unfinished state of the temple and the untimely death of our Grand Master Hiram Abiff.

The Book open before her, that his virtues lay there on perpetual record.

The Acacia in her right hand denotes the immortality of the soul and the timely discovery of his remains.

The Urn in her left, that his ashes were therein safely deposited to commemorate the virtues of that amiable, exemplary and distinguished character.

Behind her Time standing unfolding her ringlets and counting her hair, that time, patience and perseverance will accomplish all things.

The Master points to each of the above emblems on the chart as he proceeds with his explanation. All the foregoing it will be observed is a rehearsal of the Temple Legend, and is of course esoteric or secret work and must be learned orally from the Grand Lecturer or other lawfully constituted teacher.

Worshipful Master:—(continuing) Bro. Jones, Freemasonry is said to be metaphorically supported by three great pillars denominated Wisdom, Strength and Beauty, because there should be wisdom to contrive, strength to support, and beauty to adorn all great and important undertakings. These pillars you have been already infarmed are represented by the three principal officers of the lodge; viz: the Worshipful Master, Senior and Junior Wardens. (See page .)

The pillar of Wisdom also represented King Solomon, whose great wisdom planned and executed that stupendous monument of architecture which immortalized his name and became the wonder and admiration of succeeding generations.

The pillar of Strength represents Hiram, king of Tyre, who

ANTI-MASONIC BOOKS,

(Not our own Publications.)

For Sale by EZRA A. COOK & CO

13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

[FOR CATALOGUE OF PUBLICATIONS OF EZRA A. COOK & CO., See page 15.]

All books sent post paid, on receipt of retail price, but BOOKS SENT BY MAIL ARE NOT AT OUR RISK.

Books ordered by express are sold at 10 per cent. discount and SENT AT OUR RISK. Party ordering must pay express charges.

Elder Stearns' Books.

Stearns' Inquiry Into the Nature and Tendency of Masonry With an Appendix.

SEVENTH EDITION.

338 Pages, in Cloth.....60 cents.
" " " Paper.....40 "

Stearns' Letters on Masonry.

Showing the antagonism between Freemasonry and the Christian Religion.
Price, 30 cents.

Stearns' Review of Two Masonic Addresses.

In this scathing review the lying pretentions of the order are clearly shown.
Price, 10 cents.

Levington's Key to Masonry.

This is Rev. Mr. Levington's last, and in the judgment of its author, best work on Masonry. The contents of the first chapter are as follows:

"Commencement and growth of Speculative or Symbolic Freemasonry—A table showing the thing at a glance—The use that the Atheists made of it—Identical with Illuminism—Its connection with the French Revolution, and with the Irish Rebellion—The action of the British Parliament with regard to it—Proofs of its diabolical purposes—Its Introduction, doings, progress and designs in the United States."

The contents of the Eleventh chapter are thus startling:

"Knights of the Golden Circle—Graphic account of them by a seceding Knight, and remarks thereon, showing the identity of the order with Masonry—Quotations from Sir Walter Scott."

This work is thrilling in statement, and powerful in argumt. 425 pagenes,
Price. $1.35.

Light on Freemasonry.

BY ELDER D. BERNARD,

TO WHICH IS APPENDED A

Revelation of the Mysteries of Odd-fellowship by a Member of the Craft.

The whole containing over five hundred pages lately revised and republished. Price $2,00

The first part of the above work, Light on Freemasonry, 416 pages in paper cover, will be sent post paid on receipt of $1.

FOR SALE BY

United Brethren Publishing House,
DAYTON, O.
and by
EZRA A. COOK & CO.,
13 Wabash Ave, CHICAGO.

Walsh's Review of Freemasonry

REVISED EDITION,

Is a Scholarly Review of the Institution, by Rev Jno. T. Walsh.

Price 25 cts

Finney on Masonry.

BOUND IN CLOTH, PRICE $1,00.

CHEAP EDITION,

Twenty-five dollars per hundred, by express and not less than 25 copies at that rate.

BY MAIL, POST-PAID:

Per doz.....$3 75,
Single copy,..... 35 c

ODD-FELLOWSHIP

JUDGED BY ITS OWN UTTERANCES;

Its Doctrine and Practice examined in the light of God's Word

BY REV. J. H. BROCKMAN.

This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-Fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. It was originally published in German.

Price, bound in Boards, 75 cents.

GOOD TEMPLARISM EXPOSED.

Obligations, of the Initiatory Fidelity, Charity, and Royal Virtue Degrees.

This is a small book containing only the Obligations and some of the Odes of the Good Templars.

Single Copy, Post paid,..... 10cts.
Per Doz. 75
Per 100 by Express,..... $4.50

Bernard's Appendix to Light on Masonry,

Showing the Character of the Institution by it's terrible oaths and penalties. Paper covers, 25 cents.

ANTIMASONIC TRACTS.

WE NOW HAVE 25 ENGLISH TRACTS, ONE GERMAN, AND ONE SWEDISH

These tracts are sold at the rate of $1.00 per 1000 pages.

"THE ANTI-MASONS SCRAP BOOK."

Contains 24 Cynosure Tracts, bound together, and is just the thing to select tracts from. Price 20 cents. See advertisement.

For information about Free Tracts see advertisement headed Free Tracts."

Address EZRA A. COOK & Co.,
13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

TRACT NO. 1:

HISTORY OF MASONRY.

BY PRESIDENT J. BLANCHARD, OF WHEATON COLLEGE.

This is now published in three tracts of four pages each. Price of each, 50 cents per 100; $4 per 1000.

TRACT No. 1, PART FIRST—Shows the origin of Speculative Freemasonry, and is entiled "HISTORY OF MASONRY."

TRACT No. 1, PART SECOND—Is entitled "DESPOTIC CHARACTER OF FREEMASONRY"

TRACT No. 1, PART THIRD—Is entitled "FREEMASONRY A CHRIST-EXCLUDING RELIGION."

TRACT NO. 2:

MASONIC MURDER,

By REV. J. R. BAIRD, of Pleasantville, Pa., a seceding Mason who has taken 17 degrees. A 2-page tract at 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 3:

SECRETS OF MASONRY,

BY ELI TAPLEY.

This is a 4-page Illustrated Tract, showing the signs, grips and pass-words, of the first three degrees. 50 cents per 100, or $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 4:

GRAND! GREAT GRAND!!

BY PHILO CARPENTER.

This is a 2-page tract, calling the attention of the public to the despotic and ridiculous titles of Freemasonry. Price 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1,000.

TRACT. NO. 5:

Extracts From Masonic Oaths and Penalties, as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.

This tract is a reprint of a tract published in 1834, and is a very weighty document. A 4-page tract at 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 6:

Hon. John Quincy Adams' Letter.

Giving His and His Father's Opinion of Freemasonry (1831.);

AND

Hon. James Madison's Letter,

Giving His Opinion of Freemasonry (1832).

Both of these letters, in one 4-page tract, at 50 cents per 100: $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 7:

SATAN'S CABLE-TOW.

A 4-page tract. This is a careful analysis of the character of Masonic oaths, and shows them to be most blasphomous and unchristian; and the Masonic Cable Tow is clearly shown to be the Cable Tow by which Satan is leading thousands to eternal death 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 8:

Is a 2-page double tract, "ILLUSTRATED." The first page represents a Mason proclaiming the wonderful wisdom and benevolence of the order, with an article below, entitled "Freemasonry is only 152 Years Old," and gives the time and place of its birth.

The second side is entitled, "Murder and Treason not Excepted," and shows that the Masonic order is treasonable in its constitution, and is both anti-Republican and anti-Christian. Price 25 cents per 100; $ per 1000.

TRACT NO. 9, ILLUSTRATED:

FREEMASONRY IN THE CHURCH.

Copy of a petition for the higher degrees of Freemasonry, in which Blasphemous and Despotic Titles are enumerated and prayed for. The Copy was printed for the use of "Occidental Sovereign Consistory S. P. R. S." 32d degree—a Chicago Lodge—and was ordered by a deacon of a Christian Church who is Grand Orator of the Grand Lodge of Ill.

TRACT NO. 10:

CHARACTER AND SYMBOLS OF FREEMASONRY.

A 2-page tract, (ILLUSTRATED) by its "Grand Secretaries, Grand Lecturers, Perfect Prince Freemasons, Grand Inspector, Inquisitor Commanders, Grand High Priests," etc. The wonderful symbolical meaning of "the Cable Tow," "the Square and Compass," "the Lamb Skin, or white Apron," and "the Common Gavel," are given in the exact words of the highest Masonic authority. 25 cents per 100 or $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 11;

Address of Niagara County Association, New York,

TO THE PUBLIC;

Concerning the Morgan Murder, and the character of Freemasonry shown by this and other Masonic murders. 50 cents per

TRACT NO. 12:

JUDGE WHITNEY AND MASONRY.

This tract contains a condensed account of Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois, on charge of unmasonic conduct in bringing Samuel L. Keith the murderer of Ellen Slade, and a member of his Lodge, to justice, with Judge Whitney's subsequent renunciation of Masonry.

An 8-page tract, $1.00 per 100; $8.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 13:

DR. NATHANIEL COLVER ON MASONRY,

and

HOWARD CROSBY, D. D.,

Chancellor of the University of New York, on SECRET SOCIETIES. A double 2-page tract 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 14:

GRAND LODGE MASONRY.

ITS RELATION TO CIVIL GOVERNMENT AND THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION.

Opening address before the Monmouth Convention, by PRES. J. BLANCHARD of WHEATON COLLEGE. This is a 16-page tract at $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 15:

MASONIC OATHS NULL AND VOID.

A clear and conclusive argument proving the invalidity of any oath or obligation to do evil. By REV. J. A. HART, Secretary National Christian Association. Published by special order of the Association. 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 16:

HON. SETH M. GATES ON FREEMASONRY.

PROOF THAT THE INSTITUTION THAT MURDERED MORGAN IS UNCHANGED IN CHARACTER

This is a letter to the Monmouth Convention by Hon. Seth M Gates who was Deputy Sheriff of Genesee County, and also Secretary of the Leroy Lodge at the time of Morgan's Abduction. A 4-page tract, 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 17:

Origin, Obligations and Expenses of The Grange,

WITH A CONSTITUTION OF A FARMERS' CLUB.

This little tract ought to be put into the hands of every Farmer in the United States. Four-page tract, 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 18:

HON. WM. H. SEWARD ON SECRET SOCIETIES.

Extract from a Speech on new-Knottingism in the U. S. Senate in 1855. The testimony of JOHN QUINCY ADAMS, MILLARD FILLMORE, CHIEF JUSTIC MARSHALL and others, is added.

A 4-page tract, 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO, 19.

BRICKS FOR MASONS TO LAY.

WASHINGTON, MADISON, MARSHALL, RUSH, HANCOCK, ADAMS AND WEBSTER, give brief clear testimony against the Lodge A 2-page tract 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 20:

OBJECTIONS TO MASONRY.

By A SECEDING MASON, of Cornton, Vermont.

This tract contains many strong arguments against the Lodge drawn from personal experience, observation and study of its character. A 4-page tract at 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

TRACT NO. 21:

MASONIC CHASTITY.

BY EMMA A. WALLACE.

The author, by wonderfully clear illustration and argument, shows the terribly corrupt nature of Freemasonry. No true woman who reads this will ever speak with approbation of this institution A 4-page tract 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

TRACT No. 22.

LINUS CHITTENDEN ON FREEMASONRY.

The Author a Seceding Master Mason states his objection to the Lodge, drawn both from experience and observation, in a clear concise and forcible style.

A 2 page tract, 25 cents per 100, $2.00 per 1,000.

TRACT No. 23

MASONIC OATHS AND PENALTIES.

ADDRESS OF REV. A. M. MILLIGAN AT THE PITTSBURGH CONVENTION

This is the clearest and most conclusive argument to show the wickedness of masonic oaths and the duty to disregard and repent of them that we have ever seen.

A 4 page tract, 50 cents per 100, $4.00 per 1,000

TRACT NO. 1, IN SWEDISH:

translated by Prof. A. R. CERVIN. A 15-page tract at $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

ENOCH HONEYWELL'S TRACT.

TO THE YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA. Postage 5cts. per 100, TRACTS FREE.

GERMAN CYNOSUCE TRACT A.

Six Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason.

By Rev. A. GROLE, Pastor, German M. E. Church, Worchester, Mass

This is our first German Tract, and it is a good one; it ought to have a large circulation. A 4 page tract, Price 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

FREE TRACTS.

A Tract Fund for the Free Distribution of Tract

HAS BEEN SECURED AND SHOULD NEVER BE EXHAUSTED. A friend has pledged this fund a dollar for every other dollar received, so EVERY NEW SUBSCRIPTION TO THE TRACT FUND COUNTS DOUBLE, and thus $10.00 pays for 20,000 pages of tracts.

The distribution of these tracts has already saved hundreds of young men from the lodge, but there is a great lack of funds to supply the constantly increasing demand for Free Tracts.

During the year ending July 1st, 1876 a little less than 150.000 pages of Cynosure Tracts were gratuitously sent out, mostly in very small lots. The present demand is fully 100.000 pages per month, but funds are lacking to meet it.

Many of our most earnest workers in thiscause of God are poor men, who would be gladto circulate thousands of pages of Antimasonic literature if they could have them free.

SHALL WE NOT HAVE AN INEXHAUSTIBLETRACT FUND?

"THE ANTI-MASONS SCRAP BOOK."

Contains 24 Cynosure Tracts, bound together and is just the thing to select from. Price 20cents. See advertisement page 15.

Enoch Honeywell Esq., pays for an unlimitednumber of his tract addressed "To THE YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA." It is anexcelent tract, bearing the printed endorsement of Executive Committee of the National Christian Association1 He has furnished the public over 150.000 pages of these tracts during the past year.

TRACTS FREE. If sent by mail, 5 cts. per 100 is charged for postage,

Send Contributions and orders to

EZRA A. COOK.

Secretary of Tract Committee 18 Wabash Ave, Chicago, Ill.

Descriptive Catalogue of Publications of Ezra A. Cook & Co.

13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

BOOKS.

FREEMASONRY EXPOSED,
by CAP'T. WILLIAM MORGAN.

THE GENUINE OLD MORGAN BOOK:—repnblished with engravings showing the Lodge Room, Dress of candidates, Signs, One Gnards, Grips, Etc.

This revelation is so accurate that Freemasons murdered the anthor for writing it. Thousands have testified to the correctness of the revelation and this book therefore sells very rapidly.

Price 25 cents.

Per Doz. Post Paid..... $2.00
Per hnndred by express, (express charges extra.)..... $10.00

ODD FELLOWSHIP ILLUSTRATED.

A completo exposition of the Lodge Encampment and Rebecca (Ladies') Degree. The Signs, Grips, &c., shown by engravings.

Single copy, post paid,..... $ 25
Per Doz., " " 2 00
Per Hundred, Express charges extra,..... 10 00

EXPOSITION OF THE GRANGE.

EDITED BY REV. A. W. GEESLIN.

Illustrated with Engravings showing Lodge Room, Signs, Signals, etc.

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 25
Per Doz., " " 2 00
Per 100 Express charges extra..... 10 00

Judge Whitney's Defense Before the Grand Lodge of Ill.

Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the Lodge when S. L. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the Lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry.

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 20
Per Doz. " " 1 50
Per 100, Express charges extra..... 8 00

History of The Abduction and Murder of Cap't. Wm. Morgan,

As prepared by Seven Committees of Citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan.

This book contains indisputable, legal evidence that Freemasons, abdncted and Murdered Wm. Morgan, for no other offence than the revelation of Masonry. It contains the sworn testimony of over twenty persons, including Morgan's wife, and no candid person after reading this book, can doubt that many of the most respectable FREEMASONS. in the Empire State, with others were concerned in this crime.

Single Copy, post Paid,..... 25 ccnts.
Per doz. " ..... $2,00.
Per 100, Express Charges Extra,..... 10.00.

Valance's Confession of The Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan.

This confession of Henry L. Valance, one of the three Freemasons who drowned Morgan in the Niagara River, was taken from the lips of the dying man by Dr. John C. Emery, of Racine County, Wisconsin in 1848; The confession bears clear evidence of trnthfnlness.

Single copy, post paid,..... 20 cents.
Per doz. " ..... $1.50.
Per 100 Express Charges Extra,..... 8.00.

The Mystic Tie or Freemasonry a League with the Devil.

This is an account of the Church Trial of Peter Cook, and wife of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to snpport a Reverend Freemason; and their very able defence presented by Mrs. Lncia C. Cook, in which she clearly shows that Freemasonry, is antagonistic to the Christian Religion. Single Copy, post paid,..... 20 cents

Per dozen, post paid..... $1 50
Per hundred Express charges Extra, ... 9 00

NARRATIVES AND ARGUMENTS.

Showing the Conflict of Secret Societies with the Constitution and Laws of the Union and of the States, by FRANCIS SEMPLE.

The fact that Secret Societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of Law is here clearly proved.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 20
Per doz " " $1.75
Per 100 Express charges Extra..... 9.00

THE BROKEN SEAL.

OR PERSONAL REMINISCENCES OF THE ABDUCTION AND MURDER OF Wm. MORGAN,

By SAMUEL D. GREENE,

Price in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

In Paper Covers per Doz. Post paid..... $4 50
" per hundred by express (ex. charges extra $25.00

Capt. Wm. Morgan was Mr. Greene's neighbor in Batavia, N. Y., and a member of the same lodge with him at the time of the great excitement in 1826. The titles to these chapters are sufficiently exciting to give the book a large sale:—"The Storm Gathering;" "Abdnction of Morgan;" "Attempted Abduction of Miller and his Rescne;" "What became of Morgan;" "What Morgan Actually Revealed;" "Confession of the Murderer;" "Allegations against Freemasonry, etc."

THE ANTI-MASON'S SCRAP BOOK,
CONSISTING OF 21 CYNOSURE TRACTS.

In this book are the views of more than a Score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of Secret Societies.

The dangerous tendency and positive evil of organized Secrecy is here shown by the most varied and powerful argnments and illnstrations that have ever been given to the public.

Lecturers and others who wish to find the best arguments against the Lodge, should send for this book.

Those who wish to circulate Antimasonic Tracts ought to have the book to select from.

Single Copy, post paid, ...20 cents.
Per Doz. " $1.75
Per 100, Express charges Extra,.....$10.00

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion.

A clear cntting argument against the Lodge, from a Christian Stand point.

Single Copy post paid.....$ 05
Por doz. " " 50
Per 100 Express Charges Extra..... 3 00

President H. H. GEORGE, On Secret Societies.

A powerful address, showing clearly the dnty of Christian Churches, to disfellowship Secret Societies.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 10 cts.
Per doz. " ..... 75 "
Per 100, Express charges Extra, ... $4.00.

PHELPS' SECRET SOCIETIES Ancient and Modern.

A NEW BOOK OF GREAT INTEREST.

This work is particularly commended to the attention of Officers of The Army and Navy, The Bench and The Clergy.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

"THE ANTIQUITY OF SECRET SOCIETIES, THE LIFE OF JULIAN, THE ELEUSINIAN MYSTERIES, THE ORIGIN OF MASONRY, WAS WASHINGTON A MASON? FILMORE'S AND WEBSTER'S DEFERENCE TO MASONRY, A BRIEF OUTLINE OF THE PROGRESS OF MASONRY IN THE UNITED STATES, THE TAMMANY RING, MASONIC BENEVOLENCE, THE USES OF MASONRY, AN ILLUSTRATION, THE CONCLUSION."

Single Copy, Post Paid..... 0
Per Doz " " $4 75
Per Hundred, Express Charges Extra.....$25 00

HON. JOHN QUINCY ADAMS' LETTERS
to Col. Wm. Stone, Edward Livingstone,
and others, on the nature of
Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties.

Price, post paid..... $ 50
Per Doz., " 4 50
Per 100, Express Charges extra..... 25 00

COLLEGE SECRET SOCIETIES.

Their Customs, Character and the Efforts for their Suppression.
BY H. L. KELLOGG.

Containing the opinion of many prominent College Presidents, and others, and a FULL ACCOUNT OF THE MURDER OF MORTIMER LEGGETT

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 35
Per Doz " " 2 50
Per 100 Express charges extra..... 15 00

MINUTES OF THE SYRACUSE CONVENTION,

Containing addresses by Rev. B. T. Roberts, Chas. D. Greene, Esq., Prof. C. A. Blanchard, Rev. D. P. Rathbun, Rev. D. S. Caldwell, Mrs. M. E. Gage, Elder J. R. Baird and others. Unpnblished Reminiscences of the Morgan Times, by Elder David Bernard; Recollections of the Morgan Trials, as related by Victory Birdseye, Esq., and presented by his daughter, Mrs. C. B. Miller; Secretary's report; roll of delegates; songs of Mr. G. A. Clark; paper by Enoch Honeywell; Constitntion N. C. A.; reports of committees, and a report of the political meeting.

Single Copy, post paid, ... 25
Per doz. " " $2.00
Per 100 Express Ccargcs Extra..... 10.00

Paoceedings of the Pittsburgh Convention,

Containing Official Reports; Addresses by Rev. D. R. Kerr, D.D. Rev. B. T. Roberts, Rev. G. T. R. Meiser, Prof. J. R. W. Sloane, D. D., Pres't. J. Blanchard, Rev. A. M. Milligan, D. D., Rev. Woodruff Post, Rev. Henry Cogswell, Prof. C. A. Blanchard, and Rev W. E. Coquilette, also Report of the POLITICAL MASS CONVENTION, with Platform and Cadidates for the Presidential Campaign of 1876.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 25 cts.
Per doz " $2,00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 10.00

SERMON ON MASONRY,
BY REV. W. P. M'NARY,
Pastor United Presbyterian Church, Bloomington, Ind.

This is a very clear, thorongh, candid and remarkably concise Scriptnral argnment on the character of Freemasonry.

Single Copy, Post Paid,..... 5
Per Doz,..... 50
Per Hnndred, Express Charges Extra,.....$3 00

THIRTEEN REASONS

Why a Christian Should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong.

The anthor states his reasons clearly and carefully, and any one of the thirteen reasons, if properly considered, will keep a Christian ont of the Lodge.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 5
Per doz. " " 50
Per 100, Express charges extra, ... $3.00

SERMON ON MASONRY,
BY REV. JAMES WILLIAMS.

Presiding Elder of Dakota District North-western Iowa Conference, M. E. Church, A SECEDING MASTER MASON.

Published at the special reqnest of the Nine Clergymen of different denominations and others.

Single Copy, post paid..... 10
Per doz. " " 75
Per 100, Express Charges Extra.....$4.00

MASONRY A WORK OF DARKNESS

ADVERSE TO CHRISTIANITY, and Inimical to a Republican Government.
BY REV. LEBBEUS ARMSTRONG, [Presbyterian.]
A Seceding Mason of 21 Degrees.

This is a very telling work and no honest man that reads it will think of joining the lodge. Single Copy, post paid,.....20cts.

Per doz, post paid,..... $1.50.
" 100, Express Charges Extra..... 8.00.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy.

Address of Prest. J. BLANCHARD, before the Pittsburgh Convention.

This is a most convincing argnment against the lodge.

Single Copy, Post Paid..... $ 05
Per Doz " " 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

GRAND LODGE MASONRY,

Its relation to civil Government and the Christian Religion.
By Prest. J. BLANCHARD, at the Monmouth Convention.

The Unchristian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is here proved from the highest masonic authorities.

Single Copy, Post Paid,..... $ 05
Per Doz..... 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

SERMON ON SCERETISM
BY REV. R. THEO. CROSS.

This is a very clear array of the objections to Masonry that are apparent to all.

By Rev. R. T. Cross, Pastor Congregational Church, Hamilton, N.Y.

Single Copy, Post Paid..... $ 05
Per Doz..... 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

HISTORY OF THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought; The Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association, Conditions of the Carpenter Donation with Engraving of building to be donated by Mr. Carpenter; Tables showing the number of Pastors and communicants in church es that exclude members of Secret Societies, Tabular view of Local, County State and National Conventions, and list of organizations Auxiliary to the National Christian Association; Brief opinions of Eminent Men on Secret Societies, and Testimonies of Religious Bodies against them. This book will be found invaluable by all who wish to know the character of this reform and how they may do the most to further its objects. It should be in the hands of every Antmason.

Price post paid,.....25 cents each,
per doz;.....$1,50

25 copies or more by express at 8 cents each.

IN PRESS

HAND BOOK

—OF—

FREEMASONRY,

A COMPLETE

Illustrated Exposition,

—OF—

BLUE LODGE

MASONRY

—BY—

EDMOND RONAYNE,

LATE PAST MASTER OF KEYSTONE LODGE, NO. 639, CHICAGO, ILL.

Price not yet decidedon.

RITUAL OF THE

GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC

WITH SIGN OF RECOGNITION,
PASS WORD GRIP ETC,

—AND THE—

RITUAL OF THE

MACHINISTS AND BLACKSMITHS UNION,

(THE TWO BOUND TOGETHER.)

Single Copy, post paid,..... 25
Per doz. " $2.00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra,..... 10.00

Publishers' Department.

NEW CLUB RATES

—FOR—

1876.

CLUB RATES.

No commission is allowed on club rates. Club rates are intended for those who wish to give the commission to subscribers.

Club Rates Including Postage.

Papers Addressed to one or different Post Offices as desired.

2 to 4	Subs.,	1 year,	Old or New	sent at one time,	at	$2.00	each
5 to 9	"	"	"	"	"	"	1 80	"
10 to 14	"	"	"	"	"	"	1.70	"
15 to 19	"	"	"	"	"	"	1.60	"
20 or more	"	"	"	"	"	"	1.50	"

Subscription Papers and Circulars sent free on application.

Prospect for Clubs.

"THE CYNOSURE MUST HAVE A WIDER CIRCULATION; THE CAUSE DEMANDS IT." So writes J. C. Graham of Viola, Illinois and supports this true and timely remark with a club of twelve subscribers. W. J. Betts, McLean, New York, sends in a club of ten subscriptions. Ira Green, Roseville, Ill, sends a club of ten. Illinois now has gone ahead of Indiana. Mr. Graham says: "Hope you will extend the time for clubs, at present rates, if you can endure it." We would be glad to but during the past months we have received clubs of ten or more from only twenty-two different sources. This increase will hardly justify us in continuing them. But EXAMINE OUR CLUB RATES FOR 1876. Very few persons will find it necessary to pay more than $2.00 per year and to clubs of ten, old or new, addressed as desired SENT AT ONE TIME the paper comes at a $1.70 each, and to twenty or more SENT AT ONE TIME at $1.50 each. Are not these "cheap rates" for such a paper as the Cynosure? We think so. C. W. Loney, Dodgeville, Wis., sends a club of five new subscribers. J. P. Stoddard tells us to expect the remainder of a club of ten soon from New York. Hiram Summy, Pleasantville, Iowa, has set his mark for a club of twenty and many write that they will work for subscribers. The canvass for clubs is not so vigorous and successful as we thought it would be, but God is faithful and if you will make the PULL LONG ENOUGH and STRONG ENOUGH there will yet be a great success.

LATER.

Since writing the above two more clubs of ten have been received. One from Rev. A. W. Morris, South Argyle, N. Y. He finds it easy to obtain subscribers there. Will not many who live in New York take courage from his experience and send in clubs of ten at our new rates for 1876? The other club of ten is from Isaac Crane, Peru, Indiana. Indiana has now come up even with Illinois again. If this paper reaches subscribers in time we ask all who can to spend the last day of this year in getting up a club of ten for the Cynosure.

THE CYNOSURE DEBT.

On the first of November the CYNOSURE was in debt	$2,519.01
December 1st the debt was	2,366.51
Paid on debt in November,	152.50

Next week we will tell you how the debt stands January First, 1876. Keep at work, every dollar helps. Let each earnest friend do his or her part and the burden will be lifted.

Expect the CYNOSURE Quarterly Report next week.

SUBSCRIPTIONS RECEIVED DURING WEEK ENDING Dec. 27, 1875, FROM A Ahabrannar, L Ayres, J Bullock, C A Blanchard, R Berry, J I Budd, J W Bain, P Bruce, J Blanchard, W J Betts, C Bender, Mrs M. Barney, H Brehm, P Bacon, I Bancroft, N Bingham, I Betz, V R Carey, P B Chamberlain, G Crosby, H T Cheever, C T Collins, J Crawford, J Day, C. S Doolittle, H D Jough, J J Deen, J C Dessinger, D C Dagger, B Fuller, C H Gillett, J C Graham, C Hill, J S Hickman, H Holbrook, W Jenke, D Keister, J Kitchen, J C Lukens, D Loucks, C Landers, J W Loose, A Lull, S Y Miller, A Mackie, L L Martin, L Miller, A Lake, A Mitchelson, W Mauchner, A Needels, S Y Orr, A Putman, A Phipps, Mrs S A Proctor, J Pierce, A Rose, H Summy, C Stegner, J W Snively, A Steadman, D Shearer, C R Smith, J P Stoddard, A Sanford, D Stowell, H Scoville, H L Thayer, D Varney, J Work, J L Wilson, D Whitmer, Mrs D C Wood, C Winter.

$250 A MONTH—Agents wanted everywhere. Business honorable and first class. Particulars sent Address J. WORTH & Co., St. Louis, Mo
1yrJul

SAVE MONEY

by sending $4.75 for any $4 Magazine and THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE (regular price $6), or $5.75 for the Magazine and THE SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE (regular price $3). Address

THE TRIBUNE, New-York.

$77 A WEEK guaranteed to Male and Female Agents, in their locality. Costs NOTHING to try it. Particulars Free. P. O. VICKERY & CO., Augusta, Me.
6m.dec.30-75.

MARKET REPORTS.

	CHICAGO, Dec. 27, 1875.
Grain Wheat—Spring, No. 1..	$1 03	1 03½
" No. 2	95	9½
" No. 3		76⅞
" Rejected		64
Corn—No. 2	48¼	48½
Rejected	35	40
Oats—No. 2		30
Rejected	26	26¼
Rye—No. 2	67½	68
Bran per ton	9 50	9 75
Flour—Winter	4 75	7 50
Spring	3 00	5 25
Hay—Timothy	9 50	13 50
Prairie, "	8 00	10 00
Mess Beef	9 50	11 00
Tallow	8¾	09
Dressed Hogs	7 75	7 90
Lard per cwt	12 12½	12 17½
Mess pork, per bbl		19 00
Butter fancy yellow 32c.; common to choice roll	18	25
Cheese	8	13
Eggs	24	25
Seeds—Timothy	2 10	2 40
Clover		7 35
Flax	1 35	1 45
Poultry—Turkeys per lb dressed	7	11
Chickens " "	5	7
Potatoes	35	7½
Apples from store	3 00	3 ½
Broom corn	3	11
HIDES green to dry salted	5½	12
Lumber—Clear	38 00	42 00
Common	11 00	12 00
Fencing	12 00	13 00
Shingles	2 75	3 00
WOOL—Washed	38	52
Unwashed	25	33
LIVE STOCK Cattle, Choice..	5 25	6 00
Good	4 50	5 00
Medium	4 00	4 50
Common	2 50	3 75
Hogs	6 50	7 00
Sheep	3 50	5 25
New York Market.
Flour	$ 4 30	9 00
Wheat—Winter	1 35	1 40
Spring	98	1 32
Corn	57	74
Oats	45	51
Rye	72	1 05
Lard		12¾
Mess pork		20 90
Butter	16	31
Cheese	7	12½
Eggs	28½	30

ESTABLISHED 1867.

EZRA A. COOK & CO.,

STEAM PRINTERS

LITHOGRAPHERS,

STATIONERS

—AND—

Book Binders.

NOS. 7, 9, 11 & 13

Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

We were in the Stationery, Printing and Lithographing business before the Cynosure was started.

WE PRINT

Books, Pamphlets, Catalogues, Business Cards, Show Cards, Letter Heads, Bill Heads, Note Heads, Circulars, Hand Bills, Posters, Checks, Drafts, Notes, Certificates of Deposit, Certificates of Stock, Diplomas, etc.,

WE BIND

Blank Books, Magazines, Catalogues, Checks, Drafts, Notes, Certificates, Bank Pass Books, Etc., Etc.

WE LITHOGRAPH

Business Cards, Letter Heads, Note Heads, Bill Heads, Circulars, Checks, Drafts, Certificates of Stock, Certificates of Deposit, Plats and Charts; also elegant Diplomas for Colleges, Literary Societies, and Agricultural Societies, in one, two or three Colors. Samples and Prices sent on Application.

All work executed in the

BEST STYLE,

at the

LOWEST MARKET RATES.

WE FILL ORDERS PROMPTLY, and GUARANTEE GOOD WORK.

SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO ORDERS BY MAIL.

Samples and prices sent promptly when desired.

Address:

EZRA A. COOK & CO.,

7, 9, 11 & 13 Wabash Avenue,

CHICAGO.

C & N-W LINES

This great corporation now owns and operates over two thousand miles of road. With one branch it reaches Racine, Kenosha, Milwaukee, and the country north thereof; with another line it pushes through Janesville, Watertown, Oshkosh, Fond du Lac, Green Bay, Escanaba, to Negaunee and Marquette; with another line it passes through Madison, Elroy, and for St. Paul and Minneapolis; branching westward from Elroy, it runs to and through Winona, Owatonna, St. Peter, Mankato, New Ulm, and stops not until Lake Kampeska, Dakota, is reached; another line starts from Chicago, and runs through Elgin and Rockford, to Freeport, and, via the Illinois Central, reaches Warren, Galena and Dubuque, and the country beyond. Still another line runs almost due westward from Chicago, and passes through Dixon, Sterling, Fulton, Clinton (Iowa), Cedar Rapids, Marshaltown, Grand Junction, Missouri Valley Junction, to Council Bluffs and Omaha. This last-named is the "GREAT TRANS-CONTINENTAL ROUTE," and the pioneer overland line for NEBRASKA, COLORADO, UTAH, IDAHO, MONTANA, NEVADA.

CALIFORNIA and the PACIFIC COAST.

It runs through the Garden of Illinois and Iowa, and is the best, safest, shortest and quickest route for OMAHA, LINCOLN, and other points in NEBRASKA; and for CHEYENNE, DENVER, SALT LAKE CITY, VIRGINIA CITY, CARSON, SACRAMENTO, SAN FRANCISCO, and all other points west of the Missouri River.

If you want to go to Milwaukee, Manitowoc, Sheboygan, De Pere, Ripon, Baraboo, Eau Claire, Hudson, Stillwater, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Breckenridge, Morehead, Fort Garry, Winona, Plattville, Dubuque, Waterloo, Fort Dodge, Sioux City, Yanktou, Council Bluffs, Omaha, Lincoln, Denver, Salt Lake City, Sacramento, San Francisco, or a hundred other northren, north-western or western points, this line is the one you should take. The track is of the best steel rail, and all the appointments are first-class in every respect. The trains are made up of elegant new Pullman Palace Drawing Room and Sleeping Coaches, luxurious Day Coaches, and pleasant lounging and smoking-cars. The cars are all equipped with the celebrated Miller Safety Platform, and patent Buffers and Couplings, Westinghouse Safety Air Brakes, and every other appliance that has been devised for the safety of passenger trains. All trains are run by telegraph. In a word, this GREAT LINE has the best and smoothest track, and the most elegant and comfortable equipment of any road in the West, and has no competitor in the country. It is eminently the favorite route with Chicagoans traveling west, north, or northwest, and is acknowledged by the traveling public to be the popular line for all points in Northren Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Northern Michigan, Dakota, Western Iowa, Nebraska, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Montana, Idaho, Nevada, California and the Pacific Slope.

On the arrival of the trains from the East or South, the trains of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway leave Chicago as follows:

For Council Bluffs, Omaha and California, Two through trains daily, with Pullman Palace Drawing Room and Sleeping Cars through to Council Bluffs.

For St. Paul and Minneapolis, Two through trains daily, with Pullman Palace Cars attached on both trains.

For Green Bay and Lake Superior, Two trains daily, with Pullman Palace Cars attached, and running through to Marquette.

For Milwaukee, Four through trains daily, Pullman cars on night trains.

For Winona and points in Minnesota, One through train daily.

For Dubuque, via Freeport, Two through trains daily, with Pullman Cars on night train.

For Dubuque and La Crosse, via Clinton, Two through trains daily, with Pullman Cars on night train.

For Sioux City and Yankton, Two trains daily. Pullman Cars to Missouri Valley Junction.

For Lake Geneva, Four trains daily.

For Rockford, Sterling, Kenosha, Janesville, and other points, you can have from two to ten trains daily.

MARVIN HUGHITT, Gen'l. Superintendent, W. H. STENNETT, Gen'l. Pass'r. Ag't.

THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.

"In Secret Have I Said Nothing."—Jesus Christ.

EZRA A. COOK & CO., PUBLISHERS, NO 13 WABASH AVENUE.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 6, 1876.

VOL. VIII., NO. 13.—WHOLE NO. 300
WEEKLY (post paid) $2 20 A YEAR

Contents.

	Page
TOPICS OF THE TIME	1
EDITORIAL ARTICLES:
A Happy New Year to all our Readers.	8
Editorial Correspondence	8
"O. A. U."	9
CONTRIBUTED AND SELECT ARTICLES:
A Reminiscense of Louis Tappan and the Church Anti-slavery Society	1
The Great-and-Good-Man Argument for Bad Institutions	2
Free Speech and Free Tracts	2
The Case in Court	2
Masonry in the South	3
Who Owns the Sabbath?	3
Macaulay on the Jesuits	3
REFORM NEWS AND NOTICES.
The General Agent on the Scranton Convention; Northern Wisconsin; J. T. Kiggins Routs Odd-fellowship in Fort Branch, Ind	4, 5
CORRESPONDENCE:
Emphatic Advice from Bro. Needels: Letter from an Old Line Methodist; The "One Hundred's Man's Experience; The Two Testimonies; Our Mail	5, 6
HAND-BOOK OF FREEMASONRY, by Past Master E. Ronayne	12
THE HOME CIRCLE	10
CHILDREN'S CORNER	11
The Sabbath School	7
Home and Health Hints	7
Farm and Garden
Religious Intelligence	9
News of the Week	9
Publishers' Department	16

Topics of the Time.

The excitement over the anti-Catholic secret "American Union" and the efforts to drag into it Grant, Blaine and other prominent men has given opportunity for plain talk again on the principle of secret orders which some prominent journals have improved. The New York Times well says:

"The day has gone by when organizations of this kind could have much weight. The newspapers are too powerful for them. The invention of a "grip" and a "password" and "rites of initiation" and all the rest of the mummery, may afford a little harmless amusement to a few men here and there; but we shall not believe that this machinery can turn the tide of a Presidential election until we see it done. Then, of course, we shall be willing to acknowledge that the "march of intellect" had not marched quite so far as we supposed.

The last successful African explorer is Lieut. Cameron who has traversed the continent from east to west in the region of the Equator. This journey, while it places Cameron in the front rank of modern travelers, opens more directly than ever the way into the mysterious and unknown regions of the continent. The appeal of Stanley for King Mtesa and his wonderful people has been heard and funds provided by English Christians for the work of evangelization. Thus by one and another almost unconscious agent is the way of the Lord being prepared through deserts of earth and wastes of sin; and the word of Christ nears its fulfillment when his Gospel should be preached everywhere for a witness. "Then shall the end come." "Even so come, Lord Jesus."

The question of taxation of church property, which President Grant lugged into his message, while ignoring various legitimate and important reforms demanded by the most sincere patriots is not likely to get the notice of Congress. The Chicago papers look thus upon it: the Tribune thinks churches should voluntarily take up the burden of taxation from motives of patriotism; the Times takes the sensible view that it is unjust to lay a tax on houses of worship which are the gifts of the people to religious uses and not for purposes of increase. Unproductive property of that kind should reasonably be exempted from the burden of sustaining the Government. The argument, that real estate owned by religious bodies sometimes used for increase or for purposes not religious should bear its just burden of taxation, should not apply to such property legitimately used. In California the taxation of church property was brought about in this way: it was found that the Chinese availed themselves of the exemption of church property to evade taxation of their joss houses, which are very numerous, and mainly merely opium smokers' resorts; and to prevent this, the weak excuse was made that all real estate used for religious purposes must be taxed, and the law was enacted. What injustice! Tax the churches of Christ to get rid of low Chinese doggeries! The honest citizens of that State should not rest till the disgraceful act is wiped off, and the government made to protect the public from such pests without shouldering the burden on the churches, which have enough to do to maintain their legitimate work.

The last blow fallen on the Chicago whiskey ring promises interesting results. On New Year's eve Hesing, the German autocrat and ring "Boss;" Rehm, an old manager in the ring in the police department; and Miller, the late county treasurer, were arrested for complicity in the whiskey frauds. The government officers keep their own counsel and not only the arrest was a surprise but its cause is only a matter of surmise to outsiders. From the fact that unusually heavy bonds were required, the magnitude of their offense may perhaps be estimated. But the point of peculiar interest is the connection of the Masonic and whiskey rings in these parties. Miller and Rehm are members of Germania Lodge, No. 182, of Chicago, and Past Master Ronayne was present when Hesing's burly form submitted to the personation of Hiram Abiff and fell before the setting maul. The two rings are undoubtedly allied both for offense and defense, and only the connivance of judge and counsel on both sides will be able to conceal the fact from the public if ever the cases come to trial.

A Reminiscence of Lewis Tappan and the Church Anti-Slavery Society.

BY REV. H. T. CHEEVER.

The late perusal of the life of that steadfast friend of the slave and honest hater of secrecy, Lewis Tappan, brings vividly to mind a transaction in which he bore an important part in the Spring of 1859. It was after the formation of the Church Anti-Slavery Society by a convention of Christian ministers and deacons in the city of Worcester, for which it was found, or rather, was alleged, that the churches were not ready. A special meeting of the society was therefore called to consider whether the radical Declaration of Principles should not be so modified as to avoid the obnoxious position that "slave-holding was sinful in itself, and a sufficient cause for the refusal of church fellowship."

The meeting was held early in May, 1859, at the Mission Chapel, where the society had been before organized on the 2nd of March previous by Rev. Dr. Cheever of New York, his brother, Henry T. Cheever, of Ct., Rev. Messrs. William Goodell, J. C. Webster, Samuel Hunt, Elnathan Davis, A. P. Marvin, Mansfield French, George M. Basset, W. H. Beecher, L. H. Sheldon, George Trask, Samuel Souther, and by Deacons Ichabod Washburn, H. L. Johnson, Abijah Wood, J. A. Fitch, Ezra Bingham, Elmer Brigham, and others. A Preamble, Declaration of Principles and Constitution had been agreed upon, after full discussion, declaring that "under profound convictions of the inherent sinfulness of slave-holding, and of the great system of American slavery that has grown out of slave-holding, deeply mortified and grieved by its continued toleration and defence in the church, and fearful of the impending judgment of the Almighty on account of it, we combine for the utter destruction of that atrocious system of chattel-slavery which is maintained in the United States."

Against the protest on the part of some, that if the dogma of inherent sinfulness were admitted, it would exclude nineteen-twentieths of the ministers of New England; and with the assertion on the part of others, that let us affix to slave-holding the blackest stigma of crime which the Word of God allows, and we shall be strong in him, although this movement in its beginning should be reduced down, not to Gideon's three hundred, but to three, the radical Preamble and Declaration of Principles were adopted, and the society started on that basis.

But now, as the ministers and churches did not at once rally to its support, a meeting was held to reconsider. After a new circular had been reported, inviting brethren to come together again and see what had been done, and to suggest what alterations they should see fit, Lewis Tappan, being present from New York by special request, took the floor. He was strong, firm, and explicit in the maintenance of the radical basis adopted, and out of the mine of his experience he drew illustrative matter pregnant with instructive hints for the timid and time-serving. He said the good to be done by this society and its future success were by no means to be measured by the numbers that now flocked to its standard, or by the eclat with which it was launched into being, but by the truth of God and love to man as man which were at its foundation. And then he gave in a graphic manner the facts with which he was familiar, in regard to the formation of what was now one of the most popular and useful institutions of Liverpool. The man who devised the plan and drew the scheme of it, was appalled, on the evening when it was to be hopefully unfolded to the public, (on account of dark weather and the slight interest taken in the measure) to find no one present but the Hon. ——— who had been engaged to preside, the sexton of the church, and himself. Nothing daunted, however, he proceeded farther to the organization of the meeting, by nominating his honorable friend as chairman. The sexton then moved that the propounder be secretary. He forthwith proceeded to read his plan of an institution, which was unanimously adopted, and he was entrusted with the responsibility of making known the measure to the public, and taking subscriptions toward it. The next morning the Liverpool public were surprised and gratified by the announcement in all the dailies that at a highly respectable meeting last evening, presided over by the Honorable ———, a plan was presented and unanimously agreed to, for the founding of the Liverpool Library and Museum, which forthwith resulted in the establishment of one of the most widely known and now prosperous and wealthy institutions of that city. So, said Mr. Tappan, let the little handful of "highly respectable" good men and true that have founded this society on the basis of God's truth, not hampered, as Bunker said, "by the timid prudence with which a tame circumspection so frequently enervates the works of beneficence, nor of all things afraid of being too much in the right"—let them go forward with the strength of the Lord God, not anxious for numbers, but bold for the right, and if "nineteen-twentieths of the churches and ministers" did not come to them, it would be only because they and the nation were ripe for destruction, or for some wide-sweeping judgment of the Almighty that would carry away slavery root and branch.

His views are re-inforced by a quaint speech from Rev. Mansfield French of Ohio, and by words of cheer from R. P. Waters of Salem and others. And it was resolved by acclamation to go forward. The enthusiastic anniversary meetings at Tremont Temple soon followed, at which spoke John Brown (then brooding over the prospective blow at Harper's Ferry), Henry Wilson and other orthodox heroes in the moral war with slavery. And that was the last heard of the objection that the churches were not radical enough to call slavery malum per se, and that in uniting for its overthrow we must avoid declaring the inherent sinfulness of slave-holding, or confronting the Southern slave-holders at the communion table with the unauthorized impertinence, 'Thou art the man.'

Worcester, Dec. 17, 1875.

The Great-and-Good-Man Argument for Bad Institutions.

BY ELD. NATHAN CALLENDER.

We will first look at the nature of the argument, and secondly, at its limitations as founded on the so-called good and great.

On the nature of this argument, something was written by us some months since in an article on the "Desecration of the Sacred Offices." That reference was brief and casual and for that reason we call it up for a more thorough scrutiny.

Real principles are not tested by men, but all men are, or will be, tried by real and fundamental moral principles, by the "Judge of all the earth." Hence the character of institutions cannot be determined by the men who embrace and support them; but the character of the men will, in due time, not only be moulded but determined by the institutions they really embrace. Comparatively good men may be caught in the meshes of a bad institution, for a time, and not embrace it at all. This will not improve that institution any further than they radically change it; which is not to be supposed in the present argument. Those good men may, however, be injured by contact with the bad institution and the large majority of perverse and bad men in it; and it would be almost a miracle if they were not, No radically bad institution will have and hold a majority of good men. We do not have to drive the crow to the carcass nor the clean bird from it. "Where the carcass is there are the eagles gathered together." We need not fence the birds of the air out of the waters nor the fish in. When men fall into the mud they get out directly; so when good men by some agency, satanic or human, get their foot into a moral cesspool they will get out and wash so soon as they find it in their power.

Washington (whom Masons agree to dishonor often as they claim him as an adhering Mason) spent the last thirty years of his life in washing himself self from the foul spots thrown upon him by that incongenial and defiling institution. If he attended lodge once or twice in thirty years we may justly presume it was to reprove, or, possibly, improve the system, or else to negotiate the wisest and best escape from its every way demoralizing and damaging power. In complete harmony with this hypothesis is his solemn warning found in the original copy of his farewell address. Even Washington with his high-toned, moral character could not help it, hence he left it. An institution that needs Washington to recommend it is radically defective in moral principle. Strict veracity is in itself a noble attribute or principle, but Washington could not add to its luster. It needs not men nor angels to commend it; but it can commend them. This quality in the character of the Father of his country, so early developed, would very naturally bring him out of a system that sells perpetual licenses to falsify, with that solemn warning on his tongue, to his fellow-countrymen, "Beware!" etc. But moral beings sustain a similar relation to moral things that our bodies do to certain natural elements. There are material poisons to the human body, and there are moral poisons equally deadly in their effects. Should a Washington or Franklin take that deadly compound it would not change the poison into a healthy nutriment. Deadly poisons have no reverence for great names, whether they are poisons for body or soul. They work their natural results and none but God who organized law, natural and moral, can avert the consequences of thsir infringement. As soon might Washington or Franklin by taking strychnine convert it into bread as make Freemasonry the better by their connection with it. No poisonous compound has ever been more fully analyzed by competent and thoroughly experienced men, than has Freemasonry and its kindred clans, and the verdict of ten thousand of the ablest and best men, statesmen, editors and clergymen of a century's duration, is that the institution is poison to society, poison to the state and poison to the church. An institution which is intrinsically good need not, and will not, quote great names for its justification. No one would think of quoting Wilberforce or Howard the philanthropist to prove the moral rectitude of beneficence. The principle made the men, not men the principle. So on the other hand an institution internally and radically bad becomes no better by being associated with great and good men. An angel from heaven or even Christ himself could not make real moral excellence better by being one with it, or improve any radically wrong principle or institution by his sanction. The thing here supposed is a moral impossibility if not a contradiction. To quote the great men of the earth, in support of an institution, is in the mind of an independent, thinking man, to throw it into doubt. It implies the want of intrinsic excellence in the institution, which may be easily seen if there. I have seen two great evils under the sun whose key-note was "good and great men," slavery and Freemasonry. To these may be added poligamy and the liquor traffic; all curses to mankind and abominations to God.

The limitations of the "great and good man" argument will be noted in another article.

Free Speech and Free Tracts.

Editor Rochester Democrat and Chronicle,

DEAR SIR:—In your paper a few days since appeared a quotation from a neighboring paper, the Geneva Gazette. Here it is: "Just before the procession of Knights Templar entered the driving park gate preparatory to the prize drill at Rochester last Tuesday, a low-lived, white-livered, most libertinish-looking cur by some means procured entrance to the grand stand and distributed an insulting document broadcast among the vast concourse by standing in the rear and flinging them over their heads. As quickly as the contents of these documents became known and the character of their insults understood, a score or more parties started for the miscreant, who lost no time in making himself scarce as soon as his foul work was accomplished. Ample precaution has been taken to prevent any but men and their ladies getting entrance to the grand stand and how this thing, this blot on the character of man, forced his stinking presence there should be explained by the committee."

Now, Mr. Editor, what was the crime so bitterly denounced by the Gazette? The writer happens to know something about this matter. The "insulting documents" were tracts. And had not any one a right to distribute tracts? Did not the territory over which they were distributed belong to "Uncle Sam?" And were they not American citizens who received them, and in many instances sought for them? The tracts were not incendiary to the Government nor detrimental to the general interests of the commonwealth. The great stew of the Geneva editor makes it appear as though he had been struck by one of these paper missiles. Perhaps his wife pocketed it, and on arriving home informed him if such was a part of Knightism he had better hereafter lay aside his glittering sword, cocked hat and white feather. But the author of the "insulting document" only intended to open the eyes of all who would see, and not to hurt any one's tender feelings. The subject she discusses is a delicate one most certainly, but she has a perfect right to do so, and distributer had a perfect right to scatter the document. Here comes the base of the offensive paper: "Furthermore do I promise and swear that I will not violate the chastity of a Master Mason's wife, mother, sister or daughter, I knowing them to be such, nor allow it to be done by others, if in my power to prevent it." This "document" was designed more especially, perhaps, for Methodist brethren and ministers. Not so much for the editor of the Gasette surely.

The other "insulting document" was the one designed more especially for the general reader, entitled, "Bricks for Masons to Lay;" and over which, perhaps, this editor became nervous. But Governor Joseph Ritner, Chief Justice John Marshall, President James Madison, Daniel Webster, Hon. Richard Rush, Governor John Hancock and John Quincy Adams are the offenders. These are the men that have spoken in said tract. If there is crime in the case let the Gazette arraign them. Shall their utterances be prohibited. Editors often say hard things enough to make a man mad; but who says they have not a right to? Let editors "blow." Let Masons blow. Who cares; but let Anti-masons "blow" too. Nobody must be gagged in Uncle Sam's land. It won't do. No, no! And if Sir Knights are at liberty to "show off" in their way we ask the liberty to exhibit in our way.

Believe me, no one disturbed that "miscreant." There were too many even too glad to get the "documents," who read them with avidity to have made it safe to chase him, and "distributer" was in the crowd read and known of many there. No, nobody disturbed him or sought after him or they could easily have found him for he stood to his post. He remained quietly in the stand delighted with the perfect military display of the Sir Knights and thought the award should have been given to the Syracuse Commandery whose perfection excelled them all. After all he said to himself what "boys' play"—what a waste of time in fancy display—(don't let us talk any more about the vanity of "pull backs," ladies' ringlets, scarlet attire, crimps, crumps and folderols) if wheeling and counter wheeling, right-about-face, and angles, and crosses, and double crosses, and clashing swords, and martial music be all of it. If it means nothing more than this, a mere pastime, what nonsense! I being judge, especially for such respectable men as were noticed sporting the white feather. Is this all of it? As ever lovingly and kindly a well wisher to my fellow-citizens and for whom I ever pray, truly WOODRUFF POST.

The Case in Court.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—A late number of the Cynosure brings Father Preston's address before the Illinois State Convention held at Peoria; which for point of fact and soundness of reasoning on the anti-secret question is worthy of publication in tract form. The point of this address is the right to challenge jurors in court on the ground of their fraternal relationship to the lodge.

It is patent on every tongue all over our land, and has been for some years back, that "it is no use to go to law with a Freemason;" and the history of our courts is constantly confirming the truth of this remark. The remedy for this evil Father Preston has most clearly pointed out,—Challenge every juror offered, on the ground of his sworn brotherhood, and particularly on the express provisions of that obligation; and call witnesses in open court and swear them by order of the court to testify if those charges are not true. Let every body provide themselves with a copy of Morgan's Expose of Freemasonry, or Bernard's, and read the separate clauses of the first three degrees, particularly the last clause of each degree, which binds the candidate "without mental reservation, or self-evasion of mind," and that under a horrid death-penalty, and God called to witness their intention so to perform every specification in each and all of the degrees of Masonry that they have taken, or may hereafter take; closing with asking God to keep them steadfast in the due performance of the same. Here is solemnity made solemn by every word the English vocabulary affords to make an oath binding; that the candidate fully intends to fulfill his engage ments can only be estimated by his moral consciousness of the binding nature of his oath. If he is honest with his oath as such, and with God called to witness, he will perform his Masonic obligations. These Masonic obligations specify, to keep all secrets, to obey all orders, and to conceal all crime except murder and treason, and they left to the election of the candidate—all of these that come from a brother Mason, or a lodge of Masons, go into the sworn duties of every Mason in the land, whether he be a judge, a juror, a Gospel minister, or layman.

But says the friendly Mason, I will never favor a brother Mason in crime; I will expose, rather than favor him; I will render a true verdict according to law and evidence, as my juror's oath binds me. Ah! yes, but how can any man know what you will do with your civil oath, since, for ought we know, you took it with "mental reservation," and with "self-evasion of mind" to shield the conscience from the keen lashes of wilful perjury in obedience to your Masonic oaths, which in every case are taken "without hesitation, mental reservation, or self-evasion of mind."

Which oath will bind the Mason? Ah! ask which penalty, Masonic or civil, he most dreads, or has reasons to dread? Find an answer to the one, and you have it to the other. Civil punishment is done openly, and may often be defeated of its smart; Masonic punishment is stealthy, irresponsible and savage.

Father Preston has probed the very core of this secrecy question: Challenge every Masonic juror, whether he be high or low in society, where non-Masons have any case at court; giving his Masonic obligations as a basis of the challenge and offering Masons present as witnesses to their truth. Such a course, intelligently followed up, will set the merits of this whole secrecy question before the American people in such light, that Masonic jeers and billinsgate will not be able to withstand. Challenge Masonic jurors—aye, and witnesses too. J. C. Graham.

Viola, Ill., Dec. 20, 1875.

Even the white mantle of religion is too frequently dragged through the bloody pool of war. Spain waged war with England in the seventeenth century because the latter founded colonies in America. The former in behalf of the Pope of Rome claimed that all heathen countries belonged to him as the Vicegerent of God upon earth. The thirty years war, 1618–1648, between Germany and France, was a contest between Roman Catholicism and Protestantism. The Greek and Latin monks disputed about who should keep the key of the Holy Sepulchre. Whereupon Russia suspended diplomatic relations with Turkey and war subsequently ensued. Hence Edward Everett remarked with a smile that Russia and Turkey went to war, spent millions of treasure and destroyed thousands of lives to decide who should keep the key of the tomb of the Prince of Peace.

Masonry in the South.

Rome, N. Y., Dec. 24, 1875.

Editor Christian Cynosure:

In a recent number of your excellent journal I notice an elaborately written article, entitled "Shackled in Conscience," from the pen of D. B, Turney, concluding thus:—

"It is dangerous to our government for the existence of Freemasonry to continue. When men have taken the oaths required of them in the Freemason's order, the self-invoked penalties are wielded with awful influence. Of what value to the U. S. Government can be the allegiance and support of men who owe a sworn fealty to a midnight conclave? The self-invoked penalties keep the spirit subjected to Freemasonry, and that which rules the spirit rules the man, and may ultimately will to destroy the nation. Can we, dare we trust Freemasonry?"

This very pertinent inquiry, in view of the dangerously increasing dissemination of the principles of Freemasonry, is one which should have been made long ago, and which calls for more than a simple notice. The writer was evidently unaware of the fact that Southern Freemasonry in North Carolina, and portions of Virginia particularly suckled and helped bear the monster of rebellion. On obscure and isolated North Carolina villages our boys frequently made so precipitous a descent as to render the destruction of rebel archives an impossibility. Consequently were found documents innumerable showing that Freemasonry had been used as a cloak for most wicked conspiracies against men supposed to hold sentiments in antagonism to the confederacy, and against the Federal government itself. Hundreds upon hundreds of "poor white trash" had been initiated who were wholly unable to read or write and who were compelled to make their mark when signing the papers necessary to admission into the order. These men in a majority of instances, proved apt pupils of rebellion, and looked upon their Masonic connection as the threshold of distinction in the Confederate armies. This is no fiction, and if any blind Masonic devotee requires corroborative testimony, it will be forthcoming at once from the officers of the 117th N. Y. Volunteers, and other equally well-known regiments.

A word more and I am done. In this community, as in nearly every other, eight-tenths of the Masonic membership, while not necessarily illiterate, may truthfully be said to be mentally deficient. Of course there are a few excellent and able men in every lodge, but it is none the less true that a large percentage of the membership, here as everywhere else, is recruited from the led instead of the leaders; the ignorant instead of the illiterate. The few smart men who are roped in perpetually and effectively using their weaker brethren to pull their political and other chestnuts out of the fire.

Sincerely yours,

Darwin C. Pavey.

Who Owns the Sabbath.

The renewed agitation of the question of Sunday observance at the present time has called forth some views from the pulpit to which was must enter a most emphatic dissent. The point at issue is, whether the civil law should be invoked in protection of the Christian Sabbath? To this query we cannot make our "yes" too loud or too emphatic. Civil government was ordained of God not to overthrow but to maintain and enforce his fundamental enactments. Man has no right to steal his day, and civil rulers no right to abet the theft. Civil government is ordained to promote pure morals and the public welfare. The observance of the day of sacred rest and public worship is calculated to advance public morality, virtue and sound conscience among the people. Personal health demands that man and beast should have rest, and how can that rest be secured but by civil enactment. The non-observance of the Sabbath is the direct cause of vice and immorality with their long train of crime. Society just as it protects itself from disease by detaining vessels at quarantine lest they should bring us yellow fever or cholera. The law should lean toward the protection of the virtuous and orderly classes, and not toward the license of the loose, dissolute and immoral. The Sabbath laws of the commonwealth are not despotic or ascetic. They simply give the well-disposed a quiet day for worship. They recog nize the divine authority of the Sabbath, and aim to maintain the peculiar character of the day as sacred and not secular time. Satan and his allies chafe under this restraint, and strive to overthrow this institution. The keepers of the lowest theaters and dram-shops are bent either on repealing the law or defying it by various devices. Who shall succeed? God or Belial? Shall the barriers which Divine love has set up for the protection of godliness and order stand or be pulled down by the ruthless hands of sensualists and public poisoners? The disciples of the Evil One are wise in heir generation. They unite in their cause. All sins are in partnership. Each helps the other. The dramshop feeds the brothels, and a large portion of the theaters feed both. Now they want Sabbath-breaking to aid them all. The people, by their legislators, have said they shall not have it.—T. L. Cuyler.

HAS A RIGHT TO PROTECT ITSELF,

The Sectarian Issue in Politics.

Let politicians dodge the issue as they may, the sectarian question will obtrude itself into contemporary politics. It is troubling the governments of the half of Europe to-day, and it will come up in spite of all efforts to keep it in the background as a vital point in the election contests of the United States. Whatever we may think of the methods which the civil authorities in Germany and in Switzerand are employing against the Roman Catholic party, there can be no question that even their extreme measures were provoked by a radical change in the attitude of the church toward the state. Every European, and for that matter, every American community in which the teaching of the Roman creed is supported by public grants has found occasion to re-adjust its relations with the church simply because the church has taken occasion to arise to the rank of dogmatic truths certain theories of rights which are incompatible with the claims of the civil law to the unqualified obedience of all citizens.—Ex.

Macaulay on the Jesuits.

The following description of Jesuitical activity and craft by Lord Macaulay suggests like characteristic in the near kin of Jesuitism, the Masonic lodge and also wherein both have become a fearful power for evil. Were all Christians as single-eyed and earnest these systems of Satanic craft would soon be unknown:

Before the order had existed a hundred years, it had filled the whole world with memorials of great things done and suffered for the faith. There was no religion of the globe, no walk of speculative or active life, in which Jesuits were not to be found. They guided the council of Kings. They decyphered Latin inscriptions. They observed the motion of Jupiter's satellites. The liberal education of youth passed almost entirely into their hands, and was conducted by them with conspicuous ability.

Enmity itself was compelled to own that, in the art of managing and forming the tender mind, they had no equals. Meanwhile they assiduously and successfully cultivated the eloquence of the pupil. They were to be found in the garb of Mandarin superintending the observatory at Pekin. They were to be found, spade in hand, teaching the rudiments of agriculture to the savages of Paraguay. Yes, whatever might be their employment, their spirit was the same, entire devotion to the common cause, implicit obedience to the central authority. None of them had chosen his dwelling place or his vocation for himself. If he was wanted at Lima, he was on the Atlantic in the next fleet. If he was wanted at Bagdad, he was toiling through the desert with the next caravan. If his ministry was needed in some country where his life was more insecure than that of a wolf, where it was a crime to harbor him, where the heads and quarters of his brethren, fixed in public places, showed him what he had to expect, he went without remonstrance or hesitation to his doom. Nor is this heroic spirit yet extinct. When, in our own time, a new and terrible pestilence passed around the globe; when, in some great cities, fear had dissolved all the ties which hold society together; when the strongest natural affection yielded to the love of life, even then the Jesuit was found bending over infected lips, to catch the feverish accents of confession, and holding up to the last, before the expiring patient, the image of the expiring Redeemer.

—The Christian Instructor of Philadelphia, remarking on the position of the late Vice-president as reported in the Cynosure, says:

Did this keeping aloof from secret societies and actually opposing them injure Mr. Wilson's worldly interests in any way? Did he not have every mark of respect and honor at the hands of of his fellow-citizens, living and dead? Is it not then a specious and false plea for membership in such oath-bound secret societies that thereby a man may be better able to succeed in life, that his connection with those societies will secure him friends and helpers, and that thus his worldly interests require him to be a member. and, if a member, not to withdraw from them! Is there not reason to believe that the real ruling element of these societies, the very foundation on which they stand, is selfishness, and that in fact, in no sense can a man expect help from any of them any farther than he can make it manifest that he will help them? Why not rather discard all these, and seek to be under the influence of that Gospel and its rich grace, whose charge is, "Do good unto all men," and whose two great rules to every one are, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, etc., and thy neighbor as thyself!"

It is a great advance, morally and mentally, when a man's heart and brain reach out beyond the little sphere of his personal interests to comprehend the nation to which he belongs; but there are men whose ascending and widening natures refuse to be limited even by the sentiment of patriotism, whose lofty conceptions grasp the beauty of beneficence, the grandeur of truth, the majesty of right, and who, in the service of these commanding ideas, are ready to suffer all, and to dare all, in the spirit of that patient self-devotion which is the true virtue of courage. This class comprehends all reformers in society and in religion, whose position calls for heroic actions, resolutions, sacrifices, for manhood as well as for mental power.

It is a mystery to see how men can walk the streets, staunch Republicans, all day, and go into a Masonic lodge at night and voluntarily submit to one of the most absolute despotisms on earth.

The United States Centennial Commission makes a valuable suggestion to the country in the following:

"It seems proper that the local celebrations of the Fourth of July, 1876, which will be held throughout the land, should be made to contribute to a permanent historical memorial of the Centennial Celebration. In each country provision should be made for the delivery of an address tracing the history of that particular community for the past century, or from the time of its settlement, and including a sketch of its growth, its resources, industries, prospects, etc. These addresses should be published in a uniform size,—that of the Congressional documents, for instance,—in order that they may be bound together by States. To competent persons the preparation of such addresses would not be an unduly burdensome task; but in the aggregate they would constitute an invaluable historical repository such as no nation has ever had the opportunity to collect. Designations of the historians ought to be made without delay, in order that they may have time to accomplish their work."

A Card.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Preston, desire to recognize the merciful providence of God, our Heavenly Father, in preserving his life at the time of his late severe accident and in his recovery from the injuries received so far as now to be out again and see the sun and breathe the pure, fresh and invigorating air; and would also tender to our neighbors and numerous friends our most sincere thanks for their unlimited kindness and sympathy as manifested through this period of our trial and suffering. "Verily ye have your reward."

And we do most cordially wish you all a most joyous and happy Centennial New Year.

Lockport, Ill., January 1st, 1876.

By means of public lunches the ladies of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Chicago have recently cleared $640.

Miss Frances E. Willard, President of the Chicago Woman's Temperance Union has been traveling and lecturing in Michigan. During an absence of nineteen days she lectured eighteen times. She was well received everywhere.

—The Board of Managers of the American Bible Society has deputed Rev. Luther H. Gulick to superintend the work of Bible circulation in Japan and China. He will go East immediately, and enter upon his work. He will supervise the manufacture and distribution of the Holy Scriptures in languages understood by the hundreds of millions of people in those great empires.

—Last winter and spring there was unusual religious interest in the churches of Dover, N. H., and union daily prayer-meetings were kept up for months. One practical result was the formation of the Christian Reform Club, which now numbers about 800, about half of which were confirmed drunkards. Many of them were brought to the meetings by the efforts of one man, who was rescued by the power of Christianity.

THE PRAISE OFFERING for prayer and revival meetings is a new and neatly printed book of hymns and music from the United Brethren Publishing House, Dayton. The collection is more full than many, its new songs have well chosen words and are not difficult while the old songs that have become precious in Christian experience are retained.

The prospect for clubs of ten or more has been very cheering this week. Will those who have not done their part come forward and keep it bright?

SUBSCRIPTIONS RECEIVED DURING WEEK ENDING Jan. 3, 1876, FROM J Augustine, S Alexander, W E Agard, J Auten, J M Adair, L Axtel, Mrs M A Adams, E Adams, E A Branch, G Brokaw, S H Booth, S A Burd, T K Buffkin, J Burtner, K Bohrer, W W Blanchard, O K Butterfield, Baker & Lyons, F L Batchelder, W S Barnes, G Bant, J Brown, I Crane, J Chapin, I Colegrove, N B Corning, P Carpenter, J Craig, J A Conant, W O Dinius, A Dunn, J Dorcas, F H Ewing, H Frost, S French, J M Fry, J W Gilbert, I Green, G Grove, M Guy, Z Horner, C H Haverfield, J M Howard, J Hodges, E J Hayes, D Hillsamer, J B Hart, A W Hunter, A Hutsinpiller, T Jamison, M W Jordan, J Kennedy, J Kilgiore, A E Jenks, H L Kellogg, L Landon, J Lazenby, D Leggett, L Lester, T McCrea, A W Morris, L B McMillan, P Minton, J Myers, D L Morgan, J Milner, D F Newton, B T Park, J Powers, J W Parker, E M Pattison, S A Reynolds, J S Rice, S McArthur, J E Rose, R Rogers, C Rowley, D H Seamas, J Sherk, L Savage, A Simpson, J P Soddard, J Smith, J Struble, I B Swan, G Trott, E Van Fossen, T Vass, I B Watts, W J White, J A Wallace, N White, S Ward, W Worth, G W Young Y M C A J Zisler.

Notices.

Wisconsin.

The annual convention of the Wisconsin State Christian Association opposed to secret societies will be held in the Wesleyan Methodist church at Sugar Creek, Walworth Co., Wis., on Wednesday and Thursday, the 2d and 3d of Feb., 1876. Elkhorn is the nearest rail road station. Teams will be in readiness, after the arrival of trains, to carry delegates to the place of meeting. Efforts will be made to secure able speakers for the occasion.

By order of EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

It is suggested by the State Agent that the meeting begin at 10 o'clock A. M.; and that special efforts be made to circulate the notice through the local papers of the State. Every friend is expected to do his duty in this respect.

Past Master Ronayne states that if possible he will be at the Wisconsin State meeting.

Notice for California.

Mr. John Black of Upper Lake, appointed chairman by the committee of organization for this State, will call a meeting of said committee and of the friends of the cause in general in California next spring; due notice of said meeting, time and place will be given in the Cynosure at the proper time. Friends of the cause, and especially those who circulated subscriptions, are kindly requested to collect funds and send them to the treasurer appointed by the committee. It is the intent now to have a lecturer on hand by, and if possible before that time, if arrangements can possibly be made. The motto is, "A long pull, a strong pull and a pull altogether."

PHIL BECK, Sec'y and Treasurer.
Woodland, Yolo Co., Cal.

PAST MASTER E. RONAYNE, of Keystone Lodge, No. 639, Chicago, will hold himself in readiness to lecture and publicly work the degrees of Masonry wherever his services may be needed. A fair compensation and traveling expenses is all that is required. Address him at the office of this paper.

See Publisher's Department on the sixteenth page.

To Michigan Reformers.

KEEP IT BEFORE THE PEOPLE.

That Remington and Barlow are in the lecture field in this State and are ready and anxious to be communicated with in regard to lecture work. Send in your requests at once. Don't delay. This is the best season of the year for our work. Let it be pushed.

Address C. B. Remington at Fenton, Mich.

Reform News

PENNSYLVANIA.

The General Agent on the Scranton Convention.

Its Heroes and its work —The State Agency well filled and must be sustained.—Bradford County—Friends and Lectures among its hills.

EAST HERRICK, Pa., Dec. 25, 1875.

At Scranton I met many whom I had never before seen, but had known by correspondence and through the medium of our paper as men who dared "to do right," and a band of more earnest, judicious men it has seldom been my privilege to meet. The veteran reformer, Post, the unwavering Callenders, the unflinching Gould and his co-workers, the irrepressible agent Bro. Raynor, and others like-minded were early at their posts, the minute-men of our reform, ready at the call of duty. Such men gathering at the Master's call, with self in abeyance and God's glory uppermost, could not fail of achieving a victory, and at the same time receiving a rich blessing upon their own hearts. Having said this much it would be useless to add a lengthy detail of business for whoever credits results to their legitimate causes will at once understand that the work was not hindered or the time consumed in petty emulations, or strife as to who should be greatest among the disciples.

Reports of the past year were encouraging, and the facts submitted respecting the work in Pa. of much interest. There was a marked absence of egoism in any boastful sense, while at the same time, it was apparent that instances of individual heroism, generosity and sacrifice were not wanting. The resolutions passed and other items of interest will be furnished for publication by the Secretary, from which report it will be seen that Bro. Rayner is still continued in the State Agency. In my judgment a better selection could not have been made. This opinion results from a brief personal acquaintance and from facts gathered upon fields where he has labored. Bro. R. is wanted again wherever he goes, because by the fearless, faithful utterance of truth he sends conviction deep into the consciences of his hearers, while by the fairness of his position and the sweetness of his temper, he wins their respect and secures their confidence. I heard not a word of complaint but learned indirectly that the agent for the "Key-stone" State had received only about $300 for a year's service. This should not be repeated in the year to come. It is unjust to the brother and quite inadequate to his necessities. The anti-secretists of Pennsylvania are not so impoverished even in these stringent times as to be unable to sustain a true, tried, and faithful worker, and if friends from different parts will send in their offerings (more or less) to Bro. R. direct or to the State Treasurer, this unjust, unprofitable state of things will not long exist. Bro. Raynor is more than willing, he is anxious to work, and ready for reasonable sacrifice. The cause of Christ could not be better subserved than by keeping him constantly employed, and I can assure our brethren in the ministry that you will not find Bro. R. one who will condemn and denounce those who differ with him in opinion, but on the other hand, you will find him a man of amiable qualities whom you will be glad to receive into your pulpits and introduce to the best families in your congregations, whether in the city, or in rural districts. I hope to hear of his visiting Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, and other large cities in this State upon the invitation of friends who need his help.

HERRICKVILLE, Dec. 27, 1875.

My purpose was to take the first train westward from the Convention, making a few calls specially in our publishing interests, hoping to reach my home by the first of Jan., but so importunate were the calls for help in the lecture work that I consented to abandon my purpose and spend a few days in Bradford county, at points of special interest. Starting from Scranton in company with Bros. White and Taylor, we passed rapidly up the Susquehanna, via. the Lehigh Valley R. R., reaching Wyalusing station, at eleven o'clock stepping into a store to await arrangements for a trip up "Cole Creek," I found a gentleman who had formerly lived in Aurora, Ill., and who was acquainted with Mr. Carpenter, Mr. Guild, and others whom I knew. It would have been pleasant to prolong this interview, but Bro. Taylor reined up at the door and seating myself by his side we were soon "splashing" through the mud ankle-deep towards Stevensville, eight miles up the "Creek." Stopping for refreshments and a brief rest at Bro. White's I received many kindnesses which were duly appreciated; meantime Bro. W. preceeded me to make arrangements for a lecture at the village.

In due time Bro. Patten called, and seated upon a "buck-board" drawn by a single horse, we were not long in reaching the scene of action. Friends were beginning to gather, and despite the darkness and mud a goodly number found their way to the school-house, and we had a very interesting and profitable gathering. After the lecture I accepted the invitation of Bro. Homer Stevens to spend the night at his house, where I met several friends and was kindly cared for. Mrs. S. is a genuine Yankee from Litchfield Co., Conn., and much interested, as well as her husband, in our reform. A messenger having previously been dispatched to arrange for a lecture at the M. E. church, E. Herrick, I was again taken in charge by Bro. White and after twisting and climbing around and over the hills we halted at "high twelve" to pass from labor to refreshment as the unexpected guests of Bro. Bowker, whom we found afflicted with a "grievous boil," but ready to entertain strangers who were working for the Master. From him I learned something of the work of the craft in these parts, of the very acceptable and efficient services of Bros. Rathbun and Raynor, and last, but not least, of Bro. Wheeler, on this field.

Bro. Bowker and those who stand with him have committed the grievous offense of refusing to support idolatry, and to make heathenism respectable in Herrick, by paying for and listening to the preaching of men who "burn incense to Baal" upon lodge altars. Of course the devil is displeased and his minions disturbed, and these brethren are realizing that those "who will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution." From Bro. B's. we passed on through a fearful, blinding tempest to the house of Bro. Phelps, who is also a "Protestant" against the "mysteries of iniquity." The storm continuing with increased fury it was not deemed best to attempt a meeting and so I spent the evening in conversation with this very agreeable Christian family. Next morning Bro. White returned to his home and soon after I received a call from Rev. E. B. Mints, who conveyed me to Herrickville, and there introducing me to a number of friends gathered for a Christmas dinner at Bro. Platts. It was soon settled that I should speak in the W. M. Chapel at Herrickville, on Sabbath morning, and at East Herrick in the afternoon and evening. Bro. Mints started out to spread the notice, and judging from the number in attendance his work was well done. Our Sabbath morning and afternoon meetings were well attended, but the evening gathering was small owing to the rain, darkness, and unsettled state of the roads. Appointments have been made for this and to-morrow evenings, and farther stay is contingent upon subsequent developments.

J. P. STODDARD.

Northern Missouri.—Lectures at Knightstown.

ED. CYNOSURE.—I am now engaged in the lecture field in Missouri. At Mt. Moriah, Harrison Co., we opened the campaign with three lectures by Eld. E. G. Cooper, at the close of which we opened an Entered Apprentice's lodge and initiated a candidate publicly. We had a crowded house, and good attention. I think it will be hard for the lodge to find any more material to work upon in that vicinity.

Our next lecture was at Lincoln school-house. Here we had good attention, and each of us (Bro. Cooper and myself) delivered a lecture. Last Thursday (Dec. 9th) Elder C. delivered lecture at Knightstown. On Friday we had prayer-meeting at 11 o'clock, and in the evening I lectured to a large and attentive audience. Saturday at 11 o'clock Eld. Cooper delivered a lecture, and in the evening he again lectured, after which we opened an Entered Apprentice' lodge and had another public initiation. On Sunday Bro. Cooper preached to a large and attentive congregation with great effect. At candle-lighting I preached to a crowded and deeply interested house. Where the Gospel is preceded by lectures it has greater effect than usual.

I must soon get a supply of Cynosure tracts and publications to scatter as I travel. Yours for the war,

GEORGE W. STEWART.

J. T. Kiggins Routs Odd-fellowship in Fort Branch, Ind.

FORT BRANCH, Ind, Dec. 23, 1875.
Editor Christian Cynosure:

DEAR SIR:—The Rev. Mr. Kiggins on the evenings of the 18th and 19th of Dec., favored our village with a lecture on Freemasonry and Odd-fellowship, in which he gave the initiatory ceremonies of the first degree in those orders The audience was large and manifested much interest in the proceedings. Quite a number of the devotees of the mystic orders were present. Some listened in sullen silence, while others were somewhat excited; two leaving the house during the lecture. At the close of the first evening's exercises the lecturer gave an opportunity for any member of the orders to speak and say whether the expose he had given was true or false. He also made a proposition that he would go before a justice of the peace and make affidavit that the exhibition he had given was a true expose of the initatory ceremonies of the first degree of Odd-fellowship, provided responsible members of that order would obligate themselves to prosecute him in the county court for perjury, but no one responded.

It is quite amusing to denote the effect these lectures have had on the different members of these sublime institutions. Some have the honesty to admit that the expose given is true to the letter. Others say it is all false, that they would not believe the lecturer on oath (the old argument). Some attempt to ridicule, while others give vent to their feelings in oaths and threats.

There are some things connected with these orders that to the uninitiated are incomprehensible. That men claiming to be Christians, having the same opportunities of knowing, to give such conflicting testimony to the truth or falsity of the exposure as given by Mr. Kiggins is strange indeed. Again we are at a loss to understand why the advocates of these orders are so sensitive in regard to an open investigation of the claims they set up as being moral, charitable and benevolent institutions. If they will not bear the light of truth, why do men claiming to be Christians stand connected with them? That men of intelligence, especially ministers of the Gospel, will submit to the humiliating and heathenish rites, ceremonies and oaths and encourage others to join them is beyond our comprehension. We hold that the truths of the Gospel as given by Christ and his apostles is a sufficient and sure guide; and if we follow the teachings and precepts contained therein they will lead us into the discharge of all our obligations to our Creator and our fellow-man, and finally gain for us a home in heaven, without the boosting and prompting of ritualistic and oath-bound institutions of men. Yours truly.

JUNIUS.

Correspondence.

Emphatic Advice from Bro. Needels on the Mason City Masonic Pastor.

ALBANY, Gentry Co., Mo.
Editor Christian Cynosure:

In reply to J. Hankins of Mason City, Iowa, I would say the questions he asks are to the point and one would suppose that ready answers would suggest themselves to every Christian. No doubt he is as well qualified to answer his own questions as I am, yet it may be that he is not as well acquainted with the beast of seven heads and ten horns, and he may be better; but if it had horned him as it has me he would not have to answer any of those questions in the mild way most Methodists want them, but he would demand a separation from all the heathen worship of the lodges and a full renunciation of he same before he would spend his time or money.

It is the same everywhere. Some six years ago a Masonic preacher was sent here. He well knew that the majority of our circuit was opposed to the devil-worship of the lodge. So he said he had not been in the lodge for six or eight years, and it was as corrupt as the devil wanted it, (and he told the truth.) Thus matters went on for some time, and his dear lodge brothers looked cross at him. Something had to be done, and, whether by arrangement or not, the craft was out, and he took his text, "Faith, hope and charity," but charity was the theme; and he, being an able speaker, made it out the essential thing, and we were pleased. But then he turned and said that Masonry was the most charitable institution in the world; the church would not compare with that same institution which he said was as corrupt as the devil wanted it. Alas! for all human expectations of sincerity with a man while he tacitly remains a slave to these heathen reproduced secret mysteries. That opened the eyes of the God-fearing part of our people, and we have got so far along down here that we do not pay such men, neither do we take the sacrament at their hands. For a while, like the pope at Rome, they threatened excommunication, but we told them come life or death we never would bow to those heathen mysteries, nor their adherents; and now we have peace. We have two or three preachers that dare beard the lion in his den. We think the time has come when every Christian should take a decided stand and say, "No more heathen worship amongst us." GEORGE W. NEEDELS.

Letter from an Old-line Methodist.

MILNERSVILLE, O.

Masonry has a great influence here both in the M. E. church and out of it; and no wonder while so many preachers are Masons. The presiding elder here is a Mason and dedicated a lodge or synagogue of Satan last fall in this place, and his predecessor was a Mason also. So you see they make themselves bulwarks of Masonry. I am a Methodist; joined the church more than sixty years ago. My name is on its roll now; but in the time of the anti-slavery movement I was with the Wesleyans about fifteen years, and would be with them or the Free Methodists now, if there was a society of either in my reach.

You cannot think how I was pleased when I received the account of the action of the General Conference of the Wesleyan church. I bid them God-speed. I am much pleased with your platform; and I intend to vote for Walker next fall if he and I live, and I am able to get to the place of voting.

There has been a great change in our church within the last forty or fifty years. Our preachers used to hold conference meetings every other Sabbath, and read the rules generally once a quarter; but now we hear nothing of such things at all. The time was when the church members were not allowed to follow the fashions of the world, but now they can go to the greatest extremes thereof and we hear not one word said against it.

I would send you more than ten thousand names for the Cynosure, if it was in my power. I think the paper should be in every family on the continent of America. The Lord only knows how long it will take professed Christians to learn that Christianity is independent and above all secret combinations. THOS. MOORE.

The "One Hundred" Man's Experience.

SILVER LAKE, Ind.

DEAR K.—I would like to give the readers of the Cynosure a little account of my labors and success. In going to the Indiana State Convention in Marion, Grant Co., I distributed tracts, etc., in the cars and sold some Anti-masonic books. I was told by a man in the car near Wabash, that I was doing wrong in working against secret societies, that they were good, etc. I told him, "I have failed to find the good in them." He said, "We owe the Bible to secret societies. Freemasonry preserved the Bible to us and Freemasons have the true Bible; others have not got the genuine Bible, but the Masons have the Bible. They copied from the tables of stone that Moses wrote with his fingers." I sold in the round trip 20 books and received three subscribers, and next day I sold eighteen books and obtained one subscriber.

On Nov. 18th the Church of God society had an anti-secret convention at Lake Bethel, some nine miles east of Syracuse in this county. On my way there I distributed some of E. Honeywell's tracts in the car; and some papers. One Mason told me the tracts were all lies, whereupon I produced Anti-masonic books written by ex-Masons, such as Elder Bernard, Samuel D. Greene, and others. They refusing to take them as evidence, I showed them Wm. Morgan's book. They said he was a perjured man, and I knew nothing about Masonry and could have no means of knowing. "Why," said they, "don't you preach the Gospel and let Masonry alone?" I replied, "What is preaching the Gospel but telling the truth?" I then gave them Richardson's Monitor, which they also rejected (there were some seven of them). I then handed them Webb's Monitor, and asked them to please accept that as evidence that we did know something about their institution. This they did not like to see, but they denied the book. I then gave them Mackey's Masonic Ritualist, asking them to please accept that. Seeing we had their own books, they were angry; they said it was a good institution. I said I was told so; that Masons preserved our Bible, and showed them in Richardson's Monitor how they were getting it out of the ninth arch that Enoch had prepared 669 years before the flood, as Enoch was translated 69 years before Noah was born, and Noah was 600 years old at the time of the flood, making 669, and how long Enoch had hid it before he was translated we had no means of knowing, but stated that Masonry possessed great wisdom in knowing of the utter destruction of the earth and making such wise arrangements with Enoch. To save their institution, they tried at different times to intimidate me, calling me a fool and said I was not worth minding, etc. I told them how the apostle Paul would stand for principle and truth for the truth's sake, and how even the ruler said, "Paul, thou art beside thyself," and afterwards said, "Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian." Whereupon they said, "Come, we want none of your preaching to us;" and some time after one came to me and said, "If you were not a fool and if you were worth minding, you would get a licking before you'd leave the train. You need not think you are doing us any harm. You are doing the Masons no harm." I told him I was glad to hear that, as I did not wish to harm anybody or any good society; and I will say right here that if what little I am doing will affect such an ancient and honorable institution, it must be rotten indeed. In convention I was called on to make some remarks, to give my experience on the way which I did briefly.

On my way home I asked and obtained privilege to distribute tracts, etc., the conductor himself taking one. This brought me in conversation with an old man and a Universalist. He said no Christian would do anything against secret societies; there is where the Christians are; the secret society men are the Christians; that the oath administered in our courts is not binding on account of its brevity, but the Catholic oath was binding, and the Masons oath was binding as they were lengthy. So much for secret societies.

Yours, etc., BENJ. ULSH.

The Two Testimonies.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 24, '75.

After Mr. Ronayne had passed through with the raising of a candidate to the shocking "mysteries" of Masonry in Corinthian Hall recently, a young man came to the platform and stated, privately, that the initiation was precisely as he took it; and, if I understood him rightly, he would publicly have confessed it that night, only he was ashamed to acknowledge he had once permitted himself to be so degraded. This evening, Dec. 23d, on meeting a person familiar at sight only, who seemed to know me perfectly, he accosted me thus: "What has become of the Mason?" meaning Bro. Ronayne; and "What are you trying to do?" "What does that man expect to accomplish?"

The question was answered that it was proposed to let the people have the knowledge that Masons withhold and let them judge for themselves.

"Well," he replied, "that fellow is a very intelligent man, clear as crystal, and what he said, and all that he said in his expose was true, but he was an infamous rascal or he would not have violated his Masonic obligations, going about to make money." Dwelling eloquently on the purity and charity of Masonry, he said its religion to him was all, if lived up to, that could be desired.

I repeated to him what he said that R.'s expose was true. "Yes," he replied, "it was true." "Then," I asked, "would you stand up in Corinthian Hall, saying nothing about regarding oaths or prejudices in favor of Masonry, and expose it as he did for all of Power's Block (worth ½ a million)?" He understood well I referred to the "penalty" Ronayne had so clearly described. He saw the point and dodged the question. Finally, mixing up things a little he said, "No!"

The expose has been like throwing a bomb-shell into the Masonic camp and I believe Masons here would rather see the devil in Rochester next February the 9th and 10th (the time appointed), than to see Ronayne. They are industrious in reports; one is that knowledge has been secured from Chicago that he is an expelled Mason and good for nothing at that. But see what the Rochester Express editorial says, referring to a secret society formerly organized, called Order of American Union opposed to Roman Catholicism:

"It is not necessary for us to repeat at length our views, recently expressed, concerning secret political orders in a free State. They must be considered as essentially despotic. Many citizens by chance or by ineligibility are necessarily excluded from their deliberations. They usually work upon prejudice or self-interest, and not under the impulse of enlightened patriotism; a few individuals usually control their action—too often, if not always—to advance their personal fortunes. They give occasion for the creation of opposing societies, and thus society is broken up into hostile interests, each secretly plotting to break down another, or all others. These are a few of the objections to secret political societies in general. When they incorporate a religious idea, and initiate a sectarian crusade, the evils are increased and intensified."

Although the editor is a Mason it would appear as though he was sick of the institution and wanted to say so, but dare not only in a roundabout way. A few more exposes here will make Masonic gentlemen yet more ashamed of Masonry.

And what about Masonic ministers, O, horrible! Think of them in their "most deplorable condition" which Ronayne said was "the only thing true in Masonry." I fancy when seeing them in the pulpit, myself saying to them: You, alas, were denuded and then clad with the "filthy" drawers, bare foot, cable-towed, i. e., rope round the neck, led blind-folded and haltered, "like a beast to the slaughter," and you said in this plight that you were seeking for light. Indeed you got light, that of three tallow candles, and you swore, when Christ commanded you not to swear, that you would keep all the secrets of Masonry, even to murder and treason, and beyond. Yes, you did. That man to-day said so. You know you did. To add shame to shame and crime to crime, you now extol Masonry, and so far as you can, make people believe you holy. So far your influence extends in favor of that blasphemy, abomination and degradation which you call divine Masonry. May God pity you, if you deserve pity. How dare ministers of the Gospel justify the institution, the hands of which are red with the blood of Morgan? We hope the friends will pray fervently that Ronayne's return to N. Y. State will be abundantly blessed to the people and that he may come to us filled with holy love and God's holy Spirit, and be preserved from all harm even to the end.

WOODRUFF POST.

OUR MAIL.

Mrs. S. A. Proctor, New Rutland, Ill., writes:

"I think every opposer to secret societies ought to be up and doing something to arouse the people to action. It is no time for them to wait. The enemy is at work hard, doing all he can to blind the minds of the people. It makes me feel sad to see so much indifference, especially among those who profess to be Christians."

Alex. Needels, Sparta, O., writes:

"I shall be seventy-nine years old next March, and am nearly as feeble as old."

He sends us a club of seven and thinks if the weather permits he can make it ten. If all our readers would do as well considering the circumstances as this friend, what an increase in the subscriptions received for the Cynosure would result in two or three months.

Conrad Stegner, East Castle Rock, Minn., writes:

"I have been out for the last two days selling books in the town of Northfield. I tell you I had a lively time. I sold all of Morgan's books, but could get only one subscriber."

Are there not other men who would like to sell our books while canvassing for the Cynosure this winter? Let such send cash for a dozen of Morgan's books and give it a trial.

John I. Budd, North Chatham, N. Y., writes:

"I have had five hundred Honeywell tracts but I soon scattered them far and near. I am almost 84 years old, but I can distribute Anti-masonic tracts as well as if I were but twenty."

L. Scovil, Monroe, Wis,, writes:

"It appears to me to be the duty of the patrons of your paper to work earnestly with you for the success of our cause."

We are glad this seems to be the spirit of so many of our readers, and hope they will realize that the Cynosure is a necessity to the cause, and do all they can for its circulation.

Wm. Mauchmer, Constantine, Mich., writes:

"The people are all afraid to take your paper because they think it would injure their trade."

C. H. Gillett, Maple, Mich., writes:

"I have been a subscriber to your paper ever since I knew such a paper was printed, and should have been glad to have encouraged it many years before even before Morgan suffered. I have been strongly opposed to Masonry for more than sixty years. It is and has been for a long time a wonder to me how a person could pretend to be a Christian and adhere to Masonry. I find many opposed to Masonry living about here but it is hard to get any to subscribe for the paper. All seem to be afraid, some think it will hurt their business, some make one objection and some another. We need a good lecturer here. I think one would meet with good success for many would assist."

A minister of Worcester, Mass., writes:

"Dear Bro. Blanchard:—Thanks for that instructive article in Cynosure of Dec. 9th, 'The Bible Doctrine of Holiness.' Your paper is a power. Would to God it were circulated among the moral icebergs of Massachusetts."

Mrs. L. R. Rowley, Utica, Minn., writes:

"We have had three Masonic Methodist ministers in succession, and through the influence of our Methodist S. S. superintendent a Good Templar's lodge has been organized, which is destroying all interest in meetings and Sabbath schools. When will true Christians see? Predictions hasten to their close when all secrets shall be revealed."

Isaac Bancroft, Belmont, Wis., writes:

"I am preaching in two Congregational churches; have been here but a short time but I think we have no members that belong to secret societies except one that belongs to the Sons of Temperance. I am determined that while I stay we shall have no more."

Frederick Huber, Newcomer, Ind., writes:

"A good church and lights will be furnished here at any time for a good lecturer."

J. P. Johnson, College Springs, Ia., writes:

"Getting subscribers is uphill business but I intend to get them as fast as I can. I am in hopes I shall be able to get some more before next spring. There certainly should be a copy in every family."

Jas. Bullock, College Springs, Iowa, writes:

"I like your excellent paper very much for its bold and fearless way of exposing the secret working of those dark, designing lodges where men are sworn to lie if need be and to conceal the truth, a horse-thief or a murderer."

He sends nine dollars for the circulation of the Cynosure, directing one copy to be sent to Australia. The paper now goes to England, Germany, Australia, Nova Scotia, British Columbia, Canada, nearly all of the States, and half of the territories.

P. Bacon, Weatogue, Conn., writes:

"I feel as never before that the Lord expects great things from his people. O that we may be willing to do them."

John Zeigler, Francisco, Ind., writes:

"May the good Lord bless the cause and help you put down all sin."

Geo. W. Young, Somerville, Ind., writes:

"After traveling some I return to Pennsylvania and lecture on secret societies in Gettysburg."

The Sabbath School.

Lesson for Jan. 16.—David and Goliath.

SCRIPTURE.—1 Sam. 17: 38-51. Commit 45-49; Primary Verse, 47.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."—Phil. 4; 13.

TOPIC.—The Battle is the Lord's.

HOME READINGS.

M. 2 Sam. 21: 15-22. The Brother of Goliath Slain.
T. Josh. 6: 12-20. Jericho Overcome by Trumpets.
W. Judg. 3: 14-31. A Dagger and an Ox-goad.
Th. Judg. 7: 12-22. Pitchers and Trumpets as Weapons.
F. Judg. 15: 9-19. Victory with a Jaw Bone.
S. 2 Chr. 20: 1-25. Victorious with a Song.
S. Rev. 12: 1-12. "Overcame by the Word."

LESSON OUTLINE.

A VICTORY OF FAITH.

"This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith."

THE GIANT ENEMY.

His stature.

"Height was six cubits and a span." v. 4; Num. xiii. 33; Deut. ix. 2; Josh. xi. 22.

His armor.

"Had an helmet of brass." v. 5, 6; Job xii. 6; 1 Thess. v. 3.

His strength.

"His spear was like a weaver's beam." v. 7; 1 Sam. ii. 9; Ps. xxxiii. 16; Zech. iv. 6.

His challenge.

a. Its presumption. vs. 10, 8; Ps. xciv. 4; lxxiii. 9; 1 Pet. v. 8; 1 Sam. ii. 3.
b. Terms. v. 9; 1 Tim. iii. 7; 2 Cor. ii. 11; vi. 15.
c. Its duration. v. 16; Luke iv. 2; Heb. iv. 15; 1 Cor. x. 13.
d. Its effect. v. 11, 24; Is. xxxiii. 14; Matt. viii. 26.

His boast.

"Saw David, he disdained him." v. 44; Ps. x. 5; 1 K. xx. 11; Eccl. ix. 11.

THE UNDAUNTED BELIEVER.

His appearance.

"He was but a youth." v. 42; 1 Cor. i. 27; Acts iv. 13; Jas. ii. 5; 2 Cor. xii. 10.

His courage.

a. In speech. vs. 26, 32, 46.
b. In deed. vs. 35, 36, 48.
c. Its basis. vs. 37, 45, 46; 2 Tim. iv. 18.

His armor.

a. The armor proffered. vs. 38, 39; 2 Cor. x. 3; Eph. vi. 14; vs. 15, 16, 17.
b. The armor used. v. 40; 2 Cor. x. 4; i. 12; ii. 13; xii. 9; Gen. xv. 1.

His victory.

"David prevailed—with a sling." v. 50; 1 Cor. xv. 57; Rom. viii. 37; Rev. xii. 10, 11.

His reward.

"The king will enrich—give him his daughter." v. 25; Jas. i. 12; Rev. ii. 26; iii. 21; xxi. 7.

Stones for the Sling.

1.—As the men of Judah were told utterly to drive out and exterminate the Philistines, so are we commanded to crucify the flesh with its evil affections and lusts. And it is not enough almost to conquer our hearts. The contest must be pushed till the victory is complete. Else will the evil passions grow, until some one, stronger and more gigantic than the rest, holds us in complete subjection. Hence it is that we are exhorted to lay aside all malice, all guile, all bitterness, all filthiness, and every weight. Eph. iv. 29, 31; Col. iii. 8: Heb. xii. 1; Jas. i. 21; 1 Pet. ii. 1; Rev. xxi. 27.

2.—"The weapons of our warfare are not carnal," and therefore let us not fight with the world's weapons; for though they are not carnal, they are "mighty, through God, to the pulling down of strongholds." Our weapons are the sword of the Spirit, the blood of the Lamb, and the word of our testimony. With them we shall surely overcome. 1 Cor. ii. 13, 14; iii. 6, 7; 2 Cor. i. 12; iv. 7; x. 4, 5; xii. 9; Rev. xii. 11.

3.—Each one has his own giant to fight. Fear of men, it may be, in one, love of the world in another, temper in a third, etc. And the weapons that we have seem powerless as against it. But as David did not rely upon them and yet through them won the battle, so God can make our weakness effective as against its strength. "We are more than conquerors through him that loved us." John xv. 5; Rom. viii. 37; 2 Cor. xii. 9; Eph. iii. 14–17; Phil. iv. 13.

4.—But though each one has his own special master-passion to overcome, let us not fail to remember, that the battle with Satan, the greatest giant of all, was not fought by us, but by the Lord Jesus Christ—that greater David. By him are we delivered out of his power. Rom. xvi. 20; Heb. ii. 14; 2 Tim. i. 10; ii. 26; 1 John iii. 8; Rev. xii. 9, 10.

5.—"This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith." 1 John v. 4, 5; 1 Cor. xv. 57; 2 Cor. i. 24; Eph. vi. 16; Jas. iv. 7; 1 Pet. v. 8, 9.—National S. S. Teacher.

Home and Health Hints.

CAUSES OF DISEASE.—We owe more to the liver than any other vital organ of the body in keeping up the health. But a more common source of disease s from the long habit of leaving the surface of the body unwashed by water. For months and years many persons do not wash any part of themselves but the face and hands. These small surfaces are the only ones which admit of the free passage of the superfluities; millions of the pores of the skin clogged up, which nature intended as the exit of the waste of the animal tissues. What cannot pass through this channel is thrown upon the bowels, or kidneys, or creates fever, or chronic sickness. To assist nature we should wisely help her in keeping everything working according to its intention and her purposes, which would make it impossible almost to give us the aches and ills we are heir to.—Ex.

WARM FEET.—Life-long discomfort, disease and sudden death often come to children through the inattention or carelessness of the parents. A child should never be allowed to go to sleep with cold feet; the thing to be last attended to is to see that the feet are dry and warm; neglect of this has often resulted in a dangerous attack of croup, diphtheria, or fatal sore throat. Always on coming from school, on entering the house from a visit or errand, in rainy, muddy or thawing weather, the child should remove its shoes, and the mother should herself ascertain whether the stockings are the least damp. If they are they should be taken off, and the feet held before the fire and rubbed with the hand till perfectly dry, and another pair of stockings and another pair of shoes put on. The reserve shoes and stockings should be kept where they are good and dry, so as to be ready for use on a moment's notice.

GIVE THE CHILDREN ONIONS.—A mother thus writes: Once a week invariably—and it was generally when we had cold meat minced—I gave the children a dinner which was hailed with delight, and looked forward to—this was a dish of boiled onions. The little things knew not they were taking the best of medicine for expelling what most children suffer from, worms. I believe mine were kept free by this remedy alone. Not only boiled onions for dinner, but chives also they were encouraged to eat with their bread and butter, and for this purpose they had tufts of chives in their little gardens. It was a medical man who taught me to eat boiled onions as a specific for a cold in the chest. He did not know at the time, till I told him, that they were good for anything else.

A foreign journal points out a mistake which very frequently is made in removing grease spots with benzine or spirits of turpentine—the solvent is applied with a sponge or a piece of rag. This tends inevitably to spread the grease. The stained portions of the garment should be laid flat between two sheets of soft blotting paper, and the upper sheet well soaked with benzine. In this way, if sufficient time be given, the whole of the fatty matter becomes not only dissolved, but absorbed by the paper.

THE CARPENTER DONATION.

The above is a front view of the fine stone-front building on Madison street, Chicago, which Mr. Carpenter proposes to give the National Christian Association for head-quarters and publishing house. The terms of the donation are that $30,000 shall be raised by Apr. 1, 1878, to carry on the work of the Association. Send contributions to Treasurer of the N. C. A.

The National Christian Association.

PRESIDENT.—Philo Carpenter.
DIRECTORS.—Philo Carpenter, J. Blanchard, Archibald Wait, I. A. Hart, C. R. Hagerty, E. A. Cook, O. F. Lumry, C. A. Blanchard, H. L. Kellogg, I. R. B. Arnold, E. S. Cook.
COR. SECRETARY.—C. A. Blanchard.
TREASURER.—H. L. Kellogg.
GEN. AG'T & LECTURER—J. P. Stoddard.

The object of this Association is:—

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved; to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform to aid the Association in either of these ways: (1) to establish a Publishing House and Head-quarters in Chicago; (2) to carry on the general work; (3) to maintain the State agents. All donations (drafts or P.O. orders) should be sent to the Treasurer; general correspondence, etc., direct to the Corresponding Secretary. Address both at 13 Wabash Ave. Chicago.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—I give and bequeath to the National Christian Association, incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois, the sum of——dollars for the purposes of said Association, and for which the receipt of its Treasurer for the time being shall be a sufficient discharge.

Address of Anti-masonic Lecturers.

General Agent and Lecturer, J. P. STODDARD, Christian Cynosure Office, Chicago.

State Lecturers:

Indiana, J. T. Kiggins, Portland, JayCo.
Illinois, H. H. Hinman, Wheaton, Ill.
Ohio, Wm. Dillon, Dayton, O.
New York: L. N. Stratton, Syracuse; D. P. Rathbun, Lisbon Center; Woodruff Post, Rochester; A. F. Curry, Almond
Pennsylvania, J. W. Raynor, Uniondale, Susquehanna Co., Pa.
Wisconsin, Philo Elzea, Delavan, Wis.
Michigan, J. L. Barlow, Fentonville.
New Hampshire, S. C. Kimball, Centr Strafford.

Lecturers at Large:

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
W. A. Wallace, Dublin, Ind.
J. B. Nessell, Ellington, N. Y.
James Hankins, Mason City, Iowa.
R. B. Taylor, Summerfield, O.
N. Callender, Green Grove, Pa.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
P. Hurless, Polo, Ill.
J. C. Graham, Viola, Mercer Co., Ill.
J. R. Baird, Templeton, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Bourbon, Ind.
Josiah McCaskey, Fancy Creek, Wis.
C. F. Hawley, Millbrook, Pa.
W. M. Givens, Center Point, Ind.
J. L. Andrus, Mt. Vision, N. Y.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
D. S. Caldwell, Nevada, WyandotCo., O
Samuel Hale, Mallett Creek, O.
A. Mayn, Promise City, Wayne Co. Ia
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
C. Wiggins, Angola, Ind.
S. L. Cook, Albion, Ind.
E Ronayne, Cynosure office, Chicago.
J. M. Dosh, Van Meter, Iowa.
W. M. Love, Baker, St. Clair Co., Mo

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY JAN. 6, 1876.

PLATFORM AND NOMINATIONS FOR 1876.

FOR PRESIDENT
James B. Walker,
of Illinois.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT
Donald Kirkpatrick,
of New York.

PLATFORM.

We hold: 1. That ours is a Christian and not a heathen nation, and that the God of the Christian Scriptures is the author of civil government.

2. That God requires and man needs a Sabbath.

3. That the prohibition of the importation, manufacture and sale of intoxicating drinks as a beverage, is the true policy on the temperance question.

4. The charters of all secret lodges granted by our Federal and State Legislatures should be withdrawn, and heir oaths prohibited by law.

5. That the civil equality secured to all American citizens by article 13th, 14th and 15th of our amended Constitution should be preserved inviolate.

6. That arbitration of differences with nations is the most direct and sure method of securing and perpetuating a permanent peace.

7. That to cultivate the intellect without improving the morals of men, is to make mere adepts and experts; therefore the Bible should be associated with books of science and literature in all our educational institutions.

8. That land and other monopolies should be discountenanced.

9. That the Government should furnish the people with an ample and sound currency, and a return to specie payment as soon as practicable.

10. That maintenance of the public credit, protection to all loyal citizens, and justice to Indians are essential to the honor and safety of our nation.

11. And finally, we demand for the American people the abolition of Electoral Colleges, and a direct vote for President and Vice-president of the United States.

A HAPPY NEW YEAR TO ALL OUR READERS.

With the blessing of God on our efforts and the earnest, prayerful support of its friends, the Cynosure will be more valuable for the year 1876, than for any previous year. We improve this first issue by putting the dates on every page. Prof. H. A. Fischer will continue to send us letters from Germany. A pastor in Chicago, whose attention is called especially to the subject of Holiness, will aid us in presenting to our readers weekly a few thoughts on that subject.

We expect to have the subject of temperance attended to in a more vigorous manner than during the past year. As this is the year for electing a President of the United States, the political movement will form an unusually important and attractive feature of the paper. T. E. Kennedy, and others will keep us in communication with the far West, while the General and State Agents, and other lecturers and correspondents will keep before us an intelligent view of the progress of the Anti-masonicreform.

The interest in the Anti-masonic cause is constantly increasing; and the number of public discussions of secretism promises to be greater during 1876 than anyp revious year.

Besides keeping our readers fully informed of those discussions and aiding by advertising them, the Cynosure will contain the very facts and arguments necessary to make such discussions a victories for God's cause.

The political movement against the lodge with the blessing of God, on earnest, persistent effort, will, during the next year. awaken tens of thousands to the importance of this reform. Let every citizen in the United States realize fully the fact that the members of a secret order numbering less than one fourth of the voters, who are bound by horrible oaths to favor each other as against the rest of mankind, hold three-fourths of the offices, national and local, and further let them see that there is an earnest effort being made to reverse this state of things, and victory for our cause is as certain as that God rules. A political tract is now being prepared, and will soon be submitted to our readers, when we believe that they will agree with us that the judicious use of a million of them, though costing but a small sum, would make the lodge tremble as it never has since the revolution following the murder of Morgan. As will be seen by our new club rates, very few need pay more than $2.00 per year for the Cynosure, post paid, and the majority will, by clubbing together pay much less. All that is needed is for every man to do his duty in this cause, and the close of the year 1876 will find us all saying with wondering joy, "What hath God wrought!"

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

Christmas—No Joy to the Church or Grace to the Sinner—A German ex-Mason, a Remarkable Case—Polo and its Presbyterian church—Galesburgh in a Tumult—Desperate Trick of the Lodge Defeated—Peoria and Elmwood.

PEORIA, Ill., Dec. 29, 1875.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—It is a good navigator who sees the current amid which his ship is afloat. Let us look down and about us into Illinois society, and see if we can discern any "signs of the times," religious and moral.

On leaving Chicago I spent my first night with a good, ministering brother in Aurora. His bright and precious children were agog with Christmas, and a crowd at his church equally so, and his interesting young wife haggard and worn with Christmas cares. One of the dear children (the youngest) believes in Santa Claus, the other does not: and the father expressed the opinion that it was not now "a religious observance"; and that in the face of the fact that a multitude at his very doors regard the day as more sacred, and keep it far more strictly than they do the day of resurrection, the Christian Sabbath! I have mingled freely with Protestants and Catholics through this "Christmas," and have failed to see the first token of repentance or faith in Christ or joy of salvation; but everywhere the same whirl and furor which may be seen in the "Isles of Greece," where whole populations turn out doors and dance to the Virgin during the live-long day, and then, within doors, carouse and revel in uncleanness through the night. On my way to Mendota the train was crowded at times with Christmas revellers, with violin music, oaths, and blasphemies of God, going to the next town to celebrate the birth of the Saviour from sin! It is either a religious festival or it is not. If it is, it is a part of a man-made, counterfeit religion. If not, it is worse than a turkey-shooting or gambling-raffle, which, at least, have the merit of professing to be what they are. That otherwise exoellent and grand paper, the New York Witness, hails Christmas as the "festival of humanity." I incline to think it is; of humanity—fallen. For sure I am that humanity regenerated must look in vain for rest and enjoyment either in its unscriptural theory or its actual practices.

I saw a Swiss-German Methodist preacher in the cars, going to preach, and called him to my side. "Have you joined the lodge?" I asked.

"Yes; but I have quit it."

"Why?" I inquired.

"Because," said he, "I think it one of the schemes of the devil to destroy souls."

I asked him how he came into such an opinion of the lodge? He replied:

"The first thing which stumbled me was Rom. xii., which required me to present my body a 'living sacrifice to God;' whereas, swearing consent to have my throat cut by the lodge, I had in fact presented my body a living sacrifice to the devil! I then wrote the lodge requesting them to drop my name; but they replied they did not do business in that way; but I must take a demit. I replied I could not take a demit, as I wished to leave for conscience' sake. They then had some charges drawn up against me, and cited me to come and stand trial in the night. But I did not know what they would do with me; so I wrote them I had other duties to occupy my time and never went near them since."

Does any one doubt that if the lodge had the power which it had here before the days of Morgan, this young man would be secretly seized, dragged away and murdered? The case of this young German-speaking clergyman struck me the more because he had never heard of the Cynosure or its movement; but took his way out of the lodge, "led by the Spirit of God." I send you his address that you may send him a marked copy of this letter. Let him bless God for a free Christian country, and aid in saving young men from his own horrible experience with the lodge.

I spent the Sabbath at Polo with good deacon Perkins, preaching twice in the Presbyterian church. This church had a Royal Arch Mason, one Proctor, now of Mississippi, for their former pastor. They requested him to resign the pulpit but he refused. They locked the house against him. He prosecuted the church and made it cost them above two thousand dollars to get rid of him. They now have a minister who worships Christ and not Satan, and they are again prospering.

From Polo I came on Monday to my old home, Galesburgh, and found the city in a quiver of excitement about the funeral of Dr. I. M. Morse, a Mason and Universalist, whose corpse was kept over till Sabbath afternoon to have a Masonic turn-out over it. A cunning Christless man went to the trustees of the First Church, which contains about all the effective Anti-masonry of the place, and asked that church for the funeral in the name of Mrs. Morse. As there is a fine, large Universalist church in Galesburgh, Dr. Morse could have been, and finally was, buried from his own house of worship. The trustees of tha First Church, not wishing to shut their house against a dead citizen and his widow, granted the house to the lodge and their Universalist preacher, Gardner. Mr. George Avery and others objected to admitting heathen worship in a Christian church, especially as they had a temple of their own; suggesting that their only assignable motive must be to get the use of the First Church to give a quasi sanction to their false religion; as Satan applied to Christ to sanction his worship. Dea. Hammond, Mr. Frank Wells and others, taking a similar view of the case to that taken by Mr. Avery, the pastor, Rev. Mr. Huntington, went to Mr. G. C. Lanphere, who is covered with the "Grand" religious titles of the lodge, and requested that the services in the house might be simply those of a Christian funeral, omitting the incantations of the lodge over the dead. This, next to the sanction of the First Church, was what Lanphere and his dark brotherhood wanted viz., "persecution" and a division and weakening of the children of God. He turned his procession into the Universalist church, and the town roars with the charges of "bigotry" against the church of Christ; and the editors of the little country sheets, which are clappers of the lodge-bell, are ringing out the echoes of course.

Now I learn that neither President Newton Bateman, nor brother Allen, rector of the Episcopal church, both of whom are Masons, went nigh the procession; nor will these teachers of the people say one word to aid the honest men and women whose money gives them their bread, and to enable them to know what this lodge is; and who is right, those who allow its incantations over the dead in churches, or those who exclude them! In this battle between light and darkness, Christ and Belial, they either affect neutrality or are the secret friends of the lodge; and that while the people who love and trust them, are reeling like a forest in the wind! They take from the people the keys of that very knowledge which they need. Like that light-house keeper who blew out his light on stormy nights to save his oil to burn on calm ones, knowing by their own miserable experience whether the lodge is good or bad, they keep dark and let wreck after wreck go down.

Now let Messrs. Lowry, Williston and Huntington meet together, and, as David did, "Encourage themselves in the Lord their God." Good President Finney is dead; but the venerable David Bernard, who knows the whole dark system, still lives. Let these brethren select a dozen or more of holy men who have seceded from the lodge or honest men who have not seceded, and let them sit by while Edmond Ronayne, Past Master of Keystone Lodge, Chicago, exemplifies the degrees of Masonry, and then ask those honest men whether Ronayne tells the truth and exhibits Masonry as they received it. Let this be done in the largest hall in Galesburgh and this will settle the whole matter. "How long halt ye between two opinions? If the Lord be God, follow him; but if Baal, then follow him."

I am to speak to-morrow night in Elmwood, and the three nights succeeding in that vicinity.

The cause in Peoria has received a powerful impetus from the State meeting held here, and from Mr. Ronayne's terrible expositions and denunciations of the organic wickedness and wholesale swindlings of the lodge. But the lodge will recover from these blows like a wounded snake unless the churches are purified. J. B.

"O. A. U."

These initials have been for the past two weeks handed about in the public press. A New Jersey editor wrote some time before the meeting of Congress to ex-Speaker Blaine, advising him of the existence of an anti-Catholic secret order throughout the country which had already used great influence in elections, and was daily and rapidly growing in numbers and power. Mr. Blaine was advised to join. This letter never reached him, but a Democratic editor in some way obtaining it from the mail, published it in Augusta, Maine. On this hint the press followed until the New York Herald published a greater part of the ritual of the Order of the American Union, along with sensational and false statements that Grant, Blaine, Jewell, and other public men were lately initiated.

This order has been organizing several years from the remnants of the American Protestant Association, an anti-Catholic society allied to the Orange society of Canada and Great Britain. The membership of the order is put at 76,811, of which New York is said to have 21,217. The Chicago Tribune has also secured and published a copy of the ritual, in which the oath is given in these words:

I,———, in the presence of Almighty God and these witnesses, do solemnly promise, declare, and swear that I will support and defend the Constitution of the United States of ———, that I will keep inviolate the secrets of this organization; that I will obey its constitution and laws; that I will not knowingly vote for, recommend for, nor appoint, nor assist in electing or appointing, a Roman Catholic or any person sympathizing with the Roman Catholic church, to any political office whatever; that I will oppose all attempts to use the public fund for any sectarian purposes whatever, and will ever maintain the great principle of our general unsectarian free school organization; and in my political action, will ever be governed by the lawfully declared will of the majority of my brothers; that I will support and maintain the cardinal principles of this Order; that I will never initiate or be witness to the initiation of any person to membership in this Order, unless at a regular meeting of a duly chartered Council, unless permitted by competent authority so to do; that I will never reveal or betray any secret that may be intrusted to me by a brother of this Order; that I will never use any of the signs, grips, words, pass-words, or other mysteries of this Order, whereby any knowledge of it, or any of its members, may be made known to the initiated. All this I voluntarily promise, I declare and swear, without hesitation or mental reservation, or any self-evasion of mind whatever. So help me God.

The aim of the organization is sufficiently given in this oath, but its efforts to revolutionize public sentiment on the common school question, etc., will be wonderfully limited now that the veil of secrecy is torn off from its operations. The Tribune and Herald are to be praised for their efforts in exposing this political secretism. They are welcome to the company of anti-lodge journals, and may be reminded that there is larger game to be hunted out by their keen-scented reporters. Will they find out and publish, for the public good what may readily be learned by them of the Masonic lodge in low political intrigues and whiskey and Indian rings?

A Curious Reminiscence.—If one should seize and enslave a human being by force and violence to-day in the United States, few crimes would excite more horror—a man and his posterity yoked with the ox to unpaid labor, and to be held or sold at the convenience of his owner and his owner's child and heir forever!

The "reminiscence" of Mr. Cheever, in this number presents the already curious fact that but few years since nineteen out of twenty churches in America were supposed to "see nothing in slavery inconsistent with the religion of Christ." And the churches are now equally blind to the blasphemies and idolatries of the lodge. O that our eyes may be opened!

Read Publisher's Department on the sixteenth page.

One Dollar for Books has been received from Geneseo, Illinois, without the name of the sender. Who sent the money?

—The Chicago Tribune announces that on the 19th of the present month Grand Master Oberly will address the Odd-fellows and their friends in Farwell Hall. Is our Young Men's Christian Association a patron of the lodge? If it gives its its large upper hall for lodge uses will it not permit sincere Christians to pray or speak against this modern idolatry in their prayer room below?

—Rev. N. Wardner of the Wesleyan church has fully entered on his labors as General Evangelist under appointment of the late General Conference. In his salutation to the churches on entering the work he says: "I shall esteem it a privilege to lecture in connection with the general work, on our distinctive reformatory views, as against the secret sworn lodge leagues of the day, at such times and places as duty may dictate." We shall hope to hear echoes from Bro. Wardner's voice in this reform. He believes that the thorough uprooting of the lodge is its only cure.

We are glad to have persons renewing, send in one or more names with theirs at club rates.

Religious Intelligence.

—Rev. H. H. Wells, an evangelist, has been working with great success in Springfield, O., for several weeks past, in the Presbyterian churches. The Lutheran, Congregational, Methodist, Baptist and Episcopal churches unite in the work.

—The Presbyterians of Philadelphia sustain a large hospital, which has an endowment of over $300,000. Its benefits are offered to all without distinction. During the year 454 patients have been treated within the building and 1,522 without. The total expenditure was $60,341.

—King Mtesa's Macedonian cry for missionaries is responded to with great promptness in England. The Church Missionary Society has held a meeting in London and resolved to send a mission to the court of the imperial moke of Nyanza; and an anonymous Christian of great wealth, signing himself "An Unprofitable Servant (Luke xviii 10)," has offered $25,000 which Mr. Stanley said would be necessary for the enterprise.

—Rev. Geo. Thompson of Leland, Mich., writes to the Advance of blessed revivals in Benzie county, Mich. In several towns the work is going on, and this veteran reformer rejoices in participating.

—The revival in Harrisburg under Mr. Hammond's labors is one of the most remarkable that ever visited the city. The work was begun by daily prayer-meetings in the Y. M. C. A. rooms, followed by special evening services before Mr. Hammond came on the field. All the pastors co-operate in the work.

—Union evangelistic services are being held at Westport, Ireland, and towns in that region by Rev. O. L. Leonard, of this country, who is laboring for the Irish Evangelical Society. A local correspondent says: "There is a mighty outpouring of the Holy Spirit in this town and neighborhood. Persons of all denominations have come miles to the services. . . . The work in the west of Ireland is great and powerful. The oldest people do not recollect such a time. Mr. Leonard remains a few days longer, and is expecting soon to go north."

—A Russian journal announces that a belief in the approaching end of the world has seized on the Cossacks of the Don. Many, especially aged people, are giving up worldly affairs, wearing a shroud, and ordering their coffins. On every road are seen men returning to Moscow to be consecrated priests, in order that the smallest village may have its own priest and church. The authorities are passive, hoping that the movement will die out of its own accord. It has originated with the Dissenters.

—The Methodist ministers of St. John, N. B., have decided to omit reading from the pulpit numerous notices of lectures, entertainments, etc., which they are constantly called upon to advertise.

—The Christian Family Companion, a paper representing the Brethren or "Tunkers" published at Meyersdale, Pa., takes a new name with the New Year, The Primitive Christian. This paper was established at Dale City, Pa., by H. R. Holsinger, and has maintained consistently the rule of the Brethren against secret orders.

News of the Week.

The City.

Another whiskey seizure was made last week by the United States authorities. The affair was managed very quietly and in most cases the arrest was for frauds of years ago. Four distilleries and as many rectifying establishments were seized. They average a daily production of 14,000 gallons of spirits. There seems to be no relaxation of the rigor of law against the ring on the part of the government officers.——Another very important arrest was of Jake Rehm, late police superintendent, H. B. Miller and A. C. (Boss) Hesing for complicity in whiskey frauds for political purposes. The evidence is believed strong enough to send the trio to the penitentiary.——Another result of Chicago ring rule is developing in the tax assessments of the South side. The assessor was incompetent and dishonest, but the gamblers elected him. The taxes are found, in some cases five or six times greater than last year and in some instances poor families and small dealers report their tax nearly as great as the whole value of the property. Innumerable suits will result and the army that fights the tax is likely to be in the majority.

Washington.

A long debate on the finance question will be opened soon by Blaine.——The government has sent to every European government a circular asking for an expression of their views regarding American intervention in Cuba, in order to obtain data to be used in the preparation of President Grant's supplimentary message to Congress. All the Governments have replied satisfactorily. England is ready to indorse intervention at the present moment. The other nations express a willingness to support an intervention, but hesitate to take the initiative.

The Country.

A severe wind and rain storm visited the northern part of Illinois on Saturday evening. In Chicago, Springfield, Mendota, and elsewhere, considerable damage was done from unroofing buildings. In Keokuk the Mississippi rose two feet in an hour. Telegraph wires are down east of Chicago.——An American company, engaged in silver mining in Mexico, has obtained an award against the Mexican government for destroying their business of over $700,000.——Gov. Beveridge of Illinois has pardoned 134 persons from the States prison, fourteen of whom were murderers, during the year 1875. This management arouses some comment outside lodge circles.

Foreign.

A dreadful calamity occurred in the village of Hillikon, in the canton of Aargan, Switzerland, on last Saturday. Christmas festivities were being celebrated in a school-house in that place when the floor gave way, and eighty were killed and fifty more or less wounded.——It is reported that the English are losing interest in the Prince of Wales' visit to India. Mere sporting and gift-giving is not all that was looked for. The appropriation of Parliament for the expenses of the trip are likely to fall far short.——The Spanish Government on the 23d of December confidentially declared to the other European powers its firm resolution of satisfying all just complaints of the Cubans.

The Home Circle.

The Farmer's Fireside.

Around the fire one wintry night,
The farmer's rosy children sat;
The fagot lent its blazing light
And mirth went round, and harmless chat

When, hark! a gentle hand they hear
Low tapping at the bolted door,
And thus to gain their willing ear,
A feeble voice was heard implore:

"Cold blows the blast across the moor,
The sleet drives hissing in the wind;
Yon toilsome mountain lies before,
A dreary, treeless waste behind.

"My eyes are weak and dim with age;
No road, no path can I descry;
And these poor rags ill stand the rage
Of such a keen inclement sky.

"So faint am I, these tottering feet
No more my palsied frame can bear;
My freezing heart forgets to beat,
And drifting snows my tomb prepare.

"Open your hospitable door,
And shield me from the biting blast;
Cold, cold it blows across the moor,
The weary moor that I have passed."

With hasty steps the farmer ran,
And close beside the fire they place
The poor, half frozen beggar-man,
With shaking limbs and pale, blue face.

The little children flocking came,
And chafed his frozen hands in theirs;
And busily the good old dame
A comfortable mess prepares.

Their kindness cheered his drooping soul,
And slowly down his wrinkled cheek
The big round tear was seen to roll,
And told the thanks he could not speak.

The children then began to sigh,
And all their merry chat was o'er;
And yet they felt, they knew not why,
More glad than they had done before.

—Sel.

Sour Grapes.

BY REV. D. F. NEWTON.

Nothing hinders the onward progress of this blessed Bible doctrine of "holiness to the Lord," as the inconsistent walk of those professing to enjoy it. Christ is wounded, deeply wounded. By whom? "What are these wounds in thy hands?" Then he shall answer: "Those with which I was wounded in the house of my friends." Zach. xiii, 6.

"Let us therefore," says Paul, "as many as be perfect, be thus minded. . . . . Whereunto we have attained, let us walk by the same rule, let us mind the same thing. Brethren, be followers together of me, and mark them who walk so as ye have us for an ensample—for many walk, of whom I have told you often, and now tell you even weeping, that they are the enemies of the cross of Christ."

"'Tis not a cause of small import
A holy life demands,
But what might fill an angel's heart,
And fill the Saviour's hands."

We do expect more from those professing entire purity of motive, a holy, sanctified life, than from those making no pretensions to this superlative grace.

We look for consistency in the every day walk and conversation; a spirit of meek, modest, lamb-like humility; a benevolence disinterested, exalted, Christ-like, that looks not merely on its own things, but also on the things of others; a cheerful, smiling, complacent yielding to the rights of others, where duty calls. We expect a meek, modest, retiring self-renunciation, Gospel-like, in those testifying publicly the assurance of faith, great peace of mind, joy unspeakable.

We may be eloquent, loud in our professions, speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and after all be "as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal!" How grievously disappointed are we when we see in those making high pretensions to a sanctified heart, the very reverse of what they profess, in their spirit, conversation and general deportment! Nothing so surely and speedily brings this blessed doctrine into disrepute as the inconsistencies of those professing to enjoy it. "If Christ be in you the body is dead because of sin; but the spirit is life because of righteousness."

Paul died to sin, was crucified with Christ, that the body of sin might be destroyed—that henceforth he should not serve sin.

"For he that is dead is freed from sin. Now if we be dead with Christ, we believe that we shall also live with him: knowing that Christ, being raised from the dead, dieth no more; death hath no more dominion over him. For in that he died, he died unto sin once; but in that he liveth, he liveth unto God. Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord. Let not sin therefore reign in your mortal body, that ye should obey it in the lusts thereof. Neither yield ye your members as instruments of unrighteousness unto sin; but yield yourselves unto God, as those that are alive from the dead, and your members as instruments of righteousness unto God.' Rom. vi. 7, 13. "Every man that hath this hope in him, purifieth himself even as he is pure."

"Teach me to walk as thou didst walk,
When a weary pilgrim here."

Christian Offerings.

Those who give regularly and systematically will bear testimony to the fact that the blessing of the Lord rests upon the remainder of their means. The promise of God holds good: "Give, and it shall be given unto you, good measure, pressed down and shaken together and running over."

What this amount should be, each one's own conscience, enlightened by the word of God, must determine. That word tells us: "Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store as God has prospered him." Many have selected the old Bible rule of laying aside one-tenth of their earnings; some can and do give much more. We should certainly select a sum so large that in order to give it we must taste the sweets of self-denial, and with the spirit of David refuse to present to the Lord our God an offering of that which costs us nothing. Whatever that sum may be let us conscientiously devote it, never giving less although ready to give more whenever the necessity arises, willing to give and continuously to give until the restraining edict shall go forth: "Let neither man nor woman make any more work for the offering of the sanctuary, for there is sufficient for all the work, and too much." Until that time, let "holiness to the Lord" be inscribed on all we possess, for thus only can we truly pray: "Thy kingdom come."

Let us look at this matter of giving as it will appear to us from the other side. Let us turn away our eyes from the things "seen" and "temporal," and try to catch a glimpse of things "unseen" and "eternal." Now our thoughts are busy with houses and lands, food and raiment, toils and pleasures. In a few days we shall drop from our cold hands and quiet brains the labors and plans, and take a backward look at life from the other shore. Which will then seem the best, the dollars in the bank, or the treasures in heaven; success in business, or faithful work for the Master; souls perishing through our neglect or covetousness while we ate, drank and were merry, or souls, through the blessing of God on our efforts, singing the song of the redeemed? When we catch one glimpse of a real heaven and a real hell, the wealth of the universe will shrink into nothingness before the value of a single soul rescued from the one, and set in the other. Oh, let us not sleep away the hours of day. The Master has committed to us the glorious work of reclaiming the world for him, and shall we cling to this poor evanescent wealth of earth when souls are trembling in the balance? Let us rather bring the best, the purest, all that we have and are, and lay them at his feet a willing thank-offering for the great "love wherewith he hath loved us," remembering always that we are bought with as price, and, therefore, striving continually to glorify God in our bodies and our spirits which are God's.—Herald and Presbyter.

The Wonderful Book.

At a Bible reading in the Brooklyn meetings reported in the New York Witness, Mr. Moody commenced by saying he was often asked:

HOW CAN WE GET FAITH?

He said the way to get it is to become acquainted with the Word of God. Romans x. 14. Faith comes by hearing, and hearing by the preaching of the Word of God. If you want strong faith you must know the Word of God. Those who are full of unbelief don't know the Bible. During the two years I spent in England, I met a great many Bible Christians. Christians in England know a hundred times as much of the Bible as American Christians. There was no trouble in England in getting plenty of Bible Christians to work in the inquiry meetings. Here in Brooklyn, we do well if we get thirty or forty to do it.

You must study your Bible more if you want the work to go on in Brooklyn. A colored man who had been converted was told that the Bible was not true. "Dat book not true?" said he. "I believed it, and I stopped drinking, and swearing, and stealing, and am a better man. Dat book must be true." If the Bible is false would it make men better? No man can believe the Word of God and not be a better man. If we can get men to run after the Bible they will not care for other books. There is not a book in the world that can tell us so much as the Bible. The geologist is trying to dig up old animals and fossils to prove the Bible is not true. Some are fascinated with astronomy. But what do astronomers know about the "Morning Star?" My mother used to say she wanted me to lay up something every year against a rainy day. It is not so with this heavenly treasure. The more we get the more we give away. I feel sometimes as if I could almost fly, I am so full of the Word of God. Like a man who put two gas bags under his arms; he would strike them together and up he would go over a fence, and strike them together again and up he would go over a tree. So the Word of God almost carries me away from the earth. It casts off the burdens of the world. Faith can't help but grow if we study the Word of God. We become giants if we feed upon the Word of God. A friend in England told me a story of Phillip and the barley loaves. He imagines Phillip as saying: "What, Lord, feed these hungry men with these little barley loaves?" "Yes," says the Lord, "I've blessed it." That was sufficient. Phillip cut off a piece for the first man and he did not miss any; so with the second man, and he gave to the third and fourth and the barley loaf was no smaller. Now he gets reckless, he gives without hesitation. His faith is growing. Let faith grow and we won't grope in the mists and darkness.

I spoke to you yesterday of studying the Bible topically. Another method of Bible study is to find out what the book teaches. Every book of the Bible has a key. You have seen pictures of the Members of Congress hanging on the walls of your houses, and another smaller picture which tells who those persons are. Get the key and you'll understand the picture. In the sixty-six books of the Bible there are three things taught: man's utter Ruin, his Redemption, and his Regeneration. Three R's. Genesis gives the beginning of man's history, of the death, the ruin, and the sin of man. Deuteronomy, the conduct of Canaan. The book of Matthew speaks of the Kingdom. Luke speaks of Christ as the Son of man, the great physician. John shows Christ the Son of God. The Acts speak of Christ at the right hand of God, and of the Holy Ghost dwelling in men. It shows the church in action. We want now some acts for Christ. Did you ever notice the position of the men to whom God speaks? They fall on their face. If we want God to talk to us, we must fall on our faces. Joshua did this when he met the angel with a drawn sword. If we come full of our own conceit, God can't teach us. If we come full of egotism, God can't tell us heavenly secrets. The Holy Spirit will illuminate the Bible and make it the best and sweetest book we have ever seen. It is better for you to study the hard things yourself than to have any one else do it for you. We may go through all the seminaries in the world, and not be fit for God's college. We get the training for this college at the feet of Jesus. Then we are ready to speak for Jesus. Moses was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, and yet God had to send him into the desert for forty years before he could use him.

Take a single word and run through the Scriptures with it. Take the word "blessed." The reason some people can't understand the Book of Revelation, is that it tells of the downfall of the devil. First we find "blessed" are those that read; second, those that "hear;" third, those that "watch;" fourth, those that "keep from the world." Mark Antony yoked two lions, but there are two lions that cannot be yoked—the Lion of the tribe of Judah and the lion of hell. "Blessed" are the "dead that die in the Lord." "Blessed" are "they that have part in the first resurrection." "Blessed" are "they that are at the marriage supper of the Lamb." Seven "blessed" things in this book! It is like a string of pearls. I think I went rejoicing forty days on the strength of these seven blessed things. So in John there are six things worth knowing. Look up the word "know" to get assurance. So there are five precious things of Peter—the Christ, the blood, the trial, the faith, the promise. Turn to Ephesians and find the "seven walks" of Ephesians—walk in obedience; walk in love; walk circumspectly; in good works; not as Gentiles; as children of light. These seven walks are precious walks. Notice the ten gifts of Christ. First, eternal life; second, the water of life; the blood of life; the Holy Spirit; my love; my peace, my joy; my rest; the morning star; a seat at the throne.

A One-Sided Gospel.

The doctrine customarily dispensed by H. W. Beecher, is thus estimated by the N. Y. Witness:

The Gospel consists of three principles, all excellent: 1, Love; 2, Love; 3, Love—a three-fold topic eminently suited to the highest style of eloquence, but, like the tea which the enthusiastic old lady made for a beloved preacher, it is all 'lasses together. Goldsmiths tell us that golden ornaments require an iron back-bone to make them stand up; and no less does the golden love of the Gospel require the iron back-bone of justice. Leaving out this it becomes flaccid, or what is sometimes irreverently termed "goody." A "fine body," in Scotch parlance, is one who is all amiability and innocence, but good for little or nothing. And to this character would the exclusive preachers of love reduce Deity.

This unlimited allegiance to the loving side of the Gospel eliminates hell and the devil from the pulpit: what a pity it cannot also do so from the Bible! It leads to great laxity of views with respect to the duties not only of the Christian minister and Christian church, but of the civil magistrate. He, like Deity, should be paternal, and forgive every poor criminal who cries: "I have sinned;" or, at the very worst, shut him up for a while for his own good. There is much that is amiable, much that is admirable, much that is true, in this Gospel of love, for it is all in the Bible; but lacking the other side it falls over, like a field of wheat which has had abundance of manure but no silicates to strengthen the stalks; and we cannot help thinking it a mistake to train future ministers to such a weak and imperfect system of theology."

Glimpses of a Boarding House in Leipsic, Germany.

We are settled now I hope, for the winter in pleasant rooms in the fourth story, with a very pleasant though not culivated Mrs. Ivers. We have all our meals brought to our room, as that is the general fashion here, so that we do not see the other boarders much, of whom there are a quite a number. One a very pleasant Russian lady, who talks also French, German, and some English, has called on us.

Just across the hall is a Swiss girl, with little black eyes, short, straight hair, and a funny little tramp that sounds more like a boy than a girl. She is studying the violin, while her room-mate, a tall German girl plays the piano. There are four or five pianos and three violins in this story of the house and when most of them are in use, they sound like a flock of black-birds to one passing through the hall. —J. W. F.

A man once came into Mr. Day's store and asked:

"Do you believe in the Trinity?"

"Yes sir."

"Do you understand it?"

"No sir."

"How then can you believe it. I never believe things I do not understand."

"How," said Mr. Day, "can I raise my hand to my head?"

"By contracting the muscles of your arm."

"But how can I contract the muscles of my arm?"

"The will acts upon the nerves, and causes the contraction of the muscles."

"How does the will act upon the nerves, and what is the will?"

The man at last replied:

"I do not know."

Mr. Day told him, "Since you cannot understand the simplest processes of life do not attempt to understand all of Jehovah. Let God manage his own affairs in his own way and believe that he is the truth."

Children's Corner.

Dimpled Darling.

Dimpled cheeks so pink and white
Soft and fair as morning light;
Dimpled smiles that play and chase
Pearly tears from little face.

Dimpled arms in air are thrown
To "show how high has baby grown;"
Dimpled hands "patty-cakes make,"
And gracefully "toss in oven to bake."

Dimpled feet with blushing soles,
Kick the dainty socks in holes;
Chubby toes with dimples dent
Show how "pigs to market went."

Dimpled Darling, laugh and crow,
Beauty dots the deeper grow—
Seeming impress of God's finger—
As the sweet smiles longer linger.

—Christian at Work.

A Child's Prayer.

A mother, sitting in her parlor, overheard her child, whom an elder sister was dressing in an adjoining room, say repeatedly, as if in answer to his sister, "No, I don't want to say my prayers."

"How many church members in good standing," thought the mother to herself, "often say the same thing in heart, though they conceal even from themselves the feeling!"

"Mother," said the child, appearing in a minute or two at the parlor door—the tone and look implied that it was only his morning salutation—"I am going out to get my breakfast."

"Stop a minute; I want you to come here and see me first."

The mother laid down her work in the next chair, as the boy ran towards her. She took him up. He kneeled in her lap, and laid his face down upon her shoulder, his cheek against her ear. The mother rocked her chair slowly backward and forward.

"Are you pretty well this morning?" said she in a kind tone.

"Yes, mother, I am well."

"I am glad you are well; I am well, too; and when I waked up this morning, and found that I was well, I thanked God for taking care of me."

"Did you?" said the boy in a low tone—half a whisper. He paused after it—conscience was at work.

"Did you ever feel my pulse?" asked his mother, after a minute of silence, at the same time sitting him in her lap, and placing his fingers on her wrist.

"No, but I have felt mine."

"Well, don't you feel mine now—how it goes beating?"

"Y-e-s!" said the child.

"If it should stop beating, I should die!"

"Should you?"

"Yes, and I can't keep it beating."

"Who can?"

"God."

A silent pause.

"You have a pulse too, which beats in your bosom here, and in your arms, and all over you, and I cannot keep it from beating, nor can you. Nobody can but God. If he should not take care of you, who could?"

"I don't know," said the child, with a look of anxiety—and another pause ensued.

"So, when I waked up this morning, I thought I would ask God to take case of me. I hope he will take care of me and all of us."

"Did you ask him to take care of me?"

"No."

"Why not?"

"Because I thought you would ask him yourself; God likes to have us all ask for ourselves."

A long pause ensued. The deeply thoughtful and almost anxious expression on his countenance showed that the heart was reached.

"Don't you think you had better ask him for yourself?"

"Yes," said the boy readily.

He kneeled again in his mother's lap, and uttered, in his own simple and broken language, a prayer for the protection and blessings of heaven.—Kind Words.

Our Ten Good Friends.—"I wish that I had some good friends to help me on in life," cried idle Dennis with a yawn.

"Good friends! Why, you have ten!" replied his master.

"I'm sure I haven't half so many, and those that I have are too poor to help me."

"Count your fingers, my boy," said his master.

Dennis looked at his large, strong hand.

"Count thumbs and all," added the master.

"I have; there are ten," said the lad.

"Then never say that you have not got ten good friends able to help you on in life. Try what those true friends can do before you begin grumbling and fretting because you do not get help from others."

Laughing Children.

Give me the boy or girl who smiles as soon as the first rays of the morning sun glance in through the window, gay, happy, and kind. Such a boy will be fit to "make up" into a man—at least when contrasted with the sullen, morose, crabbed fellow, who snaps and snarls like a surly cur, or growls and grunts like a hyena from the moment he opens his angry eyes till he is "confronted" by his breakfast. Such a girl, other things being favorable, will be good material to aid in gladdening some comfortable home, or to refine, civilize, tame, and humanize a rude brother, making him gentle, affectionate and lovable. It is a feast to even look at such a joy-inspiring girl, and see the smiles flowing, so to speak, from the parted lips, displaying a set of clean, well-brushed teeth, looking almost the personification of beauty and goodness, singing, and as merry as the birds that commenced their morning concert long before the lazy boys dreamed that the sun was approaching and about to pour a whole flood of light and warmth upon the earth.—Sel.

Penmanship.

Few of our boys and girls know the value of a good handwriting; if they knew it, they would spare no pains to acquire it. To many a young man, a good handwriting is worth five hundred dollars a year; yes, and to not a few, a thousand dollars a year, or more. A good hand or a bad hand will turn the scale of success or defeat in securing valuable posts of labor.

Then, if you write to one who does not know you, your letter gives him his first impression of you. If it is a badly expressed and badly written letter, he sets you down, perhaps far below your real worth. This is an injustice to yourself. Moreover, a badly written letter, or article, or report takes up the time of the reader needlessly; and this is a wrong to him. Acquire a clear, readable hand. This you can do. Then, if you can learn to write with ease, rapidity and beauty, so much the better. A Christian should try to do well everything that he does.—S. S. Visitor.

Thou God seest me.

ANTI-MASONIC BOOKS,

(Not our own Publications.)

For Sale by EZRA A. COOK & CO

13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

[FOR CATALOGUE OF PUBLICATIONS OF EZRA A. COOK & CO., See page 15.]

All books sent post paid, on receipt of retail price, bnt BOOKS SENT BY MAIL ARE NOT AT OUR RISK.

Books ordered by express are sold at 10 per cent. discount and SENT AT OUR RISK. Party ordering must pay express charges.

Elder Stearns' Books.

Stearns' Inquiry Into the Nature and Tendency of Masonry

With an Appendix.

SEVENTH EDITION.

388 Pages, in Cloth.....60 cents.
" " " Paper.....40 "

Stearns' Letters on Masonry.

Showing the antagonism between Freemasonry and the Christian Religion.

Price, 30 cents.

Stearns' Review of Two Masonic Addresses.

In this scathing review the lying pretentions of the order are clearly shown.

Price, 10 cents.

Levington's Key to Masonry.

This is Rev. Mr. Levington's last, and in the judgment of its anthor, best work on Masonry. The contents of the first chapter are as follows:

"Commencement and growth of Speculative or Symbolic Freemasonry—A table showing the thing at a glance—The use that the Atheists made of it—Identical with Illuminism—Its connection with the French Revolution, and with the Irish Rebellion—The action of the British Parliament with regard to it—Proofs of its diabolical purposes—Its Introdnction, doings, progress and designs in the United States."

The contents of the Eleventh chapter are thus startling:

"Knights of the Golden Circle—Graphic account of them by a seceding Knight, and remarks thereon, showing the identity of the order with Masonry—Quotations from Sir Walter Scott."

This work is thrilling in statement, and powerful in argumt. 425 pagenes,

Price. $1.35.

Light on Freemasonry:

BY ELDER D. BERNARD,

TO WHICH IS APPENDED A

Revelation of the Mysteries of Odd-fellowship by a Member of the Craft.

The whole containing over five hundred pages lately revised and republished. Price $2,00

The first part of the above work, Light on Freemasonry, 416 pages in paper cover, will be sent post paid on receipt of $1.

FOR SALE BY

United Brethren Publishing House,
DAYTON, O.
and by
EZRA A. COOK & CO.,
13 Wabash Ave, CHICAGO.

Walsh's Review of Freemasonry

REVISED EDITION,

Is a Scholarly Review of the Institution, by Rev JNO. T. WALSH.

Price 25 cts.

Finney on Masonry.

BOUND IN CLOTH, PRICE $1.00,

CHEAP EDITION,

Twenty-five dollars per hundred, by express and not less than 25 copies at that rate.

BY MAIL, POST-PAID:

Per doz.....$3 75,
Single copy,..... 35 c

ODD-FELLOWSHIP

JUDGED BY ITS OWN UTTERANCES;

Its Doctrine and Practice examined in the light of God's Word.

BY REV. J. H. BROCKMAN.

This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-Fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. It was originally published in German.

Price, bound in Boards, 75 cents.

GOOD TEMPLARISM EXPOSED.

Obligations, of the Initiatory Fidelity, Charity, and Royal Virtue Degrees.

This is a small book containing only the Obligations and some of the Odes of the Good Templars.

Single Copy, Post paid,..... 10cts.
Per Doz. 75
Per 100 by Express,..... $4.50

Bernard's Appendix to Light on Masonry,

Showing the Character of the Institution by it's terrible oaths and penalties. Paper covers, 25 cents.

HAND BOOK OF FREEMASONRY.

By EDMOND RONAYNE.

Entered according to Act of Congress in the year 1875.
BY EDMOND RONAYNE.
In the office of the Librarian of Congress at Washington, D. C.

MASTER MASON'S DEGREE. Continued.

The pillar of Strength represents Hiram, king of Tyreo, wh strengthened and supported King Solomon in his great and glorious undertaking.

And the pillar of Beauty reprcsents Hiram Ablff, the Widow's Son, whose curious skill and cunning workmanship beautified and adorned the temple. [The Master points to the pillars on the chart as he procceds.]

This magnificent structure was founded in the fourth year of the reign of King Solomon, on the second day of the month Zif, being the second month of the sacred year. It was located on Mount Moriah, near the place where Abraham was about to offer up his son Isaac, and where David met and appeased the destroying angel. Josephus informs us, that although more than seven years were occupied in building it, yet, during the whole term, it did not rain in the daytime, that the workmen might not be obstructed in their labor. From sacred history we also learn that there was not the sound of ax, hammer or any tool of iron, heard in the house while it was building. It is said to have been supported by 1453 columns and 2906 pilasters all hewn from the finest Parian marble. There were employed in its construction, 3 Grand Masters, 3300 Masters or Overseers of the work, 80,000 Fellow Crafts and 70,000 Entered Apprentices or bearers of burdens, and all these were classed and arranged in such a manner by the wisdom of Solomon, that neither envy, discord nor confusion was suffered to interrupt or disturb the peace and good fellowship which pervailed among the workmen.

In front of the magnificent porch were placed the two celebrated pillars—one on the left hand and one on the right hand They are supposed to have been placed there as a memorial to the children of Israel, of the happy deliverance of their forefathers from Egyptian bondage, and in commemoration of the miraculous pillars of fire and cloud. The pillar of fire gave light to the Israelites and facilltated their march, and the cloud proved darkness to Pharaoh and his host, and retarded their pursuit. King Solomon, therefore, ordered these pillars to be placed at the entrance of the temple, as the most conspicuous part, that the children of Israel might have that happy event continually before their eyes, in going to and returning from divine worship.

A lodge of Entered Apprentices was anciently composed of 7, namely: 1 Master Mason and 6 Apprentices; they usually met on the ground floor of King Solomon's temple.

A lodge of Fellow Crafts was composed of 5, viz: 2 Master Masons and three Fellow Crafts; they usually met in the middle chamber.

And a lodge of Master Masons was composed of 3, namely; 3 Master Masons. They usually met in the unfinished sanctum sanctorum or Holy of Holies of King Solomon's temple.

(In Masonic Monitors and charts the above figures are depicted thus and the Master points to them on the chart as he explains.)

$$7\left\{\begin{matrix}1\\6\end{matrix}\right. \qquad 5\left\{\begin{matrix}2\\3\end{matrix}\right. \qquad 3$$

Worshipful Master:—(continuing and pointing to the chart) Bro. Jones, there are nine classes of emblems usually delineated upon the Master's carpet, namely, the pot of incense, the bee-hive, the constitution guarded by the tyler's sword, the sword pointing to a naked heart, the all-seeing eye, and sun, moon and stars, the anchor and ark, the forty-seventh problem of Euclid, the hour-glass and the scythe.

THE THREE STEPS

Usually delineated upon the Master's carpet are emblematical of the three principal stages of human life, viz: Youth, Manhood and Age. In Youth, as Entered Apprentices, we ought Industriously to occupy our minds in the attainment of useful knowledge; in Manhood, as Fellow Crafts, we should apply our knowledge to the discharge of our respective duties, to God, our neighbor, and ourselves; that so in Age, as Master Masons, we may enjoy the happy reflection consequent on a well-spent life, and die in the hope of a glorious immortality.

THE POT OF INCENSE

Is an emblem of a pure heart which is always an acceptable sacrifice to the Deity; and as this glows with fervent heat, so should our hearts continually glow with gratitude to the great and benificent Author of our existence, for the manifold blessings and comforts we enjoy.

THE BEE HIVE

Is an emblem of industry, and recommends the practice of that virtue to all created beings, from the highest seraph in heaven to the lowest reptile of the dust. It teaches us that as we came into the world rational and intelligent beings, we should ever be industrious ones; never stiting down contented while our fellow-creatures around us are in want, especially when it is in our power to relieve them without inconvenience to ourselves.

When we take a survey of nature, we view man in his infancy, more helpless and indigent than the brute creation; he lies languishing for days, months and years, totally incapable of providing sustenance for himself, of guarding against the attack of wild beasts of the field, or sheltering himself from the inclemencies of the weather. It might have pleased the great Creator of heaven and earth, to have made man independent of all other beings; but as dependence is one of the strongest bonds of society, so mankind were made dependent on each other for protection and security, as they thereby enjoy better opportunities of fulfilling the duties of reciprocal love and friendship. Thus was man formed for social and active life, the noblest part of the work of God; and he that will so demean himself, as not to be endeavoring to add to the common stock of knowledge and understanding, may be deemed no better than a drone in the hive of nature, aa useless member of society, and unworthy of our protection as Masons.

THE BOOK OF CONSTITUTIONS GUARDED BY THE TYLER'S SWORD.

Reminds us that we should be ever watchful and guarded in our thoughts, words and actions, particularly when before the enemies of Masonry; ever bearing in remembrance those truly Masonic virtues, silence and circumspection.

THE SWORD POINTING TO A NAKED HEART,

Demonstrates that justice will sooner or later overtake us; and although our thoughts, words and actions may be hidden from the eyes of man, yet that whom the Sun, Moon, and Stars obey and under whose watchful care, even Comets perform their stupendous revolutions, pervades the inmost recesses of the human heart, and will reward us according to our merits.

ALL-SEEING EYE,

THE ANCHOR AND ARK

Are emblems of a well-grounded hope, and a well-spent life. They are emblematical of that divine Ark, which safely wafts us over this tempestuous sea of troubles, and that Anchor which shall safely moor us in a peaceful harbor, where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary shall find rest.

THE FORTY-SEVENTH PROBLEM OF EUCLID.

This was an invention of our ancient friend and brother, the great Pythagoras, who, in his travels through Asia, Africa and Europe, was initiated into the several orders of priesthood, and raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason. This wise philosopher enriched his mind abundantly in a general knowledge of things, and more especially in Geometry, or Masonry. On this subject he drew out many problems and theorems; and among the most distinguished, he erected this, which, in the joy of his heart, he called Eureka, in the Grecian language, signifying, I have found it; and upon the discovery of which he is said to have sacrificed a hecatomb, or a thousand head of cattle. It teaches Masons to be general lovers of the arts and sciences.

THE HOUR-GLASS.

Is an emblem of human life. Behold! how swiftly the sands run, and how rapidly our lives are drawing to a close! We can not without astonishment behold the little particles which are contained in this machine;—how they pass away almost imperceptibly! and yet, to our surprise, in the short space of an hour they are all exhausted. Thus wastes man! To-day, he puts forth the tender leaves of hope; to-morrow, blossoms, and bears his blushing honors thick upon him; the next day comes a frost which nips the shoot; and when he thinks his greatness is still aspiring, he falls, like autumn leaves, to enrich our mother earth.

THE SCYTHE

Is an emblem of time, which cuts the brittle thread of life, and launches us into eternity. Behold! what havoc the scythe of time makes among the human race! If by chance we should escape the numerous evils incident to childhood and youth, and with health and vigor arrive to the years of manhood; yet, withal, we must soon be cut down by the all-devourina scythe of time, and be gathered into the land where our fathers have gone before us.

But my brother, the last class of emblems to which I will call your attention is the Setting Maul, the Spade and the Coffin (pointing to these emblems). The setting maul by which our Grand Master Hiram Abiff was slain, is emblematical of that casualty or disease which will sooner or later terminate our existence. The spade which dug his may ere long dig our grave. The coffin which enclosed his remains may ere long receive ours.

But the acacia which bloomed at the head of the grave and betokened the place of his interment is emblematical of that immortal part within us which survives the grave, and which bears the closest affinity to that divine intelligence which pervades and animates all nature and which can never, never, no, never die.

Thus my brother, we close our lecture upon the emblems with the solemn thought of death. We are born, we breathe, we mourn, we suffer, and we die. Yes, we are all born to die. We follow our friends to the brink of the grave and standing on the shore of a vast ocean we gaze with exquisite anxiety until the last struggle is over and we see them sink into the fathomless abyss. We feel our own feet slide from the precarious brink on which we stand, and a few more suns and we too shall be whelmed neath death's awful wave to rest in the stilly shades, and darkness and silence shall reign around our melancholy abode. But is this the end of man? Is this the aspiring hope of all faithful Masons? No, blessed be God, we pause not our feet at the first or second step but ever true to our principles we press onward for further light. While the embers of mortality are faintly glimmering in the sockets of existence, the Bible, that Great Light of Masonry, removes the dark cloud, draws aside the sable curtains of the tomb, bids faith and hope arouse us and cheers and animates the departing spirit. It points beyond the silent tomb and bids us look with faith and confidence upon the opening scenes of our eternity.

This, my brother, concludes the Sublime degree of Master Mason and nothing more remains but to deliver you the Charge which has been given to all Master Masons in every regular and well-governed lodge from time immemorial.

CHARGE TO THE CANDIDATE.

BROTHER:—Your zeal for our institution, the progress you have made in our mysteries, and your steady conformity to our useful regulations have pointed you out as a proper object for this peculiar mark of our favor.

Duty and honor now alike bind you to be faithful to every trust; to support the dignity of your character on all occasions; and strenuously to enforce, by precept and example, a steady obedience to the tenets of Freemasonry. Exemplary conduct on your part, will convince the world that merit is the just title to our privileges, and that on you our favors have not been undeservedly bestowed.

In this respectable character you are authorized to correct the irregularities of your less informed brethren; to fortify their minds with resolution against the snares of the insidious, and to guard them against every allurement to vicious practices. To preserve unsullied the reputation of the fraternity, ought to be your constant care; and, therefore, it becomes your province to caution the inexperienced against a breach of fidelity. To your inferiors in rank or office, you are to recommend obedience and submission; to your equals, courtesy and affability; to your superiors, kindness and condescension. Universal obedience you are zealously to inculcate; and by the regularity of your own conduct, endeavor to remove every aspersion against this venerable institution. Our ancient landmarks you are carefully to preserve, and not suffer them on any pretence, to be infringed, or countenance a deviation from our established customs.

Your honor and reputation are concerned in supporting with dignity, the respectable character you now bear. Let no motive, therefore, make you swerve from your duty, violate your vows, or betray your trust; but be true and faithful, and imitate the example of that celebrated artist whom you have this evening represented. Thus you will render yourself deserving of the honor which we have conferred, and worthy of the confidence we have reposed in you.

This, brother Jones, concludes the Sublime degree of Master Mason. You will now step to the secretary's desk where you will sign the constitution and receive from him a copy of the by-laws after which you can take your seat in any part of the lodge a member in good standing of Keystone lodge, No. 639, entitled to all its rights and privileges and subject to all its pains and penalties. (The candidate then signs the constitution, takes his seat and the Master Mason's degree is concluded.)

CHAPTER VIII.

In opening the Grand Lodge at regular or special communications it is said to be opened in ample form, and so declared, while a blue lodge or lodge of Master Masons is declared open in form. The uninitiated reader is also requested to note the distinction between the terms Master Mason and Worshipful Master. A Master Mason is simply a member of a lodge or one who has received the third degree in Masonry, while a Worshipful Master is one who is chosen to preside over the lodge and has been inducted into the Oriental chair of King Solomon by what is called "ancient ceremonies." As the opening, closing, and initiatory ceremonies constitute each degree in Masonry and as I have minutely exemplified the opening and initiatory ceremonies of Ancient Craft Masonry in the preceding pages I shall now proceed to show how the lodges are closed.

Worshipful Master:—Is there anything further to be brought before this lodge of Master Masons before we proceed to close? Is there anything on your table, Bro. Secretary?

Secretary:—There is nothing on my desk, Worshipful.

Worshipful Master:—Is there anything in the South, brother Junior Warden?

Junior Warden:—(rising and making due-guard) Nothing in the South, Worshipful.

Worshipful Master:—Anything in the West, brother Senior Warden?

Senior Warden:—(rising and making due-guard) Nothing in the West, Worshipful.

Worshipful Master:—Is there anything in the hands of the brethren? (He pauses for a few seconds and if no brother offers to say anything, he continues) If not, we shall proceed to close.

Worshipful Master:—(one rap) Bro. Junior Deacon, what is the last as well as the first great care of Masons when convened?

Junior Deacon:—(rising) To see that the lodge is duly tyled, Worshipful.

Worshipful Master:—Perform that duty and inform the tyler that I am about to close Keystone Lodge, No. 639, on the third degree of Masonry, direct him to take due notice and tyle accordingly.

The Junior Deacon gives three raps on the door from the inside, the tyler gives three outside, the Junior Deacon then gives one more and the tyler one, the Deacon opens the door, puts out his head and whispers, "We are going to close on the third degree." He then closes the door and both he and the tyler give the raps as before.

Junior Deacon:—The lodge is duly tyled, Worshipful.

Worshipful Master:—How tyled, Bro. Junior Deacon?

Junior Deacon:—By a Master Mason armed with the proper implement of his office.

Worshipful Master:—The tyler's station?

Junior Deacon:—Outside the inner door with a drawn sword in his hand.

Worshipful Master:—His duty there?

Junior Deacon:—To guard against the approach of cowans and eavesdroppers and see that none pass or repass except those who are duly qualified and have permission.

Worshipful Master:—Thank you. (Junior Deacon takes his sest.)

Worshipful Master:—(one rap) Bro. Senior Warden, at the opening of this lodge you informed me that you were a Master Mason. What induced you to become a Master Mason?

Senior Warden:—(standing) In order that I might travel in foreign countries, work and receive Master's wages, thereby to be the better enabled to support myself and family and contribute to the relief of distressed worthy brother Master Masons, their widows and orphans.

Worshipful Master:—What makes you a Master Mason?

Senior Warden:—My obligation.

Worshipful Master:—Where were you made a Master Mason?

Senior Warden:—In a regularly constituted lodge of Master Masons.

Worshipful Master:—What number constitutes a lodge of Master Masons?

Senior Warden:—Three or more.

The questions and answers which follow are precisely such as are used by the Master and Wardens at opening the lodge as found on pages 15, 20 and 21. The due-guard and sign of a Master Mason are made by all (see page 21) the Master gives three raps, the Senior Warden three, and the Junior Warden three, after which the Master continues:

Worshipful Master:—Accordingly I declare Keystone Lodge, No. 639, closed in form on the third degree of Masonry. Bro. Junior Deacon, so inform the tyler. Senior Deacon, arrange the altar (one rap).

The Junior Deacon "inform, the tyler" precisely as at the opening of the lodge (see page 15) and the Senior Deacon places one point of the compass below the square.

A LODGE OF FELLOW CRAFTS CLOSED.

Worshipful Master:—(one rap) Bro. Senior Warden, are you a Fellow Craft?

Senior Warden:—(rising) I am; try me.

Worshipful Master:—How will you be tried?

Senior Warden:—By the square.

Worshipful Master:—Why by the square?

Senior Warden:—Because it is an emblem of morality and one of the working tools of a Fellow Craft, Worshipful Master:—What makes you a Fellow Craft?

Senior Warden:—My obligation.

Worshipful Master:—Where were you made a Fellow Craft?

Senior Warden:—In a regularly constituted lodge of Fellow Crafts.

Worshipful Master:—What number constitutes a lodge of Fellow Crafts?

Senior Warden:—Five or more.

Worshipful Master:—When of five only of whom do they consist?

Senior Warden:—Of the Worshipful Master, Senior and Junior Wardens, Senior and Junior Deacons.

Worshipful Master:—The Junior Deacon's place in the lodge?

Senior Warden:—At the right hand of the Senior Warden in the West.

Worshipful Master:—(two raps calling up the last named officer) Bro. Junior Deacon, the Senior Deacon's place?

Junior Deacon:—At the right hand, in front of the Worshipful Master in the East.

Worshipful Master:—Bro. Senior Deacon, the Junior Warden's station?

Senior Deacon:—In the South, Worshipful.

Worshipful Master:—Bro. Junior Warden, the Senior Warden's station?

Junior Warden:—In the West, Worshipful.

Worshipful Master:—Bro. Senior Warden, the Worshipful Master's station?

Senior Warden:—In the East, Worshipful.

Worshipful Master:—Why in the East, Bro. Senior Warden?

Senior Warden:—As the sun rises in the East to open and govern the day, etc., (here follows the exact language used by the Senior Warden as given on page 15).

Worshipful Master:—Bro. Senior Warden, it is my order that Keystone Lodge No. 639, be now closed on the second degree of Masonry. This you will communicate to your brother Junior Warden in the South and he to the brethren present that all having due notice thereof may govern themselves accordingly.

The Senior Warden conveys this order to the Junior Warden in the exact language of the Worshipful Master. The Junior Warden gives three raps calling up the entire lodge and communicates the same order as follows (see page 15):

Junior Warden:—Brethren, it is the order of the Worshipful Master communicated to me by way of the West that Keystone Lodge, No. 639 now closed in form on the second degree of Masonry. Take due notice and govern yourselves accordingly.

Worshipful Master:—Together, brethren (the Worshipful Master and brethren together make the due-guard and sign of a Fellow Craft, see page 19). The Master gives two raps and each of the Wardens gives two.

Worshipful Master:—Accordingly I declare Keystone Lodge No. 639, closed in form on the second degree of Masonry. Bro. Juuior Deacon so infhrm the tyler. Bro. Senior Deacon arrange the altar (one rap which seats the lodge).

The Junior Deacon informs the tyler in the usual manner (see page 16) the Senior Deacon places both points of the compass below the square.

CLOSING A LODGE OF ENTERED APPRENTICES.

The portion of the ritual rehearsed by the Worshipful Master and other officers at closing a lodge of Entered Apprentices and the ceremonies engaged in, are precisely the same as those used in opening, beginning with the question, "Bro. Senior Warden, whence came you?" and ending with the question "Why in the East, brother Senior Warden?" and the Senior Warden's reply. After which the Master proceeds:

Worshipful Master:—Bro. Senior Warden, it is my order that Keystone Lodge, No. 639, be now closed and stand closed until the next "regular communication," unless otherwise specially convened in which case due and timely notice shall be given by summons or otherwise. This you will communicate to your brother Junior Warden in the South, and he to the brethren present, that all having due notice thereof may govern themselves accordingly.

Masonic Books,

FOR SALE AT THE CYNOSURE OFFICE.

Those who wish to know the character of Freemasonry, as shown by its own publications, will find many standard works in the following list.

No sensible Mason dares deny that such men as Albert G. Mackey, the great Masonic Lexicographer, and Daniel Sickels, the Masonic author and publisher, are the highest Masonic authority in the United States.

Allyn's Ritual of Massonry,

Illustrated by a large number of engravings, and ontaining a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, Orange nd Odd-fellows' societies. Price, $5.00.

Mackey's Masonic Ritualist;

OR

MONITORIAL INSTRUCTION BOOK

BY ALBERT G. MACKEY,

"Past General High Priest of the General Grand Chapter of the United States, Knight of the Eagle and Pelican, Prince of Mercy," Etc. Etc. Price, $1 75

Mackey's Lexicon of Freemasonry,

Containing a Definition of Terms, Notices of its History, Traditions and Antiquities, and an account of all the Rites and Mysteries of the Ancient World. 12 mo. 526 pages, $3 00

MACKEY'S MANUAL OF THE LODGE,

OR

Monitorial Instructions in the Degrees of Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft, and Master Mason; with Ceremonies relating to Installations, Dedications, Consecrations, Laying of Corner-stones &c. Price, $2 00

MACKEY'S TEXT BOOK

OF

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

Illustrating the Laws of Freemasonry, both written and unwritten.

This is the Great Law Book of Freemasonry 570 pages. Price, $2.50.

Webb's Monitor of Freemasonry,

LARGE EDITION, WITH NOTES

By ROB. MORRIS, Price, $1.50.
Pocket Edition, 75 cts.

SICKELS' FREEMASON'S MONITOR.

Containing the Degrees of Freemasonry embraced in the Lodge, Chapter, Council and Commandery, embellished with nearly 300 symbolic Illustrations. Together with Tactics and drill of Masonic Knighthood. Also, forms of Masonic Documents, Notes, Songs, Masonic dates, installations, etc. By D. Sickels, 32 mo tuck. Price $1.50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry.

A Practical Guide to the Ceremonies in the Degrees conferred in Masonic Lodge Chapter, Encampments, etc, Illustrated Edition. In cloth, $1 25; paper, 75 cts.

Chase's Digest of Masonic Law.

Comprises a Complete Code of Regulations Decisions and Opinions upon Questions of Masonic Jurisprudence. Price, $2 25.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor

Illustrated with Explanatory Engraving Price $2 50.

ANTIMASONIC TRACTS.

WE NOW HAVE 25 ENGLISH TRACTS, ONE GERMAN, AND ONE SWEDISH

These tracts are sold at the rate of $1.00 per 1000 pages.

"THE ANTI-MASONS SCRAP BOOK."

Contains 24 Cynosure Tracts, bonnd together, and is jnst the thing to select tracts from. Price 20 cents. See advertisement.

For information abont Free Tracts see advertiscment headed Free Tracts."

Address EZRA A. COOK & Co.,
13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

TRACT NO. 1:

HISTORY OF MASONRY.

BY PRESIDENT J. BLANCHARD, OF WHEATON COLLEGE.

This is now pnblished in three tracts of fonr pages each. Price of each, 50 cents per 100; $4 per 1000.

TRACT No. 1, PART FIRST—Shows the origin of Specnlative Freemasonry, and is entiled "HISTORY OF MASONRY."

TRACT No. 1, PART SECOND—Is entitled "DESPOTIC CHARACTER OF FREEMASONRY"

TRACT No. 1, PART THIRD—Is entitled "FREEMASONRY A CHRIST-EXCLUDING RELIGION."

TRACT NO. 2:

MASONIC MURDER,

By REV. J, R. BAIRD, of Pleasantville, Pa., a seceding Mason who has taken 17 degrees. A 2-page tract at 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 3:

SECRETS OF MASONRY,

BY ELI TAPLEY.

This is a 4-page Illustrated Tract, showing the signs, grips and pass-words, of the first three degrees. 50 cents per 100, or $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 4:

GRAND! GREAT GRAND!!

BY PHILO CARPENTER.

This is a 2-page tract, calling the attention of the pnblic to the despotic and ridicnlous titles of Freemasonry. Price 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1,000.

TRACT. NO. 5:

Extracts From Masonic Oaths and Penalties, as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.

This tract is a reprint of a tract published in 1834, and is a very weighty docnment. A 4-page tract at 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 6:

Hon. John Quincy Adams' Letter.

Giving His and His Father's Opinion of Freemasonry (1831.);

AND

Hon. James Madison's Letter,

Giving His Opinion of Freemasonry (1832).

Both of these letters, in one 4-page tract, at 50 cents per 100: $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 7:

SATAN'S CABLE-TOW.

A 4-page tract. This is a carefnl analysis of the character of Masonic oaths, and shows them to be most blasphemous and unchristian; and the Masonic Cable Tow is clearly shown to be the Cable Tow by which Satan is leading thousands to eternal death 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 8:

Is a 2-page double tract, "ILLUSTRATED." The first page represents a Mason proclaimimg the wonderful wisdom and benevolence of the order, with an article below, entitled "Freemasonry is only 152 Years Old," and gives the time and place of its birth.

The second side is entitled, "Murder and Treason not Excepted," and shows that the Masonic order is treasonable in its constitntion, and is both anti-Repnblican and anti-Christian. Price 25 cents per 100; $[illegible] per 1000.

TRACT NO. 9, ILLUSTRATED:

FREEMASONRY IN THE CHURCH.

Copy of a petition for the higher degrees of Freemasonry, in which Blasphemons and Despotic Titles are enumerated and prayed for. The Copy was printed for the nse of "Occidental Sovereign Consistory S. P. R. S.," 32d degree—a Chicago Lodge—and was ordered by a deacon of a Christian Chnrch who is Grand Orator of the Grand Lodge of Ill.

TRACT NO. 10:

CHARACTER AND SYMBOLS OF FREEMASONRY.

A 2-page tract, (ILLUSTRATED) by its "Grand Secretaries, Grand Lecturers, Perfect Prince Freemasons, Grand Inspector, Inquisitor Commanders, Grand High Priests," etc. The wonderful symbolical meaning of "the Cable Tow," "the Sqnare and Compass," "ths Lamb Skin, or white Apron,'' and "the Common Gavel," are given in the exact words of the highest Masonic authority. 25 conts per 100 or $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 11;

Address of Niagara County Association, New York,

TO THE PUBLIC;

Concerning the Morgan Murder, and the character of Freemasonry shown by this and other Masonic mnrders. 50 cents per

TRACT NO. 12:

JUDGE WHITNEY AND MASONRY.

This tract contains a condensed account of Judge Whitney's Defense before the Graud Lodge of Illinois, on charge of unmasonic condnct in bringing Samnel L. Keith the mnrderer of Ellen Slade. and a member of his Lodge, to justice, with Judge Whitney's subsequent renunciation of Masonry,

An 8-page tract, $1.00 per 100; $8.00 per 1000

TRACT NO. 13:

DR. NATHANIEL COLVER ON MASONRY,

and

HOWARD CROSBY, D. D.,

Chancellor of the University of New York, on SECRET SOCIETIES. A donble 2-page tract 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 14:

GRAND LODGE MASONRY,

ITS RELATION TO CIVIL GOVERNMENT AND THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION.

Opening address before the Monmouth Convention, by PRES. J. BLANCHARD of WHEATON COLLEGE. This is a 16-page tract at $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 15:

MASONIC OATHS NULL AND VOID.

A clear and conclnsive argument proving the invalidity of any oath or obligation to do evil. By REV. I. A. HART, Secretary National Christian Association. Pnblished by special order of the Association. 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 16:

HON. SETH M. GATES ON FREEMASONRY.

PROOF THAT THE INSTITUTION THAT MURDERED MORGAN IS UNCHANGED IN CHARACTER

This is a letter to the Monmouth Convention by Hon. Seth M. Gates who was Depnty Sheriff of Genesee County, and also Secretary of the Leroy Lodge at the time of Morgan's Abduction. A 4-page tract, 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 17:

Origin, Obligations and Expenses of The Grange.

WITH A CONSTITUTION OF A FARMERS' CLUB.

This lIttle tract onght to be put into the hands of every Farmer in the United States. Fonr-page tract, 50 cents per 100; $4 00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 18:

HON. WM. H. SEWARD ON SECRET SOCIETIES.

Extracts from a Speech on now-Knothingism in the U. S. Senate in 1855. The testimony of JOHN QUINCY ADAMS, MILLARD FILLMORE, CHIEF JUSTIC MARSHALL and others, is added.

A 2-page tract, 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO, 19.

BRICKS FOR MASONS TO LAY.

WASHINGTON, MADISON, MARSHALL, RUSH, HANCOCK, ADAMS AND WEBSTER, give brief clear testimony against the Lodge A 2-page tract 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 20:

OBJECTIONS TO MASONRY.

By A SECEDING MASON, of Cornton, Vermont.

This tract contains many strong argnments against the Lodge drawn from personal experience, observation and stndy of its character. A 4-page tract at 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

TRACT NO. 21:

MASONIC CHASTITY.

BY EMMA A. WALLACE.

The author, by wonderfnlly clear illustration and argument, shows the terribly corrupt natnre of Freemasonry. No true woman who reads this will ever speak with approbation of this institntion A 4-page tract 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

TRACT No. 22.

LINUS CHITTENDEN ON FREEMASONRY.

The Author a Seceding Master Mason states his objection to the Lodge, drawn both from experience and observation, in a clear concise and forcible style,

A 2 page tract, 25 cents per 100, $2.00 per 1,000.

TRACT No. 23.

MASONIC OATHS AND PENALTIES.

ADDRESS OF REV, A. M. MILLIGAN AT THE PITTSBURGH CONVENTION.

This is the clearest and most conclnsive argnment to show the wickedness of masonic oaths and the duty to disregard and repent of them that we have ever seen.

A 4 page tract, 50 cents per 100, $4.00 per 1,000

TRACT NO. 1, IN SWEDISH;

translated by Prof. A. R. CERVIN. A 15-page tract at $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

ENOCH HONEYWELL'S TRACT.

TO THE YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA. Postage 5ets. per 100, TRACTS FREE.

GERMAN CYNOSUCE TRACT A.

Six Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason.

By Rev. A. GROLÆ, Pastor, German M. E. Church, Worchester, Mass

This is our first German Tract, and it is a good one; it ought to have a large circnlation. A 4 page tract, Price 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

FREE TRACTS.

A Tract Fund for the Free Distributirn of Tract

HAS BEEN SECURED AND SHOULD NEVER BE EXHAUSTED. A friend has pledged this fnnd a dollar for every other dollar received, so EVERY NEW SUBSCRIPTION TO THE TRACT FUND COUNTS DOUBLE, and thns $10.00 pays for 20,000 pages of tracts.

The distribntion of these tracts has already saved hundreds of yonng men from the lodge, bnt there is a great lack of fnnds to snpply the constantly increasing demand for Free Tracts.

During the year ending Jnly 1st, 1875 a little less than 150.000 pages of Cynosnre Tracts were gratnitonsly sent ont, mostly in very small lots. The present demand is fnlly 100.000 pages per month. but fnnds are lacking to meet it.

Many of our most earnest workers in thiscanse of God are poor men, who wonld be gladto circulate thonsands of pages of Antimasonic literature if they conld have them free.

SHALL WE NOT HAVE AN INEXHAUSTIBLE TRACT FUND?

"THE ANTI-MASONS SCRAP BOOK."

Contains 24 Cynosnre Tracts, bonnd together and is just the thing to select from. Price 20cents. See advertisement page 15.

Enoch Honeywell Esq., pays for an nnlimitednnmber of his tract addressed "To THE YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA." It is anexcelent tract, bearing the printed endorsement of Executive Committee of the National Christian Association1 He has fnrnished the pnblic over 150.000 pages ofthese tracts during the past year.

TRACTS FREE. If sent by mail, 5 cts. per 100 is charged for postage,

Send Contributions and orders to

EZRA A. COOK.

Secretary of Tract Committee 13 WabashAve, Chicago, Ill.

Descriptive Catalogue of Publications of Ezra A. Cook & Co.

13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

BOOKS.

FREEMASONRY EXPOSED,
by CAP'T. WILLIAM MORGAN.

THE GENUINE OLD MORGAN BOOK:—repnblished with engravings showing the Lodge Room, Dress of candidates, Signs, Due Guards, Grips, Etc.

This revelation is so accnrate that Freemasons mnrdered the author for writing it. Thonsands have testified to the correctness of the revelation and this book therefore sells very rapidly.

Price 25 cents.

Per Doz. Post Paid..... $2.00
Per hnndred by express, (express charges extra.).....$10.00

ODD FELLOWSHIP ILLUSTRATED.

A complete exposition of the Lodge Encampment and Rebecca (Ladies') Degree. The Signs, Grips, &c., shown by engravings.

Single copy, post paid,.....$ 25
Per Doz., " " 2 00
Per Hundred, Express charges extra,..... 10 00

EXPOSITION OF THE GRANGE.

EDITED BY REV. A. W. GEESLIN.

Illustrated with Engravings showing Lodge Room, Signs, Signals, etc.

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 25
Per Doz., " " 2 00
Per 100 Express charges extra..... 10 00

Judge Whitney's Defense Before the Grand Lodge of Ill.

Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the Lodge when S. L. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the Lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry.

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 20
Per Doz., " " 1 50
Per 100, Express charges extra..... 8 00

History of The Abduction and Murder of Cap't. Wm. Morgan,

As prepared by Seven Committees of Citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan.

This book contains indisputable, legal evidence that Freemasons, abducted and Murdered Wm. Morgan, for no other offence than the revelation of Masonry. It contains the sworn testimony of over twenty persons, including Morgan's wife, and no candid person after reading this book, can doubt that many of the most respectable FREEMASONS. in the Empire State, with others were concerned in this crime.

Single Copy, post Paid,... ..... 25 cents.
Per doz. " ..... $2,00.
Per 100, Express Charges Extra,..... 10.00.

Valance's Confession of The Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan.

This confession of Henry L. Valance, one of the three Freemasons who drowned Morgan in the Niagara River, was taken from the lips of the dying man by Dr. John C. Emery, of Racine County, Wisconsin in 1848; The confession bears clear evidence of trnthfnlness.

Single copy, post paid,..... 20 cents.
Per doz. " ..... $1.50.
Per 100 Express Charges Extra,..... 8.00.

The Mystic Tie or Freemasonry a League with the Devil.

This is an account of the Church Trial of Peter Cook, and wife of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a Reverend Freemason; and their very able defence presented by Mrs. Lucia C. Cook, in which she clearly shows that Freemasonry, is antagonistic to the Christian Religion. Single Copy, post paid,..... 20 cents

Per dozen, post paid..... $1 50
Per hundred Express charges Extra, ... 9 00

NARRATIVES AND ARGUMENTS.

Showing the Conflict of Secret Societies with the Constitution and Laws of the Union and of the States, by FRANCIS SEMPLE.

The fact that Secret Societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of Law is here clearly proved.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 20
Per doz. " $1.75
Per 100 Express charges Extra..... 9.00

THE BROKEN SEAL.

OR PERSONAL REMINISCENCES OF THE ABDUCTION AND MURDER OF Wm. MORGAN,

By SAMUEL D. GREENE,

Price in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

In Paper Covers per Doz. Post paid.....$4 50
" per hnndred by express (ex. charges extra $25.00

Capt. Wm. Morgan was Mr. Greene's neighbor in Batavia, N. Y., and a member of the same lodge with him at the time of the great excitement in 1826. The titles to these chapters are sufficiently exciting to give the book a large sale:—"The Storm Gathering;" "Abduction of Morgan;" "Attempted Abduction of Miller and his Rescue;" "What became of Morgan;" "What Morgan Actually Revealed;" "Confession of the Murderer;" "Allegations against Freemasonry, etc."

THE ANTI-MASON'S SCRAP BOOK,
CONSISTING OF 21 CYNOSURE TRACTS.

In this book are the views of more than a Score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of Secret Societies.

The dangerous tendency and positive evil of organized Secrecy is here shown by the most varied and powerful arguments and illnstrations that have ever been given to the public.

Lecturers and others who wish to find the best arguments against the Lodge, should send for this book.

Those who wish to circulate Antimasonic Tracts ought to have the book to select from.

Single Copy, post paid, ...20 cents.
Per Doz. " $1.75
Per 100, Express charges Extra,.....$10.00

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion.

A clear cutting argument against the Lodge, from a Christian Stand point.

Single Copy post paid.....$ 05
Por doz. " " 50
Per 100 Express Charges Extra..... 3 00

President H. H. GEORGE, On Secret Societies.

A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian Churches, to disfellowship Secret Societies.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 10 cts.
Per doz, " ..... 75 "
Per 100, Express charges Extra, ... $4.00.

PHELPS' SECRET SOCIETIES
Ancient and Modern.

A NEW BOOK OF GREAT INTEREST.

This work is particularly commended to the attention of Officers of The Army and Navy, The Bench and The Clergy.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

"THE ANTIQUITY OF SECRET SOCIETIES, THE LIFE OF JULIAN, THE ELEUSINIAN MYSTERIES, THE ORIGIN OF MASONRY, WAS WASHINGTON A MASON? FILMORE'S AND WEBSTER'S DEFERENCE TO MASONRY, A BRIEF OUTLINE OF THE PROGRESS OF MASONRY IN THE UNITED STATES, THE TAMMANY RING, MASONIC BENEVOLENCE, THE USES OF MASONRY, AN ILLUSTRATION, THE CONCLUSION."

Single Copy, Post Paid..... 50
Per Doz " " $4 75
Per Hundred, Express Charges Extra.....$25 00

HON. JOHN QUINCY ADAMS' LETTERS
to Col. Wm. Stone, Edward Livingstone,
and others, on the nature of
Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties.

Price, post paid..... $ 50
Per Doz., " 4 50
Per 100, Express Charges extra..... 25 00

COLLEGE SECRET SOCIETIES.

Their Customs, Character and the Efforts for their Suppression.
BY H. L. KELLOGG.

Containing the opinion of many prominent College Presidents, and others, and a FULL ACCOUNT OF THE MURDER OF MORTIMER LEGGETT

Single Copy, post paid.....$ 35
Per Doz " " 2 50
Per 100 Express charges extra..... 15 00

MINUTES OF THE SYRACUSE CONVENTION,

Containing addresses by Rev. B. T. Roberts, Chas. D. Greene, Esq., Prof. C. A. Blanchard, Rev. D. P. Rathbnn, Rev. D. S. Caldwell, Mrs. M. E. Gage, Elder J. R. Baird and others. Unpnblished Reminiscences of the Morgan Times, by Elder David Bernard; Recollections of the Morgan Trials, as related by Victory Birdseye, Esq., and presented by his danghter, Mrs. C. B. Miller; Secretary's report; roll of delegates; songs of Mr. G. A. Clark; paper by Enoch Honeywell; Constitntion N. C. A.; reports of committees, and a report of the political meeting.

Single Copy, post paid, ... 25
Per doz. " " $2.00
Per 100 Express Ccarges Extra..... 10.00

Paoceedings of the Pittsburgh Convention,

Containing Official Reports; Addresses by Rev. D. R. Kerr, D.D. Rev. S. T. Roberts, Rev. G. T. R. Meiser, Prof. J. R. W. Sloane, D. D., Prest. J. Blanchard, Rev. A. M. Milligan, D. D., Rev. Woodruff Post, Rev. Henry Cogswell, Prof. C. A. Blanchard, and Rev W. E. Coqnilette, also Report of the POLITICAL MASS CONVENTION, with Platform and Cadidates for the Presidential Campaign of 1876.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 25 cts.
Per doz " $2.00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 10.00

SERMON ON MASONRY,
BY REV. W. P. M'NARY,
Pastor United Presbyterian Church, Bloomington, Ind.

This is a very clear, thorongh, candid and remarkably concise Scriptnral argnment on the character of Freemasonry.

Single Copy, Post Paid,..... 5
Per Doz,..... 50
Per Hnndred, Express Charges Extra,.....$3 00

THIRTEEN REASONS

Why a Christian Should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong.

The author states his reasons clearly and carefully, and any one of the thirteen reasons, if properly considered, will keep a Christian ont of the Lodge.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 5
Per doz. " " 50
Per 100, Express charges extra,..... $3.00

SERMON ON MASONRY,
BY REV. JAMES WILLIAMS.

Presiding Elder of Dakota District North-western Iowa Conference, M. E. Church, A SECEDING MASTER MASON.

Published at the special request of the Nine Clergymen of different denominations and others.

Single Copy, post paid..... 10
Per doz. " " 75
Per 100, Express Charges Extra.....$4.00

MASONRY A WORK OF DARKNESS
ADVERSE TO CHRISTIANITY, and Inimical to a Republican Government.
BY REV. LEBBEUS ARMSTRONG, [Presbyterian.]
A Seceding Mason of 21 Degrees.

This is a very telling work and no honest man that reads it will think of joining the lodge. Single Copy, post paid,.....20cts.

Per doz, post paid,..... $1.50.
" 100, Express Charges Extra..... 8.00.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy.

Address of Prest. J. BLANCHARD, before the Pittsburgh Convention.

This is a most convincing argument against the lodge.

Single Copy, Post Paid.....$ 05
Per Doz " " 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

GRAND LODGE MASONRY.

Its relation to civil Government and the Christian Religion.
By Prest. J. BLANCHARD, at the Monmouth Convention.

The Unchristian, anti-repnblican and despotic character of Freemasonry is here proved from the highest masonic authorities.

Single Copy, Post Paid,.....$ 05
Per Doz..... 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

SERMON ON SCERETISM
BY REV. R. THEO. CROSS.

This is a very clear array of the objections to Masonry that are apparent to all.

By Rev. R. T. Cross, Pastor Congregational Church, Hamilton, N.Y.

Single Copy, Post Paid..... $ 05
Per Doz..... 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

HISTORY OF THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought; The Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association, Conditions of the Carpenter Donation with Engraving of building to be donated by Mr. Carpenter; Tables showing the number of Pastors and communicants in church es that exclude members of Secret Societies, Tabular view of Local, County State and National Conventions, and list of organizations Auxiliary to the National Christian Association; Brief opinions of Eminent Men on Secret Societies, and Testimonies of Religious Bodies against them. This book will be found invaluable by all who wish to know the character of this reform and how they may do the most to further its objects. It should be in the hands of every Antmason.

Price post paid,.....25 cents each,
per doz;.....$1,50
25 copies or more by express at 8 cents each.

IN PRESS!

HAND BOOK
—OF—
FREEMASONRY,

A COMPLETE

Illustrated Exposition,

—OF—

BLUE LODGE
MASONRY

—BY—

EDMOND RONAYNE,

LATE PAST MASTER OF KEYSTONE LODGE, NO. 639, CHICAGO, ILL.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 50cts.
Per doz. " " $4.00
Per 100, Express Cearges Extra,..... 25.00

RITUAL OF THE
GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC

WITH SIGN OF RECOGNITION,
PASS WORD GRIP ETC,

—AND THE—

RITUAL OF THE

MACHINISTS AND BLACKSMITHS' UNION,

(THE TWO BOUND TOGETHER.)

Single Copy, post paid,..... 25
Per doz. " $2.00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra,..... 1000

Publishers' Department.

Prospect for Clubs.

A few weeks ago the following was presented in the Cynosure: "ONE HUNDRED NEW SUBSCRIPTIONS FOR THE CYNOSURE—WHAT A FINE CENTENNIAL OFFERING THAT WOULD BE." J. A. Conant, Willimantic, Conn., thought so and sent ONE HUNDRED AND ONE new subscriptions for six months each. He writes: "I have not the gift of procuring subscribers, but being anxious that the Cynosure should make its weekly visits to as many of the people of Connecticut as possible, I have concluded to make an investment." This is a noble example which others who cannot obtain subscribers and yet have money, may perhaps follow.

Dr. H. W. Marsh, Elmwood, Ill., sends FORTY-TWO subscriptions which he says: "I have obtained by persistent, earnest work. I set my mark for twenty five, as I expected that would be the best possible. I commenced two months ago and have succeeded beyond my most sanguine expectations." We see that a long pull as well as a strong one with God's blessing added is what brings subscribers. This is the largest list of subscribers sent in by any canvasser at one time, this season. Our General Agent, J. P. Stoddard, brings in a list of fifteen from Pennsylvania. He does not want to be left out of the list of those who send in clubs of ten or more. Miss Katie Bohrer, Bloomington, Ill., sends in a club of eleven raised by her grandfather and herself in this "nest of secretism," as she terms that city. Wm. Worth, Starksboro, Vt., sends a club of thirteen. E. Van Fossen, Adel, Iowa, sends a club of eleven. J. M. Fry, Ligonier, Ind., sends seven for a year and six for six months, which is equivalent to a club of ten. A. Hutsenpiller, Cerro Gordo, Ill., sends a club of ten and writes: "If I have in so doing dealt a blow that will help to bruise the serpent's head, I am paid." Gideon Preston, Woodstock, N. Y., sends in ten. Rev. J. C. King, Mecklenburg, Va., sends in a club of ten. Lewis Axtel and John Milner, Greenfield, O., unitedly send ten. Wm. W. Blanchard, Paxton, Ill., sends a club of ten for a year and one for six months, and writes that they hope to get more. N. B. Corning, Lanark, Ill., sends ten for a year and one for six months. Thirteen clubs of ten or more in one week! That looks like work and success. It means a great deal of work. Keep the ball rolling. Clubs of ten are now $17.00. How many of them shall we have? Will not those who have not yet sent in clubs, respond. The following have sent in clubs of five or more: Wm. S. Barnes, Farmer City, Ill.; I. B. Swan, Tamaroga, Ill.; E. H. Reed, Webster City, Ia.; S. French, Chapin, Ill. (he adds eight to his club of twelve previously sent in); Rev. S. McArthur, New Concord, O.; E. J. Hayes, Middlefield, O., and A. E. Jenks, Cheshire, Mass.

LATER.

Since writing the above four more clubs of ten or more have been received. Twelve from A. B. Frantz, Martinsburg, Ind., ten from Wm. Nickle, Nickleville, Pa., ten from Amos Furlow, Hicksville, O., and ten from John Hubbard, Freedom, Ill. Jas. McConnell, Ligonier, Ind., writes that his club of fifty is secured. E. Romayne adds six to his club previously sent in. H. W. Clark, Geneva Lake, Wis., sends in a club of five.

THE CYNOSURE DEBT.

On the 1st of Dec. the debt was	$3,366 51
" " " Jan., 1876, " "	1,817.81
Paid on debt in Dec.	$ 548.70

This is encouraging. More than four times as much as was paid on the debt in November and more than one-fourth as much as the debt that remains. We will let you know when the time comes, how the debt stands (if there is any) February first.

QUARTERLY CYNOSURE REPORT.

Four hundred and sixty whose subscriptions expired in December have not yet renewed and so our quarterly report is not so good as it otherwise would be. The number of subscribers Jan. 3d, 1876, is 3,444, exchanges, sixty nine, total, 3,513. Let us aim to do all in our power to add one thousand to this number during the quarter ending April first. Can we do it? TRY.

Notice our new club rates on the sixteenth page:

Two subscriptions,	$ 4 00
Five "	9.00
Ten "	17 00
Fifteen "	24.00
Twenty "	30.00

Letters received concerning Episcopalianism will receive our attention soon

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO, Jan. 4, 1876.

Grain Wheat—Spring, No. 1	$	1 06
" No. 2	95¼	96¾
" No. 3		78½
" Rejected	63½	64½
Corn—No. 2		45
Rejected	34	35
Oats—No. 2	30	30¼
Rejected		26
Rye—No. 2		67½
Bran per ton	10 00	10 25
Flour—Winter	4 75	7 50
Spring	3 00	5 25
Hay—Timothy	10 00	13 00
Prairie, "	8 50	9 50
Mess Beef	9 50	11 00
Tallow	8¾	09
Dressed Hogs	7 85	7 95
Lard per cwt		12 17½
Mess pork, per bbl		19 10
Butter fancy yellow 32c.; common to choice roll	18	25
Cheese	9	13
Eggs	24	25
Seeds—Timothy	2 20	2 50
Clover	7 05	7 15
Flax	1 40	1 42½
Poultry—Turkeys per lb dressed	12½	13½
Chickens " "	6	9
Potatoes	35	7½
Apples from store	3 00	3 ½
Broom corn		2
HIDES green to dry salted	5½	12¼
Lumber—Clear	38 00	42 00
Common	11 00	12 00
Fencing	12 00	13 00
Shingles	2 75	3 00
WOOL—Washed	38	52
Unwashed	25	33
LIVE STOCK Cattle, Choice		5 50
Good	4 40	4 65
Medium		4 00
Common	2 50	3 75
Hogs	6 70	7 20
Sheep	3 75	5 25

New York Market.

Flour	$ 4 25	9 00
Wheat—Winter	1 47	1 50
Spring	98	1 32
Corn	60	74
Oats	44	50
Rye	88	95
Lard		12¾
Mess pork		20 75
Butter	16	31
Cheese	6	12½
Eggs	28	30

NEW CLUB RATES

—FOR—

1876.

CLUB RATES.

No commission is allowed on club rates. Club rates are intended for those who wish to give the commission to subscribers.

Club Rates Including Postage.

Papers Addressed to one or different Post Offices as desired.

4 to 4 Subs., 1 year, Old or New sent at one time, at	$2.00 each
5 to 9 " " " " " "	1 80 "
10 to 14 " " " " " "	1.70 "
15 to 19 " " " " " "	1.60 "
20 or more " " " " " "	1.50 "

Subscription Papers and Circulars sent free on application.

Agents Wanted!

TO SELL THE PUBLICATIONS OF

EZRA A. COOK & CO.

Liberal Terms Offered.

Capable persons who are in need of pecuniary aid may clear

Handsome Profits,

While at the same time aiding the cause of Reform. Apply to EZRA A. COOK & CO., No. 13 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

TERMS FOR THE CYNOSURE.

$2.00 per annum, in advance.
20c " " " " for postage.

All who canvass for the CYNOSURE are allowed a cash commission of twenty per cent. or twenty-five per cent in books at retail prices, one-half this percentage on renewals, and any one sending $100. for the CYNOSURE during three months, will be entitled to an extra five per cent.

All responsible persons who desire to promote this reform are authorized to act as agents.

$250 A MONTH—Agents wanted everywhere, Business honorable and first class. Particulars sent Address J. WORTH & Co., St. Louis, Mo 1yrJul

SAVE MONEY

by sending $4.75 for any $4 Magazine and THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE (regular price $6), or $5.75 for the Magazine and THE SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE (regular price $3). Address

THE TRIBUNE, New-York.

$77 A WEEK guaranteed to Male and Female Agents, in their locality. Costs NOTHING to try it. Particulars Free. P. O. VICKERY & CO., Augusta, Me. 6m.dec.30-75.

SOMETHING NEW.

A CHART OF MASONRY

Showing the degrees from the first to the thirty-third, entitled

Degrees of Ancient Accepted Scottish Freemasonry,

According to a Manual by Wm. M. Cunningham 33d Degree.

Designed by Rev. P. Stoddard, to explain Freemasonry, as shown by Morgan's Exposition and Richardson's Monitor.

A Neat Lithograph 22x28 Inches.

Single copies finely colored, post paid	$ 75
Per dozen " " " "	5 00
Per 100 " " " " Express charges extra	35 00
Single copy, colored, varnished and mounted postpaid	1 00
Per dozen colored, varnished and mounted, post paid	7 50
Per 100, colored, varnished and mounted, express charges extra	50 00

25 COPIES OR MORE SENT AT THE 100 RATES.

Excelsior Marriage Certificate.

It is decidedly the most BEAUTIFUL, TASTEFUL and SENSIBLE thing of the kind I have ever seen."—Rev. F. G. Hibbard, D. D.

"The most SCRIPTURAL, BEAUTIFUL and APPROPRIATE Marriage Certificate I have ever seen."—Late Rev. H. Mattison, D. D.

"SOMETHING NEW AND BEAUTIFUL, which we pronounce the handsomest thing of the kind we ever laid eyes on."—Meth. Home Journal, Phila. Contains two Ornamental Ovals, for Photographs

A BEAUTIFUL LITHOGRAPH 14 1-4 by 18 1-4 Inches. 25 cts each, $2.25 per doz- $15 per 100.

For Sale by Ezra A. Cook & Co., CHICAGO.

ESTABLISHED 1867.

EZRA A. COOK & CO.,

STEAM PRINTERS

LITHOGRAPHERS,

STATIONERS

—AND—

Book Binders.

NOS. 7, 9, 11 & 13

Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

We were in the Stationery, Printing and Lithographing business before the Cynosure was started.

WE PRINT

Books, Pamphlets, Catalogues, Business Cards, Show Cards, Letter Heads, Bill Heads, Note Heads, Circulars, Hand Bills, Posters, Checks, Drafts, Notes, Certificates of Deposit, Certificates of Stock, Diplomas, etc.,

WE BIND

Blank Books, Magazines, Catalogues, Checks, Drafts, Notes, Certificates, Bank Pass Books, Etc., Etc.

WE LITHOGRAPH

Business Cards, Letter Heads, Note Heads, Bill Heads, Circulars, Checks, Drafts, Certificates of Stock, Certificates of Deposit, Plats and Charts; also elegant Diplomas for Colleges, Literary Societies, and Agricultural Societies, in one, two or three Colors. Samples and Prices sent on Application.

All work executed in the

BEST STYLE,

at the

LOWEST MARKET RATES.

WE FILL ORDERS PROMPTLY, and GUARANTEE GOOD WORK.

SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO ORDERS BY MAIL.

Samples and prices sent promptly when desired.

Address:

EZRA A. COOK & CO.,

7, 9, 11 & 13 Wabash Avenue,

CHICAGO.

THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.

"In Secret Have I Said Nothing."—Jesus Christ.

EZRA A. COOK & CO., PUBLISHERS, NO 13 WABASH AVENUE.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 13, 1876.

VOL. VIII., NO. 14.—WHOLE NO. 301
WEEKLY (post paid) $2 20 A YEAR

Contents.

	Page
TOPICS OF THE TIME	1
EDITORIAL ARTICLES:
Editorial Correspondence	8
The Galesburg Funeral	8
The Carpenter Donation	8
CONTRIBUTED AND SELECT ARTICLES:
Hon. Henry Wilson as a Reformer	1
The Great-and-Good-Man Argument for Bad Institutions	2
Pennsylvania Catholics Admonished	3
Our Foreign Letter—Berlin	3
Independent Masonry in Boston	3
REFORM NEWS AND NOTICES.
Northern Pennsylvania	5
CORRESPONDENCE:
Masonry and Holiness; The Way the Money Goes; What a Minnesota Baptist Proposes; Trials of a Testifying Presbyterian Minister; Our Mail	5, 6
HAND-BOOK OF FREEMASONRY, by Past Master E. Ronayne	12
THE HOME CIRCLE	10
CHILDREN'S CORNER	11
Temperance	4
The Sabbath School	7
Home and Health Hints	7
Religious Intelligence	9
News of the Week	9
Publishers' Department	16

AGAIN ATTENTION is called to the Publisher's department and club work, which loses none of its interest or importance with the new year. ALSO be sure to mark what is said of the Carpenter Donation on this and other pages.

THE STATE auxiliaries will find the full official list on 7th page of value.

Take Notice, Friends!

April 1st, 1876, is near at hand and if that time arrives and finds us with the ten thousand dollars unsecured upon which Mr. Carpenter's proposed donation is based, then the N. C. A. forfeits all claim upon the property and loses a splendid opportunity to secure a home and financial basis for the anti-secrecy reform. Will not the friends bear this in mind and report their offerings to the Treasurer soon.

J. P. STODDARD.

Notice to Illinois.

I wish to visit every town and village in Northern and Central Illinois during the months of April and May and publicly work the Masonic degrees for two or three evenings in each place as may be agreed upon. Being an old member of the Grand Lodge of Illinois I am desirous of striking as heavy a blow possible here in my own State. Will the Anti-masonic friends in each locality see to it at once that arrangements are made to carry this programme into effect and communicate directly with this office. Papers friendly to the cause will confer a favor by giving this notice extended publicity.

E. RONAYNE, Past Master Keystone Lodge, No. 639, Chicago.

—Last month the question debated before the Parliament of Harvard University Law School was, "Ought a law be passed prohibiting members of secret societies from serving as jurors, or being witnesses in cases in courts." It was ably discussed and well ventilated.

Topics of the Time.

It puts the silver on the edge of a pretty dark cloud to read the record of the retiring clerk of the House of Representatives. Mr. McPherson, who has held that responsible position for twelve years under the Republican majority, has in the course of his official duties disbursed over six million dollars and on settlement with the Treasury department a balance was found in his favor of one dollar and sixty-six cents.

On Washington's Birthday, Feb. 22nd, next, the National Prohibition party will hold a convention at Cleveland, Ohio, when it is proposed to nominate a Presidential ticket. Not long since the executive committee of the so-called "Independent" party issued a call for a national nominating convention to meet in Indianapolis next May 17th. The activity of politicians and inn-keepers for other party conventions warns us, also, that the year is to be one of factious strife. It would be a glorious illustration of the integrity of American principles if this wretched party business could for once be dropped and our citizens manage the election of their chief executive with the simplicity and and dignity with which the wish of the people became known to the earlier Presidents.

While such hopes are futile it is something remarkable what a big fight will be got up with so little difference in principles. The two conventions mentioned above have to be sure, distinctive tenets; one the temperance reform, the other inflated currency, with national bankruptcy at the bottom of the paper-money box. But all the parties are one on the general principles of reform in government; and unless the school question strides to the front, will not have points of difference enough to warrant the expense and bad blood begotten in a political campaign. Those seeking an honest statement of these principles never turn away without serious thought from the platform adopted last year at Pittsburgh, and of which Walker and Kirkpatrick are the representatives. A gentleman who has served with distinction on the Western bench, and a quiet but persistent advocate of the reform presented by this platform, was recently in Boston and became interested in the literary discussions of the Harvard Law School. On one occasion, when the question of a new party was before the house, he heard a general echo of the principles of that platform, which he took occasion to introduce as an actual embodiment of the ideas of the debaters, now before the American people.

Hon. Henry Wilson as a Reformer.

BY PROF. J. C. WEBSTER.

Hon. Henry Wilson, late Vice-President of the United States, was born in 1812 at Farmington, N. H. He began to attract public attention about the year 1840, at Natick, Middlesex county, in his adopted State of Massachusetts. His occupation at the time was the honorable one of a boot and shoe maker; hence his title of "The Natick Cobbler." The elements of his character which then began to develop themselves and laid the foundation of his subsequent and enviable reputation were his passionate fondness for reading, intellectual culture and a high degree of moral integrity. His previous opportunities for education had been very limited. Different from many young men his taste lay in the direction of mental and moral culture. Nor did he seek such culture more earnestly as an end in itself than as a means to some practically useful purpose; and it was this latter object that made him emphatically a moral and political reformer. It was in this character that the writer of this article first became acquainted with him at the temperance and anti-slavery meetings in our respective and neighboring towns.

Thus early he became an able advocate of total abstinence from the use, as a beverage, of all intoxicating drinks. As such his influence was widely and deeply felt throughout the country, nor, in all his after years, and in the most tempting positions among ladies and gentlemen whose notions of politeness included the propriety of the social glass, is it believed that he never forfeited his reputation for consistent adherence to his principles. As an active member of the Congressional Temperance Society, on the floor of the House and the Senate, and on all other suitable occasions he was ready to express his opinions and in a manner which made his influence tell for the good cause. The very magnanimity of his position secured for him the respect even of those who differed from him in both opinion and practice. His high standard for personal duty was accompanied also with a deep and sincere pity for the debased victims of their appetites.

Again, it should be remembered to the distinguished honor of Mr. Wilson, that he was one of the first in Washington to take an open and decided stand in opposition to the southern false "code of honor." He was repeatedly challenged to fight a duel. Some of his friends urged him to accept, but he promptly declined. At the same time he took measures to defend himself in case of an attack, which, for weeks and months, at one period, he had reason to fear. So that when he left his lodgings in the morning to go upon the street and to his place at the Capitol, he would kiss his wife and bid her adieu with a feeling, as he has told us, that it might be the last time the chivalrous assassins would permit him to return alive. But he never betrayed his fears. Even when his life was threatened he would walk up and down Pennsylvania Avenue for no other purpose than to evince his self-composure and an indisposition to avoid assault. In those times, as we have seen them, when the southern blood was hot for revenge, a bolder attitude than his can scarcely be imagined. Indeed the fearlessness of his mien and a true moral heroism were his protection.

The same inherent traits of character induced Mr. Wilson to take an active part on the side of the oppressed in the "irrepressible conflict." In the early anti-slavery conventions and on the question of the moral right or wrong of the "peculiar institution" his voice uttered no uncertain sound. He at once saw the wrong and as quickly condemned it. He saw the right and as readily vindicated it. His clear moral perception united with his sympathetic nature led him to ignore all prejudice of rank, race, or color in the advocacy of the equal rights of men. For similar reasons he was decidedly opposed to all "rings," privileged orders, monopolies, and secret societies, as utterly inconsistent with the free institutions of our country, its professed equality of citizenship, and consequently destructive to the peace of society and the prosperity of the nation. On these points he is worthy of a rank with Wirt, Seward and the Adamses of our land.

Nor is it indicative of a lack of practical wisdom that Mr. Wilson was not as early in his efforts to apply his principles in all cases as some others thought he ought, or even as he himself thought desirable. On the subject of slavery he was not ready to unite with those who separated from other parties, and in 1840 nominated Hon. James G. Birney, the first "Liberty" candidate for the presidency of the United States. He simply thought the time had not come for a distinct political organization. At that time he was an honest and zealous Whig. Like the Puritans, rather than the Separatists of Queen Elizabeth's time, he was one of those who hoped that the Whig party might be reformed and induced to take anti-slavery ground. Nor was it till 1848, that he, Mr. Allen of Massachusetts withdrew from the Whig convention at Philadelphia, because it refused to adopt the Wilmot Proviso, so called, aiming at the restriction of slavery to its then present limits. From that time he became the leader of that wing of the party called "Conscience Whigs." He was surprised to find so many—some forty—of the members following to another hall for the purpose of forming a distinct organization on the principle of the non extension of slavery, or no more slave territory. As the result of that step the "Liberty Party" of 1840, and the subsequent "Freesoil Party" became united with the "Conscience Whigs" and others, under the present name of "Republican."

Politics was Mr. Wilson's genial as well as chosen sphere of labor and reform. Such was the natural bent of his mind. But in no obnoxious sense was he a party man. With him principle predominated. He was above the tricks of wily politicians. He did not seek office—office sought him. In his own opinion and feeling he was, in no sense, one of those who assume that they are born to rule. He did not seek so much to shape public opinion to his views as to conform himself in common with others to the rising and commanding sentiment among the people of universal and impartial political freedom. He was an effect as much as a cause of that sentiment. He was a specimen brought to the surface of human life by one of the great moral upheavings that every now and then occur to bring to view the nature of the true foundation of a great political fabric; or one of those gems cast up on the shores of time by the ocean-like waves of public sentiment, to give new brilliancy to the stars that sparkle on our nation's banner. While Mr. Sumner, his noble colleague in the nation's councils, was providentially chosen from the aristocracy to carry over the more cultured and classic portions of society to the great work of emancipation, Mr. Wilson was emphatically from the people, one of the people, and carried the masses along with him in the great reform. He was also the representative of the love rather than the law side of reform. He was not so much of a political Luther as a political Melancthon. While frank and decided in the expression of his opinions of systems, he was considerate of the feelings and character of men. Stocked with good common sense, he seldom made enemies even of those most violently opposed to his principles; because he had no personal resentments to gratify. Hence since the close of the great rebellion, he has been among those who have sought to reconstruct society, and unite the discordant elements of the country by kind and conciliatory measures.

With such a nature under the light of Christianity, Mr. Wilson could not always remain unmindful of his higher obligations to his Creator. From the beginning of his career, always on the side of Christian morals and institutions, it was not till about ten years ago that he expressed an experimental interest in the great salvation, and united with the Congregational church of Christ, in Natick. From that time he has been ready to vindicate the cause of the Master, and has seemed to ripen in Christian mellowness as he approached near the end of life.

As an industrious worker in his sphere we doubt whether Mr. Wilson has his superior in our country. He was an incessant reader, wrote many able articles for the periodicals of the day, and probably attended more conventions, delivered more public addresses, and in more States of the Union than any other man. He cut short his days by over work. Less than sixteen months ago he said to the writer, with reference to his paralytic attack, that he was suffering in consequence of having been obliged in his position, from lack of early education and mental discipline, "to do three day's work in one." No one depreciated such lack more than himself, or objected more strongly to being cited as an example of a "self-made" man for the encouragement of youth, who, from laziness or a mistaken opinion, flatter themselves that a college training is unnecessary to fit them for the greatest usefulness.

Mr. Wilson had perhaps as little faculty as taste for the accumulation of wealth. His motives were higher and purer. He lived and died comparatively a poor man. But he was rich in the confidence and affections of most valuable friends. Nor can the public probably ever know its indebtedness, through him, to such friends as ex-Governor Claflin and wife of Mass., for their sympathy with him in his trials, and their moral and material aid in his reformatory labors. They were to him what John O'Gaunt was to Wickliffe, and Huten, Sickengen and Schaumburg, noblemen of Germany, were to Luther. And in connection we think of him very naturally, as almost the last representative of a galaxy of such moral heroes as Giddings, Hale, Burlingame, Lovejoy, and Sumner, who gave each other their more public mutual support in our country's last great moral and political contest for freedom.

Aside from Mr. Wilson's official and public acts, the chief monument which he has left of his usefulness is the great work in three large volumes, entitled, "The Rise and Fall of Slavery in the United States;"—a work worthy and destined to occupy a place among the standard histories of our country, and times. And it is a matter of thankfulness that, in the preparation and completion of this work, he had the assistance of such a private Secretary as the Rev. Samuel Hunt, his early and much esteemed pastor, a ripe scholar and thorough abolitionist.

It is not difficult to point out peculiarities and failings in the best of men, and especially reformers. In fact it is too much the custom at the present day. With some it seems to be their special calling and delight. But we confess to very little taste for such business. We prefer to magnify the virtues of the truly great and good, and to go backward and throw the mantle of charity over their faults. In the case, however, of this narrative, there is very little call for the exercise of such charity. None of our public men have a more unsullied reputation for virtue. We know of no stain upon his moral character. Nor is there a name in the political annals of our country worthy of being held in higher estimation or a fonder and longer remembrance than that of Henry Wilson.

Wheaton College.

The Great-and-Good-Man Argument for Bad Institutions.

BY ELD. NATHAN CALLENDER.

We come next to consider the limitations of the argument for bad institutions founded on so-called good and great men.

First let us mark the very significant fact that though some good men may by some agency, satanic or human, get into these bad societies, yet they had their origin with thoroughly bad men, are composed by the vast majority of bad men, and are worked and controlled by them. If a few good men, compared with the whole, argue in favor of these societies, what shall we say of the multitude of infidel, ungodly men who originated and control them? If the argument is of any value it is this: Pro—some good men have joined the society hence it cannot be bad, must be good; Con—bad men invented it, bad men rule it and the vast majority of the men in it are bad, hence it cannot be very good—must be mainly bad. Such is the argument in this direction and that. Secondly let us do our best to determine in what sense and how far these great and good men were Masons. As to Gen. Washington we have the best of evidence that he was virtually a seceder from the institution, even before the system was spread out to public inspection by the Morgan murder and investigation which followed. Had he lived in 1826 to 1830 it is idle to affirm that he would not have been an Anti-mason and that he would not have thundered against it as vigorously as did J. Q. Adams and scores more like him in talents and statesmanship. Dr. Franklin is claimed as a Mason. This may account for the infidel proclivities of his early manhood perhaps. That he was caught in the trap of French Masonry and its infidel tendencies is not surprising. His mission to the French Court and his intimacy with Lafayette, who was a French Mason, would naturally draw him in far enough to see and loathe its character. That Dr. Franklin became an advanced Mason, and when so acquainted with it loved and adhered to the system, is more than any one can believe without the most unexceptional testimony. We do not dispute it, but call for such evidence as is needed to show that a Franklin could love and adhere to a system of unmitigated despotism through life. Will the Cynosure give us information on this subject, or any one who knows? Nothing is more frequent in these days than for Masons and their sympathizers to claim "all the great men of the nation" as supporters and members of these orders. Sometimes the claim is nearly all, abating a little the assumption. In weighing this claim it is necessary to make a heavy allowance for the reckless braggadocio incident to that system, loaded with all sorts of unreasonable assumptions, pompous and blasphemous titles, etc. We will venture the assertion that very few, if any, of the truly great men of our nation, in state and church, lived and died adhering Masons. How many of those who were some time in their life drawn into the lodge received, at their own request, a Masonic burial? Did Andrew Jackson, James K. Polk, James Buchanan? These Presidents, with Andrew Johnson, are the only ones to our knowledge who were, save Washington, Masons at all. How many of these adhered to and recognized Masonry within the year of their death? Thos. Jefferson, James Madison and we think James Monroe were not Masons. Gen. Washington and the Adams were Anti-masons. Daniel Webster, Hon. Richard Rush, Edward Everett, Wm. H. Seward, Charles Sumner, and a host of such men have put their record with the opposition to secret societies. Add to the scores and hundreds of great men of state who opposed the lodge, the hundreds of such men as the Blanchards, Finney, Walker, Sloan, Fairchild. In view of such facts how arrogant the declaration, "All the great and good men are Masons!" With as much show of truth and propriety it might be declared, all the great and good are papists, whiskey dealers, slave holders or infidels. But stop, ye Anti-masons! Do ye not not know that all real goodness and greatness is found in the "mystic" bond? That is the grand secret of secrets "couched in our holy art" and all such as oppose our "sublime craft" are by necessity "in little business" and of course, are mean and little. That is precisely what Masonry teaches its deluded votaries when it manufactures and uses the oft repeated term cowan. Cowan to the Mason is like Gentile to the Mormon. It means to both the uninitiated outsider, "dirty dog" some say. From this standpoint it is easy to prove that all the great and good are Masons. Has not Masonry as well as Mormonism its Danites? Masonry never counts out any of its great names till compelled to. Very many of the great men whom the craft claim sustain a similar relation to Masonry to that of Hon. Richard Rush, who says, "Many years ago I became an Entered Apprentice, went to lodge once, and but once. On my return from England, I voluntarily withdrew from the body, by a letter to that effect." But for such a public "coming out from among them" you might find them blazing abroad the names of scores who wiped off the foul spot, as all should see to doing during lifetime. Such a course will take off the names of thousands of lodge-sick souls from the foul Masonic register where stand recorded a long list of distinguished names of men who hated the lodge when on earth, some of whom have been dead many years. But their names are kept on the register year after year, marked among the dead. Masonry cannot afford to lose its great names even by the hand of death. Absolute renunciation is the only way to wipe off the stain.

Pennsylvania Catholics Admonished.

Whatever may be the ultimate object of the Romish church in prohibiting secret societies the late letter of the Archbishop of Philadelphia to his people is well worth an examination for its statement of the evils connected with these orders and for its straightforward prohibition of a grievous and sinful connection which some evangelical churches fellowship and foster. It is as follows:

To the Venerable Clergy and Beloved People of the Laity, Greeting, Peace and Benediction:

"For every one who doeth evil, hateth the light, and cometh not to the light, that his works may not be reproved."—St. John lii. chap. 20 v.

It is a fact too well known to need any proof at this day, that the Catholic church, through her reverend Head, the Sovereign Pontiff, has again and again condemned and censured all secret societies, properly so-called, as dangerous to civil society, and injurious to the interests of religion—that she has warned her children to beware of permitting themselves to be induced, by the prospect of any real or imaginary advantage, to enter such societies, that she has, by threat of excommunication to be incurred, ipso facto, striven to prevent their associating themselves with them; and that, by the infliction of the severest ecclesiastical censures on those who have allowed themselves to be associated, she has endeavored to withdraw them from these influences, which, enlightened by the Spirit of God, and the sad admonitions of past experience, she knows to be fatal to sound faith, Christian piety and good morals.

As we know from most reliable sources, and indeed of our own personal knowledge, that most insidious efforts have been, and are being made, in many parts of our diocese, and probably throughout the whole country, to blind and deceive the faithful, and to entangle them in the meshes and shackles of these unlawful and forbidden societies, it becomes our duty to call to the minds of our people the action of the church in this matter; to warn them to refrain from any alliance with them; and earnestly to exhort all who may have violated this prohibition of the church, to leave these evil associations, and, by a speedy and sincere penance, to seek reconciliation with the church.

To say nothing of the Masons, Oddfellows, Sons of Temperance, etc., about whose condemnation no doubt can exist, these societies are known by various other appellations; such, for example, as the National Brotherhood, condemned by the Bishops of Ireland; the Fenian Brotherhood, whose efforts to aggregate members to their association in this country are unscrupulous and unceasing, and, in addition to these, the Molly Maguires, otherwise the Ancient Order of Hibernians, or the Buckshots, and others whose spirit is equally objectionable, and whose names seem to be selected rather to conceal than to indicate the object of their association.

We admonish, also, our reverend clergy affectionately to instruct and warn their flocks, calling to their minds the spirit of docility and obedience, which should animate them, and the holy alacrity with which they should labor to conform themselves in all things to the commands and desires of the church, and to avoid, with the most scrupulous care, all that she disapproves and condemns—to place before them, on one hand, the rewards and blessings which will follow such a course, and on the other hand, the true character of the extreme ecclesiastical censures which a contrary mode of action will precipitate upon them.

Thus, by the united and harmonious action of pastors and people, we shall neutralize the bad influences which misguided, mistaken and perverse men attempt to force upon us, and shall perserve our faith untainted, our piety, active and vigorous, and our morals pure.

"So let your light shine before men, that they may see your good works and glorify your Father who is in heaven.—St. Matthew v. chap. 16 v.

"And the peace of God, which surpasseth all understanding, keep your hearts and minds in Christ Jesus. Amen."—Phil. iv. chap. 7 v.

See sixteenth page.

Our Foreign Letter.

BERLIN AND ITS SIGHTS.

Germans in America like to boast of their weather. Their winters, they say, are not so cold and their summers not so hot; the sun shines less glaringly and the moon more brightly; their drouths are less killing and their rains less chilling. Their opinions are better accounted for by mental than natural philosophy. A rainy day, seen from a home window is quite different from the same day felt in the streets of a strange city while looking for a place to lay one's head. A dreary, dismal rain accompanied us to Berlin and continued with a single day's exception till our return, nearly a week later. Notwithstanding its depressing effect we noticed some pleasant features in the landscape on the way. The woods were clothed in their many tinted fall robes, and the flat green fields carried, here and there, a tracery of trees which marked the winding course of a clear brook four or five feet wide.

Berlin is, like other large cities, expensive for the traveler. Hotel charges have kept pace with the growing importance of the Imperial capital. Those who wish to remain a week or two can reduce their expenses to about $1 per day by taking furnished rooms with a private family on the third or fourth floor and having the servant bring them their meals. The principal architectural beauties of the city can be seen in an hour's walk along the famous "Unter den Linden" and a few other streets near by. Near the Brandenburg Thor on the west is the beautiful monument of Victory. The massive stone pedestal adorned with reliefs commemorating German triumphs in war, is surmounted by a hall on Doric columns, above which rises a circular tower crowned by a female figure representing victory. The whole is 190 feet high. In passing into the street just mentioned the traveller must avoid the middle passage. That is reserved for royalty. "Under den Linden" now lies before him and he will probably vote the trees which give the name (Under the Lindens) a swindle. The "Linden Allee" in Hanover of the same length (one mile), shows the favorite German tree to much better advantage. The four rows of ancient lindens there form arbors for the whole length of the street. The buildings, too will compare very unfavorably with what the Americans have seen at home. They are almost without exception built of brick (of a poor quality, judging from those that were in progress of erection), and coated with a cement said to be very durable. Near the middle of the street the "Passage," one of the finest covered arcades in Europe, leads to the next street south. Passing this the bronze monument of Frederick the Great is seen at the eastern extremity of "Unter den Linden." On the continuation of the street (which does not terminate with the name), close by the statue are the palaces of the Emperor and Crown Prince, the University, the Opera and the Royal Guard House. Crossing the Spree, the Royal Palace, the Museums and Cathedral are seen around the Lust Garten.

From this place by a few minutes walk, Monbijou Palace and the Jewish Synagogue can be reached. The last place should be visited at dusk on Friday evening. Gentlemen will be politely requested to leave their ladies at the door leading to the galleries, their canes or umbrellas in the vestibule, their hats on their heads and then to enter the richly ornamented Principal Synagogue which, with the ladies' galleries, will seat over 4000. The dim religious light proceeding from the stained glass windows, the domes and the candles around the altar, the chanting of the priests, and the responses of the singers (boys and men), accompanied by the grand organ, now loud and strong and again soft and low like distant echoes, almost enchant the listless traveler, and must have a powerful effect on the devout Jew. What must have been the splendor of the temple at Jerusalem, and what the glories that shall burst on the eye and ear of the true child of Abraham in the New Jerusalem!

Of the palaces the Royal and the Emperor's are the most interesting. The latter can be seen only in the Emperor's absence; the former at any time. We met with a new custom here. We were obliged to shuffle over the smooth floors of the principal saloons in felt over-slippers, furnished by the guide for the occasion. It is unnecessary to speak of the splendor around us meantime, but the treacherous mirrors would exhibit our awkward sliding motions.

There are three or four more palaces at Potsdam and in Sanssouci Park joining Potsdam. The new palace there has a beautiful room the walls and ceiling of which are covered with shells and precious stones. Sanssouci palace has many interesting relics of Frederick the Great, who lived and died there. Among them is the clock which he wound himself and which stopped at the hour of his death and still points to the same hour.

In the park around these palaces nature and art vie with each other beautify the place. Nature furnishes woodland scenery as lovely as any we have seen on the continent, and art adds the fountains, smooth walks, rustic bridges, classical statuary and cunning little temples, while both work together in the smooth lawns and flower beds.

These are some of the things the rain permitted us to enjoy but partially in and about Berlin, others might be mentioned, but we have come north, and the early evening shuts out the light. It is too dark to write at 4 P. M.

H. A. F.

Independent Masonry in Boston.

[From the Boston Herald Dec., 30, 1875.]

One of the boldest and best laid schemes for the victimizing of an unwary public was brought to light yesterday through the aid of the State police, the victims numbering no less than two score and ten self-confident individuals, who in their anxiety to become masters in Masonry took the cheapest way open to them to realize their fond hopes.

The alleged swindler in the affair is Monsieur Charles A. de Lagarlire, a genteel-appearing and well-informed little Frenchman, whose suavity of manners and pleasing address would be sufficient to impress most people favorably. Until his discovery in the role of a swindler he has enjoyed the confidence and respect of many of our best citizens, with whom he has come in contact in his professional business.

Monsieur, to replenish his depleted exchequer, struck a novel plan, which was most bold in its features, and yet hardly could be executed except by a man is whose brain such a plan could originate. The professor is undoubtedly acquainted with Masonry and knowing too the desire of many men to join the order if their means could only allow it, he was not slow in realizing that such persons were to be found in Boston; many of them men who were in every sense of the word worthy join the order, but could not because their financial standing. The professor soon found these men, and decided at once to begin operations. He professed that the position he occupied in Masonry gave him the power to origanize a lodge of "United Friends of Liberty, Equality and Fraternity."

To all appearances, the professor first got two good trusty friends and the trio founded the bogus lodge, and the way he went about to increase the membership of organization cannot but be astounding to all good Masons. According to the records of the bogus lodge the first members were installed about Sept. 14th. These members were allowed to ride the goat at the nice price of $15, and then were invited to bring their friends to join. The usual form of inquiring into the characters of the applicants was dispensed with. The rules adopted by the professor in this regard were something after those of the landlord of a boarding house on the European plan, the required perqui-site being simply the payment of their money and no questions asked. In October last the lodge had increased in numbers sufficient to hire a hall, which was finally got at 27 Essex Street, a short time ago. The hall was supplied with furniture appertaining to a lodge-room. During the last two weeks the applications for membership have come in such numbers as to require initiations at every meeting. The professor had it understood that when the lodge numbered 100 a charter was to be given the lodge, but in the meanwhile he, the professor claimed the high privilege of conferring the first three degrees which made a Master Mason Among the brethren who were led away were two admirers of the ancient Solomon, who, after listening to the oily and soothing voice of the professor began to suspect something was wrong. These men were David O. Felt, the felictious and good-natured conductor of the night car on the Tremont street line, and Benjamin F. Appleby, who, to become a member of the order, took the cheap and easy way offered by the professor. These men were initiated the first night they appeared in the hall.

The way the bogus lodge was governed by the professor was truly astonishing to most of the members, who being almost entirely ignorant of the rules of Masonry, took everything for granted that the Frenchman told them. The professor was Grand Worthy of the lodge—a self-conferred honor—and appointed the other officers, and at all meetings claimed his voice to be that of the majority. He was secretary and treasurer, and high mogul generally. To increase the love and respect of the brethren for him he instilled into their souls, by the aid of lectures on Masonry, the veneration required of the lodge by the society of noble men that had taken them into their fold He also instructed them in the mysteries of the order, professing also to give them the signs and tokens of the order. He explained the use of the various Masonic symbols, side-arms, sheep aprons and other paraphernalia he had in the hall to impress his deluded victims; but with all his ingenuity and cleverness to deceive, alas, the poor professor made a mistake, which brought upon him the suspicions of the genial Felt, and the latter's friend, Appleby. At the Sunday evening lectures of Monsieur he quite often initiated members—a thing which Felt found out from a friend, who was a Mason, was not consistent with Masonry. Professor thought it was consistent, as he was a privileged being in the fraternity. Things grew worse at each meeting, many of the members becoming possessed of an idea that it was not right that he should constitute himself the majority in all their deliberations. The manner in which Monsieur conducted the finances of the lodge was also another matter that Felt thought needed looking into. It was found that the professor, of the $15 taken from each new member, put into his pocket $5, which sum he claimed he was entitled to by virtue of his position in the order, while $5 more was divided by two of his intimate friends." To this misery of the members was added the fact that the grand worthy Frenchman was also treasurer.

Where the funds went is only known to De Lagarliere himself. The majority of the members, however, could not entertain the idea that the professor was anybody except what he represented, and dreamt on in blessed ignorance of the climax which was soon to come. Messrs Felt and Appleby a few days ago determined in their own minds that Monsieur was a fraud and imposter, and accordingly took steps to learn enough of Masonry to prove to their fellow members that they were correct in their ideas. Mr. Felt visited Grand Worthy Master Everett of the Grand Lodge, and found that the professor was acting unbeknown to him; and furthermore that the Grand Lodge had not recognized him in his work, and was also ignorant of the existence of the Essex street organization. Hon. Edward Avery was also called upon, as were also others, and, taking everything together, Felt decided the time had come to bring the professor to his just punishment. In company of Appleby, he went to the head-quarters of the State police, and after telling the story of their grievances, detectives Knox and Wentworth were deputed to work up the case. It was so arranged between Felt and friends that the officers should have an easy task in accomplishing their work, by getting into the lodge-room. The time set for the excursion of the detectives was last night, when a large meeting of the disconsolate brethren was held.

The meeting was exceedingly animated, and it is presumed will never be forgotten by the brethren present. Monsieur, in all the grandeur of his position as Grand Worthy occupied the throne, and after initiating a member and pocketing his usual stipend of the fee, got up to explain certain financial questions. Mr. Felt was also on hand and took the floor, and made a speech in which he publicly denounced the professor as an imposter and a swindler. Monsieur got worked up terribly, and dancing about in a lively way retorted by calling Felt a liar. Other beautiful inundoes were thrown out, when lo! in the midst of the greatest excitement, to the surprise of all except Felt and Appleby, the detectives suddenly put in an appearance. Their business was soon made known, but a few of the members for some time could not fully understand the matter, they seeming to think the officers' visit an intrusion. While the officers were trying to have them understand matters, the self-dubbed Grand Worthy attempted to steal off, but was taken into custody and taken to the office on Pemberton square.

The professor seemed to take his misfortune calmly, and while at the office listened attentively to the stories of those who told how he had swindled them. He said that he had no reason to fear anything, as he had done nothing that was wrong. As a Mason he claimed he had the right to form a lodge, and that his arrest on the charge of obtaining money was due to the antipathy of the Grand Lodge. The officers of this lodge, he said, were jackasses, ignorant of Masonry, and that he could teach the officers in regard to their business. Of the brethren of the bogus lodge, he said they were a set of ignorant blockheads, whom he thought he could teach the true principles of Christianity and brotherly love. He refused to tell his side of the story, but would do so in court to-day. He claimed he could get bail by sending to any of his many friends on Beacon St., but would not do so. He claimed that after getting out of his present difficulty he would start another lodge in this city in defiance of the Grand Lodge. Upon the person of the professor was found a loaded billy and $200 in money. He was taken to the tombs at about 11 o'clock to pine away on the soft side of a pine plank over night.

Temperance.

We publish in full the report of the Chicago Woman's Christian Temperance Union for 1874–5, as we think it will be interesting and suggestive to all our temperance workers.

ORIGIN.

This society dates its beginning from a meeting of the ladies of Chicago, called March 16, 1874, for the purpose of presenting to the Mayor and Common Council a protest against the sale of liquor on the Sabbath. Preparatory meetings of a private character had been held, and a petition circulated, to which ten thousand signatures were speedily obtained. The best portion of Chicago's citizens, aroused by the daily reports of the temperance revival in Ohio and other States, were eager to have the petition presented Fifty-eight ladies, led by Mrs. Rev. Moses Smith, went to the Council Chamber. The sequel is well known The request was refused, and, in the presence of the ladies, an adverse bill was passed, while they were escorted from the temple of justice by a ruffianly mob. The animus of the liquor traffic was never more plainly exhibited, and organized opposition to it was natural and inevitable.

HISTORY.

From March to October, 1874, the Society engaged in the circulation of pledges, visitation of saloons with temperance literature, and holding mass meetings. It also maintained a temperance prayer-meeting, everywhere the central idea of the "women's work." Mrs. Moses Smith was the first President, on whose removal from the city, Mrs. Dr. Jutkins acted in this capacity until she also left Chicago, when Mrs. O. B. Wilson was chosen. In October of last year, Miss Frances E. Willard was elected to this position, which she still holds, although during her absence last summer, Mrs. M. B. Holyoke was acting President. A plan of work was adopted last autumn toward the execution of which the Union has steadily advanced. An office was secured (Room 3, entrance to Farwell Hall, No. 148 Madison street), which has since been kept open daily, where men wishing to sign the pledge are always welcome, and where the general business of the Union is transacted.

A daily temperance prayer-meeting was started December 23, 1874, which has been regularly and successfully maintained. It is held at 3 P. M. in lower Farwell Hall. The largest attendance at this meeting has been three hundred; the winter average, seventy-five; the summer average, forty. Nearly thirteen hundred drinking men have here signed the pledge, while large numbers have asked for prayers and entered on a Christian life. An unusual feature, the reverse of what has been witnessed in other cities, is that four-fifths of all who come to this meeting are men. Christian ladies might here accomplish a vast amount of good. This is a genuine and steady revival work.

The Bethel Home Meeting is similar in character, and has been equally successful. It has been conducted by ladies of the Union since April, 1874, with average attendance of 150 men. Eight hundred drinking men have here signed the pledge, and an encouraging proportion of these have come to Christ.

Mass meetings have been held during the year at the rate of one a week, in different parts of the city, at nearly all of which there has been a large attendance, and it is believed that by this means public sentiment has been much elevated and enlightened. All-day prayer-meetings have been repeatedly held, with most beneficent results. On election days, especially, these meetings have been full of interest, and earnest endeavors have been made to influence voters to vote as they pray.

Eleven reform clubs have been organized, with an aggregate membership of three thousand. The Washingtonian Home has been chiefly instrumental in founding and maintaining these thriving clubs, but the impetus to their formation was given by the Woman's Temperance Union.

Juvenile societies have been organized to some extent, and many Sabbath-schools have been addressed on this subject, and the pledge circulated whenever it was practicable.

Change of pay day.—It is a well known fact that nearly as much money is spent in saloons from Saturday night to Monday morning as during all the rest of the week. Two reasons combine to produce this result: the leisure of the working classes during the interval, and the custom of paying wages on Saturday evening. Observation has proved that so simple a method as changing the pay day from the last to the first of the week does much toward remedying the evil. No measure has met with a more hearty endorsement and co-operation from the business community than the attempts made by our Union in this direction. We have been encouraged to find that this method is already practiced by a large number of employers. Our books show a long list of business houses which have agreed to introduce this change, and an active committee will continue to prosecute the work.

Friendly Inns.—While recognising the truth that helpfulness in spiritual things is our peculiar privilege and duty, we by no means ignore the fact that the Master we would serve ministered to the bodily as well as to the soul necessities of those he came to save. If we have done but little in this direction, it has not been for lack of interest and earnest effort, but on account of the stringency of the financial situation. Happily, in the embarrassment thus occasioned, we have been able to avail ourselves of the extensive provisions of the Stranger's Home and the Bethel Home, through the kindness of the managers of the Bethel and the Relief and Aid Society. And we are hoping, through the liberality of the public, to have increased facilities in this practical branch of our work.

Our headquarters have been a general rendezvous for those desirous of leading a better life; also for temperance workers. They are kept open daily from 10 A. M. till 5 P. M. Much has been done to help forward the good cause outside our own borders. Several thousand letters and hundreds of documents have gone to every State in the Union in answer to letters of inquiry. Over two hundred addresses have been given by members of the Union, in conventions, mass meetings, etc., both East and West, during the year.

The future will be, with God's blessing, what the Christian women of Chicago by their work, the good men by their money, and both by their prayers, shall combine to make it. New opportunities come to the Union daily, of which it is unable to avail itself for lack of helpers and of financial resources.

Tempted by the saloons, whose welcoming doors are open on every street, tens of thousands of our citizens are marching to their doom. Our city is a stronghold of misery and sin, and the coils of the rum traffic tighten around its commerce, its politics and its religion.

Reader, is all this anything to you?

Notices.

Wisconsin.

The annual convention of the Wiscon State Christian Association opposed to secret societies will be held in the Wesleyan Methodist church at Sugar Creek, Walworth Co., Wis., on Wednesday and Thursday the 2d and 3d of Feb. 1876. Elkhorn is the nearest railroad station. Teams will be in readiness, after the arrival of trains, to carry delegates to the place of meeting. Efforts will be made to secure able speakers for the occasion.

By order of EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

Past Master Ronayne will surely be present at the Wisconsin meeting and work the first and third degrees. Notice is given that the opening session will begin at 11 o'clock, A. M. Let every friend in Wisconsin put shoulder to the wheel. If it is impossible to be present in person have a representative from every church or town. At least help on the work by a contribution. See treasurer's name in list on 7th page.

For Rochester, N. Y.

Tragedy of Hiram Abiff by Past Master Ronayne. The stupendous humbug, Freemasonry, exposed in Corinthian Hall, Rochester, N. Y., on the evenings of Feb. 15th, 16th and 17th.

50ct admission cards secure a 50ct book: Greene's Broken Seal, or Finney's Expose, or John Quincy Adam's Letters on Masonry.

25cts admission cards secure a 25ct book: either Odd-fellows Expose, or Morgan's Murder, or Pittsburg Lectures and revealings or Morgan's Expose.

15ct card secures Freemasonry Anti-Christian.

Cards sold through the city and at the Hall. Choose books promptly at the doors. Doors open at 6½ P. M. Lecture begins at 7½ P. M.

The Niagara County Association.

Opposed to Secret Societies, will hold its next Annual meeting in Arcade Hall, in the city of Lockport, on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, the 10th and 11th of February, 1876, Ex-Past Master Edmond Ronayne of Keystone Lodge, No. 639 of Chicago, will address the meetings and will publicly initiate a candidate into the first three degrees of Masonry. The meetings will commence at 7 o'clock P. M. There will be a convention Thursday forenoon, to commence at 9 o'clock, for the election of officers and for such other business as shall properly come before the Convention: followed with an Anti-masonic Love-feast, to be convened at 2 o'clock P. M. Let there be a general rally of the members: All clergymen friendly to the cause are cordially invited to attend.

B. S. LAUGHLIN, Pres.
T. CORLISS, Sec'y

Reform News.

Northeastern Pennsylvania.

The General Agent concludes his Labors—Laodiceans and Bereans represented in the Churches of LeRaysville, East Herrick and Herrickville.

Jan. 1, 1876.

DEAR K.:—My last at Herrickville, Pa., mentioned two appointments which were duly filled. Commendable effort on the part of friends was rewarded by a fair attendance despite mud and darkness, and the interest may be inferred from the fact that I took twelve new subscribers and three renewals for the Cynosure. One load of thirteen came on Monday evening from near LeRaysville, and accepting an invitation to spend the night with Bro. Brink I made the fourteenth on the return trip. Only one of the number had ever relinquished the right of free speech and of course he was an Odd fellow in a company of intelligent freemen. I do not believe the man felt proud of his "chains" or that he very greatly enjoyed the enforced practice of that cardinal virtue of "secretists," silence, which is emphasized in an Odd-fellow's initiation by the coffin and skeleton. The "tomb" is a place of silence and the theory of the lodge is that all who do not maintain the recticence enjoined touching the "hidden works" of the craft must be sent there as lunatics are assigned to the asylum. How deplorable the condition of a man who may not confide to his own wife what he may freely impart to men of very questionable character in the lodge. That must be an accursed institution which robs a true wife of the confidence of her husband and transfers it to the custody of a sworn band composed of preachers, drunkards, Jews and infidels, meeting as brothers in nocturnal conclave.

I did not visit LeRaysville proper, but if correctly informed the church in that village, copying after the Laodiceans, is striving to be "neither cold nor hot" upon the struggle going on between the lodge and the lovers of Christian freedom in that community. The inevitable effects of such attempted neutrality are already apparent. Very few, if any, conversions, empty seats at prayer-meetings, and no sufficient vitality in the covenant body to exercise discipline. Just life enough to keep up a Sabbath-day "form of godliness" and shut the door of their church-house against free discussion unless conducted in the interests of secret orders and by their permission. Not so at the M. E. church in East Herrick or at the W. M. Chapel in Herrickville. The brethren here, like the "Bereans" who were called "noble," were willing to hear the word, and will, I trust, "search the Scriptures daily to see if these things are so." These latter brethren evidently have confidence in the Christian religion and unlike to cringing lodge worshipers, do not fear to face the truth, and go forward leaving the consequences with God.

I was refreshed in spirit and greatly cheered by the faith and fidelity of those brethren, and hope if God will to visit them again. When we had prayed and shaken hands, Bro. Pratt conveyed me to Rummersville where I began my journey of 834 miles which brought me to my home in time to see my family before the record of the old year was sealed for the judgment. I look back upon the past year with gratitude to God for his unceasing goodness and enter upon the new resolved by the grace of God never to compromise the truth with the enemy. The battle is set in array and who but a coward would shrink when the contest waxes hot and decisive? "One shall chase a thousand and two put ten thousand to flight."

J. P. STODDARD.

Correspondence.

Masonry and Holiness.

DEAR BRO. K.—I have read with much pleasure several recent articles in the Cynosure on "Holiness," and the movement for its promotion. This is the great want of the church. It is because there is so little holiness, so low a state of piety, that there is so much extravagance in dress, so much pride, so much sensual indulgence in tobacco and other poisons, and above all so much devotion to the lodge, and submission to its domination. A genuine reformation in the church that would lift it out of unbelief and bring it into sympathy with Christ, would sweep away the worldly conformity, the coveteousness, and the secret abominations of the lodge, just as chaff is swept away by the wind. It is a blessed thought that Christ has said, "His fan is in his hand. He will thoroughly purge his floor and gather the wheat into his garner, but he will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire." "Holiness to the Lord" is yet to be written on every department of society, and the church is to put on "fine linen, clean and white, which is the righteousness of saints." In our work as a Christian Association we must go to the bottom of this matter. Freemasonry doubtless is by far the greatest enormity that finds shelter in the church, but it is not the only one. We must spare none of them. We must insist that the church must be a holy church, "without spot or wrinkle," and in opposing one evil we must not wink at anything that is unholy. Above all we must kindly but faithfully tell the church that those brethren, who, while professing to be holy, and knowing what are the abominations and blasphemies of the lodge, can see no evil in them, and consent to silent acquiescence are on the side of the enemy, and are fearful stumbling blocks in the way of God's people. The cause of Christian holiness has far more to fear from the shams of false brethren than from any open opposition that it can receive. Let us faithfully rebuke them.

H. H. HINMAN.

The Way the Money Goes.—For the Benefit of Masonic Candidates.

YATES CITY, Ill., Jan. 1, 1876.

MR. EDITOR:—My friend Alpaugh has at last cornered his High Mightiness the Infallible Grand Master, as will be seen from the following correspondence which Mr. Alpaugh wishes published for the benefit of poor blind candidates.

From the East of the M. W. Grand Lodge, &c., CAIRO, Ill., Dec. 18 1875.
Andrew Alpaugh, Esq., Yates City, Ill.:

DEAR SIR AND BRO.,—Yours of the 12th received. I certainly thought I made myself understood in my last letter. The lodge that received and acted on your petition did so illegally as you were under the jurisdiction of Yates City, which lodge had formally rejected you. That being the case Yates City has control, and you can only proceed with their consent. No other lodge has a right to do anything without the consent of Yates City Lodge.

Fraternally yours,
GEO. E. LOUNSBURY, G. M.

To the above Mr. Alpaugh replied as follows:

YATES CITY, Ill., Dec. 25, 1875.

MOST WORSHIPFUL:—Having in your letter to me of Dec. 18th acknowledged that Ipava Lodge acted illegally in conferring on me the first degree of Masonry and receiving $10 therefor, I now claim that you as Grand Master, having complete control of all the lodges in the State, are under obligations to settle this matter without reference to Yates City or any other subordinate lodge. I had no possible means of knowing when I paid my money to Ipava Lodge that they could not proceed without consent of Yates City Lodge or I should not have paid it. Yours fraternally,

ANDREW ALPAUGH.

Mr. Lounsbury maintains a dignified silence in regard to this matter.

W. H. ROBINSON.

What a Minnesota Baptist Brother Proposes.

MANTORVILLE, Minn., Jan. 2, 1876.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—In reading some of your last numbers, I have become more and more convinced of the duty of all good Christians and true patriots to join their forces against the great abomination of secrecy. In talking up the matter with our pastor (and a good and sound man on most questions) he seemed, as many others, to fear to meddle with the subject; thinking, no doubt, that the orders were capable of doing harm to the interests he was trying at this time to establish, viz., an academy in the interests of the Baptists of Minnesota, located at Owatonna. I proposed a liberal donation provided a clause was put into its constitution to the effect that no person connected with any secret society should ever hold an office of trust in its management. Although it may seem to some an arbitrary rule, I deem it consistent with moral obligations. I declared at the same time that I would much sooner give freely to the Carpenter fund for the benefit of the N. C. A. opposed to secret societies, where I could be assured that no secret-society person would be allowed in its management. I am convinced if we were more careful to discriminate justly in favor of the cause of anti-secretism, much more could be accomplished. I therefore make a standing offer of one hundred dollars to be paid within thirty days from the time said thirty thousand dollars is secured by reliable pledges, and may feel inclined to do more.

It is very trying to my faith to hear so many "jacks" braying in the interests of so hateful and in my view so wicked and soul-destroying an institution as Masonry, to say nothing of those that take upon themselves the awful responsibility of uniting with and sustaining its wickedness and folly. Yea, must it be said the professed embassadors of Christ? How must they feel when such true and fearless men as Past Master Ronayne portrays them before their wives and fellow church members? S. Hillman.

[Will not the brother feel that his $100 is better invested if it forms one 300th share of the Carpenter fund than if he waits till that fund is raised and this noble effort of the Association accomplished?—Ed]

From Canada—Trials of a Testifying Presbyterian Minister.

Wardsville, Middlesex Co., Ont., De. 17, 1875

Because I dared to name Freemasonry as a hindrance to the prosperity of God's cause I have been pointed out as a crazy fool by my church to the world at large. For two years I was sent around to exhibit myself as a fool for Christ's sake. They, however, are now seen to be the fools. At the call of the church I have been again inducted into this charge. When I look back and ask for the leaders in this transaction four of them are in their graves. Two ministers out of a committee of three who were appointed to consider the matter of arrears of salary and gave a decision in favor of my persecutors are out of their churches. The clerk of the presbytery, a strong sympathizer with Masonry and reported to be a keen Mason, is, with a large family in winter, obliged to leave his church not knowing what shall befall him. Where now is the "Almighty God" of the lodge in whom he trusted? I hope that these Masonic idolators will see that a Christian congregation can distinguish between a serpent and a fish, and will not pay for a stone when buying bread.

For myself I can only say that my family during the last two years have been defrauded out of $1,200 because I would persist in exposing Masonry. Their object has been to make me feel that unless I hold my peace on this subject starvation or a violent death shall be my portion. An appeal to the county judge, coupled with the names of four who had either threatened my life or were scheming to take it, was handed in and since then no more threats are indulged in. It is sad, however to think that if a man opposes this daring blasphemy, not only shall he be deprived of the ostensible sympathy of his fellow-Christians who also hate secrecy, but those who have openly espoused the Anti-masonic movement stand aloof. I do wonder why the United Presbyterian church of the States has only two churches in Canada and these dying out from sheer inanity. If they would put forth more vigorous faith how soon would the one chase a thousand and the two put ten thousand to flight! It is only want of faith. "According to your faith be it unto you."

I may say that there are some secretists in my present charge. The whole people have agreed that my views in regard to secret societies shall not be brought out on Sabbath from the pulpit. The church is weak and dependent on outsiders. I have, however, many opportunities out of the pulpit of meeting the evil. I enclose ten cents for a copy of the obligations of the "Good Templars." One of their number, a minister of this presbytery, tells me he has set a watch over me. If he hears a word from me he shall use his power to have me summarily ejected from my charge. I want ot get posted in the secret of such power. May God open his eyes to see that he can easily eject HIM from his place and power. While I love the temperance movement and wish to lend it all my support I cannot see my way to do so by abjuring Jesus in whose name alone I believe the demon can be cast out. Good Templarism is a very dangerous system inasmuch as the outward object is good but its dark design of seeking to effect it by deistical tenets is sinfully ensnaring. I object to these societies also because through them ambitious politicians buy up votes at a cheap rate and the law of the land is powerless to enter in and discover the mode of their secret opposition. I deeply regret that I was not able to be at the N. Y. State convention this month and that I have no means of knowing what was done at it. Hoping you are well and prosperous I am yours truly, James Donaldson.

OUR MAIL.

Sophrona Durkee, Glenwood, Ia., writes:

"I am trying to do all the good I can by lending my papers and talking. I wish to keep posted and inform others the best I can. Some I find who are anxious to inform themselves in this matter of Masonry. I lost every dime in Kansas on the prairies among the grasshoppers; then made my escape to a daughter's in this place, who had also lost all there."

Sanford Ward, Adams, N. Y., writes:

"The lodge rules, and no one dare speak against it or be seen reading anything opposed to it. We greatly regret the death of Dea. Babcock, a seceding Mason. The mighty are falling, and may God raise up others to fill their places."

Clarence H. Haverfield, Cadiz, O., writes:

"My father has been a subscriber to your paper and a warm and ardent supporter and defender of the good cause in which you are engaged. But our Heavenly Father has called him home, and the anti-secret society cause has lost in him almost the only warm and openly avowed friend it had in our immediate vicinity. It was through him that we had the pleasure of hearing two good lecturers; first Mr. Baird, then Mr. C. A. Blanchard. He was very willing and anxious to do all in his power to oppose the spread of Freemasonry and all kindred societies."

J. Hodges, Huntsburgh, O., writes:

"I am seventy-five years old and have fought Masonry ever since the Morgan abduction and no man living has ever suffered more by the lodge than I have, but my trust is in God. We have had a grand Master Mason for a minister for the last two years (Congregational). He has nearly destroyed the church and strengthened those that belong to the fraternity so that they put all down who do not favor the lodge. I think if we could get a good lecturer here it would open the eyes of many of my neighbors who dare not inform themselves by taking your paper."

W. E. Agard, Staffordville, Conn., writes:

"I have about all the reading that I can do, but when I find anything about Masonry or any other secret society I neglect my other reading and read that first. And even if I had not time to read a word I would take the Cynosure for the benefit of others. I think it is a paper that ought to be supported."

Thos. Vass, Batavia, Ia., writes:

"Your paper is not at all popular here, but I hope it will be soon for on this rests the hope of the church."

Rev. A. W. Morris, South Argyle, N. Y., sends a club of ten and writes:

"I do not find much time for outside work. Did not make any canvass for the subscribers I send you, only recommended the cause and paper to members of my own charge as they called at the parsonage from time to time. Your paper and the N. C. A. (I mean the great work it is carrying on) are unknown to a shameful extent in this county. If there is a copy of the Cynosure taken in this vicinity, except the one I take, I have yet to find the man who takes it. I must acknowledge that it is a disgrace to our church (U. B.) that it is so. The great difficulty with our people throughout the whole church is inaction or indifference on this subject. They are as free from all secret societies, and perhaps more so, than others, but they are illy informed as to what is going on in the country. I am really surprised to find how much interest and inquiry my own very imperfect efforts have already stirred up on the question generally. I sent some time ago through you three numbers of the Cynosure to a friend at Evanston. Those papers, together with the labor I had already bestowed on him, accomplished the desired end—saved an M. E. minister from the lodge."

We have just examined our list and found you were indeed the only subscriber in your county till you sent your club, which we hope will be good seed sown in good ground that will multiply an hundred fold. Are there not others that could get up a club by soliciting subscriptions from those who call at their homes?

G. Pratt, Summerfield, O., writes:

"The Cynosure is to me a feast of fat things. I am a life subscriber and will do what I can for it in Summerfield. There is a Mason's lodge here, but their game is blocked by the light that is thrown upon it by the Anti-masonic movement, and initiations are few and far between. May the Great Head of the church destroy this great enemy of God and man and of our government. In this fight God is our only help."

A. E. Jenks, Cheshire, Mass., writes:

"There is a good deal of inquiry as to whether Pres. Grant is a Mason. Is the high sheriff of New York, Tilton, Moulton or Beecher any of them Masons? Masonic ministers are at a great discount here, and I hope they will soon be all over the world. Many are praying that the M. E. church will cast out all secretism at the next general conference. If they do what a power to do good they will be."

Pres. Grant in answer to a letter of inquiry from Samuel D. Greene of Chelsea, Mass., directed his secretary to say, "I am not a Mason." Beecher and Tilton are neither of them Masons; we are not informed as to the others.

Rev. J. W. Gilbert, Streator, Ill., writes:

"I don't see how I can do without the Cynosure. I have taken it for two years and every number seems the best. I send it to my brother in West Virginia, who writes, 'It just suits me to a T. I leave it on my counter and give it to my customers to read, many of whom are perfectly delighted with it."

L. A. Burd, Potomac, Ill., writes:

"I am doing what I can for the cause, but I stand almost alone. I will scatter tracts when I get them."

J. Sherk, Sherkston, Ont., writes:

"I think all those who are opposed to secret societies ought to subscribe for the Cynosure. It not only exposes the institutions of Satan, but contains other reading suitable for Christians."

I. A. Reynolds, Waverly, Pa., writes:

"I have just attended our State Association. Bro's. Stoddard and Ronayne were with us. Ronayne is admirably adapted to his work and I hope will live to attend the last death and burial of Hiram Abiff. So mote it be."

John Chapin, Palmyra, Wis., writes:

"We have had lectures here but the great majority of the people love darkness rather than light. I would like to say that I think we ought to take strong ground against the organized systems of wrong, and to disfranchise all that swear allegiance to any government that comes in conflict with the government of the U. S., whether Masonry, Mormonism, Catholicism, or any other ism, in order that we may hand down to our children instead the government that our forefathers purchased with their blood."

Daniel Leggett, Allegan, Mich., writes:

"We cannot do without your paper inasmuch as it exposes secret societies, those immoral and heathen institutions, a curse to all communities and civilization. In our town Masons, Odd-fellows, and grangers are well represented."

S. McArthur, Milnersville, O., writes:

"I lived in Albany, N. Y., the time of the Morgan excitement and read the Albany Journal which gave a full expose until Masonry seemed dead."

The Sabbath School.

Lesson for January 23.—David in the Palace.

SCRIPTURE.—1 Sam. 18: 1-15. Commit 1, 12-16; Primary Verse, 12.

HOME READINGS.

M. Gen. 41: 16-44. The Wisdom given to Joseph.
T. 1 Sam. 3: 1-21. The Wisdom given to Samuel.
W. 1 K. 3: 3-15. The Wisdom given to Solomon.
T. Dan. 1: 1-21. The Wisdom given to Daniel.
F. Acts 6: 1-15. The Wisdom given to Stephen.
S. Ps. 37: 18-31. Lips of the Righteous utter Wisdom.
S. Jas. 1: 1-17. If any lack, let him ask.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"When a man's ways please the Lord, he maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him."—Prov. 16: 7.

TOPIC.—The Lord giveth wisdom.

1. And it came to pass, when he had made an end of speaking unto Saul, that the soul of Jonathan was knit with the soul of David, and Jonathan loved him as his own soul.

2. And Saul took him that day, and would let him go no more home to his father's house.

3. Then Jonathan and David made a covenant, because he loved him as his own soul.

4. And Jonathan stripped himself of the robe that was upon him, and gave it to David, and his garments, even to his sword, and to his bow, and to his girdle.

5. And David went out whithersoever Saul sent him and behaved himself wisely; and Saul set him over the men of war, and he was accepted in the sight of all the people, and also in the sight of Saul's servants.

6. And it came to pass as they came, when David was returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, that the women came out of all cities of Israel, singing and dancing, to meet king Saul, with tabrets, with joy, and with instruments of music.

7. And the women answered one another, as they played, and said, Saul hath slayed his thousands and David his ten thousands.

8. And Saul was very wroth, and the saying displeased him; and he said, They have ascribed unto David ten thousands, and to me they have ascribed but thousands: and what can he have more but the kingdom?

9. And Saul eyed David from that day and forward.

10. And it came to pass on the morrow, that the evil spirit from God came upon Saul, and he prophesied in the midst of the house: and David played with his hand, as at other times: and there was a javelin in Saul's hand.

11. And Saul cast the javelin: for he said, I will smite David even to the wall with it. And David avoided out of his presence twice.

12. And Saul was afraid of David, because the Lord was with him and was departed from Saul.

13. Therefore Saul removed him from him, and made him his captain over a thousand; and he went out and came in before the people.

14. And David behaved himself wisely in all his ways; and the Lord was with him.

16. But all Israel and Judah loved David, because he went out and came in before them.

1.—Saul desired to be—but David was—esteemed of men. The favor of the people was a verdict of character. To obtain such an endorsement and retain it, one must be, and not merely seem to be. It is only when a man's ways please the Lord that he maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him. Prov. 16: 7; Ps. 105: 13–15; Dan. 1: 9; 3: 26–30; Acts 9: 31; Rom. 8: 28; 14: 14; 1 Pet. 3: 13.

2.—Selfishness is self-destruction. That which it seeks to save, it loses. Saul thought only of himself—cared only for himself—lost himself. David cared not for himself at all—but let the Lord care for him. Where peril was, there David was, constantly offering his life, but always keeping it. He fought Goliath that the name of the Lord might not be dishonored—and was honored above all men himself. "Whosoever will save his life shall lose it; but whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the Gospel's, the same shall save it." Ps. 55: 22; Matt. 6: 25; Mark 8: 35; John 12: 25, 26; Phil. 4: 6; 1 Pet. 5: 7.

3.—How impotent is man in his struggles against God! Every blow that Saul struck failed to hurt David—for he was panoplied of God—but it returned upon and bruised Saul himself. Every throw of the javelin but wounded himself. This Saul, as well as the later Saul, found—as every other Saul will find—that it is "hard for thee to kick against the pricks." Job 9: 4; Is. 45: 9; Acts 5: 39; 9: 3–5; 1 Cor. 1: 25; 10: 22.

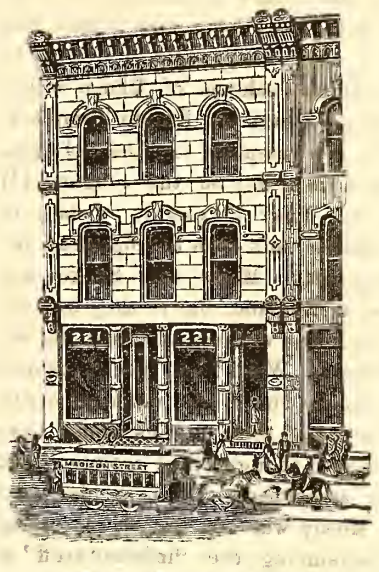
2.—Saul's opportunities were not yet all gone. Repentance might have still opened a door leading to honor as well as to peace. It was not the Lord who shut him up to a path that led only to destruction. He himself closed all the avenues of return, and with blind rage rushed on to his own ruin. Ex. 34: 6, 7; Ps. 78: 38: 86: 5; Jer. 26: 13; Ezek. 18: 25–32; Hos. 11: 8, 9; Joel 2: 13; Jon: 4: 2.

5.—In giving his garments to David, Jonathan, as it were, adopted him as a brother. It was that spirit of adoption that made the gift valuable. And has not Christ, the Son of the Universal King, taken us into his heart with a like adoption, and called us "brethren!" Sons of God have we become through his love for us. John 14: 22; 15: 15; 20: 17; Rom. 8: 15; Gal. 4: 3–7; Eph. 1: 5; 1 John 3: 2.

Home and Health Hints.

English Ivy.

The use of English ivies for the purpose of decorating living-rooms is more extensive every year, and cannot be too highly recommended. Being very strong they will live through any treatment; but study their peculiarities and manifest willingness to gratify them, and they will grow without stint. Most houses are too hot for them, as indeed they are for their owners. Neither plants nor people should have the temperature over sixty-five degrees Fahrenheit. Take care not to enfeeble your ivies by excessive watering or undue heat, and you will see they will not seem to mind whether the sun shines on them or not, or in what position or direction you train them. Indeed so much will they do themselves to make a room charming, that we would rather have an unlimited number to draw upon than anything else in nature or art.



Do you wish the ugly, plain doors that shut off your tiny entry to your parlor to be arched or curved like those in the drawing-rooms of your richer neighbors? Buy a couple of brackets, such as lamps for the burning of kerosene are sometimes placed on, and screw them in the sides of the door. Put in each a plant of English ivy, the longer the better; then train the plants over the top, against the sides, indeed, any way your fancy dictates. You need not buy the beautiful but costly pots the flower-dealer will advise; the common glazed ones will answer every purpose, for, by placing in each two or three sprays of Coliseum ivy, in a month's time no vestige of the pot itself can be discerned through their thick screen.

The English ivy, growing over the walls of a building, instead of promoting dampness, as most persons would suppose, is said to be a remedy for it; and it is mentioned as a fact that in a room where dampness had prevailed for a length of time, the affected parts inside had become dry when ivy had grown up to cover the opposite exterior side. The close, overhanging, pendant leaves prevent the rain or moisture from penetrating the wall. Beauty and utility in this case go hand in hand.

Food for Children.—Children do not like fat meat, so give them good bread and butter, and allow them plenty of sugar. A chemist will tell you that both fatty substances and saccharine or sweet substances are eventually oxidized in the body. Sugar is the form to which many other things have to be reduced before they are available as a heat-making food; and the formation of sugar is carried on in the body. It has been proved that the liver is a factory in which other constituents of food are transformed into sugar. Now, it is probable that your children really need sugar to keep them well, and it is fortunate that most children are fond of vegetable acids. A saucer of berries, or a ripe apple, is often a better corrective for children's ailments than a dose of medicine; yet the majority of parents give the nauseous dose preference over the fruit. It does seem sometimes as if parents were occupied more in denying than gratifying their children's appetites. This is neither necessary nor fair. They get as tired of bread and milk as you would. And what comes of it? Simply that as soon as they have opportunity, they indulge their love for sweets to excess.

The London Lancet says that the Coroner for Exeter has been the means of entering on the death register a strong and useful protest against the time-honored practice of prescribing medicine by the spoonful, as the teaspoon and tablespoon of the present day are of far from fixed capacity, and may, moreover, be said to average nearly double the size that was in vogue little more than a quarter of a century ago.

One of the best remedies for neuralgia, is said to be the oil of peppermint, applied to the afflicted part with a camel's hair brush. Do not get it into your eyes, it would be pretty severe; nor yet allow a child to find it, as it would act as a poison, taken internally. It will soothe pain almost instantly, and a few applications about the temples and the cords of the face, will, no doubt, effect a cure.

THE CARPENTER DONATION.

The above is a front view of the fine stone-front building on Madison street, Chicago, which Mr. Carpenter proposes to give the National Christian Association for head-quarters and publishing house. The terms of the donation are that $30,000 shall be raised by Apr. 1, 1878, to carry on the work of the Association. Send contributions to Treasurer of the N. C. A.

The National Christian Association.

President.—Philo Carpenter.

Directors.—Philo Carpenter, J. Blanchard, Archibald Wait, I. A. Hart, C. R. Hagerty, E. A. Cook, O. F. Lumry, C. A. Blanchard, H. L. Kellogg, I. R. B. Arnold, E. S. Cook.

Cor. Secretary.—C. A. Blanchard.

Treasurer.—H. L. Kellogg.

Gen. Ag't & Lecturer—J. P. Stoddard.

Address last three at 13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

The object of this Association is:—

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved; to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform to aid the Association in either of these ways: (1) to establish a Publishing House and Head-quarters in Chicago; (2) to carry on the general work; (3) to maintain the State agents. All donations (drafts or P.O. orders) should be sent to the Treasurer; general correspondence, etc., direct to the Corresponding Secretary.

Form of Bequest.—I give and bequeath to the National Christian Association, incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois, the sum of——dollars for the purposes of said Association, and for which the receipt of its Treasurer for the time being shall be a sufficient discharge.

State Auxiliary Associations.

The following list will be found of great convenience. Let every friend of the reform put himself in communication with the proper officers, sending contributions, suggestions,—anything to push on the work.

CONNECTICUT.
President, J. A. Conant, Willimantic.
Secretary, D. J. Ellsworth, Windsor.
Treasurer, C. F. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.
President, J. Dickson, Decatur.
Secretary, J. H. Snyder, Westfield.
Treasurer, H. L. Kellogg, 13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.
Lecturer, H. H. Hinman, Wheaton.

INDIANA.
President, Halleck Floyd, Dublin.
Cor. Sec'y, J. T. Kiggins, Portland.
Rec. Sec'y, Wm. Small, Xenia.
Treasurer, Peter Rich, Westfield.
Lecturer, J. T. Kiggins, Portland, Jay Co.

IOWA.
President, M. S. Drury, Castalia.
Cor. Sec'y, Louis Bookwalter, Western College.
Rec. Sec'y, C. Compton, Steamboat Rock.
Treasurer, D. W. Lyons, Mason City.
Lecturer, James Hankins, Mason City.

KANSAS.
President, Rev. Mr. Bell.
Secretary, J. Dodds, Winchester.
Treasurer, S. Sexton, Topeka.

MICHIGAN.
President, C. Quick, Weston.
Secretary, C. B. Remington, Fenton.
Treasurer, J. H. Wilcox, Howell.
Lecturer, J. L. Barlow, Fenton.
Agent, C. B. Remington, Fenton.

MISSOURI.
President, N. E. Gardner, Avalon.
Cor. Sec'y., A. D. Thomas, Arbela.
Rec. Sec'y, E. W. Carpenter.
Treasurer, Wm. Beauchamp, Avalon.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.
President, J. F. Brown, Bow Lake.
Secretary, S. C. Kimball, Center Strafford.
Treasurer, Kimball Cole, Lake Village.
Lecturer, S. C. Kimball, Center Strafford.

NEW YORK.
President, L. N. Stratton, Syracuse.
Secretary, W. A. Sellew, Rochester.
Treasurer, M. Merrick, Syracuse.
Lecturers—L. N. Stratton, Syracuse; D. P. Rathbun, Lisbon Center; Woodruff Post, Rochester; A. F. Curry, Almond.

OHIO.
President, H. H. George, W. Geneva.
Secretary, Wm. Dillon, Dayton.
Treasurer, J. G. Mattoon, West Unity.
Lecturer, Wm. Dillon, Dayton.

PENNSYLVANIA.
President, A. L. Post, Montrose.
Cor. Sec'y., N. Callender, Green Grove.
Rec. Sec'y., J. W. Raynor, Uniondale.
Treasurer, W. B. Bertels, Wilkesbarre.
Lecturer, J. W. Raynor, Uniondale.

WISCONSIN.
President, J. W. Wood, Baraboo.
Secretary, R. Cooley, Lima Center.
Treasurer, M. R. Britten, Vienna.
Lecturer, P. Elzea, Delavan.

N. C. A. Receipts for Dec., 1875.

Pub. House Fund:
Mrs. Oren Cravath, St. Charles, Minn.,	$25 00
Henry Mohler, Covington, O.,	3 00
U. P. Church, Oakdale, Ill., per J. M. Henderson pastor,	6 00
Horace Holbrook, Macedonia Depot, O.,	1 05
A friend in Mass. per A. E. Jenks, Cheshire,	10 00
Per Gen. Agent:—D. F. Perkins, $5: J. M. Howard, $2; Charles Coles $2, all of Parishville, N. Y.,	9 00
Lecture Fund:
H. Holbrook, Macedonia Depot, N. Y.,	1 00
Illinois Fund:
S. L. Fay, Princeton,	3 00
John Kitchen, ElPaso,	3 00
Ansel Lake, Grey Willow,	2 00
Per State As'sn:—Geo. Bent, Chicago, $5; Mrs. Holden, Chicago, $4 20	9 20
General Fund:
Collected by Gen'l Agent,	40 90
" " Ill. "	4 25
Total,	$ 118 40

H. L. Kellogg, Treas.

Address of Anti-masonic Lecturers.

General Agent and Lecturer, J. P. Stoddard, Christian Cynosure Office, Chicago.

For State Lecturers see State Association list.

Others who will lecture as opportunity offers.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
W. A. Wallace, Dublin, Ind.
J. B. Nessell, Ellington, N. Y.
James Hankins, Mason City, Iowa.
R. B. Taylor, Summerfield, O.
N. Callender, Green Grove, Pa.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
P. Hurless, Polo, Ill.
J. C. Graham, Viola, Mercer Co., Ill.
J. R. Baird, Templeton, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Bourbon, Ind.
Josiah McCaskey, Fancy Creek, Wis.
C. F. Hawley, Millbrook, Pa.
W. M. Givens, Center Point, Ind.
J. L. Andrus, Mt. Vision, N. Y.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
D. S. Caldwell, Nevada, WyandotCo., O
Samuel Hale, Mallett Creek, O.
A. Mayn, Promise City, Wayne Co. Ia
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
C. Wiggins, Angola, Ind.
S. L. Cook, Albion, Ind.
E Ronayne, Cynosure office, Chicago.
J. M. Dosh, Van Meter, Iowa.
W. M. Love, Baker, St. Clair Co., Mo

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY JAN. 13, 1876.

PLATFORM AND NOMINATIONS FOR 1876.

FOR PRESIDENT
James B. Walker,
of Illinois.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT
Donald Kirkpatrick,
of New York.

PLATFORM.

We hold: 1. That ours is a Christian and not a heathen nation, and that the God of the Christian Scriptures is the author of civil government.

2. That God requires and man needs a Sabbath.

3. That the prohibition of the importation, manufacture and sale of intoxicating drinks as a beverage, is the true policy on the temperance question.

4. The charters of all secret lodges granted by our Federal and State Legislatures should be withdrawn, and heir oaths prohibited by law.

5. That the civil equality secured to all American citizens by article 13th, 14th and 15th of our amended Constitution should be preserved inviolate.

6. That arbitration of differences with nations is the most direct and sure method of securing and perpetuating a permanent peace.

7. That to cultivate the intellect without improving the morals of men, is to make mere adepts and experts; therefore the Bible should be associated with books of science and literature in all our educational institutions.

8. That land and other monopolies should be discountenanced.

9. That the Government should furnish the people with an ample and sound currency, and a return to specie payment as soon as practicable.

10. That maintenance of the public credit, protection to all loyal citizens, and justice to Indians are essential to the honor and safety of our nation.

11. And finally, we demand for the American people the abolition of Electoral Colleges, and a direct vote for President and Vice-president of the United States.

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

A Retrospect of Seven Years' Progress and Experience—The Future of the Reform—Full Consecration needed—A Book all should Read—Elmwood—Lacon—Encouragement from an unexpected Source—Personal Holiness and Reform Questions—The M. E. Church must meet the Issue.

ELMWOOD, Ill., Jan. 1st, 1876.

To the readers of the Cynosure:

To every one of whom I profoundly wish a happy year in that we have just entered upon. As it is now more than seven years since we met in the columns of our paper, and the time nears rapidly when I must cease to write for it, perhaps I may, without the suspicion of arrogance, use the simplicity of direct, personal conversation and address.

Let us see what this term of seven years has done for us.

1. It has established our cause, rather the cause of Christ committed to us, on right principles. At first and for years the suggestion that Freemasonry is the worship of demons, literal devils, was hateful to many sincere haters of the lodge. We were met with remonstrances by our own friends. It is not so now. They see all religious rites, customs, prayers and observances on this earth, not presented to the Father through the Son, are "commandments of men," and "doctrines of devils;" and that to omit or ignore this great underlying truth would be to make ourselves a prey to those devils, and ruin our cause by dwarfing it into a fight against the evils of the lodge waged in our own strength.

2. The lodge is stirred from its foundations. At first the leaders regarded us with derision. They do so no longer. The whole swarm are now anxious and alert. Like snakes at bay they are angry and rapid in their motions. They form new adjunct "orders." They have seized control of the common schools of Illinois whose leading teachers are Knight Templars. They are grasping for the Colleges. They have seized on the religious (!) papers. They inexorably dictate to the pulpits, and even to unprofessional evangelists. Moody and Sankey can rouse all England, but if they had objected to the worship of Satan by the "Prince of Wales" and the thousands who follow him in the midnight orgies of the lodge, their crowds would have dispersed; though other crowds would have assembled. Yet it is plain that Mr. Moody was not out of his calling in condemning the "infernal stuff" as he called whiskey; and surely that is much more "infernal stuff" which casts Christ out of its prayers, and deceives men with the hopes of heaven without his blood. This rousing and quickening of moral forces augurs the near approach of the triumph of Christ.

3. The National Christian Association and the existence of the Cynosure are important events. If we had thrown out the banners of a new sect and denounced all others; or if we had clung to and put forward a sect already existing and given that the pre-eminence over the truth; we could have relied on worldly motives to sustain us. But we have honestly and earnestly stood by all Christian denominations which have stood by Christ against human counterfeits and substitutes for his religion; and many a struggling, weary minister, brow-beaten and overborne by the minions of the lodge, has been made glad by seeing in the Cynosure other denominations than his own coming to his side in this great conflict.

The Cynosure has been in perils by fire, by water and by frost, and, like Paul, in peril by false brethren; but it has never faltered or fallen back; nor need it, for surely nothing can be weaker than "things which are not," which God "hath chosen to bring to nought things that are."

4. Nor should we omit while enumerating our causes of gratitude, the other papers which have sprung up in this movement, and those prints before existing which have come to its aid. There is a marked change, too, in almost the entire American press, and an altered and more friendly tone in many Christian denominations. And although the progress of the paper has been a little like the first march of Gideon, we feel confident that the triumph of Gideon is before us and to come.

Let us inquire as to the future.

1. I feel certain we have reached nearly our zenith till we make it a more distinctly religious movement. Pentecost, the reformation, the fall of slavery, and every other great and mighty change for good in human character and institutions has been begun and continued in prayer. We must have a daily prayer-meeting in Chicago. It is the Spirit of God who pulls down the strongholds of Satan. It is this which endues with power from on high. James and John prevailed with the multitude because "They took knowledge of them that they had been with Jesus."

2. In short our cause needs our personal and entire consecration to Christ. The movement now everywhere springing up to promote personal holiness, will soon become hollow and empty unless it carries off the world's evils before it: and we, on the other hand, shall toil in vain without a fresh and continuous baptism of the "Holy Ghost and of fire." Displacing secret societies, driving out the false and counterfeit worships of the earth are but "preparing the way of the Lord," and we must, as Daniel did, set ourselves to seek his coming "by prayer and supplication."

We must not wait for the Carpenter building, though we greatly need it as a place of consultation and daily prayer. But we need the prayer first, else we shall scarcely be able to occupy the building when we get it I have just been reading a little volume, "The Ten Day's Meeting for Holiness in Oxford, England." I fervently wish every reader of the Cynosure had that wonderful volume. Can not some arrangement be made with the publishers so as to get it to our readers? The Oxford meeting reminded me of our first meeting in the City Hall of Aurora, Ill., when the Spirit was poured upon us from on high. It was our Pentecost as Oxford was theirs. Let these two streams be united, personal holiness and social and political holiness, until holiness to the Lord, real, practical and actual, shall redeem and regenerate our race.

The skies are bright here in Elmwood and the vicinity of Peoria. Dr. Marsh reports a club just complete of forty-five subscribers for the next year. A few more such laborers would make the road a short one to a Daily Cynosure, and a national triumph. J. B.

JAN. 4th.

Last Sabbath I preached in two churches, United Brethren and Congregationalist, and was thankful that direct allusions in condemnation of the lodge produced no more sensation than allusions to intemperance. Last night at Lacon, Ill., I preached to a good congregation in the large Methodist Episcopal house, and though I classed the lodge with other conjuring contrivances and delusions, no agitation or displeasure appeared in the audience. If the ministers of Christ would but inform themselves and speak of the secret orders as Moody does of the "infernal stuff" and as they do of other moral evils, O how soon would these hateful and destructive curses disappear!

In the cars from Elmwood to Peoria a Professor in a Methodist Episcopal College came and introduced himself to me as one who in his early youth had known me in Cincinnati, during the years of struggle with the slave-power. Though I did not deserve the commendation he was pleased to bestow, I was glad to hear him say that thousands of young men whom I never knew, imbibed my principles and stood for the country in the hour of its agony; who, with less light on the slave question might have hesitated or taken another course. In those years of unpopularity and resistance of a corrupted popular sentiment, I used at times to faint and grow weary. How glad young ministers will be when they are old, if they now stand firm for Christ against the national pests!

I have met and conversed much with advocates of personal sanctification and holiness, and was glad last night to hear an excellent brother and prominent advocate and promoter of sanctification say: "The relation of the personal consecration of believers to questions of reform is not yet clearly settled and understood." True, indeed, it is not; but it must be. "Righteousness shall go before him (Christ) and set us in the way of his steps." Without this, theories of personal sanctification are nothing but theories; mere "faith without works" "dead being alone."

True, a mere savage war on the errors, abuses, vices and idolatries of men without the inward and constraining power of Christ will effect little or nothing; though a John Brown raid may break up a nation's lethargy. But it is truth, not feeling, or what is called experience which sanctifies; and to hope that people will drop their sins and follies without their being distinctly pointed out to them and condemned, is to hope for what never did and never will occur on this earth. To say that preaching sanctification will overthrow idolatry, is to make the prophets of all ages fools. For their mission has ever been to show God's people their sins. Meantime mere iconoclasts can do nothing but bring out national corruptions while the power of Christ dwelling in Christians must subdue them. The Methodist College Professor made me glad when he said; "The secret society issue is coming on our church far sooner than we expected." He had well studied the subject and declared that "The lodge by its rejecting Christ, offers no prayer to God, and is, therefore, simply idolatrous." I am amazed at the progress of this truth among the masses. Praised be God.

Yours in Christ, J. B.

THE GALESBURG FUNERAL.

The Chicago Tribune has been imposed upon. It has admitted to its columns some Masonic doggerel about Dr. Morse headed by the Masonic falsehood that "The first church of Galesburg refused the use of its tabernacle for the performance of Masonic services over his (Morse's) remains."

The trustees granted the church. It stood open at the hour and a large number of people went in expecting the funeral to be held there. But the pastor of the church went to the procession and asked the conductor to omit the Masonic ceremonies over the coffin till they got out-doors, which is often done where objections to the lodge exist, allowing the Universalist preacher (Gardner), to preach and perform the usual Christian obsequies in the church.

The pastor, Rev. Mr. Huntington, had no power to withhold the house after the trustees had granted it; but he had a right civilly to ask the omission of the heathen powwow over the dead. We hope the trustees will see the utter uselessness of treating Freemasonry as anything else than mere conjuration. It is nothing else; and it has no more business in a Christian church at a funeral than an Egyptian howling or an Indian powwow.

The Universalists have a large beautful church in Galesburg. But the corpse of poor Morse was kept over (from Friday we are told) till Sunday afternoon, and the First church asked, in the name of Mrs. Morse for the Universalist preacher (if Mrs. Morse wanted an orthodox house, why not let her have an orthodox minister!) and the Masonic lodge. A trustee of the church informs us that they granted the house, and all the pastor did was to request the omission of the conjuring. The lodge refused Huntington's request and turned the procession into the Universalist church where it belonged.

In the whole transaction the lodge shows itself as an impudent harlot thrusting its loathed presence into the society of Christians.

THE CARPENTER DONATION.

The notice of the General Agent on the 1st page of this issue (which read now) calls attention to a most important feature of our reform at the present time. From the agreement of Mr. Carpenter, printed herewith, will be seen the necessity of immediate effort to secure this magnificent donation. Mr. Carpenter, as we have often said gives the building outright, but he does not wish to make such a donation to the reform when its friends are not willing to give a reasonable sum to maintain the Publishing House for which he provides a fine building.

Every friend who has this reform on his heart and in his prayer will seek to do something to make sure this grand opportunity. Several gifts have come in since the New Year. Shall we have a hundred more to report at the end of the month?

Whereas I, the undersigned Philo Carpenter of Chicago, Illinois, desire to aid the "National Christian Association," a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Illinois, to oppose and counteract the influence of secret societies, by furnishing suitable head-quarters and accommodations for the transaction of its business, and I desire also to furnish an inducement to others to aid said Association.

Now this witnesseth, that for the purpose above mentioned, and in consideration of one dollar to me in hand paid by the said corporation, I do hereby covenant and agree with it, that if there shall, within one year from the first day of April next, be donated unto it the sum of ten thousand (10,000) dollars in money, or in good, negotiable, interest-bearing notes, I will, as soon as such donation shall be made, put said Corporation in full possession of the real estate and property hereinafter described, said Corporation to retain possession and receive the rents, issues, and profits thereof up to the first day of April, A. D. 1878, and it is also, during the term of such possession, to pay all current taxes and assessments, and it shall keep the building insured in my name and for my benefit.

And I furthermore covenant and agree that if the further sum of twenty thousand (20,000) dollars shall be donated to the said Corporation before the said first day of April, A. D. 1878, in money, or in good, negotiable, interest-bearing notes, I will then, when said entire sum of thirty thousand (30,000) shall have been so donated in manner aforesaid, convey unto the said corporation by a good and sufficient Warranty Deed, the premises above mentioned and described as follows, viz: Lot numbered twenty-eight (28) in block numbered fifty-three (53) in Carpenter addition to Chicago, in Chicago, in the county of Cook, and State of Illinois, and situated on West Madison street between Green and Peoria streets.

The value of this property, according to the estimation of myself and of the officers of the corporation, is as follows, viz: The lot, thirteen thousand (13,000) dollars; the building and improvements, seven thousand (7,000) dollars, total, twenty thousand (20,000) dollars.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal at Chicago, this 12th day of March, A. D., 1875.

PHILO CARPENTER. [Seal.]

—Prof. Webster of Wheaton College, contributes in the present number an interesting article on the late Vice-President, with whom he had a long and intimate acquaintance as well as with Mr. Wilson's old pastor and private secretary, Rev. Samuel Hunt. Upon Mr. Hunt has devolved the task of completing the last volume of the anti-slavery history left by Mr. Wilson.

—Rev. Dr. Hodge of Princeton, N. J., the leading theologian of the Presbyterian denomination of this country, has written a letter to the New York Tribune on college secret societies and the Princeton College societies in particular, which we hope to republish next week. The Tribune remarks editorially of the letter: "Many colleges as yet unable to cope with these societies will thank Princeton for leading the way. If the injurious consequences that are so clearly portrayed in Dr. Hodge's letter have been as evident in other colleges throughout the country, there can be little excuse for the further existence of such societies, as their benefits have never been very definitely shown by even their warmest advocates."

—The Advance holds up a sentence from the Catholic Review as a warning to all patriots: "We make this assertion that at any moment the Catholics of the United States move as a body, they can decide any election,"—a boast with a great deal behind it perhaps; but not many will take the alarm when they see a weak Christmas story from the Advance republished in the Review with complacent remarks on its adaptability to Romish institutions.

—As may be seen by notices in another column Past Master Ronayne is expected in Lockport, N. Y., Feb'y 10th and 11th, and in Rochester Feb'y 15th to 17th. He wishes to visit some other points on the 7th, 8th and 9th, also on the 18th, 19th, 20th, 21st, after the Rochester meeting. Will the friends in New York State communicate at once with Bro. Woodruff Post, 17 Ambrose St., Rochester, on this point and see that arrangements are immediately made? Write also of any arrangements to Mr. Ronayne at this office.

—The expose of an independent lodge in Boston on another page is full of good points which lack of room prevents from setting off this week, as it does also a good letter from Elder Barlow.

—The Bible Standard, an excellent monthly published by Rev. D. F. Shephardson at Wheaton, Ill., contains in its January number a well executed steel engraving of the revered Adam Crooks. The Standard upholds Bible principles in regard to holy living and true reforms.

Religious Intelligence.

—Rev. Henry Boehm, the oldest preacher of the Methodist church in this country, and probably the oldest preacher in the world, died at the house of his grand-daughter, near Richmond, Staten Island, on the 28th ult. On the 8th of last June the 100th birthday of father Boehm was celebrated at Jersey City, by the New York Conference, when he submitted an outline of his own life and labor in the Methodist church.

—The chapel of the Plymouth Baptist church, New York, including the organ, was sold lately to the Catholics for a trifle over $24,000. The property originally cost $34,000, and is in one of the best localities of the city for missionary work. In suffering it to be sold, the Baptist Weekly thinks the denomination has been amazingly short-sighted.

—Twelve Chinese have been admitted into the Baptist church of Portland, Oregon, during the year, through the labors of the Rev. D. I. Pierce, in his Chinese school, and of the native preacher Dong Gong.

—The Sabbath question has lately been agitated in Hong Kong. Many residents object to the Government employment of Chinese upon public works on Sunday. Hong Kong enjoys the unenviable notoriety of being the only port in China in which ships are regularly unloaded and houses built on a Sunday. In Shanghai the landing and shipping of goods ceases on Sunday, but in this Christian colony, with a Christian government, business goes on at the wharves apparently as usual.

—Forty-one persons were recently received as members of the Reformed church of Westerly, N. Y., under the pastoral care of Rev. J. H. Pitcher, as the fruits of a very interesting work of grace which began to be developed about the first of August.

—The First Presbyterian church, Walnut Hills, near Cincinnati has made a reform worth following by every choir-led church. The organ has been moved to the front and a precentor stands before the congregation and leads the music. Congregational rehearsals are held on Wednesday evening after the prayer-meeting. The former choir, made up of choice singers, is scattered throughout the church. A result is good congregational singing.

—The Am. Wesleyan reports revivals in that connection at White Hall, Grand Rapids and White circuit in Michigan, and Dayton and Mason City, Iowa. At the latter place twenty-seven have professed religion and a new church has been formed. This will help Bro. Hankins.

—The appropriations of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions for 1876 are not to exceed $475,000, the amount received during 1875. The appropriations for 1875 were $495,000.

—A Protestant Defense Alliance has been formed in Canada. The Montreal branch has taken measures to prosecute the Catholics for destroying a Protestatn church among the Oka Indians.

—Dr. T. W. Goodspeed, for some years pastor of the Second Baptist church has resigned his pastorate to undertake to raise an endowment for the Baptist Theological Seminary of this city.

—Tam Ching, one of the best educated native Chinese Christians, and an efficient helper in missionary work, died recently at the Chinese mission in San Francisco, and had a Christian burial.

News of the Week.

The City.

The Gardner House, the first fine new hotel opened after the great fire, was nearly given up to be burned last week, but was saved with $25,000 loss ——The U. S. grand jury is now sitting here. Their investigations have a special interest from the whiskey war now waging by the government.

Washington.

The House has opened a fire of investigation on the Navy Department. The Marine Corps is first hit and can be easily dispensed with since its worthless service costs $1,000,000 a year. ——Monday was an important day in the house. The unconditional amnesty bill failed to receive a two-thirds vote and Blaine made a telling speech for excepting Jeff. Davis from pardon.

Foreign.

In a railway accident near Odessa, Russia, a train of cars plunged down an embankment, and the unfortunate passengers, mostly military recruits, were burned and mangled to the number of over 100, sixty-eight being killed outright.——There is little light yet on the eastern question. The Austrian plan of settlement is not everywhere acceptable, and she is said to be ready to interfere to prevent massacre by the Turks. The insurgent provinces are avoiding battle until the favorable opening of Spring.

The Country.

The N. H. State Republican Convention has resolved in favor of Blaine's amendment and against a third term. ——Third-term clubs are springing up with great rapidity in the South, the New Orleans Bulletin says, and the roll is getting very long.——Governor Hendricks, of Indiana, in a speech made at a meeting at Annapolis to welcome the New Year, declared that the free-school system must be regarded as the foundation of American stability, and that the people must consider and treat as a foe any one who brings the system into controversy with a view of injuring its efficiency.——In the Ohio Legislature bills have been introduced to apply the principles of the Adair Law to the Gambling Law, and to increase the penalties for a violation of the same.——The death of Dr. Samuel Gridley Howe, of Boston is announced. He was the eminent physician, surgeon, and philanthropist, who invented the alphabet of raised letters for the blind, and whose success in the education of Laura Bridgman, a blind mute, was one of the marvels of the day.

The Home Circle.

Whate'er God Wills.

BY ALBERT OF BRADENBURY, WHILE IN EXILE, IN 1666.

Whate'er God wills, let that be done,
His will is ever wisest;
His grace will all thy hope outrun,
Who to that faith ariseth.
The gracious Lord
Will help afford;
He chastens with forbearing,
Who God believes,
And to him cleaves,
Shall not be left despairing.

My God is my sure confidence,
My life and my existence;
His counsel is beyond my sense,
But stirs no weak resistance;
His word declares
The very hairs
Upon my head are numbered;
His mercy large
Holds me in charge
With care that never slumbered.

There comes a day, when, at his will,
The pulse of nature ceases;
I think upon it and am still:
Let come whate'er he pleases.
To him I trust,
My soul, my dust,
When flesh and spirit sever,
The Christ we sing
Has plucked the sting
Away from death forever.

A Word to Sinners.

Waiting are you? Waiting God's time? How long will you wait? Sinner are you waiting for God to come with great power, do some marvelous thing, signs and wonders, compel you to bow the knee? God's time is now, this moment. God is waiting for you to do what he commands you to do—"repent." How frequently sinners tell us when exhorted to flee the wrath to come, they are waiting God's time, waiting for more conviction, for the overpowering of God's Holy Spirit to show them their lost state. Sinner, is this you? Are you honest? What do you mean? God is now striving, convincing you of sin, righteousness, and a judgment to come—every day, every hour. Do you not know you are a sinner? that your heart is at enmity with God, that you have no love for his law, his Gospel; no disposition to a holy, sanctified life? You know, furthermore, that Christ has died, shed his blood for you—offers you mercy, eternal life, on condition of faith, repentance, and a godly walk. You know, furthermore, that you are hourly exposed to God's wrath, his just indignation; that hell is your doom without submission. You feel and know that there is no peace to the wicked. All this is clear as the noon-day sun.

What is this but conviction? the strivings of God's Spirit—knowledge is conviction, and this conviction is from God. Yield to these convictions, or you are lost, forever lost! God is doing now all he can consistently do, all that is necessary for him to do, as a God of justice, mercy and truth. Act up to the light already given, and he will give more light;—go forward. "Whosoever hath, to him shall be given and he shall have more abundance, but from him that hath not, shall be taken away even that he hath."

Beware, sinner, beware how you slight these convictions; your soul's welfare hangs on a pivot: "Turn, turn, for why will you die!"

"Admit him ere his anger burn,
His feet, departed, ne'er return:
Admit him, or the hour's at hand
You'll at his door rejected stand."

Flee for your life, run, escape, stay not in all the plain. Lay hold on the hope set before you. God is angry with the wicked every day. If he turn not he will bend his bow, whet his glittering sword. Wait not for deeper convictions—you know your duty and do it not. Your guilt rests on your own head. God is clear from your blood. Cry to God—cry now. Cry out, "God be merciful to me a sinner!"

Rest not till the day-star dawn in your soul.

Don't put it off; for God who now waits to be gracious, may withdraw his Spirit. Christ says, "Behold, I stand at the door and knock; if any man hear my voice and open the door, I will come in to him and sup with him and he with me."

"The spirit in our hearts
Is whispering, 'sinner come,'
Yes, whosoever will,
Oh! let him freely come,
And freely drink the stream of life:
'Tis Jesus bids him come."

Author of "Sword that Cuts," etc.,
303 West 20th St, N. Y.

A Noble Wife.

Rev. Dr. Hopkins, in referring to the success of the late Dr. Todd of Pittsfield, Mass., says: "In 1827, he was married to Mary S. Brace, eldest child of Rev. Joab Brace, for fifty years minister of Newington, Ct. In relation to this, I will simply transcribe his own testimony, and I do it for the honor of the blessed institution which God has honored, and through which the world will become happy in proportion as men shall honor it. 'And here,' he says, 'I want to say emphatically, that if ever I have accomplished anything, ever avoided mistakes, ever in any degree honored the Master, I greatly attribute it to an influence which men are not always prompt to acknowledge. In my home has been a life swallowed up in my success, willing to be unknown and out of sight, unwearied in giving encouragement and rousing to effort; prompt and cheerful in concealing my defects and in covering my deficiencies; kind to apologize for what cannot be approved; uncomplaining when worn down by heavy burdens such as few are called to bear; more than ready to be unselfish, and to wear out, that others might profit by my labors. I say it is there, in that life, I have found the source and cause of all I have done. Oh! wife of my youth! Many daughters have done virtuously, but thou excellest them all.'"

What I Believe.

"Satan always flies when the precious blood of Christ is trusted in and confessed. A very good practical way to baffle him when suggesting doubts is to confess at once to yourself, or to some one else, your belief that Jesus does save you now fully, and that his blood does cleanse you from all unrighteousness.

I believe that all my sins are entirely washed away in the precious blood of Jesus, for the sake of his dear name, and that he looks on me as "perfect through his comeliness put upon me."

I believe that he has taken me just as I am, to be his own forever, and has given himself to me, to be my closest, dearest friend, and this on account of his love to me alone, not mine toward him.

I believe that he has taken my heart just as it is, "deceitful above all things and desperately wicked," to cleanse and renew, and that by the indwelling of his Spirit he will sanctify it wholly and make it all that he would have it be.

I believe that it is his work to keep me, and to keep and increase my feeble faith, and that he will do it.

I believe that his love to me never varies, however cold my heart may be, however dark and confused my path may seem, and that every event of my daily life, the most insignificant as well as the greatest, is ordered by him who knoweth what I need.

I believe that as I am his, and belong no more to myself, it is his work to govern me, to care for me, and to direct me, and that to attempt to manage my own heart, to bear my own burdens, whether temporal or spiritual, or to lean upon my own wisdom in the smallest degree, would be but to distrust his tender love and his all-sufficient power and grace.

"As helpless as a child who clings
Fast to his Father's arm,
And casts his weakness on the strength
That keeps him safe from harm;
So I, my Father, cling to thee,
And thus I every hour
Would link my earthly feebleness,
To thine almighty power.

"As trustful as a child who looks
Up in his mother's face,
And all his little griefs and fears
Forgets in her embrace:
So I to thee, my Saviour, look,
And in thy face divine
Can read the love that will sustain
As weak a faith as mine."

—Parish Visitor.

Natural Law and Prayer.

It seems that there are uniform laws, and contingent laws, in the realm of nature. The former may only be infracted by Deity, the latter may be by man, and both have been in answer to prayer. The Supernatural presides over the natural—is the essence of force and motion in the natural. It is to this Supernatural presiding over law, to which we look for an answer to our prayers; and in this view of the case there is no hindrance. God is supreme. Nature is not constructed on the principle of a Chinese puzzle, so that if a link is dropped the machine is ruined; but like a well built temple, whose arch will rest secure and whose dome stands erect after every column is displaced.

We come, therefore, to this conclusion, viz: That God may and does answer prayer, both by spiritual action on the mind, leading the petitioner oftener to results desired by evading the course of things, and often by direct interference with nature. Miracles are no longer wrought ostensibly as miracles; for the canon is full, and their need as evidences of truth and authority has passed away; but in substance they are wrought every day—every hour probably, the great Engineer is diverging some line of the universe to meet the cry of his children—prayers are going up, answers are coming down, and though the world be shaken asunder, the Almighty God will see that no detriment comes to the faithful. The universe was made for man, not man for the universe.—J. S. Willis.

How Hans Egede got to Greenland.

The evangelization of the inhabitants of Greenland is the great work of the Moravian missionaries. The first missionary, however, was not a Moravian, but a Norwegian minister of the Lutheran persuasion. His name was Hans Egede, and his history, so far as it is known, is the most remarkable in the annals of modern missions.

Hans Egede was pastor of the parish of Vogen. He had heard that a colony of Christians had once emigrated from Norway to Greenland, and he longed to visit them. Greenland became the subject that absorbed him. He had met old sailors who had been there in whalers, but they could tell of little else than shipwrecks, or long winters passed in ice-bound seas. He wrote to the bishops of Bergen and Drontheim entreating them to take some means of communicating with their brethren in Greenland. He applied to those who had the charge of the Danish Missions, and after thirteen year's praying and planning he found a patron in the King of Denmark.

The way was opened for the fulfilment of a long-cherished desire. But now other troubles began. The people called him a fanatic, and many other hard names. They spoke of the sin of taking his wife and children to such a barren and barbarous region as Greenland. His wife's brothers remonstrated, and his wife herself complained. Hans was in great trouble, but he thought of the words of Jesus about leaving father and mother, and all that are dear to us, if we are to be his disciples. His health began to fail; his nights were sleepless. To go to Greenland was a fixed resolution. At last his wife consented to go with him.

A large sum of money was raised, a ship purchased, and about forty persons agreed to accompany the missionary, and establish a colony. The King promised 60 pounds a year to support him, and the Greenland traders were also favorable to the mission. The ship was called "The Hope." It sailed on the 2d of May, 1721. During the voyage the passengers were exposed to many dangers from storms and ice-mountains.

They did, however, reach land, but such a land! The country was bleak and barren. It had no fields of corn, no waving trees, no blooming gardens. A few herbs and mosses, and bil-berries, were all its produce. Its beauties were ice and snow and rocks and ravines. There were no friends to welcome the missionary and his family, and no house ready to receive them. A hut made of stones and mud was erected in the course of a month, and Hans Egede began to set about the work for which he had come. He expected to find the Greenlanders Christians, but they were perfect heathens, and subject to the worst vices of heathenism. When Hans Egede and his wife had learned the character of the Greenlanders, they were glad they had come, and resolved anew that they would spend their life and strength for the improvement of the people.

It was a great resolution. They were in a land where no corn grew, and consequently there was no bread. There were neither vegetables, fruit nor milk. The Greenlanders lived on fish and seals, and they thought the missionaries had come for the sake of blubber. At first Egede could not say a word to the natives. He found out the phrase for "What is that?" and by means of it, he acquired the names of all things that could be perceived by the senses. His son Paul could draw, and he made pictures of Scripture subjects, which his father to the best of his ability explained to the people.

In this way the first winter was passed—the long winter which, in those regions, is one continual night of six months' duration. The ship was still in Greenland, and those who had come with Hans Egede were loud in their complaints that he had brought them to such a region of desolation. Their stores were nearly exhausted, and they could not be reconciled to eat the seals' flesh that fed the Greenlanders. The prospect was so gloomy, that Hans Egede and his wife at length agreed that if no ship came with provisions, they would all return to Norway. The first to break this resolution was Egede's wife. As the fixed day for sailing drew near, she forbade the house to be pulled down or anything to be packed. At last a ship came laden with provisions, sent by the King of Denmark.

Hans Egede's story is told in Norwegian by his son-in-law, Jans Olaf. He was one of the crew that came in the King's ship. Describing their approach to Greenland, he says, "The night of an Arctic summer came on as we passed by into the river, and I saw for the first time the land we had come to seek. It was all unlike what I had imagined. A magnificent background of mountains stood clear against the glowing crimson sky; but the strange light of midnight in that region bathed the headlands next us in one uniform, that of pearly gray. Not a sound of life was heard along the winding shores, nor a creature seen on the many islets, till a figure that I recognized as Madam Egede, suddenly appeared on the brow of a tall cliff. For a moment she sank upon her knees with clasped and outstretched hands, then rose and vanished like a dream." When he landed he soon met the pastor and went to his house. It was a great joy to them all to find that a ship had come with provisions, and that they would be able to stay in Greenland and continue their work. When the pastor came into his hut he clasped his wife and told her that he had received letters from the merchants of Bergen, and that the mission was to be supported. His wife exclaimed: "Thanks be to God! He is a shield to them who trust in him." Turning to Olaf, Hans Egede said: "If you had not arrived before the end of June, we were pledged to return to Norway, and this is the 27." He wrung his hands as he spoke, and then his face beamed with gladness. Olaf replied: "Would it not be best still to return with this ship, as it seems impossible that you should long remain here. I see that the dwellings which were so strongly built, are already half-demolished. All are expressing their determination not to spend another winter on this island. How can you live here alone?"

Madame Egede exclaimed: "We would rather if no roof is left us, burrow in the earth like foxes, than to desert this land in which God has given us his work to do."

To learn the language, and become acquainted with the customs of the Greenlanders, Egede and his two sons lived with the people in their huts. This was no pleasant way of living; but the missionary of the cross must be all things to all men. Sometimes Egede took long journeys with his sons, leaving his wife and the girls alone in their hut. One day he came into a valley where were the ruins of some Christian churches. The Christians were dead and lying at peace in the churchyard.

The minds of the people were very gross. It was difficult to raise them to anything higher than a love of fish-hooks, harpoons, and delight in the flesh of seals. The missionary was regarded by them as a kind of wizzard, who had magical power. The people sent for them to heal their sick, and were disappointed when they were not healed. There was but little prospect of doing any good among them. But Egede persevered. He had begun, and he would not leave while he had strength to go on. The King of Denmark died, and the next King did not support the mission. For two years Egede and his family suffered great hardships; but the mission was again reinforced.

In 1733 the small-pox made great havoc among the inhabitants of Greenland. Three thousand died. Egede and his wife spent their days and their nights in nursing the sick. They took some even into their own houses, gave them medicine, watched over them, comforted them, and prayed for them. But to human strength there is a limit. Egede's wife died, overpowered by anxiety and fatigue. His own health failed, and now he thought that there was no hope for him but to return to Norway. He had been fifteen years in Greenland, and had seen but little prospect of his work ending in the results he expected. He had baptized many children by consent of their parents, who were not themselves Christians. The Lutherans have always attached great importance to the rite of baptism. He had mastered the language of Greenland, and was gaining an influence over the people. There were many under instructions, and improvements were made in the houses and in cultivating the ground, but Egede still complained with the prophet, "Who hath believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed?" He called the people together before he left them, and preached from Isaiah, xlix. 4, "I said I have labored in vain. I have spent my strength for naught, and in vain; yet surely my judgment is with the Lord, and my work with my God."

Hans Egede returned to Norway, but left his son Paul to preach to the Greenlanders. He lived to the age of seventy-three, and to the last his passion was —missionaries for Greenland!

Day of Rest.

Children's Corner.

The Broken Swing.

"Father, may I go and play to-day with the swing?" said a little boy, just as he was getting ready to go out.

"No, my child, not to-day," answered the father: "to-morrow you can go."

To-morrow! it was too long for the impatient child.

A little later, when his father had gone out, the child, standing at the window, saw right before him the swing hanging between two trees at the bottom of the garden.

"If I swing a little," he said to himself, "nobody would know it. I will only have just one turn."

So he ran into the garden and climbed into the swing. Great was his joy for a few minutes, and he could not help crying between each swing, "I wonder why father said this morning that I must not swing?"

All at once the chord broke. The child fell to the ground. His mother, terrified, ran out with a servant; they lifted him up and carried him into the house. The poor little fellow had broken his right arm.

His sorrow was very bitter when he saw his mother's grief; he had, too, to bear a great deal of pain when the doctor "set" his arm; but what vexed him most was to see his father come home at night, bringing a beautiful rope, quite new, intended to secure against accident the beloved son, whom that day he had been obliged to deprive of a pleasure that had become dangerous.

Dear children, your parents also find themselves sometimes obliged to refuse your requests. Have confidence in their love and in their wisdom, without always seeking to know the wherefore of their refusal.

When you are older, you will see that our kind heavenly Father does the same with us. He does not always grant us all we ask, because he knows that it will be hurtful to us. Trust, then, and with greater reason, his love and His wisdom, when you cannot understand the motive of his dealings with you.

We often ask for things which, if they were granted, would prove to us what the swing was to the little boy; and our disobedience is sure to produce only bitter fruits.—Sunday School Visitor.

The History of Postage-Stamps.

The introduction of the postal system, as it at present exists in all countries on the globe, has been credited to England, when, in 1840, covers and envelopes were devised to carry letters all over the kingdom at one penny the single rate. This plan was adopted through the exertion of Sir Rowland Hill, who has been aptly termed the "father of postage-stamps." It now appears, however, that there is another aspirant for the introduction of the stamp system. In Italy, as far back as 1818, letter sheets were prepared, duly stamped in the left lower corner, while letters were delivered by specially appointed carriers, on the prepayment of the money which the stamp represented. The early stamp represented a courier on horseback, and was of three values. It was discontinued in 1836. Whether Italy or Great Britain first introduced postage-stamps, other countries afterwards began to avail themselves of this method for the prepayment of letters, although they did not move very promptly in the matter.

Great Britain enjoyed the monopoly of stamps for three years, and, though the first stamps were issued in 1840, she has made fewer changes in her stamps than any other country, and has suffered no change at all in the main design—the portrait of Queen Victoria. In other countries, notably in our own, the Sandwich Islands, and the Argentine Repuolic, the honor of portraiture on the stamps is usually distributed among various high public officers; but in Great Britain the Queen alone figures on her stamps, and not even the changes that thirty-five years have made in her face are shown on the national and colonial postage-stamps.

The next country to follow the example of England was Brazil. In 1842 a series of three stamps was issued, consisting simply of large numerals denoting the value, and all printed in black. Then came the cantons in Switzerland, and Finland, with envelopes which to-day are very rare, and soon after them, Bavaria, Belgium, France, Hanover, New South Wales, Tuscany, Austria, British Guiana, Prussia, Saxony, Schleswig-Holstein, Spain, Denmark, Italy, Oldenburg, Trinidad, Wurtemberg, and the United States. Other countries followed in the train, until, at the present moment, there is scarcely any portion of the globe, inhabited by civilized people, which has not postage-stamps.—St. Nicholas.

Commit the following to memory, and you will have at your "tongue's end" the names of the monarchs of England from the time of the conquest down to the present date:

First William the Norman, then William his son,
Henry, Stephen and Henry, then Richard and John,
Next Henry the Third; Edwards, one two and three,
And again after Richard, three Henrys we see,
Two Edwards, third Richard, if rightly I guess,
Two Henry's, sixth Edward, Queens Mary and Bess,
Then Jamie the Scott, then Charles whom they slew,
Then followed Cromwell, another Charles, too,
Next James, called the second, ascended the throne,
Then William and Mary together came on,
Till Anne, Georges four, and fourth William all past,
God sent them Victoria, the youngest and last.

A man who can take the place which God puts him, and stick to it and fight it through, and stand a man every inch, has, we think, waiting an estate of glory such as has not been known in this world.

ANTI-MASONIC BOOKS,

(Not our own Publications.)

For Sale by EZRA A. COOK & CO

13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

[FOR CATALOGUE OF PUBLICATIONS OF EZRA A. COOK & CO., See page 15.]

All books sent post paid, on receipt of retail price, but BOOKS SENT BY MAIL ARE NOT AT OUR RISK.

Books ordered by express are sold at 10 per cent. discount and SENT AT OUR RISK. Party ordering must pay express charges.

Elder Stearns' Books.

Stearns' Inquiry Into the Nature and Tendency of Masonry

With an Appendix.

SEVENTH EDITION.

338 Pages, in Cloth.....60 cents.
" " " Paper.....40 "

Stearns' Letters on Masonry.

Showing the antagonism between Freemasonry and the Christian Religion.
Price, 30 cents.

Stearns' Review of Two Masonic Addresses.

In this scathing review the lying pretentions of the order are clearly shown.
Price, 10 cents.

Levington's Key to Masonry.

This is Rev. Mr. Levington's last, and in the judgment of its author, best work on Masonry. The contents of the first chapter. are as follows:

"Commencement and growth of Speculative or Symbolic Freemasonry—A table showing the thing at a glance—The use that the Atheists made of it—Identical with Illuminism—Its connection with the French Revolution, and with the Irish Rebellion—The action of the British Parliament with regard to it—Proofs of its diabolical purposes—Its Introduction, doings, progress and designs in the United States."

The contents of the Eleventh chapter are thus startling:

"Knights of the Golden Circle—Graphic account of them by a seceding Knight, and remarks thereon, showing the identity of the order with Masonry—Quotations from Sir Walter Scott."

This work is thrilling in statement, and powerful in argumt. 425 pagenes,
Price, $1.35.

Light on Freemasonry:

BY ELDER D. BERNARD,

TO WHICH IS APPENDED A

Revelation of the Mysteries of Odd-fellowship by a Member of the Craft.

The whole containing over five hundred pages lately revised and republished. Price $2,00

The first part of the above work, Light on Freemasonry, 416 pages in paper cover, will be sent post paid on receipt of $1.

FOR SALE BY

United Brethren Publishing House,
DAYTON, O.
and by
EZRA A. COOK & CO.,
13 Wabash Ave, CHICAGO.

Walsh's Review of Freemasonry

REVISED EDITION,

Is a Scholarly Review of the Institution, by Rev Jno. T. Walsh.

Price 25 cts.

Finney on Masonry.

BOUND IN CLOTH, PRICE $1.00,

CHEAP EDITION,

Twenty-five dollars per hundred, by express and not less than 25 copies at that rate,

BY MAIL, POST-PAID:

Per doz.....$3.75,
Single copy,..... 35 c

ODD-FELLOWSHIP

JUDGED BY ITS OWN UTTERANCES;

Its Doctrine and Practice examined in the light of God's Word.

BY REV. J. H. BROCKMAN,

This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-Fellowship, in the form of a dialogne. It was originally published in German.
Price, bonnd in Boards, 75 cents.

GOOD TEMPLARISM EXPOSED.

Obligations, of the Initiatory Fidelity, Charity, and Royal Virtue Degrees.

This is a small book containing only the Obligations and some of the Odes of the Good Templars.

Single Copy, Post paid,..... 10cts.
Per Doz. " 75
Per 100 by Express,..... $4.50

Bernard's Appendix to Light on Masonry,

Showing the Character of the Institution by it's terrible oaths and penalties. Paper covers, 25 cents.

HAND BOOK OF FREEMASONRY.

By EDMOND RONAYNE.

Entered according to Act of Congress in the year 1875.
BY EDMOND RONAYNE.
In the office of the Librarian of Congress at Washington, D. C.

MASTER MASON'S DEGREE. Continued.

Senior Warden:—(one rap) Bro. Junior Warden, it is the order of the Worshipful Master that Keystone Lodge, No. 639, be now closed, etc., etc. This you will communicate to the brethren present that all having due notice thereof may govern themselves accordingly.

Junior Warden:—(three raps) Brethren, it is the order of the Worshipful Master, communicated to me by way of the West, that Keystone Lodge No. 639, be now closed and to stand closed until the next "regular communication" unless otherwise specially convened, in which case due and timely notice shall be given by summons or otherwise. Take due notice thereof and govern yourselves accordingly.

Worshipful Master:—Together brethren. (The Master and all the brethren together make the due-guard and sign of an Entered Apprenticc, as on page 14). The Master gives one rap, the Senior Warden one and the Junior Warden one, when the Master continues:

Worthy Master:—Bro. Senior Warden, how should Mason's meet?

Senior Warden:—(touching the miniature level suspended from his neck or worn on the left breast of his coat), On the level.

Worshipful Master:—How act, Bro. Junior Warden?

Junior Warden:—(touching the small plumb worn by him,) By the plumb.

Worshipful Master:—(pointing to his own jewel, a small square,) And part upon the square. So my brethren may we ever meet, act and part. (Removing his hat) And now may the blessing of heaven rest upon us and all regular Masons. May brotherly love and friendship prevail and may every moral and social virtue cement us. Amen,

Response by the brethren:—So mote it be.

Worshipful Master:—Accordingly I declare Keystone Lodge No 639, closed in form, and to stand closed until the next "regular communication", unless otherwise specially convened in which caseduc and timely notice shall be given by summons or otherwise. Bro. Junior Deacon inform the tyler. Bro. Senior Deacon take charge of the altar.

The Junior Deacon informs the tyler in the usual manner; the Senior Deacon proceeds to the altar, closes the Bible and places upon the cover the square and compass, or else they are taken charge of by the tyler. The brethren and officers take off their aprons and jewels which they leave on their seats to be collected by the tyler who safely locks them up in proper receptacles prepared for the purpose and so the legitimate labors of a lodge of Free and Accepted Masons are concluded.

The foregoing is the correct method of closing a lodge of Ancient Craft Masonry in form. There is another mode, however, and one which is very generally practiced, though not so strictly according to rule as the preceding one, and hence I shall give it here in order to render this revelation complete in every particular. There being nothing further to be brought before the lodge.

Worshipful Master:—(one rap) Bro. Junior Deacon, what is the last as well as the first great care of Masons when convened?

Junior Deacon:—(rising) To see that the lodge is duly tyled, Worshipful.

Worshipful Master:—Perform that duty and inform the tyler that I am about to close Keystone Lodge No. 639. Direct him to take due notice and tyle accordingly.

The Junior Deacon informs the tyler in the usual manner (see page 13.)

Junior Deacon:—The tyler is informed, Worshipful.

Worshipful Master:—(one rap) Bro. Senior Warden, at the opening of this lodge you informed me that you were a Master Mason. What induced you to become a Master Mason?

Senior Warden:—That I might travel in foreign countries, work and receive Master's wages, thereby to be the better enabled to support myself and family and contribute to the relief of distressed worthy brother Master Masons, their widows and orphans.

Worshipful Master:—What makes you a Master Mason?

Senior Warden:—My obligation, etc., etc.

Here follow the same questions and answers exactly as are used by the Master and Wardens at opening the lodge, after which the Master gives the following order:

Bro. Senior Warden it is my order that Keystone Lodge, No. 639 be now closed in form on the third degree of Masonry together with the lodges below it and stand closed until the next regular communication, etc. The remaining part of the closing ceremonies are precisely the same as those given in the first method. It will be observed that the only difference between these two methods of closing the lodge above given, is that in the first instance the lodge is regularly closed on each degree, or, as it is expressed Masonically, "closed in form," while by the second mode the lodge is simply closed on the third degree and declared closed on the lodges below it. This is called "short form."

It only remains for me now to add on the initiating, passing and raising of candidates, that after a man is made a Master Mason he very seldom gives himself any further trouble about learning the ritual or lecture of the third degree as he did in the two preceding degrees; in fact he is never required to learn it unless he proposes to join the chapter, and even if he were, I do not know of a dozen men in any lodge in Chicago who are capable of teaching a newly raised brother the lecture of even the first section of the Master's degree. On the night of his raising he takes his seat as a Master Mason and from that time forward (unless he has ambition for office), he learns nothing further of either the origin, the history, or the ritual of Freemasonry. He is in possession of a few signs, grips, and pass-words and displays some Masonic emblem on his vest collar and that is about all he knows or cares to learn of the institution. As however the candidate ought to be fully instructed in this as in the two preceding degrees and especially as it forms an important part of the examination which a strange brother must undergo when he desires to visit a lodge, I shall give here the lecture of the Master Mason's degree as I have already given that of the Entered Apprentice and Fellow Craft, and thus place it within the reach of even a school boy to pass himself as a Master Mason in any part of the United States.

CHAPTER IX.

The following is the lecture which the candidate ought to learn after being raised to the "Sublime" degree of Master Mason. It also, together with the first section of the Entered Apprentice degree as given in chap. iv., and the first section of the Fellow Craft degree as given in Chap. vi. constitutes that portion of the ritual on which a visiting brother must be examined before he can gain admission to a lodge anywhere, and hence it is of the utmost importance that it should be carefully studied and thoroughly committed to memory by the Masonic student.

Q. Will you be off or from?

A. From.

Q. From what and to what?

A. From the degree of a Fellow Craft to that of a Master Mason.

Q. Are you a Master Mason.

A. I am.

Q. What makes you a Master Mason?

A. My obligation.

Q. Where were you made a Master Mason?

A. In a regularly constituted lodge of Master Masons.

Q. Where were you prepared to be made a Master Mason?

A. In a room adjacent to a regularly constituted lodge of Master Masons.

Q. How were you prepared?

A. By being divested of all metals, neither naked nor clad, barefoot, hood-winked and with a cable-tow three times around my body in which condition I was conducted to the door of the lodge by a brother.

Q. Why had you a cable-tow three times around your body?

A. To signify that as I advanced in Freemasonry my obligations became more and more binding.

Q. How gained you admission?

A. By three distinct knocks.

Q. To what do they allude?

A. To the three jewels of a Master Mason.

Q. Which are the three jewels of a Master Mason?

A. Friendship, Morality and Brotherly Love.

Q. What was said to you from within?

A. Who comes here?

Q. Your answer?

A. I, "Septimus Jones", who has been regularly initiated as an Entered Apprentice, passed to the degree of a Fellow Craft and now seeks further light in Masonry by being raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason.

Q. What was then asked of you?

A. If this was of my own free will and accord; if I was worthy and well qualified and had made suitable proficiency in the preceding degrees, all of which being answered in the affirmative, I was then asked by what further right and benefit I expected to gain admission?

Q Your answer?

A. By the benefit of a pass.

Q. Had you the pass?

A. I had it not but my conductor had it for me.

Q. What followed?

A. I was desired to wait with patience until the Worshipful Master should be informed of my request and his answer returned.

Q. What answer did he return?

A. Let him enter this lodge in the name of the Lord and be received in due form.

Q. How were you received?

A. On both points of the compass extending from my naked left to right breast, the moral of which was to teach me that as the most vital parts of man are contained within the breast, so are the most excellent tenets of our institution contained within both points of the compass, which are Friendship, Morality and Brotherly Love.

Q. How were you then disposed of?

A I was conducted three times regularly around the lodge-room to the Junior Warden in the South where the same questions were asked and like answers returned as at the door.

Q. How did the Junior Warden dispose of you?

A. He directed me to the Senior Warden in the West and he to the Worshipful Master in the East, where the same questions were asked and like answers returned as before.

Q. How did the Worshipful Master dispose of you?

A. He ordered me to be re-conducted to the Senior Warden in the West who taught me how to approach the East by three upright regular steps, my feet forming the angle of a square and my body erect, facing the Worshipful Master in the East.

Q. What did the Worshipful Master then do with you?

A. He made me a Master Mason.

Q. How?

A. In due form.

Q. What is that due form?

A. Kneeling upon both my naked knees, both hands resting on the Holy Bible, square, and compass in which due form I took upon myself the solemn oath and obligation of a Master Mason which is as follows (see page 99). (In some lodges the obligation in full is required to be learned, in others only the penalty).

Q. What is the penalty of your obligation?

A. Binding myself under no less a penalty than that of having my body severed in twain, my bowels taken from thence and burned to ashes and the ashes scattered to the four winds of heaven, so that no more trace or remembrance might be had of so vile and perjured a wretch as I, should I ever knowingly or willingly violate this my solemn obligation as a Master Mason. So help me God and keep me steadfast in the due performance of the same.

Q. What were you then asked?

A. What I most desired.

Q. Your answer.

A. Further light in Masonry.

Q. Did you receive further light in Masonry?

A. I did by order of the Worshipful Master and the assistance of the brethren.

Q. On being brought to light in Masonry for the third time what did you discover more than in the preceding degree?

A. The three great lights in Masonry as before by the aid of the three lesser lights but with this difference, that now both points of the compass were elevated above the square which was to signify that I should never lose sight of the moral and Masonic application of that highly useful and valuable instrument which teaches Friendship, Morality and Brotherly Love.

Q. What did you next behold?

A. The Worshipful Master approaching me from the East on the step under the due-guard and, sign of a Master Mason and who in token of the continuance of friendship and brotherly love presented me with his right hand and with it the pass and token of a pass of a Master Mason, ordered me to arise and salute the Junior and Senior Wardens as such.

Q. After saluting the Wardens how were you disposed of?

A. I was ordered to be reconducted to the Senior Warden in the West who taught me how to wear my apron as a Master Mason and return to the East.

Q. How should Master Masons wear their aprons?

A. With the bib turned down and the left hand corner turned up.

(This is Illinois work. On this point Grand Lodges differ. Some maintain that a Fellow Craft should wear his apron with the corner turned up and others, as Illinois, that a Master Mason should wear it thus).

Q. What followed?

A. I was presented with the working tools of a Master Mason and taught their uses.

Q. Which are the working tools of a Master Mason?

A. All the implements of Masonry indiscriminately, but more especially the trowel.

The trowel is an instrument made use of by Operative Masons to spread the cement which unites the building into one common mass; but we, as Free and Accepted Masons are taught to make use of it for the more noble and glorious purpose of spreading the cement of brotherly love and affection; that cement which unites us into one sacred band, or society of friends and brothers, among whom no contention should ever exist, but that noble contention, or rather emulation, of who best can work and best agree.

Q. How were you then disposed of.

A. I was ordered to be reconducted to the place from whence I came and there to be invested with what I had been divested of and return to the lodge for further instruction. This ends the first section.

The examining brother or examining committee can ask any questions they may see fit on the second section or dramatic part of this degree to which the candidate or visiting brother may reply in his own words but in strict accordance with that portion of the ritual to be found from page 106 to page 133 inclusive.

Should the party under examination be a stranger desiring to visit the lodge and having taken the "test oath" and manifested his proficiency in the lectures as given in chapters IV., VI., and IX., he will now be carefully examined in all the grips and passwords as follows:

The examiner, taking the visiting brother by the hand, as in ordinary hand-shaking, the following dialogue takes place and must be literally in accordance with the prescribed formula as this is strictly and purely the most essential part of Freemasonry.

Examiner (taking visitor by the hand), I hail.

Visitor. I conceal.

Ex. What do you conceal?

Vis. All the secrets of Masons in Masonry to which this (presses the top of his thumb hard against the first knuckle near the hand) token alludes (see fig. p. 38).

Ex. What is this? (pressing with his thumb the first knuckle of visitor's hand).

Vis. The grip of an Entered Apprentice Mason.

Ex. Has it a name?

Vis. It has.

Ex. Will you give it to me?

Vis. I did not so receive it neither will I so impart it.

Ex. How will you dispose of it?

Vis. I will letter and syllable it.

Ex. Letter it and begin.

Vis. Begin you.

Ex. Nay you must begin.

Vis. A.

Ex. B.

Vis. O.

Ex. Z.

Vis. Az.

Ex. Bo.

Vis. Boaz.

Ex. Will you be off or from? (still holding the other's hand).

Vis. From.

Ex. From what and to what?

Vis. From the grip of an Entered Apprentice to the pass grip of a Fellow Craft.

Ex. Pass.

(The visitor moves his thumb from the first knuckle joint to the space between the first and second knuckles; the examiner then moves his thumb to the same part of the visitor's hand). (See fig. page 79).

Ex. (pressing his thumb) What is this?

Vis. (returning the pressure) The pass grip of a Fellow Craft.

Ex. Has it a name?

Vis. It has.

Ex. Will you give it to me?

Vis. I did not so receive it neither will I so impart it.

Ex. How will you dispose of it?

Vis. I will syllable it.

Ex. Syllable it and begin.

Vis. Begin you.

Ex. Nay you must begin.

Vis. Bo.

Ex. Shib.

Vis. Leth

Ex. Shibbo.

Vis. Shibboleth.

Ex. Will you be off or from?

Vis. From.

Ex. From what and to what?

Vis. From the pass-grip of a Fellow Craft to the real grip of the same.

Ex. Pass.

(The visitor now moves his thumb to the second knuckle, the examiner also doing the same. See fig. page 80).

Ex. What is this? (pressing hard on the knuckle).

Vis. The real grip of a Fellow Craft.

Ex. Has it a name?

Vis. It has.

Ex. Will you give it to me?

Vis. I did not so receive it neither will I so impart it.

Ex. How will you dispose of it?

Vis. I will letter and syllable it.

Ex. Letter it and begin.

Vis. Begin you.

Ex. Nay you must begin.

Vis. A.

Ex. J.

Vis. C.

Ex. H.

Vis. I.

Ex. N.

Vis. Ja.

Ex. Chin.

Vis. Jachin.

Ex. Will you be off or from? (still holding the hand).

Vis. From.

Ex. From what and to what?

Vis. From the real grip of a Fellow Craft to the pass-grip of a Master Mason.

Ex. Pass.

(The visitor now moves his thumb to the space between the second and third knuckles, the examiner also moving his. See fig. page).

Ex. (pressing his thumb as before) What is this?

Vis. The pass-grip of a Master Mason.

Ex. Has this a name?

Vis. It has.

Ex. Will you give it to me?

Vis. I did not so receive it neither will I so impart it.

Ex. How will you dispose of it.

Vis. I will syllable it.

Ex. Syllable it and begin.

Vis. Begin you

Ex. Nay, you must begin.

Vis. Bal.

Ex. Tu.

Vis. Cain.

Ex. Tubal.

Vis Tubal-Cain.

Ex. Will you be off or from?

Vis. From.

Ex. From what and to what?

Vis. From the pass-grip of a Master Mason to the real grip of the same.

Ex. Pass.

(The visitor here looses his grip of the examiner's knuckles and again catching his right hand very firmly he presses the tops of his fingers hard against the other's wrist where it joins the hand, the thumbs of both being interlocked and pressing tightly against the hand, the fingers of each also being somewhat apart. See fig. page).

Ex. What is this? (grasping the other's hand very strongly.)

Vis. The strong grip of a Master Mason or Lion's Paw.

Ex. Has this a name?

Vis. It has.

Ex. Will you give it to me?

Vis. I will if you place yourself in a proper position.

Ex. What is that proper position.

Vis. The five points of fellowship.

Ex. Which are the five points of fellowship?

Masonic Books,

FOR SALE AT THE CYNOSURE OFFICE.

Those who wish to know the character of Freemasonry, as shown by its own publications, will find many standard works in the following list.

No sensible Mason dares deny that such men as Albert G. Mackey, the great Masonic Lexicographer, and Daniel Sickels, the Masonic author and publisher, are the highest Masonic authority in the United States.

Allyn's Ritual of Masonry,

Illustrated by a large number of engravings, and ontaining a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, Orange nd Odd-fellows' societies. Price, $5.00.

Mackey's Masonic Ritualist;

OR

MONITORIAL INSTRUCTION BOOK

BY ALBERT G. MACKEY,

"Past General High Priest of the General Grand Chapter of the United States, Knight of the Eagle and Pelican, Prince of Mercy," Etc. Etc. Price, $1 75

Mackey's Lexicon of Freemasonry,

Containing a Definition of Terms, Notices of its History, Traditions and Antiquities, and an account of all the Rites and Mysteries of the Ancient World. 12 mo. 526 pages, $3 00

MACKEY'S MANUAL OF THE LODGE

OR

Monitorial Instructions in the Degrees of Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft, and Master Mason; with Ceremonies relating to Installations, Dedications, Consecrations, Laying of Corner-stones &c. Price, $2 00

MACKEY'S TEXT BOOK

OF

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

Illustrating the Laws of Freemasonry, both written and unwritten.

This is the Great Law Book of Freemasonry 570 pages, Price, $2.50.

Webb's Monitor of Freemasonry,

LARGE EDITION, WITH NOTES

By ROB. MORRIS, Price, $1.50.
Pocket Edition, 75 cts.

SICKELS' FREEMASON'S MONITOR.

Containing the Degrees of Freemasonry embraced in the Lodge, Chapter, Council and Commandery, embellished with nearly 300 symbolic illustrations, Together with Tactics and drill of Masonic Knighthood. Also, forms of Masonic Documents, Notes, Songs, Masonic dates, installations, etc. By D. Sickels, 32 mo tuck. Price $1.50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry.

A Practical Guide to the Ceremonies in the Degrees conferred in Masonic Lodge Chapter, Encampments, etc. Illustrated Edition. In cloth, $1 25: paper, 75 cts.

Chase's Digest of Masonic Law.

Comprises a Complete Code of Regulations Decisions and Opinions upon Questions of Masonic Jurisprudence. Price, $2 25.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor

Illustrated with Explanatory Engraving Price $2.50.

ANTIMASONIC TRACTS.

WE NOW HAVE 25 ENGLISH TRACTS, ONE GERMAN, AND ONE SWEDISH

These tracts are sold at the rate of $1.00 per 1000 pages.

"THE ANTI-MASONS SCRAP BOOK."

Contains 24 Cynosure Tracts, bound together, and is just the hing to select tracts from. Price 20 cents. See advertisement.

For information about Free Tracts see advertisement headed "Free Tracts."

Address EZRA A. COOK & Co.,
13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

TRACT NO. 1:

HISTORY OF MASONRY.

BY PRESIDENT J. BLANCHARD, OF WHEATON COLLEGE.

This is now published in three tracts of four pages each. Price of each, 50 cents per 100; $4 per 1000.

TRACT No. 1, PART FIRST—Shows the origin of Speculative Freemasonry, and is entitled "HISTORY OF MASONRY."

TRACT No. 1, PART SECOND—Is entitled "DESPOTIC CHARACTER OF FREEMASONRY"

TRACT No. 1, PART THIRD—Is entitled "FREEMASONRY A CHRIST-EXCLUDING RELIGION."

TRACT NO. 2:

MASONIC MURDER,

By REV. J. R. BAIRD, of Pleasantville, Pa., a seceding Mason who has taken 17 degrees. A 2-page tract at 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 3:

SECRETS OF MASONRY,

BY ELI TAPLEY.

This is a 4-page Illustrated Tract, showing the signs, grips and pass-words, of the first three degrees. 50 cents per 100, or $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 4:

GRAND! GREAT GRAND!!

BY PHILO CARPENTER.

This is a 2-page tract, calling the attention of the public to the despotic and ridiculous titles of Freemasonry. Price 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1,000.

TRACT. NO, 5:

Extracts From Masonic Oaths and Penalties, as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.

This tract is a reprint of a tract published in 1834, and is a very weighty document. A 4-page tract at 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 6:

Hon. John Quincy Adams' Letter.

Giving His and His Father's Opinion of Freemasonry (1831.);

AND

Hon. James Madison's Letter,

Giving His Opinion of Freemasonry (1832).

Both of these letters, in one 4-page tract, at 50 cents per 100: $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 7:

SATAN'S CABLE-TOW.

A 4-page tract. This is a careful analysis of the character of Masonic oaths, and shows them to be most blasphemous and unchristian; and the Masonic Cable Tow is clearly shown to be the Cable Tow by which Satan is leading thousands to eternal death 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 8:

Is a 2-page double tract, "ILLUSTRATED." The first page represents a Mason proclaimimg the wonderful wisdom and benevolence of the order, with an article below, entitled "Freemasonry is only 152 Years Old," and gives the time and place of its birth.

The second side is entitled, "Murder and Treason not Excepted," and shows that the Masonic order is treasonable in its constitution, and is both anti-Republican and anti-Christian. Price 25 cents per 100; $3 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 9, ILLUSTRATED:

FREEMASONRY IN THE CHURCH.

Copy of a petition for the higher degrees of Freemasonry, in which Blasphemous and Despotic Titles are enumerated and prayed for. The Copy was printed for the use of "Occidental Sovereign Consistory S. P. R. S.," 32d degree—a Chicago Lodge—and was ordered by a deacon of a Christian Church who is Grand Orator of the Grand Lodge of Ill.

TRACT NO. 10:

CHARACTER AND SYMBOLS OF FREEMASONRY.

A 2-page tract, (ILLUSTRATED) by its "Grand Secretaries, Grand Lecturers, Perfect Prince Freemasons, Grand Inspector, Inquisitor Commanders, Grand High Priests," etc. The wonderful symbolical meaning of "the Cable Tow," "the Square and Compass," "the Lamb Skin, or white Apron,'' and "the Common Gavel," are given in the exact words of the highest Masonic authority. 25 cents per 100 or $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 11;

Address of Niagara County Association, New York,

TO THE PUBLIC;

Concerning the Morgan Murder, and the character of Freemasonry shown by this and other Masonic murders. 50 cents per

TRACT NO. 12:

JUDGE WHITNEY AND MASONRY.

This tract contains a condensed account of Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois, on charge of unmasonic conduct in bringing Samuel L. Keith the murderer of Ellen Slade. and a member of his Lodge, to justice, with Judge Whitney's subsequent renunciation of Masonry,

An 8-page tract, $1.00 per 100; $8.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 13:

DR. NATHANIEL COLVER ON MASONRY,

and

HOWARD CROSBY, D. D.,

Chancellor of the University of New York, on SECRET SOCIETIES. A double 2-page tract 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 14:

GRAND LODGE MASONRY.

ITS RELATION TO CIVIL GOVERNMENT AND THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION.

Opening address before the Monmouth Convention, by PRES. J. BLANCHARD of WHEATON COLLEGE. This is a 16-page tract at $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 15:

MASONIC OATHS NULL AND VOID.

A clear and conclusive argument proving the invalidity of any oath or obligation to do evil. By REV. I. A. HART, Secretary National Christian Association. Published by special order of the Association. 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 16:

HON. SETH M. GATES ON FREEMASONRY.

PROOF THAT THE INSTITUTION THAT MURDERED MORGAN IS UNCHANGED IN CHARACTER

This is a letter to the Monmouth Convention by Hon. Seth M Gates who was Deputy Sheriff of Genesee County, and also Secretary of the Leroy Lodge at the time of Morgan's Abduction. A 4-page tract, 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 17:

Origin, Obligations and Expenses of The Grange,

WITH A CONSTITUTION OF A FARMERS' CLUB.

This little tract ought to be put into the hands of every Farmer in the United States. Four-page tract, 50 cents per 100; $4 00 per 1000

TRACT NO. 18:

HON. WM. H. SEWARD ON SECRET SOCIETIES.

Extracs from a Speech on now-Knottingism in the U. S. Senate in 1855. The testimony of JOHN QUINCY ADAMS, MILLARD FILLMORE. CHIEF JUSTIC MARSHALL and others, is added.

A 2-page tract, 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO, 19.

BRICKS FOR MASONS TO LAY.

WASHINGTON, MADISON, MARSHALL, RUSH, HANCOCK, ADAMS AND WEBSTER, give brief clear testimony against the Lodge A 2-page tract 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 20:

OBJECTIONS TO MASONRY.

By A SECEDING MASON, of Cornton, Vermont.

This tract contains many strong arguments against the Lodge drawn from personal experience, observation and study of its character. A 4-page tract at 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

TRACT NO. 21:

MASONIC CHASTITY.

BY EMMA A. WALLACE.

The author, by wonderfully clear illustration and argument, shows the terribly corrupt nature of Freemasonry. No true woman who reads this will ever speak with approbation of this institution A 4-page tract 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

TRACT No. 22.

LINUS CHITTENDEN ON FREEMASONRY,

The Author a Seceding Master Mason states his objection to the Lodge, drawn both from experience and observation, in a clear concise and forcible style,

A 2 page tract, 25 cents per 100, $2.00 per 1,000.

TRACT No. 23.

MASONIC OATHS AND PENALTIES.

ADDRESS OF REV, A. M. MILLIGAN AT THE PITTSBURGH CONVENTION.

This is the clearest and most conclusive argument to show the wickedness of masonic oaths and the duty to disregard and repent of them that we have ever seen.

A 4 page tract, 50 cents per 100, $4.00 per 1,000

TRACT NO. 1, IN SWEDISH;

translated by Prof. A. R. CERVIN. A 16-page tract at $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

ENOCH HONEYWELL'S TRACT.

TO THE YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA. Postage 8cts. per 100, TRACTS FREE.

GERMAN CYNOSUCE TRACT A.

Six Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason.

By Rev. A. GROLE, Pastor, German M. E. Church, Worchester, Mass

This is our first German Tract, and it is a good one; it ought to have a large circulation. A 4 page tract, Price 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

FREE TRACTS.

A Tract Fund for the Free Distribution of Tract

HAS BEEN SECURED AND SHOULD NEVER BE EXHAUSTED. A friend has pledged this fund a dollar for every other dollar received, so EVERY NEW SUBSCRIPTION TO THE TRACT FUND COUNTS DOUBLE, and thus $10.00 pays for 20,000 pages of tracts.

The distribution of these tracts has already saved hundreds of young men from the lodge, but there is a great lack of funds to supply the constantly increasing demand for Free Tracts.

During the year ending July 1st, 1875 a little less than 150.000 pages of Cynosure Tracts were gratuitously sent out, mostly in very small lots. The present demand is fully 100.000 pages per month, but funds are lacking to meet it.

Many of our most earnest workers in thiscause of God are poor men, who would be gladto circulate thousands of pages of Antimasonic literature if they could have them free.

SHALL WE NOT HAVE AN INEXHAUSTIBLETRACT FUND?

"THE ANTI-MASONS SCRAP BOOK."

Contains 24 Cynosure Tracts, bound together and is just the thing to select from. Price 20cents. See advertisement page 15.

Enoch Honeywell Esq., pays for an unlimitednumber of his tract addressed "TO THE YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA." It is anexcelent tract, bearing the printed endorsement of Executive Committee of the National Christian Association1 He has furnished the public over 150.000 pages ofthese tracts during the past year.

TRACTS FREE. If sent by mail, 5 cts. per 100 is charged for postage,

Scnd Contributions and orders to

EZRA A. COOK.

Secretary of Tract Committee 13 WabashAve, Chicago, Ill.

Descriptive Catalogue of Publications of Ezra A. Cook & Co.

13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

BOOKS.

FREEMASONRY EXPOSED,

by CAP'T. WILLIAM MORGAN.

THE GENUINE OLD MORGAN BOOK:—repnblished with engravings showing the Lodge Room, Dress of candidates, Signs, Due Gnards, Grips, Etc.

This revelation is so accnrate that Freemasons murdered the author for writing it. Thonsands have testified to the correctness of the revelation and this book therefore sells very rapidly.

Price 25 cents.

Per Doz. Post Paid..... $2.00
Per hundred by express, (express charges extra.).....$10.00

ODD FELLOWSHIP ILLUSTRATED.

A complete exposition of the Lodge Encampment and Rebecca (Ladies') Degree. The Signs, Grips, &c., shown by engravings.

Single copy, post paid,.....$ 25
Per Doz., " " 2 00
Per Hundred, Express charges extra,..... 10 00

EXPOSITION OF THE GRANGE.

EDITED BY REV. A. W. GEESLIN.

Illustrated with Engravings showing Lodge Room, Signs, Signals, etc.

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 25
Per Doz., " " 2 00
Per 100 Express charges extra..... 10 00

Judge Whitney's Defense Before the Grand Lodge of Ill.

Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the Lodge when S. L. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the Lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renouncod Masonry.

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 20
Per Doz. " " 1 50
Per 100, Express charges extra..... 8 00

History of The Abduction and Murder of Cap't. Wm. Morgan, prepared by Seven Committees of Citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan.

This book contains indispntable, legal evidence that Freemasons, abdncted and Mnrdered Wm. Morgan, for no other offence than tho revelation of Masonry. It contains the sworn testimony of over twenty persons, including Morgan's wife, and no candid person after reading this book, can doubt that many of the most respectable FREEMASONS. in the Empire State, with others were concerned in this crime.

Single Copy, post Paid,..... 25 cents.
Per doz. " ..... $2,00.
Per 100, Express Charges Extra,..... 10.00.

Valance's Confession of The Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan.

This confession of Henry L. Valance, one of the three Freemasons who drowned Morgan in the Niagara River, was taken from the lips of the dying man by Dr. John C. Emery, of Racine Connty, Wisconsin in 1848; The confession bears clear evidenco of trnthfnlness.

Single copy, post paid,..... 20 cents.
Per doz. " ..... $1.50.
Per 100 Express Charges Extra,..... 8.00.

The Mystic Tie or Freemasonry a League with the Devil.

This is an account of the Church Trial of Peter Cook, and wife of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a Reverend Freemason; and their very able defence presented by Mrs. Lucia C. Cook, in which she clearly shows that Freemasonry, is antagonistic to the Christian Religion. Single Copy, post paid,..... 20 cents

Per dozen, post paid..... $1 50
Per hundred Express charges Extra,..... 9 00

NARRATIVES AND ARGUMENTS.

Showing the Conflict of Secret Societies with the Constitution and Laws of the Union and of the States, by FRANCIS SEMPLE.

The fact that Secret Societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of Law is here clearly proved.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 20
Per doz. " $1.75
Per 100 Express charges Extra..... 9.00

THE BROKEN SEAL.

OR PERSONAL REMINISCENCES OF THE ABDUCTION AND MURDER OF Wm. MORGAN,

By SAMUEL D. GREENE,

Price in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

In Paper Covers per Doz. Post paid.....$4 50
" per hundred by express (ex. charges extra $25.00

Capt. Wm. Morgan was Mr. Greene's neighbor in Batavia, N. Y., and a member of the same lodge with him at the time of the great excitement in 1826. The titles to these chapters are sufficiently exciting to give the book a large sale:—"The Storm Gathering;" "Abdnction of Morgan;" "Attempted Abdnction of Miller and his Rescne;" "What became of Morgan;" "What Morgan Actnally Revealed;" "Confession of the Murderer;" "Aliegations against Freemasonry, etc."

THE ANTI-MASON'S SCRAP BOOK,

CONSISTING OF 21 CYNOSURE TRACTS.

In this book are the views of more than a Score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of Secret Societies.

The dangerous tendency and positive evil of organized Secrecy is here shown by the most varied and powerfnl arguments and illustrations that have ever been given to the public.

Lecturers and others who wish to find the best arguments against the Lodge, should send for this book.

Those who wish to circulate Antimasonic Tracts ought to have the book to select from.

Single Copy, post paid, ...20 cents.
Per Doz. " $1.75
Per 100, Express charges Extra.....$10.00

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion.

A clear cutting argument against the Lodge, from a Christian Stand point.

Single Copy post paid.....$ 05
Per doz. " " 50
Per 100 Express Charges Extra..... 3 00

President H. H. GEORGE, On Secret Societies.

A powerfnl address, showing clearly the duty of Christian Churches, to disfellowship Secret Societies.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 10 cts.
Per doz, " ..... 75 "
Per 100, Express charges Extra, ... $4.00.

PHELPS' SECRET SOCIETIES Ancient and Modern.

A NEW BOOK OF GREAT INTEREST.

This work is particularly commended to the attention of Officers of The Army and Navy, The Bench and The Clergy.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

"THE ANTIQUITY OF SECRET SOCIETIES, THE LIFE OF JULIAN, THE ELEUSINIAN MYSTERIES, THE ORIGIN OF MASONRY, WAS WASHINGTON A MASON? FILMORE'S AND WEBSTER'S DEFERENCE TO MASONRY, A BRIEF OUTLINE OF THE PROGRESS OF MASONRY IN THE UNITED STATES, THE TAMMANY RING, MASONIC BENEVOLENCE, THE USES OF MASONRY, AN ILLUSTRATION, THE CONCLUSION."

Single Copy, Post Paid..... 50
Per Doz " " $4 75
Per Hundred, Express Charges Extra.....$25 00

HON. JOHN QUINCY ADAMS' LETTERS to Col. Wm. Stone, Edward Livingstone,

and others, on the nature of

Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties.

Price, post paid..... $ 50
Per Doz., " 4 50
Per 100, Express Charges extra..... 25 00

COLLEGE SECRET SOCIETIES.

Their Customs, Character and the Efforts for their Suppression.

BY H. L. KELLOGG.

Containing the opinion of many prominent College Presidents, and others, and a FULL ACCOUNT OF THE MURDER OF MORTIMER LEGGETT

Single Copy, post paid.....$ 35
Per Doz " " 2 50
Per 100 Express charges extra..... 15 00

MINUTES OF THE SYRACUSE CONVENTION,

Containing addresses by Rev. B. T. Roberts, Chas. D. Greene, Esq., Prof. C. A. Bianchard, Rev. D. P. Rathbnn, Rev. D. S. Caldwell, Mrs. M. E. Gage, Elder J. R. Baird and others. Unpublished Reminiscences of the Morgan Times, by Elder David Bernard; Recollections of the Morgan Trials, as related by Victory Birdseye, Esq., and presented by his daughter, Mrs. C. B. Miller; Secretary's report; roll of delegates; songs of Mr. G. A. Clark; paper by Enoch Honeywell; Constitution N. C. A.; reports of committees, and a report of the political meeting.

Single Copy, post paid, ... 25
Per doz. " " $2.00
Per 100 Express Ccarges Extra..... 10.00

Paoceedings of the Pittsburgh Convention,

Containing Official Reports; Addresses by Rev. D. R. Kerr, D.D. Rev. B. T. Roberts, Rev. G. T. R. Meiser, Prof. J. R. W. Sloane, D. D., Pres't. J. Blanchard, Rev. A. M. Milligan, D. D., Rev. Woodruff Post, Rev. Henry Cogswell, Prof. C. A. Blanchard, and Rev W. E. Coquilette, also Report of the POLITICAL MASS CONVENTION, with Platform and Cadidates for the Presidential Campaign of 1876.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 25 cts.
Per doz " $2,00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 10.00

SERMON ON MASONRY,

BY REV. W. P. M'NARY,

Pastor United Presbyterian Church, Bloomington, Ind.

This work is particularly commended to the attention of Scriptural argument on the character of Freemasonry.

Single Copy, Post Paid,..... 5
Per Doz,..... 50
Per Hnndred, Express Charges Extra.....$3 00

THIRTEEN REASONS

Why a Christian Should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong.

The author states his reasons clearly and carefully, and any one of the thirteen reasons, if properly considered, will keep a Christian out of the Lodge.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 5
Per doz. " " 50
Per 100, Express charges extra, ... $3.00

SERMON ON MASONRY,

BY REV. JAMES WILLIAMS.

Presiding Elder of Dakota District North-western Iowa Conference, M. E. Church, A SECEDING MASTER MASON.

Published at the special reqnest of the Nine Clergymen of different denominations and others.

Single Copy, post paid..... 10
Per doz. " " 75
Per 100, Express Charges Extra.....$4.00

MASONRY A WORK OF DARKNESS

ADVERSE TO CHRISTIANITY, and Inimical to a Republican Government.

BY REV. LEBBEUS ARMSTRONG, [Presbyterian.]

A Seceding Mason of 21 Degrees.

This is a very telling work and no honest man that reads it will think of joining the lodge. Single Copy, post paid,.....20cts.

Per doz, post paid,..... $1.50.
" 100, Express Charges Extra..... 8.00.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy.

Address of Prest. J. BLANCHARD, before the Pittsburgh Convention.

This is a most convincing argument against the lodge.

Single Copy, Post Paid.....$ 05
Per Doz " " 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

GRAND LODGE MASONRY.

Its relation to civil Government and the Christian Religion.

By Prest. J. BLANCHARD, at the Monmouth Convention.

The Unchristian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is here proved from the highest masonic authorities.

Single Copy, Post Paid,.....$ 05
Per Doz..... 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

SERMON ON SCERETISM

BY REV. R. THEO. CROSS.

This is a very clear array of the objections to Masonry that are apparent to all.

By Rev. R. T. Cross, Pastor Congregational Church, Hamilton, N.Y.

Single Copy, Post Paid..... $ 05
Per Doz..... 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

HISTORY OF THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought; The Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association, Conditions of the Carpenter Donation with Engraving of building to be donated by Mr. Carpenter; Tables showing the number of Pastors and communicants in church es that exclude members of Secret Societies, Tabular view of Local, County State and National Conventions, and list of organizations Auxiliary to the National Christian Association; Brief opinions of Eminent Men on Secret Societies, and Testimonies of Religious Bodies against them. This book will be found invaluable by all who wish to know the character of this reform and how they may do the most to further its objects. It should be in the hands of every Antmason.

Price post paid,.....25 cents each,
per doz;.....$1,50
25 copies or more by express at 8 cents each.

IN PRESS

HAND BOOK

—OF—

FREEMASONRY,

A COMPLETE

Illustrated Exposition,

—OF—

BLUE LODGE

MASONRY

—BY—

EDMOND RONAYNE,

LATE PAST MASTER OF KEYSTONE LODGE, NO. 639, CHICAGO, ILL.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 50cts.
Per doz. " " $4.00
Per 100, Express Cearges Extra,..... 25.00

RITUAL OF THE GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC

WITH SIGN OF RECOGNITION, PASS WORD GRIP ETC,

—AND THE—

RITUAL OF THE MACHINISTS AND BLACKSMITHS' UNION,

(THE TWO BOUND TOGETHER.)

Single Copy, post paid,..... 25
Per doz. " $2.00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra,..... 1000

Publishers' Department.

The Mail List.

January 8th, 1876, the Cynosure had a total subscription list of 3,813.
January 3d, 1876, 3,513.

Gain in five days, " 300

We intend for the present, at least, to state in each issue, the number of subscriptions on the preceding Saturday night. We want to report in our issue of February 3d, 4,513 subscribers or ONE thousand more than there were Jan. 3d. Three hundred towards the thousand are already in, shall we have the remaining seven hundred before the month is out? Two hundred and seventy subscriptions expire this month. If these are all renewed promptly they will help in securing the number.

Prospect for Clubs.

The most gratifying feature in our letters containing new subscriptions is, that almost all who send expect to continue their efforts to enlarge the circulation of the Cynosure One friend writes from a field, in which twenty subscribers have been found, that now the machinery is fairly started he thinks he can obtain more. Many express the opinion that they can secure subscriptions. Dr. H. W. Marsh writes: "My club is now forty-four. We have four other copies taken here and one at Oakhill. I must try for one more to make an even fifty, which will do well for this neck of woods." Rev. J. T. Kiggins, Portland, Ind., sends in his second club of ten. He makes it twelve and one more for six months. I. Leadbetter sends the first club of ten received from Massachusetts. H. Baldridge Varick, N. Y., sends FOURTEEN. Mr. Z. H. VanNorman, Fairfield, Mich., sends ten. Benj Ulsh, Silver Lake, Ind., sends ten. Thos. J. McLouth, Manchester, N. Y., sends twelve. Wm. Landers, Allenville, Mo., sends ten. Jane Liggett, Monmouth, Ill., writes: "This is the first time I have canvassed for a paper of any kind, and I do not think there is any other new paper I would canvass for, but I think it is time Christian people were awaking to exert themselves against the sin of secretism which is undermining the foundation of our government and eating the vitals of the church." She sends nine subscriptions for a year and one for six months. Richard Green, La Grange, Ind., sends nine. Ferdinand Huber, Granville, O., sends five. S. K. Hibbs, Isadora, Mo., sends five. A. Pattison, Birmingham, Iowa, sends five. David Boyd, Bellefontaine, O., sends eight. J. McHenry Geneseo, Ill., sends five. J. M. Shellabarger, Lettsville, Iowa, sends five.

SUBSCRIPTIONS RECEIVED DURING WEEK ENDING Jan. 10, 1876, FROM S H Ames, J Auten, G Avery, R Armstrong, H Archer, C A Blanchard, S Burrill, W N Binnian, W Bender, H Baldridge, J C Bartholomew, J L Barlow, J Barnett, A Calhoun, W H Clark, J W Campbell, J T Comstock. D Callow, C Day, A W Dunbar, A F Dempsey, F Dunbar, D B Douglass, B Delany, E H Fellows, S Fletcher, A B Frantz, N Fancher, T Gibb, I J Gilbert, M A Gorsline, J Glen, J Gamble, T Gilmer, R Green. J Gage, M A Gault, J S Gard, N Green, T Hodge. T Hattery, F Huber. R J Hunt, S H Hibbs, H H Hinman, G Heintz, M H Hill, Y E Jones, T Johnston, D Jones, S Knapp, L B Kent, J T Kiggins, J C King, J Leadbetter, J Liggett, F C Lohman, G A Loomis, H Loker, S R LaBar, Mrs A J Miller. H W Marsh, T J McLouth, D Mabee, J G Mattoon, J W McPherson. S Mathews, A Needels, W Northup, W I Olmsted, A Pattison, J W Plummer, S Pierce. J H Prudy, W Parker, J Rogers, G M Reynolds, E H Reed, T C Radabaugh, C F Ross, A Russell, C A Smith, Mrs E T Scott, Wm Sanders, P G Schmogrow, J M Stevenson, S H Spencer, S Y Stewart, J P Stoddard, W O Shaw, B F Sheets, J B Slocum, O Sholes, W Small, R B Smith, A J Turner, B Ulsh, Z H Van Norman, Mrs M Woodward, E A Washburn, L Wood, M Witmer, E Wellman, W F Willey. R Wilkins, S Wilder, D Yant.

SOMETHING NEW.

A CHART OF MASONRY

Showing the degrees from the first to the thirty-third, entitled

Degrees of Ancient Accepted Scottish Freemasonry,

According to a Manual by Wm. M. Cunningham 33d Degree.
Designed by Rev. P. Stoddard, to explain Freemasonry, as shown by Morgan's Exposition and Richardson's Monitor.

A Neat Lithograph 22x28 inches.

Single copies finely colored, post paid	$ 75
Per dozen " " " "	5 00
Per 100 " " " " Express charges extra	35 00
Single copy, colored, varnished and mounted postpaid	1 00
Per dozen colored, varnished and mounted, post paid	7 50
Per 100, colored, varnished and mounted, express charges extra	50 00

25 COPIES OR MORE SENT AT THE 100 RATES.

Excelsior Marriage Certificate.

It is decidedly the most BEAUTIFUL, TASTEFUL and SENSIBLE thing of the kind I have ever seen."—Rev. F. G. Hibbard, D. D.
"The most SCRIPTURAL, BEAUTIFUL and APPROPRIATE Marriage Certificate I have ever seen."—Late Rev. H. Mattison, D. D.
"SOMETHING NEW AND BEAUTIFUL, which we pronounce the handsomest thing of the kind we ever laid eyes on."—Meth. Home Journal, Phila. Contains two Ornamental Ovals, for Photographs

A BEAUTIFUL LITHOGRAPH 14 1-4 by 18 1-4 inches. 25 cts each, $2.25 per doz- $15 per 100.
For Sale by Ezra A. Cook & Co., CHICAGO.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10, 1876.

Grain Wheat—Spring, No. 1	$	1 06
" No. 2	97	97⅜
" No. 3		79¼
" Rejected	65	66
Corn—No. 2		43¾
Rejected		35½
Oats—No. 2	30	30½
Rejected		26
Rye—No. 2		66½
Bran per ton	10 00	10 25
Flour—Winter	4 75	7 50
Spring	3 00	5 25
Hay—Timothy	12 00	14 00
Prairie, "	8 50	10 00
Mess Beef	9 00	10 50
Tallow		8¾
Dressed Hogs	8 00	8 25
Lard per cwt		12 32½
Mess pork, per bbl		19 30
Butter fancy yellow 32c.; common to choice roll	16	25
Cheese	9	13
Eggs	18	24
Seeds—Timothy	2 25	2 45
Clover		6 35
Flax	1 30	1 45
Poultry—Turkeys per lb dressed	13½	14
Chickens " "	9	11
Potatoes	35	40
Apples from store	3 00	3 50
Broom corn	2	11
HIDES green to dry salted	5½	12¼
Lumber—Clear	38 00	42 00
Common	11 00	12 00
Fencing	12 00	13 00
Shingles	2 75	3 00
WOOL—Washed	38	52
Unwashed	25	33
LIVE STOCK Cattle, Choice		5 25
Good	4 50	5 00
Medium		4 00
Common	2 50	3 75
Hogs	6 90	7 35
Sheep	4 00	6 00

New York Market.

Flour	$ 325	9 00
Wheat—Winter	1 30	1 45
Spring	1 00	1 35
Corn	58¼	73
Oats	45	52½
Rye	88	97
Lard		12¾
Mess pork		20 75
Butter	16	31
Cheese	6	12½
Eggs	27	30

ESTABLISHED 1867.

EZRA A. COOK & CO.,

STEAM PRINTERS

LITHOGRAPHERS,

STATIONERS

—AND—

Book Binders.

NOS. 7, 9, 11 & 13

Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

We were in the Stationery, Printing and Lithographing business before the Cynosure was started.

WE PRINT

Books, Pamphlets, Catalogues, Business Cards, Show Cards, Letter Heads, Bill Heads, Note Heads, Circulars, Hand Bills, Posters, Checks, Drafts, Notes, Certificates of Deposit, Certificates of Stock, Diplomas, etc.,

WE BIND

Blank Books, Magazines, Catalogues, Checks, Drafts, Notes, Certificates, Bank Pass Books, Etc., Etc.

WE LITHOGRAPH

Business Cards, Letter Heads, Note Heads, Bill Heads, Circulars, Checks, Drafts, Certificates of Stock, Certificates of Deposit, Plats and Charts; also elegant Diplomas for Colleges, Literary Societies, and Agricultural Societies, in one, two or three Colors. Samples and Prices sent on Application.

All work executed in the

BEST STYLE,

at the

LOWEST MARKET RATES.

WE FILL ORDERS PROMPTLY, and

GUARANTEE GOOD WORK.

SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO ORDERS

BY MAIL.

Samples and prices sent promptly when desired.

Address:

EZRA A. COOK & CO.,

7, 9, 11 & 13 Wabash Avenue,

CHICAGO.

NEW CLUB RATES

—FOR—

1876.

CLUB RATES.

No commission is allowed on club rates. Club rates are intended for those who wish to give their time to procuring subscribers.

Club Rates Including Postage.

Papers Addressed to one or different Post Offices as desired.

4 to 4 Subs., 1 year, Old or New sent at one time, at	$2.00 each
5 to 9 " " " " " " "	1 80 "
10 to 14 " " " " " " "	1.70 "
15 to 19 " " " " " " "	1.60 "
20 or more " " " " " "	1.50 "

Subscription Papers and Circulars sent free on application.

$250 A MONTH—Agents wanted everywhere. Business honorable and first class. Particulars sent Address J. WORTH & Co., St. Louis, Mo
1yrJul

SAVE MONEY

by sending $4.75 for any $4 Magazine and THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE (regular price $6), or $5.75 for the Magazine and THE SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE (regular price $3). Address
THE TRIBUNE, New-York.

$77 A WEEK guaranteed to Male and Female Agents, in their locality. Costs NOTHING to try it. Particulars Free. P. O. VICKERY & CO., Augusta, Me.
6m.dec.30-75.

CALIFORNIA

Have you any thought of going to California? Are you going West, North, or North-West? You want to know the best routes to take?

The shortest, safest, quickest and most comfortable routes are those owned by the Chicago and North-Western Railway Company. It owns over two thousand miles of the best roads there is in the country. Ask any ticket agent to show you its maps and time cards. All ticket agents can sell you through tickets by this route.

Buy your tickets via the Chicago & North-Western Railway for the West and North-West, and for

SAN FRANCISCO.

Sacramento, Ogden, Salt Lake City, Cheyenne, Denver, Omaha, Lincoln, Council Bluffs, Yankton, Sioux City, Dubuque, Winona, St. Paul, Duluth, Marquette, Green Bay, Oshkosh, Madison, Milwaukee, and all other points West or North-West of Chicago.

If you wish the best traveling accommodations, you will buy your tickets by this route, and will take no other.

This popular route is unsurpassed for speed, comfort and safety. The smooth, well-ballasted and perfect track of Steel Rails, Westinghouse Air Brakes, Miller's Safety Platform and Couplers, the celebrated Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars, the perfect Telegraph System of Moving Trains, the regularity with which they run, the admirable arrangement for running Through Cars from Chicago to all points West, North and North-West, secures to passengers all the COMFORTS IN MODERN RAILWAY TRAVELING.

PULLMAN PALACE CARS

are run on all through trains of this road.

This is the ONLY LINE running these cars between Chicago and St. Paul, Chicago and Milwaukee, or Chicago and Winona.

At Omaha our Sleepers connect with the Overland Sleepers on the Union Pacific Railroad for all points West of the Missouri River.

On the arrival of the trains from the East or South, the trains of the Chicago and North-Western Railway LEAVE CHICAGO as follows:

For Council Bluffs, Omaha and California, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Palace Drawing Room and Sleeping Cars through to Council Bluffs.

For St. Paul and Minneapolis, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Palace Cars attached on both trains.

For Green Bay and Lake Superior, Two Trains daily, with Pullman Palace Cars attached, and running through to Marquette.

For Milwaukee, four Through Trains daily. Pullman Cars on night trains, Parlor Chair Cars on day trains.

For Sparta and Winona and points in Minnesota, One Through Train daily, with Pullman Sleepers to Winona.

For Dubuque, via Freeport, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Cars on night trains.

For Dubuque and La Crosse, via Clinton, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Cars on night trains to McGregor, Iowa.

For Sioux City and Yankton, Two Trains daily. Pullman Cars to Missouri Valley Junction.

For Lake Geneva, Four Trains daily.

For Rockford, Sterling, Kenosha, Janesville, and other points you can have from two to ten trains daily

New York Office, No. 415 Broadway; Boston Office, No. 5 State Street; Omaha Office, 253 Farnham Street; San Francisco Office, 121 Montgomery Street; Chicago Ticket Offices: 62 Clark Street, under Sherman House; corner Canal and Madison Streets; Kinzie Street Depot, corner W. Kinzie and Canal Streets; Wells Street Depot, corner Wells and Kinzie Streets.

For rates or information not attainable from your home ticket agents, apply to
W. H. STENNETT, MARVIN HUGHITT,
Gen. Pass. Ag't, Chicago, Gen. Sup't, Chicago.
[Eastern.]

THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.

"In Secret Have I Said Nothing."—Jesus Christ.

EZRA A. COOK & CO., PUBLISHERS, NO 13 WABASH AVENUE.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 27, 1876.

VOL. VIII., NO. 16.—WHOLE NO. 303
WEEKLY (post paid) $2 20 A YEAR

Contents.

	Page
TOPICS OF THE TIME	1
EDITORIAL ARTICLES:
The Carpenter Donation	8
Prayer for Colleges	8
CONTRIBUTED AND SELECT ARTICLES:
The Use and Abuse of Secrecy	1
Rome and the Bible	1
Can a Good and Great Man be a Real Freemason?	2
Explanation of some Matters of Government	2
Princeton Alumni Defense Refuted	2
The Bible in the Public Schools	3
REFORM NEWS AND NOTICES.
A Month's Work in Central and Southern Indiana; From Northern Illinois: Truth Conquers in N. H.; From Spencer Co., Ind.	4, 5
CORRESPONDENCE:
Fiendishness and Injustice; The Same Spirit and the Same Belief; War and the Bible; Our Mail	5, 6
Ronayne's Hand-book, preface, etc.,	12
Should Adhering Freemasons be admitted to Membership in the Church.	12
N. C. A. Department	7
THE HOME CIRCLE	10
CHILDREN'S CORNER	11
The Sabbath School	6
Temperance	9
Religious Intelligence	9
News of the Week	9
Home and Health Hints	11
Publishers' Department	10

Topics of the Time.

The lower house of the Ohio Legislature repealed the Geghan law last week by a strict party vote, a single Republican voting with the Democrats, who were a unit against the measure. This is a good beginning in a good work. Let now New York follow by wiping out her acts of special privilege to the Romish church, and the Constitutional amendment pass forestalling such legislation in the future.

The Grand Army of the Republic held a State meeting in Sycamore, Ill., last week. The name of gentlemen of standing in their communities were mentioned in connection with the meeting, which was held in a Masonic hall. The ostensible object of the order is protection to the soldiers, interests. If these interests are not shared by the rest of their fellow citizens and are hostile to them, then their secrecy and oaths are necessary. Such methods every corrupt ring uses. But if not, let them be as brave as they were on the battle-field, and let their associations be open and consistent with American principles.

Two Illinois criminals were not so fortunate as to be among the fourteen convicted murderers set free by the clemency (!) of acting-Governor Beveridge during 1875, and so gave up their lives on the gallows on Friday last. Another who filled himself with whiskey and then shot the owner of the saloon on Thanksgiving day, though cleared of the charge of murder by the jury has yet been sentenced by the judge to twenty-one years imprisonment for manslaughter. In Iowa some shallow dabbler in false reform persuaded the legislation to repeal the law of execution for murder. But the frequent and fearful crimes that have stained the record of that State ever since and the summary lynching of several murderers, has brought about the favorable consideration of a law re-establishing the death penalty, and with a wider scope than ever. This reaction towards justice is yet another testimony to the fact that there is but one way under human law to abolish murder.

Ex-Governor Dix has written to the President a letter full of sound sense on the church taxation question. He says that Trinity Episcopal Church of New York, one of the wealthiest corporations of that city, pays a tax amounting to one hundred thousand dollars on that part of its property devoted to secular uses. In this respect it is just like other property and stands as the President in his message recommends. As Gen. Dix' son is pastor of Trinity Church, the statement has the weight of authority. He further adds: "I have always been of the opinion that the several States should tax all secular property belonging to churches within their respective limits. Cemeteries are exempt by universal consent. I think church edifices should be, as I believe they have been in Christian communities. To tax them would seem like making the Creator and sovereign Ruler of the universe pay tribute for allowing a part of his footstool to be used for the worship which is his due." Upon this broad and honest ground every reasonable man will doubtless take a stand. Only those who suppose it to be their interest to disband the churches and break down religion, or their lackeys, would be likely to take any other.

Governor Chamberlain has placed all law-abiding and law-loving citizens, and especially his own State of South Carolina, under a great obligation. The great pardoner, Moses, his predecessor in office, and a "General" Whipper had been nominated by the Legislature as circuit judges, but from their notoriously bad character the Governor declined to sign their commissions and set them up to administer laws they had outraged like profligates. He speaks of the appointment of such judges with a just indignation as a "calamity" and "horrible disaster." In a letter excusing himself from attending the general meeting of the New England Society at Charleston. He also says, "If there ever was an hour when the spirit of the Puritans—the spirit of undying, unconquerable enmity and defiance to wrong—ought to animate their sons, it is this hour, here in South Carolina. The grim Puritans never quailed under threat or blow. Let their sons now imitate their example." There are several States whose people would be happy to have such an executive.

The Use and Abuse of Secrecy.

BY H. H. HINMAN.

That faculty of the mind that we call secretiveness exists alike in man and the inferior animals. It is more largely developed in the cat, the fox and the serpent, than in man; much more largely in the barbarous than in the civilized man. Just in proportion as society advances in true civilization, just in that proportion does the occasion for its exercise diminish, and the highest type of character was that of Nathaniel of whom the Saviour said, "Behold an Israelite indeed in whom there is no guile." Such also was the character of Paul, who said that "In simplicity and godly sincerity we had our conversation among them that believe." Such a character is in striking contrast with that cunning craftiness whereby men lie in wait to deceive. It is indeed an essential element of Christianity, for Jesus says that "Except ye be converted and become as a little child, ye shall in no wise enter the kingdom of heaven."

Secretiveness belongs to our lower nature and is one of the attributes of fallen humanity. Its first exercise was when man had sinned and hid himself from the presence of the Lord. It is indeed probable that but for the fall of man and the curse that came upon men and beasts, there would have been no such principle as secretiveness for there would have been nothing evil to conceal. Manifestly the only object of this principle is to cover up that which is evil in itself or in its influence.

True, our prayers and our alms are to be sometimes in secret, but only lest their publicity might be an injury to us. While then secretiveness pertains necessarily and rightfully to our nature and may under appropriate circumstances be rightfully exercised, yet it no more needs to be educated and cultivated than do anger, pride and sensuality. Indeed it would be just as appropriate to have an organised society for the promotion of lust as one for the education of craftiness.

Now we object to secret societies because they unduly educate and develop a principle of our nature which needs no education but rather repression. They abuse a principle of our nature just as truly as a society of prize fighters or an association for the promotion of harlotry. I do not say they are as bad as these but the principle is the same. Freemasonry has as its special object to make men silent and secretive. The indispensable virtues of a Mason says McCoy, are silence and secrecy. The oath of a Master Mason requires him to conceal all secrets except murder and treason, and that of a Royal Arch, all secrets without exception.

To say nothing of the intrinsic wrongfulness of such obligations their tendency is to corrupt and debase society, to depress candor and truthfulness and cultivate a cunning craftiness which is seen in the whiskey rings, the Custom House rings and the innumerable schemes of fraud that disgrace our land, and all because poor human nature instead of being reformed and elevated is rather abased.

Rome and the Bible.

On the second of July, 1847, a highly remarkable meeting was held at the Music Hall in Edinburgh, Scotland. The hall was packed on the floor and in the galleries to the very ceiling. The Lord Provost of the city presided. Upon one side of him sat Lord Murray, Prof. Gregory, and Mr. Simpson, an advocate as representing one of the two opposing views to be maintained in the meeting; upon the other Dr. Guthrie, Sheriff Speirs, and Dr. Lindsay Alexander, as representing the antagonistic opinions. The question to be discussed was whether in the Ragged Schools of Edinburgh, then very largely occupying public attention, the Bible should be read and religion taught, or whether, at the demand of the Catholics, these efforts to guide the poor waifs of the street to God and heaven should be given up. In the course of his speech, Dr. Guthrie used this illustration:

Let me put a case. A ship has stranded on the stormy shore. I strip, and plunging headlong into the billows, buffet them with this strong arm till I reach the wreck. From the rigging, where he hangs, I seize and save a boy. I bear him to the shore, and through the crowd who watched my rising and falling head, and blessed me with their prayers, I take him home. What happens now? Forth steps a Roman Catholic priest, and, forsooth, because yon ship contained its Irish emigrants, claims the child, the prey of my humanity, the half-drowned boy that clings to his preserver's side; he would spoil me of my orphan, and rear him up in what I deem dangerous error. I have two answers to this demand; the first is, I saved the boy; the hand that plucked him from the wreck is the hand which shall lead him in the way to heaven. My second is, to point him to the wreck and the roaring sea. I bid him strip and plunge like me, and save those that still perish there.—Standard.

Can a Good and Great Man be a Real Freemason?

BY ELDER NATHAN CALLENDER.

There is a more grave question than has yet been discussed, suggested by the two previous articles. That question is at the head of this article.

Both goodness and greatness must be estimated by some standard. We cannot weigh, we cannot measure without a rule or standard adopted by common agreement. Not one step can be taken in business without such a standard. To be without it would throw society into chaos. Is there a standard by which God weighs moral beings and things, and by which moral beings themselves can weigh moral things? Dan. v. 27. By what rules can this be done? By compass and square, and plumb and level? Can the stone hammer and trowel improve the morals of men by "breaking off their rough edges" and plastering them into a temple for God and heaven? Among Christians there is one standard by which actions and character are weighed. On this standard all but avowed infidels are agreed. Even infidels themselves in Christendom yield to this standard in many ways as the common law. This standard is God's revealed will and law.

When we raise the questions of greatness and goodness they seem to merge into one, viz., goodness. A man may be at once a great genius and a great sinner and so constitute a great destroyer. Such is the devil. He is a great devil, but taken by any moral standard he is the most belittled being on the list of created intelligences. See Paul's estimate of character, 1 Cor. xiii. 1–3. Love and loyalty to God make the man. These include everything good and great in a moral being. When we speak of God, we mean the Father of Jesus, and in him the Triune One, hence love and loyalty to him.

We are now prepared to entertain the question, can a good and great man be a real Freemason? Or to reverse the question, can a real Freemason be a good and great man? We answer, no! He cannot be great and not be good, and he cannot be really good without being made so in harmony with established law. That is, "the law of life in Christ Jesus." To be good we must be loyal to Christ Jesus. We must follow him. We must take up the cross. We must come out from the world, be one with Jesus, be led by the Spirit, acknowledge no other way of salvation save through Christ. Never deny him by going where we could not take Christ with us—"call no man master" but Jesus. "Swear not at all;" "Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness;" "Be not conformed to the world, but be transformed by the renewing of our mind," etc. Be converted and become as a little child, meek, lowly, humble, etc., etc. Can a man be all this and at the same time be a Freemason in heart and life? No more than he can at the same moment be a saint and a sinner, a Christian and an infidel. Freemasonry is unmitigated infidelity and when the heart embraces it, it is in unity with badness and moral littleness, and as wide from real greatness and goodness as the poles. "What part has he who believeth with an infidel," is a most significant question. The believer and the infidel, the loyal and the disloyal are further apart than any two classes of moral intelligences in God's dominions. Moral antipodes, they have no part in common with each other. All moral space, to speak in a figure,—immensity is right between them; hence the great force of Paul's argument on the question of fellowship in 2 Cor. vi. 14. Talk of a real Mason, who is as real an infidel as he is a Mason, being good and great? He can be neither, by the inspired lexicon of him who knows what is in man. To be good and great the best "image" of and "likeness" of God must be put back into the heart by the Holy Ghost through regeneration. Such a work in the soul will wipe out Masonry as quickly as the noonday sun would wipe out midnight; and as thoroughly.

The Explanation of Some Matters of Government.

If a Masonic member of Congress should accept a bribe for his vote, or plunder the government, as in the case of the Credit Mobilier swindle, and four-fifths of them are Masons, how are we going to punish them? If revenue officers and other agents of the government are Masons, and they defraud the treasury, and the President and his cabinet are Masons also, will they not let the felons off as comfortably as possible with the stolen fruit in their hands? Ames and Brooks, the Credit Mobilier chiefs, were condemned by the Poland Committee, which recommended their expulsion. Congress would not hurt one of them, nor their abettors. What was the matter? The public are astonished at this hour at the pardon by the President of so many incorrigible offenders; and the more so in this instance, because the President is known to be a stubborn disciplinarian. The truth is, some slight punishment must once in a while be inflicted on criminal Masons to appease public indignation; but as soon as the affair is a little forgotten they are pardoned out. How can this uncommon sympathy and Presidential love be accounted for in any other way? A few high Masons recommend it and it is done.

If one should say that Masonry rules this government and country, perhaps it would not be believed; but there would be more truth than fiction in the statement. If the common people knew what proportion of post-masters and other officers under the general government are Masons, they would concede the truth of such a remark. When the late rebellion came on, Buchanan, who was a high Mason, was President of the United States. The Southern Democrats and leaders were nearly all Masons and they supported him. It is well-known that when the civil war commenced Buchanan wouldn't act. He couldn't oppose his Southern brethren, and stood still like a feather placed between positive and negative electricity. Again, when Jefferson Davis, the great leader and President of the Rebellion, was captured, he was simply dismissed with hardly an attempt to indict and punish him for the greatest crime which man can commit. When the indignant people wondered what the matter was, a dark answer would be heard—"He can't be convicted." The greatest open traitor known to the world couldn't be convicted! The reat son was not given.

It is well-known that some eminenmen have been connected with Masonry. Imperfections and evils can be found among all orders of men. Many of them are frivolous and ineffectual; but this one strikes in a clandestine way at the basis of human justice and liberty. The writer has seen one outrage committed by the force of this obligation, which, had the common people understood it, would have called forth vengeance and fire. No man has a right to cloak and hide an evil which is detrimental to the well being of a government and its people; and an oath to cover it only increases its iniquity. Great men, such as Washington, Lafayette, Franklin, Judge Marshall and DeWitt Clinton, are heralded before the public as having been members in Masonry to plume its institution with honor, and give probability that its precepts and practice tend to virtue and morality. No one believes that these men ever aided a rescue, or smiled at the pelf of a villain. Vengeance belongs to the lower gang of Masons, who fulfil their obligations with heedless infatuation. It is no wonder that eminent men, even, have fallen into a common train of error with the multitude, and have taken that whole obligation without objection. If they were here on earth their apology would be that they were mere boys when they took it. No man should take an oath to do injustice or wrong; and if one has indiscreetly or thoughtlessly done so, the quicker he backs out from it the better. Such an oath is not binding before God or man. To fulfill it would be only adding sin to sin. If one should take an oath to steal his neighbor's horse, it would certainly be wrong to commit the deed, and so of any other offense. He had better back down and discard the oath. Certainly it would be more commendable before God and himself, as he would not then injure his neighbor or commit a crime. So too, if a brother Mason commits a felony, and I have sworn to help him out of all difficulties, it is better for me to let him be arrested and tried as other men are under the law, than to help him escape or rescue him from the hands of the sheriff. By seeking to prevent the arrest and punishment of criminals I would destroy the security and peace of the people by encouraging villains to prey upon their rights.

EUSEBIUS.

It was prettily devised of Æsop, the fly sat upon the axle-tree of the charriot-wheel and said, "What a dust do I raise!" So there are some vain persons that, whatsoever goeth it alone or moveth upon greater means, if they have never so little hand in it, they think it is they that carry it.—Bacon.

Princeton Alumni Defense Refuted.

BY REV. DR. M. R. VINCENT.

[From the N. Y. Tribune, Jan. 8.]

To the Editor:

SIR: The proceedings of the Alumni committee on secret societies, published in Friday morning's issue, seem to call for a few words which, as an old graduate and quondam secret society man, you will perhaps allow me to utter through your columns. It is a most unfortunate "result" of these much-lauded institutions, that, as Mr. Edgar admits, "from the very nature of their secrecy," parents and others who are most interested in knowing the facts can learn little or nothing of their inner workings.

The statements made in this meeting set forth two fundamental arguments for the toleration of secret societies: First, that they have become so identified with the college system, and so necessary to the college life of young men, as, in many cases, to relieve their conscience of all obligation to observe a pledge not to belong to them. In other words, the obligation to the society is paramount to the obligation to common veracity. It seems to me that any element of student life which thus ter to encourage and justify lying ha ter be eliminated from the A college system as soon as possib

The second argument (?) is: These societies exist, and will exist, therefore they ought to be tolerated; of which process of logic it need only be said that, to whatever it may lead within college precincts, its practical results in other spheres would entail certain consequences somewhat unpleasant to society at large, and entirely satisfactory to the tenants of Sing Sing or of the "Tombs."

Secret societies, we are told by one of these gentlemen, "exercise an influence for good or evil in precise proportion as those societies are controlled by good or bad men." But the very marrow of the question is here, ARE they habitually controlled by good men?

Of course this is a question that lies wholly with the students. The secret societies have been practically outside of the jurisdiction of the Faculties, and these societies fall into two classes—the literary and the convivial. One class represents the studious and steady men, the other the "fast men." One class carouses in secret, the other debates and reads essays in secret; and there are few if any societies of the latter class which do not mingle the convivial with the literary. The fast societies seldom or never become literary; the literary societies, unfortunately, sometimes gravitate toward undue convivility. Somehow, men get in who crave a larger infusion of the social element. Men get in whose habits undergo a change after they enter, and these carry the change in themselves into the very place where, from the intimacy of the relations, it is most influential and does most harm. In associations of this character the convivial element tends to the ascendency. That which begins with being an exception easily becomes the rule. The time, the circumstances, the secrecy, the freedom from pressure of daily routine and official authority, all go to promote this result, and to push the literary element to the wall. At any rate, whatever may be the character and scholarship of some of these associations, the point is that the system admits of the existence in secret bonds of others whose members are marked by their loose lives, and which, everybody knows, exist for no earthly purpose but that of dissipation. Their character is unmistakeable. It is against a system which tolerates such associations, and which so far as I can see, must tolerate these if it tolerates secret societies at all, that I protest.

We are told again of a college in which at one period it was practically impossible for a student to remain in the institution without being connected with some secret society; and further, that at the time the college was in a most flourishing state. Mr. Cole has certainly furnished his adversaries with a handle. If a student's relations to the college proper can be controlled by any force outside of the college system—if he can be made uncomfortable in the pursuit of his studies, or driven from the institution where it is convenient or possibly necessary that he should remain, because he does not belong to a secret society—it surely is time the foot of authority should be set upon the whole business. That the flourishing condition of a college should depend in any degree upon the little student cliques is preposterous. And so far as the comfort of the student is concerned, the thing is quite impossible. When most of a class is distributed among rival coteries it does not make the position of the few outsiders at all enviable.

The truth is that under this system the natural adjustment of relations among students is hindered and often superseded by an adjustment found these artificial centers. The class teems with party issues, antipathies, jealousies, growing, not out of any real antagonisms of character or difference of culture, but out of the fact that one is a "Sigma Tau," another a "Kappa Mu," and another an "Iota Lambda Epsilon." Many good fellows who in the natural adjustment of class relations would form healthful and helpful intimacies, are kept aloof from each other, and leave college with false impressions of each other, simply because they always looked through the medium of secret society prejudices. On the other hand, good men are not unfrequently brought and kept by this artificial pressure of society pledges and bonds into unhealthy intimacies and into co-operation for unworthy ends.

Again, this constraint upon a student through the secret society system has other results. Not unfrequently a student enters college under prohibition from his parent to join a secret society. Such a pressure as that which we have been told, made it practically impossible for a non-society man to remain in college, exposes such a student to infinite pain, and to dangerous temptation. Further, it bears hardly on poor students. These societies are expensive. Badges, initiation fees, banquets and "incidentals" cost money. It is hard indeed if a student be compelled to choose between class ostracism and a drain on a scantily supplied pocket. I do not say this alternative is always or even often presented. The point is that a defender of secret societies has told us that such a thing is possible; and a system which renders such results even remotely possible, is a bad system.

Mr. Edgar says these societies do not lead to dissipation. I take square issue with the statement, and that from observation and personal knowledge. They do lead to dissipation. The colleges have no more efficient promoter of dissipation. They furnish facilities and temptations by their very secrecy. Evidently Mr. Edgar does not speak from experience when he says that "the esprit du corps of his society will go further in helping a student resist temptation and evil than any other human influence." The secret society on the contrary, helps to cover up his dissipation, and in too many cases helps to precipitate it to its ruinous result. "The student," says Mr. E., "feels the degradation of a bad reputation in his society much more than any degree of college discipline." Unfortunately, "a bad reputation" in a secret society is a term which needs definition. It is not always the same thing in the eye of college authority and in that of the society, nor the same thing in two secret societies. A bad reputation in some secret societies would be very likely to be the best kind of a reputation with the Faculty; and no worse degradation could befall a student than a good reputation from the standpoint of some of these convivial cliques.

And granting the common use of the term, the assertion that the standard of approbation is fixed in the secret society, and not in the legal authority of the college, is a damaging blow at the whole system, and lays open one of its great radical defects, the development of a divided allegiance in the student. The approbation of his secret society is no true and noble aim as compared with the approbation of the constituted authority to which he pledges his allegiance by signing the college books.

Once more we are told that secrecy renders the good of these associations "more exclusive." Pray why should good be made exclusive, when in its very essence it is diffusive? If these young gentlemen can bring to pass any good by their conclaves, they owe society the benefit of it. It might be appalling to think of the good locked up in the archives of the college societies for so many years, if we were not tempted to ask, "Cui bono?" Come, let us know the good. What is it? What good thing has been brought to pass by the whole array of these societies, that could not as well have been done without secrecy? If indeed they have contributed to the development of those moral principles which inculcate such views of honesty as have come out in this controversy, or are administered to any extent by young men who do not consider a pledge "of binding weight" upon their conscience, then by all means, the more exclusive their "good" the better.

The Bible in the Public Schools.

The Bible was excluded from the public schools of Rochester, N. Y., the past summer, by an act of the City Board of Education. Many of the patrons were justly grieved, and some of the teachers wept at their loss. Chicago, with other cities, has also demanded that the Bible be excluded from her schools; an odium which they place upon no other book, and still the enemy continues the war.

It is not the Bible merely to which they are opposed. They tell us so. It is the public-school system itself. Hear what the Catholic Telegraph says: "It will be a glorious day for Catholics when, under the laws of morality and justice, our school system shall be shivered in pieces." This is their real aim; and the only thing that will silence them; unless we consent to what would amount to the same—the consignment of the schools to their care.

Every true American loves our school system, and would shrink back with horror at the very thought of its destruction. Our enemies are aware of this, and are too sagacious to propose at once an abolition of this system. But they would first soothe our fears by singing us a lullaby of "religious toleration!"

We already tolerate them; it is they who will not tolerate us. They are even now showing that intolerant spirit spirit which will show itself to our sorrow if they ever succeed in securing to themselves the control of the nation! They say it is unjust that those children whose parents object to the Bible should be obliged to hear it read in the schools. We say it is much more unjust to demand that those children whose parents do desire the Bible in the public schools should be debarred by law from the privilege.

The true state of the controversy is not the repeal of laws requiring the Bible to be read in the public schools, but the enactment of laws prohibiting it.

Their plea, however, is that the Bible is sectarian.

Suppose it were: can any education be complete without a knowledge of the most popular book ever written? From which more quotations are made than from any other book? Which contains valuable items of history nowhere else to be found, and which forms the basis of the civil code of all civilized nations?

The Hindoos and other Oriental nations acknowledge that our literature is very largely unintelligible without a knowledge of the Bible.

But we are on a false supposition. The Bible is not a sectarian book. "Sectarian" means relating to a sect as distinguished from the whole. This is not the book of a sect simply, but the book of the whole Christian world. It is the standard, the test by which they all try their creeds. Baptists, Episcopalians, Quakers and all, refer to the Bible as their standard. Even the Catholic Bible, without comment, differs but little from ours. It is their interpretation of this standard which causes the difference in their views. Then, if it be read without note or comment, let each parent (since he assumes that he understands it correctly himself) indulge the fond hope that his off-spring will be sagacious enough to understand it so too.

Does the Jew object to to the Bible? It seems a plain case that that Jew who objects to the Law of Moses, is not "an Israelite indeed in whom there is no guile." But further, in regard to the Jews. "There is no other name under heaven, given among men whereby we must be saved but by the name of Jesus Christ." Then any man or any sect, having the opportunity to know of him, and trusting in anything other than the name of Jesus, or, to say the least, rejecting him, cannot be saved, since "neither is there salvation in any other." Almost every page in the Bible points to him. Then every man of whatever sect, who looks upon Jesus as the only Saviour, will not object to his own child hearing of this same Jesus in the school. Mark, I say Jesus—not dogmas and creeds. Then we have those left as objectors who are trusting in something other than Jesus for their salvation. It is not bigotry or intolerance to refuse to identify ourselves with those who would thus "take away the key of knowledge, and shut up the kingdom of heaven against men; who will not enter in themselves, and who would hinder those who are entering."

Christians do not deem it intolerance, in any objectional sense, to send missionaries to the heathen, who are trusting in idols. Having heard the Gospel of the blessed God, we consider it our bounden duty to present that Gospel to them and insist upon the necessity of their accepting it. In this, we believe, lies their only hope of salvation.

Suppose a colony of idolators should plant themselves in our midst. We would still consider it our duty to insist upon their forsaking their idols, notwithstanding their remonstrances. What Christian would think of excluding the Bible from the public schools merely to accommodate them to the scruples of these idolators?

Now, in view of the fact that a rejection of Christ, whether by Jew, pagan, or infidel, involves one and the same result in all cases—the loss of the soul—in view of the fact that he whom we own as our Sovereign has commanded us to wage an aggressive warfare upon a Christ-rejecting world—saying, "Go teach all nations;" in view of the value of the soul, let us rather use all right endeavors to put the only book which God has given to men into the hands of every one, instead of giving our sanction to a measure which would make it criminal for a Christian teacher merely to read from its hallowed pages for the benefit of the imperishable souls intrusted to his guardianship and training—criminal before the law, though every patron of such a school might desire it!

Should the enemies of the Bible gain the ascendency in our government so as to enact laws prohibiting the use of it in our public schools, as Christians we would be bound to "submit to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake;" but for Christians themselves so to legislate. or to encourage such legislation, would be very much like betraying their Lord!

As we prize our republican institutions we should feel very jealous of the encroachments of Catholicism. An education founded on the principles of the Bible makes men good, loyal citizens of their country. Catholicism teaches first, loyalty to the so-called "Infallible Pope!" and blind subjection to ecclesiastical domination over mind and conscience. Such subjection imperils the safety of any government.

It is then a plain case of political as well as religious duty, to give our citizens a symmetric education. And, as the Bible is one of the best means of of inculcating moral principles, a knowledge of which is essential to a complete education—and as it unfolds to man the only way of salvation, let us, as Christians and lovers of liberty, retain the Bible, till, at least, its opposers can offer something better.

Since, too, the exclusion of the Bible will not satisfy its enemies, but only open the way for further and more serious controversy; since it will greatly endanger our public-school system, and consequently our republican government; since all these things are evidently true, let us, by all means, retain our Bible, as the very basis of religious and civil liberty.—Chris. Worker.

See first column sexteenth page.

Educational.

—Arkansas expects to raise $400,000 this year for educational purposes.

—Mr. Thomas Wilson, a member of the Society of Friends has given $20,000 to the Friend's school in Baltimore, Md. The same gentleman gave $5,000 to the Manual Labor School in that city a few years ago.

—Mount Holyoke Seminary has supplied one hundred and fifteen wives for missionaries, who have gone as teachers to all parts of the world.

—Olivet College, Mich., received not long since a donation of land in Saginaw City from Roland Mather, of Hartford, Conn. It sold last month for $10,000.

—Rev. David McDill, D. D., has accepted the professorship of Metaphisics and Logic in Monmouth College, and will enter on its duties next September.

—Rev. J. E. Gould, of Minnesota, sends to the Am. Wesleyan items of interest in regard to the new Wesleyan Seminary at Wasioja, in that State. Between 90 and 100 students are in attendance, and an encouraging future is before the institution.

—Prof. C. A. Blanchard, who was granted a term of absence by the Trustees of Wheaton College last summer, has, from the illness of other teachers in the College, suspended his studies in the Theological Seminary and resumed his classes for the winter term.

—Pres. E. B. Kephart and his son Prof. J. L. Kephart, both of Western College, Iowa, have been each presented with a fine horse and buggy, by the numerous friends of the institution.

Dora, Wabash Co., Ind., January 5, 1876.

Mr. H. L. Kellogg:

Dear Bro.:—I enclose twenty-five dollars to assist in the Carpenter donation. I look upon this as one of the grandest things of the day and believe it will be productive of much good to this growing cause. I cannot afford to let this opportunity pass unnoticed, hoping and praying that vile secret institutions may be banished from the country, and especially from our churches. Yours in the cause,

Thos Gibb.

Reform News and Notices.

—The General Agent is yet in Indiana. He has been engaged in an interesting discussion with an ex-member of the State Senate at Marion, Grant county.

—Another letter from Elder Barlow and his new and promising work in Michigan waits till another week.

—Mr. Ronayne has been in Michigan about two weeks. We expect to hear of stirring times in Genesee county in a few days. The numerous applications received at this office for his services will be answered as soon as he returns.

—Prof. Kimball, N. H. State lecturer is preparing a tract for general circulation among Christian people at the East, especially the Baptist denomination.

—Friends in Iowa will not fail to read the notice for their State Convention to be held at Western College in April.

—Rev. Wm. Dillon, Ohio State Lecturer, has lately been holding revival meetings at Liberty, O., with the blessing of God in a number of conversion.

—The Telescope informs us of the death of Rev. J. M. Dosh of Van Meter, Iowa, who was chosen last summer as assistant lecturer for Iowa. He was a pioneer in the U. B. conference to which he belonged, an able and useful minister and a faithful laborer in the reform.

See first column sixteenth page.

Take Notice, Friends!

April 1st, 1876, is near at hand and if that time arrives and finds us with the ten thousand dollars unsecured upon which Mr. Carpenter's proposed donation is based, then the N. C. A. forfeits all claim upon the property and loses a splendid opportunity to secure a home and financial basis for the anti-secrecy reform. Will not the friends bear this in mind and report their offerings to the Treasurer soon.

J. P. Stoddard.

Wisconsin.

The annual convention of the Wisconsin State Christian Association opposed to secret societies will be held in the Wesleyan Methodist church at Sugar Creek, Walworth Co., Wis., on Wednesday and Thursday the 2d and 3d of Feb. 1876. Elkhorn is the nearest railroad station. Teams will be in readiness, after the arrival of trains, to carry delegates to the place of meeting. Efforts will be made to secure able speakers for the occasion.

By order of Executive Committee.

Past Master Ronayne will surely be present at the Wisconsin meeting and work the first and third degrees. Notice is given that the opening session will begin at 11 o'clock, A. M. Let every friend in Wisconsin put shoulder to the wheel. If it is impossible to be present in person have a representative from every church or town. At least help on the work by a contribution. See treasurer's name in list on 7th page.

The Niagara County Association.

Opposed to Secret Societies, will hold its next Annual meeting in Arcade Hall, in the city of Lockport, on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, the 9th and 10th of February, 1876, Ex-Past Master Edmond Ronayne of Keystone Lodge, No. 639 of Chicago, will address the meetings and will publicly initiate a candidate into the first three degrees of Masonry. The meetings will commence at 7 o'clock P. M. There will be a convention Thursday forenoon, to commence at 9 o'clock, for the election of officers and for such other business as shall properly come before the Convention: followed with an Anti-masonic Love-feast, to be convened at 2 o'clock P. M. Let there be a general rally of the members: All clergymen friendly to the cause are cordially invited to attend.

B. S. Laughlin, Pres.
T. Corliss, Sec'y.

Notice to Illinois.

I wish to visit every town and village in Northern and Central Illinois during the months of April and May and publicly work the Masonic degrees for two or three evenings in each place as may be agreed upon. Being an old member of the Grand Lodge of Illinois I am desirous of striking as heavy a blow possible here in my own State. Will the Anti-masonic friends in each locality see to it at once that arrangements are made to carry this programme into effect and communicate directly with this office. Papers friendly to the cause will confer a favor by giving this notice extended publicity.

E. Ronayne. Past Master Keystone Lodge, No. 639, Chicago

To Michigan Reformers.

KEEP IT BEFORE THE PEOPLE,

That Remington and Barlow are in the lecture field in this State and are ready and anxious to be communicated with in regard to lecture work. Send in your requests at once. Don't delay. This is the best season of the year for our work. Let it be pushed.

Address C. B. Remington at Fenton, Mich.

For Rochester, N. Y.

Tragedy of Hiram Abiff by Past Master Ronayne. The stupendous humbug, Freemasonry, exposed in Corinthian Hall, Rochester, N. Y., on the evenings of Feb. 15th, 16th and 17th.

50ct admission cards secure a 50ct book: Greene's Broken Seal, or Finney's Expose, or John Quincy Adam's Letters on Masonry.

25cts admission cards secure a 25ct book: either Odd-fellows Expose, or Morgan's Murder, or Pittsburg Lectures and revealings or Morgan's Expose.

15ct card secures Freemasonry Anti-Christian.

Cards sold through the city and at the Hall. Choose books promptly at the doors. Doors open at 6½ P. M. Lecture begins at 7½ P. M.

To the Friends in Iowa.

The time of our State anniversary is drawing near. There should be a united effort made in time to get out as strong a representation of our friends as possible. Don't be afraid of sending too many delegates. At both former meetings circumstances were unfavorable. Let us hope for better things and be ready to meet large numbers so as to give a fresh impetus to the work. As there are but few regular organizations in the State, so that delegates can be sent in a formal way, let any of the friends of the cause of opposiiton to secretism feel themselves invited to attend the next meeting to be held at Western College, Linn Co., in the month of April, the time of the month will be announced through the Cynosure in due time. John Dorcas.

A Month's Work in Central and Southern Indiana.

Crawfordsville, Ind., Jan. 7, 1876.

Friends will excuse the lack of detail which this letter may seem to evince, when they remember that an itinerant lecturer traveling and laboring every day for weeks, is largely disqualified to write anything interesting. Then, these editors love brevity; and I am determined for once to please them.

Leaving Washington county with the expectation of visiting Leesville, I was disappointed at Bedford by not meeting any one to convey me to that point, and so by the next train I started for Princeton, where I arrived on Saturday, three days ahead of time. Upon enquiry I soon learned that Rev. T. B. McCormick was in town and found him looking in better health than when I saw him a year before. My first appointment in this, (Gibson) county was near Oakland City, fourteen miles east of Princeton. I got to the former place by means of a public hack, at dark on Saturday evening, having spent five hours on the way, owing to a great deal of mud and a very "balky" horse. Here I found a son of Bro. Richey, by whose invitation I came here, and together we made our way to their hospitable fireside.

On Sunday we went some four miles west on horse-back to attend a Congregational meeting; but as the minister, Mr. Wilson did not come, Bro. McCormick, who was present, introduced me and I tried, with apparent success, to interest and instruct the people. An appointment was made for me in the evening to preach on "Christianity against Masonry," which I did to a crowded house. The M. E. minister, (a Mason) was present, and manifested interest, and said "amen!" while in my introduction I spoke of the onward march of the Gospel and its final triumph over every un-Christian principle and system. But when I come to show up the horrid oaths of Masonry, and the shameful rites submitted to by ministers in common with rum-sellers, Spiritualists, and Chinese jugglers, he dropped his head, nor added a single "amen!" And why? That minister knew, as but few others present knew, from a cable-tow experience, that every word I said was true, and that his "amens" were demanded more emphatically here than elsewhere. But no! he was chained by the lodge, and dared not to utter a syllable. I spoke here once more; in a U. P. church, large in dimension, and with a wealthy membership, and with but one lamp. Some two miles south of this, I spoke to a good audience, who suffered with cold while I addressed them, I shall always fear without much profit. I spoke once more at a schoolhouse in the same vicinity to a good audience, and then took my leave of them.

I never met a more cordial reception, or warmer friends to our cause than we have in the Gudgels, Harpers, Wallaces, Thomases, Kennedy's, and many others, who have my hearty thanks for their kindness. Brother Richey is an old line abolitionist, a life-long Anti-mason, and deserves the approbation of all good men for his steadfastness to principle; and his family are heartily with him.

At Princeton I spoke two evenings in the Court-house to fair and attentive audiences. Here brother McCormick has been an indefatigable worker against every wrong. His praise for unselfish devotion to the right is in the mouths of all who know him, and they are many. He has lived and preached here less or more for about forty years. A part of which time he was an exile from his house for bearing a part of the burden of the oppressed, in assisting them on their way to Canada. His ability is universally recognized as first class; and having taken three degrees in Masonry, there is no good reason why he should not be kept more than busy in the lecture-field of Southern Indiana, and Illinois, and be well recompensed for it. At Fort Branch I spoke twice in the regular Baptist church, and received the hearty endorsement of the pastor. Here I found warm friends in Bro. Lowe and his good wife, with whom I made my home, brother Jones, a Free Methodist, who is a seceding Mason of three degrees, and others. Next I shall report from Vigo and Montgomery counties. JOHN T. KIGGINS.

From Northern Illinois.

FREEPORT, ILL., Jan'y 17, 1876.

DEAR BRO. K.—I have spent two weeks in Stephenson county and have lectured nine times. I am indebted to Bro. Jesse Hunter for hospitality and efficient aid in visiting different parts of the county. He and several other faithful brethren in this city are giving a testimony that is yet to be heard and heeded. Just now all the churches are engaged in holding special meetings and much interest is being awakened in the cause of Christ. May the Lord grant that the souls being converted may exemplify a better religion than that of the popular and prevalent kind. I have lectured three times in school-houses, twice in a Baptist, twice in a Lutheran and twice in an M. E. church. I have had good audiences, excellent attention and but little virulent opposition. Outside of Freeport and Lena the lodges have little influence in this county. There it is different. We had hoped during the week of prayer to have obtained a meeting of the friends of this reform in this place for prayer and consultation. An effort was made to secure such a meeting but we found that it could not be held without hiring a hall at the cost of from $10 to $20. Not even a private parlor could be had. One brother who is a seceding R. A. Mason said that he hated Masonry with a perfect hatred but that the moment it was known that he had opened his house for such a meeting he would be discharged or 300 to 400 Masons would do what they could to ruin his employer. I could but say with the ancient prophet, "Surely judgment is turned away backward, and justice standeth afar off. Yea, truth is fallen in the street, and equity cannot enter, and he that departeth from evil maketh himself a prey." Isa. lix. I have one more appointment in this county and leave to-morrow for Monmouth, Warren county. Yours for the Lord,

H. H. HINMAN.

Truth Conquers in New Hampshire.

CENTER STRAFFORD, N. H., Jan. 14, '76.

The reform work is progressing well in New Hampshire. At the September session of the New Durham Q. M., composed of 34 ministers and over 2000 members, I offered a resolution in the very words of our General Conference against secret societies. It made a terrible tempest among the craft. The fraternity differed in their manner of defending secrecy. Some resorted to subtle deceptive reasoning. One Rev. lost his temper and raged like a Turk. He did the best service for the reform. The most of the craft kept still. I exposed the real character of Masonry, and had proof that could not be gainsayed. Result: the Masonic clerk has resigned and a free man has taken his place. At the last session only one Masonic minister showed his head in Conference. It is surprising how weak sin is when openly confronted by the truth. To the Lord be all the glory. In haste your Bro.

S. C. KIMBALL,
State Agent.

From Spencer Co., Ind.

OAKLAND CITY, Ind., Jan. 5th, 1876.

Editor Christian Cynosure:

On Saturday, Dec. 13th, Bro. J. T. Kiggins, State lecturer of Ind. arrived at Oakland City, Gibson county. On Sabbath, the 14th, he preached at Harper's school-house; and at night he both lectured and preached to the great delight of most of the audience, but to the chagrin of the few.

Monday evening he addressed a large and appreciative audience at the same place, giving the first degree of Freemasonry and Odd-fellowship. His expose of Masonry, showing the hoodwink, cable-tow, slipper and drawers made some open their eyes.

His expose of the I. O. O. F. was pronounced true by some Odd-fellows themselves. He showed how they were blind-folded, wrapped in chains, led to the coffin, and where the ghosts stood (one of the ghosts was an M. E. preacher when he was initiated).

Tuesday evening he lectured in the U. P. church, Somerville, on the Fellow Craft degree, using the very best of argument. Wednesday evening at McCollough school-house, he gave the Master Mason's degree. One Mason wanted him to lecture at Oakland, but failed to get a house when the time come; as they always do. Kiggin's name will long be remembered here. Several of the best citizens of the M. E. church, Congregational and Baptist say they will not support a preacher that holds to any secret society. We must have Kiggins or Ronayne here soon. Yours for more light. W.

Correspondence.

Fiendishness and Injustice.

KNOXVILLE, Ill., Jan. 15, '76.

Editor Christian Cynosure:

DEAR SIR:—We have had within a week or two a little sensation in this place in the way of Masonic vengeance perpetrated and Masonic justice exhibited which I deem proper to be put on record. It was against a member of our [Cynosure] club, old Mr. Rambo, than whom a more peaceable and inoffensive person can hardly be found, save his offense against the lodge; for he had been a member thereof and had renounced and denounced the craft, and, taking his own words, "When I was converted to Christ and his cause, I found the two systems were opposite and could not be made to work together, so I abandoned the lodge forever;" and for no other provocation (unless it might be his taking the Cynosure) he was set upon by a low Masonic fiend, or one of their jacks; was knocked down and most unmercifully beaten with his cane till it was broken to pieces, cutting his head in several places, and handfuls of mud were thrown in his face. The fellow or demon in human form, was arrested after some delay and tried before a Masonic justice, there being none other in town, and fined five dollars, the lowest sum, I learn, fixed by law.

"Verily judgment is turned away backward. Justice standeth afar off. Truth is fallen in the street and equity cannot enter. Yea, truth faileth and he that departeth from evil maketh himself a prey." Some see plainly enough history is not going backward, but is repeating itself all around us and in our midst. SUBSCRIBER.

The Same Spirit and the Same Belief.

Editor Christian Cynosure:

I could not help noticing in your letter last week in the Cynosure your account of the interview with a German Methodist preacher whom you met on the cars. It called to my mind a similar case which I met a few months ago in one of the manufacturing towns in Conn. As is almost universally the case the devil has been admitted as a partner and stock-holder in this thriving place, and his friends and patrons had furnished a hall for the use of the Freemasons of the place, who are many. Among them are Methodist ministers, Baptist elders, deacons of all sorts, and professing Christians of all denominations. In the same town resides a German family of good intelligence, the father a member of a lodge, the mother a Bible Christian.

At the dedication of the aforesaid hall a few months since, the public were invited, and among the many who attended was our good German mother. She had never heard of Anti-masonry, never seen the Cynosure, or similar publications, but told me a few days after that she discovered that they had no Christ in the lodge. She could not fellowship with such meetings as that.

Was it not God's own spirit that was guiding her, and will he not so guide all of his chosen people if they will follow him. P. B.

Weatogue, Ct.

"War and the Bible."

Under the above caption is an article by Walter Edgerton, in the Cynosure of Nov., 25th, 1875, in opposition to my views on war.

He quotes from the Scriptures, "Ye have heard that it hath been said of old time, thou shalt love thy neighbor and hate thine enemy; but I say unto you, love your enemies, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them that despitefully use you and persecute you."

It is a gross mistake to take the teaching of Christ in the 5th chapter of Matthew, as countermanding any law of the Old Testament; but, he was correcting their interpretation of the Old Testament. In the 17th verse, he says, "Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill." And in chapter vii. verse 12, "All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them; for this is the law and the prophets." If these passages teach anything, they teach that the moral law of God, regulating the conduct of men with men, is unalterable; never has been changed.

The Christian, when assaulted by a robber may defend himself and property by taking life; and if an individual may do it, a nation may do it. Christ said, "He that hath no sword, let him sell his garment and buy one. . . And they said, Lord, behold, here are two swords. And he said unto them, It is enough." A man being armed is in less danger of an attack than one without arms. But when one of them with Jesus with a sword struck off an ear of the servant of the high priest, then said Jesus unto him, "Put up again thy sword into his place; for all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword." From this I learn that a man may prepare himself for meeting an enemy; yet it would be unwise for one, or even a dozen, to fight against a nation. Past history of such cases should teach us that, "They that take the sword shall perish with the sword." Friend Edgerton presents in quotation marks, "put away his wife for every cause," as though it was the law of God in the Old Testament dispensation. But God never authorized such a law. He then quotes, "Moses, for the hardness of your hearts gave you this precept, but from the beginning it was not so." This teaches me that Moses gave a precept which was not, "from the beginning" of the world, in accordance with God's law.

Love to enemies was always through the Old Testament dispensation required by God's law. If my enemy tries to murder me or another man, I, in love to him, prevent him from pursuing his wickedness by taking his life. Or if he is peaceable, I exhort and advise him in the way of duty. In both cases I believe that my action would be the best for him and me.

Mr. Edgerton says, "Under a former dispensation men were allowed a plurality of wives." I am sorry for him if he believes or thinks he can find in the Bible, God's sanction of polygamy. The law of God is found in Genesis ii. 23: "A man shall leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife," not wives. He speaks also of "the law of Moses," in regard to the rebellious son. We find this in Deuteronomy xxi. 18-21. This law would be good now if civil government had no place of confinement for such. When a son becomes a pest to society, the welfare of community requires that he be removed from society, or from running at large, death was the only remedy at that time.

Mr. Edgerton says, "It is quite evident that the prophet saw clearly into the character of the spirit which should rule in the Gospel day, when he described that day as a time when "nation should not lift sword against nation, neither should they learn war any more." Are we not living in the Gospel day? And for more than 1800 years nations have lifted the sword against nations, and have not ceased to learn war. True, when God shall bring down the nations by his terrible judgments and show the people that there is no safety but in him, then they for a thousand years will learn war no more until the thousand years have expired, then "Satan shall be loosed out of his prison." Rev. xx. 7. Then the nations shall be gathered together to battle.

I am ready to admit that there has been no war among civilized nations for more than 1200 years, in which either party can be justified. And therefore every man engaged therein was guilty. The Revolutionary war which lasted about seven years, was, the first two years, a war of rebellion. No people should profess allegiance to a nation, and at the same time fight against the laws of the nation, as was done until 1776. The Southern Confederacy sent Commissioners to Washington to make a treaty of peace. [When? Ed. Cyn.] But the nation said, no, these seceders must be coerced into union. Tyranny, and not Christianity forces into union. The Christian's law is a law of liberty, James ii. 12.

James Barnett.

OUR MAIL.

J. W. McPherson, Peace, Kan., writes: "I met with an old man who was foremost in the anti-slavery cause, who, on hearing your political platform read, said he could endorse all of it. We have a good many anti-secret people here, but they are rather sluggish."

T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind., writes:

"Bro. Kiggins' visit to this section has done much good. Your paper is getting better and better all the time. I would that I could do more for it. I am confined at home by affliction in my family."

C. A. Smith, Buchanan, Mich., writes: "I remember the abduction of William Morgan."

M. A. Gault, Mediapolis, Iowa, writes: "Our village is a strong den of the secret orders. I leave your papers in the depot and on the counters and am trying to let in light."

G. W. Heller, McPherson, Kan., writes: "Wish you all a happy New Year, and the most glorious success this year in this great and much needed reform. I have but little chance to operate, but am doing what I can, by circulating my papers and books and talking to the people about this matter. Pray for us in western Kansas."

John T. Comstock, Rollin, Mich., writes:

"I am an old scholar in the anti-secret school, being an Ontario Co., N. Y., man. I give my aid alike to the cause of peace, temperance, and the cause in which you are engaged. Hence the calls I have are many. The terrible scourge that war is bringing upon Christendom, even children of the same Lord and Master, is lamentable. "Peace" was the birth song of Christianity, and "Love" is the fulfilling of the law. A loving Savior and a loving religion commanding us to forgive or we shall not be forgiven."

I. J. Gilbert, Derby, Conn., writes:

"Allow me to say, that the high tone of morals and religion in your paper suits me well. I am the only one in this place who takes it. My father and I were about the first to come out in Morgan times. What vengeance and wrath were displayed then! and I find the same spirit prevailing now. There are men who are at heart opposed to the secret orders, but have not the courage to come out and take a bold stand. I think a lecture here would do much good. . . Often do I hear wicked, swearing Masons quoting Methodist ministers as examples of their order. In this section ministers are admitted to the order free. . . I think I have seen it stated that all the bishops of the M. E. church are Masons. I would like to know the facts in the case."

Will some of our readers please inform him? Mr. Gilbert also asks how it is that most of the offices in our country are filled by Masons? We have not space to explain here, but he will find this subject considered in different articles in the Cynosure.

J. M. Stevenson, Washington, Ia., writes:

"The cause is apparently lifeless here, and we need Ronayne to stir us up. I am going to make an effort to have him between this time and spring."

A. Pattison, Birmingham, Ia., writes:

"We need some one here to lecture to the people and wake them up. They are all asleep here with regard to an institution that is sapping the foundation of both church and state."

John Glen, Dover, N. J., writes:

"I think all that is said and done should be in aid of this advocate of truth and not against it."

Thos. Logan, Huntsville, O., writes:

"I am avowedly and heartily on your side, morally and religiously bound with you to oppose the powers of darkness in secret places, and pray that the light of truth, by the blessing of God upon your work, may in his own good time be more gloriously developed, in their complete overthrow and dismemberment forever."

T. E. Jones, Oneida, Ill., writes:

"I have fought the Masons a good many years and am also an anti-tobacco man. We have here a strong force of Masons and I have a hard battle-ground. But by the grace of God I am determined to stand.

Mr. Jones is seventy years old. He has lately been deeply afflicted in the death of his beloved wife.

J. H. Spencer, Cortland, O., writes:

"A goodly number of our best men say they are in favor of rooting out these secret orders, but the time has not yet come for them to act with the third party, but they think they must soon, for this evil must be met as the slavery question was. I expect, if I live a few years more, to see the principles of the Cynosure prevail, for truth is powerful."

J. Fordice, Salina, O., sends one subscription and writes:

"Send me some blanks and I will keep trying to get subscribers, although this is a hard place."

Enough such workers would soon build up our subscription list to ten thousand.

G. S. Grattan, Clayton, Mich., writes:

"I wish Elder Barlow would come here and show the people in Clayton just what Masonry is. I long to see this institution of the devil that catches so many of our ministers of the Gospel, wiped out of existence, and the church of Christ built up. O Lord, hasten the day!"

David Boyd, Bellefountaine, O., sends for some of our Anti-masonic books, and writes:

"I have no need of them to convince me of the evils of secrecy, as I well remember the excitement in regard to Morgan's murder and the impressions made on my mind were lasting, but I have four boys, whom I want to understand its evils and avoid them; for my experience is that if a young man joins the lodge, as a general rule he is lost to the church; the lodge, as a young man once remarked to me, being good enough church for him. I resided in Albany, N. Y., at the time of the Morgan murder."

W. Vine, Egota, Minn., writes:

"If we could have Ronayne to work the abominable foolishness here once, I think we could get subscribers. Why is Minnesota left out in the cold without any effort to save her from the lodge?"

A. S. Davis, Lone Rock, Wis., writes:

"I live in the midst of Masons, Odd-fellows, grangers, and Modocs. I work alone, and shall work and pray while I live."

C. E. Westcott, Bush Creek, Ia., writes:

"I am glad to see the Cynosure gaining ground. It is becoming a power felt in the land. I hope it will continue to spread the truth, unmask the devil and overthrow the institution of Masonry. O that a thousand Cynosure's could reach the homes in this vicinity, proclaiming the truth, unveiling the dark deeds and evil ways of Masonry. There are a few Anti-masonic friends in this community. We need a lecturer here to set folks thinking."

Allan Simpson, Lapeer, Mich., writes:

"I feel a great interest in this great work of God, and mean to do all I can with the help of the Spirit and grace of our Lord Jesus Christ to withstand, expose and remove this trap of the devil. There are many who seem to be in a sort of sleepy or dreamy condition of mind in regard to it. This accounts for the spread of the great evil. I would like to see the Cynosure in every family and will do what I can to introduce it, for it is worthy."

Rev. S. T. Lane, Millbury, O., writes:

"The devil, the father of lies and advocate of secrecy, tried to persuade me that I was too poor to take the Cynosure this year; but I said, Get thee behind me, Satan, by the grace of God I will risk it. I would feel as though I had lost a friend without it. I am satisfied that the Cynosure is the second best religious paper in the country. In fact, it is second to none in some respects. Of course I give my own church paper (the Religious Telescope) the preference. Will you please inform Bro. Ronayne that the Masons out here have instituted a new way of initiating persons into the lodge, especially young preachers. Instead of the hood-wink and cable-tow, old drawers, and slipper on one foot, and conducted around the lodge blind-folded, etc, etc.; they pour hot oyster soup down the candidate's back and brand him with the mark of the beast."

Wm. Gossett, Hutton, Ill., writes:

"We need E. Ronayne to come and give us a course of lectures in the two U. B. churches, about four miles from Westfield, Clark Co., to settle the hash of some Masons and to organize a society."

A. S. Darling, Freetown Corners, N. Y., writes:

"I have tried to get subscribers for the Cynosure; it is a new thing here. The fear of the craft is in this place, but no lodge within six miles. I would like to get one of your lecturers if I can bring it around."

Wm. Mahan, Lexington, Ill., writes:

"I fought a hard fight on the slavery question and God in his providence overthrew that monster iniquity, and none but he can overthrow similar institutions; but men must use the means he has put in their hands. We have five churches here. The Methodist is full of Masons and Odd-fellows; the U. B. profess to be anti-secret; the Presbyterians, to which I belong, have no Masons, but several Odd-fellows; the Baptist minister is a Mason, not many of the members. Nearly all of the people are afraid to speak against Masonry. If we could have Mr. Ronayne, he might accomplish something."

J. H. Hanna, Pittsburgh, Pa., sends a club of ten, one of them his nephew in Va., and writes:

"In Virginia, you are doubtless aware, there is the most implacable hatred to the Cynosure, so far as I have had opportunity of judging, these cursed secret societies being masters of the situation. But the good time is coming when they shall be glad to hide their heads. I am satisfied your object is not altogether to make money, but rather to spread sound knowledge concerning these infamous associations."

E. Darling, Paint Creek, Mich., writes:

"May that God in whom you trust give wisdom to direct and arguments to overthrow the empire of darkness."

A. J. Loudenback, Glidden, Ia., writes:

"The grange is dead in Kansas but Masonry is thriving. I am in hopes that they are on the eve of their final end."

Lucius Skinner, Dunton, Ill., writes:

"As to getting subscribers this is a pretty hard place; population mostly German, and what few natives there are seem rather indifferent. I have sold two copies of Ronayne's expose when it is ready for delivery, and shall want one myself."

The Sabbath School.

Lesson for February 6.—David Sparing Saul.

SCRIPTURE.—1 Sam. xxiv. 1-16.

1. And it came to pass, when Saul was returned from following the Philistines, that it was told him, saying, Behold, David is in the wilderness of En-gedi.
2. Then Saul took three thousand chosen men out of all Israel, and went to seek David and his men upon the rocks of the wild goats.
3. And he came to the sheep-cotes by the way, where was a cave; and Saul went in to cover his feet: and David and his men remained in the sides of the cave.
4. And the men of David said unto him, Behold, the day of which the Lord said unto thee, Behold, I will deliver thine enemy into thy hand, that thou mayest do to him as it shall seem good unto thee. Then David arose, and cut off the skirt of Saul's robe privily.
5. And it came to pass afterward, that David's heart smote him, because he had cut off Saul's skirt.
6. And he said unto his men, The Lord forbid that I should do this thing unto my master, the Lord's anointed, to stretch forth my hand against him, seeing he is the anointed of the Lord.
7. So David stayed his servants with these words, and suffered them not to rise against Saul. But Saul rose up out of the cave and went on his way.
8. David also arose afterward and went out of the cave and cried after Saul, saying, My lord the King. And when Saul looked behind him, David stooped with his face to the earth and bowed himself.
9. And David said to Saul, Wherefore hearest thou men's words, saying, Behold, David seeketh thy hurt?
10. Behold, this day thine eyes have seen how that the Lord hath delivered thee to-day into my hand in the cave: and some bade me kill thee; but mine eye spared thee; and I said, I will not put forth my hand against my lord; for he is the Lord's annointed.
11. Moreover, my father, see, yea, see the skirt of thy robe in my hand; for in that I cut off the skirt of thy robe, and killed thee not, know thou and see that there is neither evil nor transgression in my hand, and I have not sinned against thee; yet thou huntest my soul to take it.
12. The Lord judge between thee and me, and the Lord avenge me of thee: but my hand shall not be upon thee.
13. As saith the proverb of the ancients, Wickedness proceedeth from the wicked: but my hand shall not be upon thee.
14. After whom is the King of Israel come out? after whom dost thou pursue? after a dead dog, after a flea?
15. The Lord therefore be judge, and judge between me and thee, and see, and plead my cause and deliver me out of thy hand.
16. And it came to pass when David had made an end of speaking these words unto Saul, that Saul said, Is this thy voice, my son David? And Saul lifted up his voice and wept.

Commit vs. 9-15.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Recompense to no man evil for evil."—Rom. xii. 17.

Scripture Hints.—In connection with the whole lesson read ch. xxvi. With v. 1 read ch. xxiii. 27, 28; number of Saul's army v. 2, of David's ch. xxii. 2, and xxiii. 13. With v. 2 read xxxiii. 8, 14, 25 and 26. With v. 4 read Pr. xvi. 28, 29; with v. 5 read 2 Sam. xxiv. 10; with v. 6, Pr. xvi. 7, 14, 32: xvii. 9; xiv. 29; with v. 7, Matt. v. 43-46 and Rom. xii. 17-21; with v. 11, Judges xi. 27, Ps. xxxviii. 12; with v. 12 Ps. 140 and Job v. 8-12. For David's feelings during these trying times of his life as he himself narrates them, read the following Psalms: 8, 11, 27, 34, 52, 54, 56, 57, 59, 63, 142.

Engedi, a town in the wilderness of Judah (Josh. xv. 62) on the western slope of the Dead Sea. Ez. xlvii. 10. Its site is about the middle of the western shore of the lake.—Smith.

—God had never made any promise of delivering Saul into David's hands; but from the general and repeated promises of the kingdom to him they concluded that the king's death was to be affected by taking advantage of some such opportunity as the present.

. . . It is easy to imagine how this dialogue could be carried on, and David's approach to the king's person could have been effected without arousing suspicion. The bustle and noise of Saul's military men and their beasts, the number of cells or divisions in these immense caverns, and some of them far in the interior, being enveloped in darkness, while every movement could be seen at the cave's mouth—these facts and presumptions will be sufficient to account for the incidents detailed.—Jamieson.

David the Beloved.

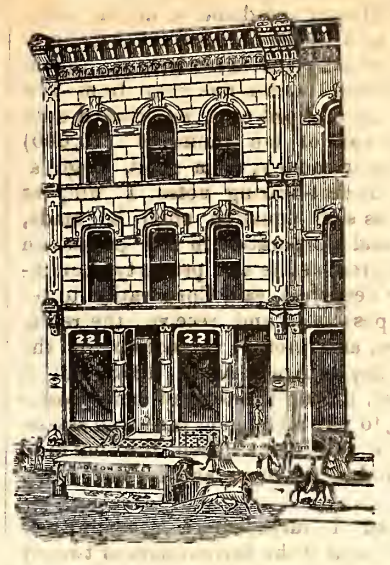
The discipline to which God subjects a human spirit has two objects: the first is its own culture, the second is its adaptation to the cultivation of others. These statements are illustrated by the history of David.

In the small city of Bethlehem, nearly eleven hundred years before the coming of our Lord, there resided a plain man of moderate substance whose business is reported to have been that of a weaver of the veils of the sanctuary, His name was Jesse; his wife's name is not known. Their family consisted of seven sons and two young women, probably daughters of Jesse's wife by a former husband. Into this domestic group a babe was born, B. C. 1083. They called him David, which means darling. His very appearance was remarkable. He had fair skin, rosy cheeks, and probably red or blonde hair, and blue eyes. His blood was not purely Jewish. Moabitess Ruth was his ancestress. As a rule the greatest men do not have "blue blood." There is in them a mingling of nationalities.

This child was to have almost all the experiences possible to man, and to exert an influence which was to reach and modify all subsequent states, religions, literatures and civilizations. To-day there are no people among whom his name is not known, and no land where his influence is not felt.

His brothers were older than himself, and between them and him little familiarity existed. His associates were the sons of Abigail and Zeruiah, his half sisters. His first employment was the feeding of his father's flocks. This simple pastoral life gave him physical vigor and promoted his soul-growth; but this was not always a quiet life. In defense of his sheep he had occasional conflicts with wild beasts, and sometimes, perhaps, with neighboring Philistine marauders. In these encounters he showed such prowess that his fame reached the court of the reigning king. That king was Saul, the first of the monarchs of Israel, of whom David was to become the rival and successor.

When David was twenty-one years of age, one day as the custom was, probably at the first new moon of the year, a sacrificial feast was held at Bethlehem and David's father, Jesse, presided. The greatest man at that time known was Samuel, the prophet. The Bethlehem worshipers were startled in the midst of their sacrifice by the incoming of the great prophet, driving a heifer, and carrying a horn of consecrated oil. The frightened elders made haste to learn that he had come on a peaceful errand. Under God's direction he was to anoint the future king of Israel. All the sons of Jesse, except the youngest, were made to pass before the prophet, but the divine restraint prevented their consecration. David was sent for. He came in from the sheep-fold, full of celerity, strength and grace; and on the young shepherd's head fell down the drops of God's consecrating oil.



When God has work for a man to do that man need not hurry, but he must be ready. David's time soon came. King Saul was engaged in conflict with the Philistines in the frontier hills of Judah. The armies were separated by the water-course of Elah. The Israelites were poorly armed, because the Philistines had allowed no blacksmith amongst them. Only King Saul had a complete suit of armor. Daily from the Philistine camp stalked a champion of huge proportions, with all necessary defensive and offensive armor. Day by day he defied the army of Israel. One day David's father sent him to his brothers in the camp. Those elder brothers chided him as if he had allowed his love of excitement to draw him from his work and push him into danger. But every man was afraid to meet this giant of Gath. Notwithstanding the rebuffs he had met in the camp, the impetuous young shepherd was introduced to the king and undertook the combat. With five polished pebbles picked from the bed of the stream, and his simple shepherd's sling, he killed Goliath and brought victory to his own people.

After this conflict he probably spent his time between his father's flocks and the school of the prophets; where his genius for poetry and music must have made him a favorite. This musical talent was soon called into requisition. From something which had occurred when David had visited the camp, or from his general reputation he was known to the courtiers of king Saul as having unusual musical talents. The king's life had been bad, and he was suffering from terrible depression of spirits. At the suggestion of his attendants Saul sent for David, who, when the evil spirit was upon the king, took a harp and played so that Saul was refreshed and well, and the evil spirit departed from him. But the popular greetings which David received when he returned from the slaughter of Goliah sowed the seeds of jealousy in the mind of Saul. Although he had become the king's son-in-law, and the king's son Jonathan was his bosom friend, he suffered so much from the snares laid for him by the royal jealousy that he escaped from the court and fled to Samuel.—Nat'l S. S. Teacher.

[To be Continued.]

L. H. Ames, Hamilton, N. Y., writes:

"We are surrounded by Masons, Oddfellows and grangers. I will do all I can to get subscribers and help on the cause for I think it will eventually be a great blessing to this country."

THE CARPENTER DONATION.

The above is a front view of the fine stone-front building on Madison street, Chicago, which Mr. Carpenter proposes to give the National Christian Association for head-quarters and publishing house. The terms of the donation are that $30,000 shall be raised by Apr. 1, 1878, to carry on the work of the Association. Send contributions to Treasurer of the N. C. A.

The National Christian Association.

PRESIDENT.—Philo Carpenter.

DIRECTORS.—Philo Carpenter, J. Blanchard, Archibald Wait, I. A. Hart, C. K. Hagerty, E. A. Cook, O. F. Lumry, C. A Blanchard, H. L. Kellogg, I. R. B. Arnold, E. S. Cook.

COR. SECRETARY.—C. A. Blanchard.

TREASURER.—H. L. Kellogg

GEN. AG'T & LECTURER—J.P.Stoddard.

Address last three at 13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

The object of this Association is:—

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved; to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform to aid the Association in either of these ways: (1) to establish a Publishing House and Head-quarters in Chicago; (2) to carry on the general work; (3) to maintain the State agents. All donations (drafts or P.O. orders) should be sent to the Treasurer; general correspondence, etc., direct to the Corresponding Secretary.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—I give and bequeath to the National Christian Association, incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois, the sum of——dollars for the purposes of said Association, and for which the receipt of its Treasurer for the time being shall be a sufficient discharge.

"Bricks" for the Carpenter Building.

Henry Mohler of Covington, O., sends this one:

"Herein I enclose five dollars for the Carpenter donation. When friend Stoddard was at my house last fall I promised him a fine brick to put in the building."

A good pastor and a few friends of the reform in Bellefountaine, O., took this way of helping on in a most important interest. They clubbed together with from one to two dollars each and forwarded the sum for the Publishing House. A hundred other friends could start such subscription papers among their neighbors and thus thousands might have the satisfaction of aiding the reform in the most permanent manner without feeling heavily the draft on their own pockets. TRY IT!

—Doubtless some friends of the reform who own farms or other property which has largely increased in value during the year through some public improvement. What better acknowledgement of God's favor than giving a part of this increase to his work.

State Auxiliary Associations.

The following list will be found of great convenience. Let every friend of the reform put himself in communication with the proper officers, sending contributions, suggestions,—anything to push on the work.

CONNECTICUT.
President, J. A. Conant, Willimantic.
Secretary, D. J Ellsworth, Windsor.
Treasurer, C. F. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.
President, J. Dickson, Decatur.
Secretary, J. H. Snyder, Westfield.
Treasurer, H. L. Kellogg, 13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.
Lecturer, H. H. Hinman, Wheaton.

INDIANA.
President, Halleck Floyd, Dublin.
Cor. Sec'y, J. T. Kiggins, Portland
Rec. Sec'y, Wm. Small, Xenia.
Treasurer, Peter Rich, Westfield.
Lecturer, J. T. Kiggins, Portland, Jay Co.

IOWA.
President, M. S. Drury, Castalia.
Cor.Sec'y, Louis Bookwalter, Western College.
Rec. Sec'y, C. Compton, Steamboat Rock.
Treasurer, D. W. Lyons, Mason City.
Lecturer, James Hankins, Mason City.

KANSAS.
President, Rev. Mr. Bell.
Secretary, J. Dodds, Winchester.
Treasurer, S. Sexton, Topeka.

MICHIGAN.
President, C. Quick, Weston.
Secretary, C. B. Remington, Fenton.
Treasurer, J. H. Wilcox, Howell.
Lecturer, J. L. Barlow, Fenton.
Agent, C. B. Remington, Fenton.

MISSOURI.
President, N. E. Gardner, Avalon.
Cor. Sec'y., A. D. Thomas, Arbela.
Rec. Sec'y, E. W. Carpenter.
Treasurer, Wm. Beauchamp, Avalon.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.
President, J. F. Brown, Bow Lake.
Secretary, S. C. Kimball, Center Strafford.
Treasurer, Kimball Cole, Lake Village.
Lecturer, S. C. Kimball, Center Strafford.

NEW YORK.
President, L. N. Stratton, Syracuse.
Secretary, W. A. Sellew, Rochester.
Treasurer, M. Merrick, Syracuse.
Lecturers—L. N. Stratton, Syracuse; D. P. Rathbun, Lisbon Center; Woodruff Post, Rochester; A. F. Curry, Almond.

OHIO.
President, H. H. George, W. Geneva.
Secretary, Wm. Dillon, Dayton.
Treasurer, J. G. Mattoon, West Unity.
Lecturer, Wm. Dillon, Dayton.

PENNSYLVANIA.
President, A. L. Post, Montrose.
Cor. Sec'y., N. Callender, Green Grove.
Rec. Sec'y., J. W. Raynor, Uniondale.
Treasurer, W. B. Bertels, Wilkesbarre.
Lecturer, J. W. Raynor, Uniondale.

WISCONSIN.
President, J. W. Wood, Baraboo.
Secretary, R. Cooley, Lima Center.
Treasurer, M. R. Britten, Vienna.
Lecturer, P. Elzea, Delavan.

Address of Anti-masonic Lecturers.

General Agent and Lecturer, J. P. STODDARD, Christian Cynosure Office, Chicago.

FOR STATE LECTURERS see State Association list.

OTHERS who will lecture as opportunity offers.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
W. A. Wallace, Dublin, Ind.
J. B. Nessell, Ellington, N. Y.
James Hankins, Mason City, Iowa.
R. B. Taylor, Summerfield, O.
N. Callender, Green Grove, Pa.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
P. Hurless, Polo, Ill.
J. C. Graham, Viola, Mercer Co., Ill.
J. R. Baird, Templeton, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Bourbon, Ind.
Josiah McCaskey, Fancy Creek, Wis.
C. F. Hawley, Millbrook, Pa.
W. M. Givens, Center Point, Ind.
J. L. Andrus, Mt. Vision, N. Y.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
D. S. Caldwell, Nevada, WyandotCo., O
Samuel Hale, Mallett Creek, O.
A. Mayn, Promise City, Wayne Co. Ia
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
C. Wiggins, Angola, Ind.
S. L. Cook, Albion, Ind.
E Ronayne, Cynosure office, Chicago.
W. M.. Love, Baker, St. Clair Co., Mo

As some of our friends have lately expressed their intention of sending in generous donations in the spring sometime about April 1st, or soon after, we again publish Mr. Carpenter's proposition on the editorial pages.

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY JAN. 27 1876.

PLATFORM AND NOMINATIONS FOR 1876.

FOR PRESIDENT.
James B. Walker,
of Illinois.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT
Donald Kirkpatrick,
of New York.

PLATFORM.

We hold: 1. That ours is a Christian and not a heathen nation, and that the God of the Christian Scriptures is the author of civil government.

2. That God requires and man needs a Sabbath.

3. That the prohibition of the importation, manufacture and sale of intoxicating drinks as a beverage, is the true policy on the temperance question.

4. The charters of all secret lodges granted by our Federal and State Legislatures should be withdrawn, and heir oaths prohibited by law.

5. That the civil equality secured to all American citizens by article 13th, 14th and 15th of our amended Constitution should be preserved inviolate.

6. That arbitration of differences with nations is the most direct and sure method of securing and perpetuating a permanent peace.

7. That to cultivate the intellect without improving the morals of men, is to make mere adepts and experts; therefore the Bible should be associated with books of science and literature in all our educational institutions.

8. That land and other monopolies should be discountenanced.

9. That the Government should furnish the people with an ample and sound currency, and a return to specie payment as soon as practicable.

10. That maintenance of the public credit, protection to all loyal citizens, and justice to Indians are essential to the honor and safety of our nation.

11. And finally, we demand for the American people the abolition of Electoral Colleges, and a direct vote for President and Vice-president of the United States

THE CARPENTER DONATION.

KEEP IT BEFORE THE PEOPLE.

Not all the friends of the reform seem yet to have read carefully the agreement by which this noble gift becomes available. We therefore print it again. Two points need to be mentioned: It is a bona fide gift; it can be secured only by the contribution of $10,000 BY APRIL 1ST, 1876. Those who have it in their heart to give but are putting it off, must be aware or their opportunity and the great advantage to the reform will be lost. If the money is not by you, give a note as most of the contributors have done. Blanks can be had of the Cor. Secretary.

READ THE AGREEMENT.

Whereas I, the undersigned Philo Carpenter of Chicago, Illinois, desire to aid the "National Christian Association," a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Illinois, to oppose and counteract the influence of secret societies, by furnishing suitable head-quarters and accommodations for the transaction of its business, and I desire also to furnish an inducement to others to aid said Association.

Now this witnesseth, that for the purpose above mentioned, and in consideration of one dollar to me in hand paid by the said corporation, I do hereby covenant and agree with it, that if there shall, within one year from the first day of April next, be donated unto it the sum of ten thousand (10,000) dollars in money, or in good, negotiable, interest-bearing notes, I will, as soon as such donation shall be made, put said Corporation in full possession of the real estate and property hereinafter described, said Corporation to retain possession and receive the rents, issues, and profits thereof up to the first day of April, A. D. 1878, and it is also, during the term of such possession, to pay all current taxes and assessments, and it shall keep the building insured in my name and for my benefit.

And I furthermore covenant and agree that if the further sum of twenty thousand (20,000) dollars shall be donated to the said Corporation before the said first day of April, A. D. 1878, in money, or in good, negotiable, interest-bearing notes, I will then, when said entire sum of thirty thousand (30,000) shall have been so donated in manner aforesaid, convey unto the said corporation by a good and sufficient Warranty Deed, the premises above mentioned and described as follows, viz: Lot numbered twenty-eight (28) in block numbered fifty-three, (53) in Carpenter addition to Chicago, in Chicago, in the county of Cook, and State of Illinois, and situated on West Madison street between Green and Peoria streets.

The value of this property, according to the estimation of myself and of the officers of the corporation, is as follows, viz: The lot, thirteen thousand (13,000) dollars; the building and improvements, seven thousand (7,000) dollars, total, twenty thousand (20,000) dollars.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal at Chicago, this 12th day of March, A. D., 1875.

PHILO CARPENTER. [Sal.]

PRAYER FOR COLLEGES.

This last Thursday in January is being observed all through the land as a season of fasting and prayer for colleges, in comemmoration of a custom not only time-honored, but in numberless instances wonderfully blessed of God.

Prayer should not at any time cease to be made for our colleges and schools. They are the fountains of our national thought and influence. The common schools, with all the prominence with which they are just now regarded, are held at no fictitious value. They are too essential to the stability of American principles to be underrated; and the interest in colleges which furnish their teachers, school boards, and superintendents, should not be suffered to decline. The church has in them a double interest. From their halls came those who have led the attacks of infidelity for generations. Unconsecrated learning blasts the fields sown with gracious, life-giving truth.

See the vast power which to-day the church asks may be consecrated to Christ and his kingdom. From the report of the Commissioner of Education for 1875, there appears the following summary:

Whole number of American colleges, 323; faculty officers, 3,108; male students, 25,010 female; students 2,349; volumes in libraries of 289 colleges which make report, 1,930,124; endowment in 157 colleges reported, $20,232,511; corporation property in 170 colleges, $44,813,876; total value of grounds, buildings, apparatus of 256 colleges, $29,178,080; income from productive funds of 158 colleges, $1,876,873; receipts from all sources, 195 colleges, $2,718,506.

Benefactions to colleges, $8,238,141; total to schools of science, $780,556; total to schools of theology, $619,801; total to schools of medicine, $78,600. The total amount of benefactions in 1875 was $11,226,977.

This does not include professional schools of theology, science, medicine, and law, which number 185, with 2,829 instructors, and 21,611 students.

What an offering for the church of God is here! The dispensation of the spirit was to "exceed in glory" that of Moses which was "graven in stones." The "former rain" of the spirit came at Pentecost. But the great rain of his strength will be in the "time of the latter rain." What a time is it for great, united, overcoming prayer! "And it shall come to pass afterward that I will pour out of my Spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions; and also upon the servants and upon the handmaids in those days will I pour out my Spirit."

The season has a special interest this year to all interested in Christian reforms. The college fraternities, hostile to all the good ends and especially the religious interests of every institution upon which they have fastened, are calling out again the attention of friends of education. What more fitting at this time than to ask for a thorough rooting out of this corrupting influence! Let then the strong crying of the church prevail until the Lord shall declare, "I have healed these waters; there shall not be from them any more death or barrenness."

—Bro. Stratton of the Wesleyan realizes the importance to our reform of the Carpenter donation and publishes in last week's issue the agreement on which it is given to the cause. Surely there has seldom been offered to the Christians of this country a better opportunity for contributing of their "substance" where it would do more for the kingdom of our Lord.

—One inducement to contribute to secure the Carpenter donation may be overlooked by some of our friends. The property is worth at a low estimate $20,000, but half that amount donated in cash or notes (see agreement) gives the reform the use of it: thus a gift of $1.00 secures the avails of $2 besides itself, or $3. But further, the $6,000 and over already subscribed is conditional and may be returned at the donor's request if the Publishing House is not obtained. So that every donor to the $4,000 to be raised by April 1st, has the satisfaction of knowing that his money is increased seven times in productive value, for the $4,000 brings the avail of $30,000. Think of this opportunity and help on the good work.

—A lady in the East writes us Dec. 27th, from which we extract the following: "We are through with Chrismas, the day on which Christ was not born, (according to the Cynosure) and I am always thankful when it is over. In these degenerate times Christmas trees and festivals and carols and what-not are sustained by nearly all professing Christians. It seems to me that the rising generation will get to believe that these things constitute religion, self-denial and the cross give place to self-indulgence and a rose-wreathed cross; and to be saved one would almost think a condescension sometimes now-a-days."

—Rev. B. T. Doughty of Holland, Mich., was lately elected lecturer of the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of the State. Can Elder Barlow call him out?

—The new Farwell Hall has been opened at the demands of the lodge. Last Wednesday evening it was occupy by Odd-fellow Grand Master Oberly to make a speech to a crowd of the order. He eulogized Wildey, who introduced the order into this country, which the speaker acknowledged was a product of the grog-shops of England. This is a proper use for the property of the Y. M. C. A, is it?

Are you engaged "in the UP-HILL business?" See first column on the sixteenth page.

—The Telescope tells us how a beastly "mark" was taken off a church building.

"A brother writes to us of a church recently dedicated by him, in the front gable of which the audacious carpenters placed a square and compass, large enough to be seen nearly a mile off on the prairie. Truly, Satan must have had his seat in that community; for the writer says that the church has so run down as to have one trustee a granger, another an Odd-fellow, another a straight-out worldling, a fourth a drinker, and the fifth mad at the fourth. But there are signs of better days. The preacher in charge agreed to take the mark of the beast out of the front of the church, and to clean up things generally."

—With all his junketing with secret orders, Schuyler Colfax has at length, one would think, reached the bottom. He dropped out of the Vice-Presidency into the place of apologist, buffoon and decoy for the Odd-fellows. Last week he was lecturing at Evanston University, and to court some of the petty fraternities introduced from the East by the genius of Pres. Fowler, he wore the lodge pin of the society to which he swore fealty when a student, and after the lecture fraternized and lunched with the members of that society in their hall. But said society is in low repute at Evanston, and the rival fraternities made an attack, locked up the building, threw asafoetida into the hall and raised a horrible din. After some time and trouble the real cause of the row, the ex-Vice-President, got out of the building and attempted to reprimand the attacking force, but found that he had even lost the respect of rowdy students, who kept up their rumpus after his retreat.

—Two weeks ago we published a narrative from the Boston Herald of the 30th ult., describing the sad and inglorious end of an independent lodge of Freemasons at the "Hub." It must answer our purposes of time and space, and may be of most use to point out a few analogies, leaving the details to the imagination of our readers. The scheme is termed a bold swindle; it must "bide its diminished head" before the grand lodges, chapters, councils, consistories, etc., which are no whit less so. The ring leader was held in esteem by his acquaintance; so are all the other lodge leaders who are practicing the same tricks. In short, the manner of drumming up members, disposing of funds (which all lodges parade on charity's roll before the public), the subservience of the dupes, the dictatorship of the leader and his final exposure and rage may be daily seen all through the country. The whole affair is another instance of the adage, "When rogues fall out," etc. But let the children of light be "not ignorant of his (Satan's) devices." When Paul and Silas were holding revival meetings the devil sent a subaltern spirit in a soothsaying damsel to join in and spoil the religious movement. These small devils will now be swarming in our reform.

RONAYNE'S HAND-BOOK.—Before this paper reaches our readers 2,000 copies of Ronayne's Hand-book of Freemasonry will be ready for circulation. The Grand Army Ritual will also be ready this week.

THE CHRISTIAN REFORMER AND NON-RITUALIST is a new monthly, by W. B. Orvis, Philadelphia, which will present the views of its editor, and a small class of Christians outside the Friends Society against religious forms of any kind, as of binding nature. The paper is earnest in its religious tone and is well printed. $1.50 per annum.

The February Galaxy, leaving out the parts devoted to needless novels, is a good number. The following are of interest and value: "Home Rulers in the English Parliament," "Annie Seward and Major Andre," a scrap of hitherto unpublished history, "Suicide," Pama and Bologna," "Social and Domestic Life under the ancient Regime" in France from a forthcoming volume by Taine, "A Word or Two on Emerson," and an argument against "Army Reduction." Sheldon & Co., New York.

That part of the ancient tabernacle of the Jews, "The Ark of the Covenant," with its singular history and mysterious symbolic meanings is very fully treated of by Dr. Patton in the February number of The National Sunday-School Teacher. In the same issue is an article on "Sunday-schools among the Chinese" in California, by Rev. J. K. McLean, and a fresh treatment of the subject of "Teachers' Meetings," by Prof. E. C. Hewett. The lessons touch upon that most interesting portion of Old Testament history, the reigns of Saul and David, and are so full, scholarly, suggestive and practical as to merit the wide circulation they have obtained. Not the least attractive part of this magazine is the editorial department. Chicago: Adams, Blackmer, and Lyon Pub. Co., who also issue The Little Folks,—just the thing for little classes.

Temperance.

The daily Temperance prayer-meetings of the Chicago Woman's Temperance Union are held in Lower Farwell Hall, at three o'clock P. M., and the ladies would be glad to have all friends, men or women, who visit Chicago make it a point to attend that meeting, and give them a few words of council or encouragement. By actual count the average number in attendance on that meeting during the week ending January 19th, was one hundred and three. If the spirit of God blesses it it will be a power for righteousness. Pray for it. The whole number who signed the pledge during the same week was thirty-five.

Miss Francis E. Willard, Secretary of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union is now absent from her Chicago office at room 3, Y. M. C. A. building.

In pursuance of Centennial temperance work, a letter of inquiry has been addressed to the President of each Union in the State of Illinois, requesting the names of their society's officers; the number of women engaged in the work; number of petitions circulated; and number of names collected; together with suggestions from any who can give them, as to the best mode of presenting the temperance reform to the eyes and hearts of the world's representatives at the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia.

During the meeting of the American Board in Chicago last October, a young man from Philadelphia said to his companion, a gentleman of character:

"Let's get a drink."

"Come," was the reply, "I'll show you where you can get something good." Whereon he brought him to the reading-room of the Y. M. C. A., in which the Woman's Union were about holding a temperance meeting. The young man, though surprised, was too well-bred to withdraw.

Impressions were made which were indelible. He returned to his Eastern home. Two weeks later he signed the pledge, and sent word to the lady who led the singing that it was her words and her prayer that especially led him to this result; that he had but to shut his eyes and the whole scene re-appeared before him. That he felt he should stand, because he trusted in a higher power than his own.

A few weeks later came word that he had gained his most intimate friend to the same pledge. Then he sent a request for prayer for five young men, whose signatures he had obtained. So the work extends like ripples almost to the eastern coast.

—The series of religious meetings held in Maine by the Young Men's Christian Association of the State have met with considerable success. At a session of the State Executive Committee, held at Auburn, Dec. 29th, it was reported that in the six previous weeks nine towns had been visited and 72 meetings had been held.

Religious Intelligence.

—Rev. L. C. Partridge of Vermont, one of the secretaries of the National Convention held in Worcester in 1871, is lying very ill of the typhoid fever. Another secretary at Oberlin, Rev. J. E. Carrol, reports in the Wesleyan a glorious revival in which he is engaged.

—The Philadelphia meetings over which Mr. Moody presided closed on Thursday last, and he started immediately for Florida for a brief rest before the New York meetings open, Feb. 1. An incident of promise marked the close of these meetings, $100,000 were pledged to carry on the work of the Y. M. C. A. in Philadelphia. It can be well disposed of during the months while the centennial exposition is open.

—The eighth annual meeting of the Woman's Board of Missions of the Congregational churches was held in Boston, Jan., 4. The report showed the total receipts for the year 1875 to be $72,000. Three branch societies had been adding during the year to the nine already in existence. The society has now 12 branches and 800 auxiliaries. There are 59 missionaries supported by the society, of whom five were sent out during 1875, besides 50 Bible women and native teachers.

—The principal work of the "Evangelical Society of Geneva" which was founded in 1831, is the evangelization of France. The society occupies 29 stations and 86 out-stations in France and Algiers, besides maintaining in these countries 25 primary schools with 800 pupils, and 29 Sunday-schools. As many as 3,500 persons attend the services at the different stations, 800 of whom are communicants. The society also employs between 40 and 50 colporteurs, the majority of whom travel through France, while a number labor in Italy and Switzerland. The Rev. Merle D'Aubigne was President of the Theological Seminary of the Society from the time of its formation until his death.

—Rev. J. M. Snyder, President of the Illinois Wesleyan Conference, has recently attended two dedications of Wesleyan churches in Iowa. One at College Springs, and the other at Walker.

—Rev. N. Wardner, General Evangelist of the Wesleyan connection has been dedicating a new church at Damascus, O,, and also holding a Holiness convention in the same place, at which a powerful work was enjoyed.

Out of a total population of 35,000,000 in France, there are stated to be 500,000 Protestants and 49,000 Jews, half of the latter inhabiting Paris. The number of Frenchmen who have formally declared that they do not belong to any religion is about 82,000, and 3,071 are classed as members of "diverse sects."

—The newly-elected chief of the Cherokee Nation, Ouchalatta, is a member of the Baptist church. On the 26th of December he was ordained as a minister. He is described as "a full-blooded native, medium sized, about fifty years of age, and distinguished for his uprightness of life, and eloquence as a speaker." Three of the supreme judges of the Creek Nation are also Baptists, as are the superintendent of public instruction and the national treasurer.

—The present troubles in Turkey make the religious statistics of Bosnia, one of the discontented provinces, of interest. According to the Turkish official report there are in Bosnia 442,050 Mohammedans, 576,756 Christians of the Orthodox Eastern church, 185,503 Roman Catholics, 3,000 Jews, and 9,537 Gypsies, making a total population of 1,216,846. The Mohammedans are the chief land-owners. The Orthodox Eastern Christians are principally small tradesmen and farmers. The ignorance of the people is very great; there are only few schools in the province, and not a single book store.

—An appeal was made by the Rev. Dr. Crummell, a colored clergyman of Washington, for funds to build a Protestant Episcopal church capable of accommodating a thousand worshipers. The sum needed is $20,000. There are 43,000 colored people according to his estimate, in the District. Dr. Crummell expresses the opinion that "the common schools, now twelve years in existence, have raised up a generation of colored youth who have outgrown the crude and tumultuous religious systems of a former day."

News of the Week.

The City.

The American Poultry Association held its annual fair last week in the Exposition building. The show of fowls was one of the best in its history.——The government suits still hang back, the whiskey cases from which so much is expected having failed to come up yet. The distillers and others who have plead guilty and have confessed are very confident of being let off with a light punishment or none at all.——Great indignation has been caused by the appointment on the Grand Jury of the assessor who caused the fraudulent tax levy last year. His case will be one to be investigated.

The Country.

The New York assembly have passed a measure allowing masquerade balls which are hot-beds of crime in the low dives of the cities. It also last week repealed the Grey Nun's act.——Two murderers were hung in Illinois on Friday. One a wife murderer at Joliet, the other one of the assassins in the Bulliner feud in Williamson county. The other parties in the half dozen murders of that quarrel are in the penitentiary or closely pursued.——Though the winter has been of extraordinary mildness a passenger train was stuck in the snow in Wyoming Territory last week.——The revivalists Whittle and Bliss visited Madison, Wis., after their meetings in Milwaukee. The efforts were greatly blessed in both places. This week they go to St. Louis.——Beecher and Plymouth Church are trying to save their reputation over the mutual council failure, laying all the blame to Mrs. Moulton. Their own advisory council will be soon called.

Congress.

The Democrats have enough of amnesty and Jeff Davis, and have so far successfully resisted a final decision.——The House is considering a large reduction of salaries in the foreign service.——Townsend of New York in the House made a good speech last week in reply to Tucker of Va., who advocated the old Calhoun doctrine of State rights.——In the Senate Morton is working to prove the illegality of the Mississippi elections.—A postal telegraph bill has been introduced in the Senate.——Saturday eulogies were pronounced on the late Vice-President Wilson.

Foreign.

The Bavarian Chamber is to be dissolved on account of the deadlock between the Protestants and Romanists.——The elections for a new French Senate are largely conservativ.——Lord Derby has received a memorial from the British Anti-slavery Association stating that Spain is willing to place Cuba in the same relation that Canada occupies toward England, on condition that slavery is retained, and urging British interference.

The Home Circle.

My Soul's Abiding Rest.

Weary was my soul of trying,
And my spirit long was crying
For the grace that's all-supplying,
To impart a settled rest.
But the struggles of my spirit
Could not merit, could not win it,
Jesus, he alone could give it,
So I trusted and was blest.

Though the storm around me rages,
And all hell destruction wages,
In the rifted Rock of Ages,
I am resting and secure.
Win 's no more my bark are shifting,
Nor rough gales the white sails rifting,
No more with the current drifting,
For my anchor now is sure.

And while to my Refuge clinging,
From my inmost soul is springing,
A new song, I still keep singing,
Jesus now doth dwell within,
Dwells within a friend abiding,
I can fear no ill betiding,
For my soul has found a hiding
In a Savior from my sin.

—Adv. of Chris. Holiness.

Consecrated Gains.

Whose is the money, the wealth, the silver, the gold, the earth and the fullness thereof, and the cattle upon a thousand hills? Whose are the treasures of darkness, the wealth of the deep places of the earth? Who sends the sunshine and the rain? Who clothes the hills with forests and the vales with corn? Who gives the strength to labor and the skill to plan? Who has given life for life and blood for blood, to purchase and redeem a ruined, sinful race?

What then are we but ransomed captives, released from bondage and adopted as the sons of God? What have we but the free gifts of a tender, loving, gracious God? And what can we do more fitting and proper than to consecrate our gains to the Lord of the whole earth?

We are the Lord's; and when he bought us with his blood, the purchase covered all we were, and all we had, for time and for eternity. We are not our own. What then have we that we did not receive? What have we that is not a sacred trust? What have we that may not be taken from us in a day? What have we for which we shall not give an account?

In him we live. His arm sustains, his bounty feeds, his care provides for kings and beggars alike. He blesses and we prosper, he blights and blasts and all our gains are gone, and we ourselves vanish before his wrath. For us pride is destruction, independence is ruin, willfulness is perdition. Our safety is only in the Lord; in his providence, his guidance, his grace, and his love.

Let us then, as we live in him, live for him. Let our business be carried on in his fear and to his glory. Let our lives be passed under the approval of his glance, under the refreshment of his smile. Let our faith, and hope, and life and work, center in him who hath bought us with so great a price; and let all our possessions be held as by his authority, and consecrated to his work.

God will have all. That which we withhold we lose. Earth and all its possessions are the Lord's by right, and his in fact. That nation and that kingdom that will not serve him, shall be utterly wasted; and the cankering gold and rusting silver of the covetous shall be a witness against them, and the rust thereof shall eat their flesh like fire. And those who refuse to yield to God and trust in him, shall at last be made to feel the power of him who punishes those who spurn his rule, and who has said: "I will consecrate their gain unto Jehovah and their substance unto the Lord of the whole earth." Micah, iv. 13.—The Christian.

Varley on the Higher Life.

Much controversy has been taking place in England, lately, on the Higher Life. Mr. Varley to correct misconceptions has published the following:

The difference between my former experience and the present arises from the fact that, whilst for many years I clearly saw the Lord Jesus as my Saviour, and anticipated the glory of being like him in heaven, I failed to see that Christ risen from the dead is my present life, and the only life the Word of of God permits me to recognize. For example, should I recognize the old self as other than dead and buried, I would in disobedience to God, and this is as really sin as though I steal, though the former may be, as indeed it was in my case, a sin of ignorance. The real ignoring of self must be one's own intelligent act, through faith in God's Word, according to Rom. vi. 1-11, and also Matthew xvi. 24. I am ready to stand with the Word of God against any amount of honest, friendly criticism, well assured that these truths only need to be known to be an immense blessing to the church of Christ. I was not aware until Saturday last how strongly both Bengel and Stier maintain the meaning of the above verse to be a resolute and intelligent ignoring of the old self life, the former using Peter's denial of Christ, "I do not know the man," as the precise equivalent, and in the same sense we are to regard self as unknown, or rather as dead and buried. (Col. ii. 12) The Divine strength, the joy, love and power of Christ, is so inexpressible in my own daily life, that it is not at all difficult to bear either unkindness or criticism, and it is very easy now to live out Matthew v. 44-45, not indeed by any other power than that Paul knew—"I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

Discriminative Preaching.

A young minister had gone to a prosperous church in a certain town to preach his first sermon. Before leaving the house the gentleman who was entertaining him suggested to him not to preach against Universalists. "There are," said he, "several Universalist families who have pews in our church, and we don't want them offended." The young minister promised. At the church vestibule one of the deacons drew him aside, and said, "Do you see those gentlemen just passing in? They are Spiritualists, but come here to church occasionally. I wish you would be a little careful not to say anything that might hurt their feelings." The minister promised. As he was ascending the pulpit steps, one of the elders button-holed him for a moment to whisper an additional caution—"The leading liquor dealer has just come into church and he gives us a lift sometimes. I wish you would be particular not to allude to the whiskey business or the temperance question." The young minister, getting fairly frightened to see the moral ground thus steadily narrowing before him, inquired: "Pray who or what shall I preach against then." The elder's reply came with an air of triumph—"Preach against the Jews; they haven't got a friend in town." If preaching is the art of not hurting anybody, that certainly would have been an effective direction. But if, on the other hand, it means the application of truth to mind and conscience, then that is the most effective which lays the arrow on the string for a present effect, which aims at the sins and sorrows that are straight before it, and which determines the effectiveness of the aim by the fluttering of the birds.—The Interior.

The Bedawin.

In person the Bedawy is well-built, muscular, often tall, though thin, with regular features, a slight beard, and a complexion bronzed by heat and exposure. His raven locks, long and glossy, are often shaven around the temples, in accordance with the Mohammedan requirement. His eye is black, piercing, and restless. His dress simple, consisting of a cotton shirt, sometimes white, but oftener blue, whose loose folds descend to the ankles, and which is confined with a leathern girdle about the loins. The shirt, tunic, or robe is open in front down to the waist, and serves as a spacious and most convenient pocket, where the wearer stows away all manner of things. This arrangement of the garment is common to all Orientals, and is called "the bosom;" and we have an example of it in the case of Moses in the desert. Besides the girdle, however, both sexes wear from infancy a leathern girdle around the naked waist, adorned with amulets, and also with shells (cypraea). Neither sex wear drawers, either under or over the shirt, which usually constitutes the entire wardrobe of both; and they are ridiculed by their neighbors for "going naked." This is also the custom among the poorer class in Egypt. It would have seemed to have been the practice of the Hebrews during the Exodus, if we may judge from the urgent repetition of the command that priests wear "linen breeches to cover their nakedness, reaching from their loins to their thighs when they come into the tabernacle, lest they die." A woolen cloak, generally of camel's hair, in broad stripes, brown and white, is thrown loosely over the shoulders of the desert Arab, and is his only covering at night. With it he also improvises a tent, while traveling under the burning sun; he stops, panting with the heat, and spreads his cloak on the points of his spears stuck into the ground, and waits for the evening. His head-dress consists of a gay handkerchief of cotton, or of silk mixed with cotton, striped red and yellow, whose border is ornamented with a long braided fringe and tassels, worn in such a manner that one corner hangs loose on the back, and two others fall on the shoulders, while the folds of the fourth shade the forehead and face. This handkerchief is bound around the head with a thick cord of brown camel's hair, considered the best safeguard against a sun-stroke, and thus floats in the wind, or its folds are wrapped about the face to protect it from the sun or conceal it from an enemy. The Bedawy generally goes barefoot, but, when he can afford it, buys from the towns, or steals from a passing traveler, a pair of red morocco shoes or boots, usually very large, and with the toes turning up like a skate, or he makes himself a pair of sandals, generally of camel's skin, which he binds with thongs around his foot. These sandals are always made after one model, and appear to derive their form from high aqntiu ty. We have abundant evidence from the Bible narratives that this identical form of sandal was long worn by the Hebrews. The word naal, signifying sandal, is translated shoe in Exodus iii. 5; Deuteronomy xxv. 9; xxix. 5; Joshua v. 15; Ruth iv. 7, 8; 1 Kings ii. 5; Isaiah xx. 2; Ezekiel xxiv. 17, The word latchet also indicates the sandal wherever it occurs, as in Genesis xiv. 23; Isaiah v. 27; Mark i. 7. All of the foregoing description of the Arab costume is not applicable to the poorer class, whose sole garment is the loose cotton shirt or tunic already mentioned, generally the worse for wear.—Bible Lands, Van Lennep.

Pointed Sayings.

Sin taken into the soul is like liquor poured into a vessel—so much of it as it fills, it also seasons. The touch and the tincture go together.

Pleasure is like wine; he who would drink it pure, must not drain it in the dregs.

He that does evil that good may come, pays a toll to the devil to let him into heaven.

It is best not to dispute, where there is no probability of convincing.

Some have made it a rule never to argue with a man who is more than sixty years old, as at that age his mind is probably made up, and argument will rarely change it. God takes from us what we desire, and gives us what we need

It is folly to rely upon the doctrine of grace, and live in violation of God's laws. It is like a man leaving a despotic government and going to a land of liberty, thinking he can do just as he pleases—trample on the laws of that land, appropriating to himself all he likes.

A chief art of the spiritual life is to do natural things spiritually, and spiritual things naturally.

Providence has a thousand keys to open a thousand doors, for the deliverance of his own.

We mount to heaven mostly on the ruins of our cherished schemes, finding our failures were successes.

Whatever Midas touched, turned into gold. In these days, touch many a man with gold, and he'll turn into anything.

Think upon sin, and repent; think upon God, and return; think upon grace, and hope; upon glory, and press forward.—The Christian.

Liberia.

From an address of Rev. Dr. Orcutt, Secretary of the American Colonization Society, the war in Liberia is less discouraging in its results than has been stated.

Dr. Orcutt states that the occasion of the war between the Liberians and the natives was a question of title; the latter claiming that the portion embraced in the county of Maryland at least, belonged to them, and that they had a perfect right to trade with foreigners without any interruptions or custom-house restrictions. The Liberians claimed, on the other hand, that they had a valid title to all the land they possessed, and did not intend to relinquish their rights in the case. Over this question the two hostile parties resorted to the sword, and six battles, or, more properly speaking, skirmishes, occurred prior to October last. The first two occurred at Philadelphia, a town about ten miles from Cape Palmas, the third at Jacksonville, the fourth at Latrobe, and the fifth and sixth at Tubman Town. In all of these, few persons were killed and wounded on either side, and the Liberians were, in every case victorious. But, to be prepared for any future emergency, some eleven hundred soldiers were stationed at Cape Palmas under command of General Gardner, Vice-President of the Republic. After a sojourn there of about a month, Brigadier General Crayton, Vice-president elect, resolved on an aggressive movement on Saturday night, Oct. 9th. General Sherman and others remonstrated against it but without avail. At daybreak on Sunday morning, after a fatiguing march, they reached the native town in view, and shortly after a battle commenced. But it had not progressed long before General Crayton, from some cause best known to himself, retired from the field. Still, the battle went on and finally resulted in favor of the natives. The Liberians had about seventy of their men killed and wounded. Emboldened by their victory, the natives, the next day, Monday Oct. 11, with a large force, made an attack upon Tubman Town, which was garrisoned by only some fifty men who reserved their fire until the enemy were within short distance, when they charged upon them killing and wounding so many that they retreated in confusion, leaving their guns and everything that impeded their flight behind them. This was the last battle of which Dr. Orcutt had any knowledge. He thought that as this government had ordered the war steamer Alaska, of the European squadron, to be sent at once to Monrovia to aid and protect the Liberians, it was reasonable to infer that the warfare had ended, at least for the present.—Christian Intelligencer.

Children's Corner.

The Pumpkin.

Little folks are much beholden
To the pumpkin fair and golden.
Who within a pumpkin-shell
Put his wife and kept her well?
Peter Peter was the man;
Catch the fellow, if you can!
Cinderella, for her carriage,
Cinderella, for her marriage,
To the pumpkin owed a debt:
Has she paid it, think you, yet?
Jack-a-Lantern is beholden
To the pumpkin fair and golden;
But the shell is his alone;
For the pudding is our own:
And, if we the stalk can take,
We a pipe to play on make.

—The Nursery.

The Gold Necklace.

Johnny was a bright lad of about twelve or thirteen years. He lived among the green hills, where his father had a neat farm, and where the great world was little known.

A peddler who used to travel round selling pretty things to the country folks took a liking to the little boy, and inspired him with a strong desire to try his hand in trade, which, he told him, was so much more profitable than farming. He wanted a boy to assist in carrying his merchandise; and Johnny thought it was the beginning of great things when he was invited to travel with the peddler in that capacity.

The farmer made no objection to the arrangement. He had a large family, and could spare his little son; and perhaps, too, he thought it wise to let the lad have a trial of the life which appeared so charming. He therefore gave him permission to go, but added as he bade him farewell, "Be a good boy, Johnny; and if you get tired, come back home."

The mother added her cheerful good wishes; and after kissing each one of the family, the little boy started with light spirits by the peddler's side.

Johnny had quite a gay time assisting in the sale of ribbons and laces, rings and brooches; and the peddler's lively companionship shortened the road. At length they approached a large house surrounded by handsome grounds, where they were received by two or three richly-dressed ladies, and presented their gay wares.

Gold necklaces were then very fashionable, and one of pretty design was produced by the peddler, which he offered to the ladies at a great bargain. It was the last of a lot, he said, each of which had fetched him a good price; he could therefore afford to sell this one without calculating profit, and especially as the ladies had bought several other articles of him, he would let them have the necklace for two pounds ten shillings, which he declared to be less than cost price. The ornament was purchased, the money paid, and the dealer gravely withdrew. At a little distance from the house, however, he burst into a loud laugh, and slapping his young companion on the back, exultingly exclaimed, "There, boy, that's the way to do business! That necklace cost me about half-a-crown, and there's not a bit o' gold in it!"

Johnny stood still, staring in amazement at the announcement. At length the spoke: "Father told me if I go tired to come home, and I believe I am tired now. Good-by." And handing the pack which he carried to its owner, he coldly turned away.

It was now the peddler's turn to be astonished. The laugh was changed to an expression of concern, and following the boy, he used every argument to induce him to proceed in his company; but the child of honest parents had been taught to "hate every false way." If trade involved fraud and deception, he would have nothing to do with it; so, resisting every overture, he pursued his way back, and, disappointed and foot-sore, at close of day he re-entered his green mountain home.

Forty years have passed since then, and the Johnny of our story never turned aside from "the way of the just" During the last half of his life he has been in respectable business in an important city. He is not what the world calls rich, but he enjoys what wealth could not give; he is the esteemed bearer of an unsullied name, the happy father of an upright family, and an honored and trusted member of the church of Christ.—Sunshine.

Geographical Puzzle.

[Our boys and girls will find this a very interesting puzzle worth trying to guess out.]

I was awakened early one morning by a Chinese sea-port, and as the air was a country of South America, I wrapped myself in my cloak made of a part of the Chinese Empire, and lined with a cape in the Southern part of United States, and busied myself in a town on the Schuylkill, until an island east of Labrador called me to breakfast. A group of islands in the Gulf of Mexico burned brightly on the hearth, and another group, lying West of Africa, greeted me with a cheerful song. Soon a lake of North America brought in my breakfast, which consisted of an Asiatic country, and a river of British America, well seasoned with a lake in the western part of North America, and a South American city. To these were added a group of islands in the Pacific, and a plentiful portion of an island in the Atlantic. As I am naturally fond of another group of islands in the Pacific, I chatted with a city in Ohio, and after I had satisfied my appetite which was at first a town in southern N. H., I ate a large group of islands lying east of India with her. As she was suffering with a head-ache I bathed her head with a city on the Rhine, but stopped suddenly on discovering that the North American lake was a city of China. I assured him that he never would obtain a city in the western part of Missouri, unless he mended his ways, although my disposition towards him was a group of islands in the Pacific; but should his conduct prove satisfactory, he might look forward with an African cape, to obtain a town in Kentucky in due time. I then went out and enjoyed a Newfoundland cape after a lake in British America, and after I returned, finding that the children were making a lake in N. Y., I sent them all to bed, wishing a good deal of a Scottish cape upon them.—Selected.

Home and Health Hints.

How to Preserve Health.

The first great secret of good health is good habits; and the next is regularity of habits. They are briefly summed up in the following rules:

1. Sleep—Give yourself the necessary amount of sleep. Some men require five hours of the twenty-four; others need eight. Avoid feather beds. Sleep in a garment not worn during the day. Sleep with a person stronger and healthier than yourself or no one; and have plenty of fresh air in your room.

2. Dress—Dress warmly with woolen undershirts and drawers. Remove muffler, overcoat, overshoes, etc., when remaining any considerable length of time in a warm room. Keep your feet warm and dry. Wash them in warm water two or three times a week. Wear warm stockings, large boots, and overshoes, when in the snow or wet. Wear a light covering on the head keeping it always cool.

3. Cleanliness—Have always a pint or quart of water in the sleeping-room. In the morning after washing and wiping the hands and face, then wet with the hands every part of the body. Cold water will not be disagreeable when applying it with the bare hand. Wipe immediately; follow by brisk rubbing over the body. The whole operation need not take over five minutes. The result of this wash is, the blood is brought to the surface of the skin, and made to circulate evenly through the body. You have opened the pores of the skin, allowing the impurities in the body to pass off, and have given yourself in the operation a good vigorous morning exercise. Pursue this habit regularly, and you will seldom take cold.

4. Inflation of the lungs—Five minutes spent in the open air, after dressing, inflating the lungs by inhaling as full a breath as possible, and pounding the breast during the inflation will greatly enlarge the chest, strengthen the lung-power, and very effectually ward off consumption.

5. Diet—If inclined to be dyspeptic, avoid mince-pie, sausage, and other highly seasoned food. Beware of eating too freely of soups; better to eat food dry enough to employ the natural saliva of the mouth in moistening it. If inclined to over-eat, partake freely of rice, cracked wheat, and other articles that are easily digested.

Eat freely of ripe fruit, and avoid excessive use of meat. Eat at regular hours, and lightly near the hour of going to bed. Eat slowly. Thoroughly masticate the food. Do not wash it down with continual drink while eating. Tell your funniest stories while at the table, and for an hour afterwards. Do not engage in severe mental labor directly after hearty eating.

6. Exercise—Exercise not too violent, but sufficient to produce a gentle perspiration, should be had each day in the open air.

7. Condition of mind—The condition of the mind has much to do with health. Be hopeful and joyous. To be so, avoid business entanglement that may cause perplexity and anxiety. Keep out of debt. Live within your income. Attend church. Walk, ride, mix in jovial company. Do as nearly right as you know how. Thus conscience will always be at ease. If occasionally disappointed, remember that there is no rose without a thorn, and that the darkest clouds have a silver lining; that sunshine follows storm, and beautiful spring follows the dreary winter. Do your duty, and leave the rest to God, who doeth all things well. —Hill's Manual.

Masonic Books,

FOR SALE AT THE CYNOSURE OFFICE.

Those who wish to know the character of Freemasonry, as shown by its own publications, will find many standard works in the following list.

No sensible Mason dares deny that such men as Albert G. Mackey, the great Masonic Lexicographer, and Daniel Sickels, the Masonic author and publisher, are the highest Masonic authority in the United States.

Allyn's Ritual of Masonry,

Illustrated by a large number of engravings, and ontaining a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, Orange nd Odd-fellows' societies. Price, $5.00.

Mackey's Masonic Ritualist;

OR

MONITORIAL INSTRUCTION BOOK

BY ALBERT G. MACKEY,

Past General High Priest of the General Grand Chapter of the United States, Knight of the Eagle and Pelican, Prince of Mercy," Etc. Etc. Price, $1 75

Mackey's Lexicon of Freemasonry,

Containing a Definition of Terms, Notices of its History, Traditions and Antiquities, and an account of all the Rites and Mysteries of the Ancient World. 12 mo. 526 pages, $3 00

MACKEY'S MANUAL OF THE LODGE

OR

Monitorial Instructions in the Degrees of Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft, and Master Mason; with Ceremonies relating to Installations, Dedications, Consecrations, Laying of Corner-stones &c. Price, $2 00

MACKEY'S TEXT BOOK

OF

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

Illustrating the Laws of Freemasonry, both written and unwritten.

This is the Great Law Book of Freemasonry 570 pages. Price, $2.50.

Webb's Monitor of Freemasonry,

LARGE EDITION, WITH NOTES

By ROB. MORRIS, Price, $1.50.
Pocket Edition, 75 cts.

SICKELS' FREEMASON'S MONITOR.

Containing the Degrees of Freemasonry embraced in the Lodge, Chapter, Council and Commandery, embellished with nearly 300 symbolic Illustrations. Together with Tactics and drill of Masonic Knighthood. Also, forms of Masonic Documents, Notes, Songs, Masonic dates, installations, etc. By D. Sickels, 32 mo tuck. Price $1.50.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry.

A Practical Guide to the Ceremonies in the Degrees conferred in Masonic Lodge Chapter, Encampments, etc. Illustrated Edition. In cloth, $1 25; paper, 75 cts.

Chase's Digest of Masonic Law.

Comprises a Complete Code of Regulations Decisions and Opinions upon Questions of Masonic Jurisprudence. Price, $2 25.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor

Illustrated with Explanatory Engraving Price $3.50.

HAND-BOOK OF FREEMASONRY,

By EDMOND RONAYNE.

NOTE:—Two Thousand copies of this book have been printed and part of them are already bound and complete, with a portrai of the author in each. For prices see 15th page.

PREFACE

AND

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

PREFACE.

There never was a time perhaps, since the great excitement consequent upon the abduction and murder of Capt. William Morgan by the Freemasons of Western New York, in 1826, in which public sentiment has been so much aroused as it is at present, regarding the evil tendencies of secret oath-bound combinations, and more especially of Freemasonry. Nearly every locality can furnish instances where the wheels of justice have been fairly clogged and where some of the very worst criminals have frequently escaped punishment because of their connection with the Masonic institution, and through the mystic power of the "Grand Hailing Sign of Distress." It is a well-known fact that secret rings of every discription, some of them known to be organized for the most base and selfish purposes, everywhere abound in the land, and that all or nearly all of these secret cliques are controlled, directed, and sheltered by Masonic power, and influence.

Prominent members of the various Christian denominations with but very few exceptions, everywhere testify that the deep Christian sentiment—the vitality and spiritual power which prevaded the churches, even as late as twenty years ago, has, in a great measure, died out, and that indifference to religion, if not downright infidelity, seems now to be all prevailing throughout the country. Indeed it is no wonder that this should be the case, when it is remembered that ministers of the Gospel, deacons, elders, and other professing Christians are constantly to be met with in the midnight gatherings of this secret clan, and are frequently heard to remark whenever questioned upon the subject that "Freemasonry is a good enough religion for me."

My chief object, therefore, in writing this book is to further awaken public sentiment, and enlighten the public mind on this all-important subject, by publishing the whole of "Ancient Freemasonry," word for word as it is taught and practiced by the various lodges in the United States, that the community at large may, in a great measure be enabled to intelligently and successfully withstand its encroachments by concerted action both in the church and at the polls; and support no minister, nor vote for any candidate for office, who has been led blindfolded and cable-towed into a Masonic lodge; and who is still bound by its ferocious oaths and sanguinary death-penalties.

As to the correctness of the work, I shall simply remark that I learned Freemasonry from the following eminent Masons—eminent only as such—all of whom are neighbors of mine; members of Chicago lodges, and hold to-day the very highest positions in the Grand Lodge of Illinois. From R. W. D. H. Kilmore, W. M. No. 209; and D. D. Grand Master—from R. W. Bro. Ed Cook, P. M. No. 271. D. D. Grand Master and Grand Examiner—from R. W. Bro. H. F. Holcomb, W. M. No. 141, and D. D. Grand Master—from R. W. Bro Jno. O'Neil, W. M. No. 393, and now D. D. Grand Master; and from the Grand Examiners or Custodians of the work at their session in Chicago, after the Grand Lodge meeting in 1871. Add to this that the names to be found on pages 23 and 24 are all living members of Keystone Lodge, No. 639, in this city, who presented me with a most beautiful Past Master's regalia, consisting of a collar, apron, and jewel, on my retiring from the Oriental chair on January 14th, 1874, and which I am now wearing almost daily in my public expositions of the Masonic degrees.

Freemasonry at best is but a miserable farce; a tissue of falsehoods from beginning to end, but knowing that all its so-called secrets were revealed to the world over fifty years ago, and that during half a century at least, its various Grand Lodges have been selling what may be truly termed "Snide Freemasonry," renders it to-day a gigantic swindle; and hence a man is no more bound by its ferocious obligations than he would be were he connected with a band of house-breakers, or a gang of horse-thieves. It is but the production of a grog-shop, and not much older than our grandfathers. Its religion is infidel and anti-Christian—its government despotic—its pretended benevolence a sham—its so-called charity selfishness—its death penalties inhuman and barbarous, and the whole system leading to inevitable social ruin here, and if God speaks truly in his Word, to eternal damnation hereafter.

Such I found it to be after long and careful study; as such I renounced it in July, 1874; and as such I now publish its secret workings to the world. Praying that God's eternal blessing may follow the circulation of this book, and that his divine spirit may make it instrumental in leading many of my former brethren in the lodge to "have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness but rather reprove them,"

I am fraternally

E. RONAYNE, Past Master Keystone Lodge, N. 639, Chicago.

JAN. 1, 1876.

CONTENTS.

	Page
Preface	5,6
Entered Apprentice, Opening Ceremonies	8
" " " Prayer	14
" " Due-guard and Sign	14
" " Questions to Candidate	30
" " Preparation of "	31
Initiatory Ceremonies—Rite of Induction—on point of sharp instrument	32,33
" " Prayer for Candidate	33
" " Rite of Symbolic Pilgrimage—once around the Lodge	33
" " First Step in Masonry	35
" " Rite of Secrecy—Obligation	36
" " " " Illumination—Hoodwink removed.	37
" " Grip and Word	38,39
" " Rite of Investiture—white apron	39,40
" " Working Tools	41
" " Sec. 2nd, Explanatory	42
" " " 3d, Master's Carpet—Monitorial	45
" " Charge	50
Examination—Lecture—Sec. 1st	52
Fellow Craft—Opening Ceremonies	16
" " Due-guard and Sign	19
Initiatory Ceremonies—Rite of Induction—on the angle of a Square	62
" " " " Symbolic Pilgrimage—twice around	62,63
" " Second step in Masonry	65
" " Rite of Secrecy—Obligation	66
" " " " Illumination—Hoodwink removed	68
" " Pass, Token of Pass, Grip and Word	69,70
" " Rite of Investiture—White apron	71
" " Working Tools	72
Secion 2nd. Middle Chamber; Pillars, Winding Stairs &c.	73,83
Examination Lecture—Sec. 1st	84
Master Mason Opening Ceremonies	20
" " Due-guard and Sign	21
" " Preparation of Candidate	92
Initiatory Ceremonies—Rite of Induction—on both points of Compass	94
" " Rite of Symbolic Pilgrimage—three times around	95
" " Third step in Masonry	98
" " Rite of Secrecy—Obligation	99
" " " " Illumination—Hoodwink removed.	101
" " Pass and Token of Pass	103
" " Rite of Investiture—White apron	104
" " Working Tools	105
Section 2nd. Silent Prayer—Candidate as Hiram Abiff	107
" " Death and burial of Hiram Abiff	109,110
" " Search for the Ruffians	112-117
" " Search for the Body	118
" " Grand Procession and Scene at the Grave	119,120
" " Prayer at raising	122
" " Raising Candidate	123
" " Five Points of Fellowship	124
" " Grand Hailing Sign of Distress	125
" " Strong Grip of Master Mason—Grand Masonic Word	126
Section 3d. "Temple Legend"—Marble Monument	127-131
" " Nine Classes of Emblems	133
" " Charge	136
Admitting Visitors—Test Oath	22
Business—Reading Minutes	23
" Mode of Conducting	25,28
Closing Ceremonies—in form	137-141
Examination—Sec. 1st	144
How to Work into a Lodge	151,152
Freemasonry at a Glance	153-160

RITUAL OF THE

GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC

WITH SIGN OF RECOGNITION,

PASS WORD GRIP ETC,

—AND THE—

RITUAL OF THE

MACHINISTS AND BLACKSMITHS UNION,

(THE TWO BOUND TOGETHER.)

Single Copy, post paid, 25
Per doz. " $2.00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra, 1000

SHOULD ADHERING FREEMASONS BE ADMITTED TO MEMBERSHIP IN THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH?

Let us compare the fundamental principles of Christianity with those of Freemasonry.

A DIVINE REVELATION.	A HUMAN INVENTION.
CHRISTIANS believe that all Scripture is given by inspiration of God and contains the only unerring rule of faith and practice. "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness; that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works." 2 Tim. iii. 16, 17.	FREEMASONRY* says, "To require that a candidate profess his belief in the Divine authenticity of the Bible or a state of future rewards and punishments, is a serious innovation in the very body of Masonry."—Chase's Digest of Masonic Laws, p. 206. "Masonry has nothing whatever to do with the Bible." Chase's Digest, p. 208.
Salvation Through Christ Only. CHRISTIANS believe that "He that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber." John x. 1. The Christian's Savior says: "I am the door; by me, if any man enter in, he shall be saved." CHRISTIANS believe that "He that hath the Son hath life, and he that hath not the son hath not life." 1 John v. 12. CHRISTIANS seek salvation through faith in Christ and his atonement, "Neither is there salvation in any other. For there is none other name under heaven, given among men, whereby we must be saved." Acts iv. 12. "For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ. 1 Cor. iii. 1.	Salvation by the Common Gavel and Good Works. Masonry teaches that a Mason "on the night of his initiation, commences the great task which is never in his future Masonic life to be discontinued, of erecting in his heart a spiritual temple for the indwelling of God."—Mackey's Manual, p. 41. "The common gavel is an instrument made use of by operative Masons to break off the corners of rough stones, the better to fit them for the builder's use; but we, as Free and Accepted Masons, are taught to make use of it for the more noble and glorious purpose of divesting our hearts and consciences of all the vices and superfluities of life, thereby fitting our minds, as living stones for that spiritual building, that house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens,"—Sickel's Monitor, p. 34-5. An adhering Mason sims, "by a uniform tenor of virtuous conduct, to receive, when his allotted course of life has passed, the inappreciable reward from his Celestial Graud Master, of 'Well done, thou good and faithful servant,'" Mackey's Lexicon pp. 450, 451.

Hence a Freemason who intelligently adheres to the lodge is either ignorant, not discerning the LORD'S BODY, and if received before he is instructed will eat and drink damnation to himself (see 1 Cor. ii. 29), or else he is dishonest, pretending to believe in one system which teaches salvation by Christ, and in another which teaches salvation by works, at the same time. It is a mockery and a sin to receive such an one (with a knowledge of his belief) for "He that biddeth him God-speed is partaker of his evil deeds." 2 John, 11 verse.

CHRISTIANS believe that "Except a man be born of water and the spirit he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." John iii. 5. "Repent and be baptized, every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." Acts ii. 38. "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." Mark xvi. 15.	FREEMASONRY teaches that a Master Mason has all that the soul of man requires To verify this fact we quote the following remarks on third degree from Sickels' Monitor, pp. 97, 98. "We now find man complete in morality and intelligence, with the stay of religion added to ensure him of the protection of the Deity, and guard him against ever going astray. These three degrees thus form a perfect and harmonious whole; nor can we conceive that anything can be suggested more, which the soul of man requires."

Before an adhering Freemason should be admitted to the Christian church, if ignorant, he should be instructed in the way of God more perfectly and renounce his errors. If dishonest, professing a belief in antagonistic principles (which belief it is impossible to have), he should be "born again."

The Christian's law-book commands, "Swear not at all." An adhering Mason gives his support to an institution which has caused him, and requires every candidate, to swear oath after oath. Freemasonry teaches him to regard these oaths as the essence of Masonry.

Masonic monitors tell us that "it is the covenant which makes the Mason." And in each of the first three degrees the answer to the question, What makes you an Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft or Master Mason? (as the case may be) is always, "My obligation." These obligations have been published at various places, by different writers, Morgan, Richardson, Bernard, Duncan, Ronayne and others. They vary slightly in form but not in essential points. We here give the Master Mason's oath in full:

OBLIGATION.

I, (Septimus Jones,) of my own free will and accord, in the presence of Almighty God and this Worshipful lodge, erected to him and dedicated to the holy Saints John, do hereby and hereon (the Master at these words places his right hand upon those of the candidate) most solemnly and sincerely promise and swear:

That I will always hail, ever conceal and never reveal any of the secret arts, parts or points of the Master Mason's degree to any person or persons whomsoever, except it be a true and lawful brother Master Mason, or within a regularly constituted lodge of Master Masons, and neither unto him nor them, until by strict trial, due examination or legal information, I shall have found him or them as lawfully entitled to the same as I am myself.

I furthermore promise and swear, that I will conform to and abide by all the laws, rules and regulations of the Master Mason's degree, and of the lodge of which I shall hereafter become a member and that I will ever maintain and support the constitution, laws and edicts of the Grand Lodge under which the same shall be holden so far as the same shall come to my knowledge.

Furthermore that I will answer and obey all due signs and summons sent to me from a lodge of Master Masons or given to me by a brother of this degree, if within the length of my cable-tow,

Furthermore that I will keep the secrets of a worthy brother Master Mason as inviolable as my own when communicated to and received by me as such, murder and treason excepted and them only at my own option.

Furthermore, that I will aid and assist all worthy distressed brother Master Masons, their widows and orphans, they applying to me as such, so far as their necessities may require and my ability permit without material injury to myself or family.

Furthermore, that I will not sit in a lodge of clandestine Masons, nor converse upon the secrets of Freemasonry with a clandestine-made Mason nor with one who is under the sentence of suspension or expulsion to my knowledge while under such sentence.

*The Masonic authors quoted in this tract are everywhere acknowledged as the highest Masonic authority.

Furthermore, that I will not assist in or be present at the initiating, passing or raising of a woman, au old man in dotage, a young man under age, an atheist, a madman or a fool, I knowing them to be such.

Furthermore, that I will not cheat, wrong or defraud a lodge of Master Masons nor a brother of this degree knowingly or supplant him in any of his landable undertakings but will give him due and timely notice that he may ward off approaching danger, if in my power.

Furthermore, that I will not knowingly strike a brother Master Mason nor otherwise do him personal violence in anger except it be in the necessary defense of my person, family or property.

Furthermore, that I will not have illicit carnal intercourse with a Master Mason's wife, mother, sister or daughter, I knowing them to be such, nor suffer it to be done by others if in my power to prevent it.

Furthermore, that I will not give the Grand Hailing sign or sign of distress of a Master Mason except in real distress, in case of the most immiuent danger, within a regularly constituted lodge of Master Masons, or in some secure place for Masonic instruction: and should I see the sign given or hear the words accompanying it, I will immediately repair to the relief of the person so giving it, should there be a greater probability of saving his life than of losing my own.

Furthermore, that I will not give the Grand Masonic word in any other manner or form than that in which I shall hereafter receive it and then only in low breath,

To all of this I most solemnly and sincerely promise and swear with a firm and steadfast resolution to keep and perform the same without any equivocation, mental reservation, or secret evasion of mind whatever, binding myself under no less a penalty than that of having my body severed in twain, my bowels taken from thence and burned to ashes and the ashes scattered to the four winds of heaven, so that no more trace or remembrance may be had of so vile and perjured a wretch as I, should I ever knowingly or willingly violate this my solemn obligation as a Master Mason. So help me God and keep me steadfast in the due performance of the same.

By adhering to the oath, ever to conceal and never to reveal any of the secrets of Masonry, the Mason virtually says, "I will not heed Christ's command, 'Follow me,'" for Christ says, "I ever spake openly to the world . . and in secret have I said nothing. John xviii. 20. The adhering Mason of course keeps this oath, and also in seeking to unite with a Christian church pretends to be loyal to Christ, while living in open defiance of his commands. "Follow me," Matt. xvi. 24; iv. 19; ix. 9, 19, 21. Luke xviii. 22; v. 27; ix. 59. John xii 26; xxi. 22; i. 43. "Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them." Eph. v. 11.

But few, comparatively, go beyond the third degree in Masonry. But in adhering to the order they give their moral support to the upper degrees. We will briefly refer to a few of their oaths and penalties, which are clearly antagonistic to the church of Christ.

In the obligation of the degree styled by Mackey's Lexicon, p. 524, the "Holy Royal Arch," the candidate says, "I furthermore promise and swear that I will keep all the secrets of a companion Royal Arch Mason (when communicated to me as such, or I knowing them to be such), WITHOUT EXCEPTION."

In the Knight Templar degree (Bernard pp. 182-3), the candidate drinks wine from a human skull and says: "This pure wine I now take in testimony of the belief in the immortality of the soul—and may this libation appear as a witness against me both here and hereafter—and as the sins of the world were laid upon the head of the Savior, so may all the sins committed by the person whose skull this was, be heaped upon my head in addition to my own, should I ever knowingly or willfully transgress any obligation that I have heretofore taken, take at this time, or shall at any future period take in relation to any degree of Masonry or order of Knighthood.

"The candidate here not only imprecates the damnation of his own soul, for his own sins, but also for the sins of another, which is a double damnation."

The murdering of men for revealing the secrets of Masonry proves that Masons do understand these oaths to require them to take revenge on the traitor to Masonry. The Knight of Kadosh says: "I swear to take revenge on the traitors of Masonry;" and that he may know exactly the kind of revenge, further on in the same oath, he swears "to sacrifice the traitors of Masonry."

REV. MOSES STUART, PROF., ANDOVER THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY, ANDOVER, MASS., WRITES:

For a long time I neither knew or cared about the subject (Masonry); but recent attention to it has filled me with astonishment: and as to some things contained in it, with horror. The trifling with oaths and with the awful name of the ever-blessed God, is a feature which I cannot contemplate, but with the deepest distress.

REV. NATHANIEL COLVER, FORMER PASTOR TRINITY TEMPLE, (BAPTIST) BOSTON, WRITES TO A BROTHER MASON:

I am free to say that it is my deliberate opinion that the vicious character of Masonry and its guilt-concealing and barbarous oaths is such, as not only to release all from their bonds, but also to lay upon them the solemn obligation to tear off its covering and expose its enormity. I regard it as Satan's masterpiece,—a terrible snare to men. It sits at this moment as a nightmare on all the moral energies of our government, and utterly paralyzes the arm of justice.

We must omit the testimonies of many eminent men against Masonry, but will give the following from Rev. Charles G. Finney:

How can we fail to pronounce Freemasonry an anti-Christian institution? For example, 1st. We have seen that its morality is unchristian. 2d. Its oath-bound secrecy is unchristian. 3d. The administration and taking of its oaths are unchristian, and a violation of a positive command of Christ. 4th. Masonic oaths pledge its members to commit most unlawful and unchristian deeds. a. To conceal each other's crimes. b. To deliver each other from difficulty whether right or wrong c. To unduly favor Masonry in political actions and in business transactions. d. Its members are sworn to retaliate, and persecute unto death, the violators of Masonic obligation. e. Freemasonry knows no mercy but swears its candidates to avenge violations of Masonic obligation even unto death. f. Its oaths are profane, the taking of the name of God in vain. g. The penalties of these oaths are barbarous and even savage. h. Its teachings are false and profane. i. Its design is partial and selfish. j. Its ceremonies are a mixture of puerility and profanity. k. Its religion is deistic. l. It is a false religion, and professes to save men upon other conditions than those revealed in the Gospel of Christ. m. It is an enormous falsehood. n. It is a swindle, and obtains money from its membership under false pretenses. o. It refuses all examination, and veils itself under a mantle of oath-bound secrecy. p. It is a virtual conspiracy against both church and State. No one, therefore, has ever undertaken, and for the plainest reasons none will undertake, to defend Freemasonry as it is revealed in these books. Their arguments are threats, calumny, persecution, assassination. Freemasons do not pretend that Freemasonry, as revealed in these books, is compatible with Christianity. I have not yet known the first Freemason who would affirm that an intelligent adherence to Freemasonry, as revealed in these books, is consistent with a profession of the Christian religion. But we know, if we can know anything from testimony, that these books do truly reveal Freemasonry. We have, then, the implied testimony, of Freemasons themselves, that the Christian church ought to have no fellowship with Freemasonry as thus revealed, and that those who adhere intelligently and determinedly to such an institution have no right to be in the Christian church. In our judgment we are forced to the same conclusion, we can not escape from it, we wish it were otherwise, we therefore sorrowfully, but solemnly, pronounce this judgment.

In those churches which have not refused to fellowship the representatives of this anti-Christian religion many members are "weak and sickly" and "many sleep." 1 Cor. ii. 30. In conclusion we say in the inspired words of Paul: "THE MYSTERY OF INIQUITY doth already work." 2 Thess. iii. 15. "And if any man obey not our word by this epistle (please read it), NOTE THAT MAN AND HAVE NO COMPANY WITH HIM, that he may be ashamed. Yet count him not as an enemy but ADMONISH HIM AS A BROTHER." 2 Thess. iii. 14, 15.

ANTI-MASONIC BOOKS,

(Not our own Publications.)

For Sale by EZRA A. COOK & CO

13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

[FOR CATALOGUE OF PUBLICATIONS OF EZRA A. COOK & CO., See page 15.]

All books sent post paid, on receipt of retail price, but BOOKS SENT BY MAIL ARE NOT AT OUR RISK.

Books ordered by express are sold at 10 per cent. discount and SENT AT OUR RISK. Party ordering must pay express charges.

Elder Stearns' Books.

Stearns' Inquiry Into the Nature and Tendency of Masonry With an Appendix.

SEVENTH EDITION.

338 Pages, in Cloth.....60 cents.
" " " Paper.....40 "

Stearns' Letters on Masonry.

Showing the antagonism between Freemasonry and the Christian Religion,
Price, 30 cents.

Stearns' Review of Two Masonic Addresses.

In this scathing review the lying pretentions of the order are clearly shown.
Price, 10 cents.

Levington's Key to Masonry.

This is Rev. Mr. Levington's last, and in the judgment of its author, best work on Masonry. The contents of the first chapter are as follows:

"Commencement and growth of Speculative or Symbolic Freemasonry—A table showing the thing at a glance—The use that the Atheists made of it—Identical with Illuminism—Its connection with the French Revolution, and with the Irish Rebellion—The action of the British Parliament with regard to it—Proofs of its diabolical purposes—Its Introduction, doings, progress and designs in the United States."

The contents of the Eleventh chapter are thus startling:

"Knights of the Golden Circle—Graphic account of them by a seceding Knight, and remarks thereon, showing the identity of the order with Masonry—Quotations from Sir Walter Scott."

This work is thrilling in statement, and powerful in argument. 425 pagenes,
Price. $1.35.

Light on Freemasonry.

BY ELDER D. BERNARD,

TO WHICH IS APPENDED A

Revelation of the Mysteries of Odd-fellowship by a Member of the Craft.

The whole containing over five hundred pages lately revised and republished. Price $2,00

The first part of the above work, Light on Freemasonry, 416 pages in paper cover, will be sent post paid on receipt of $1.

FOR SALE BY

United Brethren Publishing House,
DAYTON, O.
and by
EZRA A. COOK & CO.,
13 Wabash Ave, CHICAGO.

Walsh's Review of Freemasonry

REVISED EDITION,

Is a Scholarly Review of the Institution, by REV. JNO. T. WALSH.

Price 25 cts.

Finney on Masonry.

BOUND IN CLOTH, PRICE $1.00,

CHEAP EDITION,

Twenty-five dollars per hundred, by express and not less than 25 copies at that rate,

BY MAIL, POST-PAID:

Per doz.....$3 75,
Single copy,.....35 c

ODD-FELLOWSHIP

JUDGED BY ITS OWN UTTERANCES;

Its Doctrine and Practice examined in the light of God's Word.

BY REV. J. H. BROCKMAN.

This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-Fellowship, in the form of a dialogne. It was originally published in German.
Price, bound in Boards, 75 cents.

GOOD TEMPLARISM EXPOSED.

Obligations, of the Initiatory Fidelity, Charity, and Royal Virtue Degrees.

This is a small book containing only the Obligations and some of the Odes of the Good Templars.

Single Copy, Post paid,.....10cts.
Per Doz. " 75
Per 100 by Express,.....$4.50

Bernard's Appendix to Light on Masonry,

Showing the Character of the Institution by it's terrible oaths and penalties. Paper covers, 25 cents.

ANTIMASONIC TRACTS.

WE NOW HAVE 25 ENGLISH TRACTS, ONE GERMAN, AND ONE SWEDISH

These tracts are sold at the rate of $1.00 per 1000 pages.

"THE ANTI-MASONS SCRAP BOOK."

Contains 24 Cynosnre Tracts, bound together, and is jnst the hing to select tracts from. Price 20 cents. See advertisement.

For information about Free Tracts see advertisement headed "Free Tracts."

Address EZRA A. COOK & Co.,
13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

TRACT NO. 1:

HISTORY OF MASONRY.

BY PRESIDENT J. BLANCHARD, OF WHEATON COLLEGE.

This is now pnblished in three tracts of four pages each. Price of each, 50 cents per 100; $4 per 1000.

TRACT No. 1, PART FIRST—Shows the origin of Speculative Freemasonry, and is entiled "HISTORY OF MASONRY."

TRACT No. 1, PART SECOND—Is entitled "DESPOTIC CHARACTER OF FREEMASONRY"

TRACT No. 1, PART THIRD—Is entitled "FREEMASONRY A CHRIST-EXCLUDING RELIGION."

TRACT NO. 2:

MASONIC MURDER,

By REV. J. R. BAIRD, of Pleasantville, Pa., a seceding Mason who has taken 17 degrees. A 2-page tract at 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 3:

SECRETS OF MASONRY,

BY ELI TAPLEY.

This is a 4-page Illnstrated Tract, showing the signs, grips and pass-words, of the first three degrees. 50 cents per 100, or $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 4:

GRAND! GREAT GRAND!!

BY PHILO CARPENTER.

This is a 2-page tract, calling the attention of the public to the espotic and ridiculous titles of Freemasonry. Price 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1,000.

TRACT. NO. 5:

Extracts From Masonic Oaths and Penalties, as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.

This tract is a reprint of a tract pnblished in 1834, and is a very weighty docnment. A 4-page tract at 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 6:

Hon. John Quincy Adams' Letter.

Giving His and His Father's Opinion of Freemasonry (1831.);

AND

Hon. James Madison's Letter,

Giving His Opinion of Freemasonry (1832).

Both of these letters, in one 4-page tract, at 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 7:

SATAN'S CABLE-TOW.

A 4-page tract. This is a careful analysis of the character of Masonic oaths, and shows them to be most blasphemous and unchristian; and the Masonic Cable Tow is clearly shown to be the Cable Tow by which Satan is leading thousands to eternal death 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 8:

Is a 2-page double tract, "ILLUSTRATED." The first page represents a Mason proclaimimg the wonderful wisdom and benevolenco of the order, with an article below, entitled "Freemasonry is only 152 Years Old," and gives the time and place of its birth.

The second side is entitled, "Murder and Treason not Excepted," and shows that the Masonic order is treasonable in its constitution, and is both anti-Republican and anti-Christian. Price 25 cents per 100; $3 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 9, ILLUSTRATED:

FREEMASONRY IN THE CHURCH.

Copy of a petition for the higher degrees of Freemasonry, in which Blasphemous and Despotic Titles are enumerated and prayed for. The Copy was printed for the use of "Occidental Sovereign Consistory S. P. R. S.," 32d degree—a Chicago Lodge—and was ordered by a deacon of a Christian Church who is Grand Orator of the Grand Lodge of Ill.

TRACT NO. 10:

CHARACTER AND SYMBOLS OF FREEMASONRY.

A 2-page tract, (ILLUSTRATED) by its "Grand Secretaries, Grand Lecturers, Perfect Prince Freemasons, Grand Inspector, Inquisitor Commanders, Grand High Priests," etc. The wonderful symbolical meaning of "the Cable Tow," "the Square and Compass," "the Lamb Skin, or white Apron," and "the Common Gavel," are given in the exact words of the highest Masonic authority. 25 cents per 100 or $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 11;

Address of Niagara County Association, New York.

TO THE PUBLIC;

Concerning the Morgan Murder, and the character of Freemasonry shown by this and other Masonic murders. 50 cents per

TRACT NO. 12:

JUDGE WHITNEY AND MASONRY.

This tract contains a condensed acconnt of Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois, on charge of nnmasonic conduct in bringing Samuel L. Keith the murderer of Ellen Slade. and a member of his Lodge, to justice, with Judge Whitney's subsequent renunciation of Masonry,

An 8-page tract, $1.00 per 100; $8.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 13:

DR. NATHANIEL COLVER ON MASONRY,

and

HOWARD CROSBY, D. D.,

Chancellor of the University of New York, on SECRET SOCIETIES. A double 2-page tract 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 14:

GRAND LODGE MASONRY.

ITS RELATION TO CIVIL GOVERNMENT AND THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION.

Opening address before the Monmouth Convention, by PRES. J. BLANCHARD of WHEATON COLLEGE. This is a 16-page tract at $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 15:

MASONIC OATHS NULL AND VOID.

A clear and conclnsive argument proving the invalidity of any oath or obligation to do evil. By REV. J. A. HART, Secretary National Christian Association. Published by special order of the Association. 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 16:

HON. SETH M. GATES ON FREEMASONRY.

PROOF THAT THE INSTITUTION THAT MURDERED MORGAN IS UNCHANGED IN CHARACTER

This is a letter to the Monmouth Convention by Hon. Seth M Gates who was Deputy Sheriff of Genesee County, and also Secretary of the Leroy Lodge at the time of Morgan's Abdnction. A 4-page tract, 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 17:

Origin, Obligations and Expenses of The Grange.

WITH A CONSTITUTION OF A FARMERS' CLUB.

This little tract ought to be put into the hands of every Farmer in the United States. Four-page tract, 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000

TRACT NO. 18:

HON. WM. H. SEWARD ON SECRET SOCIETIES.

Extracts from a Speech on now-Knothingism in the U. S. Senate in 1855. The testimony of JOHN QUINCY ADAMS, MILLARD FILLMORE, CHIEF JUSTIC MARSHALL and others, is added.

A 2-page tract, 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO, 19.

BRICKS FOR MASONS TO LAY.

WASHINGTON, MADISON, MARSHALL, RUSH, HANCOCK, ADAMS AND WEBSTER, give brief clear testimony against the Lodge A 2-page tract 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 20:

OBJECTIONS TO MASONRY.

By A SECEDING MASON, of Cornton, Vermont.

This tract contains many strong arguments against the Lodge drawn from personal experience, observation and study of its character. A 4-page tract at 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

TRACT NO. 21:

MASONIC CHASTITY.

BY EMMA A. WALLACE.

The author, by wonderfully clear illustration and argument, shows the terribly corrupt nature of Freemasonry. No true woman who reads this will ever speak with approbation of this institution A 4-page tract 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

TRACT No. 22.

LINUS CHITTENDEN ON FREEMASONRY.

The Anthor a Seceding Master Mason states his objection to the Lodge, drawn both from experience and observation, in a clear concise and forcible style.

A 2 page tract, 25 cents per 100, $2.00 per 1,000.

TRACT No. 23.

MASONIC OATHS AND PENALTIES.

ADDRESS OF REV. A. M. MILLIGAN AT THE PITTSBURGH CONVENTION.

This is the clearest and most conclusive argument to show the wickedness of masonic oaths and the duty to disregard and repent of them that we have ever seen.

A 4 page tract, 50 cents per 100, $4.00 per 1,000

TRACT NO. 1, IN SWEDISH;

translated by Prof. A. R. CERVIN. A 15-page tract at $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

ENOCH HONEYWELL'S TRACT.

TO THE YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA. Postage 5cts. per 100, TRACTS FREE.

GERMAN CYNOSUCE TRACT A.

Six Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason.

By Rev. A. GROLE, Pastor, German M. E. Church, Worchester, Mass

This is our first German Tract, and it is a good one; it ought to have a large circulation. A 4 page tract, Price 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

FREE TRACTS.

A Tract Fund for the Free Distributirn of Tract

HAS BEEN SECURED AND SHOULD NEVER BE EXHAUSTED. A friend has pledged this fund a dollar for every other dollar received, so EVERY NEW SUBSCRIPTION TO THE TRACT FUND COUNTS DOUBLE, and thus $10.00 pays for 20,000 pages of tracts.

The distribntion of these tracts has already saved hundreds of yonng men from the lodge, but there is a great lack of funds to snpply the constantly increasing demand for Free Tracts.

During the year ending July 1st, 1875 a little less than 150,000 pages of Cynosure Tracts were gratuitously sent ont, mostly in very small lots. The present demand is fully 100,000 pages per month. bnt finnds are lacking to meet it.

Many of onr most earnest workers in thiscause of God are poor men, who wonld be gladto circulate thousands of pages of Antimasonic literature if they could have them free.

SHALL WE NOT HAVE AN INEXHAUSTIBLETRACT FUND?

"THE ANTI-MASONS SCRAP BOOK."

Contains 24 Cynosure Tracts, bound together and is just the thing to select from. Price 20cents. See advertisement page 15.

Enoch Honeywell Esq., pays for an nnlimitednumber of his tract addressed "TO THE YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA." It is anexcelent tract, bearing the printed endorsement of Executive Committee of the National Christian Association! He has furnished the public over 150,000 pages ofthese tracts during the past year.

TRACTS FREE. If sent by mail, 5 cts per 100 is charged for postage,

Send Contribntions and orders to

EZRA A. COOK.

Secretary of Tract Committee 18 WabashAve, Chicago, Ill.

Descriptive Catalogue of Publications of Ezra A. Cook & Co.

13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

BOOKS.

FREEMASONRY EXPOSED,
by CAP'T. WILLIAM MORGAN.

THE GENUINE OLD MORGAN BOOK:—republished with engravings showing the Lodge Room, Dress of candidates, Signs, Due Guards, Grips, Etc.

This revelation is so accurate that Freemasons murdered the author for writing it. Thousands have testified to the correctness of the revelation and this book therefore sells very rapidly.

Price 25 cents.

Per Doz. Post Paid..... $2.00
Per hundred by express, (express charges extra.).....$10.00

ODD FELLOWSHIP ILLUSTRATED.

A complete exposition of the Lodge Encampment and Rebecca (Ladies') Degree. The Signs, Grips, &c., shown by engravings.

Single copy, post paid,..... $ 25
Per Doz., " " 2 00
Per Hundred, Express charges extra,..... 10 00

EXPOSITION OF THE GRANGE.

EDITED BY REV. A. W. GEESLIN.

Illustrated with Engravings showing Lodge Room, Signs, Signals, etc.

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 25
Per Doz., " " 2 00
Per 100 Express charges extra..... 10 00

Judge Whitney's Defense Before the Grand Lodge of Ill.

Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the Lodge when S. L. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the Lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry.

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 25
Per Doz. " " 1 50
Per 100, Express charges extra..... 8 00

History of The Abduction and Murder of Cap't. Wm. Morgan,

As prepared by Seven Committees of Citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan.

This book contains indisputable, legal evidence that Freemasons, abducted and Murdered Wm. Morgan, for no other offence than the revelation of Masonry. It contains the sworn testimony of over twenty persons, including Morgan's wife, and no candid person after reading this book, can doubt that many of the most respectable FREEMASONS, in the Empire State, with others were concerned in this crime.

Single Copy, post Paid,... ..... 25 cents.
Per doz. " ..... $2,00.
Per 100, Express Charges Extra,..... 10.00.

Valance's Confession of The Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan.

This confession of Henry L. Valance, one of the three Freemasons who drowned Morgan in the Niagara River, was taken from the lips of the dying man by Dr. John C. Emery, of Racine County, Wisconsin in 1848; The confession bears clear evidence of truthfulness.

Single copy, post paid,..... 20 cents.
Per doz. " ..... $1.50.
Per 100 Express Charges Extra,..... 8.00.

The Mystic Tie or Freemasonry a League with the Devil.

This is an account of the Church Trial of Peter Cook, and wife of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a Reverend Freemason; and their very able defence presented by Mrs. Lucia C. Cook, in which she clearly shows that Freemasonry, is antagonistic to the Christian Religion. Single Copy, post paid,..... 20 cents

Per dozen, post paid..... $1 50
Per hundred Express charges Extra..... 9 00

NARRATIVES AND ARGUMENTS.

Showing the Conflict of Secret Societies with the Constitution and Laws of the Union and of the States, by FRANCIS SEMPLE.

The fact that Secret Societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of Law is here clearly proved.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 20
Per doz. " " $1.75
Per 100 Express charges Extra..... 9.00

THE BROKEN SEAL.

OR PERSONAL REMINISCENCES OF THE ABDUCTION AND MURDER OF Wm. MORGAN,

By SAMUEL D. GREENE,

Price in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.
In Paper Covers per Doz. Post paid.....$4 50
" per hundred by express (ex. charges extra $25.00

Capt. Wm. Morgan was Mr. Greene's neighbor in Batavia, N. Y., and a member of the same lodge with him at the time of the great excitement in 1826. The titles to these chapters are sufficiently exciting to give the book a large sale:—"The Storm Gathering;" "Abduction of Morgan;" "Attempted Abduction of Miller and his Rescue;" "What became of Morgan;" "What Morgan Actually Revealed;" "Confession of the Murderer;" "Allegations against Freemasonry, etc."

THE ANTI-MASON'S SCRAP BOOK,
CONSISTING OF 21 CYNOSURE TRACTS.

In this book are the views of more than a Score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of Secret Societies.

The dangerous tendency and positive evil of organized Secrecy is here shown by the most varied and powerful arguments and illustrations that have ever been given to the public.

Lecturers and others who wish to find the best arguments against the Lodge, should send for this book.

Those who wish to circulate Antimasonic Tracts ought to have the book to select from.

Single Copy, post paid, ...20 cents.
Per Doz. $1.75
Per 100, Express charges Extra,.....$10.00

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion.

A clear cutting argument against the Lodge, from a Christian Stand point.

Single Copy post paid.....$ 05
Per doz. " " 50
Per 100 Express Charges Extra..... 3 00

President H. H. GEORGE, On Secret Societies.

A powerful address; showing clearly the duty of Christian Churches, to disfellowship Secret Societies.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 10 cts.
Per doz, " ..... 75 "
Per 100, Express charges Extra, ... $4.00.

PHELPS' SECRET SOCIETIES Ancient and Modern.

A NEW BOOK OF GREAT INTEREST.

This work is particularly commended to the attention of Officers of The Army and Navy, The Bench and The Clergy.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

"THE ANTIQUITY OF SECRET SOCIETIES, THE LIFE OF JULIAN, THE ELEUSINIAN MYSTERIES, THE ORIGIN OF MASONRY, WAS WASHINGTON A MASON? FILMORE'S AND WEBSTER'S DEFERENCE TO MASONRY, A BRIEF OUTLINE OF THE PROGRESS OF MASONRY IN THE UNITED STATES, THE TAMMANY RING, MASONIC BENEVOLENCE, THE USES OF MASONRY, AN ILLUSTRATION, THE CONCLUSION."

Single Copy, Post Paid..... 50
Per Doz " " $4 75
Per Hundred, Express Charges Extra.....$25 00

HON. JOHN QUINCY ADAMS' LETTERS
to Col. Wm. Stone, Edward Livingstone,

and others, on the nature of

Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties.

Price, post paid..... $ 50
Per Doz., " 4 50
Per 100, Express Charges extra..... 25 00

COLLEGE SECRET SOCIETIES.

Their Customs, Character and the Efforts for their Suppression.
BY H. L. KELLOGG.

Containing the opinion of many prominent College Presidents, and others, and a FULL ACCOUNT OF THE MURDER OF MORTIMER LEGGETT

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 35
Per Doz " " 2 50
Per 100 Express charges extra..... 15 00

MINUTES OF THE SYRACUSE CONVENTION,

Containing addresses by Rev. B. T. Roberts, Chas. D. Greene, Esq., Prof. C. A. Blanchard, Rev. D. P. Rathbun, Rev. D. S. Caldwell, Mrs. M. E. Gage, Elder J. R. Baird and others. Unpublished Reminiscences of the Morgan Times, by Elder David Bernard; Recollections of the Morgan Trials, as related by Victory Birdseye, Esq., and presented by his daughter, Mrs. C. B. Miller; Secretary's report; roll of delegates; songs of Mr. G. A. Clark; paper by Enoch Honeywell; Constitution N. C. A.; reports of committees, and a report of the political meeting.

Single Copy, post paid, ... 25
Per doz. " " $2.00
Per 100 Express Charges Extra..... 10.00

Proceedings of the Pittsburgh Convention,

Containing Official Reports; Addresses by Rev. D. R. Kerr, D.D. Rev. B. T. Roberts, Rev. G. T. R. Meiser, Prof. J. R. W. Sloane, D. D., Pres't. J. Blanchard, Rev. A. M. Milligan, D. D., Rev. Woodruff Post, Rev. Henry Cogswell, Prof. C. A. Blanchard, and Rev W. E. Coquilette, also Report of the POLITICAL MASS CONVENTION, with Platform and Candidates for the Presidential Campaign of 1876.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 25 cts.
Per doz " $2,00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 10.00

SERMON ON MASONRY,
BY REV. W. P. M'NARY,

Pastor United Presbyterian Church, Bloomington, Ind.

This is a very clear, thorough, candid and remarkably concise Scriptural argument on the character of Freemasonry.

Single Copy, Post Paid,..... 5
Per Doz,..... 50
Per Hundred, Express Charges Extra,.....$3 00

THIRTEEN REASONS

Why a Christian Should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong.

The author states his reasons clearly and carefully, and any one of the thirteen reasons, if properly considered, will keep a Christian out of the Lodge.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 5
Per doz. " " 50
Per 100, Express charges extra, ... $3.00

SERMON ON MASONRY,

BY REV. JAMES WILLIAMS.

Presiding Elder of Dakota District North-western Iowa Conference, M. E. Church, A SECEDING MASTER MASON.

Published at the special request of the Nine Clergymen of different denominations and others.

Single Copy, post paid..... 10
Per doz. " " 75
Per 100, Express Charges Extra.....$4.00

MASONRY A WORK OF DARKNESS

ADVERSE TO CHRISTIANITY, and Inimical to a Republican Government.
BY REV. LEBBEUS ARMSTRONG, [Presbyterian.]
A Seceding Mason of 21 Degrees.

This is a very telling work and no honest man that reads it will think of joining the lodge. Single Copy, post paid,.....20cts.

Per doz, post paid,..... $1.50.
" 100, Express Charges Extra,..... 8.00.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy.

Address of Prest. J. BLANCHARD, before the Pittsburgh Convention.

This is a most convincing argument against the lodge.

Single Copy, Post Paid..... $ 05
Per Doz " " 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

GRAND LODGE MASONRY,

Its relation to civil Government and the Christian Religion.
By Prest. J. BLANCHARD, at the Monmouth Convention.

The Unchristian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is here proved from the highest masonic authorities.

Single Copy, Post Paid,..... $ 05
Per Doz..... 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

SERMON ON SCERETISM
BY REV. R. THEO. CROSS.

This is a very clear array of the objections to Masonry that are apparent to all.

By Rev. R. T. Cross, Pastor Congregational Church, Hamilton, N.Y.

Single Copy, Post Paid..... $ 05
Per Doz..... 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

HISTORY OF THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought; The Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association, Conditions of the Carpenter Donation with Engraving of building to be donated by Mr. Carpenter; Tables showing the number of Pastors and communicants in churches that exclude members of Secret Societies, Tabular view of Local, County State and National Conventions, and list of organizations Auxiliary to the National Christian Association; Brief opinions of Eminent Men on Secret Societies, and Testimonies of Religious Bodies against them. This book will be found invaluable by all who wish to know the character of this reform and how they may do the most to further its objects. It should be in the hands of every Antimason.

Price post paid,.....25 cents each,
per doz;.....$1,50
25 copies or more by express at 8 cents each.

IN PRESS.

HAND BOOK
—OF—
FREEMASONRY,

A COMPLETE

Illustrated Exposition,

—OF—

BLUE LODGE
MASONRY

—BY—

EDMOND RONAYNE,

LATE PAST MASTER OF KEYSTONE LODGE, NO. 639, CHICAGO, ILL.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 50cts.
Per doz. " " $4.00
Per 100, Express Cearges Extra,..... 25.00

RITUAL OF THE
GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC

WITH SIGN OF RECOGNITION,
PASS WORD GRIP ETC,

—AND THE—

RITUAL OF THE

MACHINISTS AND BLACKSMITHS' UNION,

(THE TWO BOUND TOGETHER.)

Single Copy, post paid,..... 25
Per doz. " $2.00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra,..... 1000

Publishers' Department.

Our Mail List.

No. of subscribers Jan. 22,	3,881
" " " 15,	3,810
Gain in one week	71

Shall we report a list of 4,000 in the next number? An affirmative answer may depend on your efforts.

THE UP-HILL BUSINESS.

Many of our workers call canvassing for the Cynosure an "up-hill business", and we believe it is in more respects than one. It is harder to think about doing than to do. Slowly, carefully, steadily, skilfully, perseveringly proceed and the summit of the hill, with its large horizon and its inspiring atmosphere will surely be gained. The exertion, if properly made is not weakening but invigorating.

In this sordid age it is indeed an up-hill business to turn from the pursuits for the advancement of selfish interests and labor for God and our fellow men. But if we seek first the kingdom of God and its righteousness, though an up-hill business, up from the damp, sickly flats of selfishness, falsehood and vice, into the pure light of Christ's atonement where a man loves his neighbor as he loves himself, nevertheless it will be an invigorating work, which, in fact, will return its "hundred fold" in this life and in the world to come, life everlasting.

Are you growing impatient to learn how this work of getting subscribers has progressed during the last week?

G. W. Bethers, Corvallis, Oregon, sends six subscriptions and intends to make the club ten. It is slow, hard work he says, but he is in earnest, and the result to be gained is worth the effort.

H. M. Bailey, Knoxville, Ill., sends four more to make his club ten. Rev. H. H. Hinman sends a club of five at our new club rates. Amos Whitson, Valley Mills, Ind., has been canvassing for subscribers and finding many who would like to read the paper but feel too poor to pay for it, sends the paper to six persons at his own expense, for three months, each hoping that they will renew. Joel M. Oxley, New Concord, O., sends a club of four. Rev. J. T. Kiggins is working for a club of twenty. There are some more clubs of of ten collecting, and smaller clubs also. It strengthens and encourages us to read in so many letters that our friends are going to continue to work for the circulation of the paper.

Next week we will tell you how the Cynosure debt stands February first, for we suppose you are anxious to have it canceled.

Let us rejoice that we are at work in an up-hill, (not a down hill) business, and keep at it until God calls us to our rest above.

Read the Publisher's Department on the sixteenth page.

SUBSCRIPTIONS RECEIVED DURING WEEK ENDING JAN. 23, 1876, from—L Birge, J A Black, G W Bethers, H M Bailey, G A Brown, T G Baker, J D Baker, D Carpenter, J Crabs, M Campbell, L Chittenden, C Conkling, E Darling, W Duncan, M Drennan, Mrs. G Durfee. S B Daniel, D S Faris, S S File, J M Faris, J C Graham, F Hall, J Hervey, H S Huntington, H Harrison. G Helen, A Holt, E Hammerton, H H Hinman, W H Hitchcock, L H Jones, D L Jones. S C Kimball, J T Kiggins, A J Loudenback, D Little. M Liscomb. L S P Moore. S Mills, C R Morsman, D S McConihay, R Moore, P G Norwood, R Northway, A Osgood, J M Oxley, N C Pitcher, J W Pierson. W Perrin, D H Rogers, W M Richie, J A Ramsey, J Stuart, C Stegner, B Speer, J G Smith, I R Sexton, I D Salisbury. W Teter, Mrs. E Talcott, B Vincent, D West. P Woodring. J S Whitney. H Whitney, B J Wise, A Whitson, A Yeakle.

Agents Wanted!

TO SELL THE PUBLICATIONS OF

EZRA A. COOK & CO.

Liberal Terms Offered.

Capable persons who are in need of pecuniary aid may clear

Handsome Profits,

While at the same time aiding the cause of Reform. Apply to EZRA A. COOK & CO., No. 18 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

SOMETHING NEW.

A CHART OF MASONRY

Showing the degrees from the first to the thirty-third, entitled

Degrees of Ancient Accepted Scottish Freemasonry,

According to a Mannal by Wm. M. Cunningham 33d Degree.

Designed by Rev. P. Stoddard, to explain Freemasonry, as shown by Morgan's Exposition and Richardson's Monitor.

A Neat Lithograph 22x28 Inches.

Single copies finely colored, post paid.....	$ 75
Per dozen " " "	5 00
Per 100 " " " " Express charges extra.....	35 00
Single copy, colored, varnished and mounted postpaid.....	1 00
Per dozen colored, varnished and mounted, post paid.....	7 50
Per 100, colored, varnished and mounted, express charges extra.....	50 00

25 COPIES OR MORE SENT AT THE 100 RATES.

Excelsior Marriage Certificate.

It is decidedly the most BEAUTIFUL, TASTEFUL and SENSIBLE thing of the kind I have ever seen."—Rev. F. G. Hibbard, D. D.

"The most SCRIPTURAL, BEAUTIFUL and APPROPRIATE Marriage Certificate I have ever seen."—Late Rev. H. Mattison, D. D.

"SOMETHING NEW AND BEAUTIFUL, which we pronounce the handsomest thing of the kind we ever laid eyes on."—Meth. Home Journal, Phila. Contains two Ornamental Ovals, for Photographs

A BEAUTIFUL LITHOGRAPH 14 1-4 by 18 1-4 inches. 25 cts each, $2.25 per doz- $15 per 100.

For Sale by Ezra A. Cook & Co.. CHICAGO

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO, Jan. 24, 1876.

Grain Wheat—Spring, No. 1..	$	1 09½
" No. 2.....	1.01	102¼
" No. 3.....	80	81
" Rejected.....		66
Corn—No. 2.....	43	43⅜
Rejected.....	33½	34
Oats—No. 2.....		3[illegible]
Rejected.....	26½	27
Rye—No. 2.....		67
Bran per ton.....		11 00
Flour—Winter.....	4 75	7 50
Spring.....	3 00	5 25
Hay—Timothy.....	10 00	14 00
Prairie, "	7 50	10 50
Mess Beef...	9 50	11 00
Tallow.....		8¾
Dressed Hogs.....	8 00	8 25
Lard per cwt.....		12 02½
Mess pork, per bbl.....		19 10
Butter fancy yellow 32c.; common to choice roll.....	16	23
Cheese	9	13½
Eggs.....	18	26
Seeds—Timothy.....		2 45
Clover	8 10	8 25
Flax	1 30	1 45
Poultry—Turkeys per lb dressed	11	12
Chickens " "	8	10
Potatoes.....		17
Apples from store.....	3 00	4 00
Broom corn	3	11
HIDES green to dry salted.....	5½	12¼
Lumber—Clear.....	38 00	42 00
Common.	11 00	12 00
Fencing.....	12 00	13 00
Shingles.....	2 75	3 00
WOOL—Washed.....	38	52
Unwashed.....	25	33
LIVE STOCK Cattle, Choice..	5 25	5 75
Good	4 50	5 00
Medium.....	4 25	4 50
Common.....	3 25	4 00
Hogs.	6 90	7 40
Sheep.....	3 75	5 75

New York Market.

Flour.....	$ 3 25	9 00
Wheat—Winter.....	1 18	1 50
Spring.....	95	1 40
Corn.....	57½	65½
Oats.....	45	52
Rye.....	93	95
Lard.....		12¾
Mess pork.....		21 00
Butter.....	16	31
Cheese.....	6	12½
Eggs.....	20	23

ESTABLISHED 1867.

EZRA A. COOK & CO.,

STEAM PRINTERS

LITHOGRAPHERS,

STATIONERS

—AND—

Book Binders.

NOS. 7, 9, 11 & 13

Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

We were in the Stationery, Printing and Lithographing business before the Cynosure was started.

WE PRINT

Books, Pamphlets, Catalogues, Business Cards, Show Cards, Letter Heads, Bill Heads, Note Heads, Circulars, Hand Bills, Posters, Checks, Drafts, Notes, Certificates of Deposit, Certificates of Stock, Diplomas, etc.,

WE BIND

Blank Books, Magazines, Catalogues, Checks, Drafts, Notes, Certificates, Bank Pass Books, Etc.,

Etc.

WE LITHOGRAPH

Business Cards, Letter Heads, Note Heads, Bill Heads, Circulars, Checks, Drafts, Certificates of Stock, Certificates of Deposit, Plats and Charts; also elegant Diplomas for Colleges, Literary Societies, and Agricultural Societies, in one, two or three Colors. Samples and Prices sent on Application.

All work executed in the

BEST STYLE,

at the

LOWEST MARKET RATES.

WE FILL ORDERS PROMPTLY, and

GUARANTEE GOOD WORK.

SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO ORDERS

BY MAIL.

Samples and prices sent promptly when desired.

Address:

EZRA A. COOK & CO.,

7, 9, 11 & 13 Wabash Avenue,

CHICAGO.

NEW CLUB RATES

—FOR—

1876.

CLUB RATES.

No commission is allowed on club rates. Club rates are intended for those who wish to give the commission to subscribers.

Club Rates Including Postage.

Papers Addressed to one or different Post Offices as desired.

4 to 4 Subs., 1 year, Old or New sent at one time, at	$2.00 each
5 to 9 " " " " " " "	1.80 "
10 to 14 " " " " " " "	1.70 "
15 to 19 " " " " " " "	1.60 "
20 or more " " " " " " "	1.50 "

Subscription Papers and Circulars sent free on application.

$250 A MONTH—Agents wanted everywhere. Business honorable and first class. Particulars sent Address J. WORTH & Co., St. Louis, Mo

1yr Jul

SAVE MONEY

by sending $4.75 for any $4 Magazine and THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE (regular price $6), or $5.75 for the Magazine and THE SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE (regular price $3). Address

THE TRIBUNE, New-York.

$77 A WEEK guaranteed to Male and Female Agents, in their locality. Costs NOTHING to try it. Particulars Free. P. O. VICKERY & CO., Augusta, Me.

6m.dec.30-75.

CALIFORNIA

Have you any thought of going to California? Are you going West, North, or North-West? You want to know the best routes to take?

The shortest, safest, quickest and most comfortable routes are those owned by the Chicago and North-Western Railway Company. It owns over two thousand miles of the best roads there is in the country. Ask any ticket agent to show you its maps and time cards. All ticket agents can sell you through tickets by this route.

Buy your tickets via the Chicago & North-Western Railway for the West and North-West, and for

SAN FRANCISCO,

Sacramento, Ogden, Salt Lake City, Cheyenne, Denver, Omaha, Lincoln, Council Bluffs, Yankton, Sioux City, Dubuque, Winona, St. Paul, Duluth, Marquette, Green Bay, Oshkosh, Madison, Milwaukee, and all other points West or North-West of Chicago.

If you wish the best traveling accommodations, you will buy your tickets by this route, and will take no other.

This popular route is unsurpassed for speed, comfort and safety. The smooth, well-ballasted and perfect track of Steel Rails, Westinghouse Air Brakes, Miller's Safety Platform and Couplers, the celebrated Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars, the perfect Telegraph System of Moving Trains, the regularity with which they run, the admirable arrangement for running Through Cars from Chicago to all points West, North and North-West, secures to passengers all the COMFORTS IN MODERN RAILWAY TRAVELING.

PULLMAN PALACE CARS

are run on all through trains of this road.

This is the ONLY LINE running these cars between Chicago and St. Paul, Chicago and Milwaukee, or Chicago and Winona.

At Omaha our Sleepers connect with the Overland Sleepers on the Union Pacific Railroad for all points West of the Missouri River.

On the arrival of the trains from the East or South, the trains of the Chicago and North-Western Railway LEAVE CHICAGO as follows:

For Council Bluffs, Omaha and California, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Palace Drawing Room and Sleeping Cars through to Council Bluffs.

For St. Paul and Minneapolis, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Palace Cars attached on both trains.

For Green Bay and Lake Superior, Two Trains daily, with Pullman Palace Cars attached, and running through to Marquette.

For Milwaukee, four Through Trains daily. Pullman Cars on night trains, Parlor Chair Cars on day trains.

For Sparta and Winona and points in Minnesota, One Through Train daily, with Pullman Sleepers to Winona.

For Dubuque, via Freeport, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Cars on night trains.

For Dubuque and La Crosse, via Clinton, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Cars on night trains to McGregor, Iowa.

For Sioux City and Yankton, Two Trains daily. Pullman Cars to Missouri Valley Junction.

For Lake Geneva, Four Trains daily.

For Rockford, Sterling, Kenosha, Janesville, and other points you can have from two to ten trains daily

New York Office, No. 415 Broadway; Boston Office, No. 5 State Street; Omaha Office, 253 Farnham Street; San Francisco Office, 121 Montgomery Street; Chicago Ticket Offices: 62 Clark Street, under Sherman House; corner Canal and Madison Streets; Kinzie Street Depot, corner W. Kinzie and Canal Streets; Wells Street Depot, corner Wells and Kinzie Streets.

For rates or information not attainable from your home ticket agents, apply to

W. H. STENNETT, Gen. Pass. Ag't, Chicago. MARVIN HUGHITT, Gen. Sup't, Chicago.

[Eastern.]

THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.

"In Secret Have I Said Nothing."—Jesus Christ.

EZRA A. COOK & CO., PUBLISHERS, NO 13 WABASH AVENUE.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1876.

VOL. VIII., NO. 17.—WHOLE NO. 304
WEEKLY (post paid) $2 20 A YEAR

Contents.

Page

TOPICS OF THE TIME..... 1
EDITORIAL ARTICLES:
The Christian Amendment.....8
Strange Bed-fellows.....8
The Princeton Fraternities Again..... 8
CONTRIBUTED AND SELECT ARTICLES:
Grand Orator Parvin under Review.....1
What did the Message Say?.....2
Two Views of Absolution, Baptism and the Sacrament in the P. E. church.....2
Straws.....3
REFORM NEWS AND NOTICES.
Ronayne at Brighton, Mich.; Foot-falls among the Wolverines; From the Wisconsin Work.....4, 5
CORRESPONDENCE:
A Grand Rally for the Pub. House; To the Rescue; From an Old Battle Ground; A Wisconsin Lodge Deals with Adultery; Our Mail.....5, 6
THE AMERICAN PARTY: Its Object, organization, platform and candidates.....12
N. C. A. Department..... 7
THE HOME CIRCLE..... 10
CHILDREN'S CORNER..... 11
The Sabbath School..... 6
Temperance..... 9
Religious Intelligence..... 9
News of the Week..... 9
Home and Health Hints..... 11
Publishers' Department..... 10

Topics of the Time.

A good work toward Sabbath observance is undertaken in Ohio. The violation of the sanctity of that day is most marked on the railroads. But if the Sabbath laws are good for anything they should be enforced against railway corporations as well as against any other responsible agency. The Supreme Court of Ohio has asserted the validity of the Sabbath laws of the State and the people are petitioning for legislation to secure their enforcement. If this succeeds, however, the real work must yet be done. Laws will not enforce themselves.

The Pennsylvania Legislature has a bill in passage which should be a model for legislation in every State. It makes it a penal offence to "point" a pistol, gun, or any firearm at a person whether in jest or earnest. The good of community, except in districts infested with wild animals, might bear a regulation suppressing the general use of firearms. Game has nearly disappeared from a large portion of the States, and gunning for sport or target practice is a small return for the thousands of lives sacrificed yearly to careless use of firearms, or to the immunity given to armed desperadoes who are ready to shoot on the provocation of an instant.

The liquor traffic brings to the government a revenue of seventy million dollars, beside being a source of enormous corruption to its collectors and subordinates. No wonderi that a debate sprang up on the introduction of a bill in the Senate, by Mr. Howe of Wisconsin, for a Commission to examine into the "economic, criminal, moral and scientific aspects" of the liquor traffic on the petition of millions of citizens, and the argument of Mr. Sherman of Ohio for a small appropriation to carry on this inquiry. But the bill passed and may a good Providence help it through the gauntlet of the House.

Anthony Comstock is one of the moral heroes of the age. As secretary and actuary of the society for the suppression of vicious literature his energy and success has been rewarded with numerous assaults and prosecutions, even to the door of assassination. He has faithfully pushed this reform until the mails are everywhere guarded and scores of infamous publications destroyed by the whole edition. A meeting of the society was held last week in New York and a fund of $5,000 asked for the next year's work. One of the speakers, Governor Woodford, remarked, "It is not in the purlieus of vice, nor in the corner groggery, nor on the street that the harm is done, but it is in the tenderest and dearest spot in your homes. You may think this is exaggeration, but if you could have followed Mr. Comstock for the last year, you would have seen more than one instance where the Sunday-school has been the means of disseminating obscene literature." If temptation is so abroad no effort can be too great to wholly uproot and destroy it. A bill is now before Congress to increase the penalties for sending obscene literature through the mails.

Following its established usage Congress lately gave a day to eulogies on the late Vice-President Wilson. The eloquence of the Senate portrayed the character of this exemplary American in terms which have seldom been applied to dead statesmen. But one of the heartiest tribute given to his memory was at the great Fanuel Hall meeting, Boston, at which Charles Francis Adams said of his former colleague in the political battle with slavery: "He was a politician from the cradle, but he had an innate tendency to discriminate correctly between right and wrong, and this saved him from being a demagogue. His elevation to the second office in the land made no difference in his heart or his head. He was the same modest, unassuming man on the last day when I saw him, but a month or two since, that he had been in 1841, when as the cobbler of Natick he first stepped his foot into the House of Representatives of Massachusetts. Firm in the maintenance of his own principles, he had yet one characteristic of great value—he was of a kindly disposition toward opponents, which made him conciliatory in all conflicts. As he grew older this quality became more and more prominent and useful. The country will miss him on many accounts, but in no respect more than in his attitude of a peacemaker. Blessed indeed has he been who still lives as such remembered in the memory of all later generations.

Grand Orator Parvin under Review.

BY J. G. MATTOON.

Editor Christian Cynosure:

In your paper of December 30th is an extract from a speech delivered before the Grand Commandery of Iowa by Prof. T. S. Parvin. As it is rather a remarkable document we would like to notice it.

It would seem that the fact has come to the notice of the Grand Orator of the Grand Commandery of the State of Iowa, that the Masonic orators have been in the habit of lying. We were pleased to learn from such high authority that Paradise never had been cursed with Masonry; that Enoch knew nothing of the order; that Solomon knew no more about it than did the Queen of Sheba; that the St. Johns were neither of them Masons, beyond the wish that they were so, of the Christian portion of the universal brotherhood. So we find that when a Christian Mason wants a thing to be so, he deliberately goes to work and publishes it as a fact! Not long ago a man while passing through our county saw a beautiful pair of horses, they were not his beyond the wish that they were; but he takes them, and drives them off, and we believe he is now serving out his time in the Ohio penitentiary, but the principle we think is the same in both actions.

He proposes to apply the same tests to Masonic histories that are applied to other history; and what is the result? Why, Masonic history that a few years ago went back to the time when the morning stars sang together and all the sons of God shouted for joy, touched by the magic wand of truth comes down to within fifty years of the time that our grandfathers throttled the British lion. So that putting the age of Masonry (pretended and real) in the form of a fraction, it stands about thus: truth, 2-75, falsehood, 73-75; rather a poor showing for an institution claiming to be divine. He accused the order of enrolling the noble and the good of all nations, and carefully excluding the opposite class; this he says is not true, and after mentioning quite a number he asks, what would their spirits say could they return and throw back the lie in the face of these falsifiers? But he admits that the traitor Arnold was a Mason and tells where the record is.

Again, "Now it is too bad upon these annual occasions to repeat, parrot-like, such stale legends—no they are not legends even, which are defined to be doubtful narratives, for there is no tending to mislead." Now if by this he does not mean to be understood that these worse than doubtful narratives are false and that every body knows it, we fail to see the point he is aiming at. And he adds, "How much more grievous would be the sin to go to Philadelphia the coming year and harrangue the assembled Masons of the world in the language of these legends, fables, myths,—falsehoods in plain English, the language of freemen." But why a sin that is committed by nearly every Masonic orator whenever an opportunity presents itself all over the world should become almost intolerable when they all get to Philadelphia, we fail to see; but we have not a doubt but these very grievous sins will be committed there.

We agree with him that the claims that Freemasonry is a divine institution; that it was wedded to the church, and usurped from it the office of exponent of the voice of the Deity, is worse than heresy, it is blasphemous, but we come to very different conclusions. He concludes that it is calculated to degrade the institution in the estimation of every believer in the Christian religion. We conclude that it is calculated to degrade the Christian religion in the estimation of every believer in Masonry. And now for the proof. For every minister that these blasphemous claims have driven from the lodge, we think that we can show ten Masons that they have driven from the church; or, what is worse, if they staid in it was to control it in the interests of Masonry. Again, "The oldest Masonic book in existence is not two centuries old, and it would be charitable to add five centuriea to the oldest date on record." And here for the first time he begins to talk like a Mason, and forgets the tests that he proposes in the start to apply to Masonic as well as other histories; "to the end that the truth might be eliminated from the myths and traditions," let us apply this rule to history not Masonic. We expect at our great jubilee that our Centennial orator, W. M. Everts, will give us a pretty thorough history of our nation from the present back to July 4th, 1776; but what would Mr. Parvin think if he should very charitably add five hundred years more? He refers to the record of his own State (of which he seems to be heartily ashamed), to show how common this practice of claiming for the order such antiquity, but he tells them that the "American system" was largely manufactured by Thomas Smith Webb during the closing year of the last century. He speaks of the higher degress as cumbersome machinery, and says we are taxed to keep it up, and he seems to think that the same motive prompts men to seek the higher degrees that sent an archangel to hell, or we failed to get his meaning, and we see no reason why beings who act from the same motive should not receive the same penalty, extending to all human beings the privilege of repentance of course. He tells us that "The Templars and Royal Arch Masons could accomplish in the lodge all they do in the chapter and commandery." He says our fathers a century since were content with the three degrees of symbolic Masonry, but their children fell from the state of purity through the sin of ambition.

It is customary after a battle for the officers to close up the ranks and call the roll. Well, brother Parvin has closed up the ranks; let us call the roll. Adam, Enoch, Noah, Moses, and a host of Old and New Testament worthies, the thousands of workmen of the temple are all missing. The higher degrees go by the board; all their traditions, their fables, their legends, their myths, their falsehoods, and their fuss and feathers to be wiped out and the ranks closed up. The third degree based on the legend of the temple builders, with no history to support it, to share the same fate. The second degree Mr. Thomas Smith Webb tells us in his Masonic Monitor has all been given but the ceremonies, which he defines to be little more than visionary delusions—visionary, not real delusions, deceptions, cheats, these, of course, Mr. Parvin would reject. We would not be irreverent, at least we never intended to be, but divesting the order of its antiquity, its hypocrisy, its nonsense, its legends, its blasphemy, its falsehoods, its fuss and its feathers, it reminds us very much of a Thanksgiving turkey after about six clergymen have finished their dinner from it. We hope that our friends who still stick to the "divine institution," whose history is falsehood, and whose claims are blasphemous, will take the advice of Prof. Parvin and be content to own the truth. But his willingness to yield allegiance to the spirit of research, which is removing the rubbish which has so long blinded their way in their efforts to find the truth, reminds us of the Irish patriot, who was willing to give up half—yes the whole of the constitution to preserve the remainder!

West Unity, O.

If we design to be holy, let us constantly, in our families, toward our relations, in churches, in our conversation, in the world, and dealing with men, all men, toward our enemies and persecutors, the worst of them, toward all mankind as we have an opportunity, labor after a conformity unto God, and to express our likeness unto him in this philanthropy, benignity, condescension, readiness to forgive, help, and relieve, without which we neither are nor can be the children of our Father which is in heaven.—John Owen.

The Christian man must not expect to go to heaven without opposition. A soldier who never meets an enemy at all is not renowned.

What Did the Message Say?

It is difficult to get an authentic copy of President Grant's last message. Two versions have appeared, which, though differing but slightly in phraseology, are susceptible of very different interpretations. One makes the President say the State should forbid "the teaching of religious, atheistic or pagan tenets." This version renders the message justly liable to the adverse criticisms which have been made by a portion of the religious press. It is the adoption of the secular theory, "pure and simple"—an attempt to separate religious ideas from the education of youth, the impiety of which is only equalled by its absurdity. The other version, which is most common, and appears to be the correct one, makes the President say the State should forbid "the teaching of religions, atheistic or pagan." The specification of atheistic and pagan religions leaves a plain implication that Christianity is not intended to be included in the prohibition; and this implication is all the stronger from the immense preponderance of Christianity in the country. Other clauses of the message would exclude sectarian and denominational teaching of Christianity, but none desire this except Roman Catholics.

What renders this interpretation of the message more probable is the fact that in a former message President Grant said, "All the influence of the government will be exerted to Christianize the Indians." If the President would exert all the influence of the government in favor of Christianity in one department, why should he not be willing to exert that influence in other departments, if it can be constitutionally done? or to make such an exercise of power constitutional by an amendment if necessary? Have not the white and black children of the country as great a claim on the fostering care of the government as the red ones?

In the course of the last message the President takes occasion to say that the "existence of polygamy in Utah is a disgrace to a Christian country," and thereby intimates to Congress and the country his opinion that Christian morality is the standard by which our national legislation should be regulated. His reference moreover, to "the fall of Adam" shows that he has received the Scripture account of the origin of the human race and of the entrance of sin into our world; and that he is not ashamed or afraid to propound these theological dogmas in a state paper, the importance of which to say the least, is equal to the regulations of a school-room. If it is a violation of constitutional rights for a school-master to inculcate Scriptural truths, much more is it for a President of the United States; and if religious truth is not to be taught in the common school much less in an annual message.

For such reasons as these we are inclined to think that while the President would exclude sectarian or denominational Christianity from our common schools, he would not exclude the teaching of that general Christianity which the supreme courts of several States have declared to be the common law of the land. He is evidently far removed, not only from Darwin, Tyndall, Proctor, and the common herd of secularists or infidels, but also from such divines (the reader's pardon is asked) as Beecher.

It cannot but be most gratifying to every friend of National Reform to see the hastening crisis of national Christianity and secularism. The prospect is that the presidential election will hinge on religious ideas. Just when men thought the divorce of politics and religion complete, religious questions start up on every hand, force themselves on public attention and demand discussion. There is in society everywhere the evidence of the presence of a universal and infinite Power, thwarting the aims and hopes of men, and causing as great perplexity among politicians now as of old when Herod said, "This is John whom I beheaded; he is risen from the dead, and therefore mighty works do show forth themselves in him." The spirit of reform when once aroused is hard to lay.

While the signs of the times are in many respects gratifying and encouraging, the close and candid observer will admit the hour is critical. While is probably true that both ex-Speaker Blaine and the President aim only to checkmate the Romish priests, and that they bear no enmity to the general Christianity which is in various ways acknowledged by the government; yet the exigencies of party may become so great, and the apparent necessity of yielding to the demands of the liberals so pressing, that what are now, at best, equivocal utterances may come to be construed as favoring the most advanced secular theory. The amendment of Mr. Blaine will, however, put the country in no worse condition with respect to Christianity, and, at the same time, will be an effectual bar to the projects of the Romish priesthood.

Its adoption will therefore be hailed with pleasure by every friend of our public schools.

It is perhaps unnecessary to add that this article is not written in the interests of third-termism, either more nor less; but for a reason somewhat similar to that which secured the popularity of Naaman at the court of Syria. "Now Naaman was a great man with his master and honorable, for by him the Lord had wrought salvation (margin) for Syria." Both in the field and in the cabinet, General Grant has been the instrument of salvation to the country.

In the meantime the duty of the friends of National Reform is plain. Urge the Religious Amendment with renewed zeal by the press, from the platform, by petition and in every practicable way. There is nothing which the politician needs so much, or which he worships so devoutly, as a constituency. When a decisive majority of the American people have pronounced in favor of our amendment, it will become the plainest proposition ever submitted to Congress.—Rev. J. P. Lytle, in United Presbyterian.

Two Views of Absolution, Baptism and the Sacrament in the Protestant Episcopal Church.

[We have great respect and charity for the views of Christians concerning religion, knowing what a strong influence education has in giving them their various castes. We have, however, more respect and charity for the truth and hence we publish views on three important points of the Episcopal church, taken from two different positions by clear-minded, evangelical men; and by carefully comparing the two with the Scriptures, we may learn just what relation the Episcopal creed sustains on these points toward the truth.

We publish this week a letter from Rev. H. Bryant, Rector of St. Peters, Hebron, Conn., who has been a preacher in the Protestant Episcopal church for nearly forty years. Next week we will publish a letter on the same subject written by Rev. Joseph D. Wilson, Pastor Reformed Episcopal church, Peoria, Ill.]

Dec. 23, 1875.

To the Editor of the Christian Cynosure:

Dear Sir:—My attention has been called to an article in your issue of Nov. 18th, 1875, in which the writer, unintentionally, I have no doubt, has made some grave mistakes and brought some very enormous charges against the Protestant Episcopal church. Will you allow me a short space in reply. I will be as brief as I can. In the article referred to, the writer is describing the difference between the Protestant Episcopal church, and the Reformed church under Bishop Cummins. The difference according to the writer, consists in these particulars: 1st. The old church (the Protestant Episcopal) "gives its pastors the power of forgiving sins, or delivering men over to everlasting punishment," and quotes (in a subsequent article) in proof of this statement, the declaration of a pastor of the Reformed church in these words: "I fairly trembled when the Bishop (of the old church) placed his consecrating hands on my head and said—in the words of the prayer-book—"Whose sins thou dost forgive, they are forgiven and whose sins thou dost retain they are retained." Now, in reply it must be admitted, that, understanding these words as the pastor referred to seems to have understood them, as giving him power to "deliver men over to everlasting punishment," he might well tremble, and well his people might tremble also. But whoever so understood them before? Knowing as he must or ought to have known that those words were in the ordination service, the wonder is why he ever presented himself to the Bishop for ordination. But, asks the writer whose article we are reviewing, "Is not the prayer-book good authority?" Yes, when properly understood, and who, but the pastor referred to, ever understood the quotation in the sense he has put upon it? All the power of forgiving sins which is imparted by the ordination service of the Protestant Episcopal church is expressed in these words, which that pastor must have used every time he publicly officiated: "Almighty God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who desireth not the death of the sinner but rather that he may turn from his wickedness and live, hath given power and commandment to his ministers to declare and pronounce to his people, being penitent, the absolution and remission of their sins. He pardoneth and absolveth all those who truly repent and unfeignedly believe his holy Gospel," etc. Is there anything in those words which authorizes any such outrageous imputation as that conveyed in the article of which I have spoken?

The second difference between the old and new church noticed in the article referred to, is in the following words: "The old church regards (in its books) the baptism of infants as a saving ordinance. The Reformed church puts belief before regeneration." Now, what is here meant by a saving ordinance? Does the writer mean to say or imply that the old church holds that all who are baptized will be inevitably saved? No, that would be too glaringly false to assert. What then is meant? I suppose that the new church as well as the old holds what no Christian can deny, that baptism is one of the expressed terms of salvation, and consequently, that it has some connexion with that result, and is therefore in some sense a saving ordinance. This the Apostle Peter expressly declares: "The like figure whereunto even baptism doth also save us (not the putting away of the filth of the flesh but the answer of a good conscience towards God) by the resurrection of Jesus Christ." What the apostle here asserts in regard to baptism, the Protestant Episcopal church very distinctly holds and enjoins, namely, that baptism is effectual to salvation when it is received with a "good conscience" and its sacred obligations practically fulfilled in the duties, virtues and graces of the Christian heart, and life. To this end, those baptised in infancy, when arrived at competent age, and duly instructed and qualified, are required personally and publicly to assume and faithfully to discharge their baptismal obligations, "continually mortifying all their evil and corrupt affections, and daily proceeding in all virtue and godliness of living."

In regard to the word regeneration, I can only say here, the Protestant Episcopal church founds her doctrine of the new birth upon Scripture; especially upon our Lord's discourse to Nicodemus (1st John 3d chap.) and upon St. Paul's Epistle to Titus (chap. 3d, 5th verse.) In both of these passages regeneration is undeniably associated with baptism, and so the two were always associated together by the universal church for sixteen hundred years. In regard to the first passage referred to—that of our Lord's discourse to Nicodemus—the learned and judicious Hooker remarks: "Of all the ancients there is not one to be found that did otherwise expound or allege this place than as implying external baptism." Were all the ancients in error on this important subject? Did the whole church of God under the whole heavens, for sixteen centuries, in holding to baptismal regeneration, hold to a fundamental error? Are nine-tenths of the whole Christian world who still hold the same doctrine, in utter darkness on this vital point? The Protestant Episcopal church, it is confessed, holds the primitive doctrine on this subject. If it be a reproach she is willing to bear it.

The third distinction between the new and old church as stated by the writer referred to is the following: "The old church considers Christ actually present in the bread and wine." I suppose we all admit that Christ as God is present everywhere, but as to any such personal and local presence in the sacred elements as that imputed in the distinction quoted, the old church, so far from holding it, has strongly protested against it. The following are the words of a pastoral letter from the House of Bishops on that very subject: "To argue that the spiritual presence of our dear Lord in the Holy Communion for the nurture of the faithful, in such a presence as allows worship to him thus and there present, is, to say the very least, to be wise above that which is written in God's Holy Word. For the objects of this holy sacrament as therein revealed, are: first the memorial before God of the one sacrifice for sins forever, and secondly, the strengthening and refreshing of the souls of the faithful. Moreover, no one can fail to see that it is impossible for the common mind to draw the line between the worship of such an undefined and mysterious presence, and the awful error of adoring the elements themselves."

Here the third charge against the old church is pointedly and emphatically repelled.

Straws.

Public opinion as represented by the press is slowly but surely working itself on to right grounds upon the lodge question. We have lately picked out the following from papers that are not held to be committed against the lodge. These opinions differ of course in some respects fron those presented in our columns on the broad ground that the secret orders are only evil and that continually, but as each presents some reason for opposing these orders it is an encouraging feature of the times that these reasons are published to the world.

The Syracuse, N. Y., Daily Journal.

The order of Patrons of Husbandry, an enterprise into which honest farmers were wheedled by designing politicians, seems to be falling to pieces of its own weight. Some of the practical features were a benefit to the agricultural community, but the farmers are learning out that it is the political and not the practical elements that are the chief reliance of the managers.

The Baptist Weekly.

Nevertheless, men whose intelligence and conscientiousness are as large as their patriotism, will be very slow to favor secret organizations for the attainment of the most desirable ends. The machinery of a secret society is so easily turned to an evil use, and "ways that are dark" are so incongruous with the idea of true public service that men of the highest types of patriotism and honor will stand in ear of such instrumentalities. The "Holy Inquisition" may need to operate secretly, and in governments under Romish domination a secret political society may be justifiable; but, in our free institutions there is no necessity for concealment of patriotic purposes, nor need of any hidden working.

From the Query column, Christian Union.

Q. Don't you think secrecy one drawback in the way of temperance societies? Several young men, friends of mine, cannot with a clear conscience join a Good Templars' society.

A. Certainly secrecy is not necessary to a temperance society or to any other society formed in a free country for laudable ends. But we think there is often a morbid scrupulousness about this matter of secret societies. All the secrets of all the secret societies in American—other than political and ecclesiastical secret associations—are trifles, mere invented mysteries. Of course, these things are child's play; but a great many people are amused by a factitious mystery, and, in general, nobody is hurt. The evil in college societies seems to lie, not in the secrecy, but in the jealousy and party spirit engendered by them.

Chicago Tribune, Dec. 23 ult.

No secret organization in politics can meet with success in this country, at least where the elements of publicity are coincident with those of popularity, and where the very idea of secrecy is regarded as dangerous, and recognized universally as inconsistent with the theory and principles of our government. . . . There is a large class of people who have an insane affection for secret orders, and this sentiment has been responsible for many a fantastic association with mystic signs, and grips, and pass-words, which have enabled people to get rid of some of their money and spend a good deal of their time that might have been more profitably employed.

The Interior.

The secret order of American Union, we are told by the Cleveland Leader, "is not anti-Catholic any more than it is anti-Protestant, as its purpose is only to keep priests of all kinds from the dictatorship in politics." The institution of a secret order having for its object the defense of the American Union from the dictatorship of Protestant ministers is the broadest practical humor of the day.

The Kewanee Independent, a local journal of Henry county, Ill., of strong Masonio propensities, yet has the following in a late issue:

NO MORE SECRET SOCIETIES.

While the most intelligent citizens of New York are anxious to get rid of the secret society of Tammany, certain citizens of New Jersey are reported to be organizing secret anti-Roman Catholic societies in that State. Why secret? If there is anything worthy in what they advocate, their principles will suffer nothing from fair and open discussion. On the contrary they will gain from it, because the very fact of secrecy exposes their proceedings to suspicion. If the leaders mean by their opposition to Roman Catholics hostility to Roman Catholic aggressions upon the school system or any other civil institution, they will have the majority of the people with them, including many of the Roman Catholic laity, and they need not work in the dark. On the other hand, if they mean to oppose Roman Catholics simply as Roman Catholics, they will remain in a small minority, no matter how hidden and mysterious their movements may be. It is an insult to the intelligence of American citizens to suppose that they can be persuaded to adopt any political policy whatever by such childish devices as "signs" and "grips" and "pass-words" and the whole "arcana" of similar nonsense. Let us have an end of secret societies, whether Tammany Hall or the revived Know-Nothings.

—There is no law requiring the Bible to be read in public schools. The people are entirely free to have it read or not, just as they see fit. With such liberty some are not content; they wish to force the Bible out, whether the patrons of the schools consent or not. They are not satisfied with non-interference by the state, and demand that a yoke be put upon the people. Just as if the Bible was so obnoxious, so dangerous to liberty and good society, such a disturber of the peace, that it must be legislated out of the schools, and public funds be withheld where it is read. The excuse urged for this assault upon our liberties is, that the state ought not to establish any form of religion.—Does it establish a form of religion by saying and doing nothing about it? Do the principles of religious liberty require the expulsion of all religious reading, and every recognition of God in schools and public institutions? Did the framers of our National and State Constitutions intend to expel religion when they decreed that no form of religion should be established?

—Prof. Seelye of Amherst can see on both sides of the question. It is the characteristic of a statesman. He says our public schools are in danger, on the one hand, of slipping into the hands of the Roman Catholic priesthood, and, on the other, of being deprived of the Bible and becoming secular. He thinks one extreme should be avoided as much as the other, and that it would be as easy to pursue a middle course in this respect as to preserve a mean between unresisted despotism and unbridled license. Prof. Seelye, as representative in Congress, will doubtless have opportunity to give expression to his views, and if he does we shall expect light will be shed on a subject which seems needlessly mixed in the minds of many good citizens.—Advance.

—The Jews are in one sense the most interesting people in Palestine. Eighteen centuries ago they were driven from the land of their fathers, and yet they cling to its holy places still. They moisten the stones of Jerusalem with their tears; "her very dust to them is dear," and their most earnest wish is that the dust of their bodies should mingle with it. The tombs that whiten the sides of Olivet tell a tale of mournful bereavement and undying affection unparalleled in the world's history.

Temperance.

—The average number present at the daily prayer meeting of the Chicago Woman's Union the week ending January 25th was 925. The number who signed the pledge for the same week was twenty-nine.

—On the 25th, 26th and 27th of January the temperance ladies of the seventh Congressional district in Illinois held a convention at Joliet, Ill. There was a large attendance. Ottawa, Plainfield, Joliet and other points were represented. On Wednesday evening a large audience assembled in the Central Presbyterian church on Wednesday evening and listened to addresses by Mrs. McClaughry, Mrs. M. B. Holyoke, Mrs. J. F. Willing and D. Ward Wood, a talented reformed man.

—Lest some infer from the notice of Miss Willard's absence from the headquarters that it is closed, we wish to state that Mrs. Maria B. Holyoke has charge of the office as acting President and is in constant attendance. The work is being pushed vigorously. Previous to Jan. 1st, 1500 had signed the pledge of the Union. It is estimated that one-third of the attendance at the daily temperance meeting is from newcomers. This would make an estimate of 300 persons brought weekly under its influence.

—I met a man in Mr. Moody's study who for long years had been accustomed to drink intoxicating liquors. Three weeks before he promised Mr. Moody in the inquiry-room to drink no liquor until he saw him again. He then expected to see him in one day and a half, but was prevented from doing so for three weeks.

He had come to say that during this time he had had no desire to drink. His natural appetite had returned and he could enjoy a breakfast with his family, something that his thirst for liquor had previously prevented.

This he said he felt sure was a manifestation of Christ's power.

I now hold in my hand a letter from this man stating that he has made an unconditional and entire surrender of himself to God. The letter is full of praise to God for the manifestation of his unfathomable love.—Related by J. V. Farwell.

—In an article on the Irish Home Rule party in the British Parliament, Justin McCarthy says that the leader, Isaac Butt, an old man of great eloquence and long experience of public life, is a man reformed from a long period of dissipation. The best speaker of that party, and one of the best in Parliament, is Mr. Alexander Sullivan, a thorough "cold water" man.

—Speaker Kerr has forbidden the sale of liquors at the restaurant of the House of Representatives and the Republican papers represent the Democracy as much annoyed by the order.

Good.—Minnesota has provided for an inebriate asylum at Rochester, to support which the saloon-keepers of the State are taxed. The legality of this especial tax has recently been tested before the Supreme Court of the State, and the law is held to be constitutional. The institution will be erected in the Spring.

Reform News and Notices.

N. C. A Director's Meeting.—A meeting of the Director's Board will be held in the Cynosure office on Tuesday, Feb. 8, at 10 o'clock A. M. A full attendance is desired as considerable business is to be done.

By order of the Chairman.

While at Ligonier, Ind., on Saturday last I was gratified to learn that our friend and co-worker, Bro. J. M. Fry, had been doing a good work in Washington township, and that at the request of friends in neighborhoods visited and others adjoining, he purposes to prosecute the work with vigor and drive the enemy from his strongholds. May the Lord prosper this good brother, and open to him a large field of usefulness and make him "a terror to evil doers, and a praise to them that do well." Bro. Fry's P. O. is Ligonier, Ind. J. P. Stoddard.

—The letter from the General Agent will be found of special interest.

—Bro. Elzea has been diligently preparing for the State meeting to be held in Walworth county, Wisconsin, this week.

—During his trip to Michigan P. M. Ronayne spoke in Flint, Fenton, Howell, Northville, Brighton and Pleasant Valley with his usual success. The Brighton meetings are reported this week, and Elder Barlow sends a glowing account of the opening meetings which holds over.

—Last week Mr. Ronayne visited Rossville, Ill., and while opening the lodge in the third degree in the United Brethren church, a rabid Mason, Henderson by name, got up a disturbance when it was plainly shown to his face that he was committing Masonic perjury by listening to the exposition. He dragged a crowd of lodge men and their villainous lackeys with a band of music into the church and in spite of Mr. Ronayne's efforts and the very few men who stood by him, the exposition was given up, but the mob listened to some plain talk on their conduct and its effect.

—Bro. G. S. Cowles writes of the series of lectures in December in Northern New York at the time of the General Agent's visit. Bro. Stoddard spoke on two evenings at Parishville and gave a lecture at Colton with good effect. Bro. Rathbun lectured at the same time in Willisville and opened the lodge at Parishville in the face of threats of violence which were of course only threats.

—Bro. Nessell of Ellington, N. Y., writes of meetings in Mill Village, Erie county, Pa., which he addressed some weeks since. At that place he found two staunch friends of whom and of the lectures he writes: "Father Bennet proved to be a friend of the right stamp, one that feared God rather than man. He had to leave his mother church because she was joined to her idols, the secret lodges, and was under their control. Bro. Chapin left for the same reason, and both of these families and some other families about there are waiting for a Methodist church free from the lodge to be organized in the vicinity. We fonnd Bro. Chapin to bo quite aged and infirm." After arranging for a meeting in the town hall on Monday evening next following, he went over into Crawford county, town of Bloomfield. Here he says, "I found an M. E. church all anti's and an Anti-masonic preacher, as they would not support any other, we listened to his discourse, which was very good of course, and having been acquainted with him somewhat and very distantly related, he invited me to come forward and take part in the exercises."

Look at This!

Are our Anti-masonic friends in Michigan awake to the importance of the work of shedding light on Masonry, etc. We have engaged a State Lecturer whose reputation as a man and as a speaker is well known to the readers of the Cynosure; and he is already in the field; has done some work, and is ready for more. Will not those who are interested better themselves so far as to inform the Agent where lectures are wanted, so that he may know how to arrange the work for the lecturer? The present apathy on this matter is more encouraging to the friends of secrecy than to us. It would greatly facilitate our plans if friends would write us immediately. Will the friends in Van Buren, St. Joseph, Allegan, Berrien and Branch counties let us hear from them at once. Not only these, but others anywhere in the State. Let us have an avalanche of calls. The lecturer desires to speak twice in each place. Direct to C. B. Remington, Fenton, Genesee Co., Mich.

The Niagara County Association.

Opposed to Secret Societies, will hold its next Annual meeting in Arcade Hall, in the city of Lockport, on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, the 9th and 10th of February, 1876, Ex-Past Master Edmond Ronayne of Keystone Lodge, No. 639 of Chicago, will address the meetings and will publicly initiate a candidate into the first three degrees of Masonry. The meetings will commence at 7 o'clock P. M. There will be a convention Thursday forenoon, to commence at 9 o'clock, for the election of officers and for such other business as shall properly come before the Convention: followed with an Anti-masonic Love-feast, to be convened at 2 o'clock P. M. Let there be a general rally of the members: All clergymen friendly to the cause are cordially invited to attend.

B. S. Laughlin, Pres.
T. Corliss, Sec'y.

Past Master Ronayne leaves Chicago for Lockport on the 8th inst. after which he shall fill appointments in Rochester, Syracuse, and other cities and towns in Western New York. As he does not contemplate going to Boston and Conn., during this trip, he will fill all appointments made for him in other parts of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Indiana, before again returning to Chicago. Will the friends in these several States make their arrangements—N. Y. first, then Penn., then Ohio, and Indiana on his return; say the latter part of March. Ohio and Pennsylvania will send letters to Rochester, care W. Post, up to 17th inst.

Ronayne at Brighton, Mich.

Jan. 27, 1876.

Editor Cynosure:

We have just been favored with a visit from that fearless champion of anti-secrecy, Edmond Ronayne. At the earnest solicitation of friends of the cause here he came to Brighton on Friday evening the 21st inst., and opened the lodge in the first degree in the Wesleyan Methodist church.

Though the inhabitants of our village have frequently heard the demerits of Freemasonry discussed by able men, I venture to say that the system never appeared to them so disgustingly silly and so blasphemously profane, as after witnessing the actual ceremony of initiation in the first and third degrees, as they did on Friday and Saturday evenings of last week. Mr. Ronayne was our guest while here and he was certainly a welcome one.

On Monday evening he lectured in the Wesleyan church in Pleasant Valley to an intelligent and appreciating audience. Here also after lecturing for over two hours by way of introduction he initiated a candidate, whom he honored with the name of Rev. J. Nicholas, into the third degree, and as we sat and witnessed the disgusting and blasphemous performance, our soul loathed the system as never before.

What respect can a minister of Christ's Gospel have for himself after having submitted to these debasing and heathenish ceremonies and what confidence can the people have in men that claim to be Christians and still defend and uphold the vile and anti-Christian system?

May God bless Ronayne and spare his life till he shall see the complete overthrow of this iniquitous system, which already totters to its fall.

D. A. Richards.

Footfalls among the Wolverines.

Dear K.—Since my last writing I have been very busy, visiting many places and speaking many times to large and attentive audiences, with good results. I have visited the towns of Mundy, Gaines, Grand Blanc, Clio, Davison, Flint, Northfield, and the villege of Linden, in all of which I have found a few hearty, whole-souled friends of onr cause—men and women but for whom society would soon be wholly under the control of the god of this world, whose deeds are wrought in darkness and in secret places—shunning the light because evil are the deeds. To mention any of these by name without naming all would be unfair, so I can but speak of those whose kind personal attentions lay the weary and often sorely-tried lecturer under obligations which can never be forgotten.

In Mundy Center I gave two lectures in the Baptist house of worship, where I also preached one sermon on the Sabbath. Here I found pleasant and hospitable homes in the families of Ira Remington, and Charles Hoyt, Sen. In these families the spirit of Anti-masonry runs in the blood, and here Masonry and its brood will ever find uncompromising enemies. The first evening here the house was well filled and the best attention was given as I examined the claims of Freemasonry to "Ancient Origin, Benevolence, Goodness, &c," with its Christless religion. The second evening the house was crowded, with a fair sprinkling of Masons among the rest. One William Alger, by name, took a seat directly in front of me to take notes. I learned subsequently that he had taken the pains, before this lecture to visit an adjoining town to borrow Richardson's Monitor for the ostensible purpose of catching me in my remarks. Had I known this while lecturing I should have thrown a spoon for this fish.

However, I caught him with my eye, and held him so that he took but few notes. His face proved an excellent thermometer, showing the degree of Masonic heat as I progressed with my facts, and their logical deductions. Few things amuse me more than this exercise. The excitement it affords me goes far to compensate for the nervous strain the labor —mental and physical —causes one. I almost invariably catch some unwary brother of the craft and through all my lecture make his face a mirror, in which I see reflected all the phases of incredulity, surprise, and forced conviction, followed by shame, hatred and rage, which the tortured victim shows, all unwittingly, to his amused tormentor.

When I closed my lecture this evening, I gave the usual challenge to the craft to deny even one of my damaging statements, but the brethren chose to keep their jewels untarnished in my presence, but as soon as my back was turned, the volcano of smut began to cast up its mire and dirt. For this, I manage so to prepare the people that it only recoils upon that portion of the craft who indulge in it.

From this place I went to Hill's school-house, and spoke to a large audience, among whom was a Free Will Baptist minister, irreverently called by his neighbors, "Sam Williams." He was pointed out to me before I began to speak, so that I made him the "sounding board" for my remarks, and he made an excellent echo. When an opportunity was given for reply, he showed himself an adept in Masonry by maintaining a "dignified silence."

The following evening, with Bro. Hoyt, I rode 8½ miles to Fletcher school-house, it being as dark as they make nights in this country ere we reached our destination; and then the mud!-!-! Please look at the exclamation marks and let imagination do its utmost. I had no thought of having to speak here; but on trying to go to the door we saw coming up the roads moving lights, with which were men and women picking their way through the surrounding darkness and mud, evidently in search of Anti-masonic "light," which I cheerfully gave them as a reward for their pluck. I did not know a face in this company, save his who came with me. Capital attention was paid, and at the close the young men gathered around me and bought several books, which, well read, will do as much good as several lectures. The lecture was followed by a long and dark ride of 6½ miles to Mundy Center, which place I left the next morning for Linden, and Fenton, in which latter place I spent the Sabbath, preaching in the evening in the Presbyterian house, as the Baptist pulpit is at present filled by a minion of the lodge, with whom I neither can or will affiliate so long as he remains a Mason.

The next, or following week I visited Linden, Grand Blanc, and Pine Run, speaking two nights in a place. In Linden no place could be found in which to speak save a ball-room at the R. R. Station, a mile from the village. The lodge holds the keys of the churches! At Grand Blanc, we found that no appointments had been given out in the Baptist church as we expected; but attending a funeral on Wednesday afternoon, at the close I was surprised to hear the preacher announce that Elder Barlow would preach in the evening. I did so; and then the congregation voted to let me speak on my specialty the following evening to a good audience. Friday evening I opened battery at Pine Run, in a school-house; the Congregational house having been promised but promise retracted at the instigation of Rev. Sir Knight, Charles Thompson, the pastor of the church, who sports the Knight Templar's uniform whenever convenient occasions afford. Before reaching this place, I was told if I came there I should never leave the place alive! But somebody lied, for I have been there—bearded the lion in his den—and at this present writing am away and alive, unless I am grossly mistaken in my own identity. While here I made my home with Walter Beden, an old and tried friend of our cause. He is a terrible scourge to the secretists who are on the front of him, and to the right of him, and all around. Facing this residence, across the street. is the Masonic hall. On another corner, on his right, stands the Odd-fellow and Rebecca lodge, while a little down the street, are the headquarters of the grange, this last whelp of the wolf's litter, reminding one of the last diminutive baby of a prolific domestic animal kept by every enterprising farmer. The members of all these orders hate Beden, and while I was speaking, the cry was heard, "Kill Beden! Kill Beden!" But he still lives to throw light upon the owl eyes of his enemies. Here I spent the Sabbath, and preached for the Free Methodists, in the A. M. My next point was Davison Station, where I spoke Monday and Tuesday evenings to large and interested congregations, about which, and our operations with Ronayne, at Flint, &c., I will give an account in my next. J. L. Barlow.

From the Wisconsin Work.

Having finished my work in Richmond, I left for Rock county, going 21 miles in half a day, over about as rough, frozen roads as I ever saw. Put up with Bro. Stevens for the night; learned that secretism held the keys to all the churches and school-houses, and left in the morning for Orfordville. Was received cordially by Rev. Mr. Magelson, Norwegian Lutheran minister, and made arrangements to lecture in his church the next Monday evening, and left for Magnolia, arriving at Bro. Longfields, about 3 o'clock P. M., Friday. Went to the school-house, announced for a lecture, and had good audiences Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings; the last evening giving the religious view; also preached Sunday morning. On Friday evening, at the close of the lecture was introduced to a Mason, and giving him the grips, up to the grip of the "lion's paw," he responded to them without hesitation, and owned that the truth had been told in regard to the minor institutions of secrecy being the "Sabbath-schools" of Masonry, whether it was by design or not. On Friday evening one poor fellow was considerably exercised, making a little disturbance, but did not check the smoothly running current of affairs.

Monday returned to Orfordville, to meet the appointment there, but a little before the time, one of the trustees came around, and refused to open the house because it was muddy. He did not wish to have the carpet soiled with mud, so the evening was lost. But arrangements were made for work in the Haugen school-house, two miles away, where I spoke three evenings.

In the meantime notice had been given for lectures in the Anderson school-house, about three miles from the village, in another direction, which were filled Friday and Saturday evenings, to good audiences, and left early on Sunday morning to meet an arrangement to preach in the Baptist church at Avon Center. At the close was cordially invited to come and lecture, which I may do at some future time. Sunday evening, Jan. 23d, spoke in the Barr school-house, in the township of Avon, on the religion of secrecy, and gave them a lecture on Monday evening, which, together with a severe cold, will wind up my work for a short time, perhaps till after the convention. For the war,

P. Elzea.

Correspondence.

A Grand Rally for the Publishing House.—From the General Agent.

Xenia, Ind., Jan. 25, 1876.

Dear K:—I want to say a word in commendation of friends in Grant county who have so cheerfully and generously responded to a call for aid in behalf of the Publishing House interests of our reform. My stay among that people was less than two weeks, but the thirteen meetings at which I spoke were well attended. I was challenged by Hon. John Marshall to meet John Ratliff and others in a discussion at the court-house, but when the time fixed upon for the debate arrived said John Ratliff did not put in his appearance and no one could be found possessing sufficient valor to stand up in defense of their institution, although I am told quite a number of the craft, including "Sir Knights," were present. I spoke for near two hours with freedom and much plainness, charging the Masonic order with being a treasonable conspiracy against our government and the Christian religion. Good Bro. Ring feared that I was too severe, but having been challenged I felt justified in using greater plainness of speech than I usually feel warranted in doing. The friends so far as I learned felt that the meeting was quite important and that what I stated was correct, viz., "That no intelligent Mason would attempt to defend the institution in a public discussion, for he knew that it could not be done."

If Marion is not the banner county in Indiana, Fairmount is certainly entitled to the first place on the roll of honor in subscriptions to the Publishing House fund, but as the friends there proposed calling on others whom I was prevented by the mud from seeing, I will withhold the figures until further reports come in, simply saying if any county proposes distancing Grant they must set the figures above one thousand, and whoever would pluck the laurels from Fairmount must exceed $595.00 with what is yet to come in added. All the discussions ever held in Grant county have not done so much to make the secretists "look down their noses" as this decisive stroke by the class of men and women who have thus filed their declaration that they are not to be intimidated by threats or "worried out" by the sly tricks of grangers, Odd-fellows and Freemasons, May God reward these friends for their generosity and others be encouraged and stimulated by their example. My future path is hidden from me as yet, but I am waiting for orders, with the prayer, "Lord what wilt thou have me to do." J. P. Stoddard.

To the Rescue.

Dear Cynosure:—I wish to say through you to the friends of reform that it seems to me that we need more definite action in order to obtain the sum necessary to secure the Carpenter building. We are all aware of the fact that what is everybody's business is no body's business. Hence the necessity of system.

Would it not be well for the authorities at Chicago to to authorize the National Agent to issue peremptory orders to State agents, lecturers, and others, as he might think best, to make the matter of raising means for the purpose of securing the Carpenter house, a speciality. I think a new financial regiment might be raised, if the proper efforts are made, that will accomplish the great object in view. It will be a lasting disgrace and an injury that would be felt by our glorious cause for many years if we should fail to secure the invaluable prize in view. I enlisted in this war in the city of Aurora at the first call in 1867; have responded to every call from that time to the present. When Bro. Charley was here last summer he offered me the great privilege of securing an interest in the Carpenter house, and now if our generalissimo will raise a new regiment, kind Providence favoring, I shall want to be in it to the best of my abilities; and so on, and on, until it may be said, "It is enough; come up higher."

Dear brothers, sisters, comrades in this glorious war, it is enough for us to look to the end, when it may be said,

"Servant of God, well done;
Rest from thy loved employ;
The battle fought, the victory won,
Enter thy Master's joy."

J. Miller.

Wauseon, O.

From an Old Battle Ground.

Norfolk, Mass. Dec. 8, 1875.

Your request for sending subscriptions for the Cynosure I received, and tried to get some but had no luck. This vicinity is rather backward because they have fought it through once and are tired. This is the place where Rev. Moses Thatcher renounced it. Many of them have the books of Morgan and other writers almost by heart. I heard it read through and acted out before I was fifteen years old. The church, too, divided on the question. Those who were active at that day are all dead and gone; but there is a dread to touch the subject again by those who know the power of the lodge. Others say, "Why are not the Masons as good as anybody? They are as good neighbors. I like them as well. What good will the Cynosure do me?" I have not found but two things in it which are wrong, enfranchizing the women, and Christianizing the constitution. As long as there are two associations of men; the temporal, which relates to the business of this world, and the spiritual, the next, there should be a distinction made by calling things by the right name. Not like the Patricks, mix church and state which the National Christian Association does. Yours truly,

LOWELL MANN.

[If the brother will look carefully through the Cynosure, we believe he would find part at least of his objection against it and the Association groundless.—ED.]

A Wisconsin Lodge Deals with Masonic Adultery.

Editor Christian Cynosure:

Our community has been agitated for a long time over a case which has finally culminated in the Masonic trial and acquittal of a prominent Mason, on the charge that he had violated that clause of his oath in which he swears not to violate the chastity of a brother Mason's female relative, provided, of course (and what is more reasonable?) that he knows her to be such. It would be requiring too much to ask a Mason under such circumstances, to stop and institute inquiries, besides the clause of ignorance would be very useful, might, indeed constitute the main pillar of a successful defence. God says in his word, "Thou shalt not commit adultery." Freemasonry, which we are told is founded on the Bible, and is the handmaid of religion, and requires that all its members shall believe in God, says that Masons shall not violate each other's women; thus regulating adultery in the interest of a craft.

Could anything be more utterly blasphemous! Well, this man who believes in God and the Bible is called up by his craft, who all believe in God and the Bible, on the charge of having committed the most outrageous crime resulting in the death of whom? a woman? No, but a Mason's female relative! He is charged with seducing the wrong woman. He ought to have taken somebody's else wife or daughter,—yours or mine—and Masonry which is founded on the Bible you know, would not have been offended.

I know that there are good men in this Baraboo lodge. I would think they would hide their faces in total shame in view of this great farce which has been enacted. If men are so blind that they cannot see the insult offered to God and our common humanity in solemnly trying such a case, what could possibly be expected from them in the way of justice? Well, perhaps justice ought to be blind, but deliver womankind from that which is blinded by Freemasonry. Of the merits of the case I know nothing and offer no opinion. It is the attitude of Masonry towards such crimes to which I wish to call attention. J. W. WOOD.

OUR MAIL.

Wm. Duncan, Osage, Kan., writes:

"The majority here are secret men."

G. W. Bethers, Corvallis, Oregon, writes:

"I will tell you about the liberality of the Masons in two instances. The first is this: A widow of a Mason in our town wanted help. She applied to the lodge, but instead of assisting her from the lodge fund, they got up a petition and went to persons who were not Masons, to raise the money for the Mason's widow. The other case I am well acquainted with. The man was a Mason. He married a poor orphan girl and lived with her until they had five children, when he run off and left his family in want. The neighbors and relatives furnish them with the necessaries of life. The Masons have done nothing for her.

Try and get the Republican party to endorse Walker and then we can elect him. Was he a Republican before he got the nomination? If Grant gets the nomination the Republicans will vote for Walker. If Sherman gets it the anti-Catholics will vote for Walker. That will split the Republicans and elect the Democrats, I fear. I think of coming back to the States in the Spring, and if I can attend your convention I will be pleased."

We would be glad to see you at our meeting here in Chicago next June.

Daniel Carpenter, Groton, N. Y., writes:

"There are so many Masons that they carry the day in everything. Those that are not Masons seem to be afraid to make any move against them."

It would perhaps be profitable for these Anti-masons, as well as many others, to ask themselves, Why is it that Masons have their own way in everything? We certainly have truth and light on our side, and if we are faithful falsehood will surely be overcome.

N. C. Pitcher, Santa Barbara, Cal., writes:

"There is much secretism here in Santa Barbara, and but few anti-secretists, or those who dare to own their opposition. May God bless your labors until Masonry and all her children are destroyed."

P. Woodring, Waverly, Ia., writes:

"Be assured that as long as I draw breath, I shall draw it free from all secret societies and willing to aid in the reform to the extent of my ability."

W. Davis, Lisbon, Ia., writes:

"For the last thirty years I have been in the habit of lecturing to my congregation against secretism; and now I glory in the uprising of the press and the pulpit and the people to investigate and suppress the abomination."

Luther Birge, Farmington, Ill., writes:

"I felt so indignant that the General Association refused to let Gen. C. H. Howard publish anything against secret societies, that I thought I would not take the Advance. Mr. Ronayne came down here and exposed the folly of the secret orders. I should think all lovers of the Lord Jesus Christ would cry aloud and spare not until such a cursed institution was put down. How any Christian can hold on to them I know not. There are quite a number here that do not meet with them. I should think more would leave. Mr. Ronayne prevented a good many young men from joining."

H. H. Hinman, Lena, Ill., writes:

"I am meeting with good success; have had full meetings and taken up good collections. I am much encouraged and think the way is open for getting considerable for the Publishing House."

Donald Kirkpatrick, Syracuse, N. Y., explains a cloudy point spoken of in the Cynosure, relating to the secrecy of the open societies at Princeton College. He writes:

"The Whig and Cliosophic societies bear the same relation to Princeton that the Brothers in Unity and Linonian formerly did to Yale. None but members are admitted to their meetings, and being somewhat rivals, they have their own private affairs to which their members are bound to preserve an honorable reticence. This I believe to be the custom of all college literary societies and was formerly at Yale."

We are happy to be able to say that the literary societies of the college with which we were connected were cordially open to spectators, although the members had entire control of the affairs of the society.

Rufus Northway, Colebrook, O., writes:

"In this vicinity it is an uphill business to get the people to read the Cynosure. Talk with them they are opposed to secret societies, but to get them to act is another thing. Just as it was in the anti-slavery cause; they were abolitionists, but you could get them to go no farther."

B. J. Wise, West Mill Grove, O., writes:

"I am in the midst of secretism, and my salary is affected accordingly. My whole sympathy is in the work but cannot do much for the cause as I have a large circuit. My testimony is against secretism in the pulpit and out of it. God bless the friends of the cause."

Daniel Little, Geneseo, Ill., writes:

"I like the Cynosure very much and expect to labor and pray for its success and for the overthrow of all wicked combinations secret and open."

A. Osgood, Lostant, Ill., writes:

"The Freemasons in this town like to read our anti books, but it is against their rules to pay for any of them."

We would commend them to the charity of our readers.

I. R. Sexton, Cordora, Ill., writes:

"I read Judge Whitney's defense when first published some twenty years ago. I want it for others to read. . . The Cynosure is a necessity."

Moses Ferrin, Ellington, N. Y., who is 78 years old, writes:

"My sympathies are with you. I have been an opposer of Freemasonry ever since I was old enough to know what it was, and that was before Morgan was kid-Morgan. When that happened I was living within forty miles of Batavia. I was then convinced that it was a great evil. Down went the lodges here in the north. I was a little over twenty-eight years of age at that time. I have ever been against secrecy in our town. They got up a Sons of Temperance lodge. I tried to persuade our young folks from joining, telling them that it would lead to Masonry. It run on for about three years and then a Masonic lodge was instituted."

Amos Whitson, Valley Mills, Ind., writes:

"When I was canvassing our town with the petition to Congress, I offered it to the Freemasons as well as others. One prominent Mason told me it would do no good; they would not read it, and if they did it would be thrown under the table. He said that if I would prove that there were four in Congress that did not belong to secret societies he would sign the petition. He also said that there was but one way that I could know anything about Masonry, and that was to join them. You may consider me a subscriber for life."

J. M. Oxley, New Concord, O., writes:

"I thought it a long journey to Chicago and did not want to go without company in these perilous times."

F. M. Curtice, Greeley, Col., writes:

"The grasshoppers destroyed a large portion of the wheat crop in this region. which is the only cash crop we have, and money has been very difficult to get."

D. S. McConihay, Carbonvale, W. Va., writes:

"I am in sympathy with the reform, but if I understand your position in regard to warfare, cannot exactly endorse the policy of using carnal weapons, for they are not the kind that are mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds. I was a rebel against my government, but the grace of God has changed me; and as we are commanded to love our enemies and overcome evil with good, and to do to others as we would have others do to us, it would give me much pain to see the Cynosure rash in her measures towards her enemies. May the Lord guide the N. C. A. into all truth, and may the American Party take wise measures in her political actions that peace and truth and mercy may prevail in our nation. I could give some dark accounts of the orders in this vicinity, but my grammar and dictionary knowledge is so limited that I will not bother you."

We would like very much to hear your experiences and observations in regard to the lodge.

Prof. Jno. A. Ramsey, Lincoln, Tenn., writes:

"I am a life subscriber to the Cynosure for two reasons: first, because it is one of the very best papers that ever enters a family circle; second, to support it is a duty, especially of every Christian."

The Sabbath School.

Lesson for February 13.—Saul and his Sons Slain.

SCRIPTURE—1 Sam 31: 1-6. Commit 3-6; Primary Verse, 6.

1. Now the Philistines fought against Israel: and the men of Israel fled from before the Philistines, and fell down slain in mount Gilboa.
2. And the Philistines followed hard upon Saul and upon his sons; and the Philistines slew Jonathan, and Abinadab, and Melchishua, Saul's sons.
3. And the battle went on sore against Saul, and the archers hit him; and he was sore wounded of the archers.
4. Then said Saul unto his armor-bearer, Draw thy sword and thrust me through therewith; lest these uncircumcised come and thrust me through, and abuse me. But his armor-bearer would not; for he was sore afraid. Therefore Saul took a sword, and fell upon it.
5. And when his armor-bearer saw that Saul was dead, he fell likewise upon his sword, and died with him.
6. So Saul died, and his three sons, and his armor-bearer, and all his men, that same day together.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"The wicked is driven away in his wickedness."—Prov. 14: 32.

TOPIC.—Rebellion against God is self-destruction.

HOME READINGS.

M. Ex. 14: 17-31. The fate of Rebellious Pharaoh.
T. Num. 16: 1-35. The fate of Rebellious Korah.
W. Num. 14: 11-35. The fate of a Rebellious People.
Th. 2 Chr. 36: 10-21. The fate of Rebellious Zedekiah.
F. Hos. 7: 1-16. Rebellious in Spite of Mercies.
S. Is. 1: 1-18. The Ingratitude of Rebellion.
S. Ps. 5: 1-12. Destroyed by their own Counsels.

The Christian can find no refuge among the enemies of Israel like that which he can find in God and among his own people. Every going over to the Philistines, though only in appearance, is sure to work evil and end in calamity. Ps. ix. 9; lxxii. 12; Is. xxviii. 15-17; Jer. xiii. 22-25; 2 Cor. viii. 21; vi. 14-18; 1 Thess, v. 22; 1 Pet. ii. 12.

As that sad chapter in the life of David among the Philistines was due to his neglect of prayer, can we not see that similar periods in our own lives over which we have had occasion to weep were due to the same cause? The experience of the Christian is that he must "pray without ceasing." Luke xviii. 1; xxi. 36; Rom. xii. 12; Eph. vi. 18; Phil. iv. 6; Col. iv. 2; 1 Thess. v. 17; 1 Pet. iv. 17.

Mark the progress in evil. Saul at first so hated those who had familiar spirits that he would have none remain in the land, and was zealous in executing the law against them. But having withdrawn from God how readily at last he comes to consult with one of them. The only way always to hate evil is always to love God. Ps. xcvii. 10; Prov. viii. 13; Amos v. 15; Matt. vi. 24; Rom. xii. 9; 1 Thess. v. 22; 2 Tim. ii. 19.

The day of wrath, though long in mercy delayed, is sure at last to come. And it always comes as a surprise. No sinner is ever ready for it. Prov. xxix. 1; Luke xii. 39, 40; 1 Thess. v. 2; 2 Pet. iii. 10; Rev. vi. 15, 16; xvi. 15.—National S. S. Teacher.

David the Beloved.

[Concluded.]

It really did seem at this time to be a problem whether David should devote himself to public life or to the prophetical office. It might have been the latter but for the ferocity with which Saul pursued him. This drove him into the life of an independent outlaw. For the space of six years David had various fortunes, but his followers increased in numbers until he had an organized force of six hundred men, amongst whom were some who had come from the forces of Saul. With these he had been settled more than a year at Ziklag, on the border of Philistia when the battle of Gilboa occurred, in which the three sons of Saul were slain, and the king perished by his own hand. Then David ascended the throne.

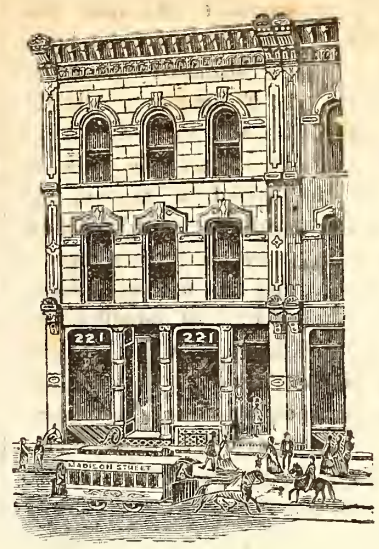
As king of Judah he reigned at Hebron more than seven years. The house of Saul for about five years maintained some show of rule at Mahanaim, so that David's position during that time was simply that of a tribal chief. But his power gradually increased. A quarrel between Ishbosheth, Saul's son, and his general, Abner, caused the latter to bring Israel over to David. This gave him the presence and help of the priesthood.

Then began David's reign of thirty-three years over all Israel. This third of a century was one of the most important in all human history. It gave the Hebrew people a national monarchy, an established church, a splendid ritual, and the noblest sacred literature the world has ever produced.

David determined to move his capital to a more nearly central place than Hebron. His quick, sagacious eye saw that Jebus was the spot. Its existence for nearly three thousand years has justified his choice. By a sudden assault it was captured. There David built his palace and set his throne. Thither he brought the tabernacle of the Lord, so that on one hill might be the residence of the invisible, eternal King, and his visible representative—the monarch, David. He was no longer an Arab sheikh; he was the founder of an empire. He brought the whole land under him. He perfected a powerful military organization; he laid deep and strong the foundations of an established church; he ordered its ritual, developed its music, and so enriched its psalmody, that, east and west, his hymns are sung in every tongue, and his ritual modifies all forms of public worship. He conceived the idea of a temple of God such as the sun had never shone upon. He suggested whatever is ample, rich, sublime, and solemn in temple or basilica, in mosque or cathedral. He lived to the age of seventy. He became father to the most splendid and revered monarch who ever sat upon a throne, and died, leaving to that son a kingdom, the foes of which had been conquered, and the prosperity of which had been insured.



The Bible history of this extraordinary man exhibits the honesty of the sacred narrative. He rides the heavens of history like a sun; a sun whose spots are not concealed. He had so many splendid qualities of intellect, so many generosities of heart, so many noblenesses of character, and so many charms of manner, that a human biographer would be pardoned for omitting statements of those acts which stained his career. With all his prudence and piety it is told that a man after God's own heart was impetuous and passionate. Those very qualities, which, under restraint, made him magnificent, rendered him wretched when they were uncontrolled. But he was so ready to forgive all who sinned against him, so penitent whenever he sinned, so ready to make confession and reparation, that he will live in the hearts of men so long as the union of strength with gentleness, vigor with grace, humility with chivalry, and intellect with religion, excite the admiration, and win the affections of mankind.

A man can give the world only what he has, and all that a man has he must get by experience. The world will always have in it struggle, and success, and failure; the wolf of poverty, and the sirens of wealth; sin, sorrow, penitence, contrition, faith, hope, charity, and all earth gives, and heaven offers, and hell threatens to our human nature. The prayers and the shouts of mankind must go to God in song. One singer must be raised who shall set the sorrows and the shouts of humanity to music. He cannot sing for the sorrowful who hath not himself suffered. He cannot sing for the shouting who hath not himself succeeded.

In David God raised up a man in whose physique perfection came from mingled blood of Gentile and of Jew; a man in whom the marriage of practical sagacity with the poetical faculty produced the noblest offspring of the intellect; a man who received for the enriching of his nature all out-door influences shooting up from landscape and raining down from sky; a man made tender by care for gentle domestic animals, and courageous by encounters with wild beasts; a man who was courted, and hunted down—the darling of his friends, and the terror of his enemies; a man who excited amongst men and women every friendly and every sinister passion, and experienced their action upon himself; a man against whom crimes were committed, and who committed crimes against others; a man who had been peasant, courtier, exile, warrior, prophet, statesman, poet, prince, king, emperor; a man who knew what it was to have one son die in infancy, and another in rebellion against him, and a third who should fill the world with the glory of his fame; a man who should stand in the fullness of his power, having had experience of every private and every public station; every private and every public joy, every private and every public sorrow.

It is as if the all-wise God had constructed in one human being an organ with all the keys and stops possible to humanity, and as if the Holy Ghost had, on that organ with those keys and stops played every tune of every song that all humanity may need to sing in life or death, or carry in memory from earth to heaven.

Such David was in the City of the Great King on earth; what must he be in the City of New Jerusalem, and in the Temple not made with hands, eternal in the heavens!—National Sunday School Teacher.

THE CARPENTER DONATION.

The above is a front view of the fine stone-front building on Madison street, Chicago, which Mr. Carpenter proposes to give the National Christian Association for head-quarters and publishing house. The terms of the donation are that $30,000 shall be raised by Apr. 1, 1878, to carry on the work of the Association. Send contributions to Treasurer of the N. C. A.

The National Christian Association.

PRESIDENT.—Philo Carpenter.

DIRECTORS.—Philo Carpenter, J. Blanchard, Archibald Wait, I. A. Hart, C. R. Hagerty, E. A. Cook, O. F. Lumry, C. A. Blanchard, H. L. Kellogg, I. R. B. Arnold, E. S. Cook.

COR. SECRETARY.—C. A. Blanchard.

TREASURER.—H. L. Kellogg.

GEN. AG'T & LECTURER—J.P.Stoddard.

Address last three at 13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

The object of this Association is:—

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved; to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform to aid the Association in either of these ways: (1) to establish a Publishing House and Head-quarters in Chicago; (2) to carry on the general work; (3) to maintain the State agents. All donations (drafts or P.O. orders) should be sent to the Treasurer; general correspondence, etc., direct to the Corresponding Secretary.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—I give and bequeath to the National Christian Association, incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois, the sum of——dollars for the purposes of said Association, and for which the receipt of its Treasurer for the time being shall be a sufficient discharge.

Sending in the Tithes.

Many who read the following from a good brother in Pennsylvania will find a response coming up from the heart to his prayer. Make it an honest and earnest one, with a blessing added, by joining with him in the work:

McALEVY'S FORT, Pa., Jan. 21, '76.

H. L. Kellogg:

DEAR SIR:—Enclosed I send you five dollars for the Publishing House fund. I give it to the Lord and I know he will carry it safe to you. And may he put it into the hearts of many others to give to this good object and crown it with success.

Yours in the Gospel, J. M. A.

—Every friend of the reform will rejoice to learn of Bro. Stoddard's success in Indiana. Let prayer go with him in this work that the Spirit may make a way before him.

John G. Smith, Beverly, Mass., orders the paper sent to Ipswich, and writes:

"Ipswich is a town, you will remember, that excluded members of secret societies from the jury-box. I wish I could do more for you; but it is uphill work here, for we are overrun with Masons and Odd-fellows. Four of our ministers are Masons and what can you expect of the people?"

State Auxiliary Associations.

The following list will be found of great convenience. Let every friend of the reform put himself in communication with the proper officers, sending contributions, suggestions,—anything to push on the work.

CONNECTICUT.
President, J. A. Conant, Willimantic.
Secretary, D. J. Ellsworth, Windsor.
Treasurer, C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.
President, J. Dickson, Decatur.
Secretary, J. H. Snyder, Westfield.
Treasurer, H. L. Kellogg, 13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.
Lecturer, H. H. Hinman, Wheaton.

INDIANA.
President, Halleck Floyd, Dublin.
Cor. Sec'y, J. T. Kiggins, Portland
Rec. Sec'y, Wm. Small, Xenia.
Treasurer, Peter Rich, Westfield.
Lecturer, J. T. Kiggins, Portland, Jay Co.

IOWA.
President, M. S. Drury, Castalia.
Cor.Sec'y, Louis Bookwalter, Western College.
Rec. Sec'y, C. Compton, Steamboat Rock.
Treasurer, D. W. Lyons, Mason City.
Lecturer, James Hankins, Mason City.

KANSAS.
President, Rev. Mr. Bell.
Secretary, J. Dodds, Winchester.
Treasurer, S. Sexton, Topeka.

MICHIGAN.
President, C. Quick, Weston.
Secretary, C. B. Remington, Fenton.
Treasurer, J. H. Wilcox, Howell.
Lecturer, J. L. Barlow, Fenton.
Agent, C. B. Remington, Fenton.

MISSOURI.
President, N. E. Gardner, Avalon.
Cor. Sec'y., A. D. Thomas, Arbela.
Rec. Sec'y, E. W. Carpenter.
Treasurer, Wm. Beauchamp, Avalon.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.
President, J. F. Brown, Bow Lake.
Secretary, S. C. Kimball, Center Strafford.
Treasurer, Kimball Cole, Lake Village.
Lecturer, S. C. Kimball, Center Strafford.

NEW YORK.
President, L. N. Stratton, Syracuse.
Secretary, W. A. Sellew, Rochester.
Treasurer, M. Merrick, Syracuse.
Lecturers—L. N. Stratton, Syracuse; D. P. Rathbun, Lisbon Center; Woodruff Post, Rochester; A. F. Curry, Almond.

OHIO.
President, H. H. George, W. Geneva.
Secretary, Wm. Dillon, Dayton.
Treasurer, J. G. Mattoon, West Unity.
Lecturer, Wm. Dillon, Dayton.

PENNSYLVANIA.
President, A. L. Post, Montrose.
Cor. Sec'y., N. Callender, Green Grove.
Rec. Sec'y., J. W. Raynor, Uniondale.
Treasurer, W. B. Bertels, Wilkesbarre.
Lecturer, J. W. Raynor, Uniondale.

WISCONSIN.
President, J. W. Wood, Baraboo.
Secretary, R. Cooley, Lima Center.
Treasurer, M. R. Britten, Vienna.
Lecturer, P. Elzea, Delavan.

Address of Anti-masonic Lecturers.

General Agent and Lecturer, J. P. STODDARD, Christian Cynosure Office, Chicago.

FOR STATE LECTURERS see State Association list.

OTHERS who will lecture as opportunity offers.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
W. A. Wallace, Dublin, Ind.
J. B. Nessell, Ellington, N. Y.
James Hankins, Mason City, Iowa.
R. B. Taylor, Summerfield, O.
N. Callender, Green Grove, Pa.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
P. Hurless, Polo, Ill.
J. C. Graham, Viola, Mercer Co., Ill.
J. R. Baird, Templeton, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Bourbon, Ind.
Josiah McCaskey, Fancy Creek, Wis.
C. F. Hawley, Millbrook, Pa.
W. M. Givens, Center Point, Ind.
J. L. Andrus, Mt. Vision, N. Y.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
D. S. Caldwell, Nevada, WyandotCo., O
Samuel Hale, Mallett Creek, O.
A. Mayn, Promise City, Wayne Co. Ia
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
C. Wiggins, Angola, Ind.
S. L. Cook, Albion, Ind.
E Ronayne, Cynosure office, Chicago.
W. M.. Love, Baker, St. Clair Co., Mo

James Henry, New Texas, Pa., sends a copy of the Cynosure to his son in Florida, and writes:

"My son says secrecy is nearly all the kind of religion they have out there."

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY FEB. 3 1876.

PLATFORM AND NOMINATIONS FOR 1876.

FOR PRESIDENT
James B. Walker,
of Illinois.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT
Donald Kirkpatrick,
of New York.

PLATFORM.

We hold: 1. That ours is a Christian and not a heathen nation, and that the God of the Christian Scriptures is the author of civil government.

2. That God requires and man needs a Sabbath.

3. That the prohibition of the importation, manufacture and sale of intoxicating drinks as a beverage, is the true policy on the temperance question.

4. The charters of all secret lodges granted by our Federal and State Legislatures should be withdrawn, and heir oaths prohibited by law.

5. That the civil equality secured to all American citizens by article 13th, 14th and 15th of our amended Constitution should be preserved inviolate.

6. That arbitration of differences with nations is the most direct and sure method of securing and perpetuating a permanent peace.

7. That to cultivate the intellect without improving the morals of men, is to make mere adepts and experts; therefore the Bible should be associated with books of science and literature in all our educational institutions.

8. That land and other monopolies should be discountenanced.

9. That the Government should furnish the people with an ample and sound currency, and a return to specie payment as soon as practicable.

10. That maintenance of the public credit, protection to all loyal citizens, and justice to Indians are essential to the honor and safety of our nation.

11. And finally, we demand for the American people the abolition of Electoral Colleges, and a direct vote for President and Vice-president of the United States.

THE CHRISTIAN AMENDMENT.

We notice that a Convention in Chicago is resolved on about the 20th of March next of the National Association which is seeking a constitutional recognition of Christ and Christianity by our Federal Government.

The Cynosure is in favor of such an amendment, and of the convention, if a strong one can be held here. A weak one would damage the cause. The politicians at Washington, with Blaine at their head, perceive the necessity of an amendment of our Constitution for saving our schools and school funds from the clutches of Romish priests. But mere politicians will do no good. They are no match for Jesuits, whose motto is "act, but not agitate." Sin and error need no agitation to spread. But truth and righteousness do need agitation. We shall therefore favor, and do what little we may to help the Chicago Convention if one is held.

Mr. Blaine's amendment is to refuse public money for "sectarian" schools. But "there's the rub." What is sectarianism? Is the Eternal and Infinite God? Is Christ, who is his image? Is the Decalogue, or Christ's condensation of it sectarian? We know that the enemies of Christ called his religion "a sect." The Mormons call us all "Gentiles," and Freemasonry calls Moses and Isaiah and Paul "profane." Satan evermore turns the tables on Christ. He rebelled in heaven, and resolved to make his "SECT," thus cut off from the universal government of God, the regular line, and impudently retorts the charge of rebellion and schism on his Maker. A constitutional recognition of the fact, "That ours is a Christian, and not a heathen Government," will forestall this Satanic influence, by making supreme love to God, and equal love to man the true religion of the world, and other religions and religious shams, falsehoods as they are in fact.

STRANGE BED-FELLOWS.

The Catholic Review, under its caption "Worth Remembering" publishes at large our editorial on college secret societies, entitled "Poisoning Wells:" with an expanded heading of its own. This is not the first time Satan has presented himself among the children of God professing to aid them in the "works of darkness."

Jesuitism now runs the Romish church or popery. It is the prince and model of all the secret societies in the civilised and uncivilized world. It was invented by Ignatius Loyola, about twenty years after Luther started the Reformation from popery. Its dangerous and diabolical nature was such that it was once suppressed, as Bismarck is now attempting to suppress it, by nearly every nation in Europe. There was virtue enough in the Romish church to suppress it one hundred years ago, but by snaking its way into place and power it seized on and now controls the Church of Rome. The priests of Rome in these United States are now Jesuits. No Masonic oath binds its dupes to more secret or abject submission to the word of a Grand Master, than the Jesuit swears to the General of his order. The Romish masses, multitudes of whom are good men and citizens, are as ignorant as Mormons or Asiatics of the doings of their priests. Is it not cool, a Jesuit opposing secret societies? In one thing Masons claim the advantage of Jesuitism or Papacy. It takes, if we remember aright, fourteen days, by the secret method of Loyola, to convert a common man into a saint; whereas Masons will, by three degrees, given in a single night, raise man "to his most perfect state" in which "nothing more is wanting which the soul of man can desire." Romanism is "Mother of Harlots." There is no element or principle of error, superstition, and despotism found in any of these religious shams, which is not found in her. This Lafayette saw, and said that American liberties would fall by Romish priests, if they ever fall.

THE MAH-HA-BONE.—This is the title of a new Anti-masonic weekly paper proposed by J. H. H. Woodward, No. 382 John Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, to whom all communications are requested to be sent.

Mr. Woodward writes an able prospectus, and proposes to offer moral and political opposition to Masonry and its litter of reptile organizations. We are sorry to see, in his prospectus, no allusion to Christianity, or to Christ, without whom we can do nothing in this war. A secret society, alias Jesuitism, is the religion of the natural heart of man. It has a supernatural, spiritual power, and is a literal, actual worship of devils stripped of their supernatural religious power, it is but a debating society with closed doors. And what debating society can stand for centuries? With this spirit power it belongs to the dark family of despotic religions which have cursed and still curse the earth.

We wish friend Woodward success in attempting to destroy a religious evil by political opposition, but remind him of what John Wesley once said to Wilberforce, about his war on the slave trade, viz.: "My dear sir, if Christ does not sustain you in this business, the devil will wear you out."

Price of the paper $2. per annum.

The Princeton Fraternities Again.

CARMEL, N. Y., Jan. 25, 1876.

Editor Cynosure:

I beg leave to differ with you in your estimate of the statements made in my former communication and to offer the following in support of my position:

First, Dr. Hodge expressly states in his letter that the American Whig and Cliosophic societies are secret "as to their constitution and rules of procedure," and that they differ from the Greek letter societies at Princeton in not being secret as to design, membership, and time and place of meeting and in not excluding officers of the college from membership. Now at colleges where the Greek societies are tolerated there is no secrecy as to membership and generally none as to time and place of meeting. Hence the only real point of difference on the score of secrecy is the design.

Second, Dr. Hodge states that all college officers are members of one or the other. He omits to state (1) that every officer before being admitted to the meetings of the society is subjected to a pledge of secrecy which is required of all members of the society, and (2) that no officer is ever allowed to be a member of both societies, nor is he under any circumstances admitted to the meetings of the society of which he is not a member.

Now if this is not secrecy I don't know what to call it. It is more intolerant than Masonry or Odd-fellowship, as the same persons are often members of both. Would the authorities of Wheaton College permit societies organized on such principles to exist within its walls?

Third, the statement that the motive for the pledge was not opposition to secrecy is also true. It was established over twenty years ago on account of the disturbing elements introduced into the two secret literary societies by the Greek letter men who often combined for electioneering and partisan purposes. It also occurred that the secrets of the Whig and Cliosophic would leak out through these men. This view is also confirmed by Dr. Hodge in his letter. The trustees of Princeton at their meeting on the 28th and 29th of June 1855 passed a resolution approving of the action of the Faculty and directing the President to announce to the student that the subject of prohibited secret societies had been considered by the trustees, and the Faculty were required to promptly dismiss any student known after that date to be a member of such an association. Since that time no one could honorably join a Greek letter society and the spirit of insubordination, etc., to which Dr. H. refers and which seems to exist in a more marked degree at Princeton than at other colleges might be naturally expected from persons who violated their pledges by joining them.

Finally, for the knowledge of the facts presented in this and my former letter, with a single exception, I am indebted to a graduate of Princeton, who is a member of one of the tolerated societies and who favors the present action of the college authorities. The action of the trustees is taken from a copy of the Catalogue of Princeton College for 1863-64. I am, yours, FAIR PLAY.

REMARKS.—The exception in favor of the Cliosophic and Whig societies in the pledge required of Princeton students, and in Dr. Hodge's letter, seems to have a reasonable explanation in the above. To accommodate these exceptions to the firm, clear argument of Dr. Hodge against secret societies in or out of college may seem difficult. No one can deny that the whole force of that argument is against such societies, and it means nothing if not opposition to them. But the two literary societies are nowhere referred to as being considered "secret." We may understand better their standing with the Princeton faculty from the remarks of President McCosh, at the opening of the present term, Jan. 11th. He says: "We reckon the secret society question as settled here. The faculty has executed the law, and the Board of Trustees has formally approved their conduct and refused to change the law. . . While we wish to discourage secret societies, I do not see why, under proper regulations, we should not allow societies, not secret, though private, to meet in our rooms for literary, scientific, and philosophic purposes."

The faculty then regard the two excepted societies as so under control as to lose the distinctive features of secrecy. The various alumni associations of the institution seem to have the same view and stand for the law, with the single exception of the one in New York, which is evidently under Masonic control. But, as our correspondent argues, the limitation of these societies will hardly clear them before the public of the charge of secrecy. Like Union League with a mask borrowed from the Golden Circle, these societies have too much privacy, enough to give a false relish, a smack of real lodgism. However harmless this iota of secretism may seem, Christ says, "What ye hear in the ear that preach ye upon the housetops." There is no pledge to keep secret in that. Nevertheless, the whole country must rejoice in the good fight Princeton college has made with the Greek fraternities, the Freemasons of college secretism; and we must believe its firm enunciation of principles on this subject will carry it over to a right practice.

—The Publishers' Department still presents attractions to every worker. Read it. Also see the new notices, the N. C. A. department, and the letters from Bros. Stoddard and Miller.

—The good letter of father Miller on a preceding page should be a rallying call to every friend of the cause. He is a veteran in the wars of the Lord and his years and expsrience should speak with power. There are others, old reformers, who think with him that to fail of securing so valuable a donation would be a serious reflection on the integrity of the noble men and women engaged in this war. It must not be. The suggestion of father M. and any others from the friends will be considered and so far as possible acted on.

—Gen. J. W. Phelps suggests in the Teleseope that the righteous war on Greek fraternities by Princeton College be formally recognized at the next Anniversary. The idea is a good one. But when Princeton is remembered, let not the score or so of younger and weaker institutions be forgotten that have from the first opening of their halls prohibited these societies, and kept them off, when to cease resistance would have made them popular.

—We ask the especial attention of those readers who desire to have a correct view of the Episcopal belief to articles on three points in the Episcopal creed. Save this paper and compare Mr. Bryant's letter with that from Mr. Wilson to be published next week. In the Cynosure of November 18th we published the differences between the regular Episcopal church and the Reformed from the Reformed Episcopal standpoint. We desired to publish the difference trom the Protestant Episcopal standpoint and requested Rev. Clinton Locke, Chicago, of the regular church, to give them to us in a brief form for publication. He declined because of the pressure of other duties. We then requested Rev. H. Bryant, whose letter will be read in our present issue, to do so, but he declined, saying, "I do not think it could be satisfactorily done within such a space as you would be willing to allow. And, moreover, it might occasion a controversy for which you have not room in your paper." And on reflection we concluded that the two letters published this week and next would give our readers all the information on this subject that they could desire.

—Father Greene of Chelsea, Mass., has been following up some of the stories on the disposition of Morgan set agog by Thurlow Weed's letters last fall. One of them first published in Minnesota was signed by A. P. Rogers. This Rogers it appears lives at Anoka, Anoka county, Minn,, and an old friend at St. Paul informs Mr. Greene that he is a Freemason and a Methodist and wants his church and the lodge to go hand in hand. Such a man's conscience would scruple little about manufacturing stories to save the reputation of secretism.

—William Tyrell, post-master at Batavia, New York, has twice sent notices to this office complaining of the folding of the papers for the mail, implying that, from the postal regulations, he is justified in not distributing them. Our publishers have brought the matter before the assistant postmaster of this city with the fact that every copy is folded in the middle before mailing, which that officer says meets the demand of the department. This is to notify our subscribers at Batavia where they may trace their papers if they fail to be delivered. Other post-masters may be in the habit of making an excuse of the same ruling of the post-office department to throw out the Cynosure. If so, subscribers will please inform the publishers immediately, and measures will be taken to admonish dishonest Masonic functionaries of their duty. Probably Mr. Ronayne's late visit to Batavia so made the P. M. stare that his optics ever since have habitually enlarged suspicious objects like the Cynosure.

—Friend Knipple, whose trials with United Brethren preachers in Sandusky Conference, O., have been published in our columns, has learned that the Masonic organ, the U. B. Tribune, is near dissolution and with every true man rejoices in the fact. That paper has been most abusive in its treatment of the Telescope, and many honest, God-fearing men of the denomination. It recently wrote up Bro. Hurless and his paper, the Christian Radical, in the most approved fish-woman style, nearly exhausting the catalogue of vituperation. Nothing but evil can come from such measures, and Bro. Knipple will probably agree with us that to let the Tribune die will be surest way of killing it.

Sermons Out of Church; the new book by Miss Mulock, author of John Halifax, etc., has just been issued. The Nation, New York, says of it:

"This is a book that we can conscientiously recommend to our readers. Those who have read 'John Halifax' will recognize with pleasure Miss Mulock's pleasant style in her serious mood all through these sketches. They are seven in number, and are devoted to important and suggestive subjects:—1. Misery Mongers. 2. What is Self-Sacrifice? 3. Our Often Infirmities. 4. How to Train up a Parent in the Way he Should Go. 5. Benevolence—or Beneficence? 6. My Brother's Keeper. 7. Gather up the Fragments. In this age when, notwithstanding the death of most of the great novelists, a fresh novel appears every day, it is a relief to turn to something serious, sensible, instructive and well-written."

Although this book is sold at $1.50, in ordinary muslin binding, yet the edition on our table, without abridgment, and well printed, is sold for only 10 cents by all newsdealers; or is sent mailed, post-paid, for 12 cents, by Donnelley, Loyd & Co,, Publishers, "The Lakeside Library," Chicago.

Religious Intelligence.

—The revival work is more than ever extensive this season. A single number of the Chicago Times lately contained news of protracted meetings in Paw Paw, Berrien Springs, Spring Lake, and Niles, Mich., Chenoa, Ill., and Beaver Dam, Wis. In some localities a revival of temperance work was also experienced.

—Rev. Wm. Pinkney of the Wesleyan church at Wheaton has spent some two weeks assisting in revival meetings at Flora, Ill.

—The Brethren ("Tunkers") are raising a $300 fund to print and send to every Baptist minister in the country copies of their publication on True Immersion traced to the Apostles.

—The Young Men's Christian Association of Boston has taken up the question of the observance of the Sabbath. A Sunday evening meeting under their auspicies was held in Music Hall recently, at which the claims of Sunday as a day of religious rest were presented.

—The English Society for the Conversion of the Jews, having received permission from the Czar, has dispatched missionaries to Warsaw. It intends to labor throughout Poland. The local authorities have been ordered to protect and assist the missionaries of the society.

—The Methodist Episcopal General Conference which was to have met in St. Louis next May, will be held in Baltimore, by order of the church authorities. A petition against secret orders is being signed for presentation at that time.

—The International Executive Committee of the Y. M. C. A. has recently issued a brief "Form of Constitution" for the smaller societies. It suggests a simple organization for Christian work, and the admission of all members of evangelical churches who wish to join as active members, without restrictions of age or sex. It can be obtained by application at their office, Fourth Avenue and Twenty-third street.

—The Boston Young Men's Christian Association has recently given a reception to the young men in the furniture and carpet trades, and the New York Association to medical students. Both were crowded, and the exercises were full of spirit.

—The Y. M. C. A. of Columbus, O., have began a good work in the U. S. barracks at that city lately. Over 500 troops are stationed there without a chaplain.

—The Hon. E. P. Smith, late Commissioner of Indian Affairs, has been invited by the American Missionary Association of New York, to visit Africa for the purpose of inspecting the missions of the Society in that country, to inquire into the method of enlarging its work, and to find the most hopeful field for its further missionary operations among Africans. The trustees of the Howard University have granted him leave of absence without salary, for this purpose, and he will sail in a few days.

—The Michigan Wesleyan Conference Association has a long list of practical topics under discussion for its sixteenth session at Whitehall, Feb. 15th. Among these we notice "Secret Societies inconsistent with Christianity" and "Anti-masonic Buts—their Influence."

—The Telescope shows week by week the marks of Divine favor upon the churches of the United Brethren in Christ in its notices of revivals. In the last number forty-seven were reported, one in connection with Lebanon Valley College, Annville, Pa.

—Halleck Floyd, Pres. of the Indiana Association, has lately arisen from a month's serious illness.

Money but no name.—We have received $2.35 from Carthage, Missouri, for the Cynosure and books, but no name is signed to the letter. Who sent it?

Correction.—The author of "Masonry in the South" in the Cynosure of Jan. 6th, points out to us two serious mistakes in his article. "Suckled and helped rear the monster of rebellion" is printed "bear," and, "recruited from the led instead the leaders; the ignorant instead of intellectual" has the last word perverted to "illiterate."

News of the Week.

The City.

Chicago is fast coming to the condition of a community which must be a law unto itself. The ring of gamblers and saloonists now in charge of its affairs have gained their case in the Supreme court by which they will continue in power nearly two years longer than the time for which they were elected.——The U. S. Grand jury has reached the whiskey cases and the notorious Hesing and Rehm have been indicted, together with a former revenue officer.

Congress.

The House has passed the Centennial appropriation of $1,500,000 with the amendment that the fund be regarded as a loan to be returned from the first dividend of the Exposition. ——The House also passed a reduction of third class postage (papers and mailable packages).——Several propositions relating to the currency are before Congress, the last by Morrison of Ill. ——Reduction of salaries at West Point has been discussed, the Democrats favoring a sensible diminution of expenses.

The Country.

There is little doubt that the Beecher scandal will yet be investigated in the interest of the Congregational churches of the country upon whose polity it is becoming a foul stain. Beecher's self-appointed council, if it ever meets, can do nothing if the main question of Beecher's guilt or innocence is ignored.——The Supreme Court of Illinois has rendered a decision to the effect that whatever may be the rules of the Chicago Board of Trade, the Court will not protect members in what are known as option deals, they being simply a species of gambling.

Foreign.

Spanish advices report that the Royalist army in the North is closing on the Carlists, and a decisive battle is expected. The Government anticipates an early ending of hostilities and the disbanding of the Carlists.——The Direct Cable Company believe that their cable has been several times broken by design, and offer a reward of $5,000 for the arrest and conviction of the offender.——The Gazette of Cologne, Germany, says: "Notwithstanding the reiterated denials of the ultramontane journals, we learn from Berlin that the Catholic clergy and laymen are using their influence with the Pope to obtain sanction for a formal submission to the Falk laws, in the confident hope that though outwardly accepting they will be able to deprive them of their efficacy against the church."——The Spanish elections are over. The total number of Deputies elected to the Cortes is 406. Of these 30 are supporters of Sagasta, 10 Clericals, 1 Cantonalist, and 364 Ministerialists. Senor Castlar is the only moderate Republican elected.

The Home Circle.

John Jankin's Sermon.

The minister said last night, says he,
"Don't be afraid of givin';
If your life ain't nothin' to other folks,
Why, what's the use of livin'?"
And that's what I say to wife, says I;
There's Brown, the mis'rable sinner,
He'd sooner a beggar would starve than give
A cent toward buying his dinner.

I tell yon our minister's prime, he is,
But I couldn't quite determine,
When I heard him givin' it right and left
Just who was hit by his sermon.
Of course there couldn't be no mistake
When he talked of long-winded prayin',
For Peters and Johnson, they sot and scowled
At every word he was sayin'.

And the minister he went on to say,
"There's various kinds of cheatin',
And religion's as good for every day
As it is to bring to meetin'.
I don't think much of the man that gives
The Lord 'amens' at my preachin',
And spends his time the following week
In cheatin' and overreachin'."

I guess that dose was bitter enough
For a man like Jones to swaller;
But I noticed he didn't open his mouth
But once after that, to holler.
Hurrah! says I, for the minister—
Of course I said it quiet—
Give us some more of this open talk;
It's very refreshing diet.

The minister hit 'em every time;
And when he spoke of fashion,
And a-rigging out in bows and things
As woman's rulin' passion,
And a-comin' to church to see the styles,
I couldn't help a-winkin',
And a-nudgin' my wife, and, says I, "That's you,"
And I guess it sot her thinkin'.

Says I to myself, That sermon's pat,
But a man is a queer creation;
And I'm much afraid that most o' folks
Won't take the application.
Now, if he had said a word about
My personal mode of sinnin',
I'd have gone to work to right myself
And not set here a-grinnin'.

Just then the minister says, says he,
"And now I've come to the fellers
Who've lost this shower by nsin' their friends
As sort o' moral umbrellers.
Go home," says he, "and find your faults,
Instead of huntin' your brothers';
Go home," says he, "and wear the coats
You've tried to fit for others."

My wife, she nudged, and Brown, he winked
And there was lots o' smilin',
And lots o' looking at our pew;
It sot my blood a-bilin'!
Says I to myself, our minister
Is gettin' a little bitter;
I'll tell him when meetin's ont, that I
Ain't at all that kind of a critter!

—The Guardian.

Bible Holiness.

If it refers to the Supreme Being, he is pure and holy in every attribute. He is perfect in love, perfect in wisdom, and almighty in power. But we see so many faults in ourselves, that we often cry out, "Unclean. God be merciful to us sinners." We cannot attain angelic holiness in this mortal state of existence; and we cannot be perfect gods, but we can be perfect Christians. The Saviour said to his followers, "Be ye perfect, even as your Father in heaven is perfect." The Saviour had just been teaching the people and his followers the rules of the Gospel, or what perfect holiness was; showing them that they must live up to those rules exactly.

But what say the different inspired writers of the Bible? Let us see. Gen. xvii. 1, "Walk before me, and be thou perfect." Job i. 1, "Job was a perfect and upright man." Ps. xxxvii. 37, "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright; for the end of that man is peace." Matt. xix. 21, "If thou wilt be perfect, sell that thou hast and give to the poor." 1 Cor. ii. 6, "Howbeit we speak wisdom among them that are perfect." 2 Cor. xii. 9, "And he said unto me, My grace is sufficient for thee; for my strength is made perfect in weakness." Here we see that our perfection is derived from the great Fountain. 2 Cor. xiii. 11, "Finally, brethren, farewell; be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mind." Phil. iii. 15, "Let us, therefore, as many as be perfect, be thus minded." Col. iv. 12, last clause, "That ye may stand perfect and complete in all the will of God." 2 Tim. iii. 17, "That the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works." We can see from the word of God that we can be perfect in Christ and we can do all things that we are commanded to do, in the strength and by the assistance of Christ.

Now we will examine into the spiritual part of holiness. In the first place, I would just say that what I have written refers mostly to personal acts of obedience to God by the follower of Christ, who has made a full dedication of himself to the dear Saviour. In this way the whole person is sanctified to God, or set aside or set apart for his service. But in all this the mind, or intellectual part, must be so changed by the operation of the Holy Ghost, that there will be a perfect union with the Father and Son, and then the saints will delight in doing just what God required him to do. We understand, by the words of the great prophet to the gentiles, that "to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace:" and, of course, if they who profess to be the humble and devout followers of Christ have the Spirit of God as an abiding witness, that they will be led by that Spirit, and will have no condemnation, but will be free from the law of sin and death.

The fact in the case is this: if a person is sanctified, soul, body and spirit, or wholly set apart to the service of God, he will have the Spirit of God to lead and guide him constantly; for the Spirit of God will operate like the mainspring to a watch, that keeps all the wheels in motion. But, take notice, kind reader, "the inward man is renewed day by day;" so that we must ask the good Lord to give us a fresh anointing of his tender and loving Spirit every day, and several times a day; and also to fill us with his love, or that charity that vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up and never faileth. When we are really fitted for the service of God, by the operation of the Holy Spirit, we shall not feel like boasting of our own strength, or wisdom, or our own righteousness; for we shall have such a view of the purity and holiness of Deity, and such a view of our own unworthiness that we shall wish to get down pretty low, and hardly dare to look up.—Token of Truth.

Old Sins.

Dr. Guthrie says: "I have read of brave, stout captives who have escaped from prison, but who brought away with them swollen joints or festering wounds, as marks and injuries of the cruel fetters. And do not old sins continue to hang about a man, even after grace has delivered him from their dominant power? Who does not need every day and hour to resort to the fountain of cleansing, and wash his heart in the blood of Christ, oftener than he washes his hands in water? We need to be renewed day by day; converted as it were, not once or twice, but every day. Surely, the happiness of a child of God lies mainly in this—that sin though it remains within his heart, has ceased to reign there, and that, made perfect at length in holiness, he shall enter at last into the full and glorious liberty of the children of God.

Soul Rest.

True faith produces an immediate rest of soul from all carefulness and anxiety, and settles it in great peace. This state of freedom from carefulness and anxiety will be as broad as the intelligence of him who exercises faith. Ignorance of the promises, and of Christ's official relations, and of what we may expect of him may prevent or break the soul's rest under certain circumstances or in certain emergencies. For example, suppose the soul to be ignorant of the declaration that "all things work together for good to them that love God;" or of this, "My grace is sufficient for thee;" or of this, "I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee;" or this, "As thy day is, so thy strength shall be." Then certain trials may throw the soul into a state of unrest and anxiety. I mention these merely as examples of how ignorance or a want of thoughtfulness may embarrass the spiritual life, and break up the rest of a true believer, until he is informed or remembers what he has in the fulness of his blessed Saviour.—C. G. Finney.

Wise Use of Money.

If money comes, let it come. He who sends it does not mean it to hurt us. We need not fear it with a feeble terror, though no one sin has ruined so many souls as covetousness. We will not spring at it with a flutter of excited joy, for it is a grievous trial to the humblest and simplest.

And if money goes, let it go. Only let us see that it does not go through folly or sin of ours. Job lost his one way, and Lot lost his in another. The end of Job was a crown of glory, but the candle of Lot went out in hideous night. Probably there are few of us who have lived to middle life, very few indeed who have passed it, to whose door could be laid no error of judgment in spending their money, no taint of conscience in massing it. In this greatest of great trusts, who has not sometimes failed? Conscience has said, "Give," and we have not given. We have steeled our hearts,, and summoned our coldest judgment to justify us in refusals, which now we would gladly get back; but it is too late. Witnesses to our self-indulgence surround us in every room we enter; if we have done something for our Lord, our heart whispers we might have done so much more!

But there is time in front; and He who gives us power to get wealth will also give us wisdom to use it, if we really ask Him. Let us be wise, simple and kind. —Sel.

Parsee Customs.

One of the features in Bombay is in the Towers of Silence. The existence of these Towers of Silence is due to the curious system the Parsees have of dealing with their dead. They do not bury in the ground, for that would defile the earth, it being one of the four sacred elements which they venerate. Neither would they throw a body into the sea, as we do at times; nor into the river, which the Hindoos are in the habit of doing, for that would defile the water, another of the elements. Nor could they possibly burn their dead, for that would defile the fire, which to them is a peculiarly sacred element. To avoid these defilements they build a tower, and the dead are placed on top of it, so that they are out of sight and yet there they may go through the process of decay, which would no doubt, be rapid in a hot climate like India; but this rapidity is assisted by a colony of vultures, who keep posession of the palm trees, and are ready to swoop down when a 'silent' addition is added to these towers. There is a house attached, called the suggree, in which prayer and some sacred ceremonies are gone through for the dead. When the body is carried from this the face is uncovered, so that all may have a last look; and no one except the bearers of the body is allowed to enter the door which leads to the upper part of these Towers of Silence. But who are the Parsees? The visitor is not long in Bombay before he becomes familiar with the sight of the Parsees walking on the beach and saying their prayers to the sun. They walk about, each by himself, with book in hand, muttering in slightly audible words, the ritual of their religion. It is in the Zend language, which has come down to them much as the Latin has in the Catholic church, and is more or less a dead language. The expounders of the Parsee faith say that they only pay homage to the sun as the visible sign of the Supreme Deity, and that their worship of fire is dictated by the same rule; and that in truth it is to God, through these symbols, their devotion is given. They have temples where the sacred fire is kept, and on which account they are called "fire-worshipers," as well as "sun-worshipers," but no stranger is ever admitted to them. The fire is brought from the city Yezd, in Persia, which is the sacred capital of religion, and from which they emigrated to escape the fury of Mohammedan zeal. They came to Bombay and Surat, where they were kindly received by the Hindoos, and allowed to settle in the country, where they have ever since remained. They made an agreement at the time with the Hindoos, one article of which was that they would not kill a cow. This was out of deference to Brahminical ideas, and that is the reason they do not eat beef, but not from any prohibition in their own religion. The absence of restrictive rules as to caste and prohibitions as to food gives them greater liberty of action, and enables them to travel. This is why so many of them now come to this country, and it may explain the great success they have achieved in business, which is one of the causes of Bombay success in trade, as the Parsees form a most important portion of the native community there.—Selected.

Trifles.

Our lives, or rather their happiness and misery, are, in a great measure made up of trifles, just as time is made up of moments.

The discomfort of having to wait for a meal beyond its regular hour, of finding things ill-prepared or carelessly done, of meeting slovenliness and discomfort where a little thought and pains might have introduced ease and even elegance, or of being brought up sharp at every turn by want of punctuality or of method—these are ills more difficult to bear than the uninitiated imagine. Most houses might be comfortable and elegant—yes, elegant!—For comfort consists in finding everything where and as it should be; elegance, in adding to what should be there that which need not be there, but whose presence surprises, attracts and gratifies. There is often neither comfort nor elegance in the richest mansions, while both are found in the laborer's cottage. A jug filled with flowers, a neat white curtain, a couple of flowers may effect what the expenditure of hundreds of dollars has not achieved. Let it not be said that these are mere trifles, unworthy the attention of the Christian. Distrust the pretence of spirituality whose eyes are too lofty for the common things of life. In the long catalogue of things to "think on," (Phil. iv. 8) they rank a any rate among the "whatsoever things are lovely." You say they are trifles; then all the more they ought not to be neglected. But trifles though they be, to neglect them is not a trifle, it is a breach of plain duty.—Hearth and Home..

—One of the finest chapters in current history is quietly recorded in the report of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal upon the famine of 1874. We find it condensed in the Spectator.—The English Government recognized the impending danger, brought every resource to bear, and completely averted it. The most efficient instrument was a railway rapidly built to connect the threatened district with a richer country. Little money was wasted (there is no hint that any was stolen) for the Spectator estimates that three-fourths of the expense was amply repaid by the experience gained. But the most noteworthy feature is the net result of lives saved. The Lieutenant-Governor, upon a careful estimate, concludes that two millions of people would have perished but for the Government's intervention. That is, there were saved from the most distressing of deaths a number of people three or four times as great as the whole number that perished in our civil war. And it is noted that, instead of being pauperized by the relief, the people were found to have become more industrious. It may be presumed that India, at least, will rate this achievement higher than any victory of Clive or Wellesly.

Children's Corner.

Catching Cod-Fish.

Little readers, you all, doubtless, have heard about the cod-fish; at least, enough to know that he is very good to eat, and many persons are engaged in the business of catching him out at sea and generally far from land.

But perhaps you would like to learn something more about this useful fish of the salty seas, and how he is caught,—something that came under the writer's own observation, and in which he at one time played a part. Should I tell you that the cod-fish lives on the bottom of the sea, about two hundred feet deep and over below the surface of the water, and that some of these fish weigh as high as fifty and seventy-five pounds, you may wonder how a person could be able to draw them out with simply a hook and line, or how a hook could sink so deep; or you might think that other kinds of fish would bite as well as cod; but likely your greatest query would be, how they are able to find the cod at all in such deep water, and so far from land.

In the first place, the way by which the fishermen are able to find out where the cod lives is this:

When a fishing vessel arrives at the fishing grounds, or at a place in the sea where the water is the usual depth for the cod, a plummet, or leaden weight, smeared with tallow, attached to a stout cord of the right length, is thrown out into the sea and sunk to the bottom, and is drawn up again by pulling on the string.

Now, since the cod-fish lives on fine sandy bottom of a peculiar color, when the lead is withdrawn, if any sand of this nature is found sticking to it then it is known that cod-fishes are there, and the next thing to be done is to sink a hook, and draw them out as fast as you can pull the line.

The hook alone will not sink in such deep water, so a heavy lead weight of from one to ten pounds is fastened to the line near the hook, and sometimes the sea is so rough or the currents are so strong that a weight of even twenty pounds is necessary to sink the hook.

As soon as a bite is felt the fisherman draws in his line rapidly over the side of the vessel. Of course it is hard on the fingers, drawing in large fish at such great depths from day to day, and as a protection finger stalls or nibs are worn, which are knit of yarn for this purpose.

However, the strain is not so great as one would think, since the fish are about the same density as the water; and although they may be large and at great depths, they are pretty easily drawn up, unless they should take a fit of kicking and jumping in order to get off the hook, and in that case you might accidentally be drawn overboard if not careful. But sometimes one does get off the hook when you are almost ready to flop him on board, and all your trouble is for nothing. And sometimes a Mr. Shark will follow the fish when he is being drawn up near the top of the water, and all at once snap him in twain with his chisel teeth. And sometimes a shark will get fast on the hook and bite the line in two; so the hook is lost. But this is seldom the case, as the shark does not live in such deep water as the cod.

The fish, as soon as drawn up, are taken off the hook, strewn on the vessel's deck, and when the days fishing is ended they are quickly cleaned, that is their heads are cut off and entrails taken out, and the fish, nicely washed with the sea water, are packed with broken ice in compartments of the vessel for that purpose; these compartments being intended to hold, all told, about two or three thousand fish, which is considered a cargo, or load. There will often be from eight to ten men fishing at once from the sides of the vessel, and from five to six hundred fish may be caught in one day, if the fishing is good. Every fishing smack (vessel) carries from two to four jolly boats, into which the fishermen get, a man to a boat. They go off oftimes a great distance from the vessel to fish, and sometimes get lost in the thick fogs, and are never heard from again. But in case a boat gets lost it is generally able to find the vessel again by a signal from a gun, or the blast of a horn given from the deck.

These fogs when quite heavy bother the fishermen very much in steering the vessel, for the helmsman cannot see the light-houses, and has no object to steer by except the compass alone. The compass is very useful, but cannot be depended on altogether. The nearness of land is found out when the eye is of no use, by the water becoming more shallow, as shown by the plummet. Fogs are not all the trouble that the poor fisherman has to contend with. Frequently a storm or a gale of wind will suddenly come upon him, threatening him with destruction. Did you ever see a storm at sea? It is much different from a storm on land; it comes on much quicker and more powerfully, insomuch that sometimes the poor seaman has hardly time to take in the sail before the wind, filled with rain, is blowing a hurricane, and the sea is raging like a boiling chaldron, tossing the little vessel up and down and every other way as though it were a chip, and the way the lightnings flash and the thunders roll is dreadful to tell.

Often the poor seaman is delayed by dead weather; that is, there is no wind blowing to fill the sails, and of course the vessel must stand still. If there is anything that makes a person feel badly it is being out far at sea, away from land and people, in a dead calm, on a hot summer's day. Everything is as still as a mouse, not even a ripple can be seen on the sea, and the sun beats down so hot on the vessel's deck as to make it almost unendurable.

The sailor has a hard time of it, on the whole, but he soon gets hardened to his business, and hardships become a second nature with him. He has a big heart and a whole soul, but his wild and isolated life unfits him for society and life's solemn duties. We who live on land, away from dangers, in our snug and comfortable homes, know not how to sympathize with the poor wave-tossed fisherman of the seas, let alone how to appreciate the many advantages we daily enjoy at the hand of God.—The Methodist.

Home and Health Hints.

To Restore Fainting Persons.—I is altogether wrong to hold up a fainting person and especially to keep the head erect. Fainting is caused by a want of blood in the brain, the heart failing to act with sufficient force to send the blood against the laws of gravitation. If then, you place a person sitting, whose heart has nearly ceased to beat, his brain will fail to receive blood; if you lay him down with the head lower than the heart, the blood will run into the brain by the mere force of gravity; and in fainting, in sufficient quantity, generally, to restore consciousness.

School Children's Health.—Look out for the health of your school children now. They ought to be healthier at school than at home; but, alas! it is not always so. Children often learn vicious habits at school. Guard against this. The moral atmosphere of schools is often low. Make it high. Children have a power over each other. What one does and has the other wants. "Lucy," says one school girl to another, "do you work in the kitchen at home?" "Yes," says Lucy. "Well, I wouldn't." And so Lucy, if not over sensible and wise, lets her mother do the work and she plays the butterfly. This is all wrong, and needs to be remedied. Take warning in time.

Take Time to Rest.—Most men and women keep in the traces, and keep pulling the year round. All the more, therefore,, is it their duty to take things easier as the hot weather comes on. Take longer rests at noon. Put on less steam when you are at work. Snatch a Sabbath now and then from the middle of the week. You can't? You can. People find time to be sick and to die. They can just as easily find time to rest and keep well. Everything does not depend on finishing that dress or fencing that field; on "putting up" so much fruit or catching so many customers. Better that the children should wear old clothes than that their mother should be laid aside by fever. Better that the corn crop be a little lighter than that there be no one to harvest it. Put up the store-shutters earlier at night; prepare plainer meals in the kitchen. Take a noonday nap yourself, and give your employees a chance to go a-fishing of an afternoon now and then. That only is duty which the Lord lays upon us, and he is not so hard a master as we sometimes suppose.

The Bacco Gown.

A Lancashire father said to his daughter, "Here's some money to buy a gown. Be sure and haven made by Sunday, and I'm guoin to have a new coat." On Sunday morning the gown and coat were put on, and the father said, "Now we'll go to church together." On the way he took hold of the sleeves and said, "That's a bacco gown, girl." "A bacco gown, what do you mean by that?" "Don't you know I've left off smoking, and that's bought with some o' the money I've saved, and when that on's gone there's plenty o' money to buy another."

O! happy day when the hard earnings of the working classes, which they now spend in tobacco and drink shall be employed for articles of necessity, comfort and convenience, and when many who now idle away the day which God has set apart and blest, amidst fumes of tobacco, will repair to his house to hear his Word.—Ex.

Masonic Books,

FOR SALE AT THE CYNOSURE OFFICE.

Those who wish to know the character of Freemasonry, as shown by its own publications, will find many standard works in the following list.

No sensible Mason dares deny that such men as Albert G. Mackey, the great Masonic Lexicographer, and Daniel Sickels, the Masonic author and publisher, are the highest Masonic authority in the United States.

Allyn's Ritual of Masonry,

Illustrated by a large number of engravings, and containing a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, Orange nd Odd-fellows' societies. Price, $5.00.

Mackey's Masonic Ritualist;

OR

MONITORIAL INSTRUCTION BOOK

BY ALBERT G. MACKEY,

Past General High Priest of the General Grand Chapter of the United States, Knight of the Eagle and Pelican, Prince of Mercy," Etc. Etc. Price, Cloth $2.25, Tuck $1.75.

Mackey's Lexicon of Freemasonry,

Containing a Definition of Terms, Notices of its History, Traditions and Antiquities, and an account of all the Rites and Mysteries of the Ancient World. 12 mo. 526 pages, $3 00

MACKEY'S MANUAL OF THE LODGE

OR

Monitorial Instructions in the Degrees of Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft, and Master Mason; with Ceremonies relating to Installations, Dedications, Consecrations, Laying of Corner-stones &c. Price, $2 00

MACKEY'S TEXT BOOK

OF

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

Illustrating the Laws of Freemasonry, both written and unwritten.

This is the Great Law Book of Freemasonry 570 pages. Price, $2.50.

Webb's Monitor of Freemasonry,

LARGE EDITION, WITH NOTES

By ROB. MORRIS, Price, $1.50.
Pocket Edition, 75 cts.

SICKELS' FREEMASON'S MONITOR.

Containing the Degrees of Freemasonry embraced in the Lodge, Chapter, Council and Commandery, embellished with nearly 300 symbolic Illustrations. Together with Tactics and drill of Masonic Knighthood. Also, forms of Masonic Documents, Notes, Songs, Masonic dates, installations, etc. By D. Sickels, 32 mo tuck. Price $1.50. Cloth $1.00.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry.

A Practical Guide to the Ceremonies in the Degrees conferred in Masonic Lodge Chapter, Encampments, etc. Illustrated Edition. In cloth, $1 25; paper, 75 cts.

Chase's Digest of Masonic Law.

Comprises a Complete Code of Regulations Decisions and Opinions upon Questions of Masonic Jurisprudence. Price, $2 25.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor

Illustrated with Explanatory Engravings Price $2 50.

GENERAL AHIMAN REZON AND FREEMASON'S GUIDE.

BY DANIEL SICKELS, 33°

The most perfect Masonic Monitor published in the United States. Embellished with nearly 300 Engravings, and Portrait of the Author, Containing Monitorial Instructions in the Degrees of Entered Apprentice, Fellow-Craft, and Master Mason, with Explanatory Notes and Lectnres; with the Ceremonies of Consecration and Dedication of New Lodges, Installation of Officers, Laying Foundation Stones, Dedication of Masonic Halls, Burial Services, Masonic Calendar, Ritnal for a Lodge of Sorrow, Masonic Trials, etc.
Bound in fine cloth extra, large 12mo.....$2.00.

TRUE MASONIC CHART; OR, HIEROGLYPHIC MONITOR.

BY JEREMY L. CROSS, Grand Lecturer.

With a Memoir and Portrait of the Author, Containing all the Emblems explained in the Degrees of entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft, and Master Mason. Designed and arranged agreeably to the Lectures.
12mo, Cloth.....$1 50

FEMALE MASONRY.

MANNUAL OF THE ORDER OF THE EASTERN STAR.

Containing the Ritnal, Symbols Lectures etc., of the five Degrees of "Adoptive Masonry:" Jeptha's Danghter; Ruth, Esther, Martha and Electa, profusely illustraited and handsomely bound.
Price.....$1 00.

THE AMERICAN PARTY.

ITS OBJECT, ORGANIZATION, PLATFORM AND CANDIDATES.

Thomas Jefferson denominates "The right of election by the people a mild and safe corrective of abuses which are lopped by the sword of revolution, where peaceable remedies are unprovided."

OBJECT.

The object of the American Party is to use this mild and safe corrective to remedy the fearful evils arising from secret societies, from the use of intoxicating liquors, from casting the Bible out of schools and from allowing the public desecration of the Sabbath.

ORGANIZATION.

The American Party was organized under this title in 1874 in Syracuse, New York. But in fact the party has been at work since 1872. In June, 1872, at Oberlin, Ohio, it nominated Charles Frances Adams for President, and J. L. Barlow for Vice-president of the United States. In that year a full ticket of State officers was nominated in Illinois. Some local tickets in different States have been elected.

The name,

AMERICAN PARTY,

was adopted after prolonged discussion. Among the arguments for it were the following: One gentleman said:

"We are Americans. I was born in Old England, but born again here, and I am glad I am an American, The adoption of this name would be a going back to first principles. All will inquire, What are the principles of the new party? We can answer, We are going back to the glorious maxims of our fathers, on whose justice and truth the whole prosperity of our nation depends."

Another said that

"He was a foreigner by birth, but had come to this country and been adopted as a citizen. He wanted to be an American. We should have the name as well as the thing. Every foreigner must expect to adopt American principles if they wish to become Americans. There is danger that Americans in their ambitious liberality may sacrifice themselves to foreign influences. We should take a name expressive of our principles and maintain both."

Another briefly, though eloquently, said:

"We are Americans! What does the name signify? It means free government, free institutions, every precious liberty bequeathed from our fathers."

PLATFORM.

The platform was revised and adopted at Pittsburgh, Pa., in June, 1875. It contains the following live issues:

1st. Christianity against infidelity and heathenism.

2d. A proper observance of the Sabbath.

3d. Prohibition of intoxicating liquors as a beverage.

4th. The withdrawal of Masonic charters and prohibition of Masonic oaths.

5th. Civil Rights.

6th. Arbitration better than war.

7th. The Bible in schools.

8th. Monopolies discountenanced.

9th. A return to specie payments.

10th. Maintenance of public credit; protection of loyal citizens; justice to Indians.

11th. A direct vote for President and Vice-president.

We here print the platform in full:

PLATFORM.

We hold: 1. That ours is a Christian and not a heathen nation, and that the God of the Christian Scriptures is the author of civil government.

2. That God requires and man needs a Sabbath.

3. That the prohibition of the importation, manufacture and sale of intoxicating drinks as a beverage, is the true policy on the temperance question.

4. The charters of all secret lodges granted by our Federal and State Legislatures should be withdrawn, and their oaths prohibited by law.

5. That the civil equality secured to all American citizens by article 13th, 14th and 15th of our amended Constitution should be preserved inviolate.

6. That arbitration of differences with nations is the most direct and sure method of securing and perpetuating a permanent peace.

7. That to cultivate the intellect without improving the morals of men, is to make mere adepts and experts; therefore the Bible should be associated with books of science and literature in all our educational institutions.

8. That land and other monopolies should be discountenanced.

9. That the Government should furnish the people with an ample and sound currency, and a return to specie payment as soon as practicable.

10. That maintenance of the public credit, protection to all loyal citizens, and justice to Indians are essential to the honor and safety of our nation.

11. And finally, we demand for the American people the abolition of Electoral Colleges, and a direct vote for President and Vice-president of the United States.

The charm and glory of our political movement is our platform. The haggling, huckstering attempts by the old parties to make issues where there are no material differences between them, are so manifestly efforts for existence with the people that they are wet blankets on their own heads. God makes issues. He forced that of slavery on the country, and the American people responded to it. So now he has brought on us the issue Heathenism or Christianism; a Sabbath for the masses or Asiatic perpetual drudgery relieved only by beer gardens and bear gardens as in Germany and Paris; godless schools or Christian; and finally as the sure and certain results, the Asiatic despotism of the lodge or civil liberty for the masses. The platform must be taken up and spread before the people article by article.

At a mass meeting held in Pittsburgh June 9th, 1875 (the same convention which adopted the platform), Hon. J. B. Walker of Wheaton, Ill., was nominated for the next President of the United States, and Donald Kirkpatrick of Syracuse, N. Y., for Vice-president.

DR. WALKER'S NOMINATION AND ACCEPTANCE.

LETTER OF THE COMMITTEE.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 9, 1875.

Hon. J. B. Walker, Wheaton, Ill.

DEAR SIR:—It has been made our duty to inform you that the political Convention met here to-day have unanimously selected you as their candidate for President of the United States at the election of 1876. The members of the Convention would be gratified by a letter from you stating your views respecting this action. Respectfully yours,

B. T. ROBERTS Ch'm.
C. A. BLANCHARD, Sec'y.

MR. WALKER'S REPLY. *ABBREVIATED.

To Messrs. Roberts and Blanchard:

GENTLEMEN:—If I had been a member of the convention at Pittsburgh, I am sure some more worthy name than my own would have been placed at the head of our ticket. As it is, my respect for the character and judgment of the gentlemen who composed the convention induces me, with gratitude for the confidence which the nomination implies, to accept the position which you have assigned me.

In doing this I accept the responsibility which it involves, to aid as I have means and opportunity in disseminating the views which we all hope will disclose to the people the un-American, immoral and anti-Christian character of the Masonic institution. I speak of the institution—not of all the men who have been betrayed into its criminal secrets.

A large proportion of the people have not examined the character of Masonry, and do not know what the ablest and best men of the country have thought on the subject. Washington was led into the lodge when a young man, but withdrew from association with it when he had learned its character. And near the close of his active life, he wrote to a friend, who was an Anti-mason, "I preside over no lodge, nor have I been in one more than once or twice in thirty years. (Letter in Spark's Life of Washington.) From this early testimony of the first name in our history down to Charles Sumner, recently deceased, our best and most patriotic men have denounced Masonry, and warned the country against its influence. Adams, Madison, Monroe, Wirt, Rush, Chief Justice Marshal, Daniel Webster, Edward Everett, Charles Sumner, Wm. H. Seward, Judge Marcy, and leading Christian men such as Moses Stuart, Charles G. Finney, Bishop Hamline and Nathaniel Colver (the latter three having been initiated into the rites of the lodges) have denounced the institution as undemocratic, anti-social and un-Christian. These testimonies of representative men who knew the character of Masonry have not been heard by the masses of the people, and Masons will not permit them to be heard if they can prevent it.

Allow me, gentlemen, to add a word or two in regard to some aspects of this combination of oath-bound men which will influence my mind to do what I can for its suppression.

I believe the oaths taken by Masons are not only contrary to Christ's teaching, which commands that men shall "swear not at all," but they likewise pervert in every case the conscience of the recipients. and through them damage the social and civil interests of the country. This was so apparent to the statesman and jurist, Daniel Webster, that he published his opinion that such oaths were subversive of the public good, and should be prohibited by law (see letter to Harmer Denny). Such likewise was the decision of the legislatures of Vermont and Rhode Island, which had the Masonic obligations disclosed under oath of those who had taken the obligations.

It will be found that a large proportion of the late frauds upon the State and National treasuries, committed during the past and present administrations for thirty years, have been committed by Masons. They learned in the lodge to disregard the righteousness of an oath, or to put a Masonic or reserved construction upon it, and hence they go into public life with perverted minds in regard to rectitude in business; and by perjury and fraud fill the land with political and financial corruption. With the men connected with the whisky frauds we have no personal acquaintance; but others, well informed, state what will, no doubt, on examination be found to be true, that they are men whose consciences had been corrupted by secret oaths of one sort or another, or by association with men who had taken such oaths.

The influence of these oath-bound men upon the administration of justice from the president to the town officer is constantly operative. Not that the administrators of justice are always Masons, but not aware of the secret machinations of the lodge-men to grant each other assistance, they receive petitions and statements gotten up by Masons, not knowing them to be such, and are in like manner approached by emissaries of the lodge who intercede for Masonic criminals or supplicate for the appointment of Masonic associates.

President Grant has been censured for frequent pardons of criminals tried and convicted on decisive evidence. Some of these have been so distinctly a perversion of justice, that they have surprised his best friends. The explanation of all this, many men know, is to be found in the craft of the lodge. The facts in a recent case explain the others and are somewhat startling. Rev. B. T. Roberts of Rochester, New York, publishes the following statements in regard to the influence of the lodges in rescuing criminals from the penalties of the law, and placing them in positions from which they ought to be excluded. He says in the Pittsburgh Commercial, 10th of June:

"None but a civil magistrate should have power to administer oaths, but when those men in a private capacity usurp this authority, it is a serious interference with the administration of justice. I will relate an instance: Not long since I discovered that I was losing money and letters from the post-office. I informed the post-office department at Washington of the facts of the case and they sent on a detective to work up the affair. He soon detected the thief, in fact caught him in the very act of stealing. The man was tried, convicted and sentenced, not to the penitentiary or to the jail, but to one year in the county work-house. After several months imprisonment he was pardoned by the President. He now fills a position in the Detroit Custom House; and I understand that before he was convicted of stealing from me he had been found guilty two or three times of petty larceny. He was a Mason and it was through their influence that he was liberated."

A like case, only of worse character, occurred not long ago in Belvidere in this State, where a man who had betrayed and then aided in causing the death of an orphan girl, was shielded by Masons in county offices, and members of the court and jury; and although the crime was acknowledged, the culprit, by Masonic aid, went "unwhipped of justice."

So in Michigan, Vanderpool, whom a jury had unanimously convicted of murder in the first degree, was by the influence of Masons operating through the lodges in different parts of the State, freed from the penalty of murder. The principal actor in this case was a Royal Arch Mason, living in a distant county. In his degree murder is not excepted from the list of crimes in which Masons are by oath bound to aid each other. I am aware that in some cases the full form of the oaths are not always administered in some lodges; but Masons are sworn to obey not only what is made known to them when they are initiated, but also what is reserved and may be communicated thereafter.

Some adhering Masons of character and candor when appealed to will not deny this detrimental influence of the institution upon the administration of justice. Mayor Colden of New York, an advanced Mason, in answer to a joint letter from some of his friends, who asked him whether the institution of Masonry corrupted the courts of law, said, "Many of the fraternity feel themselves obliged in whatever situation they may be placed to suffer an appeal from a brother Mason to have influence. Offenders have persuaded themselves that they could claim exemption from punishment as Masons. And even at a bar of a court of justice, a criminal has thought he secured immunity by revealing to the judge, who was about to pronounce his sentence their Masonic relationship." Mayor Colden had experience in the matter. He had filled the highest offices in the State and in the city. No Masonic denial can avail against his testimony. Yet if he is true, Masons generally are false on this subject.

Now when bad men who desire to defraud the public and escape the penalty, learn of the strength of the lodges, and of their oaths to keep the secrets of criminals, they will, of course, crowd into the lodges in order to gain their influence. And when unprincipled office-seekers understand the principles of the lodges, they will, of course, take the obligations. Thus it happens that the lodges are composed in large measure of self-seeking men, while the good men among them demit, or hold merely a nominal relation.

Born of Masonic influence, a horde of secret associations now cover the face of the whole land. Originating with the Masons in Washington City, a portion of the farmers in some of the States are separating from their neighbors and forming secret combinations, the leaders of which will use their subordinates and defraud them of their money. The red communists, the miners, the laborers in factories have now organized into secret combinations; and opposed to these capitalists and employers have organized antagonistic lodges; and the land is thus filled with strife and violence, which recently, in some of our States, could be suppressed only by military power. Men who ought to be friends and co-operate for each other's good, are by secret oaths and combinations, organized as enemies. The cause of the laborer is the one that should secure the sympathy and assistance of good men, and monopolies of capital or by combination should be discouraged. But the secret association can claim no aid from those outside of its organization. And Masonry the mother of secrecy, after engendering these secret combinations, forsakes the victims to their fate. No laboring man can enter the higher lodges of the Masons. . . The taxes are so heavy that men of moderate means cannot pay the dues. These upper lodges are the ruling powers which swear to conceal their secrets from the lower lodges, and these lower and poorer men are all subjected to the absolute control of the Grand Lodge.

Another aspect of Masonry which exhibits its injurious effects upon members, and through them upon the country, is seen in the fact that the origin and development of the system from beginning to end is dark with falsehood. There never has been an institution fellowshiped by respectable men that like Masonry lived and moved and had its being in lies. All well-informed Masons know and concede that their institution had its origin in a London tavern, in the reign of Queen Anne, and yet before the public, and the novices that they lead into the Master's lodge, they attribute its origin to the time of Solomon; and publicly by their symbols, and privately by their lodge work, they perpetuate what they know to be a falsehood.

They go through the sham of the death, burial and resurrection of Hiram Abiff, in which no respectable man would ever participate if not bound to the false presentment by the degradation of his oath.

They walk in the streets on St. John's day, decorated in paste jewelry, and assuming preposterous titles, of which an Indian might be ashamed. They do this knowing that their assumption is a libel upon the simplicity of the Gospel, that John the Baptist was beheaded by a man who, like the Masons, had taken an oath not knowing what would be the consequence, and that the Evangelist repeats the injunction of Jesus that men shall "swear not at all."

They profess to be a charitable society while they are the most completely selfish institution of our time. Money is gathered from members of the lodges in the rural districts to buy childish trinkets and to build temples for the higher Masons in the principal cities, some of these edifices costing millions of dollars. They take just the opposite position required by the benevolence of the Gospel. They exclude all women, all poor and disabled persons, "the lame, the halt, and the blind," and admit none but able-bodied men, who can pay their dues to the lodges. Their claim to be a benevolent institution is a deception and a fraud.

They claim to be a moral society and yet swear their members without exception to conceal from every one, even their own wives, the secrets of the lodge; and to keep the secrets of their brother Masons in their own breasts, no matter how wicked they may be, murder and treason only excepted. They swear their members to respect the virtue of a Master Mason's wife and daughter, excluding by their oath those women who are not connected with Masons. They filled their lodges during the war with young men by the falsehood that if taken prisoner by the enemy, brother Masons of the South would show them favor; yet Jefferson Davis and the Southern officials, who were almost without exception Masons, starved Masons and Anti-masons together at Richmond and Andersonville without mercy.

When they accept a member they tell him that nothing in the lodge will interfere with his religion or his politics; yet the professed Christian who kneels with them must not only deny his Lord, but in reading the Bible, in the lessons prescribed by the lodges, every passage in which the name of Christ occurs is omitted, or the Saviour's name dropped out. Thus after promising that they will not interfere with the religion of the candidate, they not only cast out the name of Christ, but mutilate the Bible in order to do so. If there be an anti-Christ in existence the Masonic lodge is one.

The frauds in all departments of the government and in all forms of business, are becoming more prevalent and more alarming. That these are attributable, in a large measure, to the fact that the public offices and places of trust and profit are in the hands of fore-sworn men, we can no more doubt than we can doubt the connection of cause and effect. Men who debase their conscience by practicing falsehoods and by illegal oaths have fitted themselves to do, and aid others in doing fraudulent things. The well-meant efforts of the government to punish the criminals who have disregarded their oaths and obligations will be unavailing. The same depravity of conscience will show itself under every administration, and in all parties, so long as the sources which corrupt men's consciences, and lead them to keep criminal secrets and connive at criminal practices, are found in almost every village throughout the land. The axe must be laid at the root of the upas—not on the branches.

The present is a time when men can afford to be independent. No man can lose anything by acting as an independent voter. The reform party, composed of temperance men, Anti-masons and conscientious voters of every class, presents an issue which, if carried, or even so successful as to gain the balance of power, will save the country from the blight of superstition, and the rule of corrupt and corrupting politicians.

It is evident that active measures for reform are urgently needed. Once before in the history of the country, Anti-masons have united with other conscientious voters and thus succeeded in suppressing the lodges throughout the free States. William Wirt, of revered memory, led the movement on the national ticket. We can do no better than close by commending to the attention of every one a passage from his address of acceptance. He says:—"There is the most demonstrative proof that the persons who had entered into these unhallowed oaths, considered their allegiance to the lodges as as of higher obligation than their allegiance to their country. If this be Masonry as according to this uncontradicted evidence it seems to be, I have no hesitation in saying that I consider it at war with the fundamental principles of the social compact, as treason against society, and a wicked conspiracy against the laws God and man which ought to be put down."

I am, gentlemen, very respectfully, your fellow-citizen,

JAMES B. WALKER.

Wheaton, Ill., June, 1875.

LETTER OF ACCEPTANCE

FROM DONALD KIRKPATRICK, ESQ.

SYRACUSE, Aug. 10, 1875.

Mr. C. A. Blanchard:

MY DEAR SIR:—Your letter informing me of my nomination at the Pittsburgh Convention, was duly received. I scarcely expected that the convention at this early day would nominate candidates for the next Presidential election, and still less that myself would be one of those candidates.

The Platform of the convention embraces several distinct reforms which are being agitated at the present day. My own idea of accomplishing anything in the way of reform is to present one issue at a time; and while expressions of opinion are well enough, as to the others it appears to me that the issue should be distinctly made upon the question of anti-secrecy, the principle upon which we were first organized and in which we are thoroughly united.

With these views, I accept the nomination. In the meantime should a larger body, representing a more numerous constituency, assemble for the purpose of nominating candidates favorable to this issue, an event which I consider not entirely impossible, I would cheerfully withdraw for some better known, more honored and worthier name. I remain very truly, your obedient servant,

D. KIRKPATRICK.

[TO BE CONCLUDED.]

ANTI-MASONIC BOOKS,

(Not our own Publications.)

For Sale by EZRA A. COOK & CO

13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

[FOR CATALOGUE OF PUBLICATIONS OF EZRA A. COOK & CO., See page 15.]

All books sent post paid, on receipt of retail price, but BOOKS SENT BY MAIL ARE NOT AT OUR RISK.

Books ordered by express are sold at 10 per cent. discount and SENT AT OUR RISK. Party ordering must pay express charges.

Elder Stearns' Books.

Stearns' Inquiry Into the Nature and Tendency of Masonry With an Appendix.

SEVENTH EDITION.

338 Pages, in Cloth.....60 cents.
" " " Paper.....40 "

Stearns' Letters on Masonry.

Showing the antagonism between Freemasonry and the Christian Religion.
Price, 30 cents.

Stearns' Review of Two Masonic Addresses.

In this scathing review the lying pretentions of the order are clearly shown.
Price, 10 cents.

Levington's Key to Masonry.

This is Rev. Mr. Levington's last, and in the judgment of its author, best work on Masonry. The contents of the first chapter are as follows:

"Commencement and growth of Speculative or Symbolic Freemasonry—A table showing the thing at a glance—The use that the Atheists made of it—Identical with Illuminism—Its connection with the French Revolution, and with the Irish Rebellion—The action of the British Parliament with regard to it—Proofs of its diabolical purposes—Its Introduction, doings, progress and designs in the United States."

The contents of the Eleventh chapter are thus startling:

"Knights of the Golden Circle—Graphic account of them by a seceding Knight, and remarks thereon, showing the identity of the order with Masonry—Quotations from Sir Walter Scott."

This work is thrilling in statement, and powerful in argument. 425 pagenes,
Price. $1.35.

Light on Freemasonry.

BY ELDER D. BERNARD,

TO WHICH IS APPENDED A

Revelation of the Mysteries of Odd-fellowship by a Member of the Craft.

The whole containing over five hundred pages lately revised and republished. Price $2,00

The first part of the above work, Light on Freemasonry, 416 pages in paper cover, will be sent post paid on receipt of $1.

FOR SALE BY

United Brethren Publishing House,
DAYTON, O.
and by
EZRA A. COOK & CO.,
13 Wabash Ave, CHICAGO.

Finney on Masonry.

BOUND IN CLOTH, PRICE $1.00.

CHEAP EDITION,

Twenty-five dollars per hundred, by express and not less than 25 copies at that rate.

BY MAIL, POST-PAID:

Per doz.....$3 75.
Single copy,..... 35 c

ODD-FELLOWSHIP

JUDGED BY ITS OWN UTTERANCES;

Its Doctrine and Practice examined in the light of God's Word.

BY REV. J. H. BROCKMAN.

This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-Fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. It was originally published in German.
Price, bound in Boards, 75 cents.

GOOD TEMPLARISM EXPOSED.

Obligations, of the Initiatory Fidelity, Charity, and Royal Virtue Degrees.

This is a small book containing only the Obligations and some of the Odes of the Good Templars.

Single Copy, Post paid, ... 10cts.
Per Doz. " 75
Per 100 by Express,..... $4.50

Bernard's Appendix to Light on Masonry,

Showing the Character of the Institution by it's terrible oaths and penalties. Paper covers, 25 cents.

ANTIMASONIC TRACTS.

WE NOW HAVE 25 ENGLISH TRACTS, ONE GERMAN, AND ONE SWEEDISH

These tracts are sold at the rate of $1.00 per 1000 pages.

"THE ANTI-MASONS SCRAP BOOK."

Contains 24 Cynosure Tracts, bound together, and is just the thing to select tracts from. Price 20 cents. See advertisement.

For information about Free Tracts see advertisement headed "Free Tracts."

Address EZRA A. COOK & Co.,
13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

TRACT NO. 1:

HISTORY OF MASONRY.

BY PRESIDENT J. BLANCHARD, OF WHEATON COLLEGE.

This is now published in three tracts of four pages each. Price of each, 50 cents per 100; $4 per 1000.

TRACT No. 1, PART FIRST—Shows the origin of Speculative Freemasonry, and is entiled "HISTORY OF MASONRY."

TRACT No. 1, PART SECOND—Is entitled "DESPOTIC CHARACTER OF FREEMASONRY"

TRACT No. 1, PART THIRD—Is entitled "FREEMASONRY A CHRIST-EXCLUDING RELIGION."

TRACT NO. 2:

MASONIC MURDER,

By REV. J. R. BAIRD, of Pleasantville, Pa., a seceding Mason who has taken 17 degrees. A 2-page tract at 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 3:

SECRETS OF MASONRY,

BY ELI TAPLEY.

This is a 4-page Illnstrated Tract, showing the signs, gripe and pass-words, of the first three degrees. 50 cents per 100, or $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 4:

GRAND! GREAT GRAND!!

BY PHILO CARPENTER.

This is a 2-page tract, calling the attention of the public to the despotic and ridiculous titles of Freemasonry. Price 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1,000.

TRACT. NO. 5:

Extracts From Masonic Oaths and Penalties, as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.

This tract is a reprint of a tract published in 1834, and is a very weighty document. A 4-page tract at 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 6:

Hon. John Quincy Adams' Letter.

Giving His and His Father's Opinion of Freemasonry (1831.);

AND

Hon. James Madison's Letter,

Giving His Opinion of Freemasonry (1832).

Both of these letters, in one 4-page tract, at 50 cents per 100: $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 7:

SATAN'S CABLE-TOW.

A 4-page tract. This is a careful analysis of the character of Masonic oaths, and shows them to be most blasphemous and unchristian; and the Masonic Cable Tow is clearly shown to be the Cable Tow by which Satan is leading thousands to eternal death 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 8:

Is a 2-page double tract, "ILLUSTRATED." The first page represents a Mason proclaiming the wonderful wisdom and benevolence of the order, with an article below, entitled "Freemasonry is only 152 Years Old," and gives the time and place of its birth.

The second side is entitled, "Murder and Treason not Excepted," and shows that the Masonic order is treasonable in its constitution, and is both anti-Republican and anti-Christian. Price 25 cents per 100; $3 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 9, ILLUSTRATED:

FREEMASONRY IN THE CHURCH.

Copy of a petition for the higher degrees of Freemasonry, in which Blasphemous and Despotic Titles are enumerated and prayed for. The Copy was printed for the use of "Occidental Sovereign Consistory S. P. R. S.," 32d degree—a Chicago Lodge—and was ordered by a deacon of a Christian Church who is Grand Orator of the Grand Lodge of Ill.

TRACT NO. 10:

CHARACTER AND SYMBOLS OF FREEMASONRY.

A 2-page tract, (ILLUSTRATED) by its "Grand Secretaries, Grand Lecturers, Perfect Prince Freemasons, Grand Inspector, Inquisitor Commanders, Grand High Priests," etc. The wonderful symbolical meaning of "the Cable Tow," "the Square and Compass," "the Lamb Skin, or white Apron," and "the Common Gavel," are given in the exact words of the highest Masonic authority. 25 cents per 100 or $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 11;

Address of Niagara County Association, New York,

TO THE PUBLIC;

Concerning the Morgan Murder, and the character of Freemasonry shown by this and other Masonic murders. 50 cents per

TRACT NO. 12:

JUDGE WHITNEY AND MASONRY.

This tract contains a condensed account of Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois, on charge of unmasonic conduct in bringing Samuel L. Keith the murderer of Ellen Slade. and a member of his Lodge, to justice, with Judge Whitney's subsequent renunciation of Masonry,

An 8-page tract, $1.00 per 100; $8.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 13:

DR. NATHANIEL COLVER ON MASONRY,

and

HOWARD CROSBY, D. D.,

Chancellor of the University of New York, on SECRET SOCIETIES. A double 2-page tract 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 14:

GRAND LODGE MASONRY.

ITS RELATION TO CIVIL GOVERNMENT AND THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION.

Opening address before the Monmouth Convention, by PRES. J. BLANCHARD of WHEATON COLLEGE. This is a 16-page tract at $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 15:

MASONIC OATHS NULL AND VOID.

A clear and conclusive argument proving the invalidity of any oath or obligation to do evil. By REV. I. A. HART, Secretary National Christian Association. Published by special order of the Association. 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 16:

HON. SETH M. GATES ON FREEMASONRY.

PROOF THAT THE INSTITUTION THAT MURDERED MORGAN IS UNCHANGED IN CHARACTER

This is a letter to the Monmouth Convention by Hon. Seth M Gates who was Deputy Sheriff of Genesee County, and also Secretary of the Leroy Lodge at the time of Morgan's Abduction. A 4-page tract, 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 17:

Origin, Obligations and Expenses of The Grange.

WITH A CONSTITUTION OF A FARMERS' CLUB.

This little tract ought to be put into the hands of every Farmer in the United States. Four-page tract, 50 cents per 100; $4 00 per 1000

TRACT NO. 18:

HON. WM. H. SEWARD ON SECRET SOCIETIES.

Extracts from a Speech on Know- nottingism in the U. S. Senate in 1855.

The testimony of JOHN QUINCY ADAMS, MILLARD FILLMORE, CHIEF JUSTIC MARSHALL and others, is added.

A 2-page tract, 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO, 19.

BRICKS FOR MASONS TO LAY.

WASHINGTON, MADISON, MARSHALL, RUSH, HANCOCK, ADAMS AND WEBSTER, give brief clear testimony against the Lodge A 2-page tract 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 20:

OBJECTIONS TO MASONRY.

By A SECEDING MASON, of Cornton, Vermont.

This tract contains many strong arguments against the Lodge drawn from personal experience, observation and study of its character. A 4-page tract at 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

TRACT NO. 21:

MASONIC CHASTITY.

BY EMMA A. WALLACE.

The author, by wonderfully clear illustration and argument, shows the terribly corrupt nature of Freemasonry. No true woman who reads this will ever speak with approbation of this institution A 4-page tract 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1.000.

TRACT No. 22.

LINUS CHITTENDEN ON FREEMASONRY.

The Author a Seceding Master Mason states his objection to the Lodge, drawn both from experience and observation, in a clear concise and forcible style,

A 2 page tract, 25 cents per 100, $2.00 per 1,000.

TRACT No. 23.

MASONIC OATHS AND PENALTIES.

ADDRESS OF REV, A. M. MILLIGAN AT THE PITTSBURGH CONVENTION.

This is the clearest and most conclusive argument to show the wickedness of masonic oaths and the duty to disregard and repent of them that we have ever seen.

A 4 page tract, 50 cents per 100, $4.00 per 1,000

TRACT NO. 1, IN SWEDISH;

translated by Prof. A. R. CERVIN. A 15-page tract at $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

ENOCH HONEYWELL'S TRACT.

TO THE YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA. Postage 5cts. per 100, TRACTS FREE.

GERMAN CYNOSUCE TRACT A.

Six Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason.

By Rev. A. GROLE, Pastor, German M.E.Church, Worchester, Mass

This is our first German Tract, and it is a good one; it ought to have a large circulation. A 4 page tract, Price 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

FREE TRACTS.

A Tract Fund for the Free Distribution of Tracts

HAS BEEN SECURED AND SHOULD NEVER BE EXHAUSTED. A friend has pledged this fund a dollar for every other dollar received, so EVERY NEW SUBSCRIPTION TO THE TRACT FUND COUNTS DOUBLE, and thus $10.00 pays for 20,000 pages of tracts.

The distribution of these tracts has already saved hundreds of young men from the lodge, but there is a great lack of funds to supply the constantly increasing demand for Free Tracts.

During the year ending July 1st, 1875 a little less than 150.000 pages of Cynosure Tracts were gratuitously sent out, mostly in very small lots. The present demand is fully 100.000 pages per month. but funds are lacking to meet it.

Many of our most earnest workers in this cause of God are poor men, who would be glad to circulate thousands of pages of Antimasonic literature if they could have them free.

SHALL WE NOT HAVE AN INEXHAUSTIBLE TRACT FUND?

"THE ANTI-MASONS SCRAP BOOK."

Contains 24 Cynosure Tracts, bound together and is just the thing to select from. Price 20cents. See advertisement page 15.

Enoch Honeywell Esq., pays for an unlimited number of his tract addressed "To THE YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA." It is an excelent tract, bearing the printed endorsement of Executive Committee of the National Christian Association. He has furnished the public over 150.000 pages of these tracts during the past year.

TRACTS FREE. If sent by mail, 5 cts per 100 is charged for postage,

Send Contributions and orders to

EZRA A. COOK.

Secretary of Tract Committee 13 Wabash Ave, Chicago, Ill.

Descriptive Catalogue of Publications of Ezra A. Cook & Co.

13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

BOOKS.

FREEMASONRY EXPOSED,

by CAP'T. WILLIAM MORGAN.

THE GENUINE OLD MORGAN BOOK:—repnblished with engravings showing the Lodge Room, Dress of candidates, Signs, Due Guards, Grips, Etc.

This revelation is so accurate that Freemasons murdered the author for writing it. Thousands have testified to the correctness of the revelation and this book therefore sells very rapidly.

Price 25 cents.

Per Doz. Post Paid..... $2.00
Per hundred by express, (express charges extra.)..... $10.00

ODD FELLOWSHIP ILLUSTRATED.

A complete exposition of the Lodge Encampment and Rebecca (Ladies') Degree. The Signs, Grips, &c., shown by engravings.

Single copy, post paid,..... $ 25
Per Doz., " " 2 00
Per Hundred, Express charges extra,..... 10 00

EXPOSITION OF THE GRANGE.

EDITED BY REV. A. W. GEESLIN.

Illustrated with Engravings showing Lodge Room, Signs, Signals, etc.

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 25
Per Doz., " " 2 00
Per 100 Express charges extra..... 10 00

Judge Whitney's Defense Before the Grand Lodge of Ill.

Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the Lodge when S. L. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the Lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry.

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 20
Per Doz. " " 1 50
Per 100, Express charges extra..... 8 00

History of The Abduction and Murder of Cap't. Wm. Morgan,

As prepared by Seven Committees of Citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan.

This book contains indisputable, legal evidence that Freemasons, abducted and Murdered Wm. Morgan, for no other offence than the revelation of Masonry. It contains the sworn testimony of over twenty persons, including Morgan's wife, and no candid person after reading this book, can doubt that many of the most respectable FREEMASONS. in the Empire State, with others were concerned in this crime.

Single Copy, post Paid,..... 25 cents.
Per doz. " ..... $2,00.
Per 100, Express Charges Extra,..... 10.00.

Valance's Confession of The Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan.

This confession of Henry L. Valance, one of the three Freemasons who drowned Morgan in the Niagara River, was taken from the lips of the dying man by Dr. John C. Emery, of Racine County, Wisconsin in 1848; The confession bears clear evidence of truthfulness.

Single copy, post paid,..... 20 cents.
Per doz. " ..... $1.50.
Per 100 Express Charges Extra,..... 8.00.

The Mystic Tie or Freemasonry a League with the Devil.

This is an account of the Church Trial of Peter Cook, and wife of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a Reverend Freemason; and their very able defence presented by Mrs. Lucia C. Cook, in which she clearly shows that Freemasonry, is antagonistic to the Christian Religion. Single Copy, post paid,..... 20 cents

Per dozen, post paid..... $1 50
Per hundred Express charges Extra,..... 9 00

NARRATIVES AND ARGUMENTS.

Showing the Conflict of Secret Societies with the Constitution and Laws of the Union and of the States, by FRANCIS SEMPLE.

The fact that Secret Societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of Law is here clearly proved.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 20
Per doz. " " $1.75
Per 100 Express charges Extra..... 9.00

THE BROKEN SEAL.

OR PERSONAL REMINISCENCES OF THE ABDUCTION AND MURDER OF Wm. MORGAN,

By SAMUEL D. GREENE,

Price in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

In Paper Covers per Doz. Post paid..... $4 50
" per hundred by express (ex. charges extra $25.00

Capt. Wm. Morgan was Mr. Greene's neighbor in Batavia, N. Y., and a member of the same lodge with him at the time of the great excitement in 1826. The titles to these chapters are sufficiently exciting to give the book a large sale:—"The Storm Gathering;" "Abduction of Morgan;" "Attempted Abduction of Miller and his Rescue;" "What became of Morgan;" "What Morgan Actually Revealed;" "Confession of the Murderer;" "Allegations against Freemasonry, etc."

THE ANTI-MASON'S SCRAP BOOK,

CONSISTING OF 21 CYNOSURE TRACTS.

In this book are the views of more than a Score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of Secret Societies.

The dangerous tendency and positive evil of organized Secrecy is here shown by the most varied and powerful arguments and illustrations that have ever been given to the public.

Lecturers and others who wish to find the best arguments against the Lodge, should send for this book.

Those who wish to circulate Antimasonic Tracts ought to have the book to select from.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 20 cents.
Per Doz. " $1.75
Per 100, Express charges Extra,..... $10.00

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion.

A clear cutting argument against the Lodge, from a Christian Stand point.

Single Copy post paid..... $ 05
Per doz. " " 50
Per 100 Express Charges Extra..... 3 00

President H. H. GEORGE, On Secret Societies.

A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian Churches, to disfellowship Secret Societies.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 10 cts.
Per doz, " ..... 75 "
Per 100, Express charges Extra, ... $4.00.

PHELPS' SECRET SOCIETIES Ancient and Modern.

A NEW BOOK OF GREAT INTEREST.

This work is particularly commended to the attention of Officers of The Army and Navy, The Bench and The Clergy.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

"THE ANTIQUITY OF SECRET SOCIETIES, THE LIFE OF JULIAN, THE ELEUSINIAN MYSTERIES, THE ORIGIN OF MASONRY, WAS WASHINGTON A MASON? FILMORE'S AND WEBSTER'S DEFERENCE TO MASONRY, A BRIEF OUTLINE OF THE PROGRESS OF MASONRY IN THE UNITED STATES, THE TAMMANY RING, MASONIC BENEVOLENCE, THE USES OF MASONRY, AN ILLUSTRATION, THE CONCLUSION."

Single Copy, Post Paid..... 50
Per Doz " " $4 75
Per Hundred, Express Charges Extra..... $25 00

HON. JOHN QUINCY ADAMS' LETTERS

to Col. Wm. Stone, Edward Livingstone,

and others, on the nature of

Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties.

Price, post paid..... $ 50
Per Doz., " 4 50
Per 100, Express Charges extra..... 25 00

COLLEGE SECRET SOCIETIES.

Their Customs, Character and the Efforts for their Suppression.

BY H. L. KELLOGG.

Containing the opinion of many prominent College Presidents, and others, and a FULL ACCOUNT OF THE MURDER OF MORTIMER LEGGETT

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 35
Per Doz " " 2 50
Per 100 Express charges extra..... 15 00

MINUTES OF THE SYRACUSE CONVENTION,

Containing addresses by Rev. B. T. Roberts, Chas. D. Greene, Esq., Prof. C. A. Blanchard, Rev. D. P. Rathbun, Rev. D. S. Caldwell, Mrs. M. E. Gage, Elder J. R. Baird and others. Unpublished Reminiscences of the Morgan Times, by Elder David Bernard; Recollections of the Morgan Trials, as related by Victory Birdseye, Esq., and presented by his daughter, Mrs. C. B. Miller; Secretary's report; roll of delegates; songs of Mr. G. A. Clark; paper by Enoch Honeywell; Constitution N. C. A.; reports of committees, and a report of the political meeting.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 25
Per doz. " " $2.00
Per 100 Express Charges Extra..... 10.00

Paoceedings of the Pittsburgh Convention,

Containing Official Reports; Addresses by Rev. D. R. Kerr, D.D. Rev. B. T. Roberts, Rev. G. T. R. Meiser, Prof. J. R. W. Sloane, D. D., Pres't. J. Blanchard, Rev. A. M. Milligan, D. D., Rev. Woodruff Post, Rev. Henry Cogswell, Prof. C. A. Blanchard, and Rev W. E. Coquilette, also Report of the POLITICAL MASS CONVENTION, with Platform and Candidates for the Presidential Campaign of 1876.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 25 cts.
Per doz " $2,00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 10.00

SERMON ON MASONRY,

BY REV. W. P. M'NARY,

Pastor United Presbyterian Church, Bloomington, Ind.

This is a very clear, thorough, candid and remarkably concise Scriptural argument on the character of Freemasonry.

Single Copy, Post Paid,..... 5
Per Doz,..... 50
Per Hundred, Express Charges Extra,..... $3 00

THIRTEEN REASONS

Why a Christian Should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong.

The author states his reasons clearly and carefully, and any one of the thirteen reasons, if properly considered, will keep a Christian out of the Lodge.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 5
Per doz. " " 50
Per 100, Express charges extra, ... $3.00

SERMON ON MASONRY,

BY REV. JAMES WILLIAMS.

Presiding Elder of Dakota District North-western Iowa Conference, M. E. Church, A SECEDING MASTER MASON.

Published at the special request of the Nine Clergymen of different denominations and others.

Single Copy, post paid..... 10
Per doz. " " 75
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... $4.00

MASONRY A WORK OF DARKNESS

ADVERSE TO CHRISTIANITY, and Inimical to a Republican Government.

BY REV. LEBBEUS ARMSTRONG, [Presbyterian.]

A Seceding Mason of 21 Degrees.

This is a very telling work and no honest man that reads it will think of joining the lodge. Single Copy, post paid,.....20cts.

Per doz, post paid,..... $1.50.
" 100, Express Charges Extra..... 8.00.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy.

Address of Prest. J. BLANCHARD, before the Pittsburgh Convention.

This is a most convincing argument against the lodge.

Single Copy, Post Paid ..... $ 05
Per Doz " " 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

GRAND LODGE MASONRY.

Its relation to civil Government and the Christian Religion.

By Prest. J. BLANCHARD, at the Monmouth Convention.

The Unchristian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is here proved from the highest masonic authorities.

Single Copy, Post Paid,..... $ 05
Per Doz..... 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

SERMON ON SCERETISM

BY REV. R. THEO. CROSS.

This is a very clear array of the objections to Masonry that are apparent to all.

By Rev. R. T. Cross, Pastor Congregational Church, Hamilton, N.Y.

Single Copy, Post Paid..... $ 05
Per Doz..... 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

HISTORY OF THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought; The Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association, Conditions of the Carpenter Donation with Engraving of building to be donated by Mr. Carpenter; Tables showing the number of Pastors and communicants in church es that exclude members of Secret Societies, Tabular view of Local, County State and National Conventions, and list of organizations Auxiliary to the National Christian Association; Brief opinions of Eminent Men on Secret Societies, and Testimonies of Religious Bodies against them. This book will be found invaluable by all who wish to know the character of this reform and how they may do the most to further its objects. It should be in the hands of every Antimason.

Price post paid,.....25 cents each,
per doz;.....$1,50

25 copies or more by express at 8 cents each.

NEW BOOKS

—o—

HAND BOOK

—OF—

FREEMASONRY,

A COMPLETE

Illustrated Exposition,

—OF—

BLUE LODGE

MASONRY

—BY—

EDMOND RONAYNE,

LATE PAST MASTER OF KEYSTONE LODGE, NO. 639, CHICAGO, ILL.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 50cts.
Per doz. " " $4.00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra,..... 25.00

RITUAL OF THE

GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC

WITH SIGN OF RECOGNITION,

PASS WORD GRIP ETC,

—AND THE—

RITUAL OF THE

MACHINISTS AND BLACKSMITHS UNION,

(THE TWO BOUND TOGETHER.)

Single Copy, post paid,..... 25
Per doz. " $2.00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra,..... 1000

Publishers' Department.

The Mail List.

No. of subscribers Jan. 29, 3,983.
" " " 22, 3,881.
Gain in one week 102.
The total gain in four weeks 470.

Nearly five hundred. This is encouraging. Let us keep at it. Richard Green, La Grange, Ind., writes: "I am trying to get more subscribers. There ought to be at least ten thousand subscribers to the Cynosure in the United States." One subscriber who recently sent in a club of ten says that he has just learned how to get subscriptions, and he means to keep at it. He took blacksmithing, and all sorts of produce in exchange for Cynosure subscriptions, and forwarded the cash to this office. There is a great deal in "learning how," but even more in "KEEPING AT IT." If one fourth of our readers can learn how and keep at it, our list will reach ten thousand this year. This week we have more than one hundred and fifty names to cut off our list; so unless the increase is great our report next Saturday will not be so encouraging. Lewis Powers, Ashley, O., completes a club of five for a year, and five more for six months, and writes: "I will continue to try for more names and think I will have some success."

No other large clubs have been received this week, so the gain has come mostly from one, two, and three new subscriptions sent in by different persons. How much will the list grow during the next four weeks?

Does your subscription expire in February? Please renew promptly.

Does your subscription expire in March? If so, can you not, during the month of February collect a club of five or ten to send in with your renewal?

THE CYNOSURE DEBT.

January first, 1876, the Cynosure debt was $1,817,81
February first, it was $11,38,31
Paid on the debt during last month $679,50

We hope to make another good report for February. Remember this is a short month, and improve it.

SUBSCRIPTIONS RECEIVED DURING WEEK ENDING JAN. 29th, 1876, from —S Allen, A Alpaugh, J Adams, R E Bird, M R Britten, E Brace, N B Blanton, Mrs. E Conant, F M Curtice, Mrs. M Clow, L Coon, P Elzea, F F French, W B Gibson, W Gray, S Hale, J S Hickman, S E Hoffman, W G Hamlin, J Kennedy, W Lovell, A Mitchelson, W McNown, J L Miner, J Marker, A McNeal, W J Moffet, J Marks, W Nickle, F Pierce, L Powers, D F Pratt, J F Phillips, Mrs. O G Risley, G M Russell, Mrs. J P Stoddard, S Schroyer, R B Smith. C Silliman, A B Sherk, A Stevens, J B Slocum, M Spangberg, J Sherk, J C Telford, C I Wilson, B Williams.

SAVE MONEY

by sending $4.75 for any $4 Magazine and THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE (regular price $6), or $5.75 for the Magazine and THE SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE (regular price $3). Address

THE TRIBUNE, New-York.

$250 A MONTH—Agents wanted everywhere. Business honorable and first class. Particulars sent Address J. WORTH & Co., St. Louis, Mo
1yrJul

$77 A WEEK guaranteed to Male and Female Agents, in their locality. Costs NOTHING to try it. Particulars Free. P. O. VICKERY & CO., Augusta, Me.
6m.dec.30-75.

How to Send Money.

Post office orders, checks or drafts on Chicago or towns east of Chicago, and currency by express may be sent at our risk. If it is not possible to send by either of the four ways named, money in a registered letter may be sent at our risk, but it is not as safe.

The date at which subscriptions expire is with each subscriber's name on the address label. Send renewals before this date occurs. Notice if this date is changed to correspond; if not or if the paper fails to come, write without delay.

We discontinue during the first part of each month all subscriptions which expire during the preceding one except such as are ordered continued with a promise to forward the money soon. We do not like to lose a single subscriber and will not remove names simply because the cash is not received promptly, if we understand that the paper is wanted. Address all letters with subscriptions or orders for Books, Tracts and donations to the Tract Fund to EZRA A. COOK & Co., 13 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

ADVERTISING RATES.

1	square, 1 insertion,		$2.00
1	square (1 inch deep) one month		7.00
1	" "	2 "	10.00
1	" "	3 "	15.00
1	" "	6 "	25.00
1	" "	12 "	40.00

Discount for Space.

On 2 squares 5 per cent, On 3 squares 10 per cent
On 4 " 15 " " On 5 " 20 "
On ¼ col. 25 per cent On one col. 30 per cent

SOMETHING NEW.

A CHART OF MASONRY

Showing the degrees from the first to the thirty-third, entitled

Degrees of Ancient Accepted Scottish Freemasonry,

According to a Manual by Wm. M. Cunningham 33d Degree.

Designed by Rev. P. Stoddard, to explain Freemasonry, as shown by Morgan's Exposition and Richardson's Monitor.

A Neat Lithograph 22x28 Inches.

Single copies finely colored, post paid	$ 75
Per dozen " " "	5 00
Per 100 " " " Express charges extra	35 00
Single copy, colored, varnished and mounted postpaid	1 00
Per dozen colored, varnished and mounted, post paid	7 50
Per 100, colored, varnished and mounted, express charges extra	50 00

25 COPIES OR MORE SENT AT THE 100 RATES.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO, Jan. 31, 1876.

Grain Wheat—Spring, No. 1	$	1 09
" No. 2	97	98½
" No. 3	77	77½
" Rejected		65
Corn—No. 2	40¼	40½
Rejected		32
Oats—No. 2	30¾	31
Rejected	26½	27
Rye—No. 2		67
Bran per ton	9 75	10 00
Flour—Winter	4 75	7 50
Spring	3 00	5 25
Hay—Timothy	10 00	14 00
Prairie, "	7 50	10 50
Mess Beef	10 50	11 00
Tallow		8¾
Dressed Hogs	8 25	8 45
Lard per cwt		12 12½
Mess pork, per bbl		19 50
Butter fancy yellow 32c.; common to choice roll	16	28
Cheese	9	13½
Eggs	18	26
Seeds—Timothy	2 00	2 42
Clover	7 85	8 20
Flax	1 25	1 40
Poultry—Turkeys per lb dressed	10	12
Chickens " "	7	10
Potatoes		17
Apples from store	3 00	4 00
Broom corn	3	11¼
Hides green to dry salted	5½	12
Lumber—Clear	38 00	42 00
Common	11 00	12 00
Fencing	12 00	13 00
Shingles	2 75	3 00
WOOL—Washed	38	52
Unwashed	25	33
LIVE STOCK Cattle, Choice	5 00	5 50
Good	4 50	4 75
Medium	4 25	4 40
Common	3 00	3 75
Hogs	7 30	7 70
Sheep	3 75	5 50

New York Market

Flour	$ 4 25	9 00
Wheat—Winter	1 23	1 47
Spring	98	1 40
Corn	56	64
Oats	46	52
Rye	86	98
Lard		12¾
Mess pork		20 75
Butter	16	31
Cheese	6	12½
Eggs	17	20

ESTABLISHED 1867.

EZRA A. COOK & CO.,

STEAM PRINTERS

LITHOGRAPHERS,

STATIONERS

—AND—

Book Binders.

NOS. 7, 9, 11 & 13

Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

We were in the Stationery, Printing and Lithographing business before the Cynosure was started.

WE PRINT

Books, Pamphlets, Catalogues, Business Cards, Show Cards, Letter Heads, Bill Heads, Note Heads, Circulars, Hand Bills, Posters, Checks, Drafts, Notes, Certificates of Deposit, Certificates of Stock, Diplomas, etc.,

WE BIND

Blank Books, Magazines, Catalogues, Checks, Drafts, Notes, Certificates, Bank Pass Books, Etc., Etc.

WE LITHOGRAPH

Business Cards, Letter Heads, Note Heads, Bill Heads, Circulars, Checks, Drafts. Certificates of Stock, Certificates of Deposit, Plats and Charts; also elegant Diplomas for Colleges. Literary Societies, and Agricultural Societies, in one, two or three Colors. Samples and Prices sent on Application.

All work executed in the

BEST STYLE,

at the

LOWEST MARKET RATES.

WE FILL ORDERS PROMPTLY, and GUARANTEE GOOD WORK.

SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO ORDERS BY MAIL.

Samples and prices sent promptly when desired.

Address:

EZRA A. COOK & CO.,

7, 9, 11 & 13 Wabash Avenue,

CHICAGO.

NEW CLUB RATES

—FOR—

1876.

CLUB RATES.

No commission is allowed on club rates. Club rates are intended for those who wish to give the commission to subscribers.

Club Rates Including Postage.

Papers Addressed to one or different Post Offices as desired.

2 to 4 Subs., 1 year, Old or New sent at one time, at	$2.00 each
5 to 9 " " " " " "	1 80 "
10 to 14 " " " " " "	1.70 "
15 to 19 " " " " " "	1.60 "
20 or more " " " " " "	1.50 "

Subscription Papers and Circulars sent free on application.

Excelsior Marriage Certificate.

It is decidedly the most BEAUTIFUL, TASTEFUL and SENSIBLE thing of the kind I have ever seen."—Rev. F. G. Hibbard, D. D.

"The most SCRIPTURAL, BEAUTIFUL and APPROPRIATE Marriage Certificate I have ever seen."—Late Rev. H. Mattison, D. D.

"SOMETHING NEW AND BEAUTIFUL, which we pronounce the handsomest thing of the kind we ever laid eyes on."—Meth. Home Journal, Phila.

Contains two Ornamental Ovals, for Photographs

A BEAUTIFUL LITHOGRAPH 14 1-4 by 18 1-4 inches. 25 cts each, $2.25 per doz- $15 per 100.

For Sale by Ezra A. Cook & Co., CHICAGO.

CALIFORNIA

Have you any thought of going to California? Are you going West, North, or North-West? You want to know the best routes to take?

The shortest, safest, quickest and most comfortable routes are those owned by the Chicago and North-Western Railway Company. It owns over two thousand miles of the best roads there is in the country. Ask any ticket agent to show you its maps and time cards. All ticket agents can sell you through tickets by this route.

Buy your tickets via the Chicago & North-Western Railway for the West and North-West, and for

SAN FRANCISCO,

Sacramento, Ogden, Salt Lake City, Cheyenne, Denver, Omaha, Lincoln, Council Bluffs, Yankton, Sioux City, Duhuque, Winona, St Paul, Duluth, Marquette, Green Bay, Oshkosh, Madison, Milwaukee, and all other points West or North-West of Chicago.

If you wish the best traveling accommodations, you will buy your tickets by this route, and will take no other.

This popular route is unsurpassed for speed, comfort and safety. The smooth, well-ballasted and perfect track of Steel Rails, Westinghouse Air Brakes, Miller's Safety Platform and Couplers, the celebrated Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars, the perfect Telegraph System of Moving Trains, the regularity with which they run, the admirable arrangement for running Through Cars from Chicago to all points West, North and North-West, secures to passengers all the COMFORTS IN MODERN RAILWAY TRAVELING.

PULLMAN PALACE CARS

are run on all through trains of this road.

This is the ONLY LINE running these cars between Chicago and St. Paul, Chicago and Milwaukee, or Chicago and Winona.

At Omaha our Sleepers connect with the Overland Sleepers on the Union Pacific Railroad for all points West of the Missouri River.

On the arrival of the trains from the East or South, the trains of the Chicago and North-Western Railway LEAVE CHICAGO as follows:

For Council Bluffs, Omaha and California, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Palace Drawing Room and Sleeping Cars through to Council Bluffs.

For St. Paul and Minneapolis, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Palace Cars attached on both trains.

For Green Bay and Lake Superior, Two Trains daily, with Pullman Palace Cars attached, and running through to Marquette.

For Milwaukee, four Through Trains daily. Pullman Cars on night trains, Parlor Chair Cars on day trains.

For Sparta and Winona and points in Minnesota, One Through Train daily, with Pullman Sleepers to Winona.

For Dubuque, via Freeport, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Cars on night trains.

For Dubuque and La Crosse, via Clinton, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Cars on night trains to McGregor, Iowa.

For Sioux City and Yankton, Two Trains daily. Pullman Cars to Missouri Valley Junction.

For Lake Geneva, Four Trains daily.

For Rockford, Sterling, Kenosha, Janesville, and other points you can have from two to ten trains daily.

New York Office, No. 415 Broadway; Boston Office, No. 5 State Street; Omaha Office, 253 Farnham Street; San Francisco Office, 121 Montgomery Street; Chicago Ticket Offices: 62 Clark Street, under Sherman House: corner Canal and Madison Streets; Kinzie Street Depot, corner W. Kinzie and Canal Streets; Wells Street Depot, corner Wells and Kinzie Streets.

For rates or information not attainable from your home ticket agents, apply to

W. H. STENNETT, Gen. Pass. Ag't, Chicago. MARVIN HUGHITT, Gen. Sup't, Chicago.

[Eastern.]

THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.

"In Secret Have I Said Nothing."—Jesus Christ.

EZRA A. COOK & CO., PUBLISHERS, NO 13 WABASH AVENUE.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1876.

VOL. VIII., NO. 18.—WHOLE NO. 305
WEEKLY (post paid) $2 20 A YEAR

Contents.

	Page
TOPICS OF THE TIME	1
EDITORIAL ARTICLES:
The Holiness Convention	8
Worth Passing Aronnd	8
Queries from Cheshire, Mass	8
CONTRIBUTED AND SELECT ARTICLES:
Masonic Lodge and Women	1
Webb's Old Monitor and Rev. H. H. Hinman	1
Is the Grange a Good Thing?	2
Notes from a Sermon on Holiness	2
Absolutism, Baptism and the Sacrament in the P. E. church	3
REFORM NEWS AND NOTICES.
First Words from Wisconsin State Meeting; Visit of the State Lecturer at Monmouth, Ill.; Footfalls among the Wolverines; Elder Barlow in Genesee Co., Mich;	4, 5
CORRESPONDENCE:
Any One may Answer; A Baptist Church in Mich. Blessed; An Open Door in Chautauqua Co., N. Y.; Masonic Compliments; A Dishonor to be Retrieved: College Secret Societies; Dr. Colver Disputed; More Good Suggestions; Our Mail	5, 6
THE AMERICAN PARTY: (Concluded)	12
N. C. A. Department	7
THE HOME CIRCLE	10
CHILDREN'S CORNER	11
The Sabbath School	7
Temperance	12
Farm and Garden	12
Educational	13
Miscellany	13
Religious Intelligence	9
News of the Week	9
Home and Health Hints	11
Publishers' Department	16

Topics of the Time.

In response to a demand for a reply to Blaine's late arraignment of the arch-rebel, Jeff. Davis has himself written a letter, which was published on Monday throughout the country. He says he has "no view of the future which makes it desirable for me to be included in the amnesty bill," which is a mild way of putting himself on the list of those who scorn the offer of pardon. The letter is full of statements in regard to the treatment of prisoners, which are proved beforehand by undeniable statistics to be false. Davis' responsibility in the Andersonville atrocities is proved by an endorsement of Winder's cruelty in his own hand, in the rebel archives.

An eminent Western editor touches a keynote to the Franco-Prussian war, which, at the same time, gives more than a glimpse at the fruitful source of wars and commotions on the continent. He says: "The Pope is a benevolent and kindly old man, and I am sure that in his innermost heart he wishes well to thr whole human race; but his court is like other courts—greedy of power, and determined to keep what it has got and get what it can. They emulate St. Peter in drawing a sword and cutting off their enemies' ears. M. Emile de Laveleye is probably right in saying it was that baleful influence, acting through a superstitious woman, that turned the wavering balance of the late Emperor's government, and caused the declaration of war against Germany. "God will be with us, for we shall overthrow Protestant Prussia," was the exclamation of the Empress when she had finally carried her point." The same Jesuitical policy is as active here as in Europe, and we have more to lose by its success.

Fernando Wood, a leader of the Democracy in Congress, wants that body to pass the appropriation bills and adjourn. He understands the composition of his party in Congress, and on the principle of party before country, would make, at least, an effort to save its integrity before the election contest in November. The tardy legislation of this session proves that the majority in the House are willing to follow Mr. Wood. Tariff revision, currency legislation, revenue reform, Southern claims, all these important questions must stand aside lest the party advantage be risked. The people must understand this policy, and be prepared to meet it. Nor should the Republicans escape a like censure. Their leaders show far more activity in getting up quarrels with their opponents than in looking after the interests of their constituents.

In reducing the expenses of the government the Democrats are, however, working for a practical good, whether they intend it or no. The cost of living is reduced far below the prices of ten years ago, and there is no reason in keeping up the salaries of government employes at the old rates; nor in maintaining the rule of a half day for a full day's work. It is somewhat notorious that it kills off a man's industry to serve in the government employ, the high wages and little work unfit him for civic stations when he loses his government position. Probably a safer method of reduction would be found in cutting off useless offices instead of the salary of needed ones. In the Customs Service, Secretary Bristow, it is said, will co-operate with the House with dispensing with Custom Houses where the expenses of collecting revenue are greater than their receipts. Treasurer New also recommends the abolition of the offices of Assistant Treasurer at seven points in the South and West, where the business can be done as well through the banks.

Masonic Lodges and Women.

BY ELDER A. L. POST.

"The Rev. G. Oliver, D. D., M. A. S. E." in his work, "The Antiquities of Freemasonry," chapter "on the Idolatrous Mysteries, as Contrasted with Freemasonry" (p. p. 65, 66), makes the following statements: "The idolatrous mysteries date their origin from the Cabiri and Thoth, who were certainly Masons, but forsaking the pure channels of God's worship, they sunk into the grossest defilements of idolatry, and founded on the pattern of our craft an institution calculated to make the worship of imaginary deities fascinating and permanent." "Masonry originated with God, like that Eternal Being, it existed before time was, and shall exist when time shall be no more."

"The former and the latter degrees of the ancient idolatrous mysteries were inconsistent, and even positively contradicted each other. Those of Masonry are a regular and progressive series; each superior degree strengthening and confirming the preceding, until we arrive at a perfect knowledge of the truth; aptly compared to the steps of a ladder, by each of which we advance nearer to 'a building not made with hands eternal in the heavens.'"

"To the nocturnal celebration of these mysteries women were admitted; a practice which led to the most shocking abuses, and the indiscriminate practice of licentiousness and vice. And this was soon carried to such a dreadful pitch of shameless profligacy that"—(too indelicate to quote here.)

"In Masonic lodges such abuses are effectually guarded against by the exclusion of females." This last sentence may well be repeated in capitals:—"IN MASONIC LODGES SUCH ABUSES ARE EFFECTUALLY GUARDED AGAINST BY THE EXCLUSION OF FEMALES.

Would it not be well for some woman to make this the text of an address to the women of America? But what of a system which professes, step by step, to take men "to a perfect knowledge of the truth," "to a building not made with hands eternal in the heavens," and yet has no security against "licentiousness and vice," "the most shocking abuses" and "shameless profligacy," except in the exclusion of women from its portals and privileges? A system that claims to have "originated with God," and which "like that being, existed before time was and shall exist when time shall be no more;" and yet separates, for time and all that eternity which shall follow, the sexes which God made to be united and happy together, ministering each to the other's highest temporal and spiritual good?

Omitting the indignant and scathing replies which leap out upon the tongue and pen of every true man, not to say woman, who reads, I will only say it is a system from which every Christian man should, as far as possible separate himself now and forever. Although there is a demoniac consistency in excluding women from Masonry, in that Christ the only Saviour of the world also is excluded therefrom, it is equally plain that there is a like inconsistency in any Christian or good man going into that or any other system that does not allow him to take both Christ and woman with him.

Montrose, Pa.

Webb's Old Monitor and Rev. H. H. Hinman.

BY J. K. ALLWOOD.

Editor Christian Cynosure:

In your excellent paper of Dec. 16th, 1875, Bro. Hinman tells us of a Mason who claimed to be in possession of a "copy of Webb's Monitor, published in 1792, in which the name of Christ occurs in the ritual of each of the first three degrees;" and says, "I would like to know of any reader of the Cynosure if the old editions of Webb do mention the name of Christ in the ritual of the Blue Lodge."

By your permission I will make a few observations on a book called Webb's Monitor. And first I have before me an ancient-looking book, on one of the fly leaves of which is the following inscription made with pen and ink: "S. M. Perry, J. W. of Oakland Lodge, No. 343, Territory of Michigan." On the opposite page is the following by a lighter hand, probably a wife's: "Sheldon M. Perry, Deacon of Lodge No. 343 of Oakland, Territory Michigan." On the first printed page I find the following in the "Dilworth" print:

"District of Rhode Island, to wit. (L. S.) Be it remembered, that on the fourteenth day of November, in the thirtieth year of the Independence of the United States of America, Thomas Smith Webb, of the said district hath deposited in this office the title of a book, the right whereof he claims as proprietor in the words following, to wit:—'The Freemason's Monitor; or Illustrations of Masonry: in two parts. By Thomas Smith Webb, Past Master of Temple Lodge, Albany, G. H. P. of the Grand R. A. Chapter of Rhode Island, and Grand Master of the Providence Encampment of Knights Templars, etc. A new and improved edition. Edmund T. Ellery. Clerk of the District Court for Rhode Island District.'"

Now if this book, copy-righted in 1805, is actually an "improved edition," as it claims to be, over the edition (if such there was) of 1792, of which brother Hinman's "Pastor of the Baptist church, Elder Kent," says, "The name of Christ occurs in the ritual of each of the first three degrees," then the expurgation of that name is one of the "improvements." For neither the name Jesus nor the name Christ is found in this "Webb's Monitor" of 1805, on any page preceding the 231st. This book treats the degrees of Masonry in the following order: "1. Entered Apprentice; 2. Fellow Craft; 3. Master; 4. Mark Master; 5. Past-Master; 6. Most Excellent Master; 7. Royal Arch; 8. Knights Templars; 9. Knights of Malta; 10. Knights of the Holy Sepulcher; 11. Secret Master; 12. Perfect Master; 13. Intimate Secretary; 14. Provost and Judge; 15. Intendent of the Buildings, or Master in Israel; 16. Elected Knights, or Knights of the Ninth Arch; 17. Elected Grand Master, or Illustrious Elected of Fifteen; 18. Illustrious Knights, or Sublime Knights Elected; 19. Grand Master Architects; 20. Knights of the Ninth Arch; 21. Perfect or Grand Elect, Perfect and Sublime Mason."

On page 231, under the head "Observations on the Order of Knights Templars and Knights of Malta," the name of Jesus Christ occurs for the first time. It stands connected as follows. I give the entire sentence: "Vertot goes on to say, that a Templar, and a citizen of Beziers, having been apprehended for some crime, and committed together to a dungeon, for want of a priest, confessed each other; that the citizen, having heard the Templar's confession, in order to save his own life accused the order to King Philip; charging them, on the authority of what his fellow-prisoner had told him with idolatry, sodomy, robbery and murder; adding that the Knights Templars, being secretly Mahometans, each Knight at his admission in the order, was obliged to renounce Jesus Christ, and to spit on the cross in token of his abhorrence of it." Notice, this is not connected with the first three degrees but with the eighth.

Here is another interesting fact in relation to the said "Monitor" and the name of Christ. In treating of the Royal Arch degree, on pages 149, 150, there is a quotation from 2nd Thessalonians, third chapter and professedly from the 6th to the 17th verses. The reference stands thus: "2 Thessalonians, iii. 6-17." Then follows the quotation thus: "Now we command you, brethren, that ye withdraw yourselves from every brother that walketh disorderly, and not after the tradition which ye received of us," etc., to the 17th verse. Every reader of the New Testament knows that the expression "In the name of our Lord Jesus Christ," occurs in this 6th verse. But, as you see, it is carefully expunged. In the twelfth verse the expression, "our Lord Jesus Christ," again occurs in the text; but in the "Monitor" it is carefully omitted. The 18th or last verse of the chapter contains the same expression, but the verse is carefully omitted in this "passage of Scripture" which the Monitor tells us "is read at opening" the lodge in the famous Royal Arch degree, of which Mr. Webb says, "This degree is indescribably more august, sublime,' and important than all which precede it; and is the summit and perfection of ancient Masonry." Then on the very same page (149) the name of Jesus Christ is carefully expunged from His word and on the next page the same thing is done again. And in treating of this degree the Monitor gives us nearly twelve pages of quotations from the Bible, but makes no mention of Jesus Christ. Now please notice the contradictory character of two statements in this same Monitor: "This degree . . . is the summit and perfection of ancient Masonry." Then look on page 294, where after the candidate has taken twelve additional degrees above and beyond the "summit of perfection," he is gravely informed in the "History and Charge of this Degree," ("Knights of the Ninth Arch"): "My worthy brother, it is my intention at this time to give you a clearer account than you have yet been acquainted with of Masonry; of which at present, you barely know the elements." This is a new and grand idea for the contemplation of all "cowans," that twelve degrees above the "summit of perfection" brings a man to the "elements" of a "science." I ask all "cowans" to notice how Masonry deceives its candidates by bombast, false promises, and lying pretensions.

From the Western Rural.

Is the Grange a Good Thing?

EDITORS WESTERN RURAL:—The winter evenings are upon us, in which farmers find almost the only leisure of the year for reading and self-improvement, either singly or socially, and as the grange is persistently kept before us, as affording the best means known to the age for accomplishing these ends, a brief discussion of its claims may not be amiss, and more especially, because in many communities where it predominates it evidently desires to compel all who are eligible to join its ranks, concentrating injuriously upon those who oppose its claims, all the public sentiment which it can control.

An examination of its ritual shows that it was not the work of men who felt that they were wronged and must set to work in an intelligent manner to rectify their wrongs by forming a strong and efficient organization through which to act, nor yet of men who had at heart the general improvement of farmers and their interests. There is too much exclusiveness in it for either; besides men who were in earnest could never have found time for so much circumlocution and ceremony. The order is weighed down by its burden of ceremonies to such an extent that intelligent men have told me that they have spent a whole winter in going over and over forms, to the total exclusion of all subjects relating to practical agriculture.

That there is need of, and propriety in the co-operation of farmers, no one can doubt, and this may naturally enough lead to organization, in order to act efficiently in the accomplishment of many desirable ends, but the peculiar style of organization offered by the grange grows out of no necessity, and the neighborhood which adopts it loses at once all its individuality and places itself in leading strings to a distant power over which it has no control.

The remedies to almost every evil, real or fancied, of which farmers complain, or at least of those which are to be remedied through the grange, lie in political action. The control of corporations, the regulation of interest, the construction of canals or railroads, and the limitations of patents, all require legislative action and yet the grange authorities assure us continually that all political action is eschewed. In this it declares at once its inefficiency to grapple with the evils of which it complains.

The grange was not organized by farmers themselves, but by parties who saw in them a vast field for profitable cultivation, provided they could enter it.

Any intelligent man can judge of the esteem in which he is held by noticing the articles which are offered for his purchase.

Some men are always expected to buy a ring-boned, broken-winded or spavined horse if they buy at all, while another man will never have such a one offered him. If a man is going into trade he studies the tastes of those he expects to make his customers. To one he will offer cheap, gaudy goods, while to another he only takes down his best. If I were fitting out a trading expedition, and should lay in a large stock of red calico, glass beads and cheap finery, lookers-on would think they could guess pretty nearly where I was going. So I think the pompous titles, the numerous offices, tiresome ceremonies and cheap regalia of the grange, show conclusively the esteem in which the masses of farmers were held by the grange originators.

A little neighborhood grange requires the pompous installation of thirteen officers to run it. In this it violates our republican ideas for the New England town meeting has become the type of all efficient organizations in the United States. Where men are in earnest and mean business, whether they intend to instruct their representatives in Congress, or concentrate public indignation upon obnoxious men or measures, the meeting is called to order by the appointment of a chairman; a secretary is appointed to record their action; a treasurer is appointed if money is to be handled; committees may be appointed for particular purposes, and then the meeting is ready for business. The aim in the grange is evidently to tickle rude fancies with little offices, high titles and cheap regalia.

Louis the XIV. made great efforts to get himself surnamed "the great" but posterity has denied him the honor. These grangers have, with as little modesty, assumed the prefix of "worthy." Might they not better have waited and won it by worthy deeds?

It is evident that the grange organization in its present form can never consolidate the interests of farmers, even in a single neighborhood. The solemn pledges to keep secrets to be revealed hereafter, even though assured they amount to nothing, can never be made by a person with correct views of moral obligations. Do away with its oaths and secrecy; abolish its restrictions and ceremonies, so that business can be done on business principles; go squarely at work for the accomplishment of desirable ends, either political or otherwise, and it might consolidate the agricultural interests of the country instead of hopelessly dividing them.

J. W. WOOD.

Baraboo, Wis.

Notes from a Sermon on Holiness.

PREACHED IN CHICAGO AVENUE CHURCH, JAN. 23, BY HON. J. V. FARWELL.

"Be ye therefore perfect, even as your father which is in heaven is perfect."—Matt. v. 48.

"He has taken a very large subject," I imagine some of my hearers may say; and truly it is a large subject, too large for me to speak of using only my own wisdom. But let us spend an hour in considering what the Bible says about it.

It is a general principle recognized in all departments of usefulness that "what is worth doing is worth doing well." The Bible wastes no words but commands us in religion, which is the great business of all business, to be perfect. To perfection complete in every sense, such as our Divine Master has, we cannot attain. But we must be perfect according to the measure of our ability.

First we must be perfect in a knowledge of salvation. And since the way of salvation is so plain that a wayfaring man though a fool shall not err, so plain that he that runs may read, the wise and the ignorant may all understand this way. Being perfect in knowledge does not imply that we cannot add to it. In Phillipians iii. 15, Paul addresses "as many as be perfect," and yet in the same chapter, twelfth verse, he speaks of himself as not already perfect, "not as though I had already attained" (in the absolute sense). In 1 Cor. ii. 6, he writes, "Howbeit, we speak wisdom among them that are perfect," and in 2 Tim. iii. 17, he speaks of the Scripture as profitable for doctrine etc., "that the man of God may be perfect." Hence we may and should be perfect, according to our measure, in a knowledge of God, salvation and our duty.

Second, we should be "perfect in peace." The great Captain of the Lord's host has charge of our salvation. The Lion of the tribe of Judah has procured (our peace) our sanctification by offering up his body. Hebrew x. 10. The law can never make the comers thereunto perfect, or else "once purged, they should have had no more conscousness of sin." Heb. x. 2. But "we are sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ, once for all."

Third, we should be perfect in walking with God. Although we may be perfect we will not be free from the temptations of Satan. Christ was tempted and like him we may gather up passages from God's word and hurl them at Satan, driving him away defeated.

"Noah was a just man and perfect in his generation, and Noah walked with God." Gen. vi. 9.

The Lord appeared to Abram and said, "Walk before me and be thou perfect." Gen. xvii. 1. "Thou shalt be perfect." Deut. xviii. 13.

Perfect in the knowledge of God and perfect in walking with God we may be perfect in peace.

"Mark the perfect man and behold the upright: for the end of that man is peace." Psalm xxxvii. 37.

Perfectionists make mistakes when they turn from walking with God and are occupied with themselves and begin to sink, as Peter did, into the waves of sin.

Our defects are many but they are not to overcome us; we are to overcome them through Christ. The three Hebrew children passed through the furnace without the smell of fire upon their garments. Christ was with them. So are we to escape though we have fiery trials, yet it is only by a constant looking to Christ that we shall succeed.

Absolution, Baptism and the Sacrament in the Protestant Episcopal Church.

THE SECOND VIEW, BY REV. JOSEPH WILSON, Pastor REFORMED EPISCOPAL CHURCH, PEORIA, ILL.

I thank you for your kind notice of the Reformed Episcopal church in the Cynosure of Nov. 18th. The notice in the paper is remarkably accurate.

One correction might be made. The notice says that the P. E. church recognizes no ministry except its own. This is true so far as all Protestant denominations are concerned. The P. E. church does not recognize their ministry. But it is not true as regards the Roman Catholic church. The old Episcopal church does recognize Romish priests as being truly ministers and does not re-ordain them, while it re-ordains all others.

Now as to your correspondents. One states that the Episcopal church "does not give its pastors power to forgive sins." Very true, it don't, nor does any other church; for none can give forgivness but God, but the Episcopal church pretends to. Let us see. When a minister is ordained in that church to be what it calls a "priest" the Bishop lays hands on his head and says: "Receive the Holy Ghost for the office and work of a priest in the church of God now committed unto thee by the imposition of our hands. Whose sins thou dost forgive they are forgiven, and whose sins thou dost retain they are retained. And be thou a faithful dispenser of the Word of God and of his holy sacraments. In the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost."

This is what the papal church does when it ordains its clergy. Can you think of any words which would state the case plainer than those above quoted? Now let us see how that church follows up the idea set forth in the above words. It gives to "priests" only the power of pronouncing benedictions, though it allows other ministers to read other portions of the service.

In the morning and evening service, and in the service for the Lord's Supper, the "priest alone" standing up pronounces what is called the absolution. No one else dare read it. A layman may read the service but he must not venture to say the absolution. No deacon dare use it—only a "priest." The absolution so-called begins very grandiloquently: "Almighty God hath given power and commandment to his ministers to declare and pronounce absolution," etc. etc., and tapers off to a comparatively harmless thing. The mischief lies not in the bombast but in appointing one order of men who alone dare say the awful words. The effect of putting those words into the priest's mouth, only calling him "priest," and making him say he has "power and authority to pronounce absolution," while he is standing and the people are all kneeling before him, is to make him think he is what the prayer-book says he is, viz., a priest, and that he has power to absolve and retain sins.

In England the book authorizes the minister in sick chambers to absolve sick people after confession, and the words, "I absolve thee from all thy sins, etc.," are put in the "priest's" mouth; but in this country the absolutions which the minister is required to pronounce are those in the morning and evening prayers, and in the Communion.

Besides this, many ministers require persons to confess to them and then absolve the penitents, but the church has not yet authorized this method of private absolution. Its public absolution of course paves the way for the private performance.

Your correspondent next declares that the majority of Episcopalians do not believe in the "Real Presence." I am glad to hear that they don't, but I fear your correspondent is one of the old-fashioned low churchmen who has been asleep for the last twenty years, and don't realize how much Romanism his church has swallowed since he shut his eyes. The Protestant Episcopal laity are not as far gone as the clergy, but are being rapidly indoctrinated. The elder members are generally evangelical—where they are not wholly worldly—but the young people are learning Romanism very fast.

Dr. DeKoven's case will do for illustration. He declared in General Convention in 1871, "I myself adore, and teach my people to adore Christ present on the altar in the Eucharist under the form of bread and wine." In this statement he not only proclaims the "presence" but advocates what is known as Eucharistic adoration. Many like him always bow before the bread and wine, and some of them bow before the empty table, (which they always call the altar) saying it is the empty throne of Christ. The majority have not got as far as the bowing yet, but if you enter an Episcopal church almost anywhere you will find the priest turning to the "altar" whenever he can. Now Dr. DeKoven, his views being well understood, came near being elected Bishop of Massachusetts. The laity chose him and he was defeated by only a small majority of clergymen. He was afterward chosen by the clergy of Wisconsin as Bishop, but there the laity mustered a small majority against him. Afterward he was elected by a strong majority of both clergy and laity in Illinois. He failed of confirmation afterward, because a majority of the standing committees of all the Dioceses (State) went against him. He would have been confirmed without a doubt had not the P. E. church been afraid that his election would have assisted the Reformed Episcopal church in Illinois.

His "real presence" views were no objection. It was his boldly proclaimed "adoration" of the bread and wine which excited hostility. Bishop McLaren, who is now Bishop of Illinois believes in a real presence, and though perhaps he don't bow to the altar, yet turns to it to worship. I have known a clergyman in that church who had spilt some communion wine upon the floor go down upon his knees and lick it up, and then take up the carpet, rinse the stained place and drink the rinsings. And such instances could be cited by the score. This, as I believe is idolatry, precisely similar to that of any intelligent heathen who worships his idol, not because it is God, but because God is somewhere in it. I would not say the P. E. prayer-book taught it, or that it taught consubstantiation, but it speaks equivocally so that the erronous doctrine is readily developed. To illustrate. Just before consecrating the elements the priest says, "Grant us . . . to eat the flesh of thy dear Son, Jesus Christ, and to drink his blood, that our sinful bodies may be made clean by his body and our souls washed through his most precious blood."

This may be understood in a pure and good sense, and is so understood by low-churchmen in that church, but it gives the Romanizers some ground too; and then, when thereafter the Holy Ghost is asked to bless and sanctify the elements, opportunity is given to the gross and carnal view. But on the whole and with a fair construction the prayer-book cannot be said to teach consubstantiation directly. The fact remains, however, that most of its ministers believe in a real presence in the sacrament.

But upon the matter of baptismal regeneration there is nothing equivocal whatever. The P. E. church teaches it more fully, boldly, and flatly than does the Roman, Greek, or any other corrupt church whatever.

I don't precisely understand what you mean by a "saving ordinance," but I will tell you what the P. E. church teaches.

In the first place the P. E. catechism teaches the child to say, "In baptism I was made a member of Christ, a child of God, and an inheritor of the kingdom of heaven." And again it says that by baptism the soul secures "a death unto sin and a new birth unto righteousness, for being by nature born in sin we are hereby (by baptism) made the children of grace."

So that in and by baptism all this is done. If to be a member of Christ, a child of God and heir of heaven, to have the new birth, to be a child of grace means to be sacred, then baptism may be called a saving ordinance. But Episcopalians don't use the term "saving ordinance."

However the catechism says again that baptism introduces into a "state of salvation." And now in perfect constancy with these gross statements of the catechism the service for baptism is constructed. That service begins with the declaration that none can be saved unless regenerated by water and the Holy Ghost. It goes on then to say that "Jesus Christ by being baptised in Jordan, sanctified water to the mystical washing away of sins." Then it prays that "the infant coming to baptism may receive remission of sin, be regenerated, and obtain all the benefits which flow from regeneration." Then it asks many excellent things for the child as one about to undergo a vast spiritual change, and concludes the prayer with the words "sanctify this water to the mystical washing away of sin."

Then the child is baptised and immediately the minister says: "Seeing now that this child is regenerate and grafted into the body of Christ's church, let us give thanks." And the thanks are worded as follows: "We yield thee hearty thanks, most merciful Father, that it hath pleased thee to regenerate this infant with thy Holy Spirit, to receive him for thine own child by adoption, and to incorporate him into thy Holy church, and humbly we beseech, etc."

In 1874 five hundred of its ministers (one-sixth of the whole) respectfully petitioned the P. E. General Convention for permission to omit the declaration after baptism that the child was regenerated by the Holy Ghost. That petition was indignantly and overwhelmingly denied.

It doubtless surprises you that your correspondents should question any of these statements when the proof is in their prayer-books, but the truth is that Episcopalians (laymen) know less of their own church than any other religionists except perhaps the most illiterate Roman Catholics. They find much in the prayer-book which is genuine and pure Gospel, and they foolishly fancy that the whole book is pure. It is hard for good, old, simple-minded people to believe that the church of their boyhood and girlhood in which they have worshiped for years, which has married them and buried their dead, and around which their tenderest recollections gather, is rotten, and so they shut their eyes and stop their ears . . . and then they go to work embroidering elegant altar-cloths and dressing up their "altars" with suits of clothes varying with the seasons, as if the Lord's table was a bambino or other sacred doll.

They are repeating the course of thousands of Roman Catholics at the Lutheran Reformation, who knew in their hearts that the Reformers were right, but who hung on to their dear old errors. It is not pleasant to pain such amiable and weak-minded people, but when they are so rash as to say our statements are false we are compelled to open their own formularies and show them how horribly diseased the P. E. church is. It made the foolish attempt at the outset to compromise with error for the sake of peace, and now the error has entire possession of the church.

Reverence the highest, have patience with the lowest. Let this day's performance of the meanest duty be thy kingdom. Are the stars too distant, pick up the pebble that lies at thy feet and from it learn all.

Reform News and Notices.

—The General Agent attended the Wisconsin meeting last week. See his report; and also his notice to Ohio.

—This Convention is reported by Mr. Ronayne to have been very harmonious and satisfactory. The attendance was unusually good for the season, and the friends went home refreshed and strengthened for future conflict.

—We hope there may be some explanation of the closing of a Monmouth church against Bro. Hinman. The matter has a bad look as it now stands.

—The Indiana agent's report of work in Vigo county will appear next week.

—The Iowa State meeting will be held some time in April; a notice will soon be given. Meanwhile friends should be getting ready with all the means in their power.

—Friends Woodring and Smith, of Waverly, Iowa, have eight appointments to fill soon, in Bremer county. They keep the lodge open in their vicinity.

—Past Master Ronayne left for Rockport, N. Y., where he was to open the Lodge last evening; from thence to Rochester he goes next week, where Bro. Post has been working with great zeal and on an original plan, that will, no doubt, be a great success.

Ohio State Anniversary.

There will be a Convention of the friends of anti-secretism at Westerville, near Columbus, O., March 8th, 1876.

A cordial invitation is hereby tendered to all the friends of the cause in Ohio, and all others who choose to be present. We hope to see a rousing convention. Let every auxiliary association, every church favorable, and every neighborhood where half a dozen friends reside, see to it that one or more be appointed representatives to the Convention, and all join in defraying the expenses of the delegates. Let this arrangement be made in time so that every locality of friends in Ohio may be represented.

We have a great enemy to contend with, the stronger and more formidable because it is secret. But with Him upon our side, who "in secret said nothing," with His all-powerful grace promised, and prayer as a means of obtaining, the victory must be ours ere long.

Every anti-secret friend in the State ought to feel that on him rests a measure of the responsibility in making this a Convention that will have a telling effect upon the ranks of the enemy.

H. H. George, Pres't of this State Association.

Past Master Ronayne leaves Chicago for Lockport on the 8th inst. after which he will fill appointments in Rochester, Syracuse, and other cities and towns in Western New York. As he does not contemplate going to Boston and Conn., during this trip, he will fill all appointments made for him in other parts of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Indiana, before again returning to Chicago. Will the friends in these several States make their arrangements—N. Y. first, then Penn., then Ohio, and Indiana on his return; say the latter part of March. Ohio and Pennsylvania will send letters to Rochester, care W. Post, up to 17th inst.

Look at This!

Are our Anti-masonic friends in Michigan awake to the importance of the work of shedding light on Masonry, etc. We have engaged a State Lecturer, whose reputation as a man and as a speaker is well known to the readers of the Cynosure; and he is already in the field; has done some work, and is ready for more. Will not those who are interested better themselves so far as to inform the Agent where lectures are wanted, so that he may know how to arrange the work for the lecturer? The present apathy on this matter is more encouraging to the friends of secrecy than to us. It would greatly facilitate our plans if friends would write us immediately. Will the friends in Van Buren, St. Joseph, Allegan, Berrien and Branch counties let us hear from them at once. Not only these, but others anywhere in the State. Let us have an avalanche of calls. The lecturer desires to speak twice in each place. Direct to C. B. Remington, Fenton, Genesee Co., Mich.

For Rochester, N. Y.

Tragedy of Hiram Abiff by Past Master Ronayne. The stupendous humbug, Freemasonry, exposed in Corinthian Hall, Rochester, N. Y., on the evenings of Feb. 15th, 16th and 17th.

50ct admission cards secure a 50ct book: Greene's Broken Seal, or Finney's Expose, or John Quincy Adam's Letters on Masonry.

25cts admission cards secure a 25ct book: either Odd-fellows Expose, or Morgan's Murder, or Pittsburg Lectures and revealings of Morgan's Expose.

15ct card secures Freemasonry Anti-Christian.

Cards sold through the city and at the Hall. Choose books promptly at the doors. Doors open at 6½ P. M. Lecture begins at 7½ P. M.

The Wisconsin State Meeting.—First Words.

Sugar Creek, Wis., Feb. 3, 5 o'clock P. M.

Dear K:—The State Convention is in session and is well attended Some of the "veterans" are missed, but others are here and the strong young men are stepping to the front. At the opening of the afternoon session a brief time was given to an explanation of our Publishing House interest and pledges were taken in sums of from $5.00 up to $50.00, and while Bro. Ronayne is dealing "duly and truly with the widow's son," in the basement I am reducing the pledges to the proper form in the audience-room above, where, at the close of the meeting the donors will meet to sign their names to their several obligations.

I have only a moment to write, but will simply say much credit is due to our friends in Wisconsin and the friends throughout the country will be encouraged when they hear of their liberality in sustaining the Christian Cynosure, and in contributing to aid in completing the endowment fund. The lodge will not soon recover from the effect produced by this convention.

J. P. Stoddard.

Monmouth, Its College and Churches—Visit of the State Lecturer.

Little York, Ill., Jan. 27. 1876.

Dear Bro. K:—I came to Monmouth on the 18th. It is a beautiful little city of 6,000 inhabitants and growing in size and importance. Monmouth College is a flourishing institution. During the last season they have enlarged the college building, nearly doubling its capacity, and nearly completed an endowment of one hundred thousand dollars. It is under the charge of United Presbyterians, and is exerting a powerful influence against secret societies. Its able president, Rev. Dr. Wallace, is an uncompromising reformer. There are also three United Presbyterian churches in the city, which are committed to our principles. Their earnest and efficient pastors are men who "have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them." We have reason for profound thankfulness that the Lord has raised up here so united and powerful a testimony against this iniquity.

Yet it would be unjust to suppose that all the Anti-masonic sentiment in Monmouth is in the U. P. churches, or that the members of these churches are all Anti-masonic. The refusal of the trustees of the 2d U. P. church to open their house for an Anti-masonic lecture, after it had been announced by the pastor, in the papers and by bills, has an unpleasant look. Query, Had the trustees a right to resist the action of the pastor and session?

I was privileged to present this subject at the 3d U. P. church (Rev. Mr. Inches) on last Sabbath evening, and and also to address a large audience in Churchill's Hall on Monday evening, and to be replied to by a man who thought Masonry could not be bad inasmuch as all the great and good men who have ever lived were Masons, and that the most pious men who now live are Masons. He declined to accept the testimony of Sparks' Life of Washington or of the message of Gov. Ritner of Pa., but said he would write to his friends in Virginia who would sustain all he said!

I should not omit to mention the kindness and hospitality of Mr. Sam'l Graham of the 2d U. P. church. From Monmouth I went to Spring Grove where I spoke to an intelligent and attentive audience at 2 P. M., and on the following day at 1 P. M. in the Cedar Creek U. P. church. I expect to give two lectures here and to spend some two weeks more in the county. This is a most interesting field and one needing cultivation. Yours in the Lord, H. H. Hinman.

Footfalls Among the Wolverines.

Ronayne on the War Path—Flint Aroused—A Conscientious Mason—A Confessing Mason—A Dishonest Mason—Fenton Troubled—A Candidate Refuses the "Light"—Lodge Breaks up in Confusion—Northville Surprised and Howell Taken by Storm.

Weston, Mich., Jan. 27.

On Thursday, the 13th inst., Past Master Ronayne and myself reached Flint, the capital of Genesee Co., a city of some nine or ten thousand inhabitants, not far from eleven o'clock, A. M. After landing from the cars we commenced our search for Anti-masons, who are scarce in this place. After much fruitless search we at length found a son of a Mr. Matthews, who is a subscriber to the Cynosure. Here we found a cordial welcome, for which we thus tender our warmest thanks.

After dinner I found the agent with whom I hurried to the printing office for bills, etc., for our work. Having set the Citizen printers in motion, we started for the Globe office where I offered the manuscript of some "posters" to the young man in charge, who, upon mastering its contents, handed it back saying, with some heat, "I must decline printing that bill, as the senior is a Mason and he might not approve." I said in reply, "But Masons do print for us elsewhere." "Well," said he, coloring, "no conscientious Mason would do such a thing." After which delivery he seemed much relieved. Being anxious to get the work done at once, I ventured to say again, "I have never yet found a Mason printer so conscientious as to refuse a cash job of this kind." This brought the climax. Our young friend straightened himself up, and with a dignity indescribable, laying his right hand on that portion of his vest, covering the place where his heart was supposed to lie, jerked out the words, "Then you see one here!" I was convinced! No resistance or persistence was left in me. I saw before me an Entered Apprentice Mason, who was doubtless engaged in the mauling process of "divesting his mind and conscience of all the vices and superfluities of life," with the common Gavel, and who had not recovered from the soreness caused by the dissevering process. In pity for his tenderness we went to the Democrat office, alike run by Masons; but by those who were less verdant than our neophyte of the Globe. We hope the "senior" dealt mercifully with his scruples when he came home; and that he taught him that money does not lose its value by passing through Anti-masonic hands. On the whole, however, it was refreshing to witness the workings of a live conscience among the craft in these degenerate days.

Mr. R. opened lodge in the Court House in the evening, and went through with the initiation of a candidate in the presence of a crowd filling the seats and all the available space outside the railing. The "labor" was gone through with, as Ronayne alone can do it; the only disturbance of note coming from "Ballard" the horse physician, who broke in upon me at Davison's station a night or two previous. He proved himself a fit champion for the Masons, who fitly characterize themselves by the choice of such a defender! Vive le Ballard! Vive le Macon!

The next morning a prominent Mason called on Mr. R. and complimented him on the correctness of his work, and assured him that certain statements he had made were true, as to the reason men had for joining the Masons; and gave from his own experience certain illustrations, which would have made the ears of the craft tingle, and their cheeks turn red had they heard him. During the day another one of the cable-towed gentry, of some note—unless he's mistaken—said to Mr. R. in my presence, "I have not heard a single Mason speak of your performance who did not say, "it was all right;" or words to this effect. And yet this same honest fellow writes to a Detroit paper that Mr. Ronayne "pretends" to give an expose, etc., "it was one of the most laughable farces," etc., with other statements equally veracious. But then, poor fellow, he is sworn to lie; and he is not a "good Mason" unless he, with a lie on the tip of his pen, becomes a bad man!

On the night of the 14th Hiram Abiff was slain in due form, and raised again on the "five points of fellowship," and thus the Masonic doctrine of the Resurrection was evidenced by a lie, too often acted by ministers of the Gospel of the Son of God. This scene was witnessed by a goodly company, who seemed much impressed thereby. During the performance I witnessed one little by-play which I shall not soon forget. A young couple sat nearly in front of the stage; the husband either had already joined the lodge, or was about to do so. He sat through the performance without the movement of a facial muscle, so far as I could see. His young wife sat at his right, but with her person leaned forward so as to command her husband's face, and thus she pitilessly watched him, occasionally giving him a jog with her elbow, as though she would emphasize some particular part of the performance for his benefit. But not the ghost of a smile came to his countenance during the livelong tragedy. A more joyless face I hope never to see. How could she revel in his misery! How could he ever look her in the face again!

This was the first public eruption of Anti-masonry into Flint. It made a sensation. It will not be the last if God will.

From thence we repaired to Fenton and opened lodge in the Entered Apprentice degree. We had some difficulty in finding a candidate, who, when found, refused to be brought to light,—would not have the hood-wink taken off, lest the audience should recognize him, and so the Master dismissed the lodge, but not in due form. We are sure he could not have so learned Masonry in Keystone, No. 639. "In order," Bro. Ronayne Monday night saw "Hiram," and then our work closed for the present in Fenton, and the next night found us in Northville "looking to the East." The roads being almost impassable, and the night dark, with all the churches in full operation, but few were present. I spoke here, however, the previous evening to a full house.

The 19th and 20th, we opened lodge in due form in Howell, Livingston Co. The first evening the hall was filled; the last evening not so many were present. During initiation, a surprised member of the craft whispered to his fellow and was overheard to say: "It's as straight as a string!" A colored barber was present who told me while shaving me, "I have thought some of joining the Masons!" When the candidate came on the stage that "man and brother" laughed, he laughed, he l-a-u-g-h-e-d!! and when he laughed everybody laughed. Ronayne laughed! Everything laughed! The tallow dips, the three lesser lights laughed! The shadows laughed! The echoes laughed! If my life was insured for enough to provide a competency for my family, I might consent to submit myself to the influence of that laugh again; not without. When that son of Ham opens his countenance to laugh, all Howell breaks out into good humor. If Ronayne could take this laugh around with him his life would be safe; for under favorable circumstances you could hear it a mile; and nothing human could get mad within the circle of its reverberations. Under its influence Ronayne was perfectly happy. I never saw him kill Hiram more completely to the satisfaction of all concerned. Exit Howell.

Elder Barlow in Genesee County, Mich.

Pine Run, Mich.

Editor Christian Cynosure:

In this village are two church edifices and one school-house, and within a mile and a fourth are three church edifices and two school-houses. Of the said five churches none could be had for Anti-masonic lectures except the Congregational church of this place, which the trustees said might be used; but when J. C. Thompson, the preacher, who also is a Freemason, Good Templar, Odd fellow, member of the Royal Arch Chapter, and Knight Templar, heard thereof he put a veto thereon.

Then we were told that the school-house could not be obtained as one officer was a granger, another a Freemason, and the director, (Mr. Sparks), was once a Freemason, and now an Odd-fellow N. G. But knowing that Mr. Sparks knew what belonged to civility we applied to him and he replied that the house had always been open for all lectures, and lately the Patrons had lectures, organized a grange and held lodges in the school-house, and if secret societies would not bear investigation let them go down. So Mr. Barlow lectured in said school-house. Mr. Sparks has told me that he receives curses almost every day for permitting the lecturer in the school-house.

A few days since said J. C. Thompson was putting up posters and distributing hand-bills for a phrenological lecture to be held in his church on the evening of weekly prayer-meeting. While the the school-house was filled at Mr. Barlow's first, and more than filled at his second lecture, all who went to the church to hear the phrenologist was the church sexton, Mr. Thompson and his three children, so there was no lecture. An ex-deacon and trustee of another church objected to Mr. Barlow's lecturing because he did not want a man to come into his house and tell him he was going to hell. The greatest commotion ever known in this place has been caused by Mr. Barlow's lectures.

Yours, W. M. Beden.

Correspondence.

Any One may Answer.

Cheshire, Mass., Jan. 28, 1876.

Editor Christian Cynosure:

Dear Sir:—I have been greatly interested in reading your invaluable paper for the past six months, and hope its circulation may be much more widely extended among the thinking religious public. It is dealing home thrusts at the dark institutions in our land. May its light penetrate the secret chambers of all those oath-bound societies, and give liberty to the captives enslaved therein. I wish I possessed the means of sending the paper to a hundred of my friends and brethren in the sacred ministry, to wake up their attention to what God is doing by this agency, and by Past Master Ronayne, in his open-lodge workings.

Will you allow me to ask a few questions in your columns for yourself or some of your well-informed correspondents to answer through the same channel? I ask not for myself alone, but for many others. And if some of the queries have been answered in your past issues, they may be in time for your new subscribers, just beginning to read the Cynosure.

1. I would ask Mr. Ronayne through you to tell us if it really is a fact that every Master Mason is required to be put through the solemn and ridiculous farce of being raised from the grave, a la mode of Hiram Abiff? Does every minister and deacon have to pass that ordeal; or are good and conscientious ministers exempted from it by special favor?

2. I would like to see a list of the ex-Masons in your columns, or how many there are who have recently left the institution, and cut all connection with it, that the public may know this work of reform is spreading in our land. If proper let us have their names and the degrees they had reached, before God and the truth exalted them to the degree of free and honest men, before their fellow-citizens. And why might not all such hold a convention, and declare their independence of the lodge power next 4th of July, like the heroes of the Le Roy Convention in 1829?

3. Cannot you, or some of your correspondents inform your readers which and how many of the late Tammany and Whiskey Ring men, and criminals like Boss Tweed and E. S. Stokes were honorable (?) members of the various secret orders? And so, if possible, of the great lawyers and judges who have so successfully aided in delaying or preventing justice being executed upon these men?

4. By what authority of certain knowledge was it asserted in your editorial of Jan. 5th, that a "secret order numbering less than one-fourth of the voters, hold three-fourths of the offices national and local," in our land? If that statement is true, or even only half as bad, it is an alarming fact, deserving the serious consideration of every honest American citizen.

Please insert the above, and call out aeswers to these queries and oblige.

Yours, S. Wright.

[See reply on 7th page.]

A Baptist Church in Michigan Blessed in Holding up the Truth.

Clarendon, Mich., Jan. 31, 1876.

Bro. K.—It may be interesting to the readers of the Cynosure to have another evidence given to the fact that anti-secret preaching does not prevent but rather help Christian revivals.

Last winter a good reformation followed the delivery of two Anti-masonic lectures in this community, and after Bro. Stoddard's lectures here in November I gave a sermon to a full house on the Sabbath, showing its certain but illegitimate descent from ancient pagan secretism, and false pretensions to antiquity in its present form, and its blood-stained, fraudulent and false character generally. Since that time a religious interest has been growing and spreading until the whole community is stirred by the truth, and many have come to Christ and are rejoicing in hope of eternal life. Another church of the denomination (Free Will Baptist,) three miles away, with an able minister, but which is ruled by two Masons, has been holding a meeting eight weeks with but very little effect, as I am informed. Yours for the truth H. S. Limbocker.

An Open Door in Chautauqua Co., N. Y.

Clymer, N. Y., Feb. 1.

Editor Cynosure:

With this note I send renewal for the Cynosure, also money for some books. I consider the Cynosure to be a weekly visitor, that no Christian engaged as God requires him to be, in opposing sin, can do without. It gives light on dark subjects. Bro. Barlow will find a clear coast at Clymer, N. Y. now, or any of the New York lecturers, while I am here. Any one of my six pulpits on Bear Lake charge are open to the advocates of truth. Although the fraternity have said, "We'll starve Luce out," we have not been to bed hungry yet. I am not at work for Masonic bread. I am spending some time in lecturing on the subject and when standing before the fraternity in my Royal Arch regalia, like others get the benefit of "Masonic vengeance."

Yours for pushing the battle over the wall. N. R. Luce, Pastor U. B. church.

Masonic Compliments.

Duncan, Ill., Jan. 17, 1876.

Mr. Editor:—That you may be more fully aware of the effect of the State meeting at Peoria, I submit the following from a correspondent of the Wyoming Post, (Stark Co. Ill.)

"I cannot conscientiously close this article without noticing a character that is mentioned in an editorial of the Post, also by your Peoria correspondent, an expelled, kicked-out, Post-Master Mason. This man in conferring the degree of Master Mason upon individuals, is either practicing a hoax or is a perjured villain. In either case, he is solving the problem of multiplying a black-hearted villain by a self-conceited fool, and obtaining for a product a animal, that, when provoked is capable of diffusing a most abominable stench. He is not fit to associate with mankind, but might find a species of reptile that he might associate with, without befouling them. Such characters are dishonest by instinct, cowards by nature, and liars by profession. They were conceived in sin, brought up in iniquity, and live in corruption. They are counterfeits upon the handiwork of the Great Architect of the Universe; but at the final wind-up, they will be called from labor to refreshment by the prince of darkness, where they can feast their ghoulish souls over their own folly and corruption, through an endless eternity."

Dreadful, is'nt it? Oh yes. "Either practicing a hoax or is a perjured villain." Is it likely that a man being an expert in Masonry, as Mr. Ronayne is, who was "kicked out of the lodge," would spend his time in practicing a hoax to spite the lodge; also running the risk of losing his life? Would Mr. Ronayne, or any other individual "practice a hoax" at the risk of all that is dear to them, without great compensation? No. Ah, well! What then? Why "perjured" of course, that is it exactly. Little would the craft care for "practicing the hoax," if the dark and devilish system of the institution was not brought to light. But as the extract is somewhat lengthy I forbear noticing it further. Yours for more light, H. C. Stoughton.

A Dishonor to be Retrieved.

"Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn."

In a certain county in northern Illinois where there are more wealthy Anti-masons than almost anywhere else in the State, a certain Anti-masonic lecturer went three times by invitation, lectured twice, preached twice, and attended two other meetings—spending about six weeks' time and some $7.00 or $8.00 and no one ever proposed to give him anything in return though knowing that he was expected to make his expenses on the field.

In a certain other city the same man was invited by the pastor of a rich church to visit his church and lecture, with the assurance that his expenses should at least be paid. He filled his appointment and spoke twice and was permitted to go away some $7 or $8 poorer, and having lost a week's time; and yet nothing was ever said to him about compensation or expenses. "Brethren these things ought not so to be." Philanthropos.

College Secret Societies.

I wish to confirm several of the points made by Dr. Vincent against college secret societies. I was for four years connected with Dartmouth College and witnessed many of the evils mentioned as peculiar to the secret society system. There were formerly two flourishing public literary societies, (The Social Friends and The United Fraternity) connected with the College and having large libraries. These societies were almost entirely destroyed by the Greek letter secret societies. The only meetings of any account were the annual elections. The special interest of these meetings arose from the fact that a few paying offices were at the disposal of these public societies. The disgraceful scenes mentioned by Dr. Vincent resulting entirely from the secret society plots against each other were of annual occurrence. The advantages offered by a village lyceum were not within the reach of the members of Dartmouth College unless they were willing to submit to the degradation of a secret society. Then Dartmouth College life was extremely unpleasant so far as any social enjoyment was concerned to every student who did not bow the knee to the secret Baal. I have no personal knowledge of the secrets of these societies, but have the written testimony of a most worthy brother minister that they are contrary to the Gospel. I propose to send my sons to no college or academy cursed by secret societies.

S. C. Kimball.

Austin Academy, N. H.

Dr. Colver Disputed.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 31.

Editor Christian Cynosure:

Dear Sir:—Elder E. S. Graham, pastor of the Baptist church at Danville, Ill., says that Dr. Colver lies in saying that Masons of the Royal Arch degree are sworn to conceal murder and treason. But shall we believe the testimony of any one who is sworn not only "never to reveal," but "ever to conceal" the truth in the matter, while he professes to be bound by his oath? I would sooner believe the man who has exhibited the moral courage to break such a wicked oath.

William Fenton.

More Good Suggestions.

Wellington, Ill., Jan. 17, '76.

Editor Christian Cynosure:

The members of the various lodges hereabouts are nervous; and one would infer from this that lodgemen are rightfully judging that everything now points or portends to a coming storm. They say our tracts or lecturing only adds to their finances and increases their membership. We will see. And even if they are right the material they get, after our lecturers truthfully show up the lodge, will be only the drift wood of society which will only weaken their cause. Numbers don't make strength—often it is even a positive evidence of weakness.

We are looking forward to the coming of Mr. Ronayne as an event which we think will put a lock to the lodges getting recruits from even the lower classes of society. A young man must certainly be low who will knowingly pay a lodge a fourth of a hundred dollars for a lot of stuff (for that is all that it is) when the same kind of shoddy can be bought of Mr. Cook for $10.00 a hundred!

A Baptist minister near here, at a Baptist association said publicly that he was, when away from home, a Baptist minister, a granger and a Mason; but at home he was a farmer. Is not society supremely corrupt that will hear such boasting from the pulpit and yet not rebuke it? This is the same preacher that crowded C. A. Blanchard out of his appointment at Mr. Leemon's school-house; though C. A. finally got the house and crowded him with arguments. One thing we are lacking here is an organization. Why cannot Ford, Vermillion and Iroquois unite and have quarterly gatherings where all the friends can meet and compare notes?

Our local papers refer to every public lodge installation or any or every thing the lodge does, even to the balls, suppers, etc., and in every case praise the lodge; but is against their grain to refer to any of the gatherings or meetings opposed to it. I think I have a plan that will balance that dodge, and while it is an advertisement it is an argument against the lodge as well. They can't well refuse advertisements. I have two advertisements in local papers of Morgan's Expose, also Odd-fellowship and the Grange, giving the number of pages of each, also referring to the pictures. Each of the advertisements costs only $6.00. Let as many of the friends as can, advertise in their local papers and if they don't sell a book it will pay for the cause. I keep the books on hand and am meeting with fair success in their sale. I advertise to mail to any address.

The good book says, "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might." We have the lodge question now on hand and let us handle it lively.

J. S. Hickman.

OUR MAIL.

David West, Sycamore, Ill., writes:

"I find men plenty who profess to hate secretism."

Anti-masons, take courage.

Sam'l Hale, Mallet Creek, O., writes:

"The Cynosure ought to be read by all who are in favor of the world's being made better and wiser. But like all reform papers must be unpopular until the reform they advocate become popular, and be attended with much wear and tear of patience and much sacrifice on the part of the few to get them into circulation. I met one of my three month's subscribers of last season, lately, and asked him, if he took the Cynosure. He said, "No, but it is a good paper and I must have it. These secret societies and Jesuitism must be put down.'"

We hope all our agents will be sure to call on the old subscribers and forward their renewals. Would it not be well to keep a list of the names you send and when their time expires, so as to remind you when to call?

R. E. Bird, Clayton, Mich., writes:

"We have a lodge of Freemasons here that holds everything in subjection and fear. Money is very scarce."

Andrew Alpaugh, Yates City, Ill., writes:

"Please send me a few extra copies of last week's paper containing the conclusion of Mr. Ronayne's exposition. Some of the fraternity here admit that the paper contains the whole thing in a nut-shell, and several of them want to borrow it but are afraid of lodge discipline and dare not subscribe for it. As showing how the exposition works, a certain unaffiliated Mason in this town lately undertook to visit Yates City lodge. But the W. M. refused him on account of there being so many imposters and book Masons (you see the point) traveling around the country. He has borrowed my Cynosures in order to post up and proposes to try it again."

Last week's number of the Cynosure is in great demand and seems to be appreciated.

Mr. Adam Smith, Waverly, Ia., writes:

"I sent my little girl to the office and she lost my paper. In a few days after I found it hanging on the door knob with Ronayne's throat cut. Placed there probably by some worthy friend."

Ronayne's exposition contains the whole thing.

Warren Taylor, Wilkesville, O., writes:

"The people about here think that I, a feeble old man, am very foolish to attempt to batter down the walls of so vast an institution as Masonry."

It would be very foolish for any of us to try to do this in our own strength, but if our trust is in God he will make the weak things to confound the mighty.

B. Williams, Warren, Ill., writes:

"I see a notice in the Cynosure that Mr. E. Ronayne intends to visit northern Illinois next May or June to lecture and work to bring to light the hidden things of dishonesty. We are glad he is coming this way. We intend to have him two or three evenings in this place, and I hope many other places in this county. We should have a company united and organized for work. The leaven of reform is working and the fields are ripe for the harvest."

J. P. Yocom, Heyworth, Ill., writes:

"Last Spring one of my neighbors handed me a copy of the Cynosure which I took care of till, a few weeks past, I sent for a copy of your paper, and am well pleased with it and intend to keep it in my family. I like the way it uses up secret societies. I think they are worse than every slavery was. I was told two years ago while out in Oregon by grangers that I would have to join the grangers or starve. I told them they had come up like a mush-room, and would be as easily kicked over, and when I left Oregon this was almost fulfilled, for some of the lodges could barely get enough members together to do business."

Eli Tapley, Columbus, Miss., writes:

"Secretism is still strong here. The elections are controlled by it. We greatly need an Anti-masonic lecturer. Who will have the courage to come?"

We think that the courage would be more easily found among our lecturers than the money to defray their expenses; but we hope the day is not far distant when in this place, as in many other places in the South, doors will be opened freely for the entrance of light and truth on this subject.

Lewis Holbrook, La Otto, Ind., writes:

"I think it would be a good thing to re-publish D. B. Turney's piece, headed, "Shackled in Conscience," published in Nov. 25 and Dec. 1st in the Cynosure, in tract form. It ought to be put into the hands of every Masonic minister in the land."

We should like to publish it.

Geo. H. Fenton, Windsor, Conn., writes:

"I dropped one of my religious papers the other day because it was silent on the Masonic question, and as I feel it my duty to oppose sin in every form, and knowing Masonry to be what it is, a vile thing, I have made up my mind to support nothing that is afraid of it. We are having quite warm work here. We have in our place five ministers out of six that are Masons, and there are a few of us here who are out and out for Christ and the truth, and they are trying to live us down. The people are turned more or less against us because they know not the truth and can't believe it to be so bad, there being so many ministers in it. But the truth is on our side and it is gradually telling on them. We will wait the Lord's time and keep pressing forward. We have good men in the field."

W. W. Stringer, Ridge, O., writes:

"As long as I can pay for the Cynosure I want to take it. People are afraid that it will hurt them in business to take it. It has hurt me in my business, but if doing right will hurt me, let it come. In God will I put my trust let the consequences be what they may. Freemasons have circulated in these parts, that the Masons of Chicago have sold books and tracts enough to the Anti's to rebuild their Masonic hall in that place. This is stooping low to draw the shadow over our eyes, but it is too thin; we can see through it. We live in the southern part of Noble County, O. We need lecturers to open the eyes of the people."

A friend in St. Clair Co., Mich., sends a new subscription and writes:

"My son-in-law, an Anti-mason, is desirous of having the above-named person's eyes opened on the subject, as he is a strong Mason and professes to be a good Christian. He says he has good times in that "upper room", meaning the lodge-room, and also in the upper room mentioned in the New Testament."

How many there are whose eyes must be opened before they see these things as they should. May we all do what we can to bring them to the light.

The Sabbath School.

Lesson for Feb. 20.—David Established King.

SCRIPTURE.—2 Sam. 5: 17-25. Commit 17-21; Primary Verse, 19.

17. But when the Philistines heard that they had anointed David king over Israel, all the Philistines came up to seek David; and David heard of it, and went down to the hold.

18. The Philistines also came and spread themselves in the valley of Rephaim.

19. And David inquired of the Lord, saying, Shall I go up to the Philistines? wilt thou deliver them into mine hand? And the Lord said unto David, Go up: for I will doubtless deliver the Philistines into thine hand.

20. And David came to Baal-perazim, and David smote them there, and said, The Lord hath broken forth upon mine enemies before me, as the breach of waters. Therefore he called the name of that place Baal-perazim.

21. And there they left their images, and David and his men burned them.

22. And the Philistines came up yet again, and spread themselves in the valley of Rephaim.

23. And when David inquired of the Lord, he said, Thou shalt not go up; but fetch a compass behind them, and come upon them over against the mulberry trees.

24. And let it be, when thou hearest the sound of a going in the tops of the mulberry trees, that then thou shalt bestir thyself; for then shall the Lord go out before thee, to smite the host of the Philistines.

25. And David did so, as the Lord had commanded him; and smote the Philistines from Geba until thou come to Gazer.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Believe in the Lord your God so shall ye be established."—2 Chron. 20: 20.

TOPIC.—God's Decrees are sure.

HOME READINGS.

M. Is. 46: 1-13. Declares the End from the Beginning.
T. Is. 43: 1-20. "Will work and who shall let it."
W. Job 8: 1-19. "Who hath prospered against Him!"
Th. Job 23: 1-17. Who can turn Him?
T. Dan. 4: 29-37. Doeth according to His Will.
S. Eph. 1: 1-23. Worketh all things after His own Will.
S. Matt. 24: 24-42. His words shall not pass away.

—It takes the highest sort of faith patiently to wait for the Lord's time—but it is good to wait. No one ever lost anything, but always has gained much by biding his time. Ps. xxxvii. 7,-9; lxii. 1; Is. xxx. 15,18; Lam. iii. 25, 26; Rom. viii. 25; Gal. vi. 9; Col. i. 11; Heb. vi. 12; x. 36.

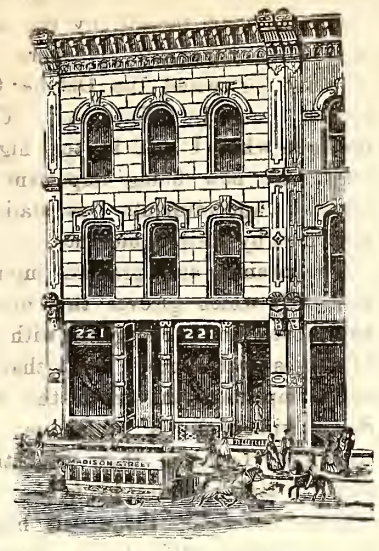
—How little cause have they to fear the result of any issue when the Lord is on their side? Ps. iii. 6; xxvii. 1,3; lxvi. 1,2; lvi. 11; Is. xli. 10; li. 12; Matt. x. 28-33; 1 Pet. iii. 13,14.

—Not sinners only are punished for sins, but saints also. The fact that one is a Christian does not bring immunity from the just consequences of transgression. Lev. xxvi. 23,24; 2 Sam. vii. 14; Ps. cxix. 67,71,75; Job v. 17; Heb. xii. 4,8; Rev. iii. 19.

—God deals not only with men, but also with nations. "Blessed is that nation whose God is the Lord!" Ex. xix. 5,6; Deut. vii. 6; Ps. ii. 7,12; xxxiii. 12; cxliv. 15; Is. lx. 12; Jer. vii. 28; xii. 17; Luke xix. 27.

—The decrees of God move on to their accomplishment with irresistible power. To those who stubbornly stand in their way this thought is a torture, for it means that they will be crushed by them. But it is a comforting fact to those whose royalty, like that of David, is sure to be established by them. Num. xxiii. 19; Job ix. 12; xxiii. 13; Is. xiv. 24; Ezek. xii. 28; Dan. iv. 35; Luke xii. 43,44; 2 Tim. ii. 12; Rev. iii. 21.—Nat'l. S. S. Teacher.

Study of the Bible.



It is well understood by the best teachers of Natural History that the only true method of study is a careful observation of natural objects themselves. The mineral, the plant, or the animal, must be accurately examined. No mere casual glance will suffice; the naturalist must constantly commune with nature. No reading of learned works will avail, unless the reading is accompanied, or preceded, by thorough observation. So essential is this personal study of nature for each student, and so great the danger that he will substitute the study of books for it, that Agassiz was constantly warning teachers lest they should encourage their students in this capital mistake.

The Bible is essentially like Nature, in the method of study demanded for it. It came from the same Divine hand, and has a similar adaptation to the nature of man. As a moral being, he needs for instruction the same close, earnest, constant communion with the sacred truths of the Bible, as the successful naturalist must have with the natural world.

Many books are valuable to aid the student of the Bible, but they must never draw him from the Bible. That must be as constantly in his hand, as must the specimen be in the hand of the naturalist. And we still have so much faith in the general accuracy of our English version, as to believe that much time can be profitably spent in reading and studying it, even without note or comment. In fact, we believe that one who is so familiar with the English Bible as to have its teachings indelibly impressed upon the mind, is already a Bible student, and in the best possible condition to use the critical labors of others.

We would not undervalue, or speak lightly of, the work of Bibical scholars in explaining the sacred text; but the fundamental truths of the Bible are, in general, easily understood without the aid of learned commentaries. If question books are to so engross the attention of our children as to prevent them in early life from making the Bible as familiar to themselves as a nursery tale, it were better for them that such helps had never been written.—Illustrated Bible Studies.

LESSON PREPARATION.—1. As to times and methods: Commence early; look at the subject on the Sunday evening before; think it over during the week; mentally rehearse it to your class; towards the end of the week sit down and write your notes on paper. 2. As to the pervading character and purpose of the lesson: Let one great purpose be kept in view—to aim at the heart—to bring the young to Christ the Saviour. Let every subject be presented in its spiritual aspect. 3. As to plan of lesson: It must be on some definite topic, the choice of course being determined by the circumstances of the school. Arrange the matter under definite heads. 4. On note writing: Write notes; but know them so well that it will not be necessary to read them in the class. Anticipate probable answers so fully that you may be prepared to meet them. Keep all you write—it may be of use some day. —S. S. World.

THE CARPENTER DONATION.

The above is a front view of the fine stone-front building on Madison street, Chicago, which Mr. Carpenter proposes to give the National Christian Association for head-quarters and publishing house. The terms of the donation are that $30,000 shall be raised by Apr. 1, 1878, to carry on the work of the Association. Send contributions to Treasurer of the N. C. A.

The National Christian Association.

PRESIDENT.—Philo Carpenter.

DIRECTORS.—Philo Carpenter, J. Blanchard, Archibald Wait, I. A. Hart, C. R. Hagerty, E. A. Cook, O. F. Lumry, C. A. Blanchard, H. L. Kellogg, I. R. B. Arnold, E. S. Cook.

COR. SECRETARY.—C. A. Blanchard.

TREASURER.—H. L. Kellogg.

GEN. AG'T & LECTURER—J.P.Stoddard.

Address last three at 13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

The object of this Association is:—

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved; to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform to aid the Association in either of these ways: (1) to establish a Publishing House and Head-quarters in Chicago; (2) to carry on the general work; (3) to maintain the State agents. All donations (drafts or P.O. orders) should be sent to the Treasurer; general correspondence, etc., direct to the Corresponding Secretary.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—I give and bequeath to the National Christian Association, incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois, the sum of——dollars for the purposes of said Association, and for which the receipt of its Treasurer for the time being shall be a sufficient discharge.

N. C. A. Receipts for Jan., 1876.

PUBLISHING HOUSE FUND:
Thos. Gibb, Dora, Ind.,	$ 25.00
R. S. Reed $1.00, and J. Q. Temple $1.50, Huntsville, O.,	2.50
Jas. Wallace $1, and D. Boyd $2, Bellefontaine, O.,	3.00
J. D. Fowler, Lena, Ill., per Ill. Agent,	100.00
J. M. Adair, McAlevy's Fort, Pa.,	5.00
Jas. Kennedy, Los Gatos, Cal.,	10.00
Geo. Brokaw, $25, and Dr. Wm. McClelland, $5, Washington, Iowa,	30.00
Alex. Mackie, Phila., Pa.,	2.00
Rev. D. Thompson, Arkansas C'y, Kans.,	10.00
Ira Green $10, Clark Green $15, Rossville, Ill., per E. Ronayne,	25.00
Geo. Thompson, Leland, Mich.,	1.00
ILLINOIS FUND:
Mrs. L. E. Farrar, Paxton,	10.00
A. L. Best, Oreana,	10.00
B. Williams, Warren,	1.00
LECTURE FUND:
John Gardner, Aurora, Ill.,	15.00
	249.50

H. L. KELLOGG, Treas.

The lift given to the Publishing House by the Indiana friends, reported last week by the General Agent, is a favor from the Lord. Let other communities and individuals do their part and the House will be secured. The list of receipts shows a right spirit in this work. Shall the February report show the $10,000 raised?

State Auxiliary Associations.

The following list will be found of great convenience. Let every friend of the reform put himself in communication with the proper officers, sending contributions, suggestions,—anything to push on the work.

CONNECTICUT.
President, J. A. Conant, Willimantic.
Secretary, D. J. Ellsworth, Windsor.
Treasurer, C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.
President, J. Dickson, Decatur
Secretary, J. H. Snyder, Westfield.
Treasurer, H. L. Kellogg, 13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.
Lecturer, H. H. Hinman, Wheaton.

INDIANA.
President, Halleck Floyd, Dublin.
Cor. Sec'y, J. T. Kiggins, Portland
Rec. Sec'y, Wm. Small, Xenia.
Treasurer, Peter Rich, Westfield.
Lecturer, J. T. Kiggins, Portland, Jay Co.

IOWA.
President, M. S. Drury, Castalia.
Cor. Sec'y, Louis Bookwalter, Western College.
Rec. Sec'y, C. Compton, Steamboat Rock.
Treasurer, D. W. Lyons, Mason City.
Lecturer, James Hankins, Mason City.

KANSAS.
President, Rev. Mr. Bell.
Secretary, J. Dodds, Winchester.
Treasurer, S. Sexton, Topeka.

MICHIGAN.
President, C. Quick, Weston.
Secretary, C. B. Remington, Fenton.
Treasurer, J. H. Wilcox, Howell.
Lecturer, J. L. Barlow, Fenton.
Agent, C. B. Remington, Fenton.

MISSOURI.
President, N. E. Gardner, Avalon.
Cor. Sec'y., A. D. Thomas, Arbela.
Rec. Sec'y, E. W. Carpenter.
Treasurer, Wm. Beauchamp, Avalon.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.
President, J. F. Brown, Bow Lake.
Secretary, S. C. Kimball, Center Strafford.
Treasurer, Kimball Cole, Lake Village.
Lecturer, S. C. Kimball, Center Strafford.

NEW YORK.
President, L. N. Stratton, Syracuse.
Secretary, W. A. Sellew, Rochester.
Treasurer, M. Merrick, Syracuse.
Lecturers—L. N. Stratton, Syracuse; D. P. Rathbun, Lisbon Center; Woodruff Post, Rochester; A. F. Curry, Almond.

OHIO.
President, H. H. George, W. Geneva.
Secretary, Wm. Dillon, Dayton.
Treasurer, J. G. Mattoon, West Unity.
Lecturer, Wm. Dillon, Dayton.

PENNSYLVANIA.
President, A. L. Post, Montrose.
Cor. Sec'y., N. Callender, Green Grove.
Rec. Sec'y., J. W. Raynor, Uniondale.
Treasurer, W. B. Bertels, Wilkesbarre.
Lecturer, J. W. Raynor, Uniondale.

WISCONSIN.
President, J. W. Wood, Baraboo.
Secretary, R. Cooley, Lima Center.
Treasurer, M. R. Britten, Vienna.
Lecturer, P. Elzea, Delavan.

Address of Anti-masonic Lecturers.

General Agent and Lecturer, J. P. STODDARD, Christian Cynosure Office, Chicago.

FOR STATE LECTURERS see State Association list.

OTHERS who will lecture as opportunity offers.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
W. A. Wallace, Dublin, Ind.
J. B. Nessell, Ellington, N. Y.
James Hankins, Mason City, Iowa.
R. B. Taylor, Summerfield, O.
N. Callender, Green Grove, Pa.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
P. Hurless, Polo, Ill.
J. C. Graham, Viola, Mercer Co., Ill.
J. R. Baird, Templeton, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Bourbon, Ind.
Josiah McCaskey, Fancy Creek, Wis.
C. F. Hawley, Millbrook, Pa.
W. M. Givens, Center Point, Ind.
J. L. Andrus, Mt. Vision, N. Y.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
D. S. Caldwell, Nevada, Wyandot Co., O.
Samuel Hale, Mallett Creek, O.
A. Mayn, Promise City, Wayne Co. Ia.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
C. Wiggins, Angola, Ind.
S. L. Cook, Albion, Ind.
E. Ronayne, Cynosure office, Chicago.
W. M. Love, Baker, St. Clair Co., Mo.

The State conventions lately held or soon to meet in Wisconsin, Iowa and Ohio will probably make some changes in the list of State officers. Note them and keep up the correspondence with the new officers.

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY FEB. 1876.

PLATFORM AND NOMINATIONS FOR 1876.

FOR PRESIDENT
James B. Walker,
of Illinois.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT
Donald Kirkpatrick,
of New York.

PLATFORM.

We hold: 1. That ours is a Christian and not a heathen nation, and that the God of the Christian Scriptures is the author of civil government.

2. That God requires and man needs a Sabbath.

3. That the prohibition of the importation, manufacture and sale of intoxicating drinks as a beverage, is the true policy on the temperance question.

4. The charters of all secret lodges granted by our Federal and State Legislatures should be withdrawn, and heir oaths prohibited by law.

5. That the civil equality secured to all American citizens by article 13th, 14th and 15th of our amended Constitution should be preserved inviolate.

6. That arbitration of differences with nations is the most direct and sure method of securing and perpetuating a permanent peace.

7. That to cultivate the intellect without improving the morals of men, is to make mere adepts and experts; therefore the Bible should be associated with books of science and literature in all our educational institutions.

8. That land and other monopolies should be discountenanced.

9. That the Government should furnish the people with an ample and sound currency, and a return to specie payment as soon as practicable.

10. That maintenance of the public credit, protection to all loyal citizens, and justice to Indians are essential to the honor and safety of our nation.

11. And finally, we demand for the American people the abolition of Electoral Colleges, and a direct vote for President and Vice-president of the United States.

THE HOLINESS DISCUSSION.

We publish in this number the article, "Wholesale Slander" by an excellent brother who is grieved by our article on "The Fall of Sanctificationists." We omit the name of the writer hoping that when he reads it in print he will see that he had failed to "add to his virtue knowledge" when he wrote, and that he really misapprehends the meaning and drift of our article which he censures.

Our brother seems to think we stand aloof and criticise the holiness movement. In this he is certainly mistaken. "We," that is to say, I, procured a holiness convention in Wheaton, Ill., conducted mainly by Methodist Episcopal preachers in full conference connection, from Oct. 15th to 19th last. I attended, was blessed by and endorsed that Convention. Its good effects are still here: and last night I attended an excellent meeting at the Baptist church in Wheaton held for the purpose of "perfecting holiness" in believers. This is one of the fruits or effects of the October Convention. I am also now endeavoring to procure a similar convention to be held in Chicago to be conducted and taught by the same Methodist Episcopal preachers who held and instructed the October Convention here in Wheaton. These brethren whom I hold in the highest esteem are now filling important and regular appointments as stationed preachers by their Conference.

The meaning and practical intent of my article which grieves this brother and moves him to charge me with such bitterness was simply this, that the more important the truth the more Satan will assail its promoters; and therefore "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall."

Since receiving the article headed by its writer, "Wholesale Slander," we have received another letter from our good brother, John Ball, whose letter is in a better spirit, but takes a similar view of our article on "The Fall of Sanctificationists" with the one we print; whose author, if he desires it and will drop us a note, shall have his name published in the next Cynosure as author of the strictures here published.

Worth Passing Around.—The following, from the Detroit Tribune, has the right ring. Let Chicago follow:

"Some curl up one corner of the mouth and call it a 'Puritan Sabbath,' while they sneer and try to laugh. They only show their ignorance. The Sabbath was ordained three thousand years before a Puritan was known. It was observed by the Jewish people for fifteen hundred years more strictly than even the Puritans ever observed it. Then came the birth, suffering, death and resurrection of Christ, and to commemorate the resurrection the day to be observed as the Sabbath was changed from the seventh to the first day of the week. The Christian world has sanctioned and sanctified the change, and the law for the observance of the Christian Sabbath has existed as a part of the civil law for eighteen centuries in every Christian nation on the globe. It haa also been observed by many people in every age since the Christian era as strictly, or even more strictly, than by the Puritans. And yet we hear of the Puritan Sabbath! These men should not expose their ignorance farther."—Chris. Instructor.

Queries from Cheshire, Mass.—In the correspondence, page 5, is a letter from Rev. S. Wright. containing some questions of general importance. We can answer them in part:

1. Mr. Ronayne will doubtless cheerfully answer.

2. At the request of the National Convention the Recording Secretary obtained a list of seceding Masons numbering some sixty. The list was read at Pittsburgh. It was, however, not satisfactory, there being many ex-Masons whose names had not been reported to the secretary. We have concluded to give a column or more to this list during the month of March, and meanwhile let every friend who knows of a reformed Mason send us his name on a P. O. card. Send also his address and the number of degrees he took before leaving the lodge.

3. We can give but few. Hesing, Rehm and Miller, indicted for connection with whiskey frauds in Chicago, are Masons. Other names will be published as they are obtained.

4. The Freemasons number less than 600,000 in this country; the voters are some 7,000,000, more than four times as many sure. The estimate that the Masons hold three-fourths of the offices is only an estimate, but based on statistics. Any one may find out how near right the statement is by sending requests to every one who would make the inquiries as the Executive Committee of the National Christian Association did in 1870. The replies then received showed that the lodge controlled more than three-fourths of the offices. High Masons have openly boasted that their fraternity already control the general government; and the fact, as these claim, that it is not seized and managed for the lodge is proof of the excellent character and patriotism of Masons!

Read Publishers' Department.

—The Correspondence department this week shows how Ronayne's exposition works on the lodge in some places.

—Lord Ripon, seceding Grand Master of England, lately gave 10,000 pounds sterling to the Pope. The N. Y. Herald thinks his "lodge dues would have been less than that." Perhaps.

—The Western Rural was seized last week under mortgage, and Mr. Lewis, the proprietor, thrown into jail, from which he was released on a writ from Judge McAllister. It is to be hoped that the difficulties besetting this useful agricultural journal may be cleared away and its publication continued.

—Judge Blodget, who is trying the whiskey cases in the United States Court in this city, is the gentleman who represented the Government at the Masonic corner-stone laying at the new Custom House here a year ago last June. We understand he has no sympathy with secret lodges.

—The college society question does not settle with a favorable inclination toward the fraternities. The Wesleyan publishes a long extract from the Rutland (Vt.) Daily Herald in severe condemnation of the system from the standpoint of its unjust discrimination. The Advance of last week says, "Some of the leading colleges are taking a decided stand against secret societies; but the only thing surprising about it is, that they have deferred such action so long. College societies are good; but none of them are any the better for the rigmarole of secrecy. And they are apt to be somewhat the worse for it. Secret cabals of any sort are not promoters of the truest culture or the manliest character. The Faculty of Yale College has resolved that 'no member of the present Freshman class, nor of future Freshman classes, shall become a member of the present Sophomore secret societies; nor shall any society hereafter be formed or exist in the Sophomore class.'"

—As if the National Grange was not enough for an extraordinary swindle on the agricultural community, an inside secret ring called "The Degree of the Golden Sheaf" is reported for the purpose of collecting funds from the farmer to erect a great temple to grangerism in Louisville. Those who are taxed for this object will find a degree of the golden sheaf on their own farms more profitably cultivated than this ring of demagogues and sharpers.

—We notice that J. W. Wood, the zealous President of the Wisconsin State Association is appointed to speak before the convention of the State Agricultural Society in Madison, Feb. 8th to 11th. His subject is, "What kind of Wheat shall we Raise?" When friend Wood attempts to say anything he always has something to say and he will no doubt makes some points on this practical question, as he has on the grange on another page of this paper.

—Any who are interested in the origin of the Patrons of Husbandry may know that the author of the greater part of the ritual is A. B. Grosh, who is also a writer on Odd-fellowship. The Heart and Hand says of him: "Rev. Bro. Grosh is a member of Donegal Lodge, Marietta, Penn. He is a clergyman of the Universalist church."

—We learn from a correspondent that the Society of Friends, in Iowa, have revised their discipline, at a meeting of delegates held in Legrand for that purpose, in December last. The following is the clause with regard to Masonry, as it now stands; "If any of our members should join in or adhere to Freemasonry, they should be dealt with as in cases of other disorderly conduct, and if they cannot be persusded to condemn their errors, they are to be disowned from membership with us."

To Friends in Ohio!

Returning from a very successful State meeting in Wisconsin, I have just learned of the appointment of the Ohio State meeting at Westerville, March 8th. The time and place are both well chosen and now what is wanted to secure success is a harmonious and energetic effort on the part of friends throughout the State. From my acquaintance with the general work I am of opinion that there is no other State in the Union which is more ripe and ready for a grand exhibition of moral, intellectual, financial and numerical victory than Ohio. Considering the men who are enlisted, the colleges maintaining a testimony against secretism, the large and influential bodies of Christians which are represented in almost every country and town by living churches, and the clear, decisive ring of religious periodicals extensively circulated to stir up and post up the ministry and laity upon this question, it must I think, be conceded that Ohio marches in the van, and hence is bearing a burden of responsibility equal to her means of meeting it. If your agent is occupied so that he is unable to give much of his time to the work, there is so much more reason that every man and woman who believes in our righteous cause should assume the duties of a special mission and work for the success of the meeting. I shall make special efforts to be present, and I hope every friend of the cause throughout the State will do the same. J. P. STODDARD.

Wholesale Slander.

The paper that calls forth this article may be seen in the Cynosure of Jan. 20th, p. 8, "The Fall of Sanctificationists." If the paper was the inspirings of some one anxious to appear in print and not the editor of the Cynosure, we should probably not have noticed it. The 1,2,3,4,5,6 do not change the feature of the sarcastic offering. We are frank to say the doctrine of holiness has been expressly and beyond all other denominations taught as the privilege and duty of all believers in Jesus by the Methodist church, and though there have many "fallen," we are yet to learn that those "advocates of holiness" are the "prolific mother of sins;" or that any advocates of holiness of any denomination are the prolific mother of sins. It were just as proper to say that advocates of regeneration were the prolific mothers of the terrible "whoredoms" which millions of back sliders have committed, and just as sensible.

Whether it is designed or not, it appears as though there was something terribly offensive in the decided stand which the Methodist church has taken on the subject of holiness of heart and life. It is no new thing to us or the world in general, that "men preach sanctification and land in whoredom." It has ever been so from Abraham down among all people and as little among Methodists as any other class, and we think we are safe in saying less compared to numbers.

We think, and it is not a mere matter of opinion either, that "the baptism of the Holy Ghost and of fire," God's work, regulates and strengthens "weak natures" instead of oversetting them, and that "partaking of the Divine nature" does not make men high-minded, but precisely the reverse, and exceedingly few comparatively, who do partake of it ever land in infidelity. God forbid. "Ignorance of the Scriptures may overthrow many" but it is not in the province of the Holy Ghost and fire, imparting the divine nature to man however weak, to disqualify him for performing a rational part. It is generally the vain, conceited philosopher who imagines he has secured the Divine favor that is overthrown in his own folly, not God's wisdom. David fell, it is true, but being restored he abhored himself, repenting in dust and ashes; and Peter knew nothing of the power of the Holy Ghost when he "denied" his Lord and "swore." After the day of Pentecost Peter was no longer fearful and high-minded but a holy, blameless, suffering man of God.

It is the want of the Holy Ghost's baptism and the participation of the Divine nature that there is so much high-handed iniquity in the land. There are too few who stand ready to risk their earthly interests to preach and faithfully teach the blessed doctrine of holiness. They are fearful of being pointed out as "perfectionists" and "fanatics," and the result is there are fanatics and folly enough to break the heart almost of every good man or woman. Let those who stand aloof and cry fanaticism and whoredom,—for they are legion—secure "the baptism of the Holy Ghost and of fire and partake of the divine nature," and the kingdoms of this world would soon become the Kingdom of our Lord and his Christ. The great want of the world to-day is, though multitudes are springing up, men of God, baptized of the Holy Ghost and fire, receiving the "divine nature," to preach distinctly and perfectly, not out of strife or contention, that, "the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin," as John says (1 John i. 7.), and as, the once denier, Peter, by the Holy Ghost says "But as he which hath called you is holy, so be ye holy in all manner of conversation. Be ye holy for I am holy." 1 Pet. i. 15. And the Apostle Paul says by the same spirit, "That we should be holy and without blame before him in love." Eph. i. 4. And Jesus Christ gave himself," "for the church, that he might sanctify and cleanse it, that he might present it to himself not having spot or wrinkle or any such thing, but that it should be holy and without blemish." Chap. v. 26. And the same holy Apostle says, "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you. The temple of God is holy which temple ye are." 1 Cor. v. 16. "The very God of peace sanctify you wholly, and I pray God your whole spirit and soul and body be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ." 1 Thess, v. 23. This is the doctrine we need in the nineteenth century to counteract the works of the devil. God grant that such sanctificationists, preachers and people, may be multi plied in vast numbers everywhere.

Where would we have been to-day if sanctified Apostles and sanctfied prophets, and sanctified teachers and sanctified preachers had regarded the cry of fanatics, and sanctificationists? This holy doctrine is enforced throughout the word of God. What if some do commit whoredom?

THE SANITARIAN for February discusses in a popular manner such topics as "Effect of the Loss of Consciousness upon the Memory of Preceding Events," "The Health of New York," "Infant Diet," "A City of Health," "Education in the United States" and "Sewer gas Poisoning."

Campbell & Co. publishers, 79 Nassau St., N. Y.

The Health Reformer for January begins the eleventh volume of this useful monthly. Numerous improvements which have been recently introduced, make it more acceptable than it has been heretofore. The present number contains a valuable article on the subject of Dress Reform, a practical one on Household Medicine, and numerous other useful hints concerning the care of the health. The Literary, Scientific, and News departments, add greatly to the interest of the journal. $1.00 a year. Specimen copies free. Published at Battle Creek, Mich.

Religious Intelligence.

—The report of the Friend's Iowa Yearly meeting held last September in Oskaloosa, shows a total membership of 8,774 in ten districts. The condition of the different meetings shows that the First-day services are well maintained and attention is being given largely to the instruction of the children, guarding them against pernicious reading and corrupt conversation; the poor are well looked after; a few instances of the unnecessary use of intoxicating liquor are mentioned, and 561 cases of tobacco using, 20 of whom were women. The Iowa friends are especially interested in the welfare of the Indians and the reports of laborers and teachers among them are of much interest.

—A new Congregational paper has been started in St. Louis, called the Christian News. It will represent the churches of that denomination in Illinois and the States west of the Mississippi.

—The seven churches of the Dakota mission, with their nearly 600 members, not only have their own native pastors and do much for their support, but send out evangelists from their number to work among the heathen of their tribe. The Long Hollow Church gave up their pastor for the last summer, choosing another in his place, and sent him with a lay member on a missionary tour up into the dominion of Canada to labor among the Dakotas on the Assinabone. "More recently, Edwin Phelps," so says the Iapi Oaye, "and his wife and mother were sent off by the Ascension Church, with prayer and the right hand of blessing to labor for the winter among the wilder part of the Dakota nation at Fort Sully."

—It is said that the want of priests is one of the hindrances to the advance of the Old Catholic movement in Germany. But few have come over from the Roman Catholic church, and there are many Old Catholic parishes without a priest. Funds are therefore asked to educate candidates for the ministry.

—The revival in Springfield, Ohio, under the labors of Rev. H. H. Wells, has been felt for good in all the churches of the city. The number of converts is variously estimated at from 200 to 500, and the work is still going on although Mr. Wells has gone to Zanesville.

—The Wesleyan reports an interesting work in Delavan in Northern Kansas, where a protracted effort brought sixteen souls into the kingdom, most of whom were members of secret orders, but with a single exception all heartily renounced those false bonds.

—Rev. D. B. Coe of the Am. Home Missionary society, has been compelled to rest from work for a time at the command of his physician.

—The good fight for principle and truth at Princeton College, New Jersey, has not been without its effect as it is reported that a religious revival is now in progress there. Last Sunday week the afternoon lecture by Dr. McCosh was dispensed with, and a general prayer-meeting took its place, at which ten students arose professing conversion, and five or six others arose for prayers. The religious feeling is reported as spreading rapidly throughout the college.

—The effect of the preaching of Messrs. Whittle and Bliss in Louisville, Ky., early in the last year, is reported to be of a permanent character. Two hundred members have been added in one Presbyterian church, and one hundred to another. Other churches have also made gains. These evangelists are now in St. Louis.

News of the Week.

The City.

The taxpayers are again at the mercy of thieves. The courts have decided that the tax levy must be paid, though the assessments were made with the most glaring frauds; the defrauded citizens can afterward recover through the courts.——The indictments against Hesing, Rehm and Hoyt, for whisky frauds, will be tried soon bofore U. S. Judge Blodgett. One case of less notoriety has been decided for the government.——Dr. Burnham, who has been twenty years in business here, much of the time as wholesale druggist, has been found guilty of forgery for a large amount. His business reputation has always been good. He confessed his crime, and has determined to retrieve his character here where it was lost—a notable case of honor in these days.

Washington.

The proposed constitutional amendment limiting the Presidential office to a single term of four years has failed of the necessary two-thirds vote in the House.——The House Committee on Foreign Affairs has reported in favor of retaining the present naturalization treaty with Germany, which they say has worked so satisfactorily that only thirty-five cases of dispute have arisen since 1868. They recommend, however, a revision of the treaty in some of its minor points.——Politicians outside the cabinet are seeking to procure the resignation of Secretary Bristow by getting up a quarrel between his department and that of the Attorney General.——The estimates for fortification have been reduced by the House Committee on Appropriations by $340,000. The bill originally called for $3,000,000.——The proposition to reduce the salaries of the diplomatic service meets great opposition from some of the Democratic members.

The Country.

Northampton (Mass.) National Bank was robbed one night two weeks since. The cashier was forced to open the vaults and it is believed that nearly $1,000,000 were stolen.——Barnum, though elected a member of Congress is spending his time getting up a grand exhibition to eclipse everything of the kind heretofore.——A farmer's house in Bureau county, Ill., was burned Thursday night and four persons perished—Mr. and Mrs. George Heindle and their two children.——A terrible panic seized a large audience in Robinson's Opera-House, Cincinnati, Saturday, afternoon, the cry of fire having been raised, and nine persons were killed and many injured. The panic did not pervade the whole audience, fully two-thirds remaining to see the rest of the performance, unaware of the presence of many corpses in the vestibule. The Mayor, however, summarily closed the performance shortly after.——The complications of the Beecher case thicken. Bowen, on being summoned to reply to charges, has replied with a lengthy letter claiming that Beecher is guilty of adultery, perjury and hypocrisy and he will prove the charge.

Foreign.

M. Francis Deak, the well known Hungarian statesman, and co-laborer with Kossuth, died at 10.30 P. M., on Friday evening, the 28th ult. He was born in 1803, at Zala, Hungary, and has ably occupied many public positions in the service of his country.——The tunnel under the British Channel between England and France will certainly be attempted, all official preliminaries having reached a successful conclusion.——The great Jabin mine explosion in Belgium killed 166 men. Twenty-six bodies have been recovered.

The Home Circle.

Patience.

There have been times when I longed to lay
This mask of mortality by;
Times—Lord forgive!—when life seemed so dark,
It would have been sweet to die.

Times when the torturing hand of despair
Lay heavily on my breast:
And the breath of my eager, agonized prayer,
Was for rest—a heavenly rest.

And little dreamed I as that cry went up,
From a soul so weary with strife,
How much it needed the discipline
Of a stern, self-denying life.

I stood mid the foam of the midnight sea,
Like Peter, distracted with fears,
And saw not the beacon that lit the waves,
For my eyes were blinded with tears.

But, struggling in darkness, weary and faint,
"Lord, help me!" I earnestly cried;
He heard, and the meek-eyed angel he sent Thenceforward has walked by my side.

And now though the billows of life are rough,
And crested with crosses and care,
There's light on the waves, and I lean on Him
Who has given me patience to bear.

How a Christian can Die.

Several months ago it was announced that Commodore Goodenough, of the British navy, died of wounds inflicted with poisoned arrows by the natives o Santa Cruz group of the Indian Archipelago. He had landed with a portion of his crew, and met, so far as could be ascertained, with a favorable reception from the savage inhabitants. Just as he was about to go on board his boat, a hostile demonstration was made, and the Commodore was fatally wounded by some of the arrows which were directed against him and his men Death was inevitable. The cause of this murder is unknown. Probably the Santa Cruz islanders had suffered previously and repeatedly from the raids of the traders who are engaged in what is known as the Pacific labor traffic, and they had taken advantage of the visit of Commodore Goodenough to obtain revenge. Never was revenge worse directed. The victim of the treacherous assault had distinguished himself in endeavoring to stop the iniquitous trade; and his anxiety to benefit the natives of the Pacific was displayed upon every occasion. The fatally wounded man was brought aboard his ship.

Finding that death was near, Commodore Goodenough summoned all the officers of the ship to his room "to bid them good-bye." There was no fear shown by him. He spoke calmly of the approaching change; and he advised all of his officers to seek for happiness in doing what is right, and to rest all of their hopes in the infinite love and wisdom of God. These last words evidently sunk into the hearts of all those who listened to him. Every one of them knew that the life of the dying man had been one of Christian consistency—that the only fear of Commodore Goodenough was the fear of doing evil.

He then requested to be carried out on the quarter-deck to meet all hands for the last time. On the faces of the hardy sailors there were signs of fear as they looked at the man, whom they respected and loved, evidently about to enter eternity. Turning round to the crew he said in a bright, kindly tone: "Don't look frightened; smile," and he requested that they all should sit down so that he might see their faces. They did as they were asked; but the only tearless eyes in that assemblage of brave men where those of the man who was about to encounter the last enemy.

"My men," said the dying Christian, "I have come out on the quarter-deck to say good-bye to you, because I am going to die," and as he spoke to the officers so he spoke to all his men of the love and goodness of God for them —of "His infinite love; his infinite wisdom," as the thoughts which they should carry with them at all times to guard them against the commission of sin and to enable them to flee from temptation. He knew the peculiar snares which beset the path of sailors, and he knew also from experience how a humble, trustful confidence in God had borne him up in sore trials, had carried him nobly through severe duty, and at last made him more than a conqueror in death. "I have always loved you, my men," he continued; "there is a foolish weakness in my voice which makes it sound as if I was crying; but I am not crying, and I want you all to hear me." He then went on to address the new commander and all the other leaders, urging them to be manly and truthful—never to hesitate to say that a moral act was wrong when it was wrong, or to say that a thing was right when it was right.

He spoke kindly of his murderers: "As for the poor fellows who gave me this wound, what their reason or object was I don't know—no one knows. They may have been injured by some of us; by some other ship at some time —we don't know. I hope at some future time, it may be twenty or thirty years hence, some good Christian man will go among them, and find out all about it." There was no thought of retaliation or revenge. He would extend to his murderers the mercy he expected for himself.

Lastly, he asked the forgiveness of any he had wronged. "I have made mistakes, and if any of you think of anything where I have done wrong, I want you to forgive me. Don't ask how much you were wrong, or how much I was wrong, but just forgive me;" and amid the huskily-uttered prayers of "God bless him," Commodore Goodenough passed from their presence and fell asleep, adding another noble name to the list of those glorious men who had shed the benignant influence of an upright Christian example in a profession where such examples are unfortunately too rare. The echoes of the clear-voiced psalm of a well-spent life, in constant communion with Jesus, which suddenly ceased in the glorious death of Commodore Goodenough, will cheer and uphold many a sailor in his struggles against evil and in the path of duty, and will doubtless be blessed to lead many to the source whence comes the righteous living which terminates in a triumphant death.—N. Y. Witness.

Mental prayer, when our spirits wander, is like a watch standing still because the spring is down; wind it up again, and it goes on regularly. But in vocal prayer, if the words run on and the spirit wanders, the clock strikes false, the hand points not the right hour, because something is in disorder, and the striking is nothing but noise.

Look above you, and in the overarching firmament read the truth of an all-prevailing Providence. Yon sky is God's outspread hand, and the glittering stars are the jewels on the fingers of the Almighty. Do you not see that His hand closes around you on all sides, and that you cannot go where universal love shines not?

Recording Prayer.

Mr. George Miller says: "I would particularly advise all, but especially the younger believers, to use a little book, in which they may note down on the one side the requests which they bring before God. There are certain matters which God has laid on our hearts, and we should note them down. It would be helpful to us to write, "At such-and-such a time I began to pray for such-and-such a thing;" and to continue to pray with regard to this matter. If we do so, we shall find that sooner or later the prayer will be answered. Then let us mark on the opposite side, that it has, at such a time, pleased God to answer that prayer. After some time read over the memorandum-book, and you will find how again and again it has pleased God to answer your prayers—and perhaps regarding matters about which you little expected the answer to come; and soon you will find the wondrous effects of this on your heart, in increasing your love and gratitude to our Heavenly Father. The more careful you are in marking what you ask, and what God has given, the more distinctly you will be able to trace how again and again it pleased God to answer your prayers, and more, you will be drawn out to God in love and gratitude. You will find precisely as the Psalmist found it when he says, "I love the Lord, because he hath heard my voice and my supplications."

"Lovest thou Me? Feed my Lambs!"

Are you a lover of Jesus? Prove it by your works.

Do you desire to do something for the cause of God? Feed his lambs.

Do you desire to increase in faith? Labor for Jesus.

Do you wish to enjoy the comforts of religion? Work for Christ. In proportion as you work will be your enjoyment.

Do you desire a field of usefulness? The Sunday-schools are open, and the lambs say "Come."

Do you wish to be useful in the world? Teach in the Sunday-school.

Do you long for temporal blessings? Work while the day lasts, and God will reward you.

Have you faith in God? Obey his commands and work.

Do you wish the morals of our community improved? Train a child in the Sunday-school.

Do you believe in eternity? Strive that yours may be happy hereafter.

Do you realize that there is a heaven and a hell? Work to gain one and escape the other, and to lead others in the same way.

Are you a teacher, and desire the conversion of your class? Speak to them of Jesus.

Do you desire them to know and love the Saviour? Teach Jesus in every lesson.

"Paul may plant, and Apollos may water, but God must give the increase." —The Association Record.

The Progress of One Century.

Few phenomena are more remarkable, yet few have been less remarked, than the degree in which material civilization—the progress of mankind in all those contrivances which oil the wheels and promote the comfort of daily life—has been concentrated into the present century. It is not too much to say that in these respects more has been done, richer and more prolific discoveries have been made, grander achievements have been realized, in the course of the sixty or seventy years of our own life-time than in all the previous life-time of the race, since states, nations, and politics, such as history makes us acquainted with, have had their being.

Consider only the three momentous matters of light, locomotion, and communication, and we shall see that this generation contrasts most surprisingly with the aggregate of the progress effected in all previous generations put together since the earliest dawn of authentic history. The lamps and torches which illuminated Belshazzar's feast were probably just as brilliant and framed out of the same materials, as those which shown upon the splendid fetes of Versailles when Marie Antoinette presided over them, or those of the Tuileries during the Imperial magnificence of the first Napoleon. Pine wood, oil, and perhaps wax, lighted the banquet-halls of the wealthiest nobles in the eighth century before Christ and in the eighteenth century after Christ. There was little difference, except in finish of workmanship and elegance of design—little, if any, advance, we mean in the illuminating power or in the source whence that power was drawn—between the lamps used in the days of the Pyramids, the days of the Coliseum, and the days of Kensington Palace. Fifty years ago, that is, we burnt the same articles, and got about he same amount of light from them, as we did four thousand years ago. Now, we use gas of which each burner is equal to fifteen or twenty candles; and when we wish for more, can have resource to the eclectric light or analogous inventions, which are fifty fold more brilliant and far-reaching than even the best gas. The streets of cities, which, from the days of Pharaoh to those of Voltaire, were dim and gloomy, even where not wholly unlighted, now blaze everywhere (except in London) with something of the brilliancy of moonlight. In a word, all the advance that has been made in these respects has been made since many of us were children. We remember light as it was in the days of Solomon, we see it as Drummond and Faraday have made it.

The same thing may be said of locomotion. Nimrod and Noah traveled just in the same way, and just at the same rate, as Thomas Acheston Smith and Mr. Coke of Norfolk. The chariots of the Olympic Games went just as fast as the chariots that conveyed our nobles to the Derby, "in our hot youth, when George the Third was King."

When Abraham wanted to send a message to Lot, he dispatched a man on horseback, who galloped twelve miles an hour. When our fathers wanted to send a message to their nephews they could do no better, and go no quicker. When we were young, if we wished to travel from London to Edinburgh, we thought ourselves lucky if we could average eight miles an hour—just as Robert Bruce might have done. Now in our old age, we feel ourselves aggrieved if we don't average forty miles.

Everything that has been done in this line since the world began—everything, perhaps, that the capacities of matter and the conditions of the human frame will ever allow to be done—has been done since we were boys. The same at sea. Probably when the wind was favorable, Ulysses, who was a bold and skillful navigator, sailed as fast as a Dutch merchantman of the year 1800, nearly as fast at times as an American yatch or clipper of our father's day. Now, we steam twelve and fifteen miles an hour with wonderful regularity, whether wind and tide be favorable or not; nor is it likely that we shall ever be able to go much faster. But the progress in the means of communication is the most remarkable of all. In this respect Mr. Pitt was no better off than Pericles or Agamemnon. If Ruth had wished to write to Naomi, or David to send a word of love to Jonathan when he was a hundred miles away, they could not possibly have done it under twelve hours. Nor could we to our friends fifty years ago. —The Nation.

A Point in the School Question.—There is one point in the school discussion which both the advocates and the opponents of secular schools would do well to notice. There is nothing sectarian in the teaching of reading, writing, arithmetic, grammar, or geography. When, however, the higher branches are taught, sectarian questions can not be avoided. Whatever one may think of Christianity, its importance as a factor in modern history must be admitted. Is Christianity Divine, or is it simply one of many religions? No teacher and no text-book can make a statement which will suit all. Then, too, the Reformation of the sixteenth century effected momentous changes in the moral and political condition of Christendom. Its events and the lives of its chief actors cannot be passed unnoticed. But were Luther and Calvin real reformers, or only wicked schismatics? Is the teacher to reply, Whichever you please, my dears; take your choice, or ask your religious instructors or parents? Similar collisions will take place at almost every point in a course of history. If we are to have thoroughly unsectarian schools the most important branch of knowledge must be left out. To do so would be an impossibility in any advanced course. The alternative would be to have no public schools which led the learner much beyond the three R's. Unsectarian high schools are out of the question.—Cincinnati Gazette.

Children's Corner.

Tit, Tat, Toe.

Tit, tat, toe!
Three in a row!
The heavy school-room clock strikes loud and slow.

"Now every little one
May go and take his fun,"
The gentle teacher cries, "for the school is done."

Tit, tat, toe!
All in a row!
Out through the open door the merry children go,

Leaving only three,
Sad as sad can be—
Wretched little culprits with their Spellers as you see!

Tit, tat, toe!
Three in a row!—
Billy Bumble, Benny Bell, and little Kittie Coe.
Little Kittie sighs;
Little Benny cries,
And little Billy Bumble pokes his fingers in his eyes.

Tit, tat, toe!
Three in a row!
That's the game they played upon their slates you know:

The O's were made by Kate;
The crosses by her mate;
While Billy kept the tally at the bottom of the slate.

When their class was heard,
They couldn't spell a word;
They put an "i" in burly, and they put a "u" in bird!

So, according to the rule,
They must study after school,
Or by and by they'll have to sit upon the dunce's stool.

Tit, tat, toe!
Three in a row!
The teacher's pencil taps on the desk broad and low.

"Now come," she says, "and spell;
I'm sure you'll do it well;
By the brightening of your faces I readily can tell."

Tit, tat, toe!
Three in a row!
Straight to the teacher's desk the willing children go;

They say their lessons o'er,
Not missing as before,
They fly away, determined to be idle never more.

Tit, tat, toe!
Three in a row!
Is a fascinating pastime the little people know;
But Oh! it never pays
To walk in folly's ways;
For pleasure quickly passes, while pain much longer stays.

—Olive A. Wadsworth.

A Baby's Soliloquy.

I am here. And if this is what they call the world, I don't think much of it. It's a very flannelly world, and smells of paregoric awfully. It's a dreadful light world, too, and makes me blink, I tell you. And I don't know what to do with my hands; I think I'll dig my fists in my eyes. No, I won't. I'll scrabble at the corner of my blanket and chew it up, and then I'll holler; whatever happens I'll holler. And the more paregoric they give me the louder I'll yell. That old nurse puts the spoon in the corner of my month in a very uneasy way, and keeps tasting my milk herself all the while. She spilt snuff in it last night, and when I hollered, trotted me. That came of being a two days' old baby. There's a pin sticking in me now, and if I say a word about it, I'll be trotted or fed; and I would rather have catnip tea. I'll tell you who I am. I found out to-day. I heard folks say, "Hush, don't wake up Emeline's baby;" and I suppose that pretty, white-faced woman over on the pillow is Emeline.

No, I was mistaken; for a chap was in here just now, and wanted to see Bob's baby; and looked at me and said, "I was a funny little toad, and looked just like Bob." He smelt of cigars. I wonder who else I belong to. Yes, there's another one—that's "Gamma." "It was Gamma's baby, so it was." I declare I do not know who I belong to; but I'll holler, and maybe I'll find out. There comes Snuffy with catnip tea. I'm going to sleep. I wonder why my hands won't go where I want them to. —Sanitarian for January.

I cannot Pray for Father any more.

She knelt at the accustomed hour, to thank God for his mercies of the day, and pray for care through the coming night: then, as usual, came the earnest, "God bless dear mother and"—but the prayer was stilled! The little hands unclasped, a look of agony and wonder met the mother's eye, as the words of hopeless sorrow burst from the lips of the kneeling child: "I cannot pray for father any more!" Since her little lips had been able to form the dear name, she had prayed for a blessing upon it; it had followed close after mother's name, for he had said that must come first; and now to say the familiar prayer and leave her father out! No wonder that the new thought seemed too much for the childish mind to receive.

I waited for some moments that she might conquer her emotion, and then urged her to go on. Her pleading eyes met mine, and with a voice that faltered too much, almost, for utterance, she said, "Oh, mother, I cannot bear to leave him all out. Let me say, 'thank God that I had a dear father once!' so I can still go on and keep him in my prayers." And so she always does, and my stricken heart learned a lesson from the loving ingenuity of my child. Remember to thank God for the mercies past as well as to ask blessings for the future.—Presbyterian.

A Curious Freak of a Dog.

A Radnorshire lady, who was married in March, and came to reside in Yorkshire, England, recently paid a visit to her father, who, before she was married, had kept two or three sheep-dogs, of which she was very fond. Since then he had retired from business and disposed of all but one dog. This one met the lady with demonstrations of great delight upon her arrival at her father's house, and that night, the dog went a distance of seven miles to a farm-house where one of the other dogs had been sent, (the latter was blind, but kept as being an old favorite). In the morning when the lady went to the door she not only saw the dog which had given her such a glad reception the day previous, but also the old blind one, which had evidently been brought by the other dog to welcome her. When the second night came the old blind one was taken back to its home by the same dog, which afterward returned, having traveled a distance of twenty-eight miles to give pleasure to the old blind one.

Home and Health Hints.

Housekeeping.—Housekeeping, properly estimated, is a pursuit worthy of the most educated and refined. There is no branch of it, however humble, which does not afford a scope for the exercise of the taste and intelligence of the cultivated woman. Cooking, even, with all its association with the smut of the pot and kettle, has its intellectual and esthetic relations. The least complicated processes of the kitchen involve a science which the strongest-minded woman need not scorn to grapple with, and the simplest daily meal operations of delicacy from which the most refined can borrow additional grace. . . The mode of presentation of the food has a great deal to do with its acceptability. An orderly arranged and decorously served meal will entice the most languid appetite, when the same food offered in a higgledy-piggledy manner will repel all desire. The ordinary servant can never be relied upon for such refinements in the cooking and presentation of the food, as are required by the fastidious. The taste of the mistress of the household will be generally necessary to satisfy the requirements of delicacy in these respects.

Sound Common Sense.—If you are well, let yourself alone. One of the greatest errors of the age is, we medicate the body too much, the mind too little. More persons are destroyed by eating too much than by drinking too much. Gluttony kills more than drunkenness in civilized society. The best gymnasium is a woodyard, a clearing or a cornfield. A hearty laugh, is known the world over, to be a health-promoter; it elevates the spirits, enlivens the circulation, and is marvelously contagious in a good sense. Bodily activity and bodily health are inseparable. If the bowels are loose, lie down in bed, remain there, and eat nothing until you are well. The three best medicines in the world are warmth, abstinence and repose.—Dr. Hall.

Diphtheria.—The ravages of diphtheria in Australia have been so extensive within the last few years that the Government offered a large reward for any certain method of cure, and among other responses to this was one by Mr. Greathead, who at first kept his method a secret, but afterwards communicated it freely to the public. It is simply the use of sulphuric acid, of which four drops are diluted in three-fourths of a tumbler of water to be administered to a grown up person and a smaller dose for children, at intervals not specified. The result is said to be a congulation of the diphtheritic membrane and its ready removal by coughing. It is asserted that where the case thus treated has not advanced to a nearly fatal termination, the patient recovered in almost every instance.

Regular Habits in Children.—I have learned by experience (for my first child was sadly neglected) that children should have regular habits, especially in eating and sleeping. Do not, as you prize their health, give them "pieces" between meals, but let it be at regular times each day. It will give tired mothers more rest, for they will not be teasing for something to eat, and it will give your children far better health.

Command or oblige your children to sleep once through the day. If you do not let them miss the time for a "nap" for a few days, you will be surprised to see how sleepy they are just at that time, and how soon they will drop to sleep, and how refreshed they will be when they awake.—Rural New Yorker.

Temperance.

ERRATUM.—The average attendance at the Chicago Daily Temperance Prayer-meeting was 92.5, not 925 as was stated last week.

—The average attendance for the past week at the Chicago W. C. T. U. has been rather greater than for the previous week. On Saturday the Quarterly meeting was held. Interesting reports given. Each meeting which we have attended seemed full of enthusiasm and Christ's presence. It will pay you to visit them if you are in the city.

—Miss Luella Hagans, Elmhurst, Ill., assisted by Miss. K. M. Bissell of Chicago, took charge of the Sunday meeting last week.

The Woman's Temperance Union, the organ of the National Society, which was published temporarily at Philadelphia, has been removed to Brooklyn, N. Y., and will hereafter be published by Mrs. Mary C. Johnson. All business letters should be directed to her at No. 10 Schermerhorn St. Brooklyn, N. Y. It will be edited as heretofore by Mrs. Jennie F. Willing, 58 Langley Avenue, Chicago, Ill., to whom all communications intended for the paper should be directed. The paper, although only seven months old, is self-sustaining. We very earnestly commend the paper to temperance workers, and the editor and publisher to the generous support of temperance societies throughout the land.

The Woman's Temperance Union.

This society has lately begun a series of Sabbath evening services. Subjoined is an interesting part of the inaugural address of the course by Mrs. M. B. Holyoke.

An earnest call has been lately extended to the Womans' Christian Temperance Union of Chicago, to establish a Sunday afternoon religious service in some central place,—convenient of access from all parts of the city,—that those who have been lately rescued from the thraldom of intemperance, and who are detained by business from the daily temperance meetings, may be profited by the ministrations of those whom they hail as their rescuers, that others still under the fatal grasp of the demon drink, may receive instruction specially adapted to their case, from those most familiar with their needs, and who feel for them a personal sympathy, that clerks and young men employed down town, as well as transient guests and constant boarders at the hotels clustering around the business center, may enjoy warm and loving counsel, which shall most remind them of the sacred memories of home, and of lips that first taught them to say "Our Father," and that all others may congregate who feel that here they could be specially fed by the bread of the kingdom broken up into fine crumbs,—as well as all other benevolent hearts who desire to unite their prayers and endeavors to rescue the strength and flower of our city from the seductions of the cup, the master curse and peril of our times. The women of this Union have held the matter in prayerful deliberation, whether it were of the Lord or no. On either hand were dangers to be avoided. We would not run before we were sent, nor fail to count the cost of the undertaking; neither when our glorious Leader calls, "Woman, I say unto thee, arise," would we be slow to obey. On last Friday, at a large meeting of the Executive Committee of the Union, it was unanimously voted to inaugurate a series of Gospel temperance addresses for Sunday afternoons, at the lecture-room of the Clark Street M. E. Church for the present—to be conducted by various Christian women in turn.

The President being absent from Chicago has requested me, as one constantly and for a considerable period identified with our temperance work, to give in a brief inaugural the spirit and plan of our proposed endeavor.

First—We engage in this work, believing Providence indicates it as the missing link in these times in reaching the masses. The use of liquors as a beverage is fearfully widespread among all classes here. The devotees of the cup are secretly uneasy, and to pacify conscience seek the excuses of infidelity. I am assured by an intelligent reformed drinker, that the great problems of life and the hereafter are the stock staples of discussion among drinking men. But naturally they will not enter the sanctuary. Such we invite to the meetings, for we are not a church, but a mutually helpful religious and temperance society. No other meeting in this city has precisely the same object, or similar instrumentalities. The daily temperance meeting has wonderfully received the seal of the Divine benediction. It is a continual revival. Not only do men abandon drink, one of the most enslaving of sins, but thereafter renounce other self-indulgences, and begin to seek the true life. It has been truly said, that "Reforms like vices hang together in a chain of mutual dependence." You cannot draw one link without attracting others. Many, in choosing total abstinence, have found the pearl of great price; and henceforth their motto is "Jesus only."

Second—We enter upon this work hopefully, believing it to be consonant with the divine word. "Your sons and your daughters shall prophesy," that is, speak under the divine influence, in the latter days. In the Pentecostal times, when men and women were scattered abroad by persecution, they went everywhere preaching the word, or, as the original reads, "talking the word;" and converts were multiplied.

Thirdly—We enter upon this work, because it is in harmony with the spirit of the age which recognizes the power of the individual.

We engage in this work, Fourthly—Because it utilizes the talents so long buried in a napkin. Christianity is at once the great leveler and the great elevator of mankind, bringing all upon the common plain of charity and mutual helpfulness, If God has given ought to one more than another, it is not to be selfishly enjoyed and hoarded up, but to be imparted to the brotherhood of men.

Fifthly—This enterprise is in harmony with the origin and spirit of the modern temperance movement. The crusade was a kind of baptism of fire upon the women of our land.

Sixthly—A reason in the sacredness of home memories why women may with especial force and fitness carry the Gospel, by voice as well as deed, to the homeless. A gentle, womenly voice may bridge the chasm of years, and leap the barriers of old ocean, and place the wanderer again at his mother's knee. Our affections and sympathies, more than our reason, govern our lives. Said a stalwart man at our daily meeting, "I had resisted every persuasion to reform, going steadily down the drunkard's track till a good woman in Cleveland sought my redemption. 'Madam,' said I, 'you don't know what I am.' 'Brother,' said the lady (and that word brother thrilled me more than all the rest), 'the farther down you are, the farther I reach to save you.' And then I broke the chains of my slavery."

Farm and Garden.

Agricultural Education in Germany.

A committee of the French National Assembly recently reported in favor of the endowment of a new agricultural college, and in the course of an elaborate report highly complimented Germany for what had been done in that country in aid of agriculture. The following is an extract from the report:

The whole of the German Empire to-day contains 184 agricultural colleges, of which number eight are connected with the great universities of Leipsic, Halle, Gottingen, Berlin, Konigsberg, Heidelburg, Geissen and Jena; three colleges for horticulture; seventy-five practical middle schools for agriculture; twenty-eight middle schools for garden culture; sixteen colleges for special branches; besides an immense number of larger and smaller associations, evening schools for the further education of farmer's youths; lecture courses by traveling professors, etc.

Such an extensive system of State instruction does however by no means exercise a detrimental influence upon private initiative. On the contrary, it rather appears to stimulate it. There are altogether 1,974 agricultural associations, while France has only 953 so-called "comites." These associations have considerable means at their command, and receive a great deal more private support than is the case in France. The State, however, acts on the assumption that they advance the general welfare, and assists them to the best of its power, and they strike root successfully in the hearts of the farming population. In the territories Germany has taken from France during the last war, it exercises the utmost pains to promote agricultural knowledge.

* * * In this connection it is proper to mention the splendid institutions for horse-raising, and the excellent veterinary schools, of which Germany has quite a number. Horse-raising is one of the most important branches of agricultural science, and we cannot help acknowledging that the German States exert themselves carefully and spend large sums for the improvement of the breed. The German Empire keeps over 3,000 blooded stallions for this purpose, and Prussia alone has three breeding establishments, with 2, 100 mares. The Austrian Empire also owns seven such establishments, of which one alone, that of Radauz, contains 5,000, another one at Mezohyges, in Hungary, about 3,000 horses.

The distinguishing traits of the agricultural conditions of Germany is to be found in the exertions of German science to overcome the unfavorable conditions which nature has given, and the support which in all countries of German tongue, but more especially so in the German Empire proper, the State gives to the propagation, and the advancement of agricultural education. Germany spends for this purpose about seven times as much as France does.

Masonic Books,

FOR SALE AT THE CYNOSURE OFFICE.

Those who wish to know the character of Freemasonry, as shown by its own publications, will find many standard works in the following list.

No sensible Mason dares deny that such men as Albert G. Mackey, the great Masonic Lexicographer, and Daniel Sickels, the Masonic author and publisher, are the highest Masonic authority in the United States.

Allyn's Ritual of Masonry,

Illustrated by a large number of engravings, and containing a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, Orange nd Odd-fellows' societies. Price, $5.00.

Mackey's Masonic Ritualist;

OR

MONITORIAL INSTRUCTION BOOK

BY ALBERT G. MACKEY,

Past General High Priest of the General Grand Chapter of the United States, Knight of the Eagle and Pelican. Prince of Mercy," Etc. Etc. Price, Cloth $2.25, Tuck $1.75.

Mackey's Lexicon of Freemasonry,

Containing a Definition of Terms, Notices of its History, Traditions and Antiquities, and an account of all the Rites and Mysteries of the Ancient World. 12 mo. 526 pages, $3 00

MACKEY'S MANUAL OF THE LODGE

OR

Monitorial Instructions in the Degrees of Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft, and Master Mason; with Ceremonies relating to Installations, Dedications, Consecrations, Laying of Corner-stones &c. Price, $2 00

MACKEY'S TEXT BOOK

OF

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

Illustrating the Laws of Freemasonry, both written and unwritten.

This is the Great Law Book of Freemasonry 670 pages. Price, $2.50.

Webb's Monitor of Freemasonry,

LARGE EDITION, WITH NOTES

By ROB. MORRIS, Price, $1.50.

Pocket Edition, 75 cts.

SICKELS' FREEMASON'S MONITOR.

Containing the Degrees of Freemasonry embraced in the Lodge, Chapter, Council and Commandery, embellished with nearly 300 symbolic Illustrations. Together with Tactics and drill of Masonic Knighthood. Also, forms of Masonic Documents, Notes, Songs, Masonic dates, installations, etc. By D. Sickels, 32 mo tuck. Price $1.50. Cloth $1.00.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry.

A Practical Guide to the Ceremonies in the Degrees conferred in Masonic Lodge Chapter, Encampments, etc. Illustrated Edition. In cloth, $1 25; paper, 75 cts.

Chase's Digest of Masonic Law.

Comprises a Complete Code of Regulations Decisions and Opinions upon Questions of Masonic Jurisprudence. Price, $2 25.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor

Illustrated with Explanatory Engravings Price $2 50.

Educational.

—Kentucky has a law that all money won in betting on elections shall be confiscated for school purposes.

—The authorities of the college and language school in Japan will hereafter allow the English language only to be taught in the college; French and German to be taught to a limited number of students who will act as interpreters. It is estimated that there are now 3,598,956 children in attendance upon school throughout the empire.

—The Presbyterians of Pittsburgh and Allegheny City are rejoicing over the success of the efforts made to endow their Western University. Four years ago Mr. William Thaw pledged $100,000, on condition that $100,000 additional were raised. The money has been secured, and now a site will be chosen and buildings put up.

—The Brethren (Tunkers) are making efforts to raise a $25,000 endowment fund for the Plum Creek Normal School in Armstrong Co., Pa., an institution established on the principles of that church.

—Rev. D. M. Ure has acted as agent for Monmouth College during the past year. His success is hinted at in the letter from the Illinois State Agent on another page. He secured $11,000 in the fall from one presbytery, the Xenia, Ohio.

—The College Record, a new and very creditable journal, edited, printed and published by Wheaton students, has a racy description of a late lodge installation at Wheaton.

—Subscriptions for the fourth ten thousand dollar building of the Hillsdale College group have been secured by the energy of Prof. Rideout, for whose department, Commercial and Telegraphic education, it is to be dedicated. Prof. C. P. Griffin, General manager of the Universal Life Insurance Company of New York, formerly President of the Hillsdale Commercial College was donor of $2600, and as a tribute to his generosity the new building is to bear his name, Griffin Hall.

—The State Convention in Ohio, March 8th, to be held at Westerville, the seat of Otterbein University, will give the large number of students in that flourishing institution such an opportunity of obtaining information on the anti-lodge reform as they may seldom have again.

Miscellany.

—In July a diver in submarine armor, working at a wreck on the coast of Normandy, was seized by a devil-fish, who held fast to a neighboring rock. His comrade came to his assistance, and was seized also. It was only with great difficulty they could give the signal that they needed help. Others went down. Cutlasses were brought, and the monster's arms were hewed off.

—"What does it matter if we lose a few minutes in a whole day?"

Answer—Time table (days in a year, 313; working hours in a day, 8):

	Days.	h.	m.
5 Minutes lost each day is in a year,	3	2	4
10 Minutes lost each day is, in a year,	6	4	10
20 Minutes lost each day is, in a year,	12	8	20
30 Minutes lost each day is, in a year,	19	4	30
60 Minutes lost each day is, in a year,	39	1	30

—The true reformer sticks to his logic and takes the consequences. A Missouri woman's suffragist appeared before the U. S. Supreme Court, the other day, to argue the cause of his wife, who had brought suit for the privilege of suffrage under the provision of the Fourteenth Amendment, giving the elective franchise to "citizens." Said Judge Field, "So you hold that citizenship confers the right to vote?" The answer was, "Yes, sir." Said the Judge again, "Have children, then, the right to vote?" The reply was dauntless, "Yes sir."

—Gov. Van Zandt of Rhode Island, while presiding at a spelling match at Newport, thus ingeniously marshalled the letters of the alphabet in regular order: A man may B here to C if he cannot D feat with the greatest Es some stupid speller who is no better than a F i G. What H arming light it is, and how I enjoy seeing a man stand up as straight as a blue J, and without K-lamity allow the long words L egantly to M N ate from his O pen lips. He has to mind his Ps and Qs which R pos S d of such a tendency to get into situations of peculiari T. U know how it is yourself. I have no V to power, but some day you will get married, and that will W; a most laudable species of an X ation. A word to the Ys is sufficient. And so the alphabet rattles around in one's head until it enough to make an ass or even a Z bray.

—By far the largest and most powerful steam hammer is now in operation in Woolwich, England. The weight of the falling portion is within a few pounds of 40 tons, and the force of the falling weight is accelerated many times by the use of steam to drive down from the top. It is estimated that the use of top steam is equal to allowing the hammer to fall of its own weight 80 feet. It has been allowed a striking fall of 15 feet 3 inches, but no determination has yet been made as to the actual force of the blow which it is capable of striking. The hammer is 45 feet in height, and covers with its supports, a base of about 120 feet square. Above the ground it weighs 500 tons, and the iron in the foundations below weighs 665 tons. It is at least four times as powerful as Krupp's celebrated hammer.

—In 1850 the Astor Library contained 20,000 volumes. The number on its shelves at the present time is 150,000. During 1874 the additions amounted to 2,666 volumes, about three fourths of which were donated. The Astor is not a circulating library, and its plan does not comprehend the purchase of light and ephemeral literature. Its object is to procure books of substantial and permanent value, such as discriminating readers desire to peruse or consult. The number readers for 1874 was 34,854, using 127,579 books. The readers admitted to the alcoves during 1874 were 6.838. and two-sevenths of these were in the department of patents. Any responsible person bringing an introduction to the Superintendent, or presenting other suitable guarantees, is admitted within the alcoves, and allowed access to the shelves in person.

THE AMERICAN PARTY.

ITS OBJECT, ORGANIZATION, PLATFORM AND CANDIDATES.

The Chicago Tribune made some comments on Dr. Walker after his nomination and the next morning published the following letter from Rev. Joseph E. Roy:

CHICAGO, June 11.—This old-time question concerning a new Presidential candidate is raised by you to-day in regard to the Rev. and Hon, J. B. Walker, the nominee of the Pittsburgh Convention. I am among those who think that, as political issues are now made up before the nation, the mission of the Republican party has not yet been fully accomplished. But I am glad to announce that the "Somehody, who lived somewhere, and had written something against Masonry," has a good title to recognition in Chicago."

About thirty years ago, the Rev. Dr. J. B. Walker came to Chicago, and started the first religious paper for the Presbyterian and Congregational denominations—the Prairie Herald, whose successors are now the Advance and the Interior. He was also, for a time, pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church. The lot upon which he published his paper he still owns, as a part of the site of the Briggs House. Afterwards he became the founder and the President of Benzonia College, in Northern Michigan. While there, he gained his civil title, "Hon," as a member of the Senate of that State. Latterly he has been laboring as pastor at Wheaton, Ill., and acting as Assistant President of the College there. He is the author of that greatly popular work, "The Philosophy of the Plan of Salvation," which has been a text-book in several colleges for many years. I am happy to acknowledge my great indebtedness to this book, which came in the course of study at Knox College. He is also the author of several other similar works, which all have been published in this country and in England. The calmness and the candor, and the conscientiousness, with which he discussed the question of the Chicago Anti-masonic Convention must commend him to all who love fairness in debate, even though they do nor agree with his sentiments.

We who yet go for the Republican party; who have had The Chicago Tribune in our homes every day, except Sundays, since it was founded; who know how that this paper inherited the material and good will of the old Abolition paper, the Western Citizen; who know that this, our ahlest daily, came out of the loins of the Christian Anti-slavery "fanaticism," and who remember the single votes that were polled for the Liberty party,—we, of such antecedents, ought not to believe that, after the polls of 1876 are closed, the "Walkerites" will be more crazy than the lunatics when they "discover that their candidates have received about one out of every thousand votes cast that day." Indeed, such a vote would he a mighty moral testimony. It would he a power to be courted hy the dominant parties.

J. E. ROY.

The various expressions of approbation received from different members of the American Party may be reasonably represented by the following from J. C. Graham of Illinois:

RATIFICATION.

VIOLA, Ill., July 2, 1875.

BRO. KELLOGG:—Please give me room in the Cynosure for one hearty "Amen," to our amended platform adopted at Pittsburgh. I could not feel satisfied with our former platform; it did not quite "touch bottom" on the temperance question. We cannot afford to go out before our rum-ridden nation, as reformers, without well-defined lines on the rum issue, as well as an organized secretism. Anti-secret men are generally genuine temperance men; and our lady thinkers and workers are all a unit for prohibition of both secrecy and rum. These two reforms should go hand in hand: for the secret temperance orders weaken, rather than strengthen, hope of successful political action. The Pittsburgh platform cannot fail to challenge the admiration and support of all intelligent, patriotic reformers on the live issues of the day. Good men can stand and work on that platform.

The convention is sound this time in their ticket—"John Hancock" style of men, not afraid to write their names on the anti-secret issue. Cheers forever! J. B. Walker and Donald Kirkpatrick. Raise the flag. J. C. GRAHAM.

Reader, if you wish to join this party and work in its ranks we respectfully offer the following suggestions:

1st. Put one of these tracts into the hands of every voter at the earliest possible moment, and see that he reads it.

2d. Inform the people on the subject of secret societies by means of lectures, books, papers and tracts.

3d. In your local elections make a square issue against secret societies.

4th. Write down the name of every Anti-masonic voter in your neighborhood and muster him into the AMERICAN PARTY beforc his vote is pledged to some other.

5th. Vote for Walker and Kirkpatrick.

Read the Platform of the American Party. If you approve of it enter its ranks and work like a loyal citizen.

ANTI-MASONIC BOOKS,

(Not our own Publications.)

For Sale by EZRA A. COOK & CO

13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

[FOR CATALOGUE OF PUBLICATIONS OF EZRA A. COOK & CO., See page 15.]

All books sent post paid, on receipt of retail price, but BOOKS SENT BY MAIL ARE NOT AT OUR RISK.

Books ordered by express are sold at 10 per cent. discount and SENT AT OUR RISK. Party ordering must pay express charges.

Elder Stearns' Books.

Stearns' Inquiry Into the Nature and Tendency of Masonry With an Appendix.

SEVENTH EDITION.

338 Pages, in Cloth.....60 cents.
" " " Paper.....40 "

Stearns' Letters on Masonry.

Showing the antagonism between Freemasonry and the Christian Religion.
Price, 30 cents.

Stearns' Review of Two Masonic Addresses.

In this scathing review the lying pretentions of the order are clearly shown.
Price, 10 cents.

Levington's Key to Masonry.

This is Rev. Mr. Levington's last, and in the judgment of its author, best work on Masonry. The contents of the first chapter are as follows:

"Commencement and growth of Speculative or Symbolic Freemasonry—A table showing the thing at a glance—The use that the Atheists made of it—Identical with Illuminism—Its connection with the French Revolution, and with the Irish Rebellion—The action of the British Parliament with regard to it—Proofs of its diabolical purposes—Its Introduction, doings, progress and designs in the United States."

The contents of the Eleventh chapter are thus startling:

"Knights of the Golden Circle—Graphic account of them by a seceding Knight, and remarks thereon, showing the identity of the order with Masonry—Quotations from Sir Walter Scott."

This work is thrilling in statement, and powerful in argumt. 425 pagenes,
Price, $1.35.

Light on Freemasonry.

BY ELDER D. BERNARD,

TO WHICH IS APPENDED A

Revelation of the Mysteries of Odd-fellowship by a Member of the Craft.

The whole containing over five hundred pages lately revised and republished. Price $2,00

The first part of the above work, Light on Freemasonry, 416 pages in paper cover, will be sent post paid on receipt of $1.

FOR SALE BY

United Brethren Publishing House,
DAYTON, O.
and hy
EZRA A. COOK & CO.,
13 Wabash Ave, CHICAGO.

Finney on Masonry.

BOUND IN CLOTH, PRICE $1.00,

CHEAP EDITION,

Twenty-five dollars per hundred, by express and not less than 25 copies at that rate.

BY MAIL, POST-PAID:

Per doz.....$3 75,
Single copy,..... 35 c

ODD-FELLOWSHIP

JUDGED BY ITS OWN UTTERANCES;

Its Doctrine and Practice examined in the light of God's Word.

BY REV. J. H. BROCKMAN.

This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-Fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. It was originally published in German.
Price, bound in Boards, 75 cents.

GOOD TEMPLARISM EXPOSED.

Obligations, of the Initiatory Fidelity, Charity, and Royal Virtue Degrees.

This is a small book containing only the Obligations and some of the Odes of the Good Templars.

Single Copy, Post paid, ... 10cts.
Per Doz. 75
Per 100 by Express,..... $4.50

Bernard's Appendix to Light on Masonry,

Showing the Character of the Institution by it's terrible oaths and penalties. Paper covers, 25 cents.

ANTIMASONIC TRACTS.

WE NOW HAVE 25 ENGLISH TRACTS, ONE GERMAN, AND ONE SWEEDISH

These tracts are sold at the rate of $1.00 per 1000 pages.

"THE ANTI-MASONS SCRAP BOOK."

Contains 24 Cynosnre Tracts, bonnd together, and is just the thing to select tracts from. Price 20 cents. See advertisement.

For information about Free Tracts see advertisement headed Wree Tracts."

Address EZRA A. COOK & Co.,
13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

TRACT NO. 1:

HISTORY OF MASONRY.

BY PRESIDENT J. BLANCHARD, OF WHEATON COLLEGE.

This is now published in three tracts of four pages each. Price of each, 50 cents per 100; $4 per 1000.

TRACT No. 1, PART FIRST—Shows the origin of Speculative Freemasonry, and is entiled "HISTORY OF MASONRY."

TRACT No. 1, PART SECOND—Is entitled "DESPOTIC CHARACTER OF FREEMASONRY"

TRACT No. 1, PART THIRD—Is entitled "FREEMASONRY A CHRIST-EXCLUDING RELIGION."

TRACT NO. 2:

MASONIC MURDER,

By REV. J. R. BAIRD, of Pleasantville, Pa., a seceding Mason who has taken 17 degrees. A 2-page tract at 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 3:

SECRETS OF MASONRY,

BY ELI TAPLEY.

This is a 4-page Illustrated Tract, showing the signs, grips and pass-words, of the first three degrees. 50 cents per 100, or $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 4:

GRAND! GREAT GRAND!!

BY PHILO CARPENTER.

This is a 2-page tract, calling the attention of the public to the despotic and ridiculous titles of Freemasonry. Price 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1,000.

TRACT. NO, 5:

Extracts From Masonic Oaths and Penalties, as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.

This tract is a reprint of a tract published in 1834, and is a very weighty document. A 4-page tract at 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 6:

Hon. John Quincy Adams' Letter.

Giving His and His Father's Opinion of Freemasonry (1831.);

AND

Hon. James Madison's Letter,

Giving His Opinion of Freemasonry (1832).

Both of these letters, in one 4-page tract, at 50 cents per 100: $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 7:

SATAN'S CABLE-TOW.

A 4-page tract. This is a careful analysis of the character of Masonic oaths, and shows them to be most blasphemous and unchristian; and the Masonic Cable Tow is clearly shown to be the Cable Tow by which Satan is leading thousands to eternal death. 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 8:

Is a 2-page double tract, "ILLUSTRATED." The first page represents a Mason proclaiming the wonderful wisdom and benevolence of the order, with an article below, entitled "Freemasonry is only 152 Years Old," and gives the time and place of its birth.

The second side is entitled, "Murder and Treason not Excepted," and shows that the Masonic order is treasonable in its constitution, and is both anti-Republican and anti-Christian. Price 25 cents per 100; $8 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 9, ILLUSTRATED:

FREEMASONRY IN THE CHURCH.

Copy of a petition for the higher degrees of Freemasonry, in which Blasphemous and Despotic Titles are enumerated and prayed for. The Copy was printed for the nse of "Occidental Sovereign Consistory S. P. R. S.," 32d degree—a Chicago Lodge—and was ordered by a deacon of a Christian Chnrch who is Grand Orator of the Grand Lodge of Ill.

TRACT NO. 10:

CHARACTER AND SYMBOLS OF FREEMASONRY.

A 2-page tract, (ILLUSTRATED) by its "Grand Secretaries, Grand Lecturers, Perfect Prince Freemasons, Grand Inspector, Inquisitor Commanders, Grand High Priests," etc. The wonderful symbolical meaning of "the Cable Tow," "the Sqnare and Compass," "the Lamb Skin, or white Apron," and "the Common Gavel," are given in the exact words of the highest Masonic anthority. 25 conts per 100 or $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 11;

Address of Niagara County Association, New York.

TO THE PUBLIC;

Concerning the Morgan Murder, and the character of Freemasonry shown by this and other Masonic murders. 50 cents per

TRACT NO. 12:

JUDGE WHITNEY AND MASONRY.

This tract contains a condensed account of Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois, on charge of unmasonic conduct in bringing Samnel L. Keith the murderer of Ellen Slade, and a member of his Lodge, to justice, with Judge Whitney's subseqnent renunciation of Masonry,

An 8-page tract, $1.00 per 100; $8.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 13:

DR. NATHANIEL COLVER ON MASONRY,

and

HOWARD CROSBY, D. D.,

Chancellor of the University of New York, on SECRET SOCIETIES. A donble 2-page tract 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 14:

GRAND LODGE MASONRY.

ITS RELATION TO CIVIL GOVERNMENT AND THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION.

Opening address before the Monmouth Convention, by PRES. J. BLANCHARD of WHEATON COLLEGE. This is a 16-page tract at $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 15:

MASONIC OATHS NULL AND VOID.

A clear and conclusive argument proving the invalidity of any oath or obligation to do evil. By REV. I. A. HART, Secretary National Christian Association. Published by special order of the Association. 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 16:

HON. SETH M. GATES ON FREEMASONRY.

PROOF THAT THE INSTITUTION THAT MURDERED MORGAN IS UNCHANGED IN CHARACTER

This is a letter to the Monmouth Convention by Hon. Seth M Gates who was Depnty Sheriff of Genesee County, and also Secretary of the Leroy Lodge at the time of Morgan's Abdnction. A 4 page tract, 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 17:

Origin, Obligations and Expenses of The Grange.

WITH A CONSTITUTION OF A FARMERS' CLUB.

This little tract ought to be pnt into the hands of every Farmer in the United States. Four-page tract, 50 cents per 100; $4 00 per 1000

TRACT NO. 18:

HON. WM. H. SEWARD ON SECRET SOCIETIES.

Extracts from a Speech on Know- nothingism in the U. S. Senate in 1855. The testimony of JOHN QUINCY ADAMS, MILLARD FILLMORE, CHIEF JUSTIC MARSHALL and others, is added.

A 2-page tract, 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO, 19.

BRICKS FOR MASONS TO LAY.

WASHINGTON, MADISON, MARSHALL, RUSH, HANCOCK, ADAMS AND WEBSTER, give brief clear testimony against the Lodge A 2-page tract 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 20:

OBJECTIONS TO MASONRY.

By A SECEDING MASON, of Cornton, Vermont.

This tract contains many strong arguments against the Lodge drawn from personal experience, observation and study of its character. A 4-page tract at 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

TRACT NO. 21:

MASONIC CHASTITY.

BY EMMA A. WALLACE,

The author, by wonderfully clear illustration and argument, shows the terribly corrupt nature of Freemasonry. No true woman who reads this will ever speak with approbation of this institution A 4-page tract 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

TRACT No. 22.

LINUS CHITTENDEN ON FREEMASONRY.

The Author a Seceding Master Mason states his objection to the Lodge, drawn both from experience and observation, in a clear concise and forcible style,

A 2 page tract, 25 cents per 100, $2.00 per 1,000.

TRACT No. 23.

MASONIC OATHS AND PENALTIES.

ADDRESS OF REV, A. M. MILLIGAN AT THE PITTSBURGH CONVENTION.

This is the clearest and most conclusive argument to show the wickedness of masonic oaths and the duty to disregard and repent of them that we have ever seen.

A 4 page tract, 50 cents per 100, $4.00 per 1,000

TRACT NO 1, IN SWEDISH;

translated by Prof. A. R. CERVIN. A 15-page tract at $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

ENOCH HONEYWELL'S TRACT

TO THE YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA. Postage 5cts per 100, TRACTS FREE.

GERMAN CYNOSUCE TRACT A.

Six Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason.

By Rev. A. GROLE, Pastor, German M. E. Church, Worchester, Mass

This is our first German Tract, and it is a good one; it ought to have a large circulation. A 4 page tract, Price 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

FREE TRACTS.

A Tract Fund for the Free Distribution of Tracts

HAS BEEN SECURED AND SHOULD NEVER BE EXHAUSTED. A friend has pledged this fund a dollar for every other dollar received, so EVERY NEW SUBSCRIPTION TO THE TRACT FUND COUNTS DOUBLE, and thns $10.00 pays for 20,000 pages of tracts.

The distribntion of these tracts has already saved hnndreds of young men from the lodge, but there is a great lack of funds to supply the constantly increasing demand for Free Tracts.

Dnring the year ending July 1st, 1875 a little less than 150.000 pages of Cynosnre Tracts were gratnitously sent ont, mostly in very small lots. The present demand is fully 100.000 pages per month, bnt funds are lacking to meet it.

Many of our most earnest workers in this cause of God are poor men, who wonld be glad to circulate thousands of pages of Antimasonic literature if they could have them free.

SHALL WE NOT HAVE AN INEXHAUSTIBLE TRACT FUND?

"THE ANTI-MASONS SCRAP BOOK."

Contains 24 Cynosure Tracts, bound together and is just the thing to select from. Price 20ccnts. See advertisement page 15.

Enoch Honeywell Esq., pays for an unlimitednumber of his tract addressed "TO THE YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA." It is an excelent tract, bearing the printed endorsement of Executive Committee of the National Christian Association. He has furnished the public over 150.000 pages of these tracts during the past year.

TRACTS FREE. If sent by mail, 5 cts per 100 is charged for postage,

Send Contributions and orders to

EZRA A. COOK.

Secretary of Tract Committee 13 Wabash Ave, Chicago, Ill.

Descriptive Catalogue of Publications of Ezra A. Cook & Co.

13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

BOOKS.

FREEMASONRY EXPOSED,
by CAP'T. WILLIAM MORGAN.

THE GENUINE OLD MORGAN BOOK:—republished with engravings showing the Lodge Room, Dress of candidates, Signs, Due Guards, Grips, Etc.

This revelation is so accurate that Freemasons murdered the author for writing it. Thousands have testified to the correctness of the revelation and this book therefore sells very rapidly.

Price 25 cents.

Per Doz. Post Paid..... $3.00
Per hundred by express, (express charges extra.)..... $10.00

ODD FELLOWSHIP ILLUSTRATED.

A complete exposition of the Lodge Encampment and Rebecca (Ladies') Degree. The Signs, Grips, &c., shown by engravings.

Single copy, post paid,..... $ 25
Per Doz., " " 2 00
Per Hundred, Express charges extra,..... 10 00

EXPOSITION OF THE GRANGE.

EDITED BY REV. A. W. GREESLIN.

Illustrated with Engravings showing Lodge Room, Signs, Signals, etc.

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 25
Per Doz., " " 2 00
Per 100 Express charges extra..... 10 00

Judge Whitney's Defense Before the Grand Lodge of Ill.

Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the Lodge when S. L. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the Lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry.

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 20
Per Doz., " " 1 50
Per 100, Express charges extra..... 8 00

History of The Abduction and Murder of Cap't. Wm. Morgan.

As prepared by Seven Committees of Citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan.

This book contains indisputable, legal evidence that Freemasons, abducted and Murdered Wm. Morgan, for no other offence than the revelation of Masonry. It contains the sworn testimony of over twenty persons, including Morgan's wife, and no candid person after reading this book, can doubt that many of the most respectable FREEMASONS. in the Empire State, with others were concerned in this crime.

Single Copy, post Paid,..... 25 cents.
Per doz. " ..... $2,00.
Per 100, Express Charges Extra,..... 10.00.

Valance's Confession of The Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan.

This confession of Henry L. Valance, one of the three Freemasons who drowned Morgan in the Niagara River, was taken from the lips of the dying man by Dr. John C. Emery, of Racine County, Wisconsin in 1848; The confession bears clear evidence of truthfulness.

Single copy, post paid,..... 20 cents.
Per doz. " ..... $1.50.
Per 100 Express Charges Extra,..... 8.00.

The Mystic Tie or Freemasonry a League with the Devil.

This is an account of the Church Trial of Peter Cook, and wife of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a Reverend Freemason; and their very able defence presented by Mrs. Lucia C. Cook, in which she clearly shows that Freemasonry, is antagonistic to the Christian Religion. Single Copy, post paid,..... 20 cents

Per dozen, post paid..... $1 50
Per hundred Express charges Extra, ... 9 00

NARRATIVES AND ARGUMENTS.

Showing the Conflict of Secret Societies with the Constitution and Laws of the Union and of the States, by FRANCIS SEMPLE.

The fact that Secret Societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of Law is here clearly proved.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 20
Per doz. " " $1.75
Per 100 Express charges Extra..... 9.00

THE BROKEN SEAL.

OR PERSONAL REMINISCENCES OF THE ABDUCTION AND MURDER OF Wm. MORGAN,

By SAMUEL D. GREENE,

Price in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

In Paper Covers per Doz. Post paid..... $4 50
" per hundred by express (ex. charges extra $25.00

Capt. Wm. Morgan was Mr. Greene's neighbor in Batavia, N. Y., and a member of the same lodge with him at the time of the great excitement in 1826. The titles to these chapters are sufficiently exciting to give the book a large sale:—"The Storm Gathering;" "Abdnction of Morgan;" "Attempted Abduction of Miller and his Rescue;" "What became of Morgan;" "What Morgan Actually Revealed;" "Confession of the Murderer;" "Allegations against Freemasonry, etc."

THE ANTI-MASON'S SCRAP BOOK,
CONSISTING OF 21 CYNOSURE TRACTS.

In this book are the views of more than a Score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of Secret Societies.

The dangerous tendency and positive evil of organized Secrecy is here shown by the most varied and powerful arguments and illustrations that have ever been given to the public.

Lecturers and others who wish to find the best arguments against the Lodge, should send for this book.

Those who wish to circulate Antimasonic Tracts ought to have the book to select from.

Single Copy, post paid, ...20 cents.
Per Doz. " $1.75
Per 100, Express charges Extra,.....$10.00

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion.

A clear cutting argument against the Lodge, from a Christian Stand point.

Single Copy post paid..... $ 05
Per doz. " " 50
Per 100 Express Charges Extra..... 3 00

President H. H. GEORGE, On Secret Societies.

A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian Churches, to disfellowship Secret Societies.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 10 cts.
Per doz, " ..... 75 "
Per 100, Express charges Extra, ... $4.00.

PHELPS' SECRET SOCIETIES Ancient and Modern.

A NEW BOOK OF GREAT INTEREST.

This work is particularly commended to the attention of Officers of The Army and Navy, The Bench and The Clergy.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

"THE ANTIQUITY OF SECRET SOCIETIES, THE LIFE OF JULIAN, THE ELEUSINIAN MYSTERIES, THE ORIGIN OF MASONRY, WAS WASHINGTON A MASON? FILMORE'S AND WEBSTER'S DEFERENCE TO MASONRY, A BRIEF OUTLINE OF THE PROGRESS OF MASONRY IN THE UNITED STATES, THE TAMMANY RING, MASONIC BENEVOLENCE, THE USES OF MASONRY, AN ILLUSTRATION, THE CONCLUSION."

Single Copy, Post Paid..... 50
Per Doz " " $4 75
Per Hundred, Express Charges Extra..... $25 00

HON. JOHN QUINCY ADAMS' LETTERS
to Col. Wm. Stone, Edward Livingstone, and others, on the nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties.

Price, post paid..... $ 50
Per Doz., " 4 50
Per 100, Express Charges extra..... 25 00

COLLEGE SECRET SOCIETIES.

Their Customs, Character and the Efforts for their Suppression.
BY H. L. KELLOGG.

Containing the opinion of many prominent College Presidents, and others, and a FULL ACCOUNT OF THE MURDER OF MORTIMER LEGGETT

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 35
Per Doz " " 2 50
Per 100 Express charges extra..... 15 00

MINUTES OF THE SYRACUSE CONVENTION,

Containing addresses by Rev. B. T. Roberts, Chas. D. Greene, Esq., Prof. C. A. Blanchard, Rev. D. P. Rathbun, Rev. D. S. Caldwell, Mrs. M. E. Gage, Elder J. R. Baird and others. Unpublished Reminiscences of the Morgan Times, by Elder David Bernard; Recollections of the Morgan Trials, as related by Victory Birdseye, Esq., and presented by his daughter, Mrs. C. B. Miller; Secretary's report; roll of delegates; songs of Mr. G. A. Clark; paper by Enoch Honeywell; Constitution N. C. A.; reports of committees, and a report of the political meeting.

Single Copy, post paid, ... 25
Per doz. " $2.00
Per 100 Express Charges Extra..... 10.00

Paoceedings of the Pittsburgh Convention,

Containing Official Reports; Addresses by Rev. D. R. Kerr, D.D. Rev. B. T. Roberts, Rev. G. T. R. Meiser, Prof. J. R. W. Sloane, D. D., Pres't. J. Blanchard, Rev. A. M. Milligan, D. D., Rev. Woodruff Post, Rev. Henry Cogswell, Prof. C. A. Blanchard, and Rev W. E. Coquilette, also Report of the POLITICAL MASS CONVENTION, with Platform and Caddates for the Presidential Campaign of 1876.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 25 cts.
Per doz " $2.00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 10.00

SERMON ON MASONRY,
BY REV. W. P. M'NARY,
Pastor United Presbyterian Church, Bloomington, Ind.

This is a very clear, thorough, candid and remarkably concise Scriptural argument on the character of Freemasonry.

Single Copy, Post Paid,..... 5
Per Doz,..... 50
Per Hundred, Express Charges Extra,..... $3 00

THIRTEEN REASONS

Why a Christian Should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong.

The author states his reasons clearly and carefully, and any one of the thirteen reasons, if properly considered, will keep a Christian out of the Lodge.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 5
Per doz. " " 50
Per 100, Express charges extra,..... $3.00

SERMON ON MASONRY,
BY REV. JAMES WILLIAMS.

Presiding Elder of Dakota District North-western Iowa Conference, M. E. Church, A SECEDING MASTER MASON.

Published at the special request of the Nine Clergymen of different denominations and others.

Single Copy, post paid..... 10
Per doz. " " 75
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... $4.00

MASONRY A WORK OF DARKNESS

ADVERSE TO CHRISTIANITY, and Inimical to a Republican Government.
BY REV. LEBBEUS ARMSTRONG, [Presbyterian.]
A Seceding Mason of 21 Degrees.

This is a very telling work and no honest man that reads it will think of joining the lodge. Single Copy, post paid,.....20cts.

Per doz, post paid,..... $1.50.
" 100, Express Charges Extra..... 8.00.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy.

Address of Prest. J. BLANCHARD, before the Pittsburgh Convention.

This is a most convincing argument against the lodge.

Single Copy, Post Paid..... $ 05
Per Doz " " 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

GRAND LODGE MASONRY.

Its relation to civil Government and the Christian Religion.
By Prest. J. BLANCHARD, at the Monmouth Convention.

The Unchristian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is here proved from the highest masonic authorities.

Single Copy, Post Paid,..... $ 05
Per Doz..... 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

SERMON ON SCERETISM
BY REV. R. THEO. CROSS.

This is a very clear array of the objections to Masonry that are apparent to all.

By Rev. R. T. Cross, Pastor Congregational Church, Hamilton, N.Y.

Single Copy, Post Paid..... $ 05
Per Doz..... 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

Sermon on Secret Societies,
BY REV. DANIEL DOW, Woodstock, Conn.

The special object of this sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the Character of Secret Societies, no matter what object they profess to have.

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 05
Per Dozen, " " 50
Per 100 Express charges extra..... 3 00

HISTORY OF THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought; The Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association, Conditions of the Carpenter Donation with Engraving of building to be donated by Mr. Carpenter; Tables showing the number of Pastors and communicants in church es that exclude members of Secret Societies, Tabular view of Local, County State and National Conventions, and list of organizations Auxiliary to the National Christian Association; Brief opinions of Eminent Men on Secret Societies, and Testimonies of Religious Bodies against them. This book will be found invaluable by all who wish to know the character of this reform and how they may do the most to further its objects. It should be in the hands of every Antmason.

Price post paid,.....25 cents each,
per doz;.....$1,50
25 copies or more by express at 8 cents each.

NEW BOOKS

HAND BOOK

—OF—

FREEMASONRY,

A COMPLETE

Illustrated Exposition,

—OF—

BLUE LODGE

MASONRY

—BY—

EDMOND RONAYNE,

LATE PAST MASTER OF KEYSTONE LODGE, NO. 639, CHICAGO, ILL.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 50cts.
Per doz. " " $4.00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra,..... 25.00

RITUAL OF THE

GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC

WITH SIGN OF RECOGNITION,
PASS WORD GR.IP ETC,

—AND THE—

RITUAL OF THE

MACHINISTS AND BLACKSMITHS UNION,

(THE TWO BOUND TOGETHER.)

Single Copy, post paid,..... 25
Per doz. " $2.00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra,..... 1000

Publishers' Department.

The Mail List.

Whole number of subscribers Sat. Jan. 29th, 3881
" " " Feb. 5, 3782
Loss 99

Considering that about two hundred unrenewed subscribers' names were removed from the list the first of Feb ary this report is good, viz , about 10- subscriptions last week. Our friend, Samuel Hale, suggests a return to the custom which was tried during the first five years of the Cynosures's life, namely to continue all subscriptions until renewed or discontinued. Mr. Hale recently asked a man whose subscription he secured, if he still took the Cynosure. "No," was his reply, "but it is a good paper and I must have it.' So doubtless in many cases we could collect arrearages if the paper was not stopped. But if Mr. Hale could look on our books we think he would not recommend such a plan. We lose about three-fourths of all such debts. It is hard for men to pay for dead horses, or newspapers that they have read long since. It does not seem fair to have prompt paying subscribers carry this uncollectable debt, and the publishers could not if they would. Most of our readers who have thoughtfully considered this question regard the present method of cutting off the best. One earnest worker whose name was removed sent his renewal and wrote, "You did right." Another wrote, "I am glad you took my name off but as soon as I can get money enough I will have it on again." We gladly continue papers a few weeks when requested to do so, but do not find it well except in remarkable cases to continue papers more than three months at longest. "Owe no man anything but to love one another," is good doctrine.

We ask all our agents to keep a list of the subscribers in their localities with the dates when their time is out and ask for renewals at such time. We will furnish such lists to agents who apply for them.

Prospect for Clubs.

Mail lists have a tidal flow as well as the ocean. The tide, at its height the first of January, gradually receded, and now seems to give indications of rising again. Missouri has the honor of sending in the first full club of ten received at our new club-rates, $17,00. It was collected by three men in Allendale.

Wm Landers, who forwards the club, writes: "They advance the money for six in this club, so we keep the ball rolling; and we keep our papers moving. There is one granger in this club, and when we get G. W. Stewart to lecturing in our town, I think I can send you more."

Co-operation is worth trying in a good cause. Rev. H. H. Hinman sends in six from Warren county, Ill.

Mr. Ronayne brought in six subscriptions for a year and two for six months, from the Wisconsin Convention; and reports that those who attended expect to work after they return home. Two letters from Peoria, Ill., report clubs in prospect. Are you at work? Can you not select and encourage an efficient canvasser, if you cannot do the work yourself?

Amos Whitson writes that two furnished the money that was advanced on the subscriptions which he forwarded. It was credited to him only through a misunderstanding.

SUBSCRIPTIONS RECIEVED DURING WEEK ENDING FEB. 4th, 1876, from—O E Burch, T Barton, C Bascom, J Beattie, E Bradbury, J Bartlett, Geo Brokaw, H F Buffham, J C Burnett, J W Cole, G W Charp, J Cassidy, W A Campbell, J Compher, G C Coffer, S H Davidson, M J Duryea, G M Ellinwood, B Fuller, Geo. H Fenton, J M Fry, D T Goodrich, J A Gordon, M C Grennell, L Holbrook, H H Hinman, H W Hampe, E Howard, Mrs. C W Howell, G W Harris, B Hutchings, B R Jones, H S Limbocker, E M Lewis, A Lord, N R Luce. W Manning, A M Milligan, J McGinnis, I Mettler, P J Martin, E Marcy. J B McMillan, S Nepp, R D Nichols, S Y Orr, S Powers, E G Payne, W Parker, F H Parker, H Propeck, J Robinson, J W Riner, W Reed (2), E Ronayne (2), L Raymo, J P Stoddard, H H Shields, A Showalter, A Smith, R B Smith, W W Stringer, S Sweat, E Tapley, E Teter, D Thompson, W R Tippin, P Wool, J P Yocom.

Agents Wanted!

TO SELL THE PUBLICATIONS OF

EZRA A. COOK & CO.

Liberal Terms Offered.

Capable persons who are in need of pecuniary aid may clear

Handsome Profits,

While at the same time aiding the cause of Reform. Apply to EZRA A. COOK & CO., No. 13 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

$250 A MONTH—Agents wanted everywhere. Business honorable and first class. Particulars sent Address J. WORTH & Co., St. Louis, Mo 1yrJul

$77 A WEEK guaranteed to Male and Female Agents, in their locality. Costs NOTHING to try it. Particulars Free. P. O. VICKERY & CO., Augusta, Me. 6m.dec.30-75.

SAVE MONEY

by sending $4.75 for any $4 Magazine and THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE (regular price $6), or $5.75 for the Magazine and THE SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE (regular price $3). Address

THE TRIBUNE, New-York.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO, Feb. 7, 1876.

Grain Wheat—Spring, No. 1..	$	1 09
" No. 2	99⅝	1 00
" No. 3		79½
" Rejected		65
Corn—No. 2		39½
Rejected	30	30½
Oats—No. 2		30⅜
Rejected	26½	27
Rye—No. 2		67
Bran per ton	9 00	9 25
Flour—Winter	4 75	7 50
Spring	3 00	5 25
Hay—Timothy	10 00	14 00
Prairie, "	7 50	10 50
Mess Beef	9 50	10 00
Tallow		8¾
Dressed Hogs	9 00	9 05
Lard per cwt		12 25
Mess pork, per bbl		20 50
Butter fancy yellow 32c.; common to choice roll	16	23
Cheese	9	18½
Eggs		17
Seeds—Timothy	2 15	2 30
Clover	8 00	8 05
Flax	1 25	1 40
Poultry—Turkeys per lb dressed	12	14
Chickens " "	9	12
Potatoes		17
Apples from store	3 00	4 00
Broom corn	3	11¼
HIDES green to dry salted	5½	12
Lumber—Clear	38 00	42 00
Common	11 00	12 00
Fencing	12 00	13 00
Shingles	2 75	3 00
WOOL—Washed	38	52
Unwashed	23	33
LIVE STOCK Cattle, Choice	5 25	5 75
Good	4 50	4 75
Medium	4 25	4 40
Common	3 00	3 75
Hogs	7 75	8 10
Sheep	4 00	5 62
New York Market
Flour	$ 4 25	9 00
Wheat—Winter	1 20	1 55
Spring	98	1 35
Corn	57½	64½
Oats	46	52
Rye	87	92
Lard		12¾
Mess pork		21 50
Butter	15	31
Cheese	6	12½
Eggs	20	22

ESTABLISHED 1867.

EZRA A. COOK & CO.,

STEAM PRINTERS

LITHOGRAPHERS,

STATIONERS

—AND—

Book Binders.

NOS. 7, 9, 11 & 13

Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

We were in the Stationery, Printing and Lithographing business before the Cynosure was started.

WE PRINT

Books, Pamphlets, Catalogues, Business Cards, Show Cards, Letter Heads, Bill Heads, Note Heads, Circulars, Hand Bills, Posters, Checks, Drafts, Notes, Certificates of Deposit, Certificates of Stock, Diplomas, etc.,

WE BIND

Blank Books, Magazines, Catalogues, Checks, Drafts, Notes, Certificates, Bank Pass Books, Etc., Etc.

WE LITHOGRAPH

Business Cards, Letter Heads, Note Heads, Bill Heads, Circulars, Checks, Drafts, Certificates of Stock, Certificates of Deposit, Plats and Charts; also elegant Diplomas for Colleges. Literary Societies, and Agricultural Societies, in one, two or three Colors. Samples and Prices sent on Application.

All work executed in the

BEST STYLE,

at the

LOWEST MARKET RATES.

WE FILL ORDERS PROMPTLY, and

GUARANTEE GOOD WORK.

SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO ORDERS

BY MAIL.

Samples and prices sent promptly when desired.

Address:

EZRA A. COOK & CO.,

7, 9, 11 & 13 Wabash Avenue,

CHICAGO.

NEW CLUB RATES

—FOR—

1876.

CLUB RATES.

No commission is allowed on club rates. Club rates are intended for those who wish to give the commission to subscribers.

Club Rates Including Postage.

Papers Addressed to one or different Post Offices as desired.

2 to 4	Subs., 1 year, Old or New sent at one time, at	$2.00 each
5 to 9	" " " " " "	1.80 "
10 to 14	" " " " " "	1.70 "
15 to 19	" " " " " "	1.60 "
20 or more	" " " " " "	1.50 "

Subscription Papers and Circulars sent free on application.

Excelsior Marriage Certificate.

It is decidedly the most BEAUTIFUL, TASTEFUL and SENSIBLE thing of the kind I have ever 'seen."—Rev. F. G. Hibbard, D. D.

"The most SCRIPTURAL, BEAUTIFUL and APPROPRIATE Marriage Certificate I have ever seen."—Late Rev. H. Mattison, D. D.

"SOMETHING NEW AND BEAUTIFUL, which we prononnce the handsomest thing of the kind we ever laid eyes on."—Meth. Home Journal, Phila.

Contains two Ornamental Ovals, for Photographs

A BEAUTIFUL LITHOGRAPH 14 1-4 by 18 1-4 inches. 25 cts each, $2.25 per doz- $15 per 100.

For Sale by Ezra A. Cook & Co.. CHICAGO.

CALIFORNIA

Have you any thought of going to California? Are you going West, North, or North-West? You want to know the best routes to take?

The shortest, safest, quickest and most comfortable routes are those owned by the Chicago and North-Western Railway Company. It owns over two thousand miles of the best roads there is in the country. Ask any ticket agent to show you its maps and time cards. All ticket agents can sell you through tickets by this route.

Buy your tickets via the Chicago & North-Western Railway for the West and North-West, and for

SAN FRANCISCO,

Sacramento, Ogden, Salt Lake City, Cheyenne, Denver, Omaha, Lincoln, Council Bluffs, Yankton, Sioux City, Dubuque, Winona, St Paul, Duluth, Marquette, Green Bay, Oshkosh, Madison, Milwaukee, and all other points West or North-West of Chicago.

If you wish the best traveling accommodations, you will buy your tickets by this route, and will take no other.

This popular route is unsurpassed for speed, comfort and safety. The smooth, well-ballasted and perfect track of Steel Rails, Westinghouse Air Brakes, Miller's Safety Platform and Couplers, the celebrated Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars, the perfect Telegraph System of Moving Trains, the regularity with which they run, the admirable arrangement for running Through Cars from Chicago to all points West, North and North-West, secures to passengers all the COMFORTS IN MODERN RAILWAY TRAVELING.

PULLMAN PALACE CARS

are run on all through trains of this road.

This is the ONLY LINE running these cars between Chicago and St. Paul, Chicago and Milwaukee, or Chicago and Winona.

At Omaha our Sleepers connect with the Overland Sleepers on the Union Pacific Railroad for all points West of the Missouri River.

On the arrival of the trains from the East or South, the trains of the Chicago and North-Western Railway LEAVE CHICAGO as follows:

For Council Bluffs, Omaha and California, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Palace Drawing Room and Sleeping Cars through to Council Bluffs.

For St. Paul and Minneapolis, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Palace Cars attached on both trains.

For Green Bay and Lake Superior, Two Trains daily, with Pullman Palace Cars attached, and running through to Marquette.

For Milwaukee, four Through Trains daily. Pullman Cars on night trains, Parlor Chair Cars on day trains.

For Sparta and Winona and points in Minnesota, One Through Train daily, with Pullman Sleepers to Winona.

For Dubuque, via Freeport, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Cars on night trains.

For Dubuque and La Crosse, via Clinton, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Cars on night trains to McGregor, Iowa.

For Sioux City and Yankton, Two Trains daily. Pullman Cars to Missouri Valley Junction.

For Lake Geneva, Four Trains daily.

For Rockford, Sterling, Kenosha, Janesville, and other points you can have from two to ten trains daily.

New York Office, No. 415 Broadway; Boston Office, No. 5 State Street; Omaha Office, 253 Farnham Street; San Francisco Office, 121 Montgomery Street; Chicago Ticket Offices: 62 Clark Street, under Sherman House: corner Canal and Madison Streets; Kinzie Street Depot, corner W. Kinzie and Canal Streets; Wells Street Depot, corner Wells and Kinzie Streets.

For rates or information not attainable from your home ticket agents, apply to

W. H. STENNETT, MARVIN HUGHITT,
Gen. Pass. Ag't, Chicago. Gen. Sup't, Chicago,
[Eastern.]

THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.

"In Secret Have I Said Nothing."—Jesus Christ.

EZRA A. COOK & CO., PUBLISHERS, NO 13 WABASH AVENUE.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 17, 1876.

VOL. VIII., NO. 19.—WHOLE NO. 306
WEEKLY (post paid) $2 20 A YEAR

Contents.

	Page
TOPICS OF THE TIME	1
EDITORIAL ARTICLES:
Practical Holiness—Questions and Objections	8
The Sabbath—Seventh Day or First	8
Church Testimony made Void	8
CONTRIBUTED AND SELECT ARTICLES:
Things to Profit by in National Politics	1
Leipsic	2
Is Christ Denied?	2
Are they Dunces?	2
Authority for the Christian Sabbath	3
REFORM NEWS AND NOTICES.
Wisconsin State Convention; Work in Vigo Co., Ind.; The Illinois Agent in Warren and Mercer Counties	4, 5
CORRESPONDENCE:
Good and Urgent Letter on Lectures and Politics; The Centennial; The Oath and its Sanctity; That Batavia Post-master; Preacher Masons; Rouse to the Work; Our Mail	5, 6
Board of Directors' Meeting, Feb. 8	9
N. C. A. Department	9
THE HOME CIRCLE	10
CHILDREN'S CORNER	11
The Sabbath School	7
Temperance	12
Educational	7
Miscellany	7
Home and Health Hints	12
Religious Intelligence	13
News of the Week	13
Publishers' Department	16

Topics of the Time.

John Morrisey, who enters th New York Legislature from the prize ring and gambling house, made the speech that repealed the Grey Nun's act. He represented that Cardinal McCloskey desired the measure wiped out. The Catholic papers are crying "It is naught; it is naught," now that community has aroused at the ursurpation and has purged the statutes. The action of the Cardinal is Jesuitical all over. "Act, but don't agitate" is his motto, and when the people are seen to be in earnest and defeat certain, the crafty prelate seems by yielding to himself be the victor It is not yet time for the old, well-hammered saying, "Vigilance is the price of liberty," to become trite in America.

The Freemasons of St. Louis are of an audacious race. The shamelessness of the Tweed ring in New York is completely outdone by them if the daily press of St. Louis may be credited for the story. The Dispatch says that these men actually came to the United States Marshall and asked him to allow them to bring McDonald, a U. S. official and member of the whisky ring, before their order for trial. As this was a novel and unheard-of request, the Marshall informed the committee that he had no authority for the removal of the prisoner, and if they desired to arraign McDonald they would have to hold court in jail. This was not the ultimate design of the lodge-men and they left the dispensation of justice to the courts which soon landed McDonald in the penitentiary. Their request was only a sham to set the man free, for he had violated no law of Masonry in his swindling the government. Common strumpets could learn boldness of St. Louis Freemasons; and the government is to be congratulated in having men who are proof against them.

The sudden death of Hon. Reverdy Johnson at Annapolis on Thursday last must, from the tenor of the dispatches, be another argument against polite tippling. Mr. Johnson with several gentlemen was dining with Gov. Carrol and was, as usual, full of humor, and his anecdotes the life of the party. "At the close of the repast," the dispatches read, "The conversation turned upon the qualities of some Madeira wine on the table and Mr. Johnson took a glass of it. He took only the one glass, and soon afterwards said to Mr. Carroll: 'Governor, will you take me into the parlor.' Gov. Carroll gave him his arm and escorted him into the parlor, where he sat down on a sofa." He intimated that the company if they wanted to smoke had better remain in the dining room, and was left alone. When next the Governor saw him he was a corpse. He had walked out into the yard and seemed to have stumbled as if seized with vertigo, and striking the stone abutment of the house his skull was broken. Mr. Johnson had been in public life most of the time since 1817, having been member of the Senate, Attorney General and minister to England. He was also Andrew Johnson's counsel in the impeachment trial of 1868; and was held to be one of the first jurists of the country.

Mr. Blaine has set the fashion for school amendments. The Republicans of the Iowa Legislature were completely surprised at the introduction by a Democrat of the first act after the body was organized, which was an amendment to the State Constitution providing that no public funds whatever should be used for any institution of learning or charity not founded and controlled by the State: "nor," it continues, "shall any State institution ever be under the control of any religious denomination, nor shall any sectarianism be taught there." A resolution was also presented on the heels of the amendment, instructing Iowa Congressmen to support Blaine's amendment. New York, rid of the Grey Nuns, also proposes to mend its constitution with a clause providing that State money or credit must not be used to maintain schools controlled by "any religious sect or denomination." This is the popular phase; but Pres. E. O. Haven, of Syracuse, holds that it is a bad one, and most men will agree with him. He argues that it proposes a "strange discrimination" against religious people; for any imaginable body, a Masonic lodge, a band of Free-Thinkers, Communists, Womans' Rights club, scientific association, or even a single individual, might establish a so-called public or common school, and protest that it was not under control of a religious denomination. He suggests that the amendment should read that public funds shall not be applied to support any school "not wholly owned by and under the control of the State, municipal corporation, town or county which support them." "To be safe they must belong wholly to the State, and not in part to any religious or irreligious or anti-religious association whatever."

Things to Profit by in National Politics

BY ENOCH HONEYWELL.

O, wad some power the giftie gie us
To see oursel's as others see us!
It would fra monie a blunder free us.
—Burns.

If kind heaven this gift would give us the nations of he earth would shudder at their own legalized crimes; crimes that have long made countless millions mourn; crimes that, when seen by coming ages, will be as black as the guilt of Sodom. See our own nation; just so far as it follows God's laws it is prospered and blessed. But the sure and righteous result of every violation, whether by slavery or by legalizing oath-bound bands of midnight conspirators, is, and ever will be, turmoil, crushing debt and ruinous taxes.

We now look back two hundred years and see innocent women, even here in America dangling under the gallows because little fools, as witnesses, and big ones, as judges, said they were witches.

When the Jews were in Egypt, making bricks without straw, that cruelty was then the law of the land, and the natives, no doubt, thought it all right. But had the king seen himself as we now see him, he would have slunk away in deep shame into his own miry marshes. At another age of the world the Roman nation stoned, chained, burned and boiled Christians; yet it was then done by authority of a popular nation.

In other places, law and fashion have burned live widows, eaten men, worshiped the great Diana, put Jeremiah into a miry dungeon, Daniel into a den of lions, stoned Stephen, burned John Rogers at the stake, shot Elijah Lovejoy in Illinois, and mobbed, shot and poisoned the good Elder Rathbun—all because those mobocrats and murderers failed to see themselves as others or other ages now see them.

We will now look nearer home; and for proof of what I shall say, I refer you to our law records, to our statute books, and to the thousands who have left the lodges and reported their experience in them. Well then, let's look back only twenty years, and we see a man in these United States whip and mangle the naked back of another man's innocent wife, and then sell her and put the money into his own pocket; and he did it all according to law! Now, whose blood would not curdle in his veins should he see that act perpetrated to-day? Another man, Armfield, bought licenses in Washington for 400 "pieces of silver," to sell honest men, women and children into returnless slavery. One enactment of law hung a man if convicted the third time of showing a poor man how to spell out a sentence in the Bible! And our national vote said—All right. But this was, as Christ once said, "your hour, and the power of darkness." We were then unable to see our own sins as we ourselves now see them. We then voted slaveholders or their sycophants indirectly into the Senate, on to the judge's bench, and even into the Presidential chair, the majority voting with the heedless multitude, without looking at or wanting to see their crime.

Our popular churches then fellowshiped slavery, and even communed with it as a beloved brother. But a just God made that national sin cost us half a million lives and three billions of dollars.

Now, while paying our taxes, we look back and see slavery and the part we then took in supporting it somewhat as the slave then saw it. We then failed to see ourselves as God and the slave saw us, and our retribution was a fearful one; and it should restrain us from ever again voting for members or the colleagues of hordes, rings or secret lodges, to either make or administer our laws.

Now, thank heaven and our good Lincoln, we have, with God's help, abolished slavery, with all its demoniac laws. Thus one curse is banished; but another curse, whose maxim is, "strike, but conceal the hand," has to-day got its poisonous fangs struck deep into the vitals of our nation. Its virus has, for years, been breaking out in blotches called Ku-Klux and White League, and has thus proven fatal to four thousand patriots since the close of the rebel war. All these victims were shot, lynched or hung, by authority of secret, oath-bound lodges.

Let us now profit by the past. We have seen that slavery was fed and pampered seventy years, and that it then fired on Fort Sumpter.

Masonry, too, a despotic empire in our midst, has long been chartered and protected by law, and fed with our votes and fat offices. Now, in return, it is mobbing and murdering our best citizens, and trying, in secret, to wrench the helm of government from the hands of civil law. If we could only see ourselves as we even now are seen, by clear-sighted, Christian reformers, we should put no more offices of trust into the hands of such foresworn wire-pullers of a secret lodge. Every man of sense can now see that if he once voted for a slaveholder to be President, and the majority did so, he then voted to perpetuate a law that tore the live flesh from an innocent man by trained bloodhounds; and he voted that a white man might murder a slave, even a woman, if she raised a hand against a white libertine in defense of her own person!

But those voters failed to see themselves as wise men then saw them; and those who now vote for secret dens to rule us are not a whit wiser. Senator Sumner, in a letter to Samuel D. Greene, said, "Nearly every Southern congressman is a Mason." No wonder a civil war was hatched. Both Jews and Roman Catholics have tried to exterminate Christianity and enforce obedience to their plottings, by murdering scores of thousands of reformers; and God sunk both those powerful nations into ruin and disgrace. If we continue to vote that sly dens and not Christian law shall rule us, may we not fear that God will soon sink us as low in the scale of nations as he did them? May he help us to see ourselves as he sees us, and act as his laws bid us. A future age will say of us, "What fools our forefathers were. They chartered and protected dens of conspirators, who were sworn to murder each other, if they told outsiders what their secret plottings were. And yet these fathers voted for those same conspirators to guard and protect their nation!" O, shame, where is thy blush!

I now present a national question—a deep and vital one, to wit: If five thousand secret dens, in which weekly drills are held, are spread all over a nation, and each member in those dens is sworn to keep all their intrigues, plots and conspiracies a profound secret from the civil authorities, on penalty of having his throat cut, his tongue torn out, his vitals thrown to the vultures, his bowels burned and his brains broiled—all of which penalties are only to begin with, as thousands have already testified—then, I ask, are such members free agents! Are they not, rather, servile slaves? Can such bandits be safe law-makers or impartial judges? Would not such judges decide, like our late Judge Taney, who said that four millions of our own people "have no rights that a white man is bound to respect?" Another supreme judge, if a Mason, may decide that no man without a sheepskin apron has any rights that the court is bound to respect. Such a decision of this judge would be just as wise as was that of Taney.

God help us to see ourselves as he sees us before he sends another national scourge to open our eyes. If we persist in voting for conspirators hatched in oath-bound dens, to make or to administer our laws, then another war, or something worse, will inevitably follow. But if, when voting, we call on God and conscience to see us and guide us, it will from "monie a blunder free us." Our law now charters groggeries, and the spewing of the resulting drunkard shows us just how that law looks to a thinking man. The secret inquisitions of the Pope caused the nefarious murder of legions of Christ's true disciples. If that was wrong, is it now safe for us to sustain five hundred thousand such secret organizations here? Those of Rome sent out emissaries to destroy all opponents, and these of ours would stab a free man if he should enter their sly haunts unbidden.

If the President of our States, when a Mason, is bound to obey their every order, "given, handed, sent or thrown" on penalty of having his throat cut, his bowels burned, and so on and on to the end of the chapter, can we, I ask, any longer vote such stealthy inquisitors into civil offices and not endanger our nation and sin against God and our own souls?

The above is offered that we may try to see ourselves as God sees us, and guide our acts accordingly.

Leipsic.

Its Inhabitants—Book trade—Care of Strangers—The Old City and the New—Churches—American Chapels—Theological Students, and Sunday-Schools.

What about Leipsic? It is situated about 100 miles south and a little west of Berlin, is the second commercial town in all Germany, (Hamburg being the first) and contains, according to the guide-book 107,575 inhabitants. It is the center of the German book trade, having almost innumerable book stores and publishing houses. It is situated in the little kingdom of Saxony, which, though a dependent of the empire, still has its little king, who holds his court in Dresden. Of the city government I cannot write, except that they take very good care of strangers. Our land-lady, on our arrival, had to send our names, ages, and nationality to the police bureau, and we were a little startled a few evenings after, to have a helmeted policeman ushered into our rooms with a warning to appear at the police station within twenty-four hours, but it was only to pay them a sum of about fifteen cents, and get a card which I am commanded to always carry about me, show to the police whenever required, (I suppose that would be when I am engaged in a street fight or some such business) and if we change our boarding place or leave town we must go and get another, or, in the latter case, give up the one we have. A similar card is issued by the University to all the students, for they are not under city government, and if a student does anything unlawful a policeman can only hold him until he can give him into the charge of a University beadle. If found guilty by the University court he is confined in the University prison.

The old city has narrow, short, crooked streets, and high houses, some of whose steep roofs have two, three, or even four rows of little windows one above another. Where were once the walls and fortifications of the city is now a broad promenade, with flower-beds, trees, swan ponds, and small monuments here and there. The swan pond is now a skating rink which seems to be well patronized, especially on Sunday. One can walk around the promenade in about half an hour, so you can judge that the old city does not occupy very much space. Most of the business places are in the old city; little shops some of them hardly as large as good sized closets. Around the promenade in every direction, the new city extends. Some parts of it are quite pleasant; but others are dark and dirty as in the old city.

There are quite a number of churches in Leipsic. One (only) large Catholic, and a number of Protestant; but none of them that I have yet seen are more cheerful and pleasant than large barns. Pastor Ahfield, of one of the largest Protestant churches, seems to be a very good and earnest Christian. The others whom we have heard do not generally seem as spiritual as he.

The American chapel is not a building. I do not know as it is anything but a name. Mr. Curtis, the pastor who has been studying in Germany (with his family) for a number of years, in the fall of '73, started prayer-meetings at his home, and as they were well-attended, and as there are a large number of young ministers and theological students here they proposed to have a Sabbath service, which began the first Sunday in January, '74, and has continued with no interruption since. The pastor rarely preaches; we have heard him but once. We usually hear theological students. I do not think they are much smarter or any more pious than those who fill our seminaries in America. I fear that by them no aggressive work is done.

There is quite a large and interesting Sunday-school, (only one in the city) there is another in the suburbs, which we attend quite often. The children are very attentive, and seem to get much good instruction.

I don't know but you will form a bad opinion of the ministers here from what I write. Some of them seem to be very good, and we hear some excellent sermons; most of them seem to be the kind of folks who would like to become D. D's. None of them earnest men of the missionary stamp. J. W. F.

P. S. The only other American Chapels in Germany I believe, are in Berlin and Dresden. There are some in Paris, in Rome, and other Italian cities. Some of them are mission stations. There is a German Home Mission in Leipsic which seems to do much good.

Is Christ Denied?

In a late number of the Christian Instructor, Philadelphia, the editor ably defends this expression published in the paper a few weeks before: "Every member of a secret order officially—that is deliberately—denies Christ and his atoning sacrifice." The following paragraphs are earnest and of no "uncertain sound:"

And yet members tell us these secret orders are better than the church. Many of them say the lodge is non-sectarian and safer to trust, and they give the lodge the preference. They boast, too, that if they do all the order requires of them, and act up to its teachings, heaven, or, they phrase it, "the Grand Lodge above," is sure. "Do all"—that is just the terms of the old broken covenant of works—"do and live"—and the lodge's covenant, for all who trust in it, will just as utterly fail them as did the Adamic. Be astonished, O ye heavens, that Christian men can fellowship such! Even if they do not themselves believe in the saving power of Odd-fellowship, are they not very guilty when, by their support, they lead the more ignorant and thoughtless to mistake the religion of the "natural man" for that of Christ?

We doubt not some good Christian men unwittingly join them; but it is the experience of pastors—a very startling one—that when applicants for membership are shown the evils of these secret orders, and the dishonor done to Him whom God has exalted and given a name above every other name, the child of God holds fast to the church while nominal professors mostly prefer the lodge. Only the sheep know the shepherd's voice.

"Believe it to be true!" How could we doubt? What! can our friend imagine for a moment that the everlasting God would have devised the wonderful plan of redemption, watched with deepest interest its development down all through the ages until "the fullness of time," have again and again glorified Christ, permitted him to suffer hunger, thirst, weariness, shame and spitting, and an ignominious death, all for naught! Set the work of six thousand years aside, ignore it all, that a few "foolish" men might get to the "celestial city" without passing through the "wicket gate!" Impossible! God never works in vain—never changes. Sooner shall heaven and earth pass away, and they will, than one jot or tittle of God's purpose, either of mercy or judgment, fail.

Are They Dunces?

I used to have an impression that Congregational ministers, like some of the rest of us, did not deserve the ridicule with which the vicious daily press assails their "sacred rhetoric in regard to religious subjects," but if the council called by Henry Ward Beecher and his church is held, every man who attends will deserve the sobriquet of preaching dunce—if nothing worse.

A council of the wise and reverend men of the denomination is called to determine whether Plymouth Church did right or wrong in dropping a member without trial, who accuses her pastor of confessing, to her, "adultery with a member of his own church," and now, likewise, with the crime of perjury. Some of the first names on the roll of the proposed court are of those who have publicly spoken in behalf of Beecher or against his accusers since the charges against him have been presented, and during his varied and persistent efforts to avoid an investigation of the case. Now half a hundred Congregational ministers are called to aid in turning public attention from the alleged crimes of Beecher to the question whether a woman who publicly charges her pastor with adultery and perjury ought to be dismissed without a hearing and without trial—a hundred grave and reverent men to act in such a transparent feint! The scheme might be considered cunning if it were not so supremely ridiculous.

Did the world ever hear before of a man accused of perjury in its most terrible form—a form in which those who were the culprit's best friends are made to suffer in character and means—that such a man was able, by side issues of the most trivial kind, to avoid trial on the questions that relate to the alleged crimes with which he stands charged.

And now many Congregational ministers, some of whom are esteemed men of good sense, are asked to aid a man accused of the foulest adultery and the most criminal perjury, to escape a trial on the question of his personal guilt.

We doubt whether any one will be willing to attend this council. We shall, at any rate, learn who are willing to hold up Mrs. Moulton (a woman against whom there is not a whisper of suspicion, except by the accused,) to shield a man charged under oath with adultery and perjury. Who will be used to cry "stop, thief" to the innocent in order to turn attention from the guilty?

Authority for the Christian Sabbath.

A SERMON BY THE REV. A. M. MILLIGAN, OF THE REFORMED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, PITTSBURGH.

TEXT.—Heb. iv. 9. "There remaineth therefore a rest (original—keeping of a Sabbath) to the people of God."

The question before us has evoked considerable discussion and demands a careful, candid investigation. Conscientious men desire to know whether or not God requires of them the setting apart to his service one-seventh part of their time. I invite you to a calm, unprejudiced examination of the question. Is there authority for the Christian Sabbath? Three points demand investigation:

I. Was the original institution of the Sabbath, Jewish and temporary, or was it universal and permanent?

II. Did Christ abrogate the law of the Sabbath?

III. Is there authority for the change from the seventh to first day of the week?

I. The original Sabbath was a universal and permanent institution, and not Jewish. This is manifest from the fact that it was instituted twenty-five hundred years before the constitution of the Jewish Commonwealth, and two thousand years before the days of Abraham. It was instituted at the close of creation. As soon as the primogenitor of our race was created, God gave him a Sabbath. Adam was the last of creation work, formed near the close of the sixth day. The first day that he ever spent on earth was the Sabbath. "God rested on the seventh day from all his work which he had made, and God blessed the seventh day and sanctified it." That is, God set apart the day to holy rest, and constituted it a blessing to the human race. Genesis ii. 2. It was given to man in his state of perfection before he had fallen, when his work was a pleasure, and his communion with God was complete. It was given to him as the first law of his life, to remind him that God created him, and to teach him that his first duty was to God. If man in his state of innocence and perfection needed a Sabbath, how much more in his fallen condition, when doomed to a life of toil, and to eat his bread in the sweat of his brow? And even in New Testament times there is nothing to indicate that his need of a day of rest and communion with God has ceased.

Again, the Sabbath was recognized when the manna was given, three months before the giving of the law, Ex. xvi. 23. During the week the people gathered an omer of manna for every person, and if any of it were left till the following day it bred worms and stank; but on the sixth day they gathered twice as much, and laid it up till the morning, and it did not stink, neither was there any worms therein; and Moses said "Eat that to-day—for to-day is a Sabbath unto the Lord—to-day ye shall not find it in the fields."

Here is a recognition of the Sabbath and its observance by the people of God three months before the Fourth Commandment was thundered from Sinai or written upon the table of stone, clearly indicating that from its first institution it had remained an ordinance recognized of God and observed by his people even until within three months of the time when the church was reconstituted and her ordinances permanently recorded among the people of Israel.

Again, the word "Remember" placed at the beginning of the Fourth Commandment, intimates that the Sabbath had been previously given, and that this was a renewal of an old law with which they had been previously acquainted, and that its obligation rested not so much on its present promulgation as upon its previous institution.

Had the holy man who lived in the ages preceding the times of Moses and the giving of the law, no Sabbath? Abel offered acceptable sacrifice, and obtained the witness of God that he was righteous. Enoch walked with God, and was translated to heaven that he should not see death. Noah by faith builded an ark and saved his family from the fate of a drowning world; and Abraham, the father of the faithful, and Job, the perfect man of Uz, had they no Sabbath? None, if the Sabbath is merely a Jewish institution, as they all lived before the giving of the law.

But we have ample testimony that not only the line of faithful men whose names are handed down with honor in the pages of inspiration, but even the heathen and idolatrous nations of their times, not only divided their time into weeks, but also observed the seventh day of the week as sacred time. Clement of Alexandria says, "Not only the Hebrews but also the Greeks recognized the seventh day as holy." Hesiod and Homer call the seventh day a sacred day. Philo calls it "The popular feast pertaining to all nations." Josephus says there is no state either of the Greeks or barbarians, nor of any nation, to which the Sabbath on which we rest has not come down by a like custom.

I trust that I have succeeded in showing that the institution of the Sabbath is as old as creation; that it was known and observed by the people of God before the giving of the law, as well as recognized and observed by all nations as a sacred day and a popular festival, and consequently, that it is in no proper sense a Jewish Sabbath.

I proceed now to show that, although it was given to the Jews, it was not merely as a ceremonial or Jewish institution, but as a natural and permanent one. It was no part of the "Jewish ritual." The Jewish church had a ritual, or ceremonial law, which directed their religious services, their sacrifices, their washings, their feast days, and the manner of their observance. So the Jewish nation had a judicial law, which, in many respects, was peculiar to them as a people—such as the distinctions between Jews and Gentiles, the law of the Levirate and laws typical of the future reign of Christ. These, so far as they were Jewish, typical and shadowy, have passed away with that dispensation. These laws, from their typical and shadowy nature, indicated their own temporary character, and passed away when the antetype appeared. But the law of the fourth commandment is not in either of these categories. Neither the judicial nor the ceremonial was thundered from Sinai nor written on tables of stone, but the moral law was both. It was uttered by the voice of the Almighty amid the roar of the thunder and the blast of the trumpet, the flash of the lightning and the shock of the earthquake to impress us with its majesty and authority, and it was written, not with the point of the diamond, but with the finger of God in the rocky tablet, to indicate its perpetuity. In the very center and heart of this moral decalogue stands the fourth commandment, the keystone of the moral arch. Every one of these precepts has its authority in the very nature of God, and its necessity in the nature of man. The tables on which this law were first written were broken by Moses, when he saw the golden calf, to show that the law as a covenant of works is broken and unable to secure to us eternal life by reason of sin. But the same law was renewed on other tables, and preserved in the ark under the mercy seat as a rule of life in the hands of the Mediator. So that, although the law of the Sabbath was given to the Jews, it was not as a part of the typical, shadowy and temporary dispensation committed to them, but as a manifestation to that people and to us of the moral law of God, like himself eternal and unchangeable.

II. Did Christ abrogate the law of the Sabbath? To this question it might be a sufficient reply to quote the words of Christ: "Think not that I am come to destroy the law. I came not to destroy, but to fulfil." But certain acts of Christ were charged by the Jews as violations of the Sabbath, and his justification of himself has been construed by parties of our times as an abrogation of the law of the Sabbath, or a relaxing of the rigor of its obligation. Let us examine these acts and his justification of them. He restored the withered hand. He released the daughter of Abraham whom Satan had bound eighteen years, and did other miracles of healing on the Sabbath, and he justified the act of his hungry disciples, in plucking and eating corn on the Sabbath. How did he justify these acts? Did he say the law was unjust, cruel or wrong? Not a word or hint of the kind; but he goes back to the most eminent interpreters and faithful observers of the law, and quotes their interpretation of the law by their practice. David, the man after God's own heart, when hungry, ate shew-bread; and the priests, offering sacrifices and circumcising children, profane the Sabbath and are blameless, and quotes the Prophet, "I will have mercy and not sacrifice." He shows from universal practice, that it was understood to be no violation of the law to loose an ox or an ass, or to lead them to water, or to extricate them from a pit, how much less to loose a daughter of Abraham from Satan's bonds. In other words, he shows that his conduct was in perfect acord with the practice of the best men, and justified by the highest precedent, and argues that if temple service justified labor done on the Sabbath, how much more the works of Him who is greater than the temple, and then adds, "the Son of Man is Lord also of the Sabbath;" as if to say, do not I, who instituted the Sabbath, know what is proper to its right observance and am I likely to violate my own ordinance? In short, neither by word nor act, does he diminish aught of the sanctity of the Sabbath, but only sweeps away the false gloss that had been put upon it by Pharisaic hypocrisy, and then declared that "the Sabbath was made for man." That is, in its original appointment the Sabbath was a gracious and benificent institution, intended for the well-being of the human race, and that it was a perversion to make it an engine for the infliction or continuance of misery or suffering. Christ's words and acts are the most perfect illustration of the original intention and observance of the Sabbath, and instead of abrogating or relaxing the law of the Sabbath, give it the highest sanction and confirmation.

3. Is there authority for the change of the Sabbath from the seventh day of the week to the first? I remark, in the first place, that the change of the day does not in the least effect the moral principle enunciated in the fourth commandment, which is that one-seventh part of time is to be consecrated to the Lord. The change never left a week without a Sabbath, nor did it give to any week two Sabbaths. Besides, it is impossible, in the nature of things, that all parts of the earth should observe the Sabbath at precisely the same period of time. For instance, when it is twelve o'clock here, it is 12-36 in Boston, 11-39 in St. Louis and 5 P. M. in Liverpool; and when it is mid-day here, it is midnight in China. If you start here and pass eastward around the globe, you lose a day; or go westward, and you gain one. So that it is evident that it is not the absolute time that is intended in the fourth commandment so much as the proportions. Moreover, the very language of the fourth commandment provides for the change of the time without the violation of the letter of the law. It is not remember the seventh day, but remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy. It is not—the first six days of the week thou shalt labor and the seventh day of of the week thou shalt rest; but—"six days thou shalt labor, but the seventh day is the Sabbath." And again, "for in six days God made the heavens and earth and rested the seventh; wherefore the Lord blessed"—(not the seventh—but) "the Sabbath day and hallowed it." So that the Christian who labors the last six days of the week, and rests the first, is really fulfilling, not only the spirit but also the letter of the fourth commandment.

Still I confess that at the first institution of the Sabbath it was the seventh day that was appointed by the divine arrangement, and that the change must, to be effectual, be also by the same divine authority. Still the particular day of the week is not, like the seventh part of time, a part of the moral natural law, but only positive and ceremonial, and hence can be changed without the violation of any natural law; and I may add that, while the original Sabbath was the seventh day of creation, it was really the first day of man's existence—so that is really as natural to man to begin his week with God as to end it with him.

But the question returns, is there clear and explicit authority for the change of the day? I answer that my text and its connexion is such authority. In this fourth chapter of Hebrews the Apostle warns the Jews to beware lest a promise being left of entering into his (Christ's) rest, any of them should seem to come short of it. For we which have believed do enter into rest, and then he enumerates two rests—namely the seventh day—and again the entrance into Canaan; but it is to neither of these he refers. He then quotes David, from the ninety-fifth Psalm, who after so long a time (many years after the time of Joshua and the entrance into Canaan), limits a certain day and says, "to-day if ye will hear his voice," and then adds: For if Jesus (Joshua) had given them rest, then David so long afterward would not have spoken of another day; and then comes his conclusion, in the words of my text: "There remaineth, therefore, a (Sabbatismos) keeping of a Sabbath to the people of God." That is, there is a Sabbath predicted which is not the seventh day, not Canaan, but it is the day in which Christ ended his labor and entered into his rest—namely, the Christian Sabbath. Here the Apostle institutes a parallel between the old creation and the new. When God had finished Creation he rested, and the day was observed as the Sabbath. So when Christ had finished the new creation, he rested from his works as God did from his; and it follows that this also is a Sabbath; ("for the Son of Man is Lord also of the Sabbath.") And then the Apostle adds (xi. 5.): "Let us labor, therefore, to enter into that rest, lest any man fall after the same example of unbelief"—(margin) disobedience.

The interpretation which I have given of this passage, has the high authority of at least two of the most eminent theologians, John Owen and Francis Turretin; and, I may add it is found in the very place where the authority for the change of the Sabbath would naturally be looked for, in the book written by the apostle to induce the Hebrews to accept Christian in the place of Mosaic institutions.

I will only add to this argument, and to the facts to which the apostle alludes, that nearly all the times which Christ met with his disciples, after his resurrection, were on the first day of the week, and that it was on this day of the week that the pentecostal effusion of the Spirit was given, when they were all with one consent in one place engaged in prayer.

2. My second argument for the change of the Sabbath is, that on the first day of the week the disciples came together to break bread and preach the Gospel, Acts, xx. 7. When they wished to meet the Jews, and labor for their conversion, they went to their synagogues, and went on the seventh day, as that was the day they would find them assembled; but when they met to enjoy their own ordinances together, namely, the preaching of the Word and administration of the Lord's Supper, it was on the first day of the week—the day that Christ rested, and the day he met with his disciples.

3. My third argument is that on this day Paul directed the Galatians and the Corinthians to make collections for the saints. 1 Cor. xvi. 1,2. "Now concerning the collections for the saints, as I have given order to the churches of Galatia, so also do ye, upon the first day of the week, let every one of you lay by him in store as as God has prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come." It was the custom of the Jews to take up their collections in the synagogues every Sabbath. Paul directs the Christians of Galatia and Corinth to take up their collections on their Sabbath, and in connection with their religious exercises.

4. My last argument is the declaration of John, Rev. i. 10. "I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day."

This term was never used to designate the seventh day of the week. It evidently refers to the day in which the Lord arose from the dead, appeared to his disciples, and poured out his Spirit, and the day on which his disciples met to hear the word and enjoy the communion, and on which Paul directed collections to be taken, and which he calls "the Sabbath that remains to the people of God." On that day in the lonely isle of Patmos, the banished but beloved disciple John was "in the Spirit," saw wonderful visions, in which the future of the church was spread out before him as in a panoramic picture, and angels interpreted to him the visions.

Thus we have the first day of the week predicted by David as the Christian's Sabbath; the prediction interpreted by an apostle as pointing to that day of rest. We have the day used especially for the dispensation of Gospel ordinances, and set apart for the service of taking collections for religious purposes, and we have it designated by the Apostle John as "the Lord's day," which comprehends all that was intended in the original institution of the Sabbath. And I may add that it has been accepted by the whole Christian world as the Christian Sabbath.

The position taken by a writer in a daily paper, that all law is abolished because we are not under the law but under grace, is so absurd that it refutes itself. If there be no law there is no transgression—no sin. Then it is not wrong to steal, murder, or lie, any more than it is to violate the Sabbath. The meaning of the Apostle evidently is, not that there is no law, but that our salvation is not dependent upon our fulfillment of the law, but upon the gracious pardon of Christ.

Reform News and Notices.

—The General Agent returned from the Wisconsin Convention with a valuable addition of over $500 to the Publishing House fund. He attended the Directors' meeting, and has now journeyed toward Ohio, from whence come the most urgent calls for lectures, although friends in Iowa and Missouri are urgent. He may be able to visit them next month.

—Prof. Kimball, New Hampshire State lecturer, has prepared a tract for circulation in New England, which he thinks will reach and influence the people among the granite hills.

—Bro. Raynor, of Pennsylvania, has also a document of considerable value to agents and lecturers, which may appear in the Cynosure and tract form.

—Mr. Ronayne visited Lockport, N. Y., and Rochester, the present week. On the evenings of Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week, he opens the lodge at Syracuse where letters will reach him up to the 25th. He expects to visit northeastern Pennsylvania and return, speaking through Ohio and Indiana as opportunity may be given. Friends in Medina county, O., are arranging for a series of meetings, and the State meeting at Westerville comes soon.

Ohio State Anniversary.

[We publish again the notice from the President.]

There will be a Convention of the friends of anti-secretism at Westerville, near Columbus, O., March 8th, 1876.

A cordial invitation is hereby tendered to all the friends of the cause in Ohio, and all others who choose to be present. We hope to see a rousing convention. Let every auxiliary association, every church favorable, and every neighborhood where half a dozen friends reside, see to it that one or more be appointed representatives to the Convention, and all join in defraying the expenses of the delegates. Let this arrangement be made in time so that every locality of friends in Ohio may be represented.

We have a great enemy to contend with, the stronger and more formidable because it is secret. But with Him upon our side, who "in secret said nothing," with His all-powerful grace promised, and prayer as a means of obtaining, the victory must be ours ere long.

Every anti-secret friend in the State ought to feel that on him rests a measure of the responsibility in making this a Convention that will have a telling effect upon the ranks of the enemy.

H. H. George, Pres't of this State Association.

How to Work in Michigan.

Are our Anti-masonic friends in Michigan awake to the importance of the work of shedding light on Masonry, etc. We have engaged a State Lecturer whose reputation as a man and as a speaker is well known to the readers of the Cynosure; and he is already in the field; has done some work, and is ready for more. Will not those who are interested better themselves so far as to inform the Agent where lectures are wanted, so that he may know how to arrange the work for the lecturer? The present apathy on this matter is more encouraging to the friends of secrecy than to us. It would greatly facilitate our plans if friends would write us immediately. Will the friends in Van Buren, St. Joseph, Allegan, Berrien and Branch counties let us hear from them at once. Not only these, but others anywhere in the State. Let us have an avalanche of calls. The lecturer desires to speak twice in each place. Direct to C. B. Remington, Fenton, Genesee Co., Mich.

The Wisconsin State Convention.—Secretary's Report.

The State Christian Association of Wisconsin met February 2nd at Sugar Creek; closed its session Feb. 3rd. Bros. Stoddard and Ronayne were with us. In the absence of President and Secretary, Bro. Harris was chosen President, and L. Hand, Secretary pro tem. Most of the forenoon session was spent in beseeching God to overrule the Convention to man's good and his glory. Our prayers were answered, many felt it was good to be there. From first to last the convention was a success. When you pass a man on the street on the public highway without molesting him you can pass on; but if you step on his toe a disturbance takes place immediately. So with the craft. Their god was spoken against; by them Ronayne is said to be a swindle, humbug, etc. A being in the form of a man appears in Elkhorn and says that he is a member of Keystone lodge, and that they know no such a man. An undisturbed hornet's nest is comparatively quiet, disturb it and then see and perhaps feel.

In the afternoon of the first day, officers were chosen for the year; for President, J. W. Wood of Baraboo.

Vice-presidents: Elder E. L. Harris, Delavan; Thomas Davis, Millard.

Secretary, U. D. Lathrop, Millard.

Treasurer, Joshua Parrish, Delavan.

State agency was left in the hands of the official board. Russel Waite, M. R. Britten, Thomas Davis, A. C. Jennings, J. W. Snidter, and H. W. Clark, were appointed Committee on finance.

Dear brethren of said committee, the official board cannot be expected to employ a man to lecture in our State unless they have something to offer him. Will you therefore ask God if it is not your duty to bestir yourselves in this direction. We need a man in the field discussing the subject of secrecy, thereby awakening the people to the realities of the day in which they live. The Association passed a resolution expressive of thanks to the people who so kindly provided entertainment, and to the speakers; for truly the remarks of brethren Stoddard and Ronayne were pointed and powerful. A desire to please their Master (Christ), and thereby do good, pervaded their efforts among us. Men of candor were convinced that they knew what they were talking about; especially was this true of the exercises conducted by Bro. Ronayne, wherein a man was made over into a Mason. They struck a blow for God and truth, the good effects of which the devil will fail to destroy. May God bless them.

The Association also passed other resolutions, as follows:

Resolved, that we commend the Christian Cynosure as an able and efficient agency in our reform work and that we commend it to the friends of our cause throughout the State and that we pledge ourselves to co-operate in increasing its influence and extending its circulation; also

Resolved, that we commend to the friends the of anti-secret reform in Wisconsin the munificent offer of Messrs. Carpenter and Leuty to secure our cause a house and headquarters in Chicago, and we earnestly request them to aid in securing this gift so far as their circumstances will permit.

Also, Whereas, Freemasonry and kindred organizations, guarded by secret signs, pass-words and obligations, having their sacred songs, prayers, religious exercises, burial services, thereby constituting them religious organizations, and all of them to a greater or less degree rejecting the mediatorial offer of Jesus Christ; therefore,

Be it resolved, by us in Christian Convention assembled, that these forms of worship are pagan in their nature, anti-Christian in practice, and should be opposed by all Christian people.

These resolutions speak for themselves and need no comments. There were four hundred and fifteen dollars raised by the Association for the Carpenter Fund, and something over thirty dollars for expenses.

U. D. Lathrop, Secretary.

Work in Vigo County, Ind. The M. E. Book of Discipline Routs the Lodge.

My work in Vigo, had I reported it in its regular order, would have been mentioned in my letters from Pekin and Bloomingdale.

I went from the latter place to Terre Haute, the county seat of Vigo county, where I put up with Perley Mitchell, one of your "old line Anti-masons." He kindly entertained me as often as I passed through and stopped in the city, while in the county. I drove out to Sanford Station, some eight miles west of T——, where I found Rev. J. M. Farley (M. E.) waiting, and with him went to the U. B. church, some two miles in the country, where a good audience was already in waiting. I spoke here three evenings and preached on Sunday at 10 A. M.

Here I met Rev. Ransom Clark, of the U. B. church, who kindly took my horse and kept it till my return from the south part of the State. When I returned, arrangements had been made for me to speak at New Goshen, in the U. B. church. I spoke three evenings on Masonry, and then went to Sanford, where Dr. Farley had finally succeeded in gaining permission for me to preach in the M. E. church, in which, but a short time previous, a "grand" Masonic something or other was held, in which the pastor participated with his "bib" on. But now when Bro. Farley, a licensed preacher, backed by many of the good brethren, demanded the use of the house for a hearing on the other side of the question, they utterly refused, but consented that I might preach in it. However, when the pastor was to announce my appointment, he so twisted and equivocated that the friends changed it to the schoolhouse. The M. E. preacher had the meanness to come out to hear me, after having virtually closed the doors of his church against me.

Arrangements having been made for me to lecture in the schoolhouse on Monday and Tuesday evenings, and at the M. E. church south of town, served by the same pastor, on Wednesday evening, accordingly I announced, at the close of my discourse, that on the next evening I should show that the worship of the Masonic order was devil worship, and that all who practice it are devil-worshipers; and, further, that I should prove, by the book of Discipline, that every member of the M. E. church who belonged to the Masonic order was living in violation of his church law; and that every minister who does not preach against Masonry violates his ordination vow. This announcement had the designed effect, and on the following evening the room was crowded. The M. E. brethren, of course, came out, and I took my position on the Bible and the Discipline, to defend them against the lodge. When I was through, they gathered round me, and the hearty hand-shaking I received from those true Methodists, and the God-speeds they gave, were very encouraging, indeed. Some who were accustomed to give largely to the church, said; "I have given my last money to support Masonic preachers." Here, as elsewhere, some said they had intended to join the lodge, but should now never do so. All these meetings were well attended. Brother and Sister Farley are especially entitled to my thanks for their kindness to me and for their interest in this good cause. I next went to New Goshen, where Rev. Ross, of Westfield, the U. B. pastor, was holding a series of meetings. I was invited to preach, which I did three times during my stay, and a number were forward at the altar each evening.

On Monday I went on my way, and stopped at Bloomingdale, after having driven my horse thirty miles through the mud. Brother Tomlinson kindly took me in, and we attended the "general meeting," then in progress among the Friends. I listened to a very interesting discourse from Robert Douglass, and another from friend Hubbard, both well-known ministers of the Friends church. More than a score arose for prayer; some came forward to the "anxious seat," were talked to and prayed for, and the presence of the Master of assemblies was felt. Thus, here, as at New Goshen, God has shown his readiness to bless a people who dare to maintain the truth of the gospel against the frauds of Satan.

John T. Kiggins.

The Illinois Agent in Warren and Mercer Counties.

Dear Bro. K:—Since I last wrote you I have spoken once in the Cedar Creek U. P. church in Warren county, and twice in the U. P. church at Little York to good congregations. It was here where Brownlee was doubtless murdered for revealing the secrets of Masonry. Several of his family live in the vicinity and are deeply interested in our reform. A general conviction prevails that Brownlee was murdered by Masons. I failed to meet an appointment at the Smith Creek U. P. church on account of a violent storm and impossibility to get a conveyance. Its worthy pastor, Rev. Wilkins, however needs no assistance in teaching sound doctrine on this subject.

From Little York I came by stage to Aledo the county seat of Mercer county. Here I was kindly received and entertained by the pastor of the U. P. church, Rev. Turnbull, who invited me to occupy a part of the time of their church prayer-meeting in a brief presentation of this subject. I also attended a meeting of the pastors of the city at which we had a long and animated discussion of the merits of Freemasonry, one of the craft defending the institution. I stopped near Viola with our steadfast friend and lecturer, J. C. Graham, and spoke twice in the Wesleyan church. I also spoke to a full house in the U. P. church in Viola. I was listened to with fixed attention and warmly endorsed by the pastor, Rev. McClanahan.

From here I went back to Aledo when I spoke in a hall. The attendance was good and many of the craft were present. I am sorry to say that they had not learned "to subdue their passions" but boiled over with wrath. My theme was "Masonry Self-condemned," and as it was difficult to refute their own authorities there was nothing left for them but anger and abuse, I am satisfied that it is not the manner in which we present this subject that so excites the wrath of the fraternity. I took—as I always do—great pains to be kind and conciliatory. It is the truth that hurts just as truly now as when the mob at Ephesus shouted, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians," but then truth is mighty and it will prevail. Yours in the Lord,

H. H. Hinman.

A Good and Urgent Letter on Lectures and Politics.

Springerton, Ill., Jan. 21, 1876.

Dear Cynosure:—Ronayne's "Freemasonry at a Glance" in chart form and on a large scale would be a most useful help for all Anti-masons. I would like to have one in a conspicuous place in our humble little church, one for the eyes of my audiences when I go lecturing and one prominently suspended within our domicil. No highly-polished, small-lettered charts are useful for such purposes. As soon as we balance up from our almost total failure of crops we will be on hands promptly to render what assistance we can in the good work both by material aid and otherwise.

There should be something more done here in the lecture work and that right soon; we should organize. If south-eastern Illinois could be seen after now soon, our nominees would receive a good vote. I hope to unfurl a banner for them. "Whatsoever you ask in my name I will give it you." In the name of the Lord Jesus Christ let us ask for rulers who are free from secret, selfish clans. Our political department is likely to move too slow. There are men everywhere that would fall in with us now. There are many that know nothing of our glorious movement. Let us herald it forth quickly "e'er it be too late." Our platform and our nominees will not, at our present rate of movement have their claims presented to one-half of our voting population; and if not, of course they cannot be elected, while right principles with prompt action on our part, carried out and finished up, is nothing less than victory.

Lectures only increase the demand for lectures, so it is if we had ten times as many we would not have enough. Come to the front, brothers, let us thoroughly work up this matter, "forget not to communicate." Let us exchange labors; do anything to hurry up the work. "Lord thy servant heareth." "Command and I will obey."

James Springer.

The Centennial.

Mr. Editor.—I see that the friends of the Temperance reform are to have some sort of a representation of their literature, and the history and aims of their movement at the Centennial Exposition. The Masons are likewise to be there in their regalia, and have a grand pow-wow, with Masons from abroad, at their new Masonic temple in Philadelphia.

Now, cannot the Anti-masonic movement, its literature and principles—be represented in some way upon the Centennial grounds? Can we not have a printing press actually printing and distributing some of our best tracts—the "Opinions of Eminent Men," for instance—in regard to the indecent, immoral and anti-Christian character of the Masonic institution? The Scotch Covenanter and Seceder churches, the Quakers and the United Brethren are strong in Pennsylvania; cannot some effort be made to present through them our reform with that of Temperance and other benevolent associations at the great World's Exposition? X. Y.

The Oath and its Sanctity.

An oath is a pledge of honor or a promise uttered with solemn reference to the presence of God as witness or judge, with or without imprecations of penalty. Then can any one that understands the nature of an oath trifle with it? If so, we must conclude at once that they do not reverence or fear God, and of course all is wrong; they are walking in the broad road, and have not entered the straight gate; and unless they repent, and break off their sins by righteousness they are lost. Now can any one say a sinner ought not to repent? Because he is in the broad road, would it be wrong for him to turn and enter the narrow path? No, indeed! Then if a person either ignorantly or wickedly has taken an oath that will result in great injury to himself or others, is it not a plain fact that they ought to repent, cease to do evil and learn to do well? The oaths administered to the candidate are profane, blasphemous, the penalties barphemous and cruel, and the whole affair from beginning to end is irreverent to God, unjust to man, demoralizing to character, and pours contempt on the Bible. So any one can see that a Mason is not perjured, nor unfit to be believed because he repents and breaks such an oath. And why? For three reasons: 1. It was fraudulently obtained on false assurances. 2. It was extra-judicial, i. e. was not authorized by God or government. 3. The thing vowed was wrong and should be repented of, and disregarded constantly ever after. S. B. A.

That Batavia Post-master.—Pray right and Vote right.

BATAVIA, N. Y., February 4, 1876.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—The weekly arrival of the Cynosure is hailed by our little band with delight. When can the extent and limits of the power of the devil be known in our midst? I pray God that we may strike bottom soon. Secretism reigns supreme in this community, although the good words of brother Ronayne were not wholly cast away as pearls before swine. Many earnest men are inquiring, "Can Freemasonry work such evil?" I always reply, "More than you can think."

Lodgeism seems to pervade the atmosphere of this place like the poisonous exhalations of a decaying garbage heap. The Knights Templar planned a street parade here a fortnight since, with their pomp and feathers to influence our rising young men. But a watchful providence by the severity of the weather drove them to their secret haunts.

There are rumors abroad of an organized attempt to crush the Cynosure so far at least as its influence here is concerned. The U. S. post-master seems to be bound hand and foot to Satan, and will do all in his power to prevent copies of the Cynosure from reaching the subscribers, and thus hinder the Lord's work and perpetuate deeds of darkness. He is a minion of at least two secret organizations, but God cannot suffer his cause to be crippled by such seekers after iniquity.

The M. E. church has been having a revival under the auspices of a praying band of their denomination. I fear, however, they are wolves in sheep's clothing, as a suspicious number of them are members of the lodge. I fear that a fearful day is nigh unless their power for evil be staid. Think of our young receiving spiritual instruction from men bound by such impious oaths to the propagation of cable-tow doctrines.

By the grace of God I shall vote next fall for James B. Walker and the Cynosure platform.

Faithfully yours, "OPEN-HEART."

Preacher Masons.

LELAND, Mich.

Whatever may be thought or said about Masonry for wicked men, it certainly is a system in which no minister of the Gospel or Christian should be found, (1.) because it is in violation of Scripture injunctions, "Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness," "Be ye not unequally yoked together," "Let your light shine," etc. (2.) Because it destroys the good influence of those who join this evil combination.

A case.—There lives in this county a minister who served his term as presiding elder of this district. He is a good preacher, but a Mason. Does he he have influence as a minister? He said in my house, "I have no doubt that my being a Mason has injured my influence as a minister." And I am told that his wife (a strong Anti-mason) says, "Mr. S. has never been the means of the conversion of one soul since he joined the Masons." And there is good reason to believe this statement. Another minister joined the lodge in this region and it has killed him dead as a minister. His influence for good is destroyed. And now another young minister has joined the Masons to "gain influence." We shall see. "Shall the throne of iniquity, which frameth mischief by a law, have fellowship with thee?"

GEORGE THOMPSON.

Rouse to the Work.

Editor Christian Cynosure:

My dear brethren and co-workers in this heaven-born reform of ours, I have been deeply impressed to make an appeal to all our hearts, (my own included), and ask the question through our beloved organ, the Cynosure, have we been acting consistently with our God and his Word, and ourselves? I do fear many of us, preachers not excluded, if we will be honest to stretch out the line and plummet, we will have to put our hands upon our mouths and cry out unclean, unholy. Yes, let us examine ourselves a little. We profess to know and believe that these secret orders are anti-Christian, anti-republican, opposed to justice both in church and state. In short we believe that their institutions and principles when carried out are opposed to everything that is good, and ruinous to our liberties? Yes. Very well, that is all true enough, but at the same time we fellowship and support them, indeed some of our churches boast of an anti-secret clause in their discipline, and yet they skip over that clause and fellowship those transgressors and support them.

The other day while soliciting subscribers to our paper, among those very members I was bluffed off by the following: "It will do no good. It is not worth while to bother with it. They teach one thing and do another." But hold on my brother, don't you see that it is precisely what you are doing yourself? O what inconsistency! If I have learned the main object and principles that govern the Cynosure and Free Press, it is to enlighten the minds of their readers upon this verycharacter --decision of character, and consistency.

Again, how often do we as Christians get down upon our knees before God and ask him to bless all the means now made use of for the promotion of of this most glorious reform; that he would unstop the ears of the deaf, that they may hear the sound of the alarm given: that he would open the eyes of that poor, blind candidate caught in the meshes of a Masonic lodge, seeking light and never finding it; that he, poor, miserable, blind soul, may see the deceptiveness of these institutions, and sever his connection with these deeply deceptive and dangerous associations?

Yes.

Well, my brother, that prayer is all well enough as far as it goes, but do we act in accordance with our prayers and discipline? I hold that our organs are one of the strongest and most efficient means which God in his wisdom is making use of in the promotion of this very needful reform; yes, so needful that all our future happiness depends upon the overthrow of these secret orders. Yes, all this depends upon the overthrow of one of the worst species of slavery that the devil ever invented, and a nation was ever cursed with. O come then, my dear friends, let us be consistent with ourselves, henceforth let our actions and words correspond with our resolutions and prayers, let us be heartily united in this work. O ye ministers of the cross of Christ, how is it with you? Have you been faithfully sounding the alarm from your different pulpits, or have yon been fearful and said nothing? Remember if the wicked die in their sins, their blood will I require at your hands, saith the Lord.

God grant that there may be a general awakening up in this direction! O that we could see it as we saw it in the days of slavery! Then the work would go forward. Come, friends, let us get in earnest in this matter. Strike at once at the enemy's bread and butter. Above all let us rally around our standard-bearers. See well to it, that our organs are kept in full blast and we have nothing to fear.

JOSEPH KEEL SEN.

OUR MAIL.

Franklin Pierce, Albany, Vt., writes:

"I want you to inform the readers of the Cynosure, if possible, the number that attended the Lake Village Convention in N. H., for our county paper sneeringly said there were all of five."

J. P. Stoddard, who attended this convention, says the number of delegates was small, numbering about twenty-five; but that the local attendance was large, both day and evening, averaging from one to three hundred.

John McGinnis, Princeville, Ill., writes:

"I witnessed Ronayne's expose of the Master Mason's degree in Peoria, some time since, and am satisfied it is correct. At least it is in accordance with Bernard's exposition and I have had his work for the past sixteen years."

Wm. Reed, Romeo, Mich., writes:

"There are plenty of men that are not Masons with plenty of money, but they are afraid to speak of Masonry."

Let us continue to work to change this state of affairs.

L. Raymo, Unionville, Mo., writes:

"One man, a local preacher in the M. E. church has been saved from the tyrant's grasp. He had through the influence of a Mason, a member of the M. E. church, professing holiness, concluded to join the institution. But instead of going to it he is going from it. Our pastor here, Rev. A. Orr and his wife, when I commenced to talk to them on the subject, said I was making it a hobby. I said, "Bro. Orr, I'll make you a proposition: If you will read and then act according to your best judgment, I will furnish you with books free of expense." He said he would, and now it is not I but they who are making it a "hobby." Mrs. Orr laid awake all night after reading 'Masonry a Work of Darkness." The sermon of James Williams is a tower. May God give such men great power. Others are getting their eyes opened, and now we want a lecturer and an organization."

Who can go and help them organize?

H. H. Hinman, writes from Little York, Ill.:

"I have had good audiences and meet much that is encouraging."

H. H. Shields, Rock, Ia., writes:

"I don't feel as if I could get along without the counsels of the Cynosure. Yours for the war on this line; no compromise with the devil."

"Thos. Graefe, Berlin, O., writes:

"I would cheerfully give money towards this good cause if I was able, for it is giving to the Lord. May God move in his almighty power to awaken the Christian churches to a sense of their solemn duty to God and their fellow creatures, in destroying this anti-Christ."

A. S. Bartholomew, Lima, O., writes:

"When I withdrew from the lodge and publicly announced the same to my congregation I anticipated some trouble and uncomfortable treatment, but formed no idea of the persecutions to which I would be subjected. I supposed I had a reasonable reputation for common honesty and integrity and was well respected in the community, but 'Masonic vengeance' now makes me a very bad man, and is helped by the Masonic Council District Synod. God is now shaking the General Council to its foundation, as I believe, on account of the double- dealing of its members, and especially on secretism in its District in Ohio. We, of the Synodical Conference, not only say we are against the lodge, but we act out our declaration. The General Council says she is against secretism, but will not lift her little finger. When we have trouble in our congregations on the lodge as in Lima, Council men come to the aid of the lodge calling themselves Conservative Lutherans. Has the trickery of the world been transferred into the church?

Elbert Marcy, Spotsylvania, Va., writes:

"They are nearly all secret society men here and I stand nearly alone. I think of selling out and leaving them to their own destruction. The M. E. preacher here says he once joined a lodge of Freemasons in time of war to save his life and property, and now says he is opposed to it, but dare not take a paper or book home with him to read."

Freemasonry is free only in name. In truth it is the most terrible spiritual bondage.

A friend from Woodford Co., Pa., writes:

"We have a great many Anti-masons here but they will not act. Mr. Ronayne has written to me that he will be around here about the first of April. I am glad to hear that he is so busy and is getting so many calls. It is the right way to do; just show it right up in plain terms. I expect a big meeting and exciting times when it comes off. We have a hall that will hold three or four hundred."

E. Bascom, Greensburgh, O., writes:

"What we need here is a lecturer to wake up the people."

Johnston Beattie, West Zanesville, O., writes:

"I read my paper and then give it to my neighbors. Think it is doing some good."

S. G. Wilcox, Spring Prairie, Wis., writes:

"There is a great deal of lodge influence and lodge power here. The fraternity meet over the post-office and the Post-master is a Mason. It seems sometimes as though Freemasons and their jacks would carry the day here, but thank the Lord, some are getting their eyes open. There is a stir in the tops of the mulberry trees. There has been some good seed sown here which is already bearing fruit. I had the pleasure of attending the Convention and it did my heart good to see those brave men so earnestly espouse the cause of truth and right against popular wrong. I believe that secret societies are the marks of the beast in the hand, and the Lord says, 'Come out of her, my people,' etc."

Joseph Keel, Bolivar, O., sends a new subscriber and writes:

"The above, a minister of the U. B. church, is a very quiet, intelligent, good-natured sort of a man, a good preacher and a decided Anti-mason, but, alas, like too many others, he lacks moral courage to faithfully warn his people of fellowshiping or having anything to do with these secret dens of corruption and blasphemy. To this end we make him a present of a copy of the Cynosure, hoping, trusting, praying, believing it will be the means of giving him more light upon this all-important subject."

Lewis Ketchum, Spartansburg, Pa., writes:

"I wish some tracts to distribute. I want those calculated to keep young men from joining the Masonic lodge in this place. I think Honeywell's tract is a good one."

Are all our readers doing what they can in this department of work? We have just published two new tracts, one especially designed for church members and the other, our political tract, which should be read by every voter in the United States. We hope this work of distributing tracts will be pushed vigorously forward.

James Auten, Galion, O., sends an appeal to the temperance workers as follows;

"Come ye temperance voters, come with us and we will do you good, for God hath spoken good concerning Israel. Combined we stand, divided we fall, for surely you cannot elect a President on your own hook, for when we both come to the ballot box at one time we can't vote for both in having two Presidents, but by adopting the Hon. J. B. Walker of Illinois we will be successful."

The Sabbath School.

Lesson for Feb: 27:—The Ark Brought to Zion.

SCRIPTURE.—2 Sam. vi. 1-15. Commit 6-11; Primary Verse, 11.

1 Again, David gathered together all the chosen men of Israel, thirty thousand.
2 And David arose, and went with all the people that were with him from Baale of Judah, to bring up from thence the ark of God, whose name is called by the name of the Lord of hosts that dwelleth between the cherubim.
3 And they set the ark of God upon a new cart, and brought it out of the house of Abinadab that was in Gibeah: and Uzzah and Ahio, the sons of Abinadab, drave the cart.
4 And they brought it out of the house of Abinadab which was at Gibeah, accompanying the ark of God; and Ahio went before the ark.
5 And David and all the house of Israel played before the Lord on all manner of instruments made of fir wood, even on harps, and on psalteries, and on timbrels, and on cornets, and on cymbals.
6 And when they came to Nachon's threshing-floor, Uzzah put forth his hand to the ark of God, and took hold of it; for the oxen shook it.
7 And the anger of the Lord was kindled against Uzzah, and God smote him there for his error; and there he died by the ark of God.
8 And David was displeased, because the Lord had made a breach upon Uzzah; and he called the name of the place Perez-uzzah to this day.
9 And David was afraid of the Lord that day, and said, How shall the ark of the Lord come to me?
10 So David would not remove the ark of the Lord unto him into the city of David: but David carried it aside into the house of Obed-edom the Gittite.
11 And the ark of the Lord continued in the house of Obed-edom the Gittite three months: and the Lord blessed Obed-edom, and all his household.
12 And it was told king David, saying, The Lord hath blessed the house of Obed-edom, and all that pertaineth unto him, because of the ark of God. So David went and brought up the ark of God from the house of Obed-edom into the city of David with gladness.
13 And it was so, that when they that bare the ark of the Lord had gone six paces, he sacrificed oxen and fatlings.
14 And David danced before the Lord with all his might; and David was girded with a linen ephod.
15 So David with all the house of Israel brought up the ark of the Lord with shouting, and with the sound of the trumpet.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"The Lord hath chosen Zion; he hath desired it for his habitation."—Ps. cxxxix. 13.

TOPIC.—God's presence—in the ark or in Christ—a blessing.

M. Ex. 25: 1-22. Direction for Making the Ark.
T. Num. 10: 11-36. The ark as a Guide.
W. Josh. 3: 1-17. Dividing the Waters of Jordan.
Th. Josh. 6: 1-21. Carried around Jericho.
F. 1 Sam. 4: 1-18: Captured by the Philistines.
S. 1 Sam. 5: 1-12. A Plague among them.
S. 1 Sam. 6: 1-21. The Ark Restored to its Friends.

—The family altar has taken the place of the ark. The latter was hid from sight in the Holy of holies, but where the altar is now there is God's Holy Spirit, a constant, abiding, comforting presence. No home is perfect without this altar and the comfort of the Holy Ghost. Gen. xii. 3; xviii. 19; Ex. xii. 24-27; Deut. vi. 6-9; Ps. cxlv. 18; Jer. x. 35; Matt. xv. 22; xviii. 16, 20.

—God's house is now his sanctuary, and that should be entered reverently Speech and manner there too often show that now-a-days we have too many Uzzahs who do not have reverence enough for the place devoted to God, and sanctified for his worship. Gen. xxviii. 16,17; Ex. iii. 5; Lev. xix. 30; Ps. lxxxix. 7; Eccl. v. 1; 1 Tim. iii. 15.

No matter how holy the purpose may be, all things for the Lord should be done "decently and in order." A reverent devoutness should characterise all services for him. If those who "bear the vessels of the Lord" sanctify themselves for their duty, then will God's name be held in honor. Lev. x. 3; xxii. 2; Is lxix. 3; lii. 11; 1 Cor. xiv, 40. xxxiii; 2 Cor. vi. 17; 1 Pet. ii. 5,9; Rev. v. 9,10.

Any calamity that drives us to the Word to discover wherein we have erred, will be transformed into a blessing. Ps. cxix. 67,68; xxv. 8; Jer. xxxi. 18, 19; John vi. 44,45; Heb. xii. 11.

It is no sorrowful, but a joyful thing to give God an entrance into the heart. That is a time for songs and gladness and rejoicing. Ps. v, 11; xxxii. 11; xxxv. 9; xxxvi. 8; xxxvi. 5; Eccl. xix. 6,8; Acts ii. 46,47; Phil. iv. 4.—National S. S. Teacher

Teaching the Lesson.

The successful ways of teaching any lesson are probably almost as varied as are the teachers engaged in Sunday-school work. No one method can be pointed out as adapted to all, nor that would be satisfactory to the same teacher at different times. And yet some plan, however defective, is vastly better than none. Teaching which aims at something is likely to be effective; teaching without a purpose is usually teaching without results. An English teacher of large experience recently gave the following hints on this subject to his fellow laborers:

Don't read a long passage round first. Begin by referring to the previous lesson, or introduce the subject by an illustration. 1. As to language: Be simple, and see that your words are understood. 2. As to questioning: Do no preaching. Questions are not to be cut and dried—a Sunday-school lesson is not an examination. 3. As to illustrations: Let them be simple, of every-day life, clearly put. 4. As to lessons, &c,: Let them be fresh. Some are continually giving the same thing over again. Don't lay yourselves open to such a remark as that made by a keen boy to his teacher—"You sin't going to cut down that fig-tree again, are you?" 5. As to application: It may be incidental all through; yet there should be a point to which all is made to converge. Let it be definite, practical, conversational. Question in such a manner that the scholars themselves shall apply the lesson, in this respect imitating the example of our Lord. As to the tone of the lesson, it should be bright, reverent, earnest, and it should be seen to be so.—S. S. World.

EDUCATIONAL.

—A bill has been introduced in the Ohio Legislature to permit students to vote at places where they are attending school.

—Prof. Burt G. Wilbur, Professor of Natural Sciences at Cornell University, proposes to conduct a summer school of zoology at the University, beginning July 7th, and continuing to August 17th. The course will include thirty-six daily lectures and laboratory exercises, with nine evening lectures.

—The Friends in Iowa have two institutions in their care, Penn and Whittier Colleges. The former had 274 students enrolled during the last year, the latter 186. In both students' meetings for worship are regularly maintained, with great spiritual good. New buildings are projected for both institutions.

—The Toledo Blade says that the study of any foreign language in the primary schools does detrimentally affect the English student, who must necessarily neglect the elementary branches to follow its pursuit, we firmly believe; and can furthermore testify, from personal observation, that no advantage has been gained, either by the study of the modern or classical languages, until the pupil has been well grounded in the rudiments of English.

—Popular education is steadily gaining strength in Egypt. The number of children receiving public instruction has increased from 3,000, in the time of Mohammed Ali to 60,000 in the first years of the period 1863–72. The number of scholars in the primary and preparatory schools is now 89,893, independent of higher and special instruction. This number of 89,893 in a population of 5,250,000, represents 173 scholars for every 10,009 inhabitants. Among the 89,893 scholars in the primary schools, there are only 3,018 girls, all, or most, of whom are of non-Mussulman families. The Khedive proposes to establish, at Alexandria, a great public school for children of all nationalities, at an expense of $65,000.

Miscellany.

The wealth of the United States averages $772 to each person.

The non-taxpayers of Mississippi already represent nearly one-fourth of all the property in the State.

The Portuguese Chamber of Peers has voted the abolition of slavery in St. Thomas and Gulf of Guinea.

—The African Repository states that since the close of the war 10,000 colored persons have been sent to Liberia and established there by the American Colonization Society.

Mr. Boutwell says the State of Texas could hold the population of the whole Union, even if that population were as dense as that of Massachusetts. And another estimate was that if the whole of New England were as densety populated as Massachusetts, it would have 10,000,000 inhabitants.

It is stated that the native Protestant community in Turkey numbers 23,000 persons, belonging to twelve different nationalities. Of these 19,000 are said to be connected with the American Missions, and they are described as quiet, sober, and industrious. There are 250 Protestant places of worship in the Turkish empire.

Last year when a bill was before the Illinois Assembly to exclude the Bible from the schools, the Chicago Post and Mail said: "If the general effect of reading the Bible in the schools is favorable to virtue, sobriety, honesty, obedience to law, patriotism, and the other virtues which unite to make a good citizen, the duty of the State is to see that it is read to the youth, no matter whether the immediate effect be to build up and pull down any given theological creed. For, as President Lincoln observed, 'It will not do for the Government to undertake to run the churches.'"

The mildness of the present winter suggests the following from an English paper: In 1172 the temperature was so high that leaves came out on the trees in January, and birds hatched their broods in February. In 1289 the winter was equally mild, and maidens of Cologne wore wreaths of violets and corn-flowers at Christmas and on Twelfth Day. In 1421 the trees flowered in the month of March, and the vines in the month of April. Cherries ripened in the same month and grapes in May. In 1572, the trees were covered with leaves in January, and the birds hatched their young in February, as in 1172. In 1585, the same thing was repeated, and it is added that the corn was in ear at Easter. There was in France neither snow nor frost throughout the winters of 1538, 1607, 1609, 1647, and 1659; finally, in 1662, even in the north of Germany, the stoves were not lighted, and trees blossomed in February. Coming to later dates, the winter of 1846-47, when it thundered at Paris on the 28th of January, and that of 1866, the year of the great inundation of the Seine, may be mentioned as exceptionally mild.

Died.

January 21st, 1876, at the residence of her father, Mrs. Margaret A. McCoy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hezekiah Johnson. Mrs. McCoy was born in the town of Schuyler, Herkimer Co., N. Y., and died in Delavan, Wis., aged 51 years and five months. She made a profession of religion at the age of 22 years and united with the Baptist church in Racine, Wisconsin. She was in feeble health for many years and for over two years previous to her death confined to her bed. Her sufferings at times were intense, but she bore them without a murmur. Her patience was almost perfect; her trust in Christ without a cloud. When death was approaching she said, "My feet are in the river, but I am fully saved." To one she said, "I thought I was passing through the river, but hands on this side were holding me back." At another time she said, "I am so weary. How I should like to go!" Her end was perfect peace. Two children, a son and a daughter tenderly watched with her through all her sickness. How precious to them her triumphant death! To think of mother without shortness of breath, without the weary limbs, without the paroxyms of distress! Sainted mother! Glorified mother! Enthroned mother! "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord." They rest from their labors.

A. PATRICK, M. D.

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY FEB. 17 1876.

PLATFORM AND NOMINATIONS FOR 1876.

FOR PRESIDENT
James B. Walker,
of Illinois.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT
Donald Kirkpatrick,
of New York.

PLATFORM.

We hold: 1. That ours is a Christian and not a heathen nation, and that the God of the Christian Scriptures is the author of civil government.

2. That God requires and man needs a Sabbath.

3. That the prohibition of the importation, manufacture and sale of intoxicating drinks as a beverage, is the true policy on the temperance question.

4. The charters of all secret lodges granted by our Federal and State Legislatures should be withdrawn, and heir oaths prohibited by law.

5. That the civil equality secured to all American citizens by article 13th, 14th and 15th of our amended Constitution should be preserved inviolate.

6. That arbitration of differences with nations is the most direct and sure method of securing and perpetuating a permanent peace.

7. That to cultivate the intellect without improving the morals of men, is to make mere adepts and experts; therefore the Bible should be associated with books of science and literature in all our educational institutions.

8. That land and other monopolies should be discountenanced.

9. That the Government should furnish the people with an ample and sound currency, and a return to specie payment as soon as practicable.

10. That maintenance of the public credit, protection to all loyal citizens, and justice to Indians are essential to the honor and safety of our nation.

11. And finally, we demand for the American people the abolition of Electoral Colleges, and a direct vote for President and Vice-president of the United States.

PRACTICAL HOLINESS—QUESTIONS AND OBJECTIONS.

JESSUP, Iowa, Jan. 12 '76.

SIR:—I am glad you propose to give us more on Temperance. Give it to us in earnest, so it will tell. You ought to give a page, at least.

I am glad, also, that you propose to give the subject of Holiness a hearing. Hope it will be practical. I shall want to ask you some questions on the subject, and here is one. Can every Christian so rest or confide in the Saviour as to live daily, hourly, every moment in the assurance of their acceptance with him? Can they live so above the world, the flesh and the devil that these have no controlling power over them? Can those who are easily tempted, led astray by a quick temper or other base passion, and who lack that even balance of character that makes temptation to them almost irresistible, can such so rest in their Saviour as to be kept from falling by and into temptation, and being overcome by it?

J. N. LLOYD.

ANSWER.

We answer the above questions of our friend unhesitatingly in the affirmative. And we answer the objectors (and they are many) to a late editorial on "The Fall of Sanctificationists," that we are simply amazed at their objections.

One good Baptist brother in the ministry asserts that Christians who are following after holiness are no more, nor so much in danger of falling as the average, worldly-minded, stumbling Christian. And it is true that he that never climbs can never fall, because already down. Yet the record of the experience of David and Peter, who were certainly sanctificationists, and the abundant warnings of the scripture to "watch," to "take heed," to "Be not highminded, but fear," are evidently intended for earnest seekers after holiness. And it is a maxim consonant with reason and scripture, that the devil's fascinations, "fiery darts," and endless diversified assaults, are chiefly directed against those from whom he has most to fear; and that his profoundest attention is given to them.

Neither is it true, as our brother suggests, that it is not the genuine but the spurious sanctificationists who fall. Both have fallen. "The just man falleth seven times, and riseth up again." —Prov. 24, 16. And, in the last days, the angel said to Daniel: "Some of them of understanding shall fall, to try them, and to purge, and make them white." One of the most common devices of Satan to ensnare and get "advantage" of persons seeking holiness, is to make them think they have slid into a state such as Mahan used to call "permanent consecration," whereas there is no such thing as "permanent sanctification," in the sense that we no longer need to "watch and pray, lest we enter into temptation." We can no more get sanctification enough to last us than we can eat food enough to last us, or than the Hebrews could gather manna enough to last them through to Canaan.

But why insist on these topics? I answer—Because we believe in sanctification, both as a possibility and a promise. And a good lawyer is always arguing against his client, because he does not intend he shall lose his case. We hail, as the dawning of the millenium, the springing up of Holiness papers, and the holding of Holiness conventions throughout the country, East and West. The ordinary seeker after holiness, though he may stumble and trip along the path, is heaven-high above the religious worldlings of the day, whose zeal is more awakened in behalf of dancing or some trivial amusement than for "The washing of regeneration and the renewing of the Holy Ghost."

—We insert the article "Are they Dunces" from a Congregational minister of long and high standing. It sharply presents the real objections to an ex-parte Council, called, entertained, and their traveling expenses paid by Mr. Beecher's church. The writer seems to reflect disparagingly on Congregational ministers, but we presume he would disavow any such intention. The Advance takes a similar view of the ex parte Council.

—Keep posted on the success of the Cynosure and contribute what you are able. Read Publisher's Department, last page.

THE SABBATH—SEVENTH DAY OR FIRST.

We do not propose to begin a discussion of this question which shall in any way interfere with the legitimate work of the Cynosure. The Sabbath question must be regarded as settled, though we may respect the convictions of many honest Christians who hold that it is not, until the observance of the seventh day prevails. A friend of this persuasion has sent a long letter, from which we print a portion. The publication of an unanswerable argument for the Lord's day Sabbath, from Rev. A. M. Milligan, makes an opportunity for it. His conclusions will appear more forcible from the contrast.

Friend Pegg wishes "Sunday-keeping" people to review their practice and change it in accordance with his view of the word of God on the subject. The articles in this and the next issue of the Cynosure may change that view; they will, at least, strengthen the faith of Christians who observe the "Lord's day" as did the beloved John, and furnish a broad, firm foundation for arguments addressed to the Legislatures or Congress for enactments to protect and preserve the day as an institution of the very first importance to the nation. "God requires and man needs a Sabbath," is an article in our platform second to none.

The criticisms of the following letter are called out by a selection from a discourse by Dr. T. L. Cuyler, of New York, on the subject, "Who owns the Sabbath?" The writer says:

. . . The heading of his article consists in a question; he asks, "Who owns the Sabbath?" which God's servant, Moses, emphatically answered in in Ex. 20:10, in these words: "The seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God." If this is the same God that Paul describes, "without variableness or shadow of turning," the day, ever since its creation, Gen. 2:3, was in, and anterior to, the days of Moses, and is now, and ever will be, the Lord's Sabbath; what a world-wide error would have been prevented if Mr. Cuyler could have informed Moses that Sunday was the Sabbath! Again, in Deut, 5:15, it is thundered in the ears of a careless and infidel world, "The seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord." The prophet, Neh., 9:14, says that "God made known unto them (the Hebrews) his holy Sabbath." The prophet, Isaiah 56:4, also calls the same day "God's holy Sabbath;" this same prophet again in chap. 58:13 calls the Sabbath "the Lord's holy day."

In the second line of his (Mr, C.'s) article, he manifests his failure in having any Biblical view of the subject on which he writes; he then mentions the labors of the pulpit and classes it with Sunday observances. He ought to know that the Bible never said one word about Sunday-keeping by Christians. It pains my sad heart to know that there is yet a popular class of people so hermetically enveloped in soul-destroying ignorance as to suppose that they are Sunday Christians, when Sunday observance was only recommended by the authority of a pagan Emperor, in the year 321, to take effect only in towns, villages and cities, but was not to interfere with the husbandry of the country. But he requested the literary classes of society to regard the venerable day of the sun as a Sabbath. But any such thing as a Sunday Sabbath has never been so much as named by any of the Lord's prophets or apostles. The contemplated change of the day by Constantine was the result of prophetic utterance. Danl. 7:25 says, "He shall speak great words against the Most High, and wear out the saints of the Most High, and think to change times and laws." Why is it said that "He should think to do it?" Because of the utter impossibility for any mortal potentate to change the changeless law of God. But when we survey this important question only from a sectarian standpoint, it would seem that the day was literally changed, for the faith and practise of Sunday-keepers corroborates this pretended, false, God-dishonoring, blasphemous change. Why did not Mr. C. speak of the Sabbatic change from the seventh to the first day?

If any of our Sunday-observing champions could refer us to one single instance of its sacred observance, either commemorative of the world's creation or our Lord's resurrection, previous to the Constantine edict, they might make a faint show with the careless, indifferent and thoughtless minds; but such is not the case. This testimony which is lacking on their part, the world, with all its stores of treasure, is unable to furnish.

Mr. C.'s Christian Sabbath is an anti-Bible Sabbath. But the great and God-fearing apostle Paul could speak of this heart-sickening, approaching change previous to its occurrence in 2. Thess., 2:7—"That the mystery of iniquity doth already work." This apostle doubtless had a direct and distinct allusion to the most formidable and daring act of Constantine when his wicked thought led him to undertake to change the immutable law of God. And when Paul's "mystery of iniquity" had worked its way through the tedious roll of 300 years, in continuous acts of transgression and crime, was sufficiently steeped in downright rebellion against the government of God, to become the enchanting author of the Christian Sabbath. Saint Paul informs us. in Romans 2:12, that God's law and commandment is holy; and in the 15th verse says that God's law is spiritual. We now urgently request every reader of this reply, who believes in the change of this spiritual law, to examine their own theory in the light of the holy Bible, and see if it will harmonize with the united testimony of God's inspired instructors, with respect to the changeless character of our Heavenly Father.

AMOS PEGG.

CHURCH TESTIMONY MADE VOID.

A short letter in the Tribune, of this city, is a long comment on Masonic morality, and the misdeeds that are not reckoned in its code. But more than that, it shows a disadvantage under which testifying and lodge-excluding churches labor. Their disfellowship of the lodge is made of no account when the lodgeman can enter a "sister" church and stand just as well outwardly in Christian community. The effect of the testimony is lost outside the church that makes it. The success of this reform must inevitably tend to unite the excluding churches on this ground. In no other way can their position be held, and retain its force with the world outside. The letter which explains this is as follows:

POLO, Ill., Jan. 22.—"Congregational," in yesterday's Tribune, speaking of Beecher and Plymouth Church, makes some strong assertions which are not true. He says; "I venture to say that in no other church or order having for its base moral principle or moral action, could one of its members be thus charged, without an investigation being immediately had by the body under which such member should be enrolled, to test the truthfulness or falsity of the accusation, and to discipline if proven true." He then goes on to say that it could not be in any church, Masonic lodge or Odd-fellows lodge. It is evident to me that "Congregational" knows but little that is going on in this world. I will say to him that I know of an instance where a man was publicly read out of church for adultery (by his own confession) and in less than six months was taken into another church and the Masonic lodge. I know of another instance where a man has been twice indicted by the grand jury of this county, and would have been the third time had it not been for the Masonic fraternity; who is still a member of the church, and a member of the Masonic lodge. Charges have been preferred against him in the church and lodge, and both refused to entertain them.

Hoping that you will give "Congregational" some light by publishing the above, I am CONGREGATIONAL 2D.

—Past Master Ronayne, who held a great meeting at Lockport last week, may be addressed at Syracuse up to the 25th. He wants to hear again from a friend in Indiana, who wished him for ten or fifteen days in his county. The letter has been mislaid.

—Prof. H. A. Fischer of Wheaton College, who is serving our readers so well with letters from Europe, has removed from Leipsic to Heidelberg, in Baden, whose celebrated University he will attend during the year. His address will be No. 1, Wolfsbrunnen Weg, Heidelberg, Baden, Germany. In the midst of studies and travels he has found an able substitute, whose pen gives some bright glimpses of Leipsic in this number.

—Our exchanges who are desirous of putting before their readers the latest and best on the Sabbath question will find the sermon of Dr. Milligan, and his letter to follow next week, unsurpassed as an argument for the Divine authority of the day as generally celebrated.

—The Western Tract Society has lately published an address by its Secretary, Rev. A. Ritchie, on the duty of civil government to maintain the Sabbath, which is worthy a place with the argument of Dr. Milligan, and should be circulated by the million. It is in cheap and popular form and can be obtained by sending to the Tract Society at Cincinnati.

—This number of the Cynosure shows a revival of the political reform spirit coming upon our readers and correspondents. Practical questions in this issue are perhaps more difficult of solution than any of theory, for our platform supplies the latter. How shall our principles and candidates be presented to honest, God-fearing Americans? The tract on the American party answers the question for you. One of these put in the hands of every voter will be of more effect with candid and patriotic men than thousands spent in great mass-meetings and stump speeches. It is an orator to be put in the pocket and heard in calm and honest moments.

—Father Preston, whose recovery from an almost fatal accident in his 83d year has been noticed in our columns a few weeks ago, called last week, and mounted the four stairways to our upper room with a vigorous step not often found in men whose memories cover nearly a century. We praise the Lord for sparing yet a little this veteran Christian reformer. While in the city last week he was active as ever for the cause to which he is giving these last years of his life; looking up friends who have taken or ought to take the Cynosure, or who might assist in securing the Carpenter donation. Young men, an example for you.

—Friend McConnell, of Ligonier, Ind., has been at work circulating the literature of our reform in Northern Indiana. He has found the Brethren, or Tunkers, and Omish in that section taking an interest in the cause, and opening their large churches for lectures.

Board of Directors Meeting, Feb. 8.

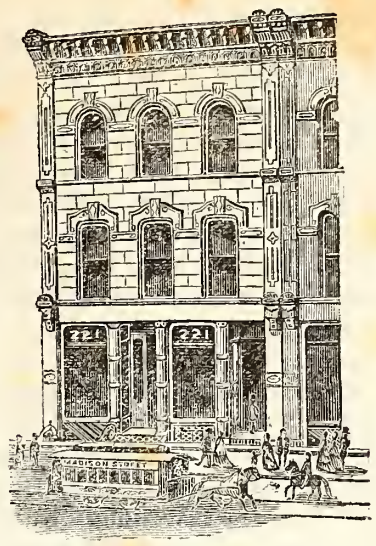
At the call of the chairman the Directors of the N. C. A. met in the Cynosure office.

Prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Farris of Coulterville, now arranging for the National Reform Convention to be held here next month.

The General Agent, J. P. Stoddard, made a general report of his labor for some two months previous, especially in Wisconsin and Indiana, and it was voted to approve his arrangement with friends of the reform in Grant county, Indiana, by which it is agreed that a ecturer shall visit prominent points in that county annually to speak and collect interest on notes given for the Publishing House which fund, amount to more than a thousand dollars.

The Treasurer reported the state of the treasury, and urged that accounts with the former agent for Ohio, and the Indiana agent be closed by settlement. Voted that the General Agent, the Treasurer, and Mrs. E. A. Cook be a committee to settle with J. T. Kiggins for his services as State lecturer previous to the last Indiana State Convention. The report of a committee previously appointed to settle with D. S. Caldwell for services as Ohio lecturer was accepted and adopted.

Voted that the Corresponding Secretary issue notices immediately to those whose obligations for the Publishing House, or the interest thereon, is due.



Voted also that the Cor. Secretary open correspondence with Judge Zearing and Hon. B. G. Caulfield, in regard to the presentation of the petition to Congress signed last year.

The duty of arranging for the next anniversary, to be held in this city, recommending time, place, speakers, etc., was referred to a committee composed of Messrs. C. R. Hagerty, J. W. Bain, H. L. Kellogg, C. A. Blanchard, J. P. Stoddard, and Mrs. M. E. Cook, Mrs. Chas. Case, and Mrs. W. W. Strong.

The Treasurer was instructed in the deficiency of the General and Lecture funds to pay the expenses of the General Agent, while engaged in securing the Carpenter donation from the interest accruing from the Publishing House fund, or by a direct loan from it.

The political tract recently published in the Cynosure was read and a vote taken endorsing it and recommending its circulation.

Adjourned after prayer by Pres. J. Blanchard.

THE CARPENTER DONATION.

The above is a front view of the fine stone-front building on Madison street, Chicago, which Mr. Carpenter proposes to give the National Christian Association for head-quarters and publishing house. The terms of the donation are that $30,000 shall be raised by Apr. 1, 1878, to carry on the work of the Association. Send contributions to Treasurer of the N. C. A.

The National Christian Association.

PRESIDENT.—Philo Carpenter.

DIRECTORS.—Philo Carpenter, J. Blanchard, Archibald Wait, I. A. Hart, C. R. Hagerty, E. A. Cook, O. F. Lumry, C. A. Blanchard, H. L. Kellogg, I R. B. Arnold, E. S. Cook.

COR. SECRETARY.—C. A. Blanchard.

TREASURER.—H. L. Kellogg.

GEN. AG'T & LECTURER—J.P.Stoddard.

Address last three at 13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

The object of this Association is:—

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved; to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform to aid the Association in either of these ways: (1) to establish a Publishing House and Head-quarters in Chicago; (2) to carry on the general work; (3) to maintain the State agents. All donations (drafts or P.O. orders) should be sent to the Treasurer; general correspondence, etc., direct to the Corresponding Secretary.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—I give and bequeath to the National Christian Association, incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois, the sum of——dollars for the purposes of said Association, and for which the receipt of its Treasurer for the time being shall be a sufficient discharge.

What Remaineth?

At the Directors' meeting $2,092 were said to be needed to complete the $10,000 for the Carpenter Donation by April 1st. So every one now contributing $1.00 to this sum secures $15 to the cause if the whole is raised. Many mites will do it. Don't let the middle of March come before you conclude to do something. NOW IS BETTER.

CHARLESTON, Lee Co., Ia., Jan. 27, 1876.

DEAR SIR:—Some time since I sent you a club of ten for the Cynosure, and told you you might write me down fifty dollars to help pay for the Carpenter House. I now send you the money, which you will place to my credit. I feel as I suppose one of old felt, when he said he would not offer a sacrifice to God that cost him nothing. The good of the church, the safety of the state, and the safety of the people at large require that the secret clans by which the land is being cursed shall be destroyed; and for one I am determined to come up to the help of the Lord against the mighty.

Your Bro., J. C.

State Auxiliary Associations.

The following list will be found of great convenience. Let every friend of the reform put himself in communication with the proper officers, sending contributions, suggestions,—anything to push on the work.

CONNECTICUT.
President, J. A. Conant, Willimantic.
Secretary, D. J Ellsworth, Windsor.
Treasurer, C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.
President, J. Dickson, Decatur
Secretary, J. H. Snyder, Westfield.
Treasurer, H. L. Kellogg, 13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.
Lecturer, H. H. Hinman, Wheaton.

INDIANA.
President, Halleck Floyd, Dublin.
Cor. Sec'y, J. T. Kiggins, Portland
Rec. Sec'y, Wm. Small, Xenia.
Treasurer, Peter Rich, Westfield.
Lecturer, J. T. Kiggins, Portland, Jay Co.

IOWA.
President, M. S. Drury, Castalia.
Cor. Sec'y, Louis Bookwalter, Wester n College.
Rec. Sec'y, C. Compton, Steamboat Rock.
Treasurer, D. W. Lyons, Mason City.
Lecturer, James Hankins, Mason City.

KANSAS.
President, Rev. Mr. Bell.
Secretary, J. Dodds, Winchester.
Treasurer, S. Sexton, Topeka.

MICHIGAN.
President, C. Quick, Weston.
Secretary, C. B. Remington, Fenton.
Treasurer, J. H. Wilcox, Howell.
Lecturer, J. L. Barlow, Fenton.
Agent, C. B. Remington, Fenton.

MISSOURI.
President, N. E. Gardner, Avalon.
Cor. Sec'y., A. D. Thomas, Arbela.
Rec. Sec'y, E. W. Carpenter.
Treasurer, Wm. Beauchamp, Avalon.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.
President, J. F. Brown, Bow Lake.
Secretary, S. C. Kimball, Center Strafford.
Treasurer, Kimball Cole, Lake Village.
Lecturer, S. C. Kimball, Center Strafford.

NEW YORK.
President, L. N. Stratton, Syracuse.
Secretary, W. A. Sellew, Rochester.
Treasurer, M. Merrick, Syracuse.
Lecturers—L. N. Stratton, Syracuse; D. P. Rathbun, Lisbon Center; Woodruff Post, Rochester; A. F. Curry, Almond.

OHIO.
President, H. H. George, W. Geneva.
Secretary, Wm. Dillon, Dayton.
Treasurer, J. G. Mattoon, West Unity.
Lecturer, Wm. Dillon, Dayton.

PENNSYLVANIA.
President, A. L. Post, Montrose.
Cor. Sec'y., N. Callender, Green Grove.
Rec. Sec'y., J. W. Raynor, Uniondale.
Treasurer, W. B. Bertels, Wilkesbarre.
Lecturer, J. W. Raynor, Uniondale.

WISCONSIN.
President, J. W. Wood, Baraboo.
Secretary, U. D. Lathrop, Millard.
Treasurer, Joshua Parrish, Delavan.

Address of Anti-masonic Lecturers.

General Agent and Lecturer, J. P. STODDARD, Christian Cynosure Office, Chicago.

FOR STATE LECTURERS see State Association list.

OTHERS who will lecture as opportunity offers.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
W. A. Wallace, Dublin, Ind.
J. B. Nessell, Ellington, N. Y.
James Hankins, Mason City, Iowa.
R. B. Taylor, Summerfield, O.
N. Callender, Green Grove, Pa.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
P. Hurless, Polo, Ill.
J. C. Graham, Viola, Mercer Co., Ill.
J. R. Baird, Tompleton, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Bourbon, Ind.
Josiah McCaskey, Fancy Creek, Wis.
C. F. Hawley, Millbrook, Pa.
W. M. Givens, Center Point, Ind.
J. L. Andrus, Mt. Vision, N. Y.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
D. S. Caldwell, Nevada, Wyandot Co., O
Samuel Hale, Mallett Creek, O.
A. Mayn, Promise City, Wayne Co. Ia
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
C. Wiggins, Angola, Ind.
S. L. Cook, Albion, Ind.
E Ronayne, Cynosure office, Chicago.
W. M., Love, Baker, St. Clair Co., Mo

—A good way of sustaining the reform has been used by a number who wish to contribute annually. They draw a note for the Publishing House Fund payable at option during life of the drawer or from his estate after death with interest payable annually.

The Home Circle.

The Coming King.

O North with all thy vales of green;
O South, with all thy palms!
From peopled towns and fields between,
Uplift the voice of psalms.
Raise, ancient East! the anthem high,
And let the youthful West reply.

Lo! in the clouds of heaven appears
God's well beloved Son,
He brings a train of brighter years;
His kingdom is begun;
He comes a guilty world to bless
With mercy, truth, and righteousness.

O Father! haste the promised hour,
When at His feet shall lie
All rule, authority and power,
Beneath the ample sky;
When He shall reign from pole to pole,
The Lord of every human soul.

When all shall heed the words He said,
Amid their daily cares,
And by the loving life He led,
Shall strive to pattern theirs;
And he who conquered Death shall win
The mightier conquest over sin.

—William C. Bryant.

Dr. Hall on Bible Exposition.

I have been asked to say a word in behalf of the Bible and I should be ashamed of myself if I were not ready at any moment to say a single word, however feebly and imperfectly I may utter it, on behalf of that one book, which is emphatically the book of ministers, Sunday-school teachers and laborers in every department of Christian work. First, we must know the Bible for ourselves if we are to be able to expound and illustrate it.

We are not bound to honor every other book. A minister is not bound to have the reviews and general literature at his fingers' end, but it is disgraceful to him if he does not thoroughly know the one book, which is the instrument God gives him to do his work. If a lawyer knows where to lay his hand upon a book to get a reference, it is all that is necessary, and he does not need to have all that is contained in it at his fingers' end; but a minister or teacher of God's word must have a perfect acquaintance with it. We must avail ourselves of all the help we can get through biblical literature, the dictionary, Bible history, geography, and the book that explains synonyms. I think we shall find this to be true, that there is no better source to seek illustrated Bible truths than in that valuable literature that has been contributed by our beloved brethren upon foreign fields, who place it within our reach month after month. When we undertake to teach Bible truths from the pulpit or at the Sunday-school, we must take particular pains to study for the time that which we are to bring before the people. The Sunday-school teacher who relies upon his general knowledge of the Bible, will get into a groove and go in the ruts, unless he makes a careful preparation for the lesson he is to teach to those who wait upon his instructions. A large part of the Bible is unknown to many who call themselves Christians. That is particularly the case in regard to the Old Testament. One of the weaknesses of our churches of the present time is found in the comparative ignorance of the Old Testament. The minister very frequently preaches over the heads of the people because he assumes they know the Old Testament as well as they do the New. What would be the result if a teacher should put his boys to study the second book of Euclid before they had studied the first? All such terms as atonement, sacrifice, intercession, and a thousand others are illustrated in the most vivid manner in the Old Testament narrative. There is a great advantage in our taking a large portion of God's word and making this the substance of our discourses, instead of taking a little bit of Scripture and wasting our strength in trying to give freshness and novelty to our description of that little portion. We teach best when we enable our people to see divine truth in the relation in which the Holy Ghost puts that truth. Everybody knows how a thing will look in one aspect from one angle of observation, and look quite different from another angle. We teach best when we put our learners in a position to see individual truths in the light in which the Spirit of God puts them in the connection in which they stand in the Bible, and bear in mind it is the truth of God that the Spirit of God promises to bless. There is no promise that my history or my philosophy, or my speculation, or my metaphysics will be blessed to the conversion of men. There can be no good done without that blessing, and I must use that particular instrumentality which the spirit of God is pledged to bless. That binds me to set forth to the best of my ability a large portion of God's truth in the places and relations in which the Spirit of God has put these truths. Take the minor prophets in the Old Testament, how many individuals know a great deal about them? When a minister gives out a text from the 3d chapter of Hosea, people take up their Bibles and they are paralyzed, and they have to stop and think where Hosea comes in. If a man could make a formal, elaborate exposition of such passages as these, he would be doing for the Bible what Livingstone did for Africa. It is an unknown land in the heart of our Bible. There is nothing so new to the universal human heart as the truths of the blessed book; nothing so fresh, nothing that gives such a range and variety of topics and illustrations; and let us bear in mind that our time to labor is very short, and we shall soon pass away from the earth, but if we can connect ourselves, our lessons, our sermons, with the truths of God's word, as they are in the book, the book remains when we are gone, and in the memory of the people we have instructed there will remain the blessed association of our texts and our instructions. There is a limit to the power of man to invent novelties. To every Addison or Bacon there is a limit to producing finished essays. When a man reaches his limit the people soon find it out and they say: "I think we will have to get another preacher, as this man goes to the barrel too often." But man who takes the plan of expounding the word of God, illustrating it by all the helps which come to him, has materials for continued freshness.

The happiness of life consists, like the day, not in single flashes of light, but in one continued mild serenity. The most beautiful period of the heart's existence, is in this calm equable light, even although it be only moonshine or twilight. Now the mind alone can obtain for us this heavenly cheerfulness and peace.

Obedience.

The perfection of the saints is wholeness in obedience to all the requirements of God. When the inner man is sanctified, and renewed day by day, and the hands and feet and tongue and pocket and eyes are set apart or sanctified to God, then the person will grow in grace, or favor with God; for he is then prepared to add to his faith, virtue or boldness; and to virtue, knowledge; and to knowledge, temperance; and to temperance, patience; and to patience, godliness; and to godliness, brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness, charity; and then he will not be barren or unfruitful in the service of God. Such a person will not give the cold shoulder to a poor brother or sister; neither will he tie up his purse-strings so tight that he cannot untie them, when he sees a poor brother or sister in distress and in want; and he will have feelings for the poor, sick preachers, that will reach clear down into his pocket. But, while a brother or sister is in this heavenly frame of mind, Satan will make some powerful attacks upon them, and they will have to be on their guard; for he will try to make them think too highly of themselves, and thus work their minds into a boasting frame.

St. Paul had to labor to keep his body under, lest he "should become a castaway." As long as we keep in the popular channel, Satan will not trouble us much; but, if we get into the path of holiness, and get down into the valley of humiliation, where we can work for God and do some good, then Satan will attack us with all his might. Look out for him; and may the good Lord help us to keep in the path of holy obedience unto him.—Token of Truth.

I remember in some book of Emblems, perhaps it was Quarles', a picture of a ship with this motto, "In the water, yet above it." So a Christian should go through the world—in it, yet above it. He cannot avoid some worldly toil and care. He must be immersed to a certain extent in things material and temporal, as the ship's keel must be in the water. He cannot avoid the pressure of these things as the ship must feel the pressure of ocean currents. But as the larger and better part of the ship is above the water, and, by its sails spread to the winds of heaven, it resists the currents of the deep, going to its haven even against the gulf stream, so the Christian is only in and of the world as far as his body requires. His higher life is kept above the world. He does not not permit it to come in through leaks and water-log him. He remembers his celestial home. He spreads the wings of his spirit to catch the air that floats from it and would waft him to it. Thus he resists temptations; he overcomes the world, and secures an abundant entrance into the everlasting kingdom. An excellent motto for the Christian is, "In the world and yet above the world."—Herald and Presbyter.

An Incident of Pres. Finney's Labors.

His greatest revival work was in Rochester, N. Y., a place very dear to him for his great success. He was recommended to the Third church by Dr. Parker, then (1830) leaving to preach in New York city.

Rochester had three Presbyterian churches, working well and earnestly. But western New York energy was devoted mostly to the services of sin. Gambling, rum-drinking, pleasure-seeking, were the absorbing interests. Dancing parties, infidel lectures, a circus and a theatre, all were working together to draw the thoughtless away from piety. The forces of sin were outnumbering the church. It was at such a time that Mr. Finney was invited. The three churches co-operated with him. He preached during the winter of 1830 and 1831 in the Third church mainly, yet almost every week gave one service to each of the other churches. Christians bowed themselves in fervent prayer, and a great blessing descended on Western New York. People came to Rochester from other placee, and were converted. Mr. Finney often preached, also, in other places, going as far west as Buffalo.

It was said that a pious man warned his brother lecturing for infidels, that if he would not desist, he should be in his closet asking God to close that brother's mouth. As the brother would not be persuaded, the Christian, at the appointed hour, was on his knees, bearing the case to the throne. The infidel arose to speak at the same hour. But his lips were sealed. Perhaps some of the fathers in Rochester can give their names, and more of the particulars of that scene. But the above facts were given me by the successor of that infidel. He was sent for at once by the disconcerted congregation. They would have a man that would not be awed by prayer. He was prompt to respond. Self-confident enough, he came at once, so as to inform himself of the revival and be the better prepared to condemn it. He heard Mr. Finney on the day of his arrival, Monday. On Tuesday he was so troubled, that to appease conscience for so much said against Methodists, he went to their meeting. Wednesday he sought Mr. Finney's study, asking, with the greatest earnestness, "What must I do to be saved?" Before Thursday evening's lecture time came around, he had not only informed himself, but he had been converted. The infidel club was disbanded.

The change was so great in morals that merchants gave up rum-selling or moved away. The circus building was converted into a soap and candle factory, and the theatre into a livery stable. It was ten years before even a traveling circus stopped at Rochester; and so suspicious of its not paying was the company, they did not take out a license the first night; and the next night some boys, hearing the company was breaking the law, pulled down their tent, a thing not more to the credit of the boys than loss to the company.

Sermon by a Cornish Cobbler.

"He first findeth his own brother Simon." Now I am sure that 'tis a good plan to be looking after one soul. Every soul in the world do belong to our Lord. He made 'em every one, and he bought 'em every one with his precious blood. They're his, every way, and the devil is a thief. I've very often thought what a poor master the devil's servants have got. Why, when he came up to tempt our mother Eve in paradise, he hadn't got any bit o' a thing for to bribe her with, an' all he could do was to tempt her to steal her Master's apples. He haven't got anything at all of his own. . . . . .

Andrew didn't say, "I'll try to do all the good I can," and then do nothing because he couldn't find anything to do; but he says, "There's Simon; I'll go and catch him." That's the way; pick out one soul, and set your heart 'pon it, begin to pray for that one, and go on trying till you've got it; and then try for another. We might do a great deal o' good in the world if we didn't try to do so much. I've heard folks a singin' and meanin' it to,

'Were the whole realm of nature mine,
That were a present far too small.

an' because the realm o' nature wasn't theirs, they didn't give anything at all. —Daniel Quorm.

Relics of Tennessee Pigmies.

Haywood, in his very interesting history of Tennessee, tells of a race of pigmies which existed hundreds of years ago, in the neighborhood of McMinville and Sparta, where their cemeteries are yet to be found, though many of them have been torn up by the plow of the industrious farmer of the present day. At the request of Prof. Henry, of the Smithsonian Institute, John R. Lillard undertook to unearth a skeleton to be placed on exhibition in that institution. On Monday he went to Hickory Bottom, five miles out from Sparta, and examined, on the farms of Messrs. Spence and Nelson, about twenty graves, all of which had been previously opened, and everything they contained taken out. Mr. Wilson, one of the oldest citizens in that locality, informed him that the graves were first discovered in 1820. The early settlers found them to average 22 1-2 by 14 inches wide, and 12 inches in depth. The graves were formed of sandstone rock, which is found, not in the valleys where the graves are located. but on the top of the mountains. From all that could be learned, this race of people must have lived at least three or four centuries ago.

Thursday morning, accompanied by Dr. J. W. Sawyer, Mr. Lillard went to Doyle's farm, and beside the grave out of which Haywood obtained a skeleton during his researches, he obtained the bones of a pigmy. One of the graves had a headstone, a limestone rock, a thing unusual. By this particular mark it is presumed the bones must have been those of a noted person of the race. In the one in which he obtained the fragmentary portions of what was left of a pigmy, Mr. Lillard found fragments of pottery, which show signs of having once been filled with charcoal. This grave had never before been opened. From the manner in which the bones lay it is supposed the body must have been interred in a sitting position. The measurement of this skeleton is twenty-six inches in height. The thigh, arms, ribs, and, in fact, all the bones are small, the full set of teeth showing at the same time that they must have belonged to an adult.

The thigh bones are a little larger than a man's forefinger. Mr. Lillard shipped the bones, on his arrival here last night, to the Smithsonian Institute. He also brought with him a beautifully polished stone pestle used by the Indians once, perhaps centuries ago, in pounding their corn into meal. It is the best specimen of such implements that we have ever seen.—Nashville American.

Seclusion from the world prepares us for communion with God; and communion with God prepares us for intercourse with the world.

Children's Corner.

An Easy Lesson in Chemistry.

SIMPLE AFFINITY.

Some water and oil
One day had a broil,
As one day in a glass they were dropping,
And would not unite,
But continued to fight,
Without any prospect of stopping.

Some pearl-ash o'erheard,
And quick as a word,
He jumped in the midst of the clashing,
When all three agreed,
And united with speed,
And soap was created for washing.

—Selected

"Stamp On It."

BY PANSY.

This boy's name is Johnny Wilder, and he certainly has a name that fits him exactly, for a wilder boy of his age would be hard to find. He is tall of his age, and rather wise-looking, but he is only a few years old, and whether wise-acting or not can be judged by reading this history.

He is never content with the army of playthings, such as kites and balls and sleds and drums, that reasonable boys delight in, but is forever on the lookout for something new and strange and queer to play with.

On this particular day of which I write, his hopes had centered on a box of matches. Now, of all horrid things to play with, one would think these were the worst. Why, their very smell is enough to make one sick. Not so thought Johnny Wilder. The match box had been carelessly left on a chair by the grate, and he had the room to himself, so he decided to experiment.

Fizz! went one of the matches on the hot grate, and Johnny laid it cautiously down upon the carpet. He had no intention of setting the house on fire. Not he! he meant to be very careful. It sputtered a little and smouldered a little, and finally went out. "I don't believe carpets will burn," said this philosopher wisely. "They're too woolly; I might as well light a good many of these matches and get a good blaze. I'll blow it with the bellows, as mother does, and it will be real fun, and when the matches are burned up the fire will all go out; I know it will."

No sooner said than done. Johnny emptied the whole boxful out on the carpet, and lighted one at the grate and laid it carefully on the pile. It was fine fun, of course. They snapped and sputtered and blazed, and Johnny giggled and blew little puffs at them with his bellows, and fed the flame with bits of paper from his pocket, and was so excited and happy that he did not discover that the carpet, woolly though it was, had been coaxed into burning, and there was fast getting to be a royal flame. Alas for Johnny and Johnny's home—if some one wiser than he does not come to his rescue!

At that moment two doors opened from opposite directions — Johnny's mother, brush in hand, came from the kitchen to brush up the hearth and tidy the room; and Johnny's father came in from the hall to rest himself a few minutes before dinner.

What a look of horror was on that mother's face! Fire! Their pretty little home in danger! Johnny in danger! She was very quick to think and speak—

"Stamp on it, John!" were the eager words that came instantly to mind, and almost before they were spoken, the father's great, strong foot was stamping vigorously on the floor, smothering it, crushing it out, and leaving a smoking black hole, it is true, but that was better than a flame.

Such a lecture as Johnny had! How he was shut up in the bedroom for an hour! How he cried! How fully he was convinced that it was a very wicked thing to light even one match to play with!

At the dinner table that day the story was told to Uncle Henry, who was visiting them, and to Fred Wilder, the eldest son of the house. Told with many shakings of the head at poor, little shame-faced Johnny, who, after all, was only thoughtless and ignorant, and had intended no harm. And Fred laughed and said—

"What will that boy do next, mother?" Then, in the same breath, as he passed his glass, "a little more wine, if you please, father." And while his father filled the glass, mother feeling sorry for very red-faced little Johnny, helped him to a very large brandy peach, with a liberal supply of juice, to comfort him.

"I was thoroughly frightened," Mr. Wilder said. "Why, houses have been burned to the ground many a time with less of a start than this one had. I don't believe I should have had enough presence of mind to know what to do, if Jane hadn't spoken as she did. 'Stamp on it, John!' she screamed, the minute she saw the fire, and that was what saved us."

Uncle Henry glanced from father to mother significantly—

"Will no one say it now?" he asked earnestly.

"What?" said Mr. Wilder, laying down his fork and looking at his brother-in-law.

"This fire—and this one?" said Uncle Henry, pointing first to the glass of wine and then to the brandy peach. Haven't bodies and souls been lost many a time with less of a start than this?"

"Oh," said Mr. Wilder, coolly, "you and I don't agree upon that point, you know."

"The fire will burn all the same though, whether we both agree it is going to or not."

"I don't see any signs of danger," said Mrs. Wilder, sharply.

"No; and I haven't an idea that Johnny did. I don't suppose the carpet caught fire at first."

"It didn't," answered Johnny eagerly, understanding about the carpet and nothing else. "The matches burned and burned, and the carpet didn't a bit. I thought it wouldn't because it was woolly, and I didn't see it begin at all."

"I suppose not," answered Uncle Henry, "but I tell you what it is, I have seen fires begin and go on to the bitter end, burning up both body and soul, and the beginning was much smaller than that peach on Johnny's plate, and if there had only been somebody to say, 'Stamp on it, John,' and somebody to see the danger and obey, souls could have been saved."

Johnny looked soberly down at his peach, in innocent wonder, but John the elder stood and said shortly:

"I ain't afraid."

"Neither was Johnny; if he had been the mischief would never have been done."

"No," said Johnny, bent on proving himself innocent, "I wasn't afraid, 'cause I thought it wasn't any harm. I didn't know that it would make a big, black hole,"

"Do you mean to say that you think there is any parallel?" his father asked, almost angrily.

"No," answered Uncle Henry, solemnly, "I can hardly call it one, because if you had not been there to promptly stamp on the fire, Johnny's body, it is true, would have been burned, whereas in this other fire the poor souls are only more utterly blackened and ruined than the bodies."

Meantime Fred Wilder had drained his glass and left the table with a contemptuous face, and Uncle Henry sadly pondered whether it were not even now too late to stamp on the fire kindled in his brain, and also marveled over the strange world in which he lived, and the strange man with whom he had been talking, who could grow so excited over Johnny's little fire of matches, to burn the carpet and house, and yet could deliberately, with his own hand, light the torch and feed the flame that was likely to burn on and on until it reached the point "where the worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched."—Christian World.

Temperance.

The Daily Temperance prayer-meetings still increase in the average attendance. A person not accustomed to estimate the size of audiences would call the number of persons at these meetings two or three hundred, although it is in fact only about half as large. Such a meeting, with God's blessing, held every day will be a power for good that God only can estimate. Pray for it.

As we entered the headquarters of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union in Chicago, last Thursday, two men who might under other circumstances have been fine looking, had just been signing the pledge. Mrs. Holyoke was going with them to place them in the Washingtonian Home. Both of them looked like dilapidated wrecks, though one seemed sober. The other spoke about his wife, bills to collect, etc. Poor men! They were in a pitiable and fearful state.

There are some temperance reformers who say, "Rescue the perishing; but do not take temperance into politics." We believe in giving a helping hand to every suffering neighbor within our reach. But also think that if we spend nerve, time and money in rescuing the saloon keeper's victims, we have a right to use all the political power that we can command in abating the nuisances which turn out such heart-sickening subjects for humane, sober Christians to care for.

Song of the Decanter.

There was an old decanter, and its mouth was gaping wide; the rosy wine had ebbed away, and left its crystal side: and the wind went humming, humming; up and down the sides it flew; and through the reed-like, hollow neck the wildest notes it blew. I placed it on the window, where the blast was blowing free; and fancied that its pale mouth sang the queerest strains to me, "They tell me, puny conquerors! the plague has slain his ten, and war his hundred thousands of the very best of men; but I"—'twas thus the bottle spoke—"but I have conquered more than all your famous conquerors, so feared and famed of yore. Then come, ye youths and maidens, come drink from out my cup, the beverage that dulls the brain and burns the spirit up; that puts to shame the conquerors that slay their scores below; for this has deluged millions with the lava-tide of woe. Though in the path of battle darkest waves of blood may roll, yet while I killed the body, I have charmed the very soul. The cholera, the sword, such ruin never wrought, as I, in mirth or malice, on the innocent have brought. And still I breathe upon them, and they shrink before my breath; and year by year my thousands tread the dismal road to death."

Secret Temperance Societies.

ARMADA, Mich., Jan. 7.

To the Editor of the Witness:

I entirely agree with you in your remarks in reply to "A Good Templar" in the Weekly Witness of the 6th of January, and I think much more might be said in opposition to the secret society plan for accomplishing moral reform.

I believe that organizations for that object, outside of churches, are proper and right, and should be encouraged; but they need not necessarily, and in my view should not be secret. In connection with all these secret societies there is a certain amount of foolish, senseless ceremony that occupies much time that might be devoted to the business in hand; and then no one who is not a member is allowed to attend their meetings.

Let us have good, rousing temperance meetings open to all—the reeling drunkard, the moderate drinker, the wine-sipper, the immoral man, all classes, and let the truth be brought to bear directly upon them, and thus gather them in and give them the pledge and the right hand of fellowship. Let not your light be hid under a bushel. Did Christ, does any one suppose, belong to a secret society?

[Secret societies do sometimes get up public meetings, but generally speaking they have so many meetings of the division, lodge, or temple that all the time they can spare for temperance meetings is taken up with them.—ED.] N. Y. Witness.

Tom Marshall, the Great Kentucky Orator.

The latter part of the life of Thomas F. Marshall, the great Kentucky orator, was a continual struggle against the power of strong drink. But the drink had so long been indulged that it was too much for him and finally overcame him. He said: "I sought relief, I took the pledge, and have not wanted to drink since. I would not drink again—I would not have the appetite return, not if this earth were one entire chrysolite, set all over with the richest gems of Golconda—not if the city of New York with all the wealth and magnificence it acquires for half a century to come—not if all this wealth were placed at my feet; by my honor and my soul, I would not have this appetite return."

These were doubtless honest words, yet the last utterance this great man made was: "This is the end. Tom Marshall is dying—dying upon a borrowed bed, under a borrowed sheet, in a house built by charity, and without a decent suit of clothes in which to be buried."

"Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall."—Ex.

Every grown person should know that of all earthly weapons religious fellowship is by far the most potent. In America it should stand as American freedom only can stand, upon the one truly American basis—that of divinely free thought. Unschooled therein, Christian nations even yet find themselves, as they ever will, overwhelmed with the most shameful wars, crimes, vices, taxes, frauds, diseases innumerable. Every student of history should know that church fellowship in, and social support of, known public wrong, is not only the most wicked but the most unprofitable thing of earth, the sure precursor of God's wrath against national iniquity.

Have we not already warning enough in the war-wreck and ruin which befel our Southern States and this whole professing Christian nation, for their guilty adherence to negro slavery? So to-day, I believe impends God's wrath for national whiskey license and its abominations. Wherein are whiskey task-masters any better than Southern slave-holding task-masters? Then let us lose no time in proclaiming God's wrath against the whole whiskey traffic, and its chief bulwark American religious whiskey license, including "teetotal" "prohibitory" fellowship therewith. We must have the deepest religious inspiration of God's Spirit and truth, the most uncompromising religious self-respect, independence, and hostility to sin, if we would succeed in this terrible struggle against drunkenness. It is my deepest conviction that true religion and humanity never grappled with so mighty a monster.

F. K. PHOENIX.

Home and Health Hints.

The Scarlet Fever.

It is as unnecessary for a child to die of scarlet fever, says Good Health, as it is that it should be blind with cataract. Let us see: At any time before the body has finished its ineffectual struggle we are able to help it, not by wonderful medicines, but by the knowledge of anatomy and the application of common sense. We consult the sympathetic nerve, and do what it commands us to do. We must give this child salt when it wants it; we must give it acid when it has fever—not vinegar, but lemon-juice, because the first coagulates albumen, and the latter does not, on account of the surplus of oxygen which it contains. To imitate the soothing mucous in the intestines, which is now wanting, and to give some respiratory food at the same time, we add some gum arabic. To restore and relieve the injured nerve we apply moist warmth. In practice we can fulfil all this with the following simple manipulations: Undress the child and bring it to bed at the very first sign of sickness. Give it, if it has already fever, nothing but warm sourish lemonade, with some gum arabic in it. Then cover its abdomen with some dry flannel. Take a well-folded bed-sheet and put it in boiling hot water; wring it out dry by means of dry towels, and put this over the flannel on the child's abdomen. Then cover the whole and wait. The hot cloths will perhaps require repeated heat. According to the severity of the case and its stage of progress, perspiration will commence in the child in from ten minutes to two hours. The child then is saved; it soon falls to sleep. Soon after the child awakes it shows slight symptoms of returning inclination for food; help its bowels, if necessary, with injections of oil, soap and water, and its recovery will be as steady as the growth of a green-house plant, if well treated. Of course, if the child was already dying, nothing could save it, or if it has effusions in the lining of the heart or brain; it is much better that it should die. But if the above is applied in due time, under the eyes and direction of a competent physician, I will guarantee that not one in a hundred children will ever die of scarlet fever.

SCARLET FEVER.—Some years ago a Chicago gentleman had several children very sick with the scarlet fever. After they recovered he communicated his recipe, which was published at the time; he had kept his little patients well anointed with the rind of smoked hams. He believed his treatment to have saved his children. A number of letters from persons who had practiced the method after its publication, commended the ham remedy as important to the community.

APPLE PUDDING.—Fill a well-buttered pudding-dish with alternate layers of bread-crumbs from a stale loaf and tart, juicy apples. Sprinkle the apples thickly with sugar, to which add a flavoring of nutmeg. Over each layer of bread-crumbs throw small pieces of fresh butter. The under layer should be bread-crumbs, the top layer apples. Bake half to three-quarters of an hour. Just before it is done, whisk the white of three eggs to froth, with two tablespoonsful of white sugar and a bit of lemon. Spread it lightly over the whole, and return to the oven to set.

OATMEAL MUSH ROLLS.—Take cold oatmeal mush, and work in lightly enough wheatmeal to make it into rolls. Too much kneading spoils it. Roll out with the hands on the moulding-board into a long roll like a wooden rolling-pin, and about one inch and a half in diameter; cut off pieces two inches long, and bake on a grate in a quick oven twenty or twenty-five minutes. These can be made very light, dry and tender. They are also very weak, and are great favorites with those whose teeth have not been brought up on Graham flour and oatmeal. Serve warm or cold.

Saving Fuel.

Mr. Thos. Filer, of Fullersburg, Ill., writes that he has discovered a plan by which houses can be heated comfortably with less than one-fourth of the fuel now employed. This desirable result is obtained by "surrounding the rooms with non-conductors of heat." He says:

I speak from positive knowledge, having lived in such a house for seven or eight winters. And I am confident that my house is now so fixed that it will not require more than one-sixth part of the fuel generally used. I will not, in this article, give the modus operandi of constructing such houses, my only object, this time, being to call the attention of the editorial corps and the public generally, to the subject. If they shall consider it of sufficient importance to be discussed in the papers, I stand ready to bear my part in the discussion, and to give ample proof of the truth of my statements. The only reason why I have not tried to bring the subject before the public sooner, is that I found it extremely difficult to convince my nearest neighbors that it was of any importance. But that is changed now, and all of my neighbors can speak of its benefits from happy experience.—Inter-Ocean.

[The method pursued by Mr. Filer is to fill the space between the studding with some material like tan-bark or sawdust. We shall have more on this topic from him.—Ed. CYNOSURE.]

N. TIBBALS & SONS, 37 Park Row, New York, have published a new book of Messrs. Moody & Sankey's work as great Evangelists, with the best thoughts and discourses of Mr. Moody, and portraits on steel. The advantage of this addition is, it has been carefully edited, indexed and numbered, which gives easy reference to the thoughts and illustrations. 60 cents per copy. Agents wanted. Address publishers.

Religious Intelligence.

—As an indication of the increase of the religious sentiment, workshop meetings are being held in different parts of the country. The hour of noon is selected, and workmen in the workshops spend their noons in prayer and praise. These meetings originated in the workshops of Boston.

—It is said about forty-three per cent. of the families of St. Louis have not a Bible in them. The Bible Society of the city is making an effort to remedy this sad case.

—At Keokuk, Iowa, a few days ago, they met in a union mass-meeting, observing a whole day in fasting, humiliation and prayer, in the midst of their revival meetings, which have been in progress for six weeks past. These meetings are still in progress, and the audiences overflow, so that two or three contiguous churches are called into requisition to hold them. Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians and United Presbyterians are all working together, and God is greatly blessing that city.

—The New York meetings led by Moody and Sankey opened Monday, Feb. 7th, in the large hall of the Hippodrome. The meetings have been well attended; careful preparations have been made for them and the churches had already begun to be quickened by the Holy Spirit.

—Mr. Hammond, whose meetings in Harrisburg, Lancaster and York, Pa., have been blessed in the conversion of hundreds, has accepted an invitation to visit Washington. It is sincerely hoped that his efforts may have a right influence upon the people of that worldly city.

—The labors of Messrs. Whittle and Bliss in St. Louis are being blessed as in Minnesota and Wisconsin. The severity of the weather compelled a change of the place of holding the meeting to one of the city churches where they have been kept up with increasing interest. The labors of the evangelists are very highly spoken of, though Mr. Whittle does not inspire such enthusiasm there as did Mr. Hammond two years ago.

—Chester, Penn., was last month the scene of a powerful revival of revival of religion, in which the Third Presbyterian church had a leading part. One hundred are hopefully converted, and the work continues. Col. Theo. Hyatt, President of the Pennsylvania Military Academy, is an active member of this church, and we are informed that sixty cadets of that institution have professed conversion, and many others are seeking Christ. They have been conducting a prayer-meeting for the last two months.

—Father Chiniquy lately published in the Montreal Witness a letter of demission sent to the Roman Catholic Bishop of Montreal by 450 converts, who thus leave the church of Rome, and whose names are given in full.

—The Virginia Bible Society is doing all in its power to supply the great destitution among the colored people of the State. They are very eager to secure the books, and in a great many instances are ready and willing to pay for them.

—The "Christian Israelites" are a sect in Scotland. They claim to have received a revelation from God that they are descendents of the lost tribes of Israel, whom the Lord is thus gathering from among the nations, according to his promise by his prophets. They keep Sixth-day night, and also the hour from 10 to 11 A. M. of First-day as sacred time, by special revelation. They practice circumcision, and will not use mixed clothing, food, seeds, etc.

News of the Week.

The City.

A number of new whisky indictments are expected, which will implicate several prominent politicians. The fifteen or twenty rectifiers recently arrested, have been notified that they will have to plead this week. Nearly all will plead not guilty.——The Board of Trade has been investigating alleged discriminations in freight against the shippers from this city to the East, and found, on nearly all the lines, a most unjust state of things. Freight from points like Milwaukee and Peoria was cheaper than from here. The publication of this matter has compelled the roads to alter their rates to other points to place Chicago on an equal footing.

Washington.

Gen. Webster, U. S. Collector at Chicago, returned last week from a conference with the authorities at Washington, and reports that the President and his Cabinet are in perfect harmony on the whisky trials.——The Democrats in Congress are anxious for an early adjournment. Their leaders have fixed upon the time from April 1st to 15th.——President Grant has made a deposition before Judge Wait instead of going to St. Louis to testify in the Babcock case.——The Senate has passed the Centennial Bill.——Mr. Blaine made a strong speech in favor of sound currency, last week.

The Country.

Hon. Roscoe Conklin is being put forward for the Presidential nomination by the Republicans of New York and many in Congress.——At New Orleans the revenue authorities are briskly engaged in ferreting out cases of violation of the revenue laws, and already several leading wholesale liquor dealers have been indicted by the Grand Jury for neglecting to make proper entries in their books.——The trial of Gen. Babcock, Pres. Grant's Secretary, for complicity in the St. Louis whisky frauds, began last week. The newspaper reports represents the case as likely to go against him, although the testimony is not of the positive kind that gave the government the victory in every St. Louis trial thus far.——It is reported that rents in New York will be reduced one-third spring.——Montana has granted a conditional subsidy of $3,500,000 to the Northern Pacific railroad.——Out of 172 churches heard from last week, 51 had refused to attend the Plymouth church council.——The Wisconsin Assembly came to a dead lock last week and held a twenty-four hours continuous session.——A great fire occurred in New York last week with a loss of from two to three millions. Two firemen were killed and others injured.

Foreign.

The Porte has definitely agreed to apply Count Andrassy's reforms, except the clause that the revenue from direct taxation in Bosnia and Herzegovina shall be employed for the development of those provinces. The insurgents on the other hand, refuse to be satisfied with the Austrian reforms, and are resolved not to submit to Turkish rule.——A postal treaty has been signed by the representatives of the United States and Japan, agreeing that the letter postage shall be five cents between the two countries, and two cents upon newspapers not exceeding two ounces. The new arrangement will come into operation on the 1st of April next.——Public instruction has received a great impulse in Portugal, lately. In the small towns there is a continual increase of teachers, while in the Capital and other large cities night schools and those for adults are being constantly established.

ANTI-MASONIC BOOKS,

(Not our own Publications.)

For Sale by EZRA A. COOK & CO

13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

[FOR CATALOGUE OF PUBLICATIONS OF EZRA A. COOK & CO., See page 15.]

☞All books sent post paid, on receipt of retail price, but BOOKS SENT BY MAIL ARE NOT AT OUR RISK.

Books ordered by express are sold at 10 per cent. discount and SENT AT OUR RISK. Party ordering must pay express charges.

Elder Stearns' Books.

Stearns' Inquiry Into the Nature and Tendency of Masonry

With an Appendix,

SEVENTH EDITION.

338 Pages, in Cloth.....60 cents.
" " " Paper.....40 "

Stearns' Letters on Masonry.

Showing the antagonism between Freemasonry and the Christian Religion,
Price, 30 cents.

Stearns' Review of Two Masonic Addresses.

In this scathing review the lying pretentions of the order are clearly shown.
Price, 10 cents.

Levington's Key to Masonry.

This is Rev. Mr. Levington's last, and in the judgment of its anthor, best work on Masonry. The contents of the first chapter are as follows:

"Commencement and growth of Speculative or Symbolic Freemasonry—A table showing the thing at a glance—The nse that the Atheists made of it—Identical with Illuminism—Its connection with the French Revolntion, and with the Irish Rebellion—The action of the British Parliament with regard to it—Proofs of its diabolical purposes—Its Introdnction, doings, progress and designs in the United States."

The contents of the Eleventh chapter are thus startling:

"Knights of the Golden Circle—Graphic account of them by a seceding Knight, and remarks thereon, showing the identity of the order with Masonry—Quotations from Sir Walter Scott."

This work is thrilling in statement, and powerful in argumt. 425 pagenes,
Price. $1.35.

Light on Freemasonry,

BY ELDER D. BERNARD,

TO WHICH IS APPENDED A

Revelation of the Mysteries of Odd-fellowship by a Member of the Craft.

The whole containing over five hundred pages lately revised and republished. Price $2,00

The first part of the above work, Light on Freemasonry, 416 pages in paper cover, will be sent post paid on receipt of $1.

FOR SALE BY

United Brethren Publishing House,
DAYTON, O.
and by
EZRA A. COOK & CO.,
13 Wabash Ave, CHICAGO.

Finney on Masonry.

BOUND IN CLOTH, PRICE $1.00.

CHEAP EDITION,

Twenty-five dollars per hundred, by express and not less than 25 copies at that rate,

BY MAIL, POST-PAID:

Per doz.....$3.75,
Single copy.....35 c

ODD-FELLOWSHIP

JUDGED BY ITS OWN UTTERANCES;

Its Doctrine and Practice examined in the light of God's Word.

BY REV. J. H. BROCKMAN.

This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-Fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. It was originally published in German.
Price, bound in Boards, 75 cents.

GOOD TEMPLARISM EXPOSED.

Obligations, of the Initiatory Fidelity, Charity, and Royal Virtue Degrees.

This is a small book containing only the Obligations and some of the Odes of the Good Templars.

Single Copy, Post paid, ... 10cts.
Per Doz. " 75
Per 100 by Express,..... $4.50

Bernard's Appendix to Light on Masonry,

Showing the Character of the Institntion by it's terrible oaths and penalties. Paper covers, 25 cents.

Masonic Books,

FOR SALE AT THE CYNOSURE OFFICE.

☞All books sent post paid, on receipt of retail price, but BOOKS SENT BY MAIL ARE NOT AT OUR RISK.

Books ordered by express are sold at 10 per cent disconnt and SENT AT OUR RISK. Party ordering must pay express charges.

Those who wish to know the character of Freemasonry, as shown by its own publications, will find many standard works in the following list.

No sensible Mason dares deny that such men as Albert G. Mackey, the great Masonic Lexicographer, and Daniel Sickels, the Masonic anthor and publisher, are the highest Masonic anthority in the United States.

Allyn's Ritual of Masonry,

Illnstrated by a large nnmber of engravings, and containing a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, Orange nd Odd-fellows' societies. Price, $5.00.

Mackey's Masonic Ritualist;

OR

MONITORIAL INSTRUCTION BOOK

By ALBERT G. MACKEY,

Past General High Priest of the General Grand Chapter of the United States, Knight of the Eagle and Pelican, Prince of Mercy," Etc. Etc. Price, Cloth $2.25, Tuck $1.75,

Mackey's Lexicon of Freemasonry,

Containing a Definition of Terms, Notices of its History, Traditions and Antiquities, and an account of all the Rites and Mysteries of the Ancient World. 12 mo. 526 pages, $3 00

MACKEY'S MANUAL OF THE LODGE

OR

Monitorial Instructions in the Degrees of Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft, and Master Mason; with Ceremonies relating to Installations, Dedications, Consecrations, Laying of Corner-stones &c. Price, $2 00

MACKEY'S TEXT BOOK

OF

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

Illnstrating the Laws of Freemasonry, both written and unwritten.

This is the Great Law Book of Freemasonry 570 pages. Price, $2.50.

Webb's Monitor of Freemasonry,

LARGE EDITION, WITH NOTES

By ROB. MORRIS, Price, $1.50.
Pocket Edition, 75 cts.

SICKELS' FREEMASON'S MONITOR.

Containing the Degrees of Freemasonry embraced in the Lodge, Chapter, Council and Commandery, embellished with nearly 300 symbolic Illustrations. Together with Tactics and drill of Masonic Knighthood. Also, forms of Masonic Documents, Notes, Songs, Masonic dates, installations, etc. By D. Sickels, 32 mo tuck. Price $1.50. Cloth $1.00.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry,

A Practical Guide to the Ceremonies in the Degrees conferred in Masonic Lodge Chapter, Encampments, etc. Illustrated Edition In cloth, $1 25; paper. 75 cts.

Chase's Digest of Masonic Law.

Comprises a Complete Code of Regulations Decisions and Opinions upon Questions of Masonic Jurisprudence, Price, $2 25.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor

Illustrated with Explanatory Engravings Price $2 50.

GENERAL AHIMAN REZON AND FREEMASON'S GUIDE.

By DANIEL SICKELS, 33°

The most perfect Masonic Monitor published in the United States. Embellished with nearly 300 Engravings, and Portrait of the Author, Containing Monitorial Instructions in the Degrees of Entered Apprentice, Fellow-Craft, and Master Mason, with Explanatory Notes and Lectures; with the Ceremonies of Consecration and Dedication of New Lodges, Installation of Officers, Laying Foundation Stones, Dedication of Masonic Halls, Burial Services, Masonic Calendar, Ritnal for a Lodge of Sorrow, Masonic Trials, etc.
Bound in fine cloth extra, large 12mo.....$2.00.

TRUE MASONIC CHART; OR, HIEROGLYPHIC MONITOR.

By JEREMY L. CROSS, Grand Lecturer.

With a Memoir and Portrait of the Author, Containing all the Emblems explained in the Degrees of entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft, and Master Mason. Designed and arranged agreeably to the Lectures.
12mo. Cloth.....$1 50

FEMALE MASONRY.

MANNUAL OF THE ORDER OF THE EASTERN STAR.

Containing the Ritual, Symbols Lectures etc., of the five Degrees of "Adoptive Masonry:" Jeptha's Danghter; Rnth, Esther, Martha and Electa, profusely illustraited and handsomely bonnd.
Price.....$1 00.

ANTIMASONIC TRACTS.

WE NOW HAVE 25 ENGLISH TRACTS, ONE GERMAN, AND ONE SWEEDISH

These tracts are sold at the rate of $1.00 per 1000 pages.

"THE ANTI-MASONS SCRAP BOOK."

Contains 24 Cynosure Tracts, bound together, and is just the thing to select tracts from. Price 20 cents. See advertisement.

For information about Free Tracts see advertisement headed "Free Tracts."

Address EZRA A. COOK & Co.,
13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

TRACT NO. 1:

HISTORY OF MASONRY.

BY PRESIDENT J. BLANCHARD, OF WHEATON COLLEGE.

This is now published in three tracts of four pages each. Price of each, 50 cents per 100; $4 per 1000.

TRACT No. 1, PART FIRST—Shows the origin of Speculative Freemasonry, and is entiled "HISTORY OF MASONRY."

TRACT No. 1, PART SECOND—Is entitled "DESPOTIC CHARACTER OF FREEMASONRY"

TRACT No. 1, PART THIRD—Is entitled "FREEMASONRY A CHRIST-EXCLUDING RELIGION."

TRACT NO. 2:

MASONIC MURDER,

By REV. J, R. BAIRD, of Pleasantville, Pa., a seceding Mason who has taken 17 degrees. A 2-page tract at 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 3:

SECRETS OF MASONRY,

BY ELI TAPLEY.

This is a 4-page Illustrated Tract, showing the signs, grips and pass-words, of the first three degrees. 50 cents per 100, or $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 4:

GRAND! GREAT GRAND!!

BY PHILO CARPENTER.

This is a 2-page tract, calling the attention of the public to the despotic and ridiculous titles of Freemasonry. Price 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1,000.

TRACT. NO. 5:

Extracts From Masonic Oaths and Penalties, as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.

This tract is a reprint of a tract published in 1834, and is a very weighty document. A 4-page tract at 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 6:

Hon. John Quincy Adams' Letter.

Giving His and His Father's Opinion of Freemasonry (1831.);

AND

Hon. James Madison's Letter,

Giving His Opinion of Freemasonry (1832).

Both of these letters, in one 4-page tract, at 50 cents per 100: $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 7:

SATAN'S CABLE-TOW.

A 4-page tract. This is a careful analysis of the character of Masonic oaths, and shows them to be most blasphemons and unchristian; and the Masonic Cable Tow is clearly shown to be the Cable Tow by which Satan is leading thousands to eternal death 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 8:

Is a 2-page double tract, "ILLUSTRATED." The first page represents a Mason proclaimimg the wonderful wisdom and benevolence of the order, with an article below, entitled "Freemasonry is only 152 Years Old," and gives the time and place of its birth.

The second side is entitled, "Murder and Treason not Excepted," and shows that the Masonic order is treasonable in its constintion, and is both anti-Republican and anti-Christian. Price 25 cents per 100; $3 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 9, ILLUSTRATED:

FREEMASONRY IN THE CHURCH.

Copy of a petition for the higher degrees of Freemasonry, in which Blasphemons and Despotic Titles are enumerated and prayed for. The Copy was printed for the use of "Occidental Sovereign Consistory S. P. R. S," 32d degree—a Chicago Lodge—and was ordered by a deacon of a Christian Church who is Grand Orator of the Grand Lodge of Ill.

TRACT NO. 10:

CHARACTER AND SYMBOLS OF FREEMASONRY.

A 2-page tract, (ILLUSTRATED) by its "Grand Secretaries, Grand Lecturers, Perfect Prince Freemasons, Grand Inspector, Inquisitor Commanders, Grand High Priests," etc. The wonderful symbolical meaning of "the Cable Tow," "the Square and Compass," "the Lamb Skin, or white Apron,' ' and "the Common Gavel," are given in the exact words of the highest Masonic authority. 25 cents per 100 or $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 11;

Address of Niagara County Association, New York,

TO THE PUBLIC;

Concerning the Morgan Murder, and the character of Freemasonry shown by this and other Masonic murders. 50 cents per

TRACT NO. 12:

JUDGE WHITNEY AND MASONRY.

This tract contains a condensed account of Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois, on charge of unmasonic conduct in bringing Samuel L. Keith the murderer of Ellen Slade. and a member of his Lodge, to justice, with Judge Whitney's subsequent renunciation of Masonry,

An 8-page tract, $1.00 per 100; $8.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 13:

DR. NATHANIEL COLVER ON MASONRY,

and

HOWARD CROSBY, D. D.,

Chancellor of the University of New York, on SECRET SOCIETIES. A double 2-page tract 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 14:

GRAND LODGE MASONRY.

ITS RELATION TO CIVIL GOVERNMENT AND THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION.

Opening address before the Monmouth Convention, by PRES. J. BLANCHARD of WHEATON COLLEGE. This is a 16-page tract at $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 15:

MASONIC OATHS NULL AND VOID.

A clear and conclusive argument proving the invalidity of any oath or obligation to do evil. By REV. I. A. HART, Secretary National Christian Association. Published by special order of the Association. 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 16:

HON. SETH M. GATES ON FREEMASONRY.

PROOF THAT THE INSTITUTION THAT MURDERED MORGAN IS UNCHANGED IN CHARACTER.

This is a letter to the Monmouth Convention by Hon. Seth M Gates who was Deputy Sheriff of Genesee County, and also Secretary of the Leroy Lodge at the time of Morgan's Abduction. A 4-page tract, 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 17:

Origin, Obligations and Expenses of The Grange.

WITH A CONSTITUTION OF A FARMERS' CLUB.

This little tract ought to be put into the hands of every Farmer in the United States. Four-page tract, 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 18:

HON. WM. H. SEWARD ON SECRET SOCIETIES.

Extracts from a Speech on Know-nothingism in the U. S. Senate in 1855. The testimony of JOHN QUINCY ADAMS, MILLARD FILLMORE, CHIEF JUSTIC MARSHALL and others, is added.

A 2-page tract, [illegible] cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO, 19.

BRICKS FOR MASONS TO LAY.

WASHINGTON, MADISON, MARSHALL, RUSH, HANCOCK, ADAMS AND WEBSTER, give brief clear testimony against the Lodge A 2-page tract 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 20:

OBJECTIONS TO MASONRY.

By A SECEDING MASON, of Cornton, Vermont.

This tract contains many strong arguments against the Lodge drawn from personal experience, observation and study of its character. A 4-page tract at 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

TRACT NO. 21:

MASONIC CHASTITY.

BY EMMA A. WALLACE.

The aurnor, by wonderfully clear illustration and argument, shows the terribly corrupt nature of Freemasonry. No true woman who reads this will ever speak with approbation of this institution A 4-page tract 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

TRACT No. 22.

LINUS CHITTENDEN ON FREEMASONRY.

The Author a Seceding Master Mason states his objection to the Lodge, drawn both from experience and observation, in a clear concise and forcible style,

A 2 page tract, 25 cents per 100, $2.00 per 1,000.

TRACT No. 23.

MASONIC OATHS AND PENALTIES.

ADDRESS OF REV, A. M. MILLIGAN AT THE PITTSBURGH CONVENTION.

This is the clearest and most conclusive argument to show the wickedness of masonic oaths and the duty to disregard and repent of them that we have ever seen.

A 4 page tract, 50 cents per 100, $4.00 per 1,000

TRACT NO. 1, IN SWEDISH;

translated by Prof. A. R. CERVIN. A 15-page tract at $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

ENOCH HONEYWELL'S TRACT.

TO THE YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA. Postage 5cts. per 100, TRACTS FREE.

GERMAN CYNOSUCE TRACT A.

Six Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason.

By Rev. A. GROLE, Pastor, German M.E. Church, Worchester, Mass

This is our first German Tract, and it is a good one; it ought to have a large circulation. A 4 page tract, Price 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

FREE TRACTS.

A Tract Fund for the Free Distribution of Tracts]

HAS BEEN SECURED AND SHOULD NEVER BE EXHAUSTED. A friend has pledged this fund a dollar for every other dollar received, so EVERY NEW SUBSCRIPTION TO THE TRACT FUND COUNTS DOUBLE, and thus $10.00 pays for 20,000 pages of tracts.

The distribution of these tracts has already saved hundreds of young men from the lodge, but there is a great lack of funds to supply the constantly increasing demand for Free Tracts.

During the year ending July 1st, 1875 a little less than 150.000 pages of Cynosure Tracts were gratuitously sent out, mostly in very small lots. The present demand is fully 100.000 pages per month. but funds are lacking to meet it.

Many of our most earnest workers in this cause of God are poor men, who would be gladto circulate thousands of pages of Antimasonic literature if they could have them free.

SHALL WE NOT HAVE AN INEXHAUSTIBLETRACT FUND?

"THE ANTI-MASONS SCRAP BOOK."

Contains 24 Cynosure Tracts, bound together and is just the thing to select from. Price 20cents. See advertisement page 15.

Enoch Honeywell Esq., pays for an unlimitednumber of his tract addressed "To THE YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA." It is anexcelent tract, bearing the printed endorsement of Executive Committee of the National Christian Association. He has furnished the public over 150.000 pages ofthese tracts during the past year.

TRACTS FREE. If sent by mail, 5 cts per 100 is charged for postage,

Send Contributions and orders to

EZRA A. COOK.

Secretary of Tract Committee 13 Wabash Ave, Chicago Ill.

Descriptive Catalogue of Publications of Ezra A. Cook & Co.

13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

BOOKS.

FREEMASONRY EXPOSED,

by CAP'T. WILLIAM MORGAN.

THE GENUINE OLD MORGAN BOOK:—repnblished with engravings showing the Lodge Room, Dress of candidates, Signs, Due Guards, Grips, Etc.

This revelation is so accnrate that Freemasons mnrdered the author for writing it. Thonsands have testified to the correctness of the revelation and this book therefore sells very rapidly.

Price 25 cents.

Per Doz. Post Paid..... $2.00
Per hundred by express, (express charges extra.)..... $10.00

ODD FELLOWSHIP ILLUSTRATED.

A complete exposition of the Lodge Encampment and Rebecca (Ladies') Degree. The Signs, Grips, &c., shown by engravings.

Single copy, post paid,..... $ 25
Per Doz., " " 2 00
Per Hundred, Express charges extra,..... 10 00

EXPOSITION OF THE GRANGE.

EDITED BY REV. A. W. GEESLIN.

Illnstrated with Engravings showing Lodge Room, Signs, Signals, etc,

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 25
Per Doz., " " 2 00
Per 100 Express charges extra..... 10 00

Judge Whitney's Defense Before the Grand Lodge of Ill.

Jndge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the Lodge when S. L. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the Lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry.

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 20
Per Doz. " " 1 50
Per 100, Express charges extra..... 8 00

History of The Abduction and Murder of Cap't. Wm. Morgan,

As prepared by Seven Committees of Citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan.

This book contains indisputable, legal evidence that Freemasons, abducted and Murdered Wm. Morgan, for no other offence than the revelation of Masonry. It contains the sworn testimony of over twenty persons, including Morgan's wife, and no candid person after reading this book, can doubt that many of the most respectable FREEMASONS. in the Empire State, with others were concerned in this crime.

Single Copy, post Paid,... ..... 25 cents.
Per doz. " ..... $2,00.
Per 100, Express Charges Extra,..... 10.00.

Valance's Confession of The Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan.

This confession of Henry L. Valance, one of the three Freemasons who drowned Morgan in the Niagara River, was taken from the lips of the dying man by Dr. John C. Emery, of Racine County, Wisconsin in 1848; The confession bears clear evidence of trnthfnlness.

Single copy, post paid,..... 20 cents.
Per doz. " ..... $1.50.
Per 100 Express Charges Extra,..... 8.00.

The Mystic Tie or Freemasonry a League with the Devil.

This is an accornt of the Church Trial of Peter Cook, and wife of Elkhart, Indian, for refusing to support a Reverend Freemason; and their very able defence presented by Mrs. Lucia C. Cook, in which she clearly shows that Freemasonry, is antagonistic to the Christian Religion. Single Copy, post paid,..... 20 cents

Per dozen, post paid..... $1 50
Per hundred Express charges Extra,..... 9 00

NARRATIVES AND ARGUMENTS.

Showing the Conflict of Secret Societies with the Conetitution and Lawe of the Union and of the States, by FRANCIS SEMPLE.

The fact that Secret Societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of Law is here clearly proved.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 20
Per doz. " " $1.75
Per 100 Express charges Extra..... 9.00

THE BROKEN SEAL.

OR PERSONAL REMINISCENCES OF THE ABDUCTION AND MURDER OF Wm. MORGAN,

By SAMUEL D. GREENE,

Price in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 cents.

In Paper Covers per Doz. Post paid..... $4 50
" per hundred by express (ex. charges extra $25.00

Capt. Wm. Morgan was Mr. Greene's neighbor in Batavia, N. Y., and a member of the same lodge with him at the time of the great excitement in 1826. The titles to these chapters are sufficiently exciting to give the book a large sale:—"The Storm Gathering;" "Abduction of Morgan;" "Attempted Abdnction of Miller and his Rescue;" "What became of Morgan;" "What Morgan Actually Revealed;" "Confession of the Murderer;" "Allegations against Freemasonry, etc."

THE ANTI-MASON'S SCRAP BOOK,

CONSISTING OF 21 CYNOSURE TRACTS.

In this book are the views of more than a Score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of Secret Societies.

The dangerous tendency and positive evil of organized Secrecy is here shown by the most varied and powerfnl arguments and illustrations that have ever been given to the public.

Lecturers and others who wish to find the best arguments against the Lodge, should send for this book.

Those who wish to circulate Antimasonic Tracts ought to have the book to select from.

Single Copy, post paid, ...20 cents.
Per Doz. " $1.75
Per 100, Express charges Extra,..... $10.00

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion.

A clear cutting argument against the Lodge, from a Christian Stand point.

Single Copy post paid..... $ 05
Por doz. " " 50
Per 100 Express Charges Extra..... 3 00

President H. H. GEORGE, On Secret Societies.

A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian Churches, to disfellowship Secret Societies.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 10 cts.
Per doz, " ..... 75 "
Per 100, Express charges Extra, ... $4.00.

PHELPS' SECRET SOCIETIES Ancient and Modern.

A NEW BOOK OF GREAT INTEREST.

This work is particnlariy commended to the attention of Officers of The Army and Navy, The Bench and The Clergy.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

"THE ANTIQUITY OF SECRET SOCIETIES, THE LIFE OF JULIAN, THE ELEUSINIAN MYSTERIES, THE ORIGIN OF MASONRY, WAS WASHINGTON A MASON? FILMORE'S AND WEBSTER'S DEFERENCE TO MASONRY, A BRIEF OUTLINE OF THE PROGRESS OF MASONRY IN THE UNITED STATES, THE TAMMANY RING, MASONIC BENEVOLENCE, THE USES OF MASONRY, AN ILLUSTRATION, THE CONCLUSION."

Single Copy, Post Paid..... 50
Per Doz " " $4 75
Per Hundred, Express Charges Extra..... $25 00

HON. JOHN QUINCY ADAMS' LETTERS

to Col. Wm. Stone, Edward Livingstone,

and others, on the nature of

Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties.

Price, post paid..... $ 50
Per Doz., " 4 50
Per 100, Express Charges extra..... 25 00

COLLEGE SECRET SOCIETIES.

Their Customs, Character and the Efforts for their Suppression.

BY H. L. KELLOGG.

Containing the opinion of many prominent College Presidents, and others, and a FULL ACCOUNT OF THE MURDER OF MORTIMER LEGGETT

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 35
Per Doz " " 2 50
Per 100 Express charges extra..... 15 00

MINUTES OF THE SYRACUSE CONVENTION,

Containing addresses by Rev. B. T. Roberts, Chas. D. Greene, Esq., Prof. C. A. Blanchard, Rev. D. P. Rathbun, Rev. D. S. Caldwell, Mrs. M. E. Gage, Elder J. R. Baird and others. Unpublished Reminiscences of the Morgan Times, by Elder David Bernard; Recollections of the Morgan Trials, as related by Victory Birdseye, Esq., and presented by his daughter, Mrs. C. B. Miller; Secretary's report; roll of delegates; songs of Mr. G. A. Clark; paper by Enoch Honeywell; Constitution N. C. A.; reports of committees, and a report of the political meeting.

Single Copy, post paid, ... 25
Per doz. " " $2.00
Per 100 Express Ccarges Extra..... 10.00

Paoceedings of the Pittsburgh Convention,

Containing Official Reports; Addresses by Rev. D. R. Kerr, D.D. Rev. B. T. Roberts, Rev. G. T. R. Meiser, Prof. J. R. W. Sloane, D. D., Prest. J. Blanchard, Rev. A. M. Milligan, D. D., Rev. Woodruff Post, Rev. Henry Cogswell, Prof. C. A. Blanchard, and Rev W. E. Coquilette, also Report of the POLITICAL MASS CONVENTION, with Platform and Cadidates for the Presidential Campaign of 1876.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 25 cts.
Per doz " $2,00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 10.00

SERMON ON MASONRY,

BY REV. W. P. M'NARY,

Pastor United Presbyterian Church, Bloomington, Ind.

This is a very clear, thorough, candid and remarkably concise Scriptural argnment on the character of Freemasonry.

Single Copy, Post Paid,..... 5
Per Doz,..... 50
Per Hundred, Express Charges Extra,..... $3 00

THIRTEEN REASONS

Why a Christian Should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong.

The author states his reasons clearly and carefully, and any one of the thirteen reasons, if properly considered, will keep a Christian out of the Lodge.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 5
Per doz. " " 50
Per 100, Express charges extra,..... $3.00

SERMON ON MASONRY,

BY REV. JAMES WILLIAMS.

Presiding Elder of Dakota District North-western Iowa Conference, M. E. Church, A SECEDING MASTER MASON.

Published at the special request of the Nine Clergymen of different denominations and others.

Single Copy, post paid..... 10
Per doz. " " 75
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... $4.00

MASONRY A WORK OF DARKNESS

ADVERSE TO CHRISTIANITY, and Inimical to a Republican Government.

BY REV. LEBBEUS ARMSTRONG, [Presbyterian.]

A Seceding Mason of 21 Degrees.

This is a very telling work and no honest man that reads it will think of joining the lodge. Single Copy, post paid,..... 20cts.

Per doz, post paid,..... $1.50.
" 100, Express Charges Extra..... 8.00.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy.

Address of Prest. J. BLANCHARD, before the Pittsburgh Convention.

This is a most convincing argument against the lodge.

Single Copy, Post Paid... ..... $ 05
Per Doz " " 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

GRAND LODGE MASONRY.

Its relation to civil Government and the Christian Religion.

By Prest. J. BLANCHARD, at the Monmouth Convention.

The Unchristian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is here proved from the highest masonic anthorities.

Single Copy, Post Paid,..... $ 05
Per Doz..... 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

SERMON ON SCERETISM

BY REV. R. THEO. CROSS.

This is a very clear array of the objections to Masonry that are apparent to all.

By Rev. R. T. Cross, Pastor Congregational Church, Hamilton, N.Y.

Single Copy, Post Paid..... $ 05
Per Doz..... 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

Sermon on Secret Societies,

BY REV. DANIEL DOW, Woodstock, Conn.

The special object of this sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the Character of Secret Societies, no matter what object they profess to have.

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 05
Per Dozen, " " 50
Per 100 Express charges extra..... 3 00

HISTORY OF THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought; The Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association, Conditions of the Carpenter Donation with Engraving of building to be donated by Mr. Carpenter; Tables showing the number of Pastors and communicants in church es that exclude members of Secret Societies, Tabular view of Local, County State and National Conventions, and list of organizations Auxiliary to the National Christian Association; Brief opinions of Eminent Men on Secret Societies, and Testimonies of Religious Bodies against them. This book will be found invaluable by all who wish to know the character of this reform and how they may do the most to further its objects. It should be in the hands of every Antmason.

Price post paid,.....25 cents each,
per doz;.....$1,50

25 copies or more by express at 8 cents each.

NEW BOOKS

—o—

HAND BOOK

—OF—

FREEMASONRY,

A COMPLETE

Illustrated Exposition,

—OF—

BLUE LODGE

MASONRY

—BY—

EDMOND RONAYNE,

LATE PAST MASTER OF KEYSTONE LODGE, NO. 639, CHICAGO, ILL.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 50cts.
Per doz. " " $4.00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra,..... 25.00

RITUAL OF THE

GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC

WITH SIGN OF RECOGNITION, PASS WORD GR.IP ETC,

—AND THE—

RITUAL OF THE

MACHINISTS AND BLACKSMITHS UNION,

(THE TWO BOUND TOGETHER.)

Single Copy, post paid,..... 25
Per doz. " $2.00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra,..... 1000

Publishers' Department.

The Mail List.

Whole number subscribers
Sat. Feb. 12, 3,796
Whole number of subscribers
Sat. Feb. 5, 3,782
Gain in one week, 14

Unless we are mistaken the increase will be more rapid during the remaining days of this month. Every little helps. Will you assist in making the list four thousand by Saturday, F bruary 26th, two weeks from the above report? The mail list has been pruned for its health, now let it grow.

How many whose subscriptions expire in March and April are getting new subscriptions to send in with their renewals? The proper way to increase the subscription list is for each subscriber to multiply his name by two, three, four or more every time he sends his renewal.

Prospect for Clubs.

We have received one fine club—fourteen names—collected by A C. Moffat, Albion, Iowa. It was procured by faithful, hard work. God has certainly given a good increase. J. S. McConnell sends two or three names of the large club he has secured and writes, "I will forward the names as fast as I can collect the money." This seems to be a safe and proper way to do.

Two new tracts, numbers 24 and 25, ought to be put into the hands of every Christian and voter in the country. If you cannot circulate the tracts, can you send money to the tract fund to help those who can circulate the tracts but cannot pay for them?

SUBSCRIPTIONS RECEIVED DURING WEEK ENDING Feb. 12, 1876, from—J Black, W Bloodgood, J H Berryman, L C Burke, Miss E Chesebro, H Casteel, O Dudley, T Douglas, W H Figg, B J Fillmore, I Graessle, G A Gibson, J Hogue, J C Hilborn, J Henry, A Hadley, J S Hickman (2), E Jarvis, T Johnston, L Ketchum, J T Kiggins, W W Knipple, W Lee, L Larabee, M G McAdams, A C Moffatt, H W Marsh, J F Morton, J McConnell, E D Olmsted, J M Oxley, S Y Orr, D Oglesby, M B Perkins, W Parkis, Mrs. L Rons, A T Riley, D A Richards, G G Ritchie, C B Sherk, J Steel, A H Springstein, J Starns, Sen., Mrs. E C Stevens, O B Scott, P Stiles, A Sargent, E C Spencer, J S Terry, J A Vance, T Wenner, W Waterman, J Wood, D Wallace, O Wilbur.

SOMETHING NEW.

A CHART OF MASONRY

Showing the degrees from the first to the thirty-third, entitled

Degrees of Ancient Accepted Scottish Freemasonry,

According to a Manual by Wm. M. Cunningham 33d Degree.

Designed by Rev. P. Stoddard, to explain Freemasonry, as shown by Morgan's Exposition and Richardson's Monitor.

A Neat Lithograph 22x28 Inches.

Single copies finely colored, post paid..... $ 75
Per dozen " " " " 5 00
Per 100 " " " " Express charges extra..... 35 00
Single copy, colored, varnished and mounted postpaid..... 1 00
Per dozen colored, varnished and mounted, post paid..... 7 50
Per 100, colored, varnished and mounted, express charges extra..... 50 00

25 COPIES OR MORE SENT AT THE 100 RATES.

How to Send Money.

Post office orders, checks or drafts on Chicago or towns east of Chicago, and currency by express may be sent at our risk. If it is not possible to send by either of the four ways named, money in a registered letter may be sent at our risk, but it is not as safe.

The date at which subscriptions expire is with each subscriber's name on the address label. Send renewals before this date occurs. Notice if this date is changed to correspond; if not or if the paper fails to come, write without delay.

We discontinue during the first part of each month all subscriptions which expire during the preceding one except such as are ordered continued with a promise to forward the money soon. We do not like to lose a single subscriber and will not remove names simply because the cash is not received promptly, if we understand that the paper is wanted. Address all letters with subscriptions or orders for Books, Tracts and donations to the Tract Fund to EZRA A. COOK & Co., 13 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

ADVERTISING RATES.

1	square, 1 insertion,		$2.00
1	square (1 inch deep)	one month	7.00
1	" "	2 "	10.00
1	" "	3 "	15.00
1	" "	6 "	25.00
1	" "	12 "	40.00

Discount for Space.

On 2 squares 5 per cent, On 3 squares 10 per cent
On 4 " 15 " " On 5 " 20 "
On ¼ col. 25 per cent On one col. 30 per cent

Agents Wanted!

TO SELL THE PUBLICATIONS OF

EZRA A. COOK & CO.

Liberal Terms Offered.

Capable persons who are in need of pecuniary aid may clear

Handsome Profits,

While at the same time aiding the cause of Reform. Apply to EZRA A. COOK & CO., No. 13 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

$250 A MONTH—Agents wanted everywhere. Business honorable and first class. Particulars sent Address J. WORTH & Co., St. Louis, Mo
1yrJul

$77 A WEEK guaranteed to Male and Female Agents, in their locality. Costs NOTHING to try it. Particulars Free. P. O. VICKERY & CO., Augusta, Me.
6m.dec.30-75.

SAVE MONEY

by sending $4.75 for any $4 Magazine and THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE (regular price $6), or $5.75 for the Magazine and THE SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE (regular price $3). Address

THE TRIBUNE, New-York.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO, Feb. 14, 1876.

Grain Wheat—Spring, No. 1..	$	1 09
" No. 2	1 03	1 03¾
" No. 3	84	84½
" Rejected		78½
Corn—No. 2	41	41¼
Rejected	32	36
Oats—No. 2		31½
Rejected	26½	27
Rye—No. 2		67
Bran per ton		9 50
Flour—Winter	4 75	7 50
Spring	3 00	5 25
Hay—Timothy	8 00	12 50
Prairie, "	6 00	9 00
Mess Beef	9 50	11 00
Tallow		8¾
Dressed Hogs	8 90	9 00
Lard per cwt		12 57½
Mess pork, per bbl		20 75
Butter fancy yellow 32c.; common to choice roll	16	23
Cheese	9	13½
Eggs		17
Seeds—Timothy	2 00	2 37½
Clover	8 00
Flax	1 20	1 25
Poultry—Turkeys per lb dressed	10	12½
Chickens " "	7	9
Potatoes		17
Apples from store	3 00	4 00
Broom corn	3	11¼
Hides green to dry salted	5½	12
Lumber—Clear	38 00	42 00
Common	11 00	12 00
Fencing	12 00	13 00
Shingles	2 75	3 00
WOOL—Washed	39	53
Unwashed	25	33
LIVE STOCK Cattle, Choice	5 25	5 50
Good	4 30	4 75
Medium	4 10	4 25
Common	3 00	3 75
Hogs	7 40	8 25
Sheep	3 75	5 50
New York Market
Flour	$ 3 15	3 00
Wheat—Winter	1 20	1 47
Spring	1 02	1 40
Corn	60	64½
Oats	46	52
Rye	87	92
Lard		13
Mess pork		22 45
Butter	15	31
Cheese	6	13½
Eggs	16	19

ESTABLISHED 1867.

EZRA A. COOK & CO.,

STEAM PRINTERS

LITHOGRAPHERS,

STATIONERS

—AND—

Book Binders.

NOS. 7, 9, 11 & 13

Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

We were in the Stationery, Printing and Lithographing business before the Cynosure was started.

WE PRINT

Books, Pamphlets, Catalogues, Business Cards, Show Cards, Letter Heads, Bill Heads, Note Heads, Circulars, Hand Bills, Posters, Checks, Drafts, Notes, Certificates of Deposit, Certificates of Stock, Diplomas, etc.,

WE BIND

Blank Books, Magazines, Catalogues, Checks, Drafts, Notes, Certificates, Bank Pass Books, Etc., Etc.

WE LITHOGRAPH

Business Cards, Letter Heads, Note Heads, Bill Heads, Circulars, Checks, Drafts, Certificates of Stock, Certificates of Deposit, Plats and Charts; also elegant Diplomas for Colleges, Literary Societies, and Agricultural Societies, in one, two or three Colors. Samples and Prices sent on Application.

All work executed in the

BEST STYLE,

at the

LOWEST MARKET RATES.

WE FILL ORDERS PROMPTLY, and GUARANTEE GOOD WORK.

SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO ORDERS BY MAIL.

Samples and prices sent promptly when desired.

Address:

EZRA A. COOK & CO.,

7, 9, 11 & 13 Wabash Avenue,

CHICAGO.

NEW CLUB RATES

—FOR—

1876.

CLUB RATES.

No commission is allowed on club rates. Club rates are intended for those who wish to give the commission to subscribers.

Club Rates Including Postage.

Papers Addressed to one or different Post Offices as desired.

2 to 4 Subs., 1 year, Old or New sent at one time, at	$2.00 each
5 to 9 " " " " " " "	1 80 "
10 to 14 " " " " " " "	1.70 "
15 to 19 " " " " " " "	1.60 "
20 or more " " " " " "	1.50 "

Subscription Papers and Circulars sent free on application.

Excelsior Marriage Certificate.

It is decidedly the most BEAUTIFUL, TASTEFUL and SENSIBLE thing of the kind I have ever seen."—Rev. F. G. Hibbard, D. D.

"The most SCRIPTURAL, BEAUTIFUL and APPROPRIATE Marriage Certificate I have ever seen."—Late Rev. H. Mattison, D. D.

"SOMETHING NEW AND BEAUTIFUL, which we pronounce the handsomest thing of the kind we ever laid eyes on."—Meth. Home Journal, Phila.

Contains two Ornamental Ovals, for Photographs

A BEAUTIFUL LITHOGRAPH 14 1-4 by 18 1-4 inches. 25 cts each, $2.25 per doz- $15 per 100.

For Sale by Ezra A. Cook & Co., CHICAGO.

CALIFORNIA

Have you any thought of going to California? Are you going West, North, or North-West? You want to know the best routes to take?

The shortest, safest, quickest and most comfortable routes are those owned by the Chicago and North-Western Railway Company. It owns over two thousand miles of the best roads there is in the country. Ask any ticket agent to show you its maps and time cards. All ticket agents can sell you through tickets by this route.

Buy your tickets via the Chicago & North-Western Railway for the West and North-West, and for

SAN FRANCISCO,

Sacramento, Ogden, Salt Lake City, Cheyenne, Denver, Omaha, Lincoln, Council Bluffs, Yankton, Sioux City, Dubuque, Winona, St. Paul, Duluth, Marquette, Green Bay, Oshkosh, Madison, Milwaukee, and all other points West or North-West of Chicago.

If you wish the best traveling accommodations, you will buy your tickets by this route, and will take no other.

This popular route is unsurpassed for speed, comfort and safety. The smooth, well-ballasted and perfect track of Steel Rails, Westinghouse Air Brakes, Miller's Safety Platform and Couplers, the celebrated Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars, the perfect Telegraph System of Moving Trains, the regularity with which they run, the admirable arrangement for running Through Cars from Chicago to all points West, North and North-West, secures to passengers all the COMFORTS IN MODERN RAILWAY TRAVELING.

PULLMAN PALACE CARS

are run on all through trains of this road.

This is the ONLY LINE running these cars between Chicago and St. Paul, Chicago and Milwaukee, or Chicago and Winona.

At Omaha our Sleepers connect with the Overland Sleepers on the Union Pacific Railroad for all points West of the Missouri River.

On the arrival of the trains from the East or South, the trains of the Chicago and North-Western Railway LEAVE CHICAGO as follows:

For Council Bluffs, Omaha and California, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Palace Drawing Room and Sleeping Cars through to Council Bluffs.

For St. Paul and Minneapolis, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Palace Cars attached on both trains.

For Green Bay and Lake Superior, Two Trains daily, with Pullman Palace Cars attached, and running through to Marquette.

For Milwaukee, four Through Trains daily. Pullman Cars on night trains, Parlor Chair Cars on day trains.

For Sparta and Winona and points in Minnesota, One Through Train daily, with Pullman Sleepers to Winona.

For Dubuque, via Freeport, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Cars on night trains.

For Dubuque and La Crosse, via Clinton, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Cars on night trains to McGregor, Iowa.

For Sioux City and Yankton, Two Trains daily. Pullman Cars to Missouri Valley Junction.

For Lake Geneva, Four Trains daily.

For Rockford, Sterling, Kenosha, Janesville, and other points you can have from two to ten trains daily.

New York Office, No. 415 Broadway; Boston Office, No. 5 State Street; Omaha Office, 238 Farnham Street; San Francisco Office, 121 Montgomery Street; Chicago Ticket Offices: 62 Clark Street, under Sherman House: corner Canal and Madison Streets; Kinzie Street Depot, corner W. Kinzie and Canal Streets; Wells Street Depot, corner Wells and Kinzie Streets.

For rates or information not attainable from your home ticket agents, apply to

W. H. STENNETT, General Pass. Ag't, Chicago.
MARVIN HUGHITT, Gen. Sup't, Chicago.
[Eastern.]

THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.

"In Secret Have I Said Nothing."—Jesus Christ.

EZRA A. COOK & CO., PUBLISHERS, NO 18 WABASH AVENUE.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1876.

VOL. VIII., NO. 20.—WHOLE NO. 307
WEEKLY (post paid) $2 20 A YEAR

Contents.

	Page
TOPICS OF THE TIME	1
EDITORIAL ARTICLES:
"They know not at what they Stumble."	8
CONTRIBUTED AND SELECT ARTICLES:
The Reformer. (Poetry)	1
What Control has Secretism over the Public Press	1
What Sayest thou to these Things	2
The Philosophy of Reform	2
Zenith and Nadir	8
The Change of the Sabbath	8
REFORM NEWS AND NOTICES! Annual meeting of the Niagara County Association; Further Comments on the Wisconsin Convention; H. H. Hinman in Mercer Co., Ill.; Greenfield, O., Monthly meeting; The Groton N. Y. Association	4,5,6
CORRESPONDENCE: Political Action; The Usurping Lodge; Office-Holders in the Lodge; Turn over the "t"; That New Hampshire Convention; Our Mail	6,7
Facts for the People (Tract)	13
Obituary—John Hubbard	9
N. C. A. Department	9
THE HOME CIRCLE	10
CHILDREN'S CORNER	11
The Sabbath School	7
Temperance	12
Farm and Garden	7
Religious Intelligence	12
News of the Week	9
Publishers' Department	16

Topics of the Time.

It has been stated lately that the South is relatively the Protestant section of the country and such statistics as the following given in proof: The entire territory lately covered by slavery has a smaller Roman Catholic population than the two States of Massachusetts and New York; Illinois has more Romanists than the twelve Southern States; Indiana as many as ten Southern States. Kansas has nearly 5,000 more Roman Catholic church sittings than Virginia. This shows only a numerical strength, which is overborne by other relations uniting the interests of Rome with those of the South as opposed to the Union. These are political, educational and religious. The Pope recognized the Confederacy and would do so again under the same circumstances; the great prevailing ignorance is convenient for papal operations; the churches long imbued with the sin of slavery would with less persuasion embrace the errors of Rome. Protestantism is strongest where, like its Divine Lord, it is most active and earnest.

Congress sometimes makes us overlook its tedious garrulity and parliamentary maneuvers by a measure which acts to strengthen the mercy side of human hearts. Our societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals and sanitary organizations have done much to amend the severe usage of animals in transit from the prairies to the markets; and the Senate has now passed an act making railroad companies and owners of stock responsible for suitable rest and feeding of stock in cars or other conveyance. The proposition to give seven hours rest and time to eat after twenty-four hours of travel supplies a perpetual admonition to a brutal drover as well as more wholesome rosts from the markets.

As the quadrennial election approaches a most timely topic will be the relation of candidates with the lodge. Gen. Sherman is reported as saying that as to his religion that was nobody's business. But Gen. Sherman has made mistakes before. It is the business of the American people to know what moral or immoral principles the man they ask to serve them may have. It is their business to know whether he worships with joss sticks before a dirty Chinese idol, or has his familiar spirits, or practices before the Baal altar of the lodge; whether he obeys and worships the true God in Christ, or the devil, or does not worship or obey any god but his own pitiable self. There is too much of vital interest to the nation lying back of all this to smother or bluff off the question of a candidate's moral principles. So begin to put interrogation points after every candidate's name. Look after the lodge affiliation first, generally, as a key to all the rest, and because that is less public. Let the questioning begin.

The question of specie resumption was supposed to be settled with the elections of last fall, but the methods are yet under debate and far from any conclusion. It is widely believed by public men that, if the act of last year fixing the term of resumption is unrepealed, great stringency and suffering will follow in all departments of business. The New York Board of Trade has sent a memorial to the Senate declaring that the fixing of a day absolutely for the resumption of specie payments instead of awaiting the operation of natural laws, must advance the price of gold, as the day approached, thus depressing the industries of the country, and that other methods must be adopted for giving a fixed value to the national currency before it would be safe to attempt the resumption of specie payments. Secretary Bristow has recommended a provision for funding the surplus greenbacks in bonds before resumption, as a remedy for the any or all the deplorable consequences prophecied by the inflationists. Such consequences at their worst would be soon overused are preferable to the long agnoy the business of the country is enduring from uncertain and halting legislation on the question

---

Infinite toil would not enable you to sweep away a mist; but by ascending a little you may look over it altogether. So it is with our moral improvements; we wrestle fiercely with a vicious habit, which would have no hold upon us if we ascend into a higher moral atmosphere.

The Reformer.

All grim, and soiled, and browned with tan,
I saw a Strong One, in his wrath,
Smiting the godless shrines of man
Along his path.

The Church beneath her trembling dome,
Essayed in vain her ghostly charm;
Wealth shook within its gilded home
With strange alarm.

Fraud from his secret chambers fled
Before the sunlight bursting in;
Sloth drew her pillow o'er her head
To drown the din.

"Spare," Art implored, "yon holy pile;
That grand old time-worn turret, spare."
Meek Reverence, kneeling in the aisle,
Cried out, "Forbear!"

Grey-bearded Use, who, deaf and blind,
Groped for his old accustomed stone,
Leaned on his staff, and wept to find
His seat o'erthrown.

Yet londer rang the Strong One's stroke,
Yet nearer flashed his axe's gleam;
Shuddering, and sick of heart, I woke,
As from a dream.

I looked; aside the dust-cloud rolled;
The Waster seemed the Builder too;
Up-springing from the ruined Old
I saw the New.

'Twas but the ruin of the bad,
The wasting of the wrong and ill:
Whate'er of good the old time had
Was living still.

Calm grew the brow of him I feared;
The frown which awed me passed away,
And left behind a smile which cheered
Like breaking day.

The grain grew green on battle plains,
O'er swarded war-mounds grazed the cow,
The slave stood forging from his chains
The spade and plow.

Where frowned the fort, pavilion gay
And cottage windows, flower-entwined,
Looked out upon the peaceful bay
And hills behind.

Through vine-wreathed cups, with wine once red
The lights on brimming crystal fell,
Drawn, sparkling, from the rivulet head
And mossy well.

Through prison-walls, like Heaven-sent hope,
Fresh breezes blew, and sunbeams strayed,
And with the idle gallows rope
The young child played.

Where the doomed victim in his cell
Had counted o'er the weary hours,
Glad school-girls, answering to the bell,
Came crowned with flowers.

Grown wiser for the lesson given,
I fear no longer, for I know
That where the share is deepest driven
The best fruits grow.

The outworn rite, the old abuse,
The pious fraud transparent grown,
The good held captive in the use
Of wrong alone—

These wait their doom from that great law
Which makes the past time serve to-day;
And fresher life the world shall draw
From their decay.

O backward-looking son of time!
The new is old, the old is new,
The cycle of a change sublime
Still sweeping through.

Idly as thou, in that old day
Thou mournest, did thy sire repine;
So, in his time, thy child grown gray
Shall sigh for thine.

But life shall on and upward go;
The eternal step of Progress beats
To that great anthem, calm and slow,
Which God repeats.

Take heart! the Waster builds again,
A charmed life old Goodness hath;
The tares may perish, but the grain
Is not for death.

God works in all things; all obey
His first propulsion from the night;
Wake thou, and watch! the world is gray
With morning light.

—Whittier.

What Control has Secretism over the Public Press?

BY GEO. W. CLARK.

There are many facts constantly transpiring which are ominously suggestive on this subject. The following communications with a request to publish Honeywell's address to "Young Men of America" was recently addressed to a respectable editor in Western New York after a great flourish of trumpets by the Odd-fellows, a festival and elaborate and buncome speeches in defense and justification of secretism, and after nearly every number of his paper contained favorable notices of secret societies, Odd-fellows, Masons, etc., calculated to "draw in" unsuspecting and unsophisticated young men. The publication of the article was respectfully declined. I send it to the Cynosure.

MR. EDITOR:—Dear Sir, I notice much in your paper devoted to the interest and laudation of secret oath-bound societies. Trusting you are in favor of free discussion, and so of course would be willing to accord a hearing to the many of your readers who are opposed to such societies, I take the liberty to send you for publication the following address to "Young Men of America," hoping it may have the effect to open the eyes and save many from being deceived and led into these secret conclaves.

Whatever supposed excuse or justification of secret combinations which, it is assumed, may have existed in the dark ages when persons, and property, and homes, and lives were in constant jeopardy from irresponsible, tyranical despots, or from lawless banditti—no such excuse or justification exists now in this enlightened and civilized age, and much more in this land of constitutional laws and republican institutions. Secret, covert, oath-bound cabals are not only unnecessary but they are wrong in principle. They are unnatural, and are opposed to the brotherhood of man; to the oneness and unity of the race. They establish and foster caste and are therefore invidious and consequently odious. They are not only unnatural and invidious, but they are conceived and operated on low, selfish and exclusive principles. They pervert to useless and vain display and mere sensuous gratification a vast amount of time and money which should go to legitimate business; to the support of families, and to educational, benevolent and Christian purposes.

They are dangerous—a combined, dark, sworn and secret power that has been used, and is being used, and may again at any time be used by designing men for evil purposes. Surely when unselfish, unsordid, benevolent, humane or any worthy considerations actuate men they have no desire as they have no need, to band themselves together under cover of darkness and by extra-judicial and horrid oaths, and with secret signs, and grips and passwords! Honesty, fair dealing, true merit, noble designs, real worth have no occasion for sworn secrecy, for oath-bound concealment. True, honest, manly purpose requires no artificial, extraneous props of this kind,—no dark, hidden and questionable measures of support. True philanthropy, genuine patriotism, sincere benevolence, meretricious industry, pure Christianity are not of the "dark lantern" order. They are not "cabalistic" and do not need, nor do they work by "cable-tows." They are open, free, frank and transparent. They do not "light a candle and put it under a bushel;" nor have they any "fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness but rather reprove them." "In secret," said our great Example, "have I said nothing." All the teachings, all the impulses, all the promptings, and all the out-goings of Christianity and of Christianized humanity are as a "city set on a hill whose light cannot be hid."

What Sayest Thou to These Things?

Respected Brother Dubs:—As the questions which I laid before you in the Christian Cynosure remain unanswered, I purpose addressing you in a series of letters as a review of the whole matter. I address you not as an enemy, but as a brother in Christ, and in a Christian spirit; but in plain language, for the sake of the truth.

It cannot be denied that the majority of our Protestant churches are silent and stand neutral in regard to the evil of secret societies; and in this the Evangelical Association is no exception, as a body. There are some in the ministry and membership who witness against them; many are timid and afraid; others are grieved because the church, in her highest authority, does not speak out plainly, as the exigencies of the times and the tenor and spirit of the church discipline require. How does this accord with the sturdy faith and spirit of the fathers fifty and sixty years ago? Of course they were not so popular with the world in those days.

Has not policy taken the place of principle by many in the ministry, in these things?

I must confess that I was somewhat mistaken in regard to the extent of the evil in the Evangelical Association, believing the western part of the church comparatively free from it. But a letter is before me, from a brother in Iowa. After expressing his opinion on that "open letter," he adds, with sorrow, "our presiding elder here is a Royal Arch Mason," and "how can such a man do any good?" I was astonished at this unexpected news. Let us now stand still a little and look at the facts in this case.

Taking this statement for granted, for the brother seems to know whereof he affirms, let us now see what that man went through in being made a Royal Arch Mason. We will say nothing of the first six degrees and their ungodly oaths, that are evil enough in themselves to condemn a world, nor of the shameful manner in which he went through them; but what we will particularly notice is, in the first place, the name he assumes—the name of our blessed God which he gave himself when he spake to Moses out of the burning bush, "I AM THAT I AM." Is this not blasphemy?

Next, look at the oath of this degree. We will quote a part of it only:

"Furthermore, do I promise and swear that I will aid and assist a companion R. A. Mason when engaged in any difficulty, and espouse his cause, so far as to extricate him from the same, if in my power, whether he be right or wrong. Also that I will promote a companion R. A. Mason's political preferment, in preference to another of equal qualifications. Furthermore, do I promise and swear, that a companion R. A. Mason's secrets, given to me in charge as such, I knowing them to be such, shall remain as secure and inviolable in my breast as his own, murder and treason not excepted."

Now, how can a minister of the blessed gospel of Christ take such an oath without becoming the companion and helper of robbers, murderers and rebels? How can a man do this in the name of Jesus? Is the principle taught in this oath not against all law and order of God and man? The discipline of our church in its general rules says, "In short, to do nothing that we cannot do in the name of Jesus." If that rule is followed in its true sense and spirit, not one can remain in those dark orders, no matter of what name or hue they are; for they are all born of the same spirit. Can Christ and Belial be yokefellows together, or compromise? Verily nay! On the other hand, a presiding elder has young men in his charge who look to him for example and counsel; will not his example lead them into these things? He is bound by his oaths to speak well of the vile system when they inquire of him concerning the order. Again he is bound to extricate a brother member or preacher, who belongs to the order, out of any difficulty, and be silent to any immoral conduct they may be guilty of; or if made known by others to the church, he is bound to extricate him or them, if in his power. Now does not the discipline of the church become a mere farce in such men's hands? Are not the principles taught in this oath the quintessence of Jesuitism? Popery will never be overcome as long as such a spirit infests the churches of our land. "Satan cannot cast out Satan."

Christ says, "the light of the body is the eye; if therefore, thine eye be single thy whole body shall be full of light." What a blessed state! "But if thine eye be evil thy whole body shall be full of darkness. If, therefore, the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness!" The very nature of these orders tends to harden the heart and sear the conscience. God hates them because they are the opposite of true godliness, which produces a tender conscience, a single eye and simple faith, which are well-pleasing in his sight.

Let us now look at the actions of secret society adherents. Where the church membership is against the orders they are very still, and when they are asked about them they either give an evasive answer or are silent; but when they are among their lodge brethren they are altogether different. Do they not act a lie? If one "who loveth a lie is an abomination in the sight of God," how much more they that act it? And is not the whole system a huge lie?

We must now look at this matter from another point. It is inherent in the system itself to grasp at the official power in religious bodies, in order to stifle discussion, and the voice of warning, and silence the press on these things; so that they can lead it in their own way, to cover up their own sins, which would become known if the religious press was allowed to speak out. The last conference session that I attended a demited Mason was elected to the presiding eldership, after which, a certain conference member, while conversing with an Eastern brother who visited the conference, made this remark: "Now we are safe. We have now got three presiding elders of our side in this conference"—that is, we lodge men. Does not this show that these things are brought in, secretly not openly; for that would not do. It would be dangerous to thus trample out all opposition to secret societies. Do they not disintegrate the churches in this manner?

On the other hand, they try to bring the names of those who oppose secretism into disrepute. While on my way to the above named conference, a brother told me of a petition against me which had been signed by a few dissatisfied members at Pittsburgh, Pa., twenty-six miles from my charge; they dare not present it to my congregation!

Will not God visit those things and bring them to naught? Do not such preachers walk in the way of Balaam? How long will it be, if these orders are unrebuked, before some of your conferences will resolve a man insane who opposes them, as the Michigan Conference of the M. E. Church did in the case of Rev. John Levington?

Is not the spirit of Cain inculcated by these societies? The tree can bring forth no other but corrupt fruit. It is not the tree of grace that is planted by them, but the apples of Sodom. Will members or preachers be saved without repenting of these things? I trow not. I am your humble brother in the gospel of Christ, H. W. Hamph.

Condemn no man, says John Wesley, for not thinking as you think. Let every man enjoy the full and free liberty of thinking for himself. Let every man use his own judgment, since every man must give an account of himself to God. Abhor every approach, in any kind or degree, to the spirit of persecution. If you cannot reason or persuade a man into the truth, never attempt to force him into it. If love will not compel him to come, leave him to God the Judge of all.

The Philosophy of Reform.

It is most interesting and instructive, we repeat, to observe how all the patent methods that have been adopted outside of, or in opposition to Christianity, for the reformation of society, have, one after another, gone to the wall or gone to the dogs. A dream, and a few futile or disastrous experiments, are all that ever comes of them. Societies, communities, organizations, melt away and are lost, and all that remains of them is their history. Yet the men who originated them fancied they were radicals, while they never touched the roots either of human nature or human society. The most intelligent of those who abjure Christianity have seen all this, and have been wise enough not to undertake to put anything in its place. They content themselves with their negations, and leave the race to flounder off as it will.

We suppose it is a matter of wonder to such men as these that Mr. Moody and Mr. Sankey can obtain such a following as they do. They undoubtedly attribute it to superstition and ignorance, but these reformers are simply eminent radicals after the Christian pattern, who deal with the motives and means furnished them by the one great reformer of the world, Jesus Christ himself. They are at work at the basis of things. To them politics are nothing, denominations are nothing, organizations are nothing, or entirely subordinate. Individual reform is everything. After this, organizations will take care of themselves. No good society can possibly be made out of bad materials, and when the materials are made good, the society takes a good form naturally, as a pure salt makes its crystal without superintendence. They are proving, day by day, what all Christian reformers have been proving for eighteen centuries, viz., that Christian reform, as it relates to individual life and character, possesses the only sound philosophical basis that can be found among reforms. Christian reform, with all its motives and methods, is found to be just the same to-day as it ever was. It is the same yesterday, to-day, and forever. There are a great many dogmas of the church whose truth or whose importance, even if true, it would be difficult to prove; but the great truths, that humanity is degraded, and can only be elevated and purified by the elevation and purification of its individual constituents, are evident to the simplest mind. Men know that they are bad, and ought to be better; and a motive, or a series of motives to reformation, addressed directly to this consciousness, is not long in achieving results. The radicalism of Christianity holds the secret of revivals, of the stability of the church, of the growth and improvement of Christian communities. All things that are true are divine. There can be no one thing that is more divinely true than any other thing that is true. Christianity is divine, if for no other reason than that it holds and monopolizes the only radical and philosophical basis of reform. The criticisms of all those who ignore these facts are necessarily shallow and unworthy of consideration—just as shallow and just as worthless, as the dogmatism inside the church which attributes the power of Christianity to those things which are not sources of power at all. Christianity must live and triumph as a system of reform, be cause it goes to the roots of things, and because by so doing, it proves itself to be divinely and eternally true.—Dr. Holland.

Zenith and Nadir.

Christ says, "In secret have I said nothing." Masonry is, or claims to be secret, and glories in it.

Christ says, "Let your light shine before men." Masonry says, "Conceal and never reveal."

Christ says, "Swear not at all." Masonry is largely made up of oaths, oaths are its very life-blood, warp and woof; strip it of its oaths and it dies. The steps in the Masonic ladder are oaths horrible.

Christ says, "Love your enemies." Masonry says, Cut their throats, tear out their vitals, and tongues by the roots, smite off their skulls, etc.

Christ says, "Forgive as you would be forgiven." Masonry says, Persecute to the death; it teaches no mercy.

Christ says, "As you have freely received, freely give." Masonry confers its so-called benefits for money, and when the money fails its boasted charity ceases.

Christianity teaches truth in the inward parts. Masonry teaches deception systematically.

Christ teaches: "I am the way, no man cometh to the Father but by me." Masonry presumes to take men to God and heaven—the lodge above—by another way.

Christ says, "I am the light of the world." Masonry pretends to possess the only true name of Deity, and presumes to enlighten the ministers of the Gospel of Christ. It is terrible to think how many thousands of them have been deceived, swindled, hoodwinked, cable-towed, denuded and drawn into its meshes and are demoralized by it, for no man can be made a Mason and remain silent without being demoralized.

Christ says, "Ye are my witnesses." Masonry says to all who are caught in this net of Satan, "Ye are my witnesses, whether bishop, or elder, or deacon, whether you speak or whether you keep silent, ye are and shall be my witnesses."

O ye ministers of Jesus Christ, are you satisfied to be the pillars of this soul-destroying institution? What if your Master should say "in that day," "Depart. I never approved your course." D. Oglesby.

Faithfulness and constancy mean something else besides doing what is easiest and pleasantest to ourselves. They mean renouncing whatever is opposed to the reliance others have in us—whatever would cause misery to those whom the course of our lives has made dependent on us.—Geo. Elliot.

The Change of the Sabbath.

BY REV. A. M. MILLIGAN.

To the Editor of the Pittsburgh Commercial:

I ask a small space in your columns on this question, for the reason that in the epitome of my sermon prepared for your paper, haste and a desire to condense into the smallest bound, left my argument from the iv. of Hebrews so imperfect and obscure as to deprive it of all its force. I regret this the more, as I regard the passage as the stronghold of the argument.

For the sake of greater clearness I will re-state the argument for a change of the Sabbath in a somewhat different form.

In the first place, the authority for the change of the Sabbath is not to be expected directly from Christ, during his lifetime on earth, as the foundation for the change was only laid in his death. He did not personally abolish the sacrtfices nor the priesthood, nor the old dispensation; but in his death, as a High Priest, by one sacrifice of himself made an end of sin and so rendered a typical dispensation unnecessary, and then left it to his apostles to guide the church through her transition from the Old to the New Testament dispensation. A part of this transition was the change of the Sabbath. The authority on which these changes are made is found in this epistle to the Hebrews. The priesthood is abolished in the seventh and eighth chapters; the temple service in the ninth; the sacrifices in the tenth; and the change of the Sabbath is established in the third and fourth, as I hope to prove.

But, I hear an objector answer, the epistle to the Hebrews is an anonymous one, and consequently of no authority. I answer, true, the epistle is anonymous; but the salutations in the last chapter indicate clearly that the writer was well known to those to whom he wrote, and Christians of to-day have no difficulty in determining both its author and its inspiration. Why, then, it may be asked, does the author not append his name? To this I answer, evidently that the authority of the epistle may be derived, not from the apostleship of its author, but from the proof adduced from the Old Testament scripture, and applied to each case by irrefutable argument: and this also was for an important purpose, namely, to keep up the idea of the unity of the church, under both dispensations, and that while certain things were changed to suit the altered condition produced by the Messiah's advent, these changes were anticipated and arranged beforehand by the church's unchangeable Head. It produces, however, this effect—that it leaves some things obscure and difficult that would otherwise be plain and easy of determination, of which the change of the Sabbath is one.

If it had been the arrangement of God to change the Sabbath by merely apostolic authority, Paul could have easily said, it is so changed, and it would have been plain, but it would have seemed an innovation. Hence Paul goes back to the scriptures, whose authority the Hebrews allacknowledged, and proves from them by solid argument that God had, ages before, arranged this change. True, Paul's argument is somewhat difficult. So is every close, logical argument difficult to follow, as Peter says of his beloved brother Paul's epistles—"In which there are some things hard to be understood, which they that are unlearned and unstable wrest, as they do also the other scriptures, to their own destruction."

Let us then follow the steps of this change, as nearly as possible, in the order of their occurrence:

The first thing in this order was the resurrection of Christ. Having finished the new creation of which the old was but the scaffolding, having destroyed principalities and powers, he rose from the dead and rested on the first day of the week. He met on that day with his disciples, and gave their hearts rest from their long agony. All the meetings which Christ held with his disciples during the forty days from his resurrection to his ascension, were, with perhaps a single exception, on the first day of the week. The effusion of the spirit on the day of Pentecost when they were assembled, with one consent, in one place, was also on the first day of the week. From these circumstances it is evident that the disciples were in the habit of meeting together for mutual encouragement, and of meeting with their risen Lord and Master in person, while on earth, and by his Spirit after his ascension, to obtain power and inspiration for their work, on the first day of the week. Hence we find, Acts xx. 7, that on the first day of the week, the disciples at Troas came together to break bread, that is, to celebrate the Lord's supper, and Paul preached to them till midnight, ready to depart on the morrow. And in 1st Cor. xvi. 1–2, we have Paul directing the churches to make their collections on the first day of the week, a religious act which it was the custom of the Jews to perform on their Sabbath. "Now concerning the collections for the Saints, as I have given order to the churches in Galatia, so also do ye. Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come."

Thus we have, in quite a number of instances, the disciples meeting together on that day for Sabbath service, such as preaching the gospel, administering the Lord's supper, and lifting collections for religious purposes, and not an instance of their meeting on any other day for the same purposes, except for a short time at the first in Jerusalem, when they met every day.

Now then, it having been established by universal consent that the first day of the week was the Christian day for celebrating their Sabbath service, the question arose, what about the observance of the Sabbath? as the seventh day of the week was technically called; shall we observe two Sabbaths in the week, or only one? It was not a question as to the observance of the first day of the week, but the seventh, the old Sabbath. Shall we observe it or not? The apostle answers, Romans xiv. 6: "Let every man be persuaded in his own mind. He that regardeth the day regardeth it to the Lord. He that regardeth not the day to the Lord he doth not regard it," and in Col. ii. 16, he says, "Let no man judge you in respect of the Sabbath." A plain declaration that the religious observance of the seventh day, known as the Sabbath, was no longer obligatory.

Here then we have come to the point, that the seventh day, Sabbath, is plainly set aside, and all that we have left of Sabbath authority is the old law of creation, reiterated at Sinai, consecrating one-seventh part of every week to sacred uses—the example of the disciples in meeting for Sabbath services on the first day of the week, and Paul's direction to the churches of Galatia and Corinth, that on that day they should lift their collections.

Now another question arises. The startled Hebrew asks, Have we no Sabbath? Is there no day of holy rest? Have we no authority for keeping holy any particular day of the week, except that the Christians have taken a fancy to commemorate the resurrection of Christ on the first day of the week? To this question the apostle addresses himself in the third and fourth of Hebrews. In the the third chapter, sixth verse, he declares that Christ was a son over his own house, in which Moses was but a servant, and then shows that Moses offered them a rest in Canaan, at Kadish, but they rebelled, and were not allowed to enter because of unbelief.

Then he goes back in the fourth chapter, third verse, to the original rest at creation, and says, "though the works were finished from the foundation of the world," God rested on the seventh day from all his works, yet he says in this place again "if they shall enter into my rest," as much as to say the seventh day was a failure and brought not men into his rest, for the fall intervened, and unbelief and sin disturbed that rest, and the world and man have never yet enjoyed their Sabbath.

Then again, in the seventh verse of the fourth chapter, and recalling the seventh verse of the third chapter, he adds: "Again he limiteth a certain day, saying "in David to-day." That is, the Holy Ghost, after the creation and the fall, long after the time of Moses, makes another offer of a day by the mouth of David, Psalm 95, 7. And adds: (True, Joshua led Israel into Canaan, but he did not give them the rest), for if Jesus (Joshua) had given them rest, David, so long after, would not have spoken of another day. And then the apostle draws his conclusion in the words of my text: There remaineth, therefore (Sabbatismos) a "keeping of a Sabbath" to the people of God. Another day besides the seventh day of creation; another day besides Kadish Barne's offer, another day besides that on which Joshua and Israel crossed the Jordan, a better Sabbath-keeping than any and all of these.

What day is it? The tenth verse answers: The day on which Christ arose from the dead and entered into his rest. For he that has left us, and gone to glory, after his work was done, he has ceased from his work as God did from his. As God commemorated the ending of the old creation by setting apart a day to be sanctified for that purpose, so the author of the new creation has commemorated the ending of the new and far more glorious creation by setting apart a Sabbatismos for the people of God the first day of the week. Every Greek scholar will see at once how simple is the criticism upon the change of the word "rest," in the ninth verse to "the keeping of a Sabbath" as in the margin. The word Sabbatismos, here translated rest, never occurs in either the third or fourth chapters, except in this one place; in every other instance the word translated "rest" is Katapausin. The word Sabbatismos is the Hebrew word Sabbath made into a Greek word by adding a Greek termination, evidently with the intention of expressing more forcibly the idea that the first day of the week is the real Sabbath that has so often failed, but is at length realized.

The great difficulty in regard to this interpretation of the text consists in the very general misunderstanding of the meaning of the word rest, originating in the careless rendering of the word Sabbatismos, by our translators overlooking the distinction Paul evidently intended to make between that and the Katapausin of the other passages in connection. There is too great readiness to drop into an easy, thoughtless way of making Jordan always mean death, Canaan always mean Heaven, and rest always mean the state of the blessed. That the rest in this whole connection does not mean the state of the blessed is to my mind most evident. Look at the third chapter: God swore in his wrath that of that whole generation only two men should enter his rest—Caleb and Joshua. Did those two men only, of the six hundred thousand get to Heaven? God forbid! What then became of Moses and Aaron and thousands of other godly men? Evidently it means that those men only entered Canaan, a rest in this world. So also of the antediluvians in regard to the seventh day. God said in this place again "if they shall enter my rest."

What, did Abel, Enoch, Methuselah and Noah not get to Heaven? Who dare utter it? and yet God said, "If they shall enter into my rest." What rest? Evidently such an earthly Sabbath of rest as God intended originally that the institution should be. Again, Joshua led the people into Canaan, but failed to give them rest. What, did he and his fellow heroes and conquerers not gain heaven? Certainly they did; but they did not gain such an earthly rest as has been held out in promise to the people of God, and which, through want of faith, they have hitherto failed to enjoy—a perfect Sabbath.

And so the Apostle in the first and eleventh verses of this chapter warns the Hebrews and warns us to be on our guard lest we should come short of this rest, and urges us to labor to enter into it, lest we too fall after the same example of unbelief. The wicked have no rest, either in this world or the next; they are like the troubled sea whose waters cast up mire and dirt; they are either running infidel Sunday papers, gambling hells, or liquor saloons, or some other institution of the devil—the meanest and dirtiest drudgery; and if they could have their way, the people of God would have no rest either, especially the poor laboring man, who must either lose his position or violate the Sabbath. Until Christian men can so far control government as to make and execute suitable Sabbath laws, cupidity, luxury and sensuality will so far blight the sanctities of the Sabbath that even the Christianity of the nineteenth century will fail to enter into the "Sabbath keeping" that remains for the people of God.

Let us glance for a moment at the rest of the Christian Sabbath as contrasted with all other rests which the people of God have had. What was the rest of the Sabbath of Creation after sin had blighted it? Our first parents heard the voice of God approaching their home and were afraid and fled and hid, and when summoned from their retreat it was to be convicted of rebellion and to be driven from their paradise into the sin-cursed world; and though they were clad and their nakedness covered, yet to enjoy this rest they must see the innocent victim slain and struggling in death throes as a symbol of their desert, and its skin flayed from its body to cover their shame; and from Abel's sacrifice down through all the ages the Sabbath was a day of killing innocent beasts, shedding their blood and burning their flesh, while the air was heavy with the offensive smoke and smell.

What was the rest of Canaan? It was settlement after forty years of wandering. It was the products of a fruitful land after the manna and the water, but it was not rest. They must march day after day round the walls of Jericho till they fell, and then slaughter. It was defeat at Ai. It was war against thirty-one mighty nations—cities walled to heaven, and giants of huge stature, and still on their Sabbaths blood was flowing from their sacrifices and victims smoking on their altars, and yet all could not take away their sin, nor "make the comers thereunto perfect." It was not rest. "It was a burden which neither our fathers nor we were able to bear."

What then is the Christian Sabbath? The midnight bell has tolled its advent. Hark! the streets are silent; the din of the busy workshop is hushed. The scream of the steam whistle, and the roll of the cumbrous train and the heavy machinery are not to be heard on the stillness of the Sabbath air. The rattle of the drum, the bugle note, and the soldier's heavy tramp are stilled, for the world is enjoying its Sabbath. But now, the sound of the "church going bell" calls to the sanctuary, and the solemn throng pass with glad footsteps to the house of God, and even the bells of the horses, as they carry their worshipers to their devotions, chime in concert "Holiness to the Lord."

Now the burdened sinner draws near to hear the glad message from Christ's ambassador: "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest." He accepts the offer and approaches, and the man of God sprinkles on his brow the symbol of a blood-bought pardon, and breaks for his soul's nourishment the bread of communion in the body of Christ, and passes to his lips the cup of salvation, and, like John at the supper, he lays his weary head on Jesus' bosom and feels that this is rest. The truly sanctified child of God goes to the sanctuary to hear more about his precious Saviour and have his heart ravished anew with his love, while from the congregation, with glad hearts and tuneful voices, swells the anthem of praise to God. Happy world! Blessed Sabbath of rest!

It was such a day as this that John enjoyed on the lone Isle of Patmos, when, though separated from his fellow men, he heard a great voice as of a trumpet, saw the Son of Man amid the golden candlesticks holding the seven stars in his right hand, and saying, "I am he that liveth and was dead, and, behold, I am alive forever more, Amen, and have the keys of hell and of death;" and he calls the day "the Lord's day," not the old Sabbath, but the Lord's day, the day in which the Lord arose from the dead and grants audiences to his people. It is the day which the Psalmist celebrates in the cxvii. Psalm. 24th verse: "This is the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it." Hozannah! Hozannah! The day in which the stone which the builders rejected is become the head of the corner. God grant us to enjoy this blessed Sabbath!

Reform News and Notices.

—A letter from the Pennsylvania agent is waiting for next number.

—Less than two weeks before the Ohio State Convention. Is every one getting ready who ought to be? Read the General Agent's call on the 9th page.

—Another call he will make upon you is for the Publishing House. He will raise the $10,000 needed before April 1st, God blessing him. Don't say him nay, for he asks in the name of the Master.

—Nothing new yet from Iowa by way of notice for State meeting, which is to be held at Western College sometime before May.

—Every friend of the cause will learn with sorrow of the critical state of Elder Rathbun's health from a note on the editorial pages.

—Past Master Ronayne is speaking this week at Syracuse, N. Y.; on the 28th and 29th he is to be at Seneca Falls. He will probably visit Boston during the first of next month.

—An Anti-masonic club has been formed in Parishville, N. Y., mainly composed of young men. "Young men for war."

—Prof. W. O. Tobey of the Telescope expects to attend the Ohio State Convention at Westerville, March 8th.

—Rev. L. N. Stratton, President of the New York State Association, has been sick for two or three weeks, so as to be compelled to give up his usual editorial labor on the Wesleyan.

—Elder Barlow and his worthy lieutenant, C. B. Remington, called on the Cynosure last week. They are pushing things in Michigan, but the friends don't write to them. What's the matter? Must Uncle S. make another postage reduction? Postal cards at one cent are cheap enough, but they can hold a dollar's worth of encouragement for these brethren chosen to stand at the front.

—Bro. Hinman was filling appointments in Wethersfield and Kewanee in Henry county, this State, last week.

Annual Meeting of Michigan County Association.

Past Master Ronayne on hand and strikes a heavy blow at secrecy—Immense gathering.—Terrible weather.—A Mason arrested and fined.—Light breaking into Lockport, where the Masonic council met in 1826 to accomplish the murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan.—The "Morning Times."—Assault on Mr. Ronayne and its account of the meeting.

CLYMER, N. Y., Feb. 15, 1876.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—Wednesday morning, the 8th inst. we took the morning train on the P. & A. V. R. R., for Lockport, N. Y., to attend the Niagara county Association, and the public exposition of Past Master Edmond Ronayne, of Chicago. The rain-clouds were copiously drenching the earth with rain and hail, and the ice forming made the meeting prospectively a failure. The weather continuing the same nearly all through the meeting. About 5 o'clock P. M. we landed safely in Lockport, our old place of residence, where we had formerly spent some four years of life.

Arriving at the hall, amid rain and sleet, a few had gathered, and about 7 o'clock Mr. Ronayne put in an appearance, and that, too, in good "working" order. The large hall was about two-thirds filled in spite of the storm, mostly with gentlemen, as but few ladies could get out. After being introduced by the President, Mr. Ronayne began to lecture and introduced the candidate in "Simon pure" Masonic style, to the shame of the "ancient and honorable craft," and the absolute disgust of every soul that knew nothing in particular about Masonry before, and for over three "dreadful hours" (dreadful to Masons and Masonry,) did this master of its secrets and "ancient and established usages" deal out the strokes of death to one of the most blasphemous organizations known among men. The position and semi-nude condition of "Rev. Mr. Nicholas," the disgusting and degrading ceremonies, so completely exhibited by Mr. Ronayne to the people of Niagara county, evidently made its mark against Masonry and all kindred secret orders.

The following day was spent in a business meeting, electing officers, passing resolutions, and discussions. The second evening came, the hall was packed to its utmost capacity, every seat, all the standing room, even to the crowding of the stage and standing in the windows, beside large numbers that could not gain admittance, and had to retire without gaining admission at all. It was estimated that there were 1000 people present. Bro. Ronayne spoke almost four hours, conducting the candidate "Rev. Mr. Jones," through the Master's degree, without making the slightest mistake. The disgust of Masonry was most evidently a characteristic feature of the impress left upon the inquiring audience who so quietly listened to this masterpiece of Masonic exposal, and the dangerous character of secrecy in decoying and robbing the church of Jesus Christ of its purity by cable-towing its ministry and members; leading them whithersoever it will; and plundering our courts of all equity and justice, robbing citizens of all means or hope of equity, or redress, from any and all grievances, murder and high treason optionally only excepted by the members of the order.

Mr. Ronayne has left a visible impress upon a candidly criticising public in Lockport and vicinity; and we trust these moral scales will show that secrecy has been weighed and "found wanting."

During the first evening a "worthy brother" tyler, we were informed, of the Lockport lodge, No. 78, who had taken a little too much "refreshment" after going from labor, was aided out and down by the police to the police head-quarters, and entertained for the night, leaving ten dollars in the morning as the result of insulting a public audience who had repeatedly cried "put him out;" otherwise than this, general good order prevailed, and great credit is due to the members of so vast an audience for such uniform good behavior.

"The Morning Times," a morally and intellectually defunct sheet, diminutive in size, donned the honor of calling Mr. Ronayne a "pugilistic chap," and "not much credit to the assistants in the exposal," but the "essence" of the editorial assured all candid men of the character of its author.

Mr. Ronayne has struck the key-note to the downfall of secrecy; "Expose these organizations. Give every man, woman and child the secrets, pass-words, and grips. Put on their badges. Use their signs, their language as it exists in the lodge, publicly. Hail them on the strees. Follow them up until Masons and secretists hide with shame. Get the young men so they can go out and in to a lodge, and even the ladies too, so all there is of Masonry and secrecy will be known to the masses; scatter the light in every direction." This is what needs doing immediately and these fraudulent Babel-builders will be confounded.

Mr. Ronayne was doing all he could for the Cynosure, and for the Publishing House; and it is to be hoped that the first of April will find the National Association in possession of a home. May the blessing of God rest upon the Association, the printing house, and upon Mr. Ronayne, and all others in the work of overthrowing the secret works of darkness in the existence of secret cliques, clans and orders.

N. R. Lucr.

Further Comments on the Wisconsin Convention.

Dear K:—Allow me to supplement my hasty note from "Sugar Creek" with a few statements concerning the Wisconsin convention. There was much interest apparent at the first gathering, which increased steadily until the close. The members in attendance were more at times than could find even standing room within the house. Bro. Ronayne spoke in his accustomed incisive, eloquent and convincing manner, and the hold which he obtained upon his hearers was evinced by their fixed attention while he spoke for three or more hours, and then by their reluctance to leave even after his initiations were closed.

The home element of the meeting was composed largely of younger persons, which to me seemed very encouraging. The young men are the peculiar prey of the lodge and if they can be saved in any given community it is a great victory. The business meetings and meetings for free expression of opinions were harmonious and very little time was consumed on matters of minor importance. The report of Bro. Elsea showed that he had not been idle during the year, but that he had received a very meager support, the amount being wholly inadequate to meet the inevitable expenses of himself and those dependent upon him for daily bread. It was a matter upon which many expressed regrets, but as no way seemed to be at hand for securing the means to warrant the employment of Bro. E., or any one as State agent, the whole matter was referred to the State Executive Committee, who should act promptly in this matter. It is very important and I trust Wisconsin will not be long without an agent, and that whoever the Committee in their wisdom may select will be sustained by the hearty co-operation and generous contributions of the people. Bro. Elsea proposes continuing his labors until April at least, and the craft need not solace themselves with the delusion that theirs is to be a blissful and uninterrupted reign in the "Badger" State. Bro. E's P. O. will be for the present as hitherto at Delavan, where those desiring his services will find him ready to meet the foe.

I find but one sentiment among the friends wherever I go in reference to the Cynosure and Publishing House. It was next to universally conceded that the former must be sustained and the latter secured, and many are coming nobly to the rescue. It takes a goodly number of $10, $25 and $50 pledges to foot up $10,000 but if each will contribute his part the end will soon be reached.

J. P. Stoddard.

H. H. Hinman in Mercer Co., Ill.

Viola, Ill., Feb. 14, 1876.

Dear Bro. K:—"Who is sufficient for these things?" The history of life experiences of the old prophets in their conflicts with "spiritual wickedness in high places," and in the churches dedicated to the worship of the living God, has been flitting before my mental vision for the last few days with a graphic vividness, to me unusual. In fact it really seems to me that God is again passing the great panorama of his moral government among men on the earth, that we in our own time may see with our natural eyes its glory, its grandeur, and its terror to evil doers, as of old; commencing with the emancipation of Israel and the Red Sea history, the wilderness travel, the idolatries, the punishment and final deliverance of his chosen people, and then their long spiritual decline and final overthrow as a nation.

The Scriptures tell us that God may be studied, seen and understood by intelligent man, by the "things that do appear," "even his power and Godhead," though so few seem so to learn. We have as a nation already witnessed the emancipation and Red Sea scenes on God's panorama, and are now surging to and fro through the desert wilderness, buffeting the tide of moral unbelief in a living, present, superintending God, as a rightful moral governor of individuals and nations of men, though the spray of the Red Sea deliverance has hardly dried on our garments.

The secret society pilgrimage of the church to-day is an apt illustration of ancient Israel's wilderness journey. To be and do like the nations around us, dancing around the golden calf made and consecrated by a priest of God at the very foot of Sinai, where God himself is writing out on its storm-swept summit his moral law, engraving it in imperishable stone, that coming generations might learn and know of Him whose wonders their fathers had seen.

This secret society apostacy from a spiritual church and a republican government has for years past been discussed orally and through our local press by your correspondent in a very small way. Rev. J. P. Stoddard and Prof. C. A. Blanchard have come among us with their "solar spectrum," have analyzed the lodge in its various shades and grades, have drawn the fangs of the serpent, Masonry, with their forceps of truth, and have portrayed its venomous secretions of moral and political death. So that our anti-secret friends had persuaded themselves that they had heard it all, knew it all, and needed to hear no more on this subject.

Here is where Rev. H. H. Hinman found us on his recent visit to Mercer Co., Ill., and not a church could be opened on a week-day evening, save our little country Bethel, and but one other, the U. P. church in Viola, on Sabbath evening. Our county is a county of churches, our villages are full of churches for the ostensible purpose of expounding in them the law of God's moral government, and salvation through faith in a crucified Christ alone; but they could not hear Rev. H. H. Hinman on the secret idolatries of the lodge, though he was filled with the Holy Ghost and with the fire of truth in a manner never before set before us on the subject. In our Bethel and the U. P. church in Viola, he drew the Gospel blade, the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God, in such plain, forcible, convincing terms, on Gospel principles as had scarcely been hinted at in all that had gone before him in our communities. Our enemies (lodgemen) being judges, the mouths of gain-sayers, that he who has never been in a lodge can tell nothing about it, were utterly stopped. Bro. Hinman surely did honor Christ and the Bible on this moral field in that he did show clearly that God's armory contains every weapon that a Christian needs in this moral conflict with this man of sin—organized secrecy. In Aledo, a village of six churches, on Monday evening, the 7th inst, the Christian sympathy(?) in this moral work furnished Bro. H. a public hall unwarmed by fire or the prayers of God's people, where the rabble always feels at home, where no mighty works could be shown because of unbelief, though Bro. H. labored hard to that end.

One poor victim of whiskey, or the lodge, or both, interrupted constantly by mutterings and half spoken words, the whole course of the lecture. Lodgemen murmured when they were credited with the disorder, and said it was whiskey not Masonry that made the noise. Be that as it may, a well known Mason and Odd-fellow, a justice of the peace, and clerk I believe, of the town board, rose to his feet, for he was like Zaccheus of old, small of stature, and challenged the speaker with uttering a "positive falsehood," in that he charged Freemasonry as being made a religion that saves the soul without Christ. Bro. H. offered in proof of his position such standard Masonic authors as Mackey, Sickels, and others, but this civil dignitary was as innocent of Masonic history as a new born babe, and besides, he had an oath on his conscience "ever to conceal," so he went in wholly on denial unsupported. This, with a constant racing in and out of a cold hall for want of inviting comfort, is the way God's messenger and God's message was received in our county seat. Not unlike the old prophet times, not new in the battle of truth against popular error, not new in the history of the church itself. Who is sufficient for these things? J. C. Graham.

Greenfield, O., Monthly Meeting—Dr. J. G. Carson.

Greenfield, Ohio, Feb. 16, 1876.

Dear Cynosure:—We have in Greenfield an anti-secret organization auxiliary to the National Christian Association, and have regular monthly meetings on the last Tuesday of each month, and we have also had several good lectures. Brethren Dillon, McDill and Rev. Dr. Carson have spoken and all made lasting impressions on the minds of people both in and out of the lodges.

It is a fact worthy of note that all of the ministers of the Gospel in this place keep silent on the subject of secrecy, except the German M. E. church, and it is in that building we hold our meetings and have our lectures.

When Rev. Dr. Carson came here the Baptist minister (a Mason) gave a cordial invitation for him to preach in his pulpit, which he did on Sabbath, but he could not lecture there on the following Monday. The above named minister came into the German church after the lecture was about one-third delivered and left as soon as the last word was uttered. I noticed several of the "widow's sons" in the house listening to the lecture. After it was over they stood in small groups discussing the subject, and I heard the bold accusation more than once that Carson was a liar. It sounds very degrading to thus assail a minister of the Gospel, and I never heard any but Masons thus degrade themselves, and some of them Sunday-school superintendents and office bearers in the churches at that.

I noticed to-day in the confession of a noted murderer and robber, Anson Bunker by name, that he made mention several times of how the fraternity helped him out of his troubles; a great many of his accomplices had been in the mystic circle. JOHN MILNER.

The Groton, N. Y., Association—A Lively Discussion Started.

The first quarterly meeting of the Groton Anti-secret Association met at McLean, Tompkins Co., N. Y., Jan. 18, 1876. The weather was unfavorable, raining nearly all day, therefore the attendance was small; enough were present, however, to have an interesting meeting. The Baptist church was opened for the occasion. The Pastor, Rev. W. J. Betts, is wide awake on the subject, and did all that he could to make the meeting a success. He also has the co-operation of several members of his church.

The forenoon session was devoted to prayer and arrangements for afternoon work. A free discussion, pro and con, was announced in the afternoon, and notice circulated at the stores in the village to that effect.

The discussion was opened with the reading of an essay, by the secretary, on the "Principles and Tendencies of Secret Societies." As the essay touched a little upon the principles of Good Templarism, it brought out an aged veteran of the order, who talked much about temperance and the sublimity of the order and its social pleasures, while he considered it sublimely ridiculous for any one to presume that the order was subject to criticism. He evaded every point of the essay, but tried to gain his point by claiming that we are opposing the cause of temperance. On the same principle, people who oppose the fallacies of the Roman Catholic church might be accused of opposing Christianity. I think the members of our association here will compare favorably with the Good Templars for temperance, and zeal, while we know many of them to be radical temperance people. A Methodist minister present did not want to be on the fence, but left us in doubt in regard to which side he preferred, as he was a Good Templar and did not see anything wrong in the order.

The discussion lasted as long as time would allow, and resulted in some excitement and a demand for further ventilation. Nine more were added to the list of members, making 92 in all.

Bro. Betts endures some threats and abuse, on account of his fidelity to the cause of truth, but "they who live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution." May God sustain and strengthen him for the conflict. Bro. J. B. Hart, the President, acts well his part, and is a true friend of the cause.

EDWARD BARNETSON, Secretary.

Correspondence.

Political Action.

Editor Christian Cynosure:—

I see something is said in a late number of our paper concerning political action by those who believe Masonry a political evil. I am glad that some of your correspondents are looking at the matter in this light. It is the political advantage that crafty office seekers expect to reap from membership in the institution that sustains the lodges in most of the villages of this and other States. If the public men who join the lodges knew that those opposers to the institution would not vote for a Mason for office, not one in five of the Masons who held office would ever have joined the lodge.

A careful examination of the list of public officers, from Justice of the Peace to the higher officers of the country and State, will reveal the fact that an immense disporportion of Masons are now in office. Masons no better, nor so good as others in the community, fill the places of profit to the exclusion of better men. This is accomplished by the power of blasphemous Masonic oaths and the machinations of secret Masonic signs in their night orgies.

Now cannot our friends in the several villages—cannot Anti-masonic lecturers look to this matter. Let a list be made of the public officers in each county, and what proportion of them are Masons. Then let this list be published, so that the people will be enlightened in regard to the political influence of Masonry. Then let all men who seek the public good determine that they will vote for no man for an office who has ever defiled his conscience by the Masonic oath. Such action I am sure would accomplish more in a year than ten years of talk without action. CONSISTENCY.

The Usurping Lodge.

CLAYTON, Ill., Feb. 9, 1876.

Editor Cynosure:

We have had a Masonic funeral in our town to-day, which reminded me of a slip I clipped from a Quincy paper, a few days ago, with a view of sending it to you for publication and comment, as it may not have appeared in any of your exchanges. The pastor of the wife of the deceased, was beset by two or three of the leaders of the craft, to-day, at the house, with the peremptory order, "Be brief; be brief!" but although cloudy and damp and threatening, the crowd was kept in the cemetery until the whole Masonic mummery was rehearsed. They take the dead out of the pastor's hands, refusing Christian burial ceremonies, and they attempted to take an offender out of the hands of a church court in this town, to try him in the lodge; and, from the Quincy paper, we see that they are attempting to get between the civil court and the criminal held for trial. What shall the end be? God speed you in your good work of opposition to such usurpation. Yours truly.

J. A. EDIE.

Office Holders in the Lodge.

QUARRY, Iowa, Feb. 12, 1876.

MR. EDITOR:—In answer to question No. 4 on 5th page of your issue of Feb. the 10th, I would say that the case is worse than that here, if the Masons tell the truth. Last Friday night there was a discussion at Legrand Institute Hall between two debating clubs; the question was, "Resolved, that there is no practical benefit in secret societies." During the debate Professor Charles Allison, principal of the Legrand Christian Institute, boasted that there was 20,000 Masons in the State of Iowa and that they held more than three-fourths of all the offices in the State. Having been a resident of the State over twenty years I am satisfied that statement is correct; and with a population of something over one million and a quarter, it would give them about one-twelfth of the votes allowing one vote to every five inhabitants.

I wish we could have a few lectures. There are a good many Anti-masons here, but they don't realize there is any danger, and need something to rouse them up. If any of our lecturers should, or could come this way please give us a call.

C. D. COPPOCK.

[Let every Anti-mason inquire about him for facts like the above and write them out for your paper.—ED. CYNOSURE.]

Turn over the "t"—Ronayne Wanted at the Centennial.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—Though for years you have been my choice among the papers, yet for a few weeks past you have annoyed me by that capsized "t." Now if you will remove those ts or at least bring them to a leaning perpendicular, top end up, we will pay you for the job about $2.20 cts. each. This will, we trust, place us on the "oblong square" with your noble fraternity. Pardon our tardy tendencies at which, I suppose, the inverted letter "t" points. It is wrong to be tardy in so grand a cause as that which you represent. You have proved yourself the messenger of truth sent by Omniscience to meet this emergency. But for the little giant, our Cynosure, this land would have been ten shades darker than it now is in the blackness of cabalistic conspiracy. We think God will no more let this embassador of his die till it has done its work than he did the Liberator or its noble editor, Wm. Lloyd Garrison, or the noble spirits of the Reformation of past centuries.

I see by the multiplied calls, as in Cynosure, Ronayne is wanted in too many places to harmonize well with the local properties of flesh and blood. Could he multiply himself by twenty he might meet the demand, perhaps. We must have him at the Centennial Exhibition, at Philadelphia. The infernal empire must be represented there or the international exhibition will be incomplete. Though now a freeman from it, to his honor be it said, he does know how to exhibit it and will be of untold service, I hope, to the "kingdom not of this world."

Could we arrange it to have Ronayne at Philadelphia while the Masonic Congress is in session? (See N. Y. Square of Jan., 1876.) It would be the very thing we need. While the people have their attention called up to the subject, let us also have an "International Anti-masonic Congress," rallied from the U. S. and the world. Why not? What an opportunity! O God move the elements and let the Centennial year of this great government do the work of a century in exhibiting the character and bearings of the empire of darkness.

Many Anti-masons dwell in Philadelphia and the Macedonian cry has sent to us for lectures there. Let such a man as J. P. Stoddard go and prepare the ground, with the help of God, for a grand convention there. Why not the next annual meeting of the N. C. A. there?

NATHAN CALLENDER.

That New Hampshire Convention.

You say it has been published that "all of five persons" attended the N. H. Anti-secret State convention and you wish information on that point. That ridiculous untruth with others similar went the rounds in Eastern Masonic papers. Bro. Rathbun was present at every session and Bro. Stoddard at every session except the first and they can speak if my statements are doubted. There were four day sessions and two evening sessions. The number present at the day sessions averaged about fifty. The first evening about one hundred were present and the second about one hundred and fifty. There were several circumstances that lessened the attendance. It was impossible to get a suitable notice given. The convention was frowned upon by the local evangelical churches. The weather was extremely unfavorable, being neither sleighing or wagoning, and it stormed both days. In spite of these obstacles the attendance was deemed by the friends of the convention encouraging and the influence of the meeting was wide and salutary. It threw the craft into a complete rage fifty miles away. I am willing to admit that emphatic opposition to all secret societies is not yet popular in New Hampshire, but the progress of the reform during the past year has been astonishing. The eyes of large numbers have been opened. There is a call for anti secret literature and lectures. If the anti-secret movement is so small an affair, why such unmitigated lying to depreciate and calumniate it? Why do the craft newspapers circulate the slander that we seek to overthrow the Constitution as well as Masonry except they consider their case desperate without lying? That is the style of Masonic warfare in the East. They get up a riot out West and interrupt the speakers, but in the East that would not pay. Bro. Rathbun will now see the force of his inquiry as to whether Masonry was "a reformed devil" in the East. Not reformed, Bro. R., but he acts in a different way. Hence these newspaper curiosities.

S. C. KIMBALL.

OUR MAIL

Wm. Steel, Portland, Oreg., sends three subscriptions from Beaverton, and writes:

"The Exposition of the Grange has caused considerable excitement in that neighborhood as it is one of the strongest of the grange neighborhoods. Several of the members acknowledge that the exposition is correct. I have been a strong opposer of all secret societies since the time the Masons murdered Morgan. Have ever been called a radical, and expect to die contending for the truth and right."

H. W. Marsh, Elmwood, Ill., writes:

"We have been having a discussion in our local paper on 'Masonry,' commenced in November by an attack on Anti-masons. We have reflected some of the light that shines so benignly upon us from the pages of the Cynosure, and as the clouds deepen on the faces of the secret fraternities we can see the light of hope beaming from the faces of the friends of right and truth."

E. Miller, Mt. Pleasant, Mich., writes:

"I am living in the midst of secretism. I have been trying to get subscribers. Hope to send you some names with the cash before long. The greatest hindrance that I have had to contend with in my work this winter was the M. E. church, the cause of course being my opposition to the accursed system of secrecy. But thanks be to God who giveth the victory, some have been put to shame, and just as soon as I can make the necessary arrangements I will send for some of our lecturers and have the abomination exposed."

O. B. Scott, Brant, Wis., writes:

"I have received one number of the Cynosure and am highly delighted and pleased with it, more so than I had anticipated. I have not seen a paper before that made me feel as though I wanted to read everything, advertisements and all. I will write you again as soon as convenient as I see so many books, tracts, sermons, pamphlets, etc., that I want that will open a great field for me to labor in. Glory be to God in the highest."

E. M. Perkins, Parishville, N. Y., writes:

"I would gladly receive and distribute such tracts as you would send me. I have organized an Anti-masonic club, and we are doing what we can to root out Masonry in this place. We have twelve in the club now, all young men but one."

N. Callender, Green Grove, Pa., writes:

"Business is so depressed just now that men here seem to be disheartened. When work resumes and the produce can be sold for cash they will feel better and we can then get subscribers for the Cynosure. Everything is dead here now."

Wm. Parkis, Goodrichville, Mich., writes:

"I lived within six miles of Batavia at the time Morgan was taken away, and was all through the Anti-masonic war at that time, and am now armed and equiped, ready for doing what I can."

Joseph S. Terry, Thompson, Conn., writes:

"I send my paper to one and another and hope it will do good and bear fruit in the near future. There are many here who are opposed to the lodge so far as 'talk' goes, but dare not do anything. I often ask Christian men to read the 8th verse of the 21 chapter of Rev. carefully, and mark the third word in the verse: "But the FEARFUL, and unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers, and whoremongers, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars, shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone: which is the second death." Would it not be well to make a few comments on this verse? It might be the means of helping some to put on courage. I think the Anti-masonic cause is growing here in Conn. We have a good leader in J. A. Conant. He is an earnest worker. I wish the Prohibition men might unite with the Anti-masons and vote for the Hon. J. B. Walker. May the Lord hasten the day when Masonry shall be among the things that were."

In place of making comments on the verse quoted above, we will ask all our readers to consider it very carefully.

J. F. Kemble, Lincoln, Neb., writes:

"A little over a year ago the scales fell from my eyes and I fell from the orders of Patrons of Husbandry, and Good Templars, and since that time I have been hated as I never was before, but this only shows the spirit that rules in secret conclaves."

W. H. Smylie, Cadiz, O., writes:

"The boys like to read the paper, and the children like the 'Children's Corner'."

A. C. Moffatt, Albion, Ia., writes:

"I shall do what I can for the cause so long as my health and means permit. I have seen the time in York State when a man dare not say he was a Freemason. Now we see the reverse, when a man hardly dare say he is Anti-mason."

Dr. S. Simpson, Pilot Rock, Oreg., writes:

"The Masons and Odd-fellows last spring, succeeded in bringing a malicious suit into the circuit court against me for supposed mal-practice in surgery, but they had no case and we beat them easy; yet it cost me five hundred dollars to defend the suit. They have made other attempts before to do me private injury, and now whatever may befall my person or property I must hold them responsible, but we have not yet 'resisted unto blood striving against sin.' I ask the sympathies and prayers of all true reformers, and be assured that you all have mine. I am at present giving a course of lectures to our large school of young men and women on physiology and hygiene, and what constitutes an education proper of our entire nature, physical, intellectual and moral, and hope to be able to ventilate the powers of darkness when I come to it."

E. C. Spencer, Myersburgh, Pa., sends two new subscriptions for a year, and writes:

"I am trying to do all I can to help on the good cause, and may the dear Lord help us all.

W. H. Figg, Remo, Ind., writes:

"I think I will be able to send you some interesting news from this land of mud and secretism."

We will be happy to receive any communication you may favor us with."

O. Wilbur, Vineland, N. J., writes:

"You ought to have twenty-five subscribers here."

Reader, how many should there be in your locality?

The Sabbath School.

Lesson for March 5.—God's Covenant with David.

SCRIPTURE.—2 Samuel vii. 18-29. Commit 27-29.

18 Then went king David in, and sat before the Lord, and he said, Who am I, O Lord God? and what is my house, that thou hast brought me hitherto?

19 And this was yet a small thing in thy sight, O Lord God; but thou hast spoken also of thy servant's house for a great while to come. And is this the manner of men, O Lord God?

20 And what can David say more unto thee? for thou, Lord God, knowest thy servant.

21 For thy word's sake, and according to thine own heart, hast thou done all these great things, to make thy servant know them.

22 Wherefore thou art great, O Lord God: for there is none like thee, neither is there any God besides thee, according to all that we have heard with our ears.

23 And what one nation in the earth is like thy people, even like Israel, whom God went to redeem for a people to himself, and to make him a name, and to do for you great things and terrible, for thy land, before thy people which thou redeemedst to thee from Egypt, from the nations and their gods?

24 For thou hast confirmed to thyself thy people Israel to be a people unto thee forever: and thou, Lord, art become their God.

25 And now, O Lord God, the word that thou hast spoken concerning thy servant and concerning his house, establish it forever, and do as thou hast said.

26 And let thy name be magnified for ever, saying, the Lord of hosts is the God over Israel: and let the house of thy servant David be established before thee.

27 For thou, O Lord of hosts, O God of Israel, hast revealed to thy servant, saying, I will build thee a house: therefore hath thy servant found in his heart to pray this prayer unto thee.

28 And now, O Lord God, thou art that God, and thy words be true, and thou hast promised this goodness unto thy servant:

29 Therefore now let it please thee to bless the house of thy servant, that it may continue forever before thee: for thou, O Lord God, hath spoken it: and with thy blessing let the house of thy servant be blessed forever.

The covenant with Noah, Gen. ix.; wit. Abraham, Gen. xii., xv. and xvii.; the Sabbath for a covenant, Ex. xxxi. 12-17; the new covenant, Heb. viii., ix. and x.; the covenant keeping God, Ps. cv. and cxi.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Of this man's seed hath God according to his promise, raised unto Israel a Saviour, Jesus.—Acts xiii. 23.

The Teaching Power.

Does any one ever say or think, "If I could preach as Peter did on the day of Pentecost, then I would speak for Jesus to my dying fellow-men?" No doubt of it. And how did Peter speak? What did he tell the people? Only simple and truthful words about Jesus and him crucified! But he might have spoken in far more learned and eloquent terms, yet all to no purpose, had not the spirit of God been with him. One good thing we learn about him—he was fresh from a prayer-meeting! For some days the whole church had continued with one accord in one place, praying. Peter had been there an interested and active member of that prayer-meeting! This was the preparation which he had for that great day's work. Let all who would be great in winning souls prepare themselves in the same way. It is no marvel if we find no heart to work, and do no good work among souls, if we pray but little or not at all. He who slights the prayer-work, whether in "the closet" or the more public exercises, will be of little use for other work. Believe that! But how came Peter to be a Christian? How came he to be standing and preaching the Gospel so successfully to that great multitude? The answer is found in John i. 35-42. We look with wonder upon the preacher and the work of that memorable day of Pentecost. Then let us remember that the preacher and the work of that day were but the results of five words spoken about Jesus by one who believed in him. They were very simple, very plain words. There is no extraordinary art nor eloquence in them. They were not even addressed directly to any one, so far as we can learn; but were only spoken in the hearing of two men. John the Baptist said, "Behold the Lamb of God. And the two disciples heard him speak, and they followed Jesus." One of the two was "Andrew, Simon Peter's brother. He first findeth his own brother Simon," told him of and brought him to Jesus. And this is that same Peter who did the glorious Pentecostal work.

John the Baptist's teaching power was in a simple, truthful testimony in plain words. He spoke of Jesus to and in the presence of others,—spoke of him because he believed in him, and as he believed in him! This was enough to win Andrew. And after one day's intercourse with Jesus, Andrew seeks his own brother, and in plain words told him about Jesus, and thus "brought him to Jesus." Blessed example! May we not also win our loved ones after the same manner?

Could John the Baptist calculate the results of those five words spoken about Jesus? No! And no more can we foresee what effects are to follow our words. But a believing testimony, no matter how short or simple, will reach its reward. Then let every one speak for Jesus who has the heart to do so.—Earnest Worker.

Farm and Garden.

Shelter Belts.

Wherever there is a farmer who is fortunate enough to have the protection of a belt or grove of even common forest trees about his buildings he is enjoying a temperate climate compared to that where there is not a tree to break the force of the wind. We have often urged the importance of planting around our homes and the out-buildings for stock, thick timber belts. If these could be made up of the different kinds of evergreens they would make a more perfect wind-break, but even deciduous trees answer better than none. Some of the oaks and beeches retain their leaves, and so far they are quite useful. Nothing, however, can make so complete a protection as the pines, hemlocks, and spruces which are natives of the northern part of this State and Wisconsin, as well as the Eastern States.

The Black spruce (abies nigra) is one of the hardiest and best for this purpose. Its leaves are short and stiff and come out all around the stems very closely, making a most dense, compact head. A belt of this spruce planted thickly in double rows, would break the force entirely of any ordinary winter blast. In favorable soils it grows fifty to seventy feet high. Its color is dark and sombre, with a slight bluish tinge. For a belt exposed to north and west winds, this spruce can occupy the most exposed place. The Norway spruce (abies excelsa) for its magnificent appearance should be used in the part of such a belt as we are proposing, nearest the dwelling and inside the line of black spruce. It is the handsomest of all the family of spruces. It is not only a dignified looking tree, but it has an elegant and graceful habit with its long sweeping branches. But aside from these qualities it is most useful in our belt, because it towers above the other spruce named and affords thus greater protection against winds and snows.

Another tree needed for our belt is the hemlock spruce (abies canadensis) which should always have the inside or protected line. When thus planted it makes a most beautiful finish this background, or border of our farm picture. In such situations it can always be kept thick and massive. Single trees, when they attain considerable age assume irregular forms, but in a hedge row, planted thickly and protected from the winds they retain their dense habit which is helped by shearing gently once or twice a year.

The value of such a belt about our dwellings and barns is incalculable. Ask any man who has been wise enough to plant one, what he will take and have it removed and he will tell you that money is no temptation. These shelter belts are fast becoming a necessity. Our winters are windy and are colder on an average. By this simple plan we are able to exclude both wind and cold in a large degree. There are a great many half hardy trees and shrubs which cannot be grown in any place in the northern States fully exposed to the winds. The natural habit of all trees and shrubs is to grow up in masses for mutual protection. Take a tree whose habit is by nature to seek the support of kindred trees and plant it out alone, and unless very hardy it will be sure to die; but give it the protection of a belt of evergreens and it will thrive beyond your expectation.

A good screen of evergreens would so change the climate of any place that half-tender roses and other shrubs would grow and endure the winter without other protection. There is no half-hardy plant that can stand our winters and live.—Western Rural.

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, FEB. 24 1876.

PLATFORM AND NOMINATIONS FOR 1876.

FOR PRESIDENT

James B. Walker,
of Illinois.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT

Donald Kirkpatrick,
of New York.

PLATFORM.

We hold: 1. That ours is a Christian and not a heathen nation, and that the God of the Christian Scriptures is the author of civil government.

2. That God requires and man needs a Sabbath.

3. That the prohibition of the importation, manufacture and sale of intoxicating drinks as a beverage, is the true policy on the temperance question.

4. The charters of all secret lodges granted by our Federal and State Legislatures should be withdrawn, and their oaths prohibited by law.

5. That the civil equality secured to all American citizens by articles 13th, 14th and 15th of our amended Constitution should be preserved inviolate.

6. That arbitration of differences with nations is the most direct and sure method of securing and perpetuating a permanent peace.

7. That to cultivate the intellect without improving the morals of men, is to make mere adepts and experts; therefore the Bible should be associated with books of science and literature in all our educational institutions.

8. That land and other monopolies should be discountenanced.

9. That the government should furnish the people with an ample and sound currency, and a return to specie payment as soon as practicable.

10. That maintenance of the public credit, protection to all loyal citizens, and justice to Indians are essential to the honor and safety of our nation.

11. And finally we demand for the Americanpeople the abolition of the Electoral Colleges, and a direct vote for President and Vice-president of the United States.

"THEY KNOW NOT AT WHAT THEY STUMBLE."

Dr. Albert G. Mackey, M. D. K. T., and 33 degree, author of Masonic Lexicon, jurisprudence, ritualist, etc., etc., perhaps our readers do not know is now joint editor of the Voice of Masonry, Chicago. This multifarious Masonic writer was of Charleston, S. C.; and caring little for anything but his secret religion, was popular with men on both sides during "the time that tried men's souls." But as conjurers, and fortune tellers, and sleight-of-hand men wear out and must shift their quarters and their tricks, the Dr. has come North to "elevate man" here in Chicago, by the means which so signally failed to elevate the secesh of the South into patriots or citizens, anything in short but Masons, which almost all of them were.

One thing must be conceded. Dr. Mackey has improved the manners of the monthly Masonic organ, if nothing more. Under the head, "Building better than they knew," (borrowed by the way, from a eulogy on the Puritans) he permits Wm. Rounsville in three or four solid pages to show that the senior editor of the Cynosure built up Masonry in Galesburg, Ill., and is now building it up in Wheaton. In all these pages the writer has the negative merit of not insulting or abusing us; he even lauds us. He says:

"He soon acquired a large influence not only in the churches and the institution of learning with which he was connected; but among all the people in the region round about. Few men in his place have been more honored and fewer still more esteemed."

Having thus exalted us "Bro." Rounsville proceeds to prove the impregnability of Masonry by showing that the assaults of such a hero only builds it up. His proofs are, that in the growth of Galesburg from a village of 800 people to fifteen or twenty thousand, two Masonic and one Odd-fellows lodge, with a chapter and commandery have sprung up there. And in Wheaton, where, contrary to Mr. Rounsville's impression, there was an Odd-fellow and Masonic lodge, and afterwards a lodge of Good Templars, the writer thinks my efforts have strengthened the cause I assailed.

Now if this writer was not, as he is in part, mistaken in his facts, there is another explanation of them. Moses and Aaron's summons to Pharaoh to "Let Israel go," seemed to strengthen their chains; but they did not. They only strained these chains till they snapped. And for years we heard nothing but "What have you abolitionists done? How many slaves have you freed?" And judging by outward appearances slavery never was stronger than when it repealed the Missouri Compromise and deluged Kansas with border ruffians a few years before it fell. But increasing the density of darkness does not necessarily prolong its sway or postpone the morning which will disperse it. The twelfth time Wilberforce rose in Parliament and moved the abolition of the slave trade his motion was supported by a mere handful of voters; but the thirteenth time it carried without a division.

It may be so with Masonry. The rally of the Ephesian shrine-makers carried the tax-meeting at Ephesus; but their clamor "Great is Diana of the Ephesians!" did not strengthen idolatry in others' minds or their own, or save their idol, or weaken or destroy Christianity.

But let us look at the facts.

It is true that as Galesburg grew from a hamlet to a city, as soon as its success had made abolitionism popular in the vicinity, the Freemasons and Universalists and spirit-mongers, who shunned it while it walked in sackcloth and was hated for its opposition to slavery, came to it in crowds after its virtues had won success. The place then began to swarm with dram-shops. Did the origiual temperance men and women of Galesburg "build" those dram-shops? As well charge them with it as charge their Anti-masonry with building their lodges. This sort of reasoning would make the prophets and apostles of all ages the builders of the crimes and evils which they denounced.

But who "built" up the grog-shops and lodges in Peoria, where the little finger of Masonry is to-day stronger than its loins are in its neighbor-city of Galesburg, a town of like size. The simple fact is, that birds and beasts of prey swarm wherever there is carrion; and the lodges which are birds of night are birds of prey. They are the buzzards of the battle-field of life. Virtue, industry and godliness make prosperity; and prostitutes, loafers, grog-sellers and Freemasons, swarm where means accumulate so they can follow their respective trades. Who built up Masonry at Springfield, our State capital, where such men as Newton Bateman have been compelled to stand the stripping and swearing of the lodge which they loathe, in order to get office? Who "built up" Masonry in our common school system of Illinois and gave to it a Knight Templar Superintendent, as Mr. Bateman's successor? The answer is the same: "Wheresoever the carcass is, there the eagles are gathered together."

When I came to Wheaton sixteen years ago, there was here both a Masonic and Odd-fellows lodge. The latter some years since sold out the last rag of its regalia, put the money in the pockets of a few members who then went home. A lodge of Good Templars was started under the auspices of the Masons, but soon sunk and gave up its charter. An Odd-fellow lodge in the small village of Danby, but a couple of miles from Wheaton, caught some rays of sense from the discussion and concluded to terminate its existence. Another, however, has within a few weeks been started through the efforts of the same Masonic "drummer" who has been at Wheaton. But while these outposts are being driven in, what of the citadel? The lodge of Freemasons lost four or five of their principal members in a single revival of religion. The Grand Lodge has sent its missionaries to rally the forlorn hope. They have cable-towed and fooled every farmer in the vicinity who had a weak place in his head or a rotten spot in his heart. They have the negative protection of every religious worldling, man or woman, who could sigh over the superstition of an earnest Christian, but see nothing wrong in wholesale superstitions and blasphemies of the lodge; and with all this help from auxiliaries in the church and without, the Masonic lodge in Wheaton has had to run up the hospital flag of distress and call in members from surrounding towns to enable them to say "we." But for money and men from outside, the lodge in Wheaton would have gone ere this to sleep with its children the Odd-fellows and Good Templars. The man who was master of the lodge and who prosecuted the College by application for mandamus in our circuit courts, was beaten in both circuit and supreme courts and though a leading property-holder and politician in the county at the time, he has gone to drink whiskey and raise trout with a gang of spiritualists in the Rocky Mountains. Thus, "The triumphing of the wicked is short, and the joy of a hypocrite but for a moment."

I answer those Freemasons who boast that we are building up the lodge, that "The way of the wicked is as darkness; they know not at what they stumble." You may build a lodge in every city and town on one corner, and a brothel on another, but you will neither destroy Christianity nor marriage till you first destroy Christ who is the author of both. You may summon Freemasons from the Junction to shield Freemasons in their church trials in Wheaton, but "Though hand join in hand the wicked shall not be unpunished." "A sword not seen shall destroy the first-born of their strength." "The moth shall devour them as a garment and the worm shall eat them as wool." No instrument is too insignificant for God to use to execute his displeasure on those who fear not God nor regard man when blinded by the god of sensuality or the god of gain.

—The committee to which arrangements for the National Anniversary were referred have decided that June 20th —22d is the best time for the meeting.

—One would think that the beautiful, spring-like days of this winter season would call out the energies of every reformer to work in any way he might find to scatter light. If bad roads hinder, on foot is better than on horse-back generally for an earnest canvasser.

—Through its Publishing House the National Christian Association proposes something like Ericsson's plan for storing away the forces of the sunlight for use in any weather, and to better purpose—an arsenal of reform; always giving away, always full. Several friends have written, many doubtless have thought it over and agreed with themselves to send in a contribution before the first of April, when the first $10,000 is to be raised if the Carpenter donation is secured. Of course every one must be his own judge as to times and seasons, but it is well to be admonished that delays are often unsafe.

—In our correspondence and elsewhere a very important topic is broached. If a man is a Mason conscientiously, he will neither be afraid or ashamed to own it, though he ought to be both; if he is a Mason dishonestly his Masonry will not help him to be a safer man with public trusts; so let him be hunted out. Let office-holders and candidates know that their lodge standing is going to be looked up.

—Rossville, Ill., has had something to think of since the visit of Mr. Ronayne and his open lodge. The local paper has been one medium of the discussion, in which both sides marshall their arguments, although the editor holds the smiling side of his face toward the lodge; his name does not appear on its roll for last G. L. report, however. We say to the friends in Rossville and vicinity don't lose the opportunity now the discussion is hot. Your facts and arguments will impress many minds not to be reached at other times. Keep the iron hot by striking, and may the Lord bless the truth.

—Judge Mark Bangs, lately appointed United States district attorney, and prosecuting the whiskey suits in Chicago, is a member of Lacon Lodge, No. 61. His predecessor, Jasper D. Ward, ex-Congressman, is of Cleveland Lodge in this city. He was too great a friend of the indicted parties to be a very successful prosecutor to be sure. Perhaps Mr. Bangs may prove to be likewise.

—Other parties connected with hese suits in the government employ, first in the employ of the lodge, are deputy marshall Buck, and several members of the grand and petit juries whose names do not now occur to us.

—A son of Rev. E. G. Cooper of Albany, Mo., the Am. Freeman reports, was fatally injured lately by being thrown from a horse and dragged for some distance. Mr. Cooper is a Methodist minister who has been lecturing against the lodge in Gentry county and vicinity.

D. P. Rathbun.—Our readers will be pained to learn of the very serious illness ef this earnest Christian worker. The Wesleyan of last week says:

Rev. D. P. Rathbun, of Lisbon, Champlain Conference, has recently suffered a severe attack of bleeding at the lungs. He suffers a great deal of pain. On the morning of Feb. 8th he was very low. He feels that all is well if the Lord sees fit to take him away. Living or dying he feels reconciled to the Divine will. Let the brethren pray for him. Since the foregoing was written, Mrs. Rathbun has been summoned home by telegraph, and she writes that she finds him very low, having bled profusely from the lungs. His physician, one of the best in the county, says the left lung is not used at all, and the right lung is effected. He says that brother Rathbun cannot speak again this winter, and perhaps never again. But we cast our care upon Christ who careth for us.

On Trial.

Fellow Citizens, are you aware that the fearful struggle now upon us is to determine whether this land shall be the tomb or the temple of civil and religious liberty? Whether robbery, licentiousness and Baal-worship in high places shall be covered with that mantle which the devil is spreading over the rum-shop, the brothel and the midnight conclave, by moving our legislators first to license and afterward to extenuate their crimes, or whether this government shall be preserved by making capability, purity and integrity the pass-port to position, thus securing to our children that which our fathers left to us.

This is the issue forced upon us now and the conflict is waxing hot. If the lodge power dominates we will speedly become subjects of the "Most Puissant Sovereign Grand Commander," whose law of action, as indicated by his title, is his own sovereign pleasure. No enactment of our legislative assemblies will become operative or final until approved by the "Supreme Council of Sovereign Grand Inspectors General;" and the real seat of government transferred from the halls of Congress into the hands of a sworn cable, holding midnight sessions in "temples" from which Christ and Christian civilization is excluded by expelling whatever makes Christianity to differ from paganism.

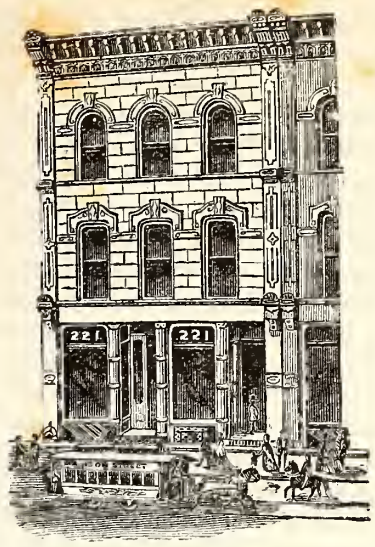
It is time for freemen to arouse, before the nation is wrecked, and wield their mighty spiritual weapons in striking a telling blow upon this system. To delay is dangerous, at best, and may become fatal to our dearest earthly interests.

Ohio seems to comprehend in some measure the situation, and under the leadership of Dr. George has called for a grand rally at Westerville, March 8th, at 2 o'clock P. M. Every lover of God and of good government in the State will rejoice in this call, and unless absolutely compelled to be elsewhere should be there. There are more Anti-masons by far in Ohio than Masons, and if they will make the effort demanded by the importance of our cause that convention will be neither deficient in numbers, interest or influence.

Let me say to you personally and individually, come if you possibly can, but if you cannot, then as the next best thing—"send a hand"

J. P. Stoddard.

Is he a Freemason?



If he lives in Illinois the "Illinois Masonic Register" will answer that question to your entire satisfaction. The book is certainly not intended for Anti-masons, for thousands of Freemasons take the greatest care to conceal the fact of their membership from the "profane," and to have an Anti-mason possess a complete list of all the lodges, chapters, encampments, commanderies, consistories, etc., with the name of every officer and member thereof must be considered a calamity indeed But Ezra A. Cook & Co, have a lot of these books bought expressly for Illinois Anti-masons and they cost but 25 cents each, post paid. Send your order promptly if you wish to be sure of getting a copy.

Obituary—John Hubbard.

We learn from an Ottawa (Ill.) paper of the sudden death of this earnest and life-long friend of our reform on the 7th of January. On that day with his wife he was about to take the cars at Ottawa for Peoria—was just stepping on board the train when he fell and expired in a moment. His remains were taken to Homer, N. Y., his birthplace, for their final interment.

Mr. Hubbard was born in 1804 and most of his early life was passed in Courtland county, N. Y., where he improved his educational advantages and prepared to teach. He also made a special study of music and became a proficient teacher under the tutelage of of the eminent Thomas Hastings. The war against the lodge following the tragedy of 1826, engaged his attention and he became attached to the principles which so nearly overthrew the dark system. His convictions ripened with years and he was one of the earliest friends of the revived movement.

In 1835 he removed with his family to Freedom in La Salle county, Ill., where he lived until his death; with the exception of a few years before the war, when he resided in Sandwich, De Kalb county. Soon after his removal to this State the Lovejoy troubles occurred at Alton and St. Charles, Mo. Mr. Hubbard was by nature a hater of tyranny and measured the anti-slavery reform, as every other, by the law of God. He became heartily engaged in it, and bore heroically the public odium which nearly ostracised him from society because of his abolitionism. His efforts in behalf of the slave were full of thrilling incident. His house became a depot on the underground railway. His wife sympathized with him in all these matters, and many a slave rejoiced in their freedom through their instrumentality. He was, as before stated, earnestly devoted to the anti-lodge reform as a Christian and patriot, contributing heartily of time and means for its support. Last year he was elected a member of the corporate body, and his death is the first of which it is the sad task to make record.

THE CARPENTER DONATION.

The above is a front view of the fine stone-front building on Madison street, Chicago, which Mr. Carpenter proposes to give the National Christian Association for head-quarters and publishing house. The terms of the donation are that $30,000 shall be raised by Apr. 1, 1878, to carry on the work of the Association. Send contributions to Treasurer of the N. C. A.

The National Christian Association

President—Philo Carpenter.

Directors.—Philo Carpenter, J. Blanchard, Archibald Wait, I. A. Hart, C. R. Hagerty, E. A. Cook, O. F. Lumry, C. A. Blanchard, H. L. Kellogg, I. R. B. Arnold, E. S. Cook.

Cor. Secretary.—C. A. Blanchard.

Treasurer.—H. L. Kellogg.

General Agent and Lecturer—J. P. Stoddard. Address last three at 13 Wabash Ave. Chicago.

The object of this Association is:—

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved; to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform to aid the Association in either of these ways: (1) to establish a Publishing House and Head-quarters in Chicago; (2) to carry on the general work; (3) to maintain the State agents. All donations, (drafts or P. O. orders) should be sent to the Treasurer; general correspondence, etc., direct to the Corresponding Secretary.

Form of Bequest.—I give and bequeath to the National Christian Association, incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois, the sum of——dollars for the purposes of said Association, and for which the receipt of its Treasurer for the time being shall be a sufficient discharge.

News of the Week.

The City.

It has been found out by reporters that a large proportion of the liquor dens of the city are unlicensed.——It appears that Chicago aldermen bid for bribes in contracting for the city printing.——Gov. Beverage was in the city last week drinking wine and beer and visiting the breweries with liquor dealers, making stock for a renomination. Mark him.

The Country.

The Beecher Council held several bootless sessions last week and finally came down to closing the doors to the public.—The Babcock trial in St. Louis was unconcluded on Saturday with prospect of at least a divided jury.——Independent State conventions have been held in Indiana and Illinois at which State officers have been nominated. The Indiana convention instructed their delegates to vote for Senator Newton Booth of Cal. for President.——Two murderers were hung in St. Louis last Friday.——Charlotte Cushman, the great actress, died last Friday from a cancer.——A general Indian war is reported as likely to occur at an early day.——It is said that the Democrats of Louisiana are working to impeach Gov. Kellogg, and there is a growing belief that a forcible demonstration will soon take place through a secret society.

State Auxiliary Associations.

The following list will be found of great convenience. Let every friend of the reform put himself in communication with the proper officers, sending contributions, suggestions,—anything to push on the work.

CONNECTICUT.

President, J. A. Conant, Willimantic.
Secretary, D. J. Ellsworth, Windsor.
Treasurer, C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.

President, J. Dickson, Decatur.
Secretary, J. H. Snyder, Westfield.
Treasurer, H. L. Kellogg, 18 Wabash Ave. Chicago.
Lecturer, H. H. Hinman, Wheaton.

INDIANA.

President, Halleck Floyd, Dublin.
Cor. Sec'y J. T. Kiggins, Portland.
Rec. Sec'y, Wm. Small, Xenia.
Treasurer, Peter Rich, Westfield.
Lecturer, J. T. Kiggins, Portland.

IOWA.

President, M. S. Drury, Castalia.
Cor. Sec'y, Louis Bookwalter, Western College.
Rec. Sec'y, C. Compton, Steamboat Rock.
Treasurer, D. W. Lyons, Mason City.
Lecturer, James Hankins, Mason City.

KANSAS.

President, Rev. Mr. Bell.
Secretary, J. Dodds, Winchester.
Treasurer, S. Sexton, Topeka.

MICHIGAN.

President, C. Quick, Weston.
Secretary, C. B. Remington, Fenton.
Treasurer, J. H. Wilcox, Howell.
Lecturer, J. L. Barlow, Fenton.
Agent, C. B. Remington, Fenton.

MISSOURI.

President, N. E. Gardner, Avalon.
Cor. Sec'y, A. D. Thomas, Arbela.
Rec. Sec'y, E. W. Carpenter.
Treasurer, Wm. Beauchamp, Avalon.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

President, J. F. Brown, Bow Lake.
Secretary, S. C. Kimball, Center Strafford.
Treasurer, Kimball Cole, Lake Village.
Lecturer, S. C. Kimball, Center Strafford.

NEW YORK.

President, L. N. Stratton, Syracuse.
Secretary, W. A. Sellew, Rochester.
Treasurer, M. Merrick, Syracuse.
Lecturers—L. N. Stratton, Syracuse; D. P. Rathbun, Lisbon Center; Woodruff Post, Rochester; A. F. Curry, Almond.

OHIO.

President, H. H. George, W. Geneva.
Secretary, Wm. Dillon, Dayton.
Treasurer, J. G. Mattoon, West Unity.
Lecturer, Wm. Dillon, Dayton.

PENNSYLVANIA.

President, A. L. Post, Montrose.
Cor. Sec'y, N. Callender, Green Grove.
Rec. Sec'y, J. W. Raynor, Uniondale.
Treasurer, W. B. Bertels, Wilksbarre.
Lecturer, J. W. Raynor, Uniondale.

WISCONSIN.

President, J. W. Wood, Baraboo.
Secretary, U. D. Lathrop, Millard.
Treasurer; Joshua Parish, Delavan.

Washington.

The Pacific Railroad committee are said to be aeti on Col. Tom Scott's scheme for the Texas Pacific road.——Minister Schenck beside his connection with the Emma mine swindle, is found to have helped introduce a fraudulent American railroad scheme in England. His success at card-playing is however unquestioned.

Foreign.

Cable dispatches confirm the reports of recent important victories by the Alphonsist forces, and denote an early close of field operations. The routed Carlists have fled in large numbers across the French border, and have been interned by the authorities.——Herr August Reichensperger, an eminent leader of the Ultramontane party in the German Parliament has published a conciliatory pamphlet in which he recommends a virtual withdrawal of the new Ecclesiastical statutes or else direct negotiations between Berlin and Rome. The former alternative being out of the question, the pamphlet has probably been written to indicate the inclination of the Papacy to effect a compromise. It is high time for some such arrangement, unless the Roman church in Prussia is to be deprived of her few remaining bishops.

The Home Circle.

If Thou couldst Know.

I think if thou couldst know,
O soul that will complain,
What lies concealed below
Our burden and our pain;
How just our anguish brings
Nearer those longed-for things
We seek for now in vain,—
I think thou wouldst rejoice, and not complain.

I think if thou couldst see,
With thy dim, mortal sight,
How meanings dark to thee
Are shadows hiding light;
Truth's efforts crossed and vexed,
Life purpose all perplexed,—
If thou couldst see them right,
I think that they would seem all clear and wise and bright.

And yet thou canst not know,
And yet thou canst not see;
Wisdom and sight are slow
In poor humanity.
If thou couldst trust, poor soul,
In him who rules the whole,
Thou wouldst find peace and rest;
Wisdom and right are well, but trust is best.

—Adelaide Proctor.

A Precious Gift.

But, beloved, it is time now to say a word as to how and from whom sanctification is received. It is a gift from the Lord Jesus Christ, and it is received through faith. It is the baptism of the Holy Ghost; and is received the instant the whole soul goes out to Jesus for it. It comes after pardon and reconciliation. Only the intensely earnest ones, who have been pardoned, seek and find it. These, earnestly desiring to do the whole will of God, come to see their failings and shortcomings. They see that they grieve the blessed Lord, and wound their own souls. They see, too, that they have not "all the fullness of God" in their souls; that they are not fully set apart as the temples for God to dwell in. Then, seeing a greater fullness in Christ for them, they seek to give themselves to the Lord wholly, for time and for eternity. Having made the consecration, without condition or reserve, as they suppose, they begin to pray. They are likely to begin to work, too. For they do not see yet that the whole of salvation is a free gift. They pray, and watch their feelings, pleased at the intensity in their hearts, with the struggling vehemence of their prayers. They do not see that this is all legal—the activity of the self-life. For a time they measure their earnestness by the degree of their inward struggling. They reconsecrate themselves, as they suppose, fully to the Lord; and continue to struggle and agonize in prayer. There is much will-effort. They are determined to fit themselves for the indwelling of the Holy Spirit. Their whole idea of sanctification is legal. They want to help God to save them. And here lies the great hindrance in the church. It has legal ideas. It rejects sanctification because it has legal ideas of it. It thinks of a self-sanctification—purity and holiness in the believer from self. And Christian people smile incredulously at the idea of one's not sinning; because they think of his keeping himself from sinning. They do not think of the Holy Spirit's dwelling in the acts and choices of the soul for the purpose of leading, guiding and keeping the soul. And it is nearly an impossible task to make Christians see that it is Christ in the soul who keeps it from sinning against himself.

But the earnest ones, seeking sanctification, must learn this needful lesson, and only Jesus can teach it. Man may point the way; but God must show it. But at length the lesson is learned. Weary and worn by legal tossings, the soul comes to see its own utter helplessness to do any act to fit itself as a temple for God. Then at the moment the soul despairs in self-effort, it is likely to turn in full trust to God. And as the sinner had to do for pardon, the Christian has to do for sanctification. He must trust God with the whole heart, and receive it. The whole soul turns to God, and into itself receives the life of God. This is the soul's sanctification. For the soul's sanctification is the life of God.—Chris. Reformer.

Pardon Through Christ.

He was wounded for our transgressions; he was bruised for our iniquities; hie chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed. All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; and the Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all. Is. liii. 5.

He shall save his people from their sins. Matt. i. 21.

Through this man is preached unto you the forgiveness of sins. Acts. xiii. 38.

In whom we have redemption, through his blood; the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of his grace. Eph. i. 7.

Who gave himself for our sins. Gal. i. 4.

This is a faithful saying and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners. 1 Tim. i. 15.

Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures. 1 Cor. xv. 3.

By one offering he hath perfected forever them that are sanctified. Heb. x. 14.

The Lamb of God, which taketh away the sins of the world. John i. 19.

This is my blood which is shed for many, for the remission of sins. Matt. xxvi. 28.

The blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth us from all sin. If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. 1 John i. 7,9.

If any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father: Jesus Christ the righteous. He is the propitiation for our sins; and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world. I write unto you, little children, because your sins are forgiven you, for his name sake. 1 John ii. 1,2,12.

He was manifested to take away our sins. 1 John iii. 5.

Who his own self bear our sins, in his own body, on the tree, that we, being dead to sins, should live unto righteousness, by whose stripes ye were healed. 1 Pet. ii. 24.

"You Don't Pray."—This instructive anecdote, relating to President Finney, is characteristic:

A brother who had fallen into darkness and discouragement, was staying at the same house with Dr. Finney over night. He was lamenting his condition, and Dr. F., after listening to his narrative, turned to him with his peculiar, earnest look, and with a voice that sent a thrill through his soul, said, "You don't pray! that is what's the matter with you. Pray—pray four times as much as you ever did in your life, and you will come out."

He immediately went down to the parlor, and taking the Bible made a serious business of it, stirring up his soul to seek God as did Daniel, and thus he spent the night. It was not in vain. As the morning dawned he felt the light of the Sun of Righteousness shine upon his soul. His captivity was broken; and ever since he has felt that the greatest difficulty in the way of men being emancipated from their bondage, is that they "don't pray."

The bonds cannot be broken by finite strength. We must take our case to him who is mighty to save. Our eyes are blinded to Christ the Deliverer. He came to preach deliverance to the captive, to break the power of habit; and herein is the rising of a great hope for us.—Advance.

Buddhism and Pagodas.

Of the prominent religions which have for many centuries held captive the heathen nations, none has had a greater influence over the minds of men than the system of belief which counts among its adherents the great majority of the people of China, and known to us as Buddhism. Founded by Shakyamuni Gautama, in the sixth century before Christ, it spread among the people in many portions of India, and steadily gained adherents in Nepaul, Cashmere, Ceylon, Siam and Burmah. Three centuries after its establishment at Benares, eighteen priests of this religion proceeded to China, but their efforts and those of their successors were not attended with marked success. It was not until near the close of the first century of the Christian era that Buddhism began to be influential in the land. Under the patronage of the emperor Ming Ti, it entered upon a career of signal prosperity, which eventually gave it the leading place among the religions of China, which position it retains at the present day.

The account given by native authorities of the erection of the first pagoda seems of sufficient interest to admit of its presentation in this article: "In the tenth year of the emperor who occupied the throne about A. D. 250, a foreign priest of the Buddhist religion, named Kang-tsung-huei, appeared at Nanking, then the capital of the empire, and performed many strange and what seemed supernatural feats. The people represented the case to their sovereign. His Majesty immediately called the priest to an audience with him, and inquired if Buddha could communicate any divine emblems. He replied that Buddha had left some traces of himself upon earth, although they were very mysterious. He had left numerous bone relics, the miraculous power of which was limitless. The emperor then made special inquiry where these relics could be found. To this the sacerdotal father replied, that if he himself were under the influence of Buddha's spirit to go in search, he was sure to find one. His Majesty upon this made a distinct promise, that if the priest succeeded in getting one such he would erect an edifice called a pagoda. After twenty-one days of earnest search the priest discovered one in a bottle, and immediately presented it to the Chinese sovereign. When taken into the palace it lighted up the entire building. In his eagerness to inspect the remarkable curiosity the emperor poured it out of the bottle into a copper basin. The basin, however, was instantly broken, both from the weight of the relic and the force with which it thumped upon it. The emperor was greatly frightened at this supernatural specimen. The aged priest then advanced to assure the monarch that apart from these miraculous signs there was something even more astonishing about this bone of Buddha. It was, that a diamond or steel could not scratch it, fire could not scorch it, and the heaviest mallet could not break it. The emperor accordingly ordered a man of unusual strength to come forward and strike some heavy blows on the sacred relic with a sledge-hammer. The man did so, but to no purpose except to destroy the hammer itself. The relic remained untouched, with an effulgence as bright as before, and dazzling every person's eyes. Thus was the emperor's faith confirmed and in fulfillment of his pledge he erected a t'dh in which to keep the relic. This is the beginning of pagoda building in China."

The edifice here referred to was the famous porcelain tower of Nanking, one of the most imposing and beautiful structures which Chinese workmanship has ever fashioned. Its cost is said to have been three millions of dollars. Elaborately ornamented, its nine stories flashing the bright sunlight from their crystal surfaces and supporting clear-toned bells, which, shaken by the winds, rang out upon the air a pleasant melody, this pagoda held for many centuries a large place in the regard and veneration of the people of Central China. During the occupation of Nanking by Taiping rebels, in the year 1856, this pagoda, with many other public buildings of the city, was destroyed.

Commencing at Nanking, buildings in this style have been erected in all parts of the empire, and comparatively few of the larger cities are destitute of a pagoda. They vary in height from fifty to one hundred and fifty feet. The number of stories varies from five to thirteen; seven or nine seems to be the favorite number. They are generally built of brick or stone, rarely of iron; some of them are solid, others are hollow, and are provided with staircases, by which they may be ascended.

Pagodas were originally constructed from religious considerations. They are sometimes spoken of as temples, but this hardly seems a correct definition. Temples are frequently found in connection with pagodas, and such, doubtless, have the preference over those which are not near a pagoda. These buildings are supposed to ward off evil influences and attract the favor of Buddha. Education will attain a higher standard, business will be brisker, the crops will be more abundant, and a greater degree of general prosperity will characterize that community which possesses one or more of these pagodas. They are often made the receptacle of Buddhist relics, or the sacred books which inculcate this system of worship and belief. A pagoda also sometimes serves the purpose of a monument, containing within its walls the remains of a priest or nun whose life had been marked by special devoutness and self-abnegation.

New pagodas are now very seldom seen, and it is not often that one sees an old pagoda undergoing repairs. A specimen of the appeals which are circulated to secure funds for the repairing of old pagodas is introduced to show what an important relation they are supposed to sustain to the welfare of the community. In the year 1837, the following paper was circulated among the officials, scholars and merchants of Canton: 'Fellow countrymen! The region of country southeast of the provincial city of Canton has an important influence on the fortunes of the inhabitants. All the pagodas there have had a most salutary influence on everything around, causing the literati to be very numerous, and the productions of the soil most abundant. Their appearance at present is unsightly. Therefore, to secure the return of happy and prosperous times, they ought to be repaired."—Missionary Herald.

First Steps in Gambling.

Are not multitudes of our youths in all parts of the country unconsciously taking lessons in the seductive, maddening, ruinous vice of gaming? Besides raffling at fairs, which is beginning to be condemned as it deserves, there are the prizes given at concerts and other public entertainments. Some of us are repeatedly hindered from sending our children to witness an agreeable and not unprofitable exhibition of sleight of hand, or the like, by finding that every person who attends is to "draw" a prize. And how many are letting the children go, and learn to feel the first risings of eager curiosity and hope as to what they may get, not by honest toil, but by the turn of a wheel, by "good luck." The "prize candy" packages are a humbug, of course, but they are one species of petty gambling. Several weekly newspapers now regularly promise that their subscribers shall draw prizes; and their advertisements, making this offer, are sometimes seen in religious journals. In every direction one notices the spread of this spirit of gambling—to say nothing of the lotteries and the hundred forms of gambling proper.

Now we appeal to Christians to take a firm stand, for themselves and their children, as to everything of this sort. Let the managers of these concerts, newspapers, fairs, &c., know—take pains to let them know—that you, at least, will have nothing to do with their enterprises while they contain any gambling feature. By so doing it would be possible entirely to cure some of these evils and greatly to lessen others. And the matter is really important.—Religious Herald.

Giving Does Not Impoverish.

Christians might confirm their faith if they were observant of God's dealings with them. For our own advantage, as well as for the benefit of others, we should record the goodness and faithfulness of God as they come under our observation. It is pleasant to record such an incident as the following, which happened a short time ago:

A gentleman sent five dollars to a benevolent enterprise at a time when he could scarcely spare the money. The mail brought back a letter which was not only an expression of thanks, but a prayer that God would bless the giver. The statement was also made that prayer had been offered that he might not be a loser on account of his generosity. The thought that his little gift had awakened prayer in his behalf stirred the heart of the giver. He felt it deeply. He wondered if the particular petition would be answered. This was toward the close of the week. On Saturday afternoon he arranged to pay his hands according to his ordinary custom. In an envelope addressed to each he placed the account of time and the money due. He had scarcely returned to his office after passing through the shop, giving to each man his envelope, when one of the men came in, saying that he had, during the summer, at various times, lost an hour or so, of which no account had been taken. He had just reckoned up and found that the total loss of time amounted to five dollars, which he handed over to his employer and withdrew. Here was just the sum given away, returned in an unexpected manner, and from an unexpected source. With his mind full of prayer, he could not help feeling that the answer had come.—Observer.

Lake Willoughby.

A curious freak of nature is found at Willoughby Lake, in the northern part of Vermont, where Mts. Pisgah and Hor rise over 2,500 feet from the water and 4,000 feet above the sea, and are less than a mile apart, while the lake below is of unknown depth—all efforts to sound it having failed—and is supposed to rest at the level of the sea. A few years ago, an immense rock, weighing over three hundred tons, was started from its bed at the top of Mt. Pisgah, and fell down the almost perpendicular face of the mountain into the lake, tearing away the carriage road and everything that opposed it, shaking the whole region round and being heard ten or fifteen miles away. The lake is an immense natural spring, as hardly a brook flows into it, but a river flows out large enough to carry extensive mills. A winding footpath conducts you to the summit of Mt. Pisgah, which is abruptly cut off on the side nearest the lake, forming a perpendicular precipice nearly three thousand feet high, below which lies water of such singular transparency that one can see more than 100 feet below the surface. The temptation to leap from such a height is irresistible, and no one has yet visited the place of strong enough nerve to stand erect and look over the brink, but visitors crawl up on hands and knees to satisfy their curiosity. The view from this height is grand. To the east can be seen the White Mountains and the Connecticut river winding down eighty miles of its course; to the north and northwest are Monadnock, 50 miles away, and the entire length of Lake Memphremagog, and to the west is seen the western range of the Green Mountains. The scenery is unsurpassed in New England, and the drive over the carriage road which skirts the lake and connects Orleans and Caledonia counties is the most picturesque of any in the State. —Ex.

Temperance has always drawn some of its strongest arguments from the sad effects of strong drink. Here is an item in illustration, taken from the Christian Weekly: "A petition has been sent to the Connecticut Legislature from 175 of the 195 convicts in the State prison at Wethersfield, that they would devise and enact laws to effectually suppress the traffic in intoxicating liquors. They say that over three fourths of the convicts were brought there directly through the influence of strong drink, and piteously complain 'the tide that is bearing us to ruin is that of rum.'"

Children's Corner.

Feeding the Birds.

The Ice King has laid his cold hands on the rills,
They cannot now playfully leap down the hills;
High mountain and valley alike are made hoary,
Jack Frost reigns triumphant alone in his glory.

Who guides the dear birds that they never get lost,
When seeking a home to escape from the frost?
Our father in heaven he leads them aright,
Till away in the bright sunny South they alight.

So long as the lofty old hills shall remain,
And Spring shall renew their bright verdure again;
Our kind, loving Father shall still fondly care
For the beasts of the fields and the fowls of the air.

Not a robin or sparrow can fall to the ground,
Not a raven may cry but he heareth the sound;
Then will not "Our Father in heaven" be nigh,
And bless us, dear children, when we, too, shall cry?

Oh, yes; "Are ye not of more value than they?"
In accents most tender we hear Jesus say,
And surely if God takes such care of a bird,
Our prayers, if sincere, cannot fail to be heard.
—Selected.

The Young Miner's Death.

Some time since the noise of an explosion was heard in an English coal-pit. Those who heard the dreadful sound knew what it was. They knew at once all about the fire and suffering and death it would bring to the poor miners. Crowds of anxious relatives hurried to the mouth of the pit to seek their loved ones. Soon they began to bring up the dead and wounded from the mine, and sobs, and cries, and shrieks were heard from those who discovered their suffering relatives. There was a poor widow in this crowd, whose only son was a worker in this mine. He was a good Christian boy, the chief support and comfort of his mother. Presently, she was seen pushing her way through the crowd, with sobs and tears, as she cried, "That's my dear lad's voice. Where art thou, my child?"

And when she reached him, he said: "Mother, what will you do now?" for he felt that he was dying.

She said: "I will trust in God. Can you trust him Jimmy?"

"Yes," said he, "God is by my side; Jesus is with me."

She stoops down to kiss him; but as she did so, the skin of his poor burnt face pulled off on her lips.

"The Lord be with you, my boy," she said.

"Thank God," he replied, "that this is not the unquenchable fire. Jesus is with me, and heaven is my home. You'll meet me there, won't you mother?"

"Yes, my lad; I set out for heaven years ago, and I hope to meet you there."

Then the poor lad was carried towards his mother's home, but before reaching it, he died. The last faint words heard from his lips were "Heaven is my home,"

Nowhere is nothing in all the world that could have had power to bless that poor dying boy and his bereaved sorrowing mother, as Jesus, the "plant of renown," did. They knew him, and they trusted him, and in the most trying circumstances they felt his power to bless them.—S. S. World.

Singular Combat.

The monkey inhabited a large banyan tree at Patna, and was preparing to ascend it when he perceived near the root a large cobra. On every attempt to approach the trunk the snake reared its crest to attack him; and as the monkey moved to the other side, the snake in like manner shifted his ground, so as always to intercept its advance to the tree.

The monkey on this quickened its movements, danced from side to side, and occasionally rushing directly at the snake, as if about to seize it, kept it in a continual state of action and alarm for nearly two hours.

At length the cobra, apparently tired out, lay stretched on the ground. The monkey now walked leisurely before it, watching it all the while with the utmost vigilance, and gradually lessening the distance between them, till he had arrived within reach by a single bound, when springing on his enemy before he had time to rear its head, he grasped it firmly by the neck.

The snake instantly enveloped him in its folds, but the monkey retained his hold, seized a brickbat (part of the ruins of an old pagoda at the foot of the tree) and cooly set himself to work to rub it against the head of the snake.

This operation was continued with the most determined perseverance, till he had utterly destroyed all vestige of the head, reducing it to a confused mass, when disengaging himself from the inert folds, he sprang up to his wonted roost in the tree.

After this it can scarcely be questioned that the monkey was perfectly aware of the dangerous character of the snake, and also knew well the seat of the formidable power which his enemy possessed and could in an instant put forth in his destruction.

It also proves that the larger animals, unlike the smaller ones, are incapable of being acted on by the power of fascination. A similar account is given of a colony of monkeys living in a banyan tree on the Nerbudda.—The Parlor Menagerie.

Temperance.

The Chicago Woman's Christian Temperance Union held two successful mass meetings on Sabbath, February 13. One at upper Farwell Hall at which there was a very large attendance. Several speeches and fine music by the Hutchinsons; and another at the Centenary M. E. Church on West Monroe St., addressed by Mrs. O. B. Schuyler, Mrs. M. B. Holyoke, David W. Wood and a lady from New York. The singing was by the large choir of the church, with several songs by the Hutchinsons which were enthusiastically received. This latter was a specially good meeting.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Chicago Woman's Temperance Union will be held Friday 10 o'clock A. M., February 25th, at Room 3, 148 E. Madison St.; daily prayer meeting at 3 o'clock P. M., lower Farwell Hall.

A new Chicago Temperance Reform club was organized Wednesday evening, Feb. 16th, at the Burr Mission, near corner of Fourteenth St. and Third Ave. It is a locality needing temperance effort as much as any part of Chicago. A hopeful beginning was made. This club is auxiliary to the Woman's Union.

The daily meeting continues unabated in numbers and interest.

We print below a brief, clear and important petition to Congress which is designed for circulation throughout the United States. By addressing Mrs. M. B. Holyoke, 148 E. Madison St., room 3, Chicago, Ill., enclosing stamp, one or more of these printed memorials will be forwarded as ordered. After securing as many names as possible, please return the same to Mrs. Holyoke, addressed as above (148 E. Madison St., room 3, Chicago, Ill.). We hope that many will circulate and multitudes will sign the petition.

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives of the United States, in Congress Assembled:

WHEREAS, The liquor traffic is fraught with evil to the property, health, homes, lives and peace of our citizens;

AND WHEREAS, Governments are instituted to secure the peace, prosperity and well-being of the citizen; therefore, we the undersigned citizens hereby pray your Honorable Body—

FIRST—To appoint a Commission to investigate and report the effects of liquor traffic in the United States on the health, intelligence, industry, prosperity, crime and pauperism of the individuals; also upon taxation, revenue and the general welfare of the country.

SECOND—To prohibit the importation of alcoholic liquors from foreign countries.

THIRD—To prohibit the manufacture and sale of alcoholic liquors as a beverage in the District of Columbia, in the Territories of the United States, and in all places where Congress exercises exclusive legislation.

FOURTH—To require total abstinence from alcoholic liquors as a beverage on the part of officials and subordinates in the civil, military and naval service of the United States.

And we will continue to pray.

"The Moody Leaflet."

"Woe unto them that rise up early in the morning that they may follow strong drink." Isaiah v. 2.

"Woe unto him that giveth his neighbor drink, and maketh him drunken." Habakkuk ii. 15.

"Drunkards shall not inherit the kingdom of God." 1 Cor. vi. 10.

THE WATER OF LIFE.

Jesus says: "If a man thirst, let him come unto me and drink." John vii. 37.

"And the Spirit and bride say come. And let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the Water of Life freely." Rev. xxii. 17.

Rock of Ages cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in Thee,
Let the water and the blood,
From thy wounded side that flowed,
Be of sin the double cure,
Save me from its guilt and power.

—Three hundred children are suffocated in bed annually in the central district of Middlesex, England, alone. A very large proportion of these deaths are discovered on Sunday morning, from which it must be inferred that they were occasioned during the stupid slumbers of parents made drunk on Saturday night, when they have their week's wages to spend.

BAD EFFECTS OF BEER-DRINKING.—The worst results from accidents in the London hospitals are said to be draymen. Though they are apparently models of health and strength, yet if one of them receives a serious injury, it is nearly always necessary to amputate, in order to give him the most distant chance of life. The draymen have the unlimited privilege of the brewery cellar. Sir Ashley Cooper was once called to a drayman,, who was a powerful, fresh-colored, healthy-looking man, and had suffered an injury in his finger, from a small splinter of a stave. The wound, though trifling, suppurated. He opened the small abscess with his lancet. He found, on retiring, he had left his lancet. Returning for it, he found the man in a dying condition. The man died in a short time. Dr. Gordon says, "The moment beer-drinkers are attacked with acute diseases, they are not able to bear depletion, and die." Dr. Edwards says of beer-drinkers, "Their diseases are always of a dangerous character, and in case of accident, they can never undergo even the most trifling operation with the security of the temperate. They most invariably die under it." Dr. Buchan says, "Malt liquors render the blood sizy and unfit for circulation; hence proceeds obstructions and inflammation of the lungs. There are few great beer-drinkers who are not phthisical, brough on by the glutinous and indigestible nature of ale and porter. * * * These liquors inflame the blood and tear the tender vessels of the lungs to pieces." Dr. Maxson says, "Intoxicating drinks, whether taken in the form of fermented or distilled liquors, are a very frequent predisposing cause of disease." The hospitals of New York show an unfavorable record of the intemperate, and private practitioners everywhere have the same experience. —Sanitarian for January.

Religious Intelligence.

—Revival meetings of great interest have been held for several weeks in the Free Methodist church on Morgan Street, Chicago, and also in the Christian church in the southern part of the city. There have been numerous conversions in each church. Rev. M. L. Vorheis is laboring with the first mentioned brethen.

—A great revival of religious interest is taking place in many congregations of the Friends, especially in Ohio and Indiana. Large accessions have been made to several meetings. Miss Smiley, the gifted preacher, has been visiting her people in various parts of Ohio with good effect.

—Rev. A. L. Blackford, of the Presbyterian Mission to Brazil, says, deliberately, out of a steady conviction arising from his fourteen years' experience, that if "the Church of Christ will furnish the necessary men and means, in ten years Brazil may be converted to Christ, and in less than twenty years will cease to be a foreign missionary field."

—Westfield College, Ill., has been visited with a gracious outpouring. The meetings are held in the College chapel, and nearly one hundred conversions have taken place. Rev. J. H. Snyder is pastor of the United Brethren church at this place —It is stated in the Christian World that the English Wesleyans were never more active than now in aggressive evangelistic work. Their wealthier and more intelligent members are forwarded in revival efforts.

—The Rev. W. O. Simpson, of Derby, stated in a recent address, as reported in the London Christian, as to the fruits of the Moody and Sankey meetings, "that he had carefully looked over the reports of the churches and found that there was not a church which did not acknowledge an increase of membership and spiritual life as the result."

—At Albert Lea, Minn., above a hundred have signed the Convert's Covenant, the fruits of the labors of Rev. H. P. Welton.

—In Hollidaysburg, Pa., eighty-two persons joined the Presbyterian church on the last Sunday in January. Many of the Seminary pupils have been converted.

—Since the week of prayer, many extra meetings have been held in all of the evangelical churches in Taunton, and Jamaca Plains, Mass., and a number of hopeful conversions have taken place.

—The following are the Methodist numerical returns for 1875: Episcopal Methodists in the United States, 3,025,427; non-Episcopal, 147,802; Methodists in other countries, 1,015,876; total lay communicants, 4,189,150. The total number of itinerant preachers is 27,591, and of local preachers, 61,474; an increase during the year of 3,325 itinerant ministers, and a decrease of 1,657 local preachers.

—According to the Congregationalist's showing the Congregational church last year received, by ordination, one hundred and ninety ministers; dismissed one hundred and one; lost by death sixty. There were eighty-five churches organized. The average age of those who died was sixty-four years and nearly six months; eight were eighty years old and upward, and six were under forty.

—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Lutheran church publishes the sad fact that the treasury is bankrupt. The Board has ten missionaries in Africa and in India, and requires $8,200 in gold for payment of their salaries. It is now indebted to the amount of $5,000, much of which is due to the missionaries.

ANTI-MASONIC BOOKS,

(Not our own Publications.)

For Sale by EZRA A. COOK & CO

13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

[FOR CATALOGUE OF PUBLICATIONS OF EZRA A. COOK & CO., See page 15.]

☞ All books sent post paid, on receipt of retail price, but BOOKS SENT BY MAIL ARE NOT AT OUR RISK.

Books ordered by express are sold at 10 per cent. discount and SENT AT OUR RISK. Party ordering must pay express charges.

Elder Stearns' Books.

Stearns' Inquiry Into the Nature and Tendency of Masonry

With an Appendix.

SEVENTH EDITION.

388 Pages, in Cloth.....60 cents.
" " " Paper.....40 "

Stearns' Letters on Masonry.

Showing the antagonism between Freemasonry and the Christian Religion.
Price, 30 cents.

Stearns' Review of Two Masonic Addresses.

In this scathing review the lying pretentions of the order are clearly shown.
Price, 10 cents.

Levington's Key to Masonry.

This is Rev. Mr. Levington's last, and in the judgment of its author, best work on Masonry. The contents of the first chapter are as follows:

"Commencement and growth of Speculative or Symbolic Freemasonry—A table showing the thing at a glance—The use that the Atheists made of it—Identical with Illuminism—Its connection with the French Revolution, and with the Irish Rebellion—The action of the British Parliament with regard to it—Proofs of its diabolical purposes—Its Introduction, doings, progress and designs in the United States."

The contents of the Eleventh chapter are thus startling:

"Knights of the Golden Circle—Graphic account of them by a seceding Knight, and remarks thereon, showing the identity of the order with Masonry—Quotations from Sir Walter Scott."

This work is thrilling in statement, and powerful in argumt. 425 pagenes,
Price. $1.85.

Light on Freemasonry.

BY ELDER D. BERNARD,

TO WHICH IS APPENDED A

Revelation of the Mysteries of Odd-fellowship by a Member of the Craft.

The whole containing over five hundred pages lately revised and republished. Price $2,00

The first part of the above work, Light on Freemasonry, 416 pages in paper cover, will be sent post paid on receipt of $1.

FOR SALE BY

United Brethren Publishing House,
DAYTON, O.
and by
EZRA A. COOK & CO.,
13 Wabash Ave, CHICAGO.

Finney on Masonry.

BOUND IN CLOTH, PRICE $1.00.

CHEAP EDITION,

Twenty-five dollars per hundred, by express, and not less than 25 copies at that rate.

BY MAIL, POST-PAID:

Per doz.....$3.75.
Single copy,..... 35 c

ODD-FELLOWSHIP

JUDGED BY ITS OWN UTTERANCES;

Its Doctrine and Practice examined in the light of God's Word.

BY REV. J. H. BROCKMAN.

This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-Fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. It was originally published in German.
Price, bound in Boards, 75 cents.

GOOD TEMPLARISM EXPOSED.

Obligations, of the Initiatory Fidelity, Charity, and Royal Virtue Degrees.

This is a small book containing only the Obligations and some of the Odes of the Good Templars.

Single Copy, Post paid, ... 10cts.
Per Doz. " 75
Per 100 by Express,..... $4.50

Bernard's Appendix to Light on Masonry,

Showing the Character of the Institution by it's terrible oaths and penalties. Paper covers, 25 cen

FACTS FOR THE PEOPLE.

—BY—

S. C. KIMBALL, A. M.

The pretended secrets of all the prominent secret societies including Freemasonry, Odd-fellowship, Good Templars, Patrons of Husbandry, Ku-Klux Klan, Grand Army of the Republic and White League have been correctly revealed, and most of these revelations can be had at trifling expense of Ezra A. Cook & Co., Publishers of the CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, No. 13 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

I belonged to one of these societies and know that its so-called secrets are correctly revealed and published. I believe the other revelations to be equally correct, and the publishers will satisfy any candid man that they are so by overwhelming proof.

Freemasonry is the mother and guardian of secret societies. With Masonry, they will flourish; with Masonry, they will die. Hence reformers properly attack the citadel, for when that goes down, the outposts will soon surrender.

Most Freemasons go no further than the Master Masons' or Third Degree, and although the oaths and principles of the higher degrees are far worse, I shall give extracts from the first three degrees only. Freemasonry has been many times correctly revealed, but the latest full revelation is from the pen of Edmond Ronayne, late Past Master of Keystone Lodge, No. 639, Chicago, Illinois. The candidate for the Entered Apprentice or First Degree is stripped naked except his shirt, a slipper and a pair of drawers kept for the purpose, blindfolded, left foot, leg, arm and breast bare; and a rope called a cable tow around his neck. In this sorry plight, the candidate is lead around the room. Then he kneels, placing his right hand on the Bible, and takes an oath of which the following are extracts:

"I, A. B. of my own free will and accord, in presence of Almighty God and this worshipful lodge erected to him and dedicated to the holy Saints John, do hereby and hereon, most solemnly and sincerely promise and swear, that I will always hail, ever conceal and never reveal any of the secrets, arts, or points of the hidden mysteries of ancient Freemasonry, which have been heretofore, may at this time or shall at any future period be communicated to me as such, to any person or persons whomsoever, except it be a true and lawful brother Mason, or within a regularly constituted lodge of Masons. * * * * To all of this I do most solemnly and sincerely promise and swear with a firm and steadfast resolution to keep and perform the same without any equivocation, mental reservation, or secret evasion of mind whatever; binding myself under no less a PENALTY THAN THAT OF HAVING MY THROAT CUT ACROSS, MY TONGUE TORN OUT BY ITS ROOTS, and my body buried in the rough sands of the sea at low water mark, where the tide ebbs and flows twice in twenty-four hours, should I ever knowingly or willingly violate this my solemn obligation. So help me God and keep me steadfast in the due performance of the same."

Just imagine a minister of the Gospel, in a state of semi-nudity, on his knee, with his right hand on the Bible, blindfolded and a rope around his neck, taking such an oath! How can a conscientious man swear to conceal secrets "which shall at any future period be communicated," not knowing what those secrets may be? How can a sane man bind himself under such a penalty, with the full knowledge that he cannot have a trial before his peers in open court? But some one may claim that Masonic oaths and penalties mean nothing. If so, what blasphemy and sacrilege to thus use the name of God and the Holy Bible.

The Entered Apprentice is taught that, "the common gavel is an instrument made use of by operative Masons to break off the corners of rough stones, the better to fit them for the builder's use, but we as free and Accepted Masons use it for the more noble and glorious purpose of divesting our hearts and consciences of all the vices and superfluities of life, thereby fitting our minds as living stones, for the spiritual building, that house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." What becomes of the precious blood of Christ and the renewing of the Holy Spirit, with those who are fitted for heaven by having the rough corners of their hearts knocked off with the common gavel? Is not this the key to the doctrine that all true Masons at death enter the Grand Lodge above? What need of the Gospel plan of salvation has a young man who accepts this doctrine? Is it any wonder that infidelity abounds in our land when it is known that half a million young men have taken such an oath and received such instructions?

There is nothing of special importance in the Fellow Craft or Second Degree except the penalty which is, "that of having my left breast torn open, my heart plucked out and given as a prey to the beasts of the field and the fowls of the air."

The candidate for the Third or Master Masons Degree, more than half naked, blindfolded, on his knees, with his hands on the Bible, takes an oath of which the following are extracts:

"Furthermore, that I will keep the secrets of a worthy brother Master Mason as inviolable as my own when communicated to and received by me as such, murder and treason excepted and then only at my own option.

Furthermore, that I will * * * * give him due and timely notice that he may ward off approaching danger, if in my power

Furthermore, that I will not have illicit carnal intercourse with a Master Mason's wife, mother, sister, or daughter, I knowing them to be such, nor suffer it to be done by others if in my power to prevent it.

Furthermore, that I will not give the grand Hailing Sign of distress of a Master Mason except in real distress, in case of the most imminent danger, within a regularly constituted lodge of Master Masons, or in some secure place for Masonic instruction: and should I see the sign given or hear the words accompanying it I WILL IMMEDIATELY REPAIR TO THE RELIEF OF THE PERSON SO GIVING IT, should there be a greater probability of saving his life than of losing my own.

To all of this I most solemnly and sincerely promise and swear with a firm and steadfast resolution to keep and perform the same without any equivocation, mental reservation or secret evasion of mind whatever, binding myself under no less a PENALTY than that of having my body severed in twain, my bowels taken from thence and burned to ashes and the ashes scattered to the four winds of heaven, so that no more trace or remembrance may be had of so vile and perjured a wretch as I, should I ever knowingly or willingly violate this my solemn obligation as a Master Mason, so help me God and keep me steadfast in the due performance of the same."

Who can fail to see the bearing of these horrid oaths upon all crimes, "murder and treason excepted," and their tendency to interrupt the fair administration of justice. Is it any wonder that jury trials are pronounced a failure and criminals go unpunished? No wonder those who take such obligations wish to keep them secret! No possible explanation can make these shocking oaths accord either with pure moralty or the Christian religion. The only escape from such obligations is humble repentance and public confession. The General Conference, the highest authority in the Freewill Baptist denomination, has six times emphatically condemned Freemasonry and all kindred secret societies. The conference of 1844, of which the immortal David Marks was a prominent member, bore the following testimony: "All extra-judicial oaths or affirmations for the keeping of a secret of such associations as Freemasons, Odd-fellows, Rechabites and similar combinations are contrary to the Bible which forbids us to forswear ourselves, and contrary to the spirit of the Christian religion which does not allow its subjects to agree to things which they do not understand or to take obligations upon them which they do not know for themselves the bearings of, in contingencies which may arise.

Therefore, Resolved, That we advise our churches as far as practicable to avert this evil in its first beginnings, by laboring with all who take upon them the extra-judicial oaths or pledges of these societies or who remain connected with them."

The Conference of 1859 reaffirmed the same principles as follows: "(1) Resolved that the jealousies which such organizations are calculated to excite and the ease with which designing men may use them for evil purposes render it inconsistent for the disciples of Christ, and especially for Freewill Baptists, to form or sustain a connection with any such associations. "(2) Resolved that all laudable efforts be put forth to prevent the members of our churches who are now free from such societies from becoming connected with them, and if possible to reclaim all who do now sustain such a relation." The Conference of 1833 voted that "Freemasonry is corrupt and should be disapproved by this conference." The Conferences of 1830, 1847, and 1850 took similar action.

The Congregational General Association of Illinois, upon the report of a Committee consisting of Rev. Edward Beecher, D. D., Prof. S. C. Bartlett, D. D., and President Blanchard of Wheaton College, voted that Freemasonry is "HOSTILE TO GOOD CITIZENSHIP AND TRUE RELIGION."

The Baptists, in one of the ablest General Conventions ever held by that denomination, voted that "It is the duty of every member who is a Freemason to dissolve all connection with the Masonic fraternity." Other evangelical denominations have taken the same ground. These testimonies must be repeated until the evil be overcome.

Such statesmen as James Madison, Richard Rush, John Hancock, John Quincy Adams, Daniel Webster, Wm. H. Seward, Horace Greeley, Gerrit Smith, Thaddeus Stevens, Charles Sumner and Henry Wilson, have warned their countrymen of the danger of secret societies and especially Freemasonry.

Such eminent ministers of the Gospel as President Finney, Bishop Hamlin, Dr. Nathaniel Colver, and a score of others who have all been Freemasons, have exposed the evil tendencies of secret societies and warned Christian people against them. Christian young men, heed these timely warnings. "Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness but rather reprove them." "Be not unequally yoked together with unbelievers," who "love darkness rather than light because their deeds are evil."

And may the very God of peace sanctify you wholly through our Lord Jesus Christ.

Masonic Books,

FOR SALE AT THE CYNOSURE OFFICE.

☞ All books sent post paid, on receipt of retail price, but BOOKS SENT BY MAIL ARE NOT AT OUR RISK.

Books ordered by express are sold at 10 per cent discount and SENT AT OUR RISK. Party ordering must pay express charges.

Those who wish to know the character of Freemasonry, as shown by its own publications, will find many standard works in the following list.

No sensible Mason dares deny that such men as Albert G. Mackey, the great Masonic Lexicographer, and Daniel Sickels, the Masonic author and publisher, are the highest Masonic authority in the United States.

Allyn's Ritual of Masonry,

Illustrated by a large number of engravings, and containing a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, Orange nd Odd-fellows' societies. Price, $5.00.

Mackey's Masonic Ritualist;

OR

MONITORIAL INSTRUCTION BOOK

BY ALBERT G. MACKEY,

Past General High Priest of the General Grand Chapter of the United States, Knight of the Eagle and Pelican, Prince of Mercy," Etc. Etc. Price, Cloth $2.25, Tuck $1.75.

Mackey's Lexicon of Freemasonry,

Containing a Definition of Terms, Notices of its History, Traditions and Antiquities, and an account of all the Rites and Mysteries of the Ancient World. 12 mo. 528 pages, $3 00

MACKEY'S MANUAL OF THE LODGE

OR

Monitorial Instructions in the Degrees of Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft, and Master Mason; with Ceremonies relating to Installations, Dedications, Consecrations, Laying of Corner-stones &c. Price, $2 00

MACKEY'S TEXT BOOK

OF

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

Illustrating the Laws of Freemasonry, both written and unwritten.

This is the Great Law Book of Freemasonry 670 pages. Price, $2.50.

Webb's Monitor of Freemasonry,

LARGE EDITION, WITH NOTES

By ROB. MORRIS, Price, $1.50.
Pocket Edition, 75 cts.

SICKELS' FREEMASON'S MONITOR,

Containing the Degrees of Freemasonry embraced in the Lodge, Chapter, Council and Commandery, embellished with nearly 300 symbolic illustrations, Together with Tactics and drill of Masonic Knighthood. Also, forms of Masonic Documents, Notes, Songs, Masonic dates, installations, etc. By D. Sickels, 32 mo nck. Price $1.50. Cloth $1.00.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry.

A Practical Guide to the Ceremonies in the Degrees conferred in Masonic Lodge Chapter, Encampments, etc. Illustrated Edition. In cloth, $1 25; paper, 75 cts.

Chase's Digest of Masonic Law.

Comprises a Complete Code of Regulations Decisions and Opinions upon Questions of Masonic Jurisprudence, Price, $2 25.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor

Illustrated with Explanatory Engravings Price $2 50.

GENERAL AHIMAN REZON AND FREEMASON'S GUIDE.

BY DANIEL SICKELS, 33°

The most perfect Masonic Monitor published in the United States. Embellished with nearly 300 Engravings, and Portrait of the Author, Containing Monitorial Instructions in the Degrees of Entered Apprentice, Fellow-Craft, and Master Mason, with Explanatory Notes and Lectures; with the Ceremonies of Consecration and Dedication of New Lodges, Installation of Officers, Laying Foundation Stones, Dedication of Masonic Halls, Burial Services, Masonic Calendar, Ritual for a Lodge of Sorrow, Masonic Trials, etc.
Bound in fine cloth extra, large 12mo.....$2.00.

TRUE MASONIC CHART; OR, HIEROGLYPHIC MONITOR.

BY JEREMY L. CROSS, Grand Lecturer.

With a Memoir and Portrait of the Author, Containing all the Emblems explained in the Degrees of entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft, and Master Mason. Designed and arranged agreeably to the Lectures.
12mo. Cloth.....$1 50

FEMALE MASONRY.

MANNUAL OF THE ORDER OF THE EASTERN STAR.

Containing the Ritual, Symbols Lectures etc., of the five Degrees of "Adoptive Masonry;" Jeptha's Daughter; Ruth, Esther, Martha and Electa, profusely illustraited and handsomely bound.
Price.....$1 00.

ANTIMASONIC TRACTS.

WE NOW HAVE 25 ENGLISH TRACTS, ONE GERMAN, AND ONE SWEDISH

These tracts are sold at the rate of $1.00 per 1000 pages.

"THE ANTI-MASONS SCRAP BOOK."

Contains 24 Cynosure Tracts, bound together, and is just the thing to select tracts from. Price 20 cents. See advertisement.

For information about Free Tracts see advertisement headed "Free Tracts."

Address EZRA A. COOK & Co.,
18 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

TRACT NO. 1:

HISTORY OF MASONRY.

BY PRESIDENT J. BLANCHARD, OF WHEATON COLLEGE.

This is now published in three tracts of four pages each. Price of each, 50 cents per 100; $4 per 1000.

TRACT No. 1, PART FIRST—Shows the origin of Speculative Freemasonry, and is entiled "HISTORY OF MASONRY."

TRACT No. 1, PART SECOND—Is entitled "DESPOTIC CHARACTER OF FREEMASONRY"

TRACT No. 1, PART THIRD—Is entitled "FREEMASONRY A CHRIST-EXCLUDING RELIGION."

TRACT NO. 2:

MASONIC MURDER,

By REV. J. R. BAIRD, of Pleasantville, Pa., a seceding Mason who has taken 17 degrees. A 2-page tract at 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 3:

SECRETS OF MASONRY,

BY ELI TAPLEY.

This is a 4-page Illustrated Tract, showing the signs, grips and pass-words, of the first three degrees. 50 cents per 100, or $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 4:

GRAND! GREAT GRAND!!

BY PHILO CARPENTER.

This is a 2-page tract, calling the attention of the public to the despotic and ridiculous titles of Freemasonry. Price 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1,000.

TRACT. NO. 5:

Extracts From Masonic Oaths and Penalties, as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.

This tract is a reprint of a tract published in 1834, and is a very weighty document. A 4-page tract at 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 6:

Hon. John Quincy Adams' Letter.

Giving His and His Father's Opinion of Freemasonry (1831.);

AND

Hon. James Madison's Letter,

Giving His Opinion of Freemasonry (1832).

Both of these letters, in one 4-page tract, at 50 cents per 100: $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 7:

SATAN'S CABLE-TOW.

A 4-page tract. This is a careful analysis of the character of Masonic oaths, and shows them to be most blasphemous and unchristian; and the Masonic Cable Tow is clearly shown to be the Cable Tow by which Satan is leading thousands to eternal death 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 8:

Is a 2-page double tract, "ILLUSTRATED." The first page represents a Mason proclaiming the wonderful wisdom and benevolence of the order, with an article below, entitled "Freemasonry is only 152 Years Old," and gives the time and place of its birth.

The second side is entitled, "Murder and Treason not Excepted," and shows that the Masonic order is treasonable in its constitution, and is both anti-Repnblican and anti-Christian. Price 25 cents per 100; $2 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 9, ILLUSTRATED:

FREEMASONRY IN THE CHURCH.

Copy of a petition for the higher degrees of Freemasonry, in which Blasphemous and Despotic Titles are enumerated and prayed for. The Copy was printed for the nse of "Occidental Sovereign Consistory S. P. R. S," 32d degree—a Chicago Lodge—and was ordered by a deacon of a Christian Church who is Grand Orator of the Grand Lodge of Ill.

TRACT NO. 10:

CHARACTER AND SYMBOLS OF FREEMASONRY.

A 2-page tract, (ILLUSTRATED) by its "Grand Secretaries, Grand Lecturers, Perfect Prince Freemasons, Grand Inspector, Inquisitor Commanders, Grand High Priests," etc. The wonderful symbolical meaning of "the Cable Tow," "the Square and Compass," "the Lamb Skin, or white Apron," and "the Common Gavel," are given in the exact words of the highest Masonic authority. 25 cents per 100 or $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 11;

Address of Niagara County Association, New York.

TO THE PUBLIC;

Concerning the Morgan Murder, and the character of Freemasonry shown by this and other Masonic murders. 50 cents per

TRACT NO. 12:

JUDGE WHITNEY AND MASONRY.

This tract contains a condensed account of Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois, on charge of unmasonic conduct in bringing Samuel L. Keith the murderer of Ellen Slade. and a member of his Lodge, to justice, with Judge Whitney's subsequent renunciation of Masonry,

An 8-page tract, $1.00 per 100; $8.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 13:

DR. NATHANIEL COLVER ON MASONRY,

and

HOWARD CROSBY, D. D.,

Chancellor of the University of New York, on SECRET SOCIETIES. A double 2-page tract 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 14:

GRAND LODGE MASONRY,

ITS RELATION TO CIVIL GOVERNMENT AND THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION.

Opening address before the Monmouth Convention, by PRES. J. BLANCHARD of WHEATON COLLEGE. This is a 16-page tract at $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 15:

MASONIC OATHS NULL AND VOID.

A clear and conclnsive argument proving the invalidity of any oath or obligation to do evil. By REV. I. A. HART, Secretary National Christian Association. Published by special order of the Association. 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 16:

HON. SETH M. GATES ON FREEMASONRY.

PROOF THAT THE INSTITUTION THAT MURDERED MORGAN IS UNCHANGED IN CHARACTER

This is a letter to the Monmouth Convention by Hon. Seth M Gates who was Deputy Sheriff of Genesee County, and also Secretary of the Leroy Lodge at the time of Morgan's Abduction. A 4-page tract, 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 17:

Origin, Obligations and Expenses of The Grange.

WITH A CONSTITUTION OF A FARMERS' CLUB.

This little tract ought to be put into the hands of every Farmer in the United States. Four-page tract, 50 cents per 100; $4 00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 18:

HON. WM. H. SEWARD ON SECRET SOCIETIES.

Extract from a Speech on Know-nottingism in the U. S. Senate in 1855. The testimony of JOHN QUINCY ADAMS, MILLARD FILLMORE. CHIEF JUSTIC MARSHALL and others, is added.

A 2-page tract, 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 19.

BRICKS FOR MASONS TO LAY.

WASHINGTON, MADISON, MARSHALL, RUSH, HANCOCK, ADAMS AND WEBSTER, give brief clear testimony against the Lodge A 2-page tract 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 20:

OBJECTIONS TO MASONRY.

By A SECEDING MASON, of Cornton, Vermont.

This tract contains many strong arguments against the Lodge drawn from personal experience, observation and study of its character. A 4-page tract at 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

TRACT NO. 21:

MASONIC CHASTITY.

BY EMMA A. WALLACE.

The author, by wonderfully clear illustration and argument, shows the terribly corrupt nature of Freemasonry. No true woman who reads this will ever speak with approbation of this institution A 4-page tract 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

TRACT No. 22.

LINUS CHITTENDEN ON FREEMASONRY.

The Author a Seceding Master Mason states his objection to the Lodge, drawn both from experience and observation, in a clear concise and forcible style,

A 2 page tract, 25 cents per 100, $2.00 per 1,000.

TRACT No. 23.

MASONIC OATHS AND PENALTIES.

ADDRESS OF REV, A. M. MILLIGAN AT THE PITTSBURGH CONVENTION.

This is the clearest and most conclusive argnment to show the wickedness of masonic oaths and the dnty to disregard and repent of them that we have ever seen.

A 4 page tract, 50 cents per 100, $4.00 per 1,000

TRACT NO. 1, IN SWEDISH:

translated by Prof. A. R. CERVIN. A 15-page tract at $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

ENOCH HONEYWELL'S TRACT.

TO THE YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA. Postage 5cts. per 100, TRACTS FREE.

GERMAN CYNOSUCE TRACT A.

Six Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason.

By Rev. A. GROLE, Pastor, German M.E. Church, Worchester, Mass

This is our first German Tract, and it is a good one; it ought to have a large circulation. A 4 page tract, Price 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

FREE TRACTS.

A Tract Fund for the Free Distribution of Tracts

HAS BEEN SECURED AND SHOULD NEVER BE EXHAUSTED. A friend has pledged this fund a dollar for every other dollar received, so EVERY NEW SUBSCRIPTION TO THE TRACT FUND COUNTS DOUBLE, and thus $10.00 pays for 20,000 pages of tracts.

The distribution of these tracts has already saved hundreds of young men from the lodge, but there is a great lack of funds to supply the constantly increasing demand for Free Tracts.

During the year ending July 1st, 1875 a little less than 150.000 pages of Cynosure Tracts were gratuitously sent out, mostly in very small lots. The present demand is fully 100.000 pages per month. bnt finnds are lacking to meet it.

Many of onr most earnest workers in this canse of God are poor men, who would be gladto circnlate thousands of pages of Antimasonic literature if they could have them free.

SHALL WE NOT HAVE AN INEXHAUSTIBLE TRACT FUND?

"THE ANTI-MASONS SCRAP BOOK."

Contains 24 Cynosnre Tracts, bound together and is just the thing to select from. Price 20cents. See advertisement page 15.

Enoch Honeywell Esq., pays for an unlimitednumber of his tract addressed "To THE YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA." It is anexcelent tract, bearing the printed endorsement of Executive Committee of the National Christian Association. He has furnished the public over 150.000 pages ofthese tracts during the past year.

TRACTS FREE. If sent by mail, 5 cts per 100 is charged for postage,

Send Contributions and orders to

EZRA A. COOK.

Secretary of Tract Committee 18 Wabash Ave, Chicago, Ill.

Descriptive Catalogue of Publications of Ezra A. Cook & Co.

13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

BOOKS.

FREEMASONRY EXPOSED,
by CAP'T. WILLIAM MORGAN.

THE GENUINE OLD MORGAN BOOK:—republished with engravings showing the Lodge Room, Dress of candidates, Signs, Dne Gnards, Grips, Etc.

This revelation is so accnrate that Freemasons mnrdered the author for writing it. Thonsands have testified to the correctness of the revelation and this hook therefore sells very rapidly.

Price 25 cents.

Per Doz. Post Paid..... $2.00
Per hundred hy express, (express charges extra.).....$10.00

ODD FELLOWSHIP ILLUSTRATED.

A complete exposition of the Lodge Encampment and Rebecca (Ladies') Degree. The Signs, Grips, &c., shown hy engravings.

Single copy, post paid,..... $ 25
Per Doz., " " 2 00
Per Hundred, Express charges extra,..... 10 00

EXPOSITION OF THE GRANGE.

EDITED BY REV. A. W. GEESLIN.

Illustrated with Engravings showing Lodge Room, Signs, Signals, etc.

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 25
Per Doz., " " 2 00
Per 100 Express charges extra..... 10 00

Judge Whitney's Defense Before the Grand Lodge of Ill.

Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the Lodge when S. L. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to hring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the Lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry.

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 2)
Per Doz " " 1 50
Per 100, Express charges extra..... 8 00

History of The Abduction and Murder of Cap't. Wm. Morgan.

As prepared by Seven Committees of Citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan.

This hook contains indispntahls, legal evldence that Freemasons, abdncted and Murdered Wm. Morgan, for no other offcnce than tho revelation of Masonry. It contains the sworn testimony of over twenty persons, inclnding Morgan's wife, and no candid person after reading this book, can douht that many of the most respectable FREEMASONS. in the Empire State, with others were concerned in this crime.

Single Copy, post Paid,... ..... 25 cents.
Per doz. " ..... $2,00.
Per 100, Express Chargos Extra,..... 10.00.

Valance's Confession of The Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan.

This confession of Henry L. Valance, one of the three Freemasons who drowned Morgan in the Niagara River, was taken from the lips of the dylng man hy Dr. John C. Emery, of Racine County, Wisconsin in 1848; The confession hears clear evidenco of trnthfulness.

Singlo copy, post paid,..... 20 cents.
Per doz. " ..... $1.50.
Per 100 Express Charges Extra,..... 8.00.

The Mystic Tie or Freemasonry a League with the Devil.

This is an accornt of the Church Trial of Peter Cook, and wife of Elkhart, Indiar, for refnsing to support a Reverend Freemason; and their very ablo defence presented hy Mrs. Lucia C. Cook, in which she clearly shows that Freemasonry, is antagonistic to the Christian Religion. Single Copy, post pald,..... 20 cents

Per dozen, post paid..... $1 50
Per hundred Express charges Extra, ... 9 00

NARRATIVES AND ARGUMENTS.

Showing the Conflict of Secret Societies with the Constitution and Laws of the Union and of the States, by FRANCIS SEMPLE.

The fact that Secret Societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of Law is here clearly proved.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 20
Per doz. " " $1.75
Per 100 Express charges Extra..... 9.00

THE BROKEN SEAL.

OR PERSONAL REMINISCENCES OF THE ABDUCTION AND MURDER OF Wm. MORGAN,

By SAMUEL D. GREENE,

Price in cloth, $1.00. Paper covers, 50 ccnts.

In Paper Covers per Doz. Post paid..... $4 50
" per hnndred by express (ex. charges extra $25.00

Capt. Wm. Morgan was Mr. Greene's neighhor in Batavia, N. Y., and a memher of the same lodge with him at the time of the great excitement in 1826. The titles to these chapters are sufficiently exciting to give the book a large sale:—"The Storm Gathering;" "Abduction of Morgan;" "Attempted Abdnction of Miller and his Rescue;" "What became of Morgan;" "What Morgan Actually Revealed;" "Confession of the Murderer;" "Allegations against Freemasonry, etc."

THE ANTI-MASON'S SCRAP BOOK,
CONSISTING OF 21 CYNOSURE TRACTS.

In this hook are the views of more than a Score of men, many of them of distinguished ahility, on the snhject of Secret Societies.

The dangerous tendency and positive evil of organized Secrecy is here shown hy the most varied and powerfnl argnments and illnstrations that have ever heen given to the pnblic.

Lectnrers and others who wish to find the best arguments against the Lodge, should send for this book.

Those who wish to circnlate Antimasonic Tracts ought to have the book to select from.

Single Copy, post paid, ...20 cents.
Per Doz. " $1.75
Per 100, Express charges Extra,.....$10.00

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion.

A clear cntting argument against the Lodge, from a Christian Stand polnt.

Single Copy post paid.....$ 05
Por doz. " " 50
Per 100 Express Charges Extra..... 3 00

President H. H. GEORGE, On Secret Societies.

A powerfnl address, showing clearly the duty of Chrlstian Chnrches, to disfellowship Secret Societles.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 10 cts.
Per doz, " ..... 75 "
Per 100, Express charges Extra, ... $4.00.

PHELPS' SECRET SOCIETIES Ancient and Modern.

A NEW BOOK OF GREAT INTEREST.

This work is particnlarly commended to the attention of Officers of The Army and Navy, The Bench and The Clergy.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

"THE ANTIQUITY OF SECRET SOCIETIES, THE LIFE OF JULIAN, THE ELEUSINIAN MYSTERIES, THE ORIGIN OF MASONRY, WAS WASHINGTON A MASON? FILMORE'S AND WEBSTER'S DEFERENCE TO MASONRY, A BRIEF OUTLINE OF THE PROGRESS OF MASONRY IN THE UNITED STATES, THE TAMMANY RING, MASONIC BENEVOLENCE, THE USES OF MASONRY, AN ILLUSTRATION, THE CONCLUSION."

Single Copy, Post Paid..... 50
Per Doz " " $4 75
Per Hundred, Express Charges Extra.....$25 00

HON. JOHN QUINCY ADAMS' LETTERS to Col. Wm. Stone, Edward Livingstone,
and others, on the nature of
Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties.

Price, post paid..... $ 50
Per Doz., " 4 50
Per 100, Express Charges extra..... 25 00

COLLEGE SECRET SOCIETIES.

Their Customs, Character and the Efforts for their Suppression.
BY H. L. KELLOGG.

Containing the opinion of many prominent College Presidents, and others, and a FULL ACCOUNT OF THE MURDER OF MORTIMER LEGGETT

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 35
Per Doz " " 2 50
Per 100 Express charges extra..... 15 00

MINUTES OF THE SYRACUSE CONVENTION,

Containing addresses hy Rev. B. T. Roberts, Chas. D. Greene, Esq., Prof. C. A. Blanchard, Rev. D. P. Rathhnn, Rev. D. S. Caldwell, Mrs. M. E. Gage, Elder J. R. Baird and others. Unpublished Reminiscences of the Morgan Times, by Elder David Bernard; Recollections of the Morgan Trials, as related hy Victory Birdseye, Esq., and presented by his danghter, Mrs. C. B. Miller; Secretary's report; roll of delegates; songs of Mr. G. A. Clark; paper by Enoch Honeywell; Constitntion N. C. A.; reports of committees, and a report of the political meeting.

Single Copy, post paid, ... 25
Per doz. " " $2.00
Per 100 Express Ccarges Extra..... 10.00

Paoceedings of the Pittsburgh Convention,

Containing Official Reports; Addresses by Rev. D. R. Kerr, D.D. Rev. S. T. Roberts, Rsv. G. T. R. Meiser, Prof. J. R. W. Sloane, D. D., Pres't. J. Blanchard, Rev. A. M. Milligan, D. D., Rev. Woodruff Post, Rev. Henry Cogswell, Prof. C. A. Blanchard, and Rev W. E. Coquilette, also Report of the POLITICAL MASS CONVENTION, with Platform and Candidates for the Presidential Campaign of 1876.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 25 cts.
Per doz " $2,00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 10.00

SERMON ON MASONRY,
BY REV. W. P. M'NARY,
Pastor United Presbyterian Church, Bloomington, Ind.

This is a very clear, thorough, candid and remarkably concise Scriptnral argnment on the character of Freemasonry.

Single Copy, Post Paid,..... 5
Per Doz,..... 50
Per Hnndred, Express Charges Extra,.....$3 00

THIRTEEN REASONS

Why a Christian Shonld not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong.

The anthor states his reasons clearly and carefnlly, and any one of the thirteen reasons, if properly considered, will keep a Christian ont of the Lodge.

Single Copy, post pald,..... 5
Per doz. " " 50
Per 100, Express charges extra, ... $3.00

SERMON ON MASONRY,
BY REV. JAMES WILLIAMS.

Presiding Elder of Dakota District North-western Iowa Conference, M. E. Church, A SECEDING MASTER MASON.

Published at the special request of the Nine Clergymen of different denominations and others.

Single Copy, post paid..... 10
Per doz. " " 75
Per 100, Express Charges Extra.....$4.00

MASONRY A WORK OF DARKNESS

ADVERSE TO CHRISTIANITY, and Inimical to a Republican Government.
BY REV. LEBBEUS ARMSTRONG, [Presbyterian.]
A Seceding Mason of 21 Degrees.

This is a very tellIng work and no honest man that reads it will shlnk of joining the lodge. Single Copy, post paid,.....20cts.

Per doz, post paid,..... $1.50.
" 100, Express Charges Extra..... 8.00.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy.

Address of Prest. J. BLANCHARD, before the Pittsburgh Convention.

This is a most convincing argument against the lodge.

Single Copy, Post Paid .....$ 05
Per Doz " " 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

GRAND LODGE MASONRY.

Its relation to civil Government and the Christian Religion.
By Prest. J. BLANCHARD, at the Monmouth Convention.

The Unchristian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is here proved from the highest masonic authorities.

Single Copy, Post Paid,.....$ 05
Per Doz..... 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

SERMON ON SCERETISM
BY REV. R. THEO. CROSS.

This is a very clear array of the objections to Masonry that are apparent to all.

By Rev. R. T. Cross, Pastor Congregational Church, Hamilton, N.Y.

Single Copy, Post Paid..... $ 05
Per Doz..... 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

Sermon on Secret Societies,
BY REV. DANIEL DOW, Woodstock, Conn.

The special object of this sermon is to show the right and dnty of Christians to examine into the Character of Secret Societies, no matter what object they profess to have.

Single Copy, post paid.....$ 05
Per Dozen, " " 50
Per 100 Express charges extra..... 3 00

HISTORY OF THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought; The Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and Bylaws of the Association, Conditions of the Carpenter Donation with Engraving of building to be donated by Mr. Carpenter; Tables showing the number of Pastors and communicants in church es that exclude members of Secret Societies, Tabular view of Local, County State and National Conventions, and list of organizations Auxiliary to the National Christian Association; Brief opinions of Eminent Men on Secret Societies, and Testimonies of Religious Bodies against them. This book will be found invaluable by all who wish to know the character of this reform and how they may do the most to further its objects. It should be in the hands of every Antmason.

Price post paid,.....25 cents each,
per doz;.....$1,50
25 copies or more by express at 8 cents each.

NEW BOOKS

—o—

HAND BOOK

—OF—

FREEMASONRY,

A COMPLETE

Illustrated Exposition,

—OF—

BLUE LODGE

MASONRY

—BY—

EDMOND RONAYNE,

LATE PAST MASTER OF KEYSTONE LODGE, NO. 639, CHICAGO, ILL.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 50cts.
Per doz. " " $4.00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra,..... 25.00

RITUAL OF THE

GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC

WITH SIGN OF RECOGNITION,
PASS WORD GR.IP ETC,

—AND THE—

RITUAL OF THE

MACHINISTS AND BLACKSMITHS UNION,

(THE TWO BOUND TOGETHER.)

Single Copy, post paid,..... 25
Per doz. " $2.00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra,..... 1000

Publishers' Department.

The Mail List.

No. sub. Sat. Feb. 19th,	3,958.
" " " " 12th,	3,796.
Gain in one week	162.

This report is encouraging. We lack only forty-eight names to make 4,000. Shall we have that number and enough more to make up the list of unrenewing subscribers whose names are to be removed March first?

Are those whose subscriptions expire in March, April, and May, looking up new subscribers so as to keep the mail list and the reform growing steadily. We want to have at least one club of ten to report each week.

J. A. Conant. Willimantic, Conn., sends in a club of twenty-eight for six months at his own expense, hoping that by the end of that time they will voluntarily renew. In this way he has already secured the attention of several earnest men to this reform.

James Burge, Crown Point, Indiana, sends in a club of ten. Others have sent in one, two, three or more subscribers with such a hearty good will, that we cannot tell who derives the most satisfaction from them, the subscribers, those who obtain their names, or the publishers of the paper, and all others who wish to see the list grow. There is certainly a very general feeling of happiness to all the interested parties.

In response to the inquiry from many friends, "How do you pronounce Mr. Ronayne's name?" We reply; the word Ronayne is composed of two syllables and is pronounced

RŌ-NĀNE.

SUBSCRIPTIONS RECEIVED DURING WEEK ENDING Feb. 19th, 1876, from J Adams, G W Bethers, B Bart., J Bowyer, S Bedford, L Baldwin, T Conley, C R Clark, N Callender, J A Conant, J T Carson, J B Crall, O Chamberlain, W A Davis, P Davison, B Doolittle, C Denham, O Emerson, R J Elliott, H Fry, D Gass, T Henry, J J Hayden, E S Harvey, W Heldman, M Hibbard, T Hodge, C W Johnston, H L Kellogg, G W Keller, W M Love, J Liggett, H LeRoy, J Martin, C P Miller, D E Middlekauf, M McClaughlin, J J Olds, W P Pease, S A Pratt, W H Peabody, J L Parker, S P Reeds, T C Radabaugh, E Ronayne, Miss H A M Reade, A F Richey, R D Russell, H R Smith, W Sanders, S Simpson, W H Smylie, D B Stump, G B Smith, J Slade, W S Spooner, W Troup, N C Tyrrell, E R Thompson, A Tuttle, P Woodring, J R Wright, H Washburne, L Wood, L Wing C B Remington.

SOMETHING NEW.

A CHART OF MASONRY

Showing the degrees from the first to the thirty-third, entitled

Degrees of Ancient Accepted Scottish Freemasonry,

According to a Mannal by Wm. M. Cunningham 33d Degree.

Designed by Rev. P. Stoddard, to explain Freemasonry, as shown by Morgan's Exposition and Richardson's Monitor.

A Neat Lithograph 22x28 Inches.

Single copies finely colored, post paid.....	$ 75
Per dozen " " " "	5 00
Per 100 " " " " Express charges extra.....	35 00
Single copy, colored, varnished and mounted postpaid.....	1 00
Per dozen colored, varnished and mounted, post paid.....	7 50
Per 100, colored, varnished and mounted, express charges extra.....	50 00

25 COPIES OR MORE SENT AT THE 100 RATES.

How to Send Money.

Post office orders, checks or drafts on Chicago or towns east of Chicago, and currency by express may be sent at our risk. If it is not possible to send by either of the four ways named, money in a registered letter may be sent at our risk, but it is not as safe.

The date at which subscriptions expire is with each subscriber's name on the address label. Send renewals before this date occurs. Notice if this date is changed to correspond; if not or if the paper fails to come, write without delay.

We discontinue during the first part of each month all subscriptions which expire during the preceding one except such as are ordered continued with a promise to forward the money soon. We do not like to lose a single subscriber and will not remove names simply because the cash is not received promptly, if we understand that the paper is wanted. Address all letters with subscriptions or orders for Books, Tracts and donations to the Tract Fund to EZRA A. COOK & Co., 13 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

ADVERTISING RATES.

1	square, 1 insertion,		$2.00
1	square (1 inch deep) one month		7.00
1	" " 2	"	10.00
1	" " 3	"	15.00
1	" " 6	"	25.00
1	" " 12	"	40.00

Discount for Space.

On 2 squares 5 per cent, On 3 squares 10 per cent
On 4 " 15 " " On 5 " 20 "
On ½ col. 25 per cent On one col. 30 per cent

Agents Wanted!

TO SELL THE PUBLICATIONS OF

EZRA A. COOK & CO.

Liberal Terms Offered.

Capable persons who are in need of pecuniary aid may clear

Handsome Profits,

While at the same time aiding the cause of Reform. Apply to EZRA A. COOK & CO., No. 13 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

$250 A MONTH—Agents wanted everywhere. Business honorable and first class. Particulars sent Address J. WORTH & Co., St. Louis, Mo. 1yr Jul

$77 A WEEK guaranteed to Male and Female Agents, in their locality. Costs NOTHING to try it. Particulars Free. P. O. VICKERY & CO., Augusta, Me. 6m.dec.30-75.

SAVE MONEY

by sending $4.75 for any $4 Magazine and THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE (regular price $6), or $5.75 for the Magazine and THE SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE (regular price $3). Address

THE TRIBUNE, New-York.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21, 1876.

Grain Wheat—Spring, No. 1..	$	1 10
" No. 2.....	1 02½	1 03
" No. 3.....		83
" Rejected.....		71
Corn—No. 2.....	42¼	43
Rejected.....		35
Oats—No. 2.....		32
Rejected.....		27
Rye—No. 2.....	66½	67
Bran per ton.....		12 00
Flour—Winter.....	4 75	7 50
Spring.....	3 00	5 25
Hay—Timothy.....	7 00	12 00
Prairie, "	6 00	9 00
Mess Beef.....	8 50	10 00
Tallow.....		8½
Dressed Hogs.....	9 50	9 75
Lard per cwt.....		12 85
Mess pork, per bbl.....		21 50
Butter fancy yellow 33c.; common to choice roll.....	16	24
Cheese	9	13½
Eggs.....	14	15
Seeds—Timothy.....	2 10	2 35
Clover	8 00
Flax	1 20	1 35
Poultry—Turkeys per lb dressed	12	13½
Chickens " "	9	11
Potatoes.....		17
Apples from store.....	3 00	4 00
Broom corn	3	11
HIDES green to dry salted.....	5½	12
Lumber—Clear.....	33 00	40 00
Common.....	11 00	12 00
Fencing.....	12 00	13 00
Shingles.....	2 75	3 00
WOOL—Washed.....	39	53
Unwashed.....	25	33
LIVE STOCK Cattle, Choice..	5 25	5 50
Good	4 80	4 75
Medium.....	4 10	4 25
Common.....	3 00	3 75
Hogs.....	7 00	8 75
Sheep.....	4 00	5 75

New York Market.

Flour.....	$ 3 15	9 00
Wheat—Winter.....	1 17	1 55
Spring.....	1 00	1 37
Corn.....	59½	72
Oats.....	46	52
Rye.....	88	90
Lard.....		13½
Mess pork.....		22 75
Butter.....	15	33
Cheese.....	6	13½
Eggs.....	16	19

ESTABLISHED 1867.

EZRA A. COOK & CO.,

STEAM PRINTERS

LITHOGRAPHERS,

STATIONERS

—AND—

Book Binders.

NOS. 7, 9, 11 & 13

Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

We were in the Stationery, Printing and Lithographing business before the Cynosure was started.

WE PRINT

Books, Pamphlets, Catalogues, Business Cards, Show Cards, Letter Heads, Bill Heads, Note Heads, Circulars, Hand Bills, Posters, Checks, Drafts, Notes, Certificates of Deposit, Certificates of Stock, Diplomas, etc.,

WE BIND

Blank Books, Magazines, Catalogues, Checks, Drafts, Notes, Certificates, Bank Pass Books, Etc., Etc.

WE LITHOGRAPH

Business Cards, Letter Heads, Note Heads, Bill Heads, Circulars, Checks, Drafts, Certificates of Stock, Certificates of Deposit, Plats and Charts; also elegant Diplomas for Colleges, Literary Societies, and Agricultural Societies, in one, two or three Colors. Samples and Prices sent on Application.

All work executed in the

BEST STYLE,

at the

LOWEST MARKET RATES.

WE FILL ORDERS PROMPTLY, and GUARANTEE GOOD WORK.

SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO ORDERS BY MAIL.

Samples and prices sent promptly when desired.

Address:

EZRA A. COOK & CO.,

7, 9, 11 & 13 Wabash Avenue,

CHICAGO.

NEW CLUB RATES

—FOR—

1876.

CLUB RATES.

No commission is allowed on club rates. Club rates are intended for those who wish to give the ommission to subscribers.

Club Rates Including Postage.

Papers Addressed to one or different Post Offices as desired.

2 to 4 Subs., 1 year, Old or New sent at one time, at	$2.00 each
5 to 9 " " " " " "	1 80 "
10 to 14 " " " " " "	1.70 "
15 to 19 " " " " " "	1.60 "
20 or more " " " " " "	1.50 "

Subscription Papers and Circulars sent free on application.

Excelsior Marriage Certificate.

It is decidedly the most BEAUTIFUL, TASTEFUL and SENSIBLE thing of the kind I have ever seen."—Rev. F. G. Hibbard, D. D.

"The most SCRIPTURAL, BEAUTIFUL and APPROPRIATE Marriage Certificate I have ever seen."—Late Rev. H. Mattison, D. D.

"SOMETHING NEW AND BEAUTIFUL, which we pronounce the handsomest thing of the kind we ever laid eyes on."—Meth. Home Journal, Phila. Contains two Ornamental Ovals, for Photographs

A BEAUTIFUL LITHOGRAPH 14 1-4 by 18 1-4 inches. 25 cts each, $2.25 per doz- $15 per 100.

For Sale by Ezra A. Cook & Co., CHICAGO.

CALIFORNIA

Have you any thought of going to California? Are you going West, North, or North-West? You want to know the best routes to take?

The shortest, safest, quickest and most comfortable routes are those owned by the Chicago and North-Western Railway Company. It owns over two thousand miles of the best roads there is in the country. Ask any ticket agent to show you its maps and time cards. All ticket agents can sell you through tickets by this route.

Buy your tickets via the Chicago & North-Western Railway for the West and North-West, and for

SAN FRANCISCO,

Sacramento, Ogden, Salt Lake City, Cheyenne, Denver, Omaha, Lincoln, Council Bluffs, Yankton, Sioux City, Dubuque, Winona, St Paul, Duluth, Marquette, Green Bay, Oshkosh, Madison, Milwaukee, and all other points West or North-West of Chicago.

If you wish the best traveling accommodations, you will buy your tickets by this route, and will take no other.

This popular route is unsurpassed for speed, comfort and safety. The smooth, well-ballasted and perfect track of Steel Rails, Westinghouse Air Brakes, Miller's Safety Platform and Couplers, the celebrated Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars, the perfect Telegraph System of Moving Trains, the regularity with which they run, the admirable arrangement for running Through Cars from Chicago to all points West, North and North-West, secures to passengers all the COMFORTS IN MODERN RAILWAY TRAVELING.

PULLMAN PALACE CARS

are run on all through trains of this road.

This is the ONLY LINE running these cars between Chicago and St. Paul, Chicago and Milwaukee, or Chicago and Winona.

At Omaha our Sleepers connect with the Overland Sleepers on the Union Pacific Railroad for all points West of the Missouri River.

On the arrival of the trains from the East or South, the trains of the Chicago and North-Western Railway LEAVE CHICAGO as follows:

For Council Bluffs, Omaha and California, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Palace Drawing Room and Sleeping Cars through to Council Bluffs.

For St. Paul and Minneapolis, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Palace Cars attached on both trains.

For Green Bay and Lake Superior, Two Trains daily, with Pullman Palace Cars attached, and running through to Marquette.

For Milwaukee, four Through Trains daily. Pullman Cars on night trains, Parlor Chair Cars on day trains.

For Sparta and Winona and points in Minnesota, One Through Train daily, with Pullman Sleepers to Winona.

For Dubuque, via Freeport, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Cars on night trains.

For Dubuque and La Crosse, via Clinton, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Cars on night trains to McGregor, Iowa.

For Sioux City and Yankton, Two Trains daily. Pullman Cars to Missouri Valley Junction.

For Lake Geneva, Four Trains daily.

For Rockford, Sterling, Kenosha, Janesville, and other points you can have from two to ten trains daily.

New York Office, No. 415 Broadway; Boston Office, No. 5 State Street; Omaha Office, 253 Farnham Street; San Francisco Office, 121 Montgomery Street; Chicago Ticket Offices: 62 Clark Street, under Sherman House: corner Canal and Madison Streets; Kinzie Street Depot, corner W. Kinzie and Canal Streets; Wells Street Depot, corner Wells and Kinzie Streets.

For rates or information not attainable from your home ticket agents, apply to

W. H. STENNETT, Gen. Pass. Ag't, Chicago. MARVIN HUGHITT, Gen. Sup't, Chicago.

[Eastern.]

THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.

"In Secret Have I Said Nothing."—Jesus Christ.

EZRA A. COOK & CO., PUBLISHERS, NO 13 WABASH AVENUE. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, MARCH 2, 1876. VOL. VIII., NO. 21.—WHOLE NO. 308 WEEKLY (post paid) $2 20 A YEAR

Contents.

	Page
TOPICS OF THE TIME	1
EDITORIAL ARTICLES:
National and State Politics	8
Knights Templars	8
CONTRIBUTED AND SELECT ARTICLES:
Why Should I Cling to a Pro-secrecy Church?	1
The Duties of Pulpit, Press, and Christian Church in Relation to Popular Wrong-doing	1
The Unceasing Conflict	2
REFORM NEWS AND NOTICES:
Iowa, Be Ready; From the General Agent; from Pennsylvania; Wonderful Convention in Indiana; From Steuben Co., N. Y.	4,5
CORRESPONDENCE:
Father Preston on the New Tract; Spiritualism and Theism; A Few Practical Thoughts: Our Mail	6
Political Consultation	8
Petition to M. E. General Conference	8
An Open Letter	9
List of Seceding Masons	12
POLITICAL	3
N. C. A. Department	9
Odd-fellowship, Masonry, the Grange and Knights of Pythias	13
THE HOME CIRCLE	10
CHILDREN'S CORNER	11
The Sabbath School	7
Home and Health	11
Temperance	4
Educational	7
Religious Intelligence	9
News of the Week	12
Publishers' Department	16

Topics of the Time.

Although the jury in St. Louis has acquited Gen. Babcock of being a party to the whiskey frauds, the verdict throughout the country seems to be only "not proven." The government attorneys did not, it is true, make out their case so clearly as they had promised; but the conduct of the case by the defense was throughout as if his lawyers were convinced of his guilt and only wished to force a compromise and save him from punishment. The stain upon Babcock's repute is not removed; nor will the ovations at St. Louis and the seranade proposed by "Boss" Shepherd of the Washington Ring help to cleanse it. The painful rumors of the effect of the case in Washington are, however, more to be deplored. The whiskey ring have been so far successful with Pres. Grant as to have caused serious dissention in the Cabinet and the probable retirement of Bristow with the popular reforms he has inaugurated. Rumors are conflicting, but enough appears to warrant the assumption that the President is on the point of committing a most serious blunder in this respect.

A new and important fact is being developed in the Bible-in-school question which may change the tone of precipitate and hostile legislators and school committees. Following the casting out of the Bible from the Chicago schools last October, Rev. J. W. Bain, of the United Presbyterian church preached an able sermon in defense of the just and time-honored use of the Word of God in schools. He brought up a fact of history which has since been made more prominent from a legal point of view through a lecture before the Chicago College of Law. It appears that in July, 1787, two months before the adoption of the present Federal Constitution, the Congress of the Confederation entered into an agreement with the State of Virginia by which the territory now comprising the five Northwestern States was ceded to the United States. This "Ordinance of 1787," ante-dating the Constitution, provides that "religion, morality, and knowledge being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged." This is one of the provisions which the ordinance declares shall be considered as articles of compact between the original States and the people and States in the said territory, and "forever remain unalterable, unless by common consent." These terms make the act now practically irrepealable; and no constitutional amendments can touch it. By compact, not by choice, it becomes a part of the constitution of these Northwestern States, and must be so recognized by our courts. The use of the Bible in schools is not the innovation of a sect, but the instinctive act of the people as a whole by their representatives that our public schools should encourage not merely knowledge, but religion, the Christianity of the Protestant churches.

The Brooklyn Advisory Council closed last week after accomplishing the object for which it was got together—the complete vindication of Plymouth church on all the questions proposed. The convention was not fully harmonious, and the dramatic eloquence of Beecher was frequently invoked to keep up the enthusiasm in his favor. Dr. Bacon made one speech on the necessity of investigation, the skeleton in Plymouth church, etc., which was sufficiently alarming to the managers of the Council, who invariably put off all allusions to Beecher's guilt with protesting that such matters were outside of their business. There are two nearly smothered facts, however, which would condemn both the Council and the church in their action on Christian grounds. The Storrs-Buddington Council of 1874 decided that if Plymouth church "dropped" any more members as it did Tilton, it should be disfellowshipped by the sisterhood of Congregational churches. In this decision Plymouth church acquiesced. But Mrs. Moulton and Dea. West (and Bowen would have been had they dared) were dropped even more scandalously. In what light does this put this affair? But the council of 1874 was ignored. Then as one of the council committees intimated, the discipline commanded by Christ, in Matthew xviii., had been as little regarded as if it never had been given for the direction of the Christian church. Had it been faithfully followed, Beecher would have been compelled to leave the ministry long since, or his accusers silenced. The "scandal" would have been unknown. Though protesting their faith in Beecher the council provided for an investigating committee of five, by which there is a very remote possibility of an end to this most disgusting affair.

Why should I Cling to a Pro-secrecy Church?

BY J. K. ALWOOD.

I am opposed to secretism. So is the Bible. So is common humanity. So is reason. So is true democracy. So is common sense. If a church can not see that secretism is wrong, she is too blind to teach theology, which is the main business of a church. If a church is too corrupt to teach what she believes to be true and reprove what she believes to be wrong, she is too corrupt to have peace and fellowship with Christ. In either case she is not fit to be encouraged, much less to be relied on as a spiritual mother. Why then should I cling to a church which is married to secretism, while I can find another which teaches the theology which I believe, and opposes, at great expense, the things I profess to hate? Why should I? Will my clinging to such a blind, temporizing body encourage those who oppose the dreadful evil? No; such a useless tenacity to sect cannot do this. Will it discourage my blind, temporizing, corrupt church from her position? will it tend to induce reform? But no church on earth ever yet reformed itself. How could I hope for such a new thing under the sun? Blind hope! Crazy hope! Will I encourage the pro-secrecy church by clinging to her, though I oppose her position? Certainly I will; for she gets my money, my labor, my influence; and she could hold me up to cover her vulnerable parts as a shield against the darts of truthful accusation. Can I be a conscientious Christian and serve as a shield to error and corruption against truth and right? Shame! I'll not do that. Will I discourage sinners from entering the lodge by clinging to a secrecy church. No; I encourage them. My conduct says the thing is innocent. Innocent people do not encourage nor join hands with corrupt systems. Why then should I cling to her? She has betrayed her trust. She has forfeited all right to my confidence. She strengthens the hands of the wicked. She puts a lying comment on God's word. Indeed, she says God lies when he says "Every one that doeth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be reproved. But he that doeth truth cometh to the light, that his deeds may be made manifest that they are wrought in God." (Jno. iii. 20,21.) And I encourage her lying, blasphemous commentary by supporting her ministry, many of whom are so besotted with the world that they have said, "If I had to leave one, the church or the lodge, I should leave the church!" (I could now give three names of this class.) How much honesty can there be in supporting such characters? Well, there is in it an exhibition of the graces of humanity and patience in an abject submission to being led by the nose. And then it may be better to be led by that member of the face than to have the brows beaten by the sneers and jests of secretists and their dupes. Is a cowardly religion better than none? See Rev. xxi. 8. "The fearful, and unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers &c., have their portion in the lake of fire." Heaven pity.

The Duties of Pulpit, Press and Christian Church in Relation to Popular Wrong-doing.

BY ELDER A. D. FREEMAN.

It is a fact, or seems to be a fact, that many who claim to be God's watchmen, fear to expose and rebuke popular sins.

Now let us read what God authorized Ezekiel (xxxiii.) 6. to say to his watchmen: "But if the watchman see the sword come, and blow not the trumpet and the people be not warned; if the sword come and take any person from among them, he is taken away in his iniquity, but his blood will I require at the watchman's hand." God will not take that back. That is his fixed and unchangable purpose. He will do it: and there is no sophistical thinking or utterances that can change his purpose or prevent its execution.

It will be in vain, and worse. It will be guilty folly to say or think, "It will make me unpopular, and destroy my usefulness; or it will create disturbance in the church or among the people, and do no good." If we say or think so, that is our reply to God. And what are we that we should presume to reason against God's plain commands? But God knows we had better do it; commands us to do it, and threatens our disobedience. And now can we think to nullify that command and neutralize the threat, and turn them back upon him who says, "My word shall not return unto me void, but shall accomplish the thing whereto I sent it;" and also, "Be not deceived God is not mocked."

The neglect of duty in this direction is often thought to be, and is praised as great prudence; but such prudence is nothing short of rebellion against God. Obedience is prudence, and disobedience is imprudence. Saul at one time designed to be very politic and prudent when he saved the best of the oxen and sheep for sacrifice; but God by the prophet told him that "Obedience is better than sacrifice," fastening the crime of disobedience upon him, and giving him his destiny in these awful words; "Because thou hast rejected the word of the Lord, he also hath rejected thee." God's ministers are not their own, but his, to do his bidding. They are each personally a living sacrifice offered on the altar of Christian duty; having nothing to do but hear God's commands and perform them.

If consecrated, if offered on his altar we have no proper interest of our own, that requires prudence to protect; we need no prudence other than to do what he bids. If then, to do his bidding involves the loss of our good name, the smiles and favor of the people, our property, peace, and influence; or would make disturbance in the church or among the people, and bring on us the frowns of our fellows, and around us an army of persecutors, endangering our lives,—he knew it all when giving the command. He breasted the whole himself, and said, "Follow me." And also said, "Except a man deny himself and take up his cross and follow me he cannot be my disciple," and further, "I came not to send peace, but a sword." He knew that truth would make men angry and break up their false peace. He knew that to expose their iniquity and reveal their secret sins would bring upon him their displeasure and hate. He knew it all and informs us through inspiration of the apostle that "All who will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution." This, too, is necessary for our discipline. We shall not be likely to develope out into good Christians, unless by obedience we became worthy of persecution. And then we need the buffetings as a part of our legacy to be transformed into a rich inheritance: "For our light afflictions shall work for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory." The persecution we suffer for doing God's commands shall be eternal riches. Though painful here it shall be endless joy there; an earnest of which we find mingled with our labor and sorrow here.

It will not do to prophesy smooth things in the hope of saving the world and pleasing God. It needs the ploughshare of truth put down beam deep. The fallow ground must be broken up, God has committed to us stern truth that reveals to us the secrets of men's hearts; and he cannot be pleased with any soft substitute. He would not have us deal out soft platitudes instead of his truth. He would not have us wince because the world frowns, and threatens, and persecutes. He would not have us pull down the blood-stained banner, and run up the white flag. There is no sin that he has exempted from reproof or rebuke, and we should not cower before popular displeasure. Popularity should not be a sanctuary for any sin; should not be allowed to shield any wrong. Sin, though hanging on the horns of the altar should be pierced through with the javelin of God's truth. It should find no asylum on God's earth, and especially in his house.

The foregoing is rudimentary Christianity.

But the Christian pulpit, press, and church, or at least many of them seem in a bad sense to have "forgotten the things that are behind," and instead of "pressing toward the mark for the prize" have taken a departure for popular favor; and so become obnoxious to Paul's reproof to the Hebrews, saying, "For when for the time ye ought to be teachers, ye have need that one teach you again which be the first principles of the oracles of God," and concludes in sharp but loving irony and sarcasm, "And are become such as have need of milk." They seem to have forgotten that their work is to teach the plain, stern, unequivocal and unwavering truth, and reprove sin, however covered, protected, and defended by the populace and clothed with popular favor. Not being willing to "endure hardness as good soldiers of Jesus Christ," they deal in soft or equivocal terms that provoke no displeasure.

True the motive of the Christian teacher is not to provoke men to hate, but to deal in solid truth that can save. It is not to tickle the ear, please the fancy, attract or draw an audience and secure their admiration, but to save men. Nor is it less true that men cannot be saved by leaving out of sight the true character of sin and of the sinner. No man was ever induced to apply for salvation to the sinner's Saviour till he knew something of the "exceeding sinfulness of sin;" and this requires plain dealing with men. Sin cannot be sugar-coated without damning the sinner; nor the law polished and upholstered without failing in efficacy, and ceasing to be law. No where in the universe known to man, are all things done by gentle, soft, or mild means. Our God does not all things by mild means. If he would gradually expand a great iron bridge, he can do it by induction of the mild and gentle sunbeams; but if he would rive the sturdy oak, he would employ the shivering lightning shaft. Or if he would raise up a mountain range across a continent he would use the mighty forces of vast subterranean fires. If a man, a surgeon, would amputate a diseased limb, he would not attempt it with a feather, but would employ the keen knife and the harsher saw; fulfilling the saying of Jesus: "The children of this world are wiser in their generation than the children of light." God works in the physical world, the intellectual, moral, and religious as well, according to the constituted laws of each. By mild and gentle means, when appropriate and by stern, vigorous and commanding measures when called for. He did not drown the world and save righteous Noah and family in a gentle zephyr, but by torrents of rain, and breaking up the fountains of the great deep. He did not drown the Egyptians in sweet odors wafted from fields of Arabian spices, but in the engulphing waters of the Red Sea. He did not awe Israel into submission and reverence by ravishing music from a heavenly orchestra, but by the thunders of Sinai. He did not bring Israel into the land of promise in richly gilded and upholstered palace-cars, but on a foot-journey of forty years through the barren, rocky "waddy" of Arabia; and that by the leadership of Moses both meek, mild, patient, and yet sternly commanding.

So God employs men; some of whom are characterized by all these traits; and some who have one more prominent than the rest. He called the meek, mild and loving John, and also the prompt, impetuous and thundering Peter; both self-sacrificing for the love they had for Christ and God the Father; neither of whom cowered, (after our Savicur's resurrection) before the Christ-hating Jew, or the no less persecuting Gentile. And in later times he called to the work the mild and almost timid Melancthon and the bold, divine, heroic and defiant Luther. And when Scotland needed he raised up and qualified John Knox, to push the battle to the gates of the enemy.

Those were men who shunned not to declare the whole counsel of God as they understood it, at the sacrifice of their whole earthly interests, hazarding their lives.

To sum it all up, let us be God's, and not our own. Let us be for God. and not for popular favor. Let us speak and preach truth that can save men, however much it may provoke opposition and displeasure; and not smooth things, that attach men to us, and not to Christ. Let us please God and not a sinful world with smooth and flattering speech that will lure them to ruin.

Webster's Classics.

Daniel Webster said of himself that he made the ancient classics a special study for ten years after graduating from Harvard College; and the eminent Jeremiah Smith said of him, that when they traveled the law circuits together, he observed that Webster always had some ancient classic author among his books of law. What a mistake. The results as shown in his after career, lead us to ruminate on the great waste of precious time which a mistaken judgment led him to admit. If he were a student to-day, in any county lawyer's office, he would be saved all that herculean labor, have the ancient classics scooted out of his head as antiquated folly, and be shown a much shorter way to bread and butter, if not to solid worth and enduring fame. A distinguished author has said: "The greatness of Daniel Webster was more apparent in his power to state a fact, or to present a truth, than in any other characteristic of his gigantic nature."

Interior.

Irony.—Let soft-cushioned pews crowd out free seats from aristocratic churches; let bellowing organs and hired operatic music perform proxy worship for dozing church members; let the soul-rousing and thrilling vocal music of by-gone days be forgotten—"but few now object to these changes" none but croakers would. Let the glittering "Babylonish garment," and "golden wedge" remain, not hid, but in bold view in the "stuff" found in the showy tents of Zion; let the world pour in its floods of tinselry and gewgaws—we can stand it. All we ask is, that we be allowed to marry holiness to this mass of moral death—be allowed to apply our feebly burning matches to the mountains of solid ice and glittering glacier.—Ex.

The Unceasing Conflict.—Shall Pastor or Lodge be First?

Mr. Editor:—I am pastor of a church of one hundred and fifty members, representing some fifty families. In the same country village is a Masonic lodge of some seventy or more members, who in a way represent as many families. Years ago two members of the church entered the lodge; but they moved away, and as with rare exceptions no member of the lodge ever attended the ordinances of the church, there was quite a chasm between the two congregations.

Here, I wish to say, that I am acquainted with the ceremonies, traditions, oaths, teachings and practical workings of Freemasonry, as these things have been given by Capt. William Morgan, Rev. David Bernard, Rev. Moses Thatcher (still living), Mr. Avery Allyn, Rev. C. G. Finney and others. And when these revelations are attested as they are by more than a hundred men of high character, and in the manner and under the circumstances that they have been, the evidence of their truthfulness is sufficient to convince any mind that is capable of being convinced by evidence. In addition to all this amount of evidence, I have also, from the admissions of many adhering Masons with whom I have conversed, and the confessions of seceding Masons now living and known to me, assurance as certain and absolute as can be, that these revelations, so far as they relate to the first three degrees and the Royal Arch degree are substantially correct, and that there has been no material change in any of these degrees.

With these facts before me, I wish to say for the benefit of whom it may concern: 1st, that Masonry has no secrets of history, science, art, religion or any other of any value whatever to any man or class of men. 2d. It contemplates no benevolent end which could not be reached in some other way as well or better. 3d. Although, in the lower degrees especially, it inculcates the practice of some moral virtues, yet as a whole, in its ceremonies, traditions, oaths, and teachings it is a system of fraud, deception, falsehood, profanity, sacrilege and blasphemy. 4th. Its tendency and results are to bewilder the mind, to blunt the conscience and harden the heart. And 5th (I say this from observation as well as theory), when a Christian man becomes a Mason he ordinarily leads a sickly Christian life; and when a man not a Christian enters the lodge the hope of his ever becoming a Christian is greatly diminished.

But right here I am met with the statement that there have been and are good men who are Masons. Grant it. So there were good (i. e. Christian) men in the late rebel army. Did that mitigate the stupendous wrong or the stupendous evil of the rebellion? Did it mitigate the horrors of Libby prison, Salisbury or Andersonville? There are undoubtedly some Masons who qualify the oaths by the moral instructions referred to, whilst others qualify the moral instructions by the oaths. Our poor fallen nature is made of such stuff; a Christian in this world is such a mixture of light and darkness, good and evil, that there is no telling to what depths of folly or even of wickedness he may be induced to descend.

I return now to my congregation. Six or eight months ago, I discovered to my surprise that a considerable number of my most promising young men had trodden the tesselated pavement, and on inquiry I found that nearly every young man in the congregation had been invited and was being pressed with all the ingenuity of Masonic art to explore the wonders of the lodge. Long ago, in a private conversation, I had spoken unfavorably of Masonry. My remark had been reported in the lodge and the threat had been dropped that "They would show me." It was evident that they had formed and were carrying out the plan to capture the church by seducing all its young men. There are in the church ten old men who in a few years will be in their graves. There are twenty-five at least who are fair candidates for Masonic mysteries. And I saw that if things go on at this rate, the time is not distant when ministers in this church will be settled and unsettled in the lodge; elders elected in the lodge and cases of discipline decided in the lodge. The event would be equal to the ruin of the church. For though there might be still half a dozen men beyond the reach of the cable-tow, yet "If the foundations be destroyed, what can the righteous do?"

At first, therefore, as a pastor, I approached the young men in question. I told them that I was acquainted with Masonry, that it could not be favorable to their piety; that for all the Masonry they had they must have so much less of true religion; that for all the enjoyment they had in the lodge their enjoyment of Christ and his ordinances would be so much the less; and for all the influence they gained as Masons their influence as Christians must be so much the less. But they had learned another language. My voice was strange to them. The cable-tow was about their necks; though I trust they will yet come to light. Next, to prevent others from descending to this abyss of darkness, I procured and circulated copies of the Master Mason's oath (Cynosure edition) and also preached a sermon on the "Religion of Masonry," quoting from Bernard and showing that it is essentially a religion without Christ. These things have thrown the town into a commotion which reminds one of the hubbub at "Vanity Fair," when the two "pilgrims" entered the town. Some say, "The old man only speaks his honest convictions, abuses nobody and is not to be blamed." Some say, "The tract is a lie and the parson lies." Some say, "These things may have been so fifty years ago, but Masonry is changed." But the greater part unite in the cry, "Let us cut off his bread and butter," whilst the dignity of the order is shown by their squibs in the county papers.

Now I propose, by the help of God, to arrest the aggressions of the order in this direction, or to defeat their conspiracy against the particular church of which I happen to be the humble pastor; and I am not unwilling to unite with thousands of my brethren abroad in the effort to defeat the general conspiracy against the church of Christ and the "conspiracy against mankind," into which the Masonic fraternity have entered. But the occasion is one of real trial to many of my good people here. There are several good Christian women in the church whose husbands, and children whose fathers belong to the lodge. It must be painful to these wives and these children to be told that the religion to which their fathers and husbands adhere is a false religion, whose ceremonies are essentially wicked and profane. Shall they continue to listen to the preacher who says such things of the church to which husbands and fathers belong? The question must be decided over again, whether to stand up for Jesus when nearest and dearest relatives are opposed; and when the mind also is bewildered or beclouded with doubts and fears. Then there are other members of the church whose brothers or near relatives belong to the lodge. How can they believe that these brothers and near friends would adhere to a society so wicked? Other members of the church are in intimate social relations with Masons or their families; and yet, as in the late war, or in the kingdom of the Redeemer, every one must be for or against, so it is here. But must one displease his neighbors and run the risk of a break with them (for Masonry has no charity) just for the sake of the truth? The reformers would have done it. But all men have not the light or the mettle of the reformers. Then again, many of these Masons are prosperous farmers. They patronize the shop and the mill. Must a man risk a good bargain or a good customer just for the sake of the truth? Especially when those who hold the truth are in a decided minority? Will you please to say, Mr. Editor, what should a man do in such a case? and what should those godly women and children do whose trials are more severe and whose case calls for a deeper sympathy?

It is clear to my mind that the imminent danger to the church has required an exposure here of the character and designs of Freemasonry. But as yet, indifference (or perhaps fear) is the greatest obstacle in the way. One says, "I know nothing about Masonry, and I don't wish to know anything." Another says, "This is a free country." But does this mean that if a man wishes to gamble, get drunk, fight, swear, lie or commit adultery, no one has the right to object? Still books and papers are being read. The light is spreading. It is winter and stormy today, but the spring and the summer, too, will come. Truly yours,

WARREN TAYLOR.

Wilkesville, Ohio, Feb. 1, 1876.

NOTE.—Pastor Taylor will perhaps find that Elder Freeman has answered his question in the article just preceding.

Political.

This department is opened at the requett of numerous friends of the reform, and will be conducted in the interest of the American party. All who hold the principles of that party are invited to contribute briefly their views and queries or facts which will give information about candidates or principles.

THE AMERICAN PLATFORM AND NOMINATIONS FOR 1876.

FOR PRESIDENT
James B. Walker,
of Illinois.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT
Donald Kirkpatrick,
of New York.

PLATFORM.

We hold: 1. That ours is a Christian and not a heathen nation, and that the God of the Christian Scriptures is the author of civil government.

2. That God requires and man needs a Sabbath.

3. That the prohibition of the importation, manufacture and sale of intoxicating drinks as a beverage, is the true policy on the temperance question.

4. The charters of all secret lodges granted by our Federal and State Legislatures should be withdrawn, and their oaths prohibited by law.

5. That the civil equality secured to all American citizens by articles 13th, 14th and 15th of our amended Constitution should be preserved inviolate.

6. That arbitration of differences with nations is the most direct and sure method of securing and perpetuating a permanent peace.

7. That to cultivate the intellect without improving the morals of men, is to make mere adepts and experts; therefore the Bible should be associated with books of science and literature in all our educational institutions.

8. That land and other monopolies should be discountenanced.

9. That the government should furnish the people with an ample and sound currency, and a return to specie payment as soon as practicable.

10. That maintenance of the public credit, protection to all loyal citizens, and justice to Indians are essential to the honor and safety of our nation.

11. And finally we demand for the Americanpeople the abolition of the Electoral Colleges, and a direct vote for President and Vice-president of the United States.

OUR POLITICAL TRACT.

A special fund is desired in order to pay for half a million copies of this tract. Hundreds of reliable friends are ready to distribute them if others will pay for them. One friend pledges a dollar for every other contributed, and this tract of eight pages costs post paid but $1, per 100, and $8, per 1000. Can you possibly make better use of ten dollars if you have it to spare, than by aiding to put this tract in the hands of two thousand five hundred voters? We desire a special fund for this purpose, and it will be used for nothing else. Now is the time to distribute them while all have time to read and none have their votes pledged. Send on your contributions and your orders now if you would accomplish the greatest possible good.

Question the Candidate.

CHICAGO, Feb. 15, 1876.

MR. EDITOR: I see by the Republican papers that the following named gentlemen are spoken of as possible candidates for the offices named, and their claims are likely to be pressed upon the attention of the Republican State Convention of Illinis:

For Governor.

John L. Beveridge of Springfield,
S. M. Cullum of Springfield.
Hon. Mr. Fort, Henry Co.
Hon. E. B. Washburne, Jo Daviess Co.
Gen. J. B. Hawley, Rock Island Co.
Hon. Mr. Ridgway, Gallatin Co.
Hon. C. B. Farwell, Cook Co.

For Lieutenant Gov.

A. M. Jones, Jo Daviess Co.

For Treasurer.

Edward Rutz, St. Clair Co.
Dr. T. J. Bluthardt, Cook Co.
Geo. A. Sanders, Springfield.
Sen. Cunningham, Marion Co.
Henry C Paddock, Kane Co.

For Auditor.

Gen. Lippincott, Springfield.
Hon. Geo. M. Bogue, Cook Co.
Daniel Gardner, Champaign Co.
Thos. Needles, Washington Co.
Gill J. Burr, Jackson Co.

Secretary of State.

Geo. H. Harlow, Springfield.
Geo. . Scrogge, Champaign Co.
O. B. Knickerbocker, Kane Co.

For Attorney General.

Hon J. K. Edsall, Springfield.
Senator Canfield, Kane Co.

Col. Boyd, Fulton Co.
C. B. Steele, Coles Co.
James Shaw, Carroll Co.
P. H. Sandford, Knox Co.
E. Callahan, Crawford Co.

Will you please ask your readers in the localities where these gentlemen reside to inform you as to their standing for temperance and morality, and also whether they are Masons, Oddfellows or Knights of Pythias, and when you get your information, please publish it for the benefit of your numerous readerc who would like to have for State officers honest, sober and capable men who are free from obligations to oath-bound secret societies.

The Chicago Evening Journal from which paper most of these names are taken, says:

"The aim of the State Convention should be to select the very best men it can find for all these important offices. The success or defeat of our ticket next November will depend altogether on the kind of men who will be on it."

L. R. D.

NOTE.—This is the right way of dealing with political Masonry, and the above lays out work for many questioners. The full name and address not being given it will be necessary for those personally acquainted with these gentlemen to ask after them. The following appear in the Grand Lodge roll: Gen. J. B. Hawley, M. C., is member of Trio Lodge, Rock Island. We are not positive in regard to Goy. Beveridge, but believe his name has appeared as member of the lodge. A. M. Jones belongs to Jo Daviess Lodge, Warren. Andrew Shuman, another candidate for Lieutenant Governor and editor of the Chicago Journal is a Mason, so is Gen. M. M. Bane, of Bodley Lodge, Quincy. C. E. Lippencott, the present Auditor and candidate for re-election is of Central Lodge, Springfield; Thos. Needles of Nashville, Washington Co., is a Mason. Geo. H. Harlow, Sec'y of State who so grudgingly issued the charter to the National Christian Association, is of St. Paul's Lodge, Springfield; Mr. Scroggs is Master of Western Star Lodge, Champaign. Eugene Canfield is P. M. of Aurora Lodge.

Indiana Politics.

The State Association of Indiana at their last meeting at Marion, Ind., appointed Wm. Hall and G. W. Champ of Grant Co., James McConnell of Noble Co., Cornelius Alderman of Wabash Co., John Hogue of DeKalb Co., H. C. Miller of Franklin Co., and C. F. A. Gantzsckow of Bartholomew Co., an Executive Political Committee with power to confer together and determine the propriety of calling a State Convention for the nomination of candidates to be voted for at the October election. The said committee are hereby requested to meet in Marion, Grant Co., on Saturday, April 1st, 1876, at 10 o'clock A. M. Brethren let us have a full attendance. Our cause is just, and we wish to perfect the best plan for the work before us, then knowing the right, dare to do it.

Wm. Hall, Chairman.

Secretary Bristow's Amendment.

Several bills have been introduced in Congress during the present session with the avowed object of securing the resumption of specie payments without contraction of the currency. Indeed, one of these announced this as its object in its title. It is hardly necessary to point out to those who have attentively read what has appeared in these colnmns on this subject, that all such schemes are founded upon a misconception of the true nature of the problem, and that they must necessarily prove futile and delusive. The fundamental fact to be kept in mind in the discussion of the question is, that our present cnrrency is redundant, and that its depreciation is conclusive evidence of its redundancy. This is no arbitrary assumption of our own, no hasty generalization based on imperfect data, but a truth taught by all economists worthy of the name, who have written upon the subject of currency. We might almost say that it is the starting point of all logical and intelligent investigation of the currency question. It is plain then, that we can never reach the safe and certain basis of specie payments without reducing the volume of our currency within normal limits. The present resumption act proposes to accomplish this by leaving the reduction of the cnrrency to be affected after the time fixed for resumption, by redeeming the surplus greenbacks in gold. But Secretary Bristow has shown his comprehension of the true nature of the question by recommending that provision be made for disposing of the surplus greenbacks prior to resumption by funding them into bonds. This is a simple and business-like solution of the problem, and furnishes a rallying point for all sincere friends of resumption. Even if the consequences of resumption, through contraction, should prove to be as deplorable as they are pictured by the extreme inflationist, they would be outweighed a thousand fold by the loss and suffering which the country has already endured while shivering on the brink of resumption. There is but one thing that will restore confidence and bring back capital to its accustomed channels, and that is resumption. Continued suspension means continued uncertainty and distrust.

Temperance.

Last week we published an important petition to Congress; this week we publish one to the Centennial Commission. Both of these require a prompt circulation and may be forwarded to Mrs. M. B. Holyoke, room 3, 148 E. Madison St., Chicago.

To the United States Centennial Commission:

Whereas, The use of intoxicating drinks is the chief source of pauperism, lunacy and crime;

And Whereas, The brewing business is destructive to the industries and material interests of the country, manufacturing scores of idlers to each one it employs, and rotting the grain that is needed for bread in this and other lands;

And Whereas, The manufacture and sale of alcoholic drinks are prohibited in several of the States, and millions of our best citizens are opposed to the traffic:

Therefore we, the undersigned citizens of the United States, earnestly pray your honorable body not to sanction the sale of intoxicating drinks, or allow the establishment of a brewery or distillery on the Centennial Grounds; and we will continue to pray.

This petition may be signed by voters and women over eighteen years of age.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Chicago W. C. T. U. was held as announced last week. The attendance was large and the reports of committees showed aggressive and successful work.

The daily temperance prayer-meeting, the Bethel Home meetings, mass meetings in the leading churches, the establishment of coffee rooms, Christian reform clubs for men in different parts of the city are receiving the attention of the Union.

Miss. Frances E. Willard, President of the Union, has jnst returned after nearly a month's absence at the East.

In the Chicago Daily Temperance prayer-meeting, on the same afternoon, two different young men stated that all through their childhood and youth they had punctually attended church and Sabbath-school every week in stormy as well as in fair weather. And yet after leaving home they fell little by little until they became miserable drunkards.

A gentleman arose and remarked: "The testimony of these two men as to the uselessness of a course of religious instruction in saving one from vice and dissipation well illustrates the truth that external influences, though good, will not save a man. He must be 'born again.' A divine power must renew his heart.

Parents, do not be contented with sending your children to church and Sabbath-school. Labor with them, pray with them and pray for them that they may be "born again."

Thoughts for the Time.

Who talks of wars or armed interventions in a centennial year when we are calling all nations to celebrate the arts of peace! Of course, remonstrances against slavery and inhumanity are always in order. If made in the right spirit, they are indeed eminently Christian; but if made as a menace, their character changes. Yet we are not sure but Oliver Cromwell did right when he remonstrated in a menacing tone against the persecution of the Waldenses. This year with us should be pre-eminently a year of peaceful victories in the useful arts, and especially in religion and morality. If these United States, and especially Philadelphia, shall show to our numberless visitors religion, temperance and morality in the ascendant, how great will be the moral influence radiating from them!

It is this consideration that makes us dread the rivers of sparkling wine (probably cider, whiskey, and carbonic acid) and the oceans of lager beer which the Commissioners of the Centennial Exhibition are said to have granted licenses to sell on the grounds. America should be a light of the world in temperance matters, and if the light that is in us be darkness, how great will be that darkness! Especially if liquor-drinking shall be diversified with playing poker, three-card monte, faro, roullette, and with lotteries, pool-rooms, horse-racing, etc., etc. Drinking and gambling are exceedingly bad in Europe; but in moral, educated, religious, model America they will appear ten times worse. Surely, therefore, all concerned—the pulpit, the press, the legislatures, the city governments, and the people—will do their best to make a creditable appearance in the eyes of the world this year. Snch an appearance would be of vast value to us, and it is only to be attained in one way. We think it was Burke who once told the British Ministry that there was only one way in which they could obtain a reputation for sincerity, namely, by being sincere. And in like manner a nation can only obtain a reputation for morality and religion by being moral and religious.—N. Y. Witness.

Reform News and Notices.

Ohio State Convention next Wednesday, March 8th, at Westerville, Franklin Co,, twelve miles north of the State Capital.

Iowa State Convention is on April 26th, next at Western College, Linn county. That's the time, writes secretary Compton—Friends remember. The Hon. J. B. Walker has intimated to the General Agent his intention to to be present at the meeting of the Iowa Convention.

—By some accident the Niagara Association was printed "Michigan" last week.

—That contribution for the Carpenter donation—is it forgotten?

—The General Agent will be in Ohio until after the State Convention next week. Read his letter.

—We owe our apology to Bro. Raynor for omitting a notice of a quarterly meeting of the Northeastern Pa. Association in the Baptist church in Grangerville, Susquehanna Co., to be held yesterday and to-day, March 1st and 2nd. Elder A. L. Post and other speakers were expected. Bro Raynor reports a good deal of work in few words elsewhere.

—Workers will find matter worth digesting in Father Preston's letter.

—Elder Barlow and Bro. Remington returned to their work in Michigan after a consultation with several friends of the reform in this vicinity in the Cynosure office on Monday of last week. They will raise Michigan to the first rank if friends will stand by their work.

—A Convention is to be held in Unionville, Putnam Co. Mo., sometime this month. Rev. Abner Orr, of Methodist Episcopal connection is preparing for work in that locality as a lecturer.

—Rev. A. H. Springstein is speaking in Michigan with much effect against the lodge.

—Bro. Hinman was in Tiskilwa, Bureau Co., last week, the beautiful little valley town where Bro. L. N. Stratton of the Wesleyan aroused so much lodgism last summer. He went from there to Annawan, and Geneseo. A good letter from him next week.

—Everybody will be glad to hear from Bro. Cogswell of Ohio again. His name will be put on the lecture list next week. He has just returned from lecturing in Indiana. He writes, "Salem Center has been aroused in a circumference of five or six miles, as persons flocked to hear from every quarter—we had the Presbyterian house full each night, and on Lord's day had two of the finest congregations you could wish to have seen, hanging upon the words of eternal truth. Mr. Butler will report to the Cynosure the meeting in full. I must add there are a goodly number of noble brethren such as the Butlers, and King, &c., who stand by this cause in sunshine and in shade. I cannot speak of them in too great praise."

The Ohio State Convention

at Westerville, O., March 8th, beginning at 2 P. M. Westerville is a small town twelve miles from Columbus on the Cleveland, Mt. Vernon and Columbus R. R. Friends from the south and west going through Columbus will find a train leaving there for Westerville at 12 o'clock; another about 6 P. M. Those from the north and east will enquire for the above railroad and will have no difficulty in reaching the place.

Again let me urge every one interested in this reform, ministers and laymen, to spare no effort in making it a rousing and most influential meeting. The fraternities are watching with some anxiety our movements and our strength. Let us show them that we are in earnest, and assure them that the word retreat shall never be heard or known in our ranks. Entertainment is free. H. H. George, Pres.

Iowa! Be Ready.

Hardly two months are left us to prepare for our State Convention. And although the reform has gained much during the year, we are pained to know that the darkness is still to an alarming degree over us. I tremble for the future of our nation. I fear not the future of God's people and the success of the cause of truth. God says the truth is mighty and must prevail. But of this wicked nation, what shall become of it? If we judge of the whole by our own county, and it perhaps is only an average one in point of morals, what an awfully wicked people we are as a nation! The better part of the people are asleep. In this hour of their awful danger, asleep to their calamity which must befall them unless a change takes place. How many men, who if our country were threatened would spring to arms and be ready to shed the last drop of their blood in its defense, are so slow to act in this reform!

In this county and in this city are these sworn enemies of justice and equal rights. Here in our halls of justice is justice turned away. Criminals are aided to escape, crime connived at by the "sign" of the craftsman. The maintainance of the law is a farce; equal rights to men, a lie. Justice is trampled under foot, and our land is virtually a land of trickery, collusion and fraud; a land of perjury, first in the lodge, by false, illegal and profane swearing. Second, by violating legal oaths in preference to lodge oaths. Thus our once free land is drifting to destruction. O that I could sound in the ears of every lover of liberty and justice, "Arouse to your danger," that it might stir him to action now!

Friends of Iowa, let us do our best to make our State meeting a success. We must give money if we expect to accomplish anything in this work. Let us use our money, our influence, our labor, and everything God gives us to free our land from this satanic bondage. Take the Cynosure. Send for books. Send for lecturers. Push the work and you will be surprised at your success.

Where the Cynosure is taken the work moves. Where Masonry is exposed it cannot well work its deviltry. Where it is exposed and does work people see it more readily and hate it more intensely.

Once more, let us work for the State meeting in April. Yours,

P. Woodring.

From the General Agent—Friends and Helpers.

Sturgis, Mich., Feb 21, 1876.

Dear K:—Only two hours to wait here and I am off for Hillsdale. Hitherto the Lord hath helped and I am praying for and expecting his presence and favor at that center of education. At Ligonier I was much cheered by the kindness of our many and true friends and glad to learn that by the liberality and perseverance of brethren Leuty, Woodard and others, a room had been made ready for divine worship where Masonry can be discussed with as much freedom as the dramshop. Bro. A. Worth is looked for and expected soon to visit and dedicate this consecrated spot and it is contemplated establishing a regular appointment at this place by the Wesleyan Methodists. These brethren certainly have our prayers and should we succeed in securing the Carpenter building and opening rooms as is contemplated for similar purposes in Chicago, Bro. Worth may expect to be asked for an exchange of pulpits.

Here, too, while duly attending to local interests, a friend gave a substantial lift to help our reform over the approaching crisis, and when my mission to Ligonier seemed for the present ended, Bro. McConnell took me in his buggy fourteen miles to the home of Richard Green, where I found both himself and his wife on the watch-tower with warm hearts, earnest prayers, diligent labors and open hands. With this couple I spent the hours very pleasantly and profitably until Sabbath morning when Bro. G. took me via Bro. Atwood's to Bro. Bower's at Wolcottville, whose "latch string" is out to the anti-secrecy reformer, as it was to the abolitionist and fugitive in the dark days of American slavery.

With Bro. B. I attended the Baptist church and found the pastor, Rev. Blanchard, assisted by Rev. Welker, engaged in a protracted effort, and at the pastor's request spoke a few word's for the Master. There are tokens of good in W. but as yet no general awakening outside the church. May God bless these good brethren and add unto their number of such as shall be saved. I presented the facts of our publishing interests to Bro. B. this morning and after learning the exact state and needs of the case Bro. and sister Bowers added $25 to the $100 given by Bro. and sister Green on Saturday, which with Bro. Hudson's liberal donation leaves only $1,867 to complete the $10,000. I presume Bro. Atwood, as he has the ability and is warmly enlisted in our reform, would, if asked, have contributed to our cause, but as it was Sabbath, and I scrupulously avoid business on the Lord's day, I said nothing to him of the matter. I regretted to find sister A. in a very delicate state of health; but while her bodily strength seemed giving away her eye was fixed upon the goal, and she seemed cheerful in her affliction. I should like, did time permit, to mention others, but circumstances seem to prevent. I am in the depot surrounded by various sights and sounds, among them an old fiddle which is more noisy than musical.

J. P. Stoddard.

From Pennsylvania.—Lectures and Labors.

Abington, Pa., Feb. 15, 1876.

Dear Cynosure:—I am here to lecture for a few evenings if the way opens. Since my last have lectured at various points. In the latter part of January I delivered two lectures at Foster a small village on the Del. Lack. & West R. R. The Methodist Episcopal church was kindly secured by an earnest friend of our cause, Wm. Crandall.

These lectures were listened to by large audiences and will accomplish good. There are some good, decided anti-secret ones in that section. Last week, Tuesday, Feb. 7th, I lectured to a fair-sized audience at the Burdick school-house in Clifford township. On Wednesday evening going through rain and mud, I spoke at the Lyon's street school house, and on Thursday evening, the 9th, lectured at Bunnell school-house, in Herrick, Susquehanna Co.

Last evening I had an appointment at the Carpenter school-house, and though the mud was unusually deep and a driving wind prevailed, I spoke to a little handful of friends. To-day I am storm-bound by a furious snow-storm, but I hope to-morrow evening to lecture, and also to have appointments for Thursday and Friday evenings. We hope our cause is gaining ground, but progress in a good work is usually slow.

Yours for the conflict,

James W. Raynor.

A Wonderful Convention in Indiana.

Some time in October there was a call made for all the teaching and ruling elders of the Indiana eldership of the Church of God, who are opposed to all secret associations, to meet in convention at Lake Bethel, Kosciusko county, Indiana, Nov. 18th, 1875.

Pursuant to call, the convention met in the morning at 9 o'clock A. M. The meeting was called to order by Elder John Martin, after singing and prayer, the convention proceeded to organize by appointing Elder J. S. Shock, President, E. B. Bell, Secretary. The President then stated the design of the meeting briefly, after which J. Martin gave us an introductory speech, in a very pointed manner, showing some of the practical workings of the secret orders in this our day; followed by Elder C. Clem, in a short speech. We then listened to a speech from the President in which he gave some of the early history of the Indiana Eldership, speaking of the many resolutions and efforts then put forth to keep the evil out of the Eldership. But it eventually crept in to the great injury of said body.

Brother Benjamin Ulsh, the Vice-president of the Indiana Christian Anti-secret Association for Kosciusko county, was present and gave us some of his experience in being an active agent in the reform movement against secret orders; stating that on his way to the convention on board the cars he distributed some Anti-masonic tracts among the passengers. Some falling into the hands of Masons, they gathered around him, using some very insulting language to him, threatening him. One man said if he thought he was not a fool he would whip him. They further said his books and tracts were all a pack of lies.

Another speech was made showing up some of the political as well as moral tendencies of secret associations. After which the meeting was adjourned to meet at half past one o'clock P. M. Prayer by brother Clem.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Prayer by brother Taylor. A letter was received from brother Bear informing us that through affliction he could not be with us at the meeting. Sorry that we could not have his assistance at the meeting.

The balance of the afternoon was occupied in hearing speeches from different brethren, and the reading and adopting of the following resolutions:

1. Resolved, That we severely disapprove of the action of the late eldership held at Thorn Creek Bethel, under Masonic rule, in so unceremoniously, illegally, and unscripturally dealing with some of its members and especially in the case of elder John Martin.

2. Resolved, That the disposition made of the funds of the eldership in the settlement made with the book agent is very irregular and dishonest, and we claim a restoration of the same.

3. Resolved, That we unanimously raise our hands, hearts, voices, and united efforts to check and subdue the evil, unjust and unscriptural ruling and secret plotting of Masonry in the Indiana eldership, and to restore a state of equality, peace and harmony.

4. Whereas, The influence thrown out by oath-bound secret societies has proved detrimental to the cause of God, and

5. Whereas, The principles and laws of said societies conflict with the laws of God, and the principles of religion, therefore,

Resolved, That we as brethren and lovers of light and truth, by the assistance of God's grace, will preach, pray, and talk against this great evil amongst the people and especially among us as the church of God. And further,

Resolved, That we withhold our support from all ministers that we know to be members of said oath-bound secret societies.

Elder C. Clem, of Milford, Kosciusko county, Ind., was appointed Corresponding Secretary, and Elder John Martin, general evangelist. After which the convention adjourned to meet on Saturday, the 6th of May, A. D. 1876, at 9 o'clock A. M., at Yellow Lake Bethel, Kosciusko county, Ind.

Elder J. S. Shock, Pres.
E. B. Bell, Sec'y.

From Steuben Co, N. Y.

Woodhull, N. Y.

Dear Cynosure:—I have been a resident here for twenty-seven years, and have been a close observer of the workings of the different secret orders. Like mushrooms they seem to come up in the night and disappear in the light of day. J. L. Barlow's lectures did a great deal of good here; the Masonic lodge has been all broken up since they were given. The following orders have disbanded in this town: the Odd-fellows, the Sons of Temperance, the Know-Nothings, Grand Army of the Republic, Good Templars, F. and A. Masons. Some think the Masons will organize again, but I think they have about played out here. When I go to town I always carry Anti-masonic papers and books and read them a good lesson from the Cynosure, especially Ronayne's exposure. I shall do what I can for the Cynosure.

I attended the Groton Association opposed to secret societies at their first quarterly at McLean, Jan. 18th. The opening address was searching, able and well digested; it showed talent and skill and made an impression on the enemy's works. The Masons and Odd-fellows and Good Templars and their rituals and lodge religion were punctured till every pore bled. The speaker's address roused the ire of one ex-grand-worthy-chief, but his talk all amounted to nothing; he did not answer an argument in discussion.

Philo Millard.

Correspondence.

Father Preston on the New Tract, "Shall Freemasons be admitted to Christian Fellowship."

LOCKPORT, Ill., Feb. 19.

A word to our active friends and earnest workers:

FRIENDS:—I now write to make some suggestions which may tend to facilitate the circulation of this and other tracts among the membership of our Christian churches.

When I received the Cynosure of Jan. 27th, and read the article and understood it was to be published in tract form, I ordered 200, which I received on Monday following, and that week sent out one through the mail to every member of our Congregational church, including the pastor, and arranged with one of the best men in the Methodist and Baptist churches, each to do the same thing by their churches. I furnished them the tracts and the work is done. I met our county Bible Agent, made the proposition to him, asked him if he would do the same by the members of his church, and he promptly said "I will." I saw a good little note in the Cynosure from a young lady in an adjacent city, from which I inferred she had a heart to the work. I had never seen or heard of her before; but sat down and wrote her of my plan, sent her a copy of the tract and asked her if by herself and friends she would undertake to supply her church and some others in the city, individually, with these tracts. She promptly replied, approving the plan and thanking me for giving her the opportunity, and saying I might send her six hundred of the tracts. These arrangements were completed and the tracts sent forward to her last Saturday, the 12th inst., and I presume before this article reaches you these six hundred tracts will be in the hands of as many professing Christians and probably have been read by twelve hundred others, and that, too, in a city where our cause is very far from being popular. I have written to personal friends in Michigan, New York, and shall write to others on this subject and hope to stimulate some to take hold and help.

And now, friends, I send you this sketch through the Cynosure; not particularly to tell you what I have done in the last two weeks, but to show how easily a little can be done. I have distributed and procured the distribution of near a thousand of these tracts to as many church members individually, and have thrown them directly in the way of more than two thousand others, and all that this has cost me is not more than one day's work and one or two dollars in money. This however, would not cover the cost of all the tracts.

I write to ask our friends to procure these tracts and distribute to the members of our churches, individually; every one in your own way of course, but never overlooking the ministers or Masonic members. I think the best way is through the mail, for most people think more of a paper sent them by mail than if handed to them personally. It will cost something but not much. The tracts are worth 50cts per 1000 pages, and if sent through the mail the postage will be one cent each and envelopes probably twenty-five cents per 100. How can we accomplish more at so little cost? If Freemasonry is an evil of the magnitude it is represented to be, and which we know it to be, we are in duty bound to do what we can to remedy the evil, and it is but a very poor reform for which we can afford to make no sacrifices; and while we are negotiating with friends for the circulation of these tracts let us always keep in mind the Carpenter Fund. I understand there is still to be raised some $1,500 to $2,000, and the first of April is near, and if we fail to raise the $10,000, it will be "All fool's day" to us with a vengeance. If we have a rich friend let us ask him to put in $100, $200, or $500.

Friends, this cause is worthy of our best efforts and energies of head and heart and hands. I well know it is unpopular and that those who make themselves conspicuous in it will be liable in a greater or less degree to persecution. "I know the road, I've trod it through," and while I have no taste or desire for martyrdom, I have long since made up my mind to do what I can to oppose and expose the principles and practice of the Masonic fraternity, and in this way to fulfil my mission and "do my duty as I understand it," regardless of expediency or consequences.

Now friends, "you that have a mind to work," will you take hold and help this work forward? or if you have a better way pursue that. But let us do our best endeavors in some way to spread the knowledge of the truth in relation to this dark system of error and wrong to all the people throughout the whole land. ISAAC PRESTON.

Spiritualism and Theism.

A course of valuable lectures are being given to the students of "Chicago Theol. Sem.," by Rev. W. W. Patton, D. D. The subject for the course is: Modern Skepticism. His last lecture was on Spiritualism, and he did not hesitate to declare its anti-Christian character. That it opened the gate to all the sorcery, witch-craft and moral darkness of the middle ages.

But, we are sorry to say that in his preceding lecture on Theism, when he had such an admirable chance to speak of the theism of the lodge and of its blighting influence on Christianity, not a word was uttered!

This omission seemed strange in view of the fact that the highest Masonic authority claims the religion of Masonry to be "pure theism." (Mackey Lex. art. Religion, p. 402.) And, also its history in this country shows it to be a fruitful source of scepticism.

The silence may have been in deference to a few of the students who defend Masonry.

Have you ever published the following testimony of that distingnished man the Rev. Nathaniel Emmons, D. D.? His testimony is especially appropriate this centennial year, he was a settled pastor in Franklin, Mass., in 1776. His testimony was given previous to the Morgan tragedy. His biographer says: "When Freemasonry was in all its glory, professors of religion entering its lodges, ministers of the Gospel sanctioning its claims and the multitude everywhere captivated with its gaudy appearance and pompous titles, he openly denounced the institution as dangerous to the country, as unfriendly to religion, and as an imposition upon the world." STUDENT.

The Walls of Zion Broken down—The unclean in her Holy Places.

The Cynosure and N. Y. Witness are only next to the Bible in my humble estimation. I read them and carefully distribute them where I hope they will do good. I hope to do more for them in the future than I have the past year; I shall do what I can to sustain such men and papers that dare to grapple with practical iniquity among us. I have tried to labor faithfully for a pure Christianity for the past thirty-five years. We came here twenty-two years ago, from churches steeped in slavery, Masonry, and intemperance, and organized the 1st Congregational Church here with prohibitory rules, barring out those three special popular sins. God's blessing attended us for ten to twelve years. The war took most of our thorough members to that division of service. I was spared to return alive to find our church "full of those prohibited sins." O the dark subtle, cunning devices of this foulest enemy of truth and purity! For the last eleven years I could do but little except pray daily and importunately, that God will yet save this church to our thorough principles, not yet legally rescinded, but the heavens are brass and the earth iron; darkness and iniquity prevail. O for Daniel's faith and fortitude to secure Divine aid to combat and destroy this giant sin of secretism that at this hour is fostering more corruption and crime than anything else. All please help me pray with incessant importunate pleading that God will yet save this church to our thorough principles. O for that divine power to combat sin and prevail in prayer only, and solely for God's glory and the salvation from sin and to holiness!

Truly yours for consecration to truth and purity. A. O. HARVELL.

A Few Practical Thoughts.

BERRIEN CENTRE, Mich., Feb. 15, '76.

MR. EDITOR:—My subscription to the Christian Cynosure expires during the present month. You request me to renew my subscription and to solicit others to subscribe. I can comply with your request with cheerfulness, and should have done so without solicitation. I feel that I owe it to myself and to my God to do all that I can (consistently) to sustain this important reform. I have done very little in the past and cannot do much now, if compared with the acts of charity and unceasing labor that others have put forth for the advancement of this cause. But if we sincerely discharge every duty that we owe to God to the best of our knowledge and ability, and seek for a higher education in the moral obligations that are binding upon us, we may at least hope to take some humble part in this great work of reformation. If we compare our acts of charity, and all that we have ever done to resist wickedness and make the world better, with the poor widow's mite we will perhaps find that we have all been unprofitable servants. But we should be more diligent in the future than we have in the past; in all things showing ourselves patterns of good works. We should not only contribute of our means to the various institutions that God has ordained, but we should be willing instruments in his hands to perform all the labor that he requires of us in order to promote his kingdom, and break down the powers of sin and Satan. We have a mighty foe to contend with in this world, he has misled thousands by his artful fascinations, and the lodge of the numerous secret orders (under the semblance of charity and religion) is his tower of strength. His deluded subjects are faithful servants; there is no night too dark, or no storm too violent to deter them from meeting in secret conclave. If the votaries of unrighteousness are so active in their master's service, we also should be zealous and combine all our forces, both great and small, to vanquish this enemy of God and man. But holiness should be written on our banners, and we must go out to meet this enemy in the name of the Lord, as David met the uncircumcised Philistine; or we cannot hope to triumph over the giants of sin that daily defy the armies of the living God.

J. B. CRALL.

OUR MAIL.

Frederick Huber, Newcomer, Ind., writes:

"I have read your paper for nearly three years, though it has not been sent in my name that long. I have given away nearly every number, also many books and tracts. Have sold eighteen books this week, but have made no friends by it. I will do the best I can for the cause."

Richard Lanning, Cuba, N. Y., writes:

"Please send a man to lecture through here, for I think I might then get a number of subscribers."

Cannot one of our New York lecturers visit this locality?

Thos. B. Galloway, Pittsburgh, Ind., writes:

"I am pleased with the Christian sentiments of the Cynosure, and wish it Godspeed, and that by the blessing of God it may be the means of breaking down the strongholds of the devil's kingdom, which was begun in the garden of Eden when Adam and Eve hid themselves. Then secretism begun and has manifested the same violation of God's law ever since, and manifests the same consciousness of guilt. We have them in many of our churches, I mean secretists, Masons, grangers, Odd-fellows, Red Templars (sometimes mis-called good). A French writer in one of his poems, comparing Great Britain with America, says of Britain, 'The devil take him who first called her 'the great,' If she was, she is vastly diminished of late.' So I think if there ever was any good in these societies it has vastly diminished of late. I heard a Methodist minister about two months ago, in concluding his sermon, say there was good in all, or most all of these societies, yet there was nothing like the Gospel of Christ. About the next week I saw in one of our county papers his name announced as a member of a Masonic lodge."

Barlow Barto, Alton, Mich., writes:

"I go for morality and reform both in church and state. It makes my blood run cold to see where we, as a nation, are drifting. I was talking with a man who calls himself a preacher of the Gospel. He said he did not know much of Masonry, neither did he want to. Doubted whether there ever was such a man as Morgan; the thing was got up for political purposes, did not believe in investigation. Said if I should go bya house and think there was something going wrong inside, and should take up a stone and throw it through the window, it might do a good deal of harm, and how would it look? (You can see the the point.) Yet he believes all they print. I do not want to hear such a man preach, neither will I unless he can run the fastest. Do you blame me?"

No, we do not blame you. We think one would be more highly edified by reading St. Paul's epistles at home.

J. J. Hayden, Colo, Ia., writes:

"The people here are very much intimidated by the cable-towed. I am quite alone in openly opposing this modern Diana, but I will prosecute the deceiver so long as I live and have the ability. I feel my accountability and see no way of escape if I quail before the anti Christ monster, and the minister of Christ who knows the deceptive nature of Freemasonry and its secret workings against the church and fails to blow the trumpet and warn the people and reprove and rebuke with all long-suffering and doctrine, and flatters himself that Christ will say to him, "Well done, good and faithful servant," will he not be mistaken? Christ will not lie to screen the guilty minister in that trying hour. Let me say, Come forward, my ministerial brethren, 'fear them not who are able to kill the body but are not able to kill the soul, but rather fear him who is able to destroy both soul and body in hell.' We take six papers and the fearless Cynosure stands at the head of the list. God give it success until the battle is won."

D. B. Stump, Rising Sun, O., writes:

"I felt quite lost and lonesome for the want of the Cynosure again in my family and will not do without it as long as I can raise the money to pay for it. It is one of the best papers in a family and all should read it."

Lewis Baldwin, Bowens Mill's, Mich., writes:

"Cannot you find some remedy for the weakness manifested by some Anti-masons? I notice in nearly every Cynosure some one is telling us that there is a lodge in their community which strikes terror to outsiders. For an American citizen to utter such sentiments, to me, is contemptible. The man who dares not assert his rights as an American citizen, certainly is wanting in some essential ingredients that go to make a reformer. We have a representation of the whole brood of secret societies, but we neither fear nor respect them. We are hoping to have Mr. Barlow in this vicinity sometime during this year, and bring out some of the latent Anti-masonry. We have any quantity of do-nothing Anti-masons."

The Sabbath School.

Lesson for March 12.—Absalom's Rebellion.

SCRIPTURE.—2 Sam. xv. 1-14. Commit 1-6: Primary verse, 5.

1 And it came to pass after this, that Absalom prepared him chariots and horses, and fifty men to run before him.

2 And Absalom rose up early, and stood beside the way of the gate: and it was so, that when any man that had a controversy came to the king for judgment, then Absalom called unto him, and said, Of what city art thou? And he said, Thy servant is of one of the tribes of Israel.

3 And Absalom said unto him, See, thy matters are good and right; but there is no man deputed of the king to hear thee.

4 Absalom said moreover, O that I were made judge of the land, that every man which hath any suit or cause might come unto me, and I would do him justice!

5 And it was so, that when any man came nigh to him to do him obeisance, he put forth his hand and took him and kissed him.

6 And on this manner did Absalom to all Israel that came to the king for judgment: so Absalom stole the hearts of the men of Israel.

7 And it came to pass after forty years that Absalom said unto the king, I pray thee, let me go and pay my vow, which I have vowed unto the Lord in Hebron.

8 For thy servant vowed a vow while I abode in Geshur in Syria, saying, If the Lord shall bring me again indeed to Jerusalem, then will I serve the Lord.

9 And the king said unto him, Go in peace. So he arose and went to Hebron.

10 But Absalom sent spies throughout all the tribes of Israel, saying, As soon as ye hear the sound of the trumpet, then ye shall say, Absalom reigneth in Hebron.

11 And with Absalom went two hundred men out of Jerusalem, that were called; and they went in their simplicity, and they knew not anything.

12 And Absalom sent for Ahithophel the Gilonite, David's counselor, from his city, even from Giloh, while he offered sacrifices. And the conspiracy was strong; for the people increased continually with Absalom.

13 And there came a messenger to David, saying, The hearts of the men of Israel are after Absalom.

14 And David said unto all his servants that were with him at Jerusalem, Arise, and let us flee; for we shall not else escape from Absalom: make speed to depart, lest he overtake us suddenly, and bring evil upon us, and smite the city with the edge of the sword.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"The eye that mocketh at his father, and despiseth to obey his mother, the ravens of the valley shall pluck it out, and the young eagles shall eat it."—Prov. 30: 17.

TOPIC.—A king chastened.

HOME READINGS.

M. 2 Sam. 11: 1-27. David's Grievous Sin.
T. 2 Sam. 12: 1-14. His Condemnation.
W. 2 Sam. 12: 15-23. His Child Stricken.
Th. 2 Sam. 13: 23-39. His Son Ammon Slain.
F. Ps. 41: 1-13 His Friend Deserts Him.
S. Ps. 55: 1-15. Who Worshiped with Him.
S. Ps. 3. 1-8. Beset by Many Foes.

Ill deeds, whether sown by hand of saint or sinner, are sure to produce a large crop of evil results. That which a man sows he must expect to reap. And almost always there is an increase in the return;—if he sows the wind he reaps the whirlwind. Job. 4: 8; Prov. 11: 18, 19; 22: 8; Hos. 8: 7; 10: 12; Rom. 8: 13; Gal. 6: 7–9.

Self-indulgence and idleness are sure to sap the foundations of spiritual strength. Wherefore mortify the lusts of the flesh and be diligent in the service of the Lord. Rom. 8: 12, 13; 13: 14; 1 Cor. 6: 19, 20; Gal. 5; 16–21; Col. 3: 5–10; 1 Tim. 5: 13; Heb. 6: 12.

It is hard to regain a reputation that has been lost. People do not easily again give their confidence to one who in some signal instance has proved himself unworthy, though that may be his only transgression and he be sincerely repentant of it. And the worst of it is, that in all such lapses into guilt the cause of Christ suffers reproach. Wherefore be vigilant to walk worthily before God and men. Acts. 24: 16; Rom. 15: 3; 2 Cor. 8: 21; Col. 4: 5, 6; 1 Thess. 4: 12; 1 Tim. 3: 7; 5: 14; 1 Pet. 2: 12; 4: 15.—National S. S. Teacher.

True humility is content to perform well the duties of its own place and station. But pride makes a man ambitious of preferment, while he neglects the duties that properly belong to him. Absalom desires to command when he has not yet learned to obey. He wishes to be the ruler when he is not able to perform his duty as a subject. Thus those persons often aspire to office who are the least qualified for it. "Those are good indeed that are good in their own place, not that pretend how good they will be in other people's places."—Henry.

It is remarkable to what abject and unworthy means the unprincipled aspirant after office and honor will resort in order to gain his purpose. Absalom was but a type of the unprincipled and ambitious demagogue in every age and in every country. How many aspirants after office endeavor to gain their object by traducing the character of others, especially those in office, by a fawning flattery of the people and a sinful compliance with their notions and habits however corrupt. And whilst they aspire to the highest pinnacle of honor, they will sometimes pay the most abject court, by affected affability and hypocritical condescension, to the meanest of the mob. And such is human nature, that these base arts often prove successful.

No wickedness or villainy is too great to be disguised under the mask of religion, where the profession of religion is treated with general respect. When Absalom went to Hebron to inaugurate treason, he went in the name and under the pretext of devotion and piety.

How fearful the consequences of the sinful indulgence of children—of conniving at their sins by refusing to inflict the proper chastisement. Had David duly punished Absalom's crime of murder, he would not have been punished by his crime of treason. "The rod and reproof give wisdom, but a child left to himself bringeth his mother to shame." Prov. xxix. 12. "As many deserved stripes as you spare from your children, you do but lay upon your own backs. And those whom you refuse to chastise, God will make severer scourges to chastise you." Hopkins. "Either the child's will or the parent's heart must be broken." Bridges on Prov., page 485.—Evangelical Repository.

The New Translation.

In a recent lecture on the history of the English Bible, Prof. Thos. Chase of Haverford College remarked of the new version now being made:

"The friends of our beloved English Bible need not fear that they are going to lose anything by the revision which is now making. It will be the same Bible, teaching the same precious truths in the same incomparable diction. No changes will be made except such as are required in order to be faithful to the original text—now much better established than it was in the time of King James—and to be accurate and exact in translation, avoiding, at the same time, such words and phrases as have become absolete or unintelligible to common people. Intelligible archaisms, however, and the general style and color of our present version, will be carefully preserved. It is not unlikely that the first feeling of many persons on opening the new version will be one of surprise that so little change has been made. On further reading, however, they will notice many little modifications, which will, I believe, be generally approved by good Christians and good scholars. It is impossible to say certainly how soon the task will be completed. The New Testament may, perhaps, be given to the world in about three years from this time. To complete the revision of the Old Testament may take longer.

While the modifications that are made may sometimes bring out old truths a little more clearly, or add freshness and life to old narratives, we are not to look to the new version for additional instruction in Christian doctrine or the right way of Christian living. We should not flag in our efforts for the universal distribution of the present version, in expectation of the new.

EDUCATIONAL.

—There are some forty-five students from the United States at Leipzig University, Germany, where Prof. H. A. Fischer has been studying during the winter.

—Albany has been discussing the subject of free night schools, and has decided to establish four.

—The Faculty of Dartmouth College are arranging a plan for representing the College at the Philadelphia Exhibition. Samples of students' work will be sent, and other methods of showing the workings of the College will be employed.

—A proposition to open the Harvard College Library to the students on Sunday is under discussion. This is not a safe subject to argue over long.

—Pres. Edward Magill of Swarthmore College, a fine institution near Philadelphia in charge of the Friends, was presented on his fiftieth birthday with a handsome watch, a gift of the students.

—In a notice of a donation to President and Professor Kephart of Western College, Iowa, a few weeks since, the writer was misled by a previous report that the President had a talented son connected with the institution. The horses and buggies, the important part of the item, were all right; but the Professor is an elder brother, not a son. Any how we hope the worthy President may have a son who shall merit at some time the gift of a traveling equipage equally valuable.

—The circular of the Wesleyan Methodist Seminary at Wasioja, Dodge Co., Minn., presents some interesting facts connected with this new institution. It was founded in 1858, and built of native limestone by the citizens of the town. For ten years the Free Will Baptists had control, but finally transferred it to a Board of Trustees chosen by the citizens. In 1872 it was offered to the Wesleyan State Conference which accepted the charge, is completing the sale of 100 scholarships to endow the Seminary. The school has been steadily growing and has now nearly 100 students. The course is similar to that of preparatory classes in college with an addition of higher English branches.

Address of Anti-masonic Lecturers.

General Agent and Lecturer, J. P. STODDARD, Christian Cynosure Office, Chicago.

FOR STATE LECTURERS see State Association list.

OTHERS who will lecture as opportunity offers are—

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
W. A. Wallace, Dublin, Ind.
J. B. Nessell, Ellington, N. Y.
James Hankins, Mason City, Iowa.
R. B. Taylor, Summerfield, O.
N. Callender, Green Grove, Pa.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
P. Hurless, Polo, Ill.
J. C. Graham, Viola, Mercer Co., Ill.
J. R. Baird, Templeton, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Bourbon, Ind.
Josiah McCaskey, Fancy Creek, Wis.
C. F. Hawley, Millbrook, Pa.
W. M. Givens, Center Point, Ind.
J. L. Andrus, Mt. Vision, N. Y.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
D. S. Caldwell, Nevada, Wyandot Co., O
Samuel Hale, Mallett Creek, O.
A. Mayn, Promise City, Wayne Co. Ia
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
C. F. Wiggins, Angola, Ind.
S. L. Cook, Albion, Ind.
E Ronayne, Cynosure office, Chicago.
W. M. Love, Baker, St. Clair Co., Mo

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, MRCH. 2 1876.

NATIONAL AND STATE POLITICS.

We desire special attention to the votes passed at an incidental consultation of friends of the cause called at the instance of Mr. Barlow and published in this number; and especially to the resolution to open a department for national and State politics, and soliciting contribution thereto.

It is true that political and religious duties are distinct and separate in their nature, as are their opposites, crimes and sins. Yet no man has a right to cast off his allegiance to God when he goes to the polls; any more than he has a right to disregard justice to his fellow citizens when going to prayer. Whoever has been in our un-organized mountain territories where there are no laws or officers to execute them if there were laws, has felt his fingers instinctively cling to his revolver or his knife, and before he has been there long he will welcome the invisible despotism of the vigilance committees or acquiesce in the appointment of the dictator of the gulch. And, next to the invisible things of eternity, there is nothing more sublime than the invisible net-work of laws and their administration under which our forty millions of people choose their rulers, and lie down at night and sleep in quiet and without fear under their protection; and those rulers,too, imperfect, selfish men like themselves. Every four years we witness another such drama of the Republic. And although we are in the minority and minorities do not control senates, yet they are always counted, every vote of them, in making up political calculations. Administrations, the real executors of the laws, are always a small minority compared with the masses who expect sometime to hold office, and a ballot with a principle behind it, is heeded in political battles, as bullets are when backed by powder in actual warfare. We are now entering this quadrennial conflict of ideas and principles represented by our votes. Let us prepare to give a good account of ourselves. We know, if we know anything, that Freemasons owe another allegiance than that due to their country, its courts and legislatures. Let these exotic governments be exterminated, and our government be that symbolized by the stars and stripes.

KNIGHTS TEMPLARS.

Knight is an old European word signifying a servant. It has become a religious military term; and the feats of valor attributed to and sometimes achieved by knights, were the result of an enthusiasm compounded of the spirit of war, superstition, rapine and lust. To the courage of pirates, they added the zeal of devotees and the pride of priests. These ingredients mixed in the nature of knighthood ran down the institution itself so low that Cervantes, in a single book, the "Adventures of Don Quixotte," turned it into ridicule, and virtually exterminated it from Europe; except some vestiges retained among the baubles of royalty, where a king or queen confers by knighthood the privileges of wearing a ribbon and dancing with the aristocracy.

In the midnight of the Dark Ages (1048) some Neapolitan merchants established in Jerusalem a monk-house of "Knights of St. John," who pretended to keep a hospital and protect pilgrims. Their vows were chastity and poverty; and they became licentious and rich. Their chief was called "Grand Master of the Holy Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem and Guardian of the Army of Jesus Christ." Driven from Palestine in 1191, they settled in Rhodes. Hated like Mormons, whom they resemble, they were driven from Rhodes successively to Candia, Venice, Rome, Viterbo, Nice, Villa Franca and Syracuse; and finally Charles V. gave them the Island of Malta, a little island off Sicily, where their community subsisted in a semi civilized way by reconciling the masses to despotism by superstition, and by a fleet manned by religious pirates, which in 1770 numbered fifteen or twenty vessels. Such were the Buccaneers of the Mediteranian, and, like Mormons, professing the religion of Christ, and with guady apparel and the badge of a cross, they soon totally disregarded their rule which bound each knight to take the field three times, and although they built fortifications as Mormons build temples, they yielded to Napoleon in 1798 without firing a gun. Their order became extinct, and the island has since belonged to England.

When original Blue Lodge Masonry which consisted of only three degrees had prospered till the aspirants to divide its honors and devour its funds became inconveniently numerous; as they could not change its lower degrees without shattering the system, making it one thing in one place and another in another, the leaders adopted the natural expedient of altering it by additions at the top. This makes it a system of rings within rings; and giving the control of the whole dark machine to men of large leisure, long memories, and little or no conscience. The degree of Knight Templar was one of these upper additions. But in a free country like ours, where the masses become wealthy and intelligent, they have crowded into these upper degrees for the sake of their ornaments, feathers and titles, and now the secret, sworn cabals ascend like the old Tower of Babel from this Knight's degree, (which with its fifth libation, was once intended as the Masonic finality) to the thirty-third, fifteen degrees above the Templars. So vile, contemptible and anti-Christian are the antecedents and origin of Templar Masonry. As a specimen of modern Templarism and its capacity for ribald blasphemy, take the following from the Voice of Masonry for this month:

Rev. J. W. Brown addressed them thus on last St. John's Day: "Sir Knights of Detroit Commandery, as a companion and priest of God, I exhort you in behalf of the Crucified One; be thou faithful unto death. Let us ever be found in the habiliaments of righteousness traversing the path of rectitude, virtue and true holiness, so that having discharged our duty here below, performed the pilgrimage of life, burst the bands of mortality, passed over the Jordan of death and safely landed on the shore of eternity in the presence of the angels, we may be greeted as brethren, received into the arms of the blessed Immanuel and forever be made participants of his heavenly kingdom."

This stuff, addressed by a Rev. J. W. Brown to a promiscuous crowd of Templar Masons, excels the affrontery of the whore of Babylon; and, in froth and fustian, the deluge from the mouth of the Dragon of the Apocalypse.

—Time has thieves as well as money, and Procrastination is the biggest of them. Don't let him steal the Carpenter building, too.

—Father Honeywell notes an error in his article of two weeks ago when the types made him speak, near the end, of 500,000 lodges instead of 5,000.

—Father Preston's letter on tracts and Carpenter donation is worth the cost of the Cynosure a year to every earnest worker in the cause.

—The convention of elders and members of the church of God (Winebrennarians) in Lake Bethel, Indiana, reported in the Reform News, was a meeting of more than usual note, as presenting the protest of this denomination against the abuses of secretism both within and without its pale.

—Landis of Vineland, N. J., who was lately tried for the murder of Carruth,for abuse in the paper of which he was he was editor, was acquitted on the on the ground of insanity. Immediately another jury sits and he is decided to be sane and goes free. A correspondent in Vineland says of the result "thus Masonry and money have triumphed."

—Chief Justice White of Utah, lately addressed the grand jury of the U. S. court of the Territory in the following terms which give promise of some relief from the abominable system of polygamy and disgrace to national history: "We had better look it squarely in the face, distasteful as it may be to some, and govern ourselves by right reason, and manly discretion in dealing with it. Polygamy must be suppressed in this territory. Mormonism may survive it, and, relieved from it, would stand unshackled and free, as every other creed or mode of religious worship, shielded and protected by the Constitution of our common country; but if Mormonism cannot separate itself from polygamy it will be to it the bridal of death."

Political Consultation.

Elder Barlow and his assistant, Bro. Remington are seeking not alone to convince the understandings of the good people of Michigan on secretism, but wish to put them in the way of proving their loyalty to truth by the ballot. They, therefore, sought the counsel of several friends of the reform in Chicago and vicinity who met informally in the Cynosure office on Monday, the 21st ult. Elder A. D. Freeman was called to preside, and H. L. Kellogg acted as secretary. Prayer was offered by Elder Barlow.

The advisory action taken shows the result of the consultation. It was voted "that in the judgment of the friends present, it is desirable that political meetings be held in the several States, where in the judgment of friends they can be successful, with special reference to the fall elections; and that these State political gatherings be requested to send forward their views to the National Political Convention in Chicago next June; and we further suggest that all delegates attending that convention should receive special instructions from their constituents on political action, both Federal and State." It was also voted to request the publishers of the Cynosure to open a political department especially devoted to the American party, and invite contributions. The editor of the Cynosure was also requested to prepare an editorial on the subject at this time.

The presentation of the reform at the Centennial Exposition was another topic discussed, and advisory action taken recommending correspondence with the managers at Philadelphia on the subject, and that measures be taken to secure an exemplification of Freemasonry by Mr. Ronayne, in connection with the Exposition.

Indiana appears, from a notice in the new department, to be timely moving for political action. Probably Ohio, Iowa and Illinois will complete their State tickets before July. The notice also of the Political tract will suggest a very ready method of increasing the public interest in the movement.

Petition to the Methodist Episcopal General Conference.

This body meets in Baltimore in May. Four years ago a similar petition to the subjoined was circulated and its presentation in Conference had a positive and wholesome effect. Let every friend of the reform interest himself in circulating this petition among his neighbors of this denomination. The petition was drawn up by Rev. D. Yant, Bolivar,O., of which neatly printed headings may be had on application:

TO THE GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, GREETING:

Dear brethren and fathers:—The petition of the undersigned members of the M. E. church at————, respectfully represent that whereas a large number of the ministers and lay members of said church are members of Freemason's lodges and other similar secret, oath-bound organizations, having a religious form of worship and ritual, not recognizing Christ as head of the church,and Saviour of men; and

Whereas, We hold all such relations to be unscriptural, contrary to the discipline of the church, and directly tending to destroy the fellowship and harmony there should be among the members of the body of Crhist; and

Whereas, These secret orders are permitted to officiate and substitute their forms and ritual at the laying of corner stones, and the burial of the dead, instead of the forms prescribed in the discipline of the church:

We therefore respectfully ask that the General Conference will adopt rules and regulations prohibiting the use of all such forms and ceremonies above referred to.

And we further ask that the ministry and membership of the church may be prohibited from holding fraternal relations with all secret, oath-bound organizations.

An Open Letter from the Secretary of the Connecticut Association.

WINDSOR, Ct., Feb. 15, 1876.

Mr. J. H. H. Woodward:

DEAR SIR:—Your prospectus for a new Anti-masonic newspaper was received and should have been acknowledged at once but passed from my mind. Your prospectus is well worded and inspiring, except ignoring the making a religious sheet of it, for therein I think you greatly err. If any reform ever needed the help and invocation of the Almighty, this Anti-masonic reform does.

I very strongly question the practicability of attempting to start another paper, while there are so many in the same field now which are not self-sustaining. You quote in your letter the very good maxim that in "Union there is strength;" but how this dividing up of forces into weak parties is carrying out that maxim I fail to see. It seems to me if any one has one or two thousand dollars to sink in any such enterprize as this, he could use his money for the cause to much greater advantage in the channels already open.

I have hereby written frankly and decidedly in the matter as it is presented to my mind. And acting therefore honestly with my convictions, I cannot speed you in your enterprize. Yours, standing firmly for the right,

D. J. ELLSWORTH.

Sunday-school teachers who are troubled to know what to do on Quarterly Review day should send and get The National Sunday School Teacher for March. That has in it a Review Exercise a great deal more profitable and just as interesting as the very best of "Concert Exercises." Review day will come to be a pleasure to those who use such an exercise. Beside this and its capital lessons, it has a contribution from Rev. Howard Crosby, LL. D., on "The Covenant-Making God," and others entitled "Concerning Barnacles," David's Administration" and "The Drunkard Mission School Boy." Our readers who are interested in the Bible study and Sunday-school work are much indebted to this able Sunday-school journal for notes and hints on the weekly lessons. The little we copy from it shows how valuable in its work the Teacher must be. —Adams, Blackmer & Lyon Pub. Co. Chicago.

—The Galaxy for March has articles of sterling merit in Justin McCarthy's sketch of Disraeli, the English Prime Minister, and in some views on the church and state question by E. G. Holland. Other articles of value are "War Memoirs," "Aztec Society," "Tahiti," "Hard times and their Remedy," "Souvenirs of a man of Letters," and scientific miscellany.—Scribner & Co. New York.

Religious Intelligence.

—The Legislature of Rhode Island is reported to have passed an act for the taxation of churches, and the subject is under discussion in Wisconsin.

—Rev. A. J. Bailey, of the class of '68, Wheaton, has been laboring for a year past with the Congregational church at Hennepin, Ill. This winter an extensive revival has visited the church, and many are being brought into the kingdom.

—The residence of Rev. James M. Henderson, pastor of the United Presbyterian church, Oakdale, Ill., waa struck by lightning lately, but no one was hurt.

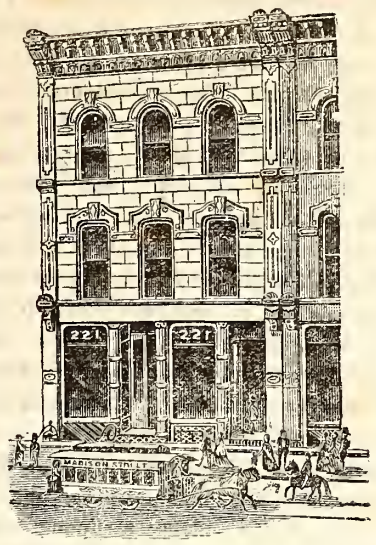
—The U. P. church of North Argyle, Pa , has been experiencing a gracious revival, and forty-one are added to the church.

—Rev. Dr. Mitchell. of the First Presbyterian church in Chicago, has reduced his own salary to the extent of $1,000.

—A most remarkable work of grace has been in progress in Fisk University, Nashville, Tenn,, ever since the week of prayer. Up to the present time thirty-eight of the students have made a profession of their faith.

—The American Committee of the Presbyterian Alliance, at the suggestion of the Edinburgh meeting, voted to request a postponement of the meeting of the Alliance from July 4th, 1876 to some time in 1877. This is done in view of the Centennial celebration.

—Revival meetings still continue in Lancaster, Pa., where the evangelist Hammond lately held meetings. Fifty-four persons were added to the Presbyterian church in one day.



—Florence McCarthy, whose religious vagaries as pastor caused so much trouble in the Union Park Baptist church in this city two years ago, has finally come out fairly and abandoned the ministry.

—A new religious movement is reported among some of the non-Aryan tribes of India, under the leadership of one Soorjee. He preaches worship of one God, peace, and good-will. His followers take an oath to abstain from all crimes and offences, spirituous liquors, and causing death to any living thing. They bind themselves to live by the products of the soil, and to bathe before eating.

—As to the growing hopefulness of Christian work among the Chinese on the Pacific coast, the Rev. J. K. McLean. of Oakland, declares, in the National Sunday-School Teacher, that "more conversions have taken place in the last ten months than all the years before since the Chinese came to America."

—During the last thirty years, 24,600 Sunday-schools have been organized, aided, and visited in the valley of the Mississippi, by the agents of the American Sunday-School Union.

—Fifty thousand dollars have been contributed ($25,000 by one man) for the establishment of a mission in Mtesa's kingdom, lately brought to light by Henry Stanley. And now another gentleman, in the north of England, offers the London Missionary Society $25,000 to start a mission on Lake Tanyanyka, beginning at Ujijii, where Stanley met with Livingston. Lieutenant Cameron, who has traversed twelve hundred miles of territory previously unknown to Europeans, reports that he found a large part of it "magnificent and healthy," and "of unspeakable richness." There is, he says, coal, gold, copper, iron, and silver in abundance.

THE CARPENTER DONATION.

The above is a front view of the fine stone-front building on Madison street, Chicago, which Mr. Carpenter proposes to give the National Christian Association for head-quarters and publishing house. The terms of the donation are that $30,000 shall be raised by Apr. 1, 1878, to carry on the work of the Association. Send contributions to Treasurer of the N. C. A.

The National Christian Association

PRESIDENT—Philo Carpenter.

DIRECTORS.—Philo Carpenter, J. Blanchard, Archibald Wait, I. A. Hart, C. R. Hagerty, E. A. Cook, O. F. Lumry, C. A. Blanchard, H. L. Kellogg, I. R. B. Arnold, E. S. Cook.

COR. SECRETARY.—C. A. Blanchard.

TREASURER.—H. L. Kellogg.

GENERAL AGENT AND LECTURER—J. P. Stoddard. Address last three at 13 Wabash Ave. Chicago.

The object of this Association is:—

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved; to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform to aid the Association in either of these ways: (1) to establish a Publishing House and Head-quarters in Chicago; (2) to carry on the general work; (3) to maintain the State agents. All donations, (drafts or P. O. orders) should be sent to the Treasurer; general correspondence, etc., direct to the Corresponding Secretary.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—I give and bequeath to the National Christian Association, incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois, the sum of——dollars for the purposes of said Association, and for which the receipt of its Treasurer for the time being shall be a sufficient discharge.

Corporate Members of the National Christian Association.

Philo Carpenter,	J. Blanchard,
A. Wait,	O. F. Lumry,
J. G. Terrill,	C. R. Hagerty,
E. A. Cook,	H. L Kellogg,
E. S. Cook,	J. P. Stoddard,
Jesse B. Blank,	I. A. Hart,
C. A. Blanchard,	J. W. Bain,
Wm. Leuty,	J. A. Bingham,
Isaac Preston,	I. R. B. Arnold,
B. F. Roberts,	A. M. Milligan,
A. D. Freeman,	D. R. Kerr,
J. B. Walker,	Moses Pettengill,
Milton Wright,	L. N. Stratton,
J. R. Wright,	Aaron Floyd,
M. R. Britton,	Abel E. Carpenter,
D. Kirkpatrick,	D. W. Lyons,
L. Taylor,	J. M. Wallace,
J. E. Roy,	G. B. Hubbard,
Peter Rich,	J. A. Conant,
*John Hubbard,	J. W. Wood,
Sylvanus Town,	Alex. Small,
Nathan Callender,	O. E. Burch,
Woodruff Post,	Geo. E. Sovereign.

*Deceased.

THE CARPENTER BUILDING fund has received a number of additions within two weeks; though most of them small they are from warm hearts and aggregate nearly $500, with what the General Agent reports. There are yet a number of friends to hear from who have promised to help. Don't be afraid of the small sums. A thousand $1.00 subscriptions would be better than ten of $100 each, for they would show a wider interest and more prayer for the reform.

State Auxiliary Associations.

The following list will be found of great convenience. Let every friend of the reform put himself in communication with the proper officers, sending contributions, suggestions,—anything to push on the work.

CONNECTICUT.
President, J. A. Conant, Willimantic.
Secretary, D. J. Ellsworth, Windsor.
Treasurer, C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.
President, J. Dickson, Decatur.
Secretary, J. H. Snyder, Westfield.
Treasurer, H. L. Kellogg, 13 Wabash Ave. Chicago.
Lecturer, H. H. Hinman, Wheaton.

INDIANA.
President, Halleck Floyd, Dublin.
Cor. Sec'y J. T. Kiggins, Portland.
Rec. Sec'y, Wm. Small, Xenia.
Treasurer, Peter Rich, Westfield.
Lecturer,. J. T. Kiggins, Portland.

IOWA.
President, M. S. Drury, Castalia.
Cor. Sec'y, Louis Bookwalter, Western College.
Rec. Sec'y, C. Compton, Steamboat Rock.
Treasurer, D. W. Lyons, Mason City.
Lecturer, James Hankins, Mason City.

KANSAS.
President, Rev. Mr. Bell.
Secretary, J. Dodds, Winchester.
Treasurer, S Sexton, Topeka.

MICHIGAN.
President, C. Quick, Weston.
Secretary, C. B. Remington, Fenton.
Treasurer, J. H. Wilcox, Howell.
Lecturer, J. L. Barlow, Fenton.
Agent, C. B. Remington, Fenton.

MISSOURI.
President, N. E. Gardner, Avalon.
Cor. Sec'y, A. D. Thomas, Arbela.
Rec. Sec'y, E. W. Carpenter.
Treasurer, Wm. Beauchamp, Avalon.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.
President, J. F. Brown, Bow Lake.
Secretary, S. C. Kimball, Center Strafford.
Treasurer, Kimball Cole, Lake Village.
Lecturer, S. C. Kimball, Center Strafford.

NEW YORK.
President, L. N. Stratton, Syracuse.
Secretary, W. A. Sellew, Rochester.
Treasurer, M. Merrick, Syracuse.
Lecturers—L. N. Stratton, Syracuse; D. P. Rathbun, Lisbon Center; Woodruff Post, Rochester; A. F. Curry, Almond.

OHIO.
President, H. H. George, W. Geneva.
Secretary, Wm. Dillon, Dayton.
Treasurer, J. G. Mattoon, West Unity.
Lecturer, Wm. Dillon, Dayton.

PENNSYLVANIA.
President, A. L. Post, Montrose.
Cor. Sec'y, N. Callender, Green Grove.
Rec. Sec'y, J. W. Raynor, Uniondale.
Treasurer, W. B. Bertels, Wilksbarre.
Lecturer, J. W. Raynor, Uniondale.

WISCONSIN.
President, J. W. Wood, Baraboo.
Secretary, U. D. Lathrop, Millard.
Treasurer; Joshua Parish, Delavan.

Notice to Indiana.

WESTFIELD, Hamilton Co.
2d month, 23, 1876

The Treasurer of the Indiana Anti-secret Association wishes to inform those that are behind on pledges for this and also for last year, that the money is much needed for carrying on the work of our reform. Send as soon as possible to the Treasurer,

PETER RICH.

Notice to Illinois.

I wish to visit every town and village in Northern and Central Illinois during the months of April and May and publicly work the Masonic degrees for two or three evenings in each place as may be agreed upon. Being an old member of the Grand Lodge of Illinois I am desirous of striking as heavy a blow possible here in my own State. Will the Anti-masonic friends in each locality see to it at once that arrangements are made to carry this programme into effect and communicate directly with this office. Papers friendly to the cause will confer a favor by giving this notice extended publicity.

E. RONAYNE, Past Master Keystone Lodge, No. 639, Chicago.

The Home Circle.

March.

March! March! March! They are coming
In troops to the tune of the wind;
Red-headed woodpeckers are drumming,
Gold-crested thrushes behind;
Sparrows in brown jackets hopping
Past every gateway door;
Finches with crimson caps stopping,
Just where they stopped years before.

March! March! March! They are slipping
Into their places at last—
Little white lily-buds, dripping
Under the showers that fall fast;
Buttercups, violets, roses,
Snowdrop and bluebell, and pink,—
Throng upon throng of sweet posies,
Bending the dewdrops to drink.

March! March! March! They will hurry
Forth at the wild bugle sound—
Blossoms and birds in a flurry,
Fluttering all over the ground.
Hang out your flags, birch and willows!
Shake out your red tassels, larch!
Grass-blades, up from your earth-pillows!
Hear who is calling you—March!

—Lucy Larcom.

Pic-nic Religion.—The Church and the World.

"While men slept the enemy came and sowed tares among the wheat and went his way." Matt. xiii. 25.

"The church and world amalgamate,
The union worse than with the State,
Though motives are the same;
The love of pleasure and of gold,
On some professors have such hold,
They oft forget their name."

Is money to be raised for church debts, church building or repairing? A Sabbath-school or a missionary enterprise? For the increase of the minister's salary? To relieve the poor or for any benevolent operation? What now? How is this money to be forthcoming? In a sober, rational Gospel way? Nay, a feast is prepared; a soiree introduced, a fancy fair, a picnic, a concert or exhibition of some kind, a donation, tea or strawberry party, a sleigh-ride, oyster supper, a tin or gold wedding, something to inflame the passions, excite and enlarge the appetite, produce a little fun or vulgar merriment. The entire community is put in requisition for weeks. The excitement is intense, outbursting on the right and on the left. To open the purse-strings worldly policy is resorted to, foolish talking and jesting, feasting and frolicing! These festivals are the rage and fever of the day, the world is on fire with them! Where is there a church or society, white or colored, popish or Protestant, that does not resort to these unholy excitements, these stratagems of Satan to raise funds for some object of benevolence? It is money! Money we want, money we will have, Gospel or no Gospel, heaven or no heaven. Gospel and soul-saving are laid aside. "Away with serious or sober looks, away with them. On for a jolly time of feasting!" "On with the dance, let joy be unconfined." "Know ye not, friends, the friendship of the world is enmity with God?" "Whatsoever is not of faith is sin."

"Will ye play, then, will ye dally
With your music and your wine?
Up! it is Jehovah's rally!
God's own arm hath need of thine!"

Conviviality is the ultimatum, the first and the last. "Let us have a jolly time, eat, drink, and be merry, for to-morrow we die." The excitement for weeks is more or less dissipating, swallowing up every thought of the soul's welfare. Children and youth are on fire for a spree—and what else are very many of these festivals and pic-nic excursions but sprees or frolics?

All false religions seek to attract interest by amusements and animal gratifications. The worshipers of the golden calf sat down to eat and drink the oblations to their new god, and then rose up to play. And a bait of sensuality in some form has always been the lure to heathen worship. Popery has always followed in the same line. Even its Sabbath worship connects a dance with the mass. And throughout the whole structure of that "mystery of iniquity," the sensual and the comic are interwoven with the pomps and ritual of worship. And one of the most common methods by which decay advances upon sound churches is by pleas of amusements to give an attractive and hilarious character to religion—which usually are so many pleas for conformity to the world. We are not unaware of the value of a cheerful religion. We respond to the reasonableness of the command to "rejoice evermore." And yet we read that the "joy of the Lord is your strength," and that our rejoicing must be in God to make it a religious joy. It is not a religious joy, where professedly religious men indulge in gratifications that are worldly, sensual, and frivolous.

"There is a path that leads to God;
All others go astray."

—D. F. Newton, author of "Shining Light.

Saul.—Remarks in the Chicago Noon Prayer-meeting.

When the Philistines saw Saul dead on Mt. Gilboa they doubtless said, This shows how much trust in Israel's God amounts to. Tell it in the temples of our gods. Israel is defeated. Her king and his sons are slain. Their Lord was not able to defend them in day of battle. But the faithful in Israel knew the truth. God had departed from Saul, and he was left to the consolation and aid that could be obtained through the witch of Endor.—MITCHELL.

Saul suffered a fearful and dishonored death. He had no one to blame for it but himself. David had a glorious and peaceful death, yet none could sing more sincerely than he felt, "O to grace how great a debtor."—MONTGOMERY.

I rather like Saul. He was a noble appearing man. He was a true and patriotic Israelite; valiant and reliable in war, even dying bravely on the battle-field. The point of difficulty with him which caused his failure in life was that he had not learned that "To obey is better than sacrifice." How many like him, to day, say it matters not what I do if my heart is right. And alas, like him they will reap the bitter fruit of a disobedient life.—A STRANGER.

A young lady, a banker's daughter, who had been a leader in worldly amusements, recently, during a special religious interest, felt that she had given up all to Christ, and was filled with an unspeakable peace. A few days after, her former love for dancing returned and she longed to attend a ball. She also got angry with her sister; her peace fled and she became distressed, fearing that she had not experienced a change of heart. A friend to whom she wrote in her trouble, replied, "You have doubtless heard the call, Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." But I fear you have stopped there and not learned the words which immediately follow, 'Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart and ye shall find rest to your souls.' Commence to go about doing good. Go to those associates whom you led into frivolity and sin and point them to Christ, and you will experience the fulfilment of the promise "Lo I am with you always."

She heeded the suggestions and is now rejoicing in the Lord and laboring for him.

One Hundred Years Ago.

"What a contrast between now and, say, only a hundred years ago!" Certainly there is a very great contrast. England was not a manufacturing country a hundred years ago. We imported nearly everything except corn, wool, and flax. We imported the greater part of our iron from Spain, Sweden, Germany, and Russia. We imported our pottery from Holland, our hats from Flanders, our silk from France, our cloth and carpets from Belgium. Our cotton manufacturers, our woolen and flax manufacturers, our machine manufacturers, could scarcely be said to exist. Coal could scarcely be had, for the coal-pits could not be kept clear of water.

A hundred years ago we could not build a steam engine; we could scarcely build a bridge. Look at the churches built a hundred years ago, and behold the condition of our architecture. A hundred years ago we had fallen to almost the lowest condition as a nation. We had not a harbor; we had not a dock. The most extensive system of robbery prevailed on the river Thames. The roads, such as they were, swarmed with highwaymen; and blackmail was levied by the Highlanders upon the Lowland farmers down to the middle of last century.

A hundred years ago our ships were rotten; they were manned by prisoners taken from the hulks, or by working men pressed in the streets in open day. When James Watt was learning his trade of an instrument-maker in London a hundred years ago, he durst scarcely walk abroad lest he should be seized and sent to India or the American plantations. Less than a hundred years ago the colliers and salters of Scotland were slaves. It is not forty years since women and children worked in coal-pits. Surely we are not to go down upon our knees and pray for a restoration of the horrible things that existed a hundred years ago.

A hundred years ago Ireland was treated like a slave country, and hangings and shootings of rebels were frequent. The fleet of the Nore mutinied, and the mutiny was put down by bloodshed and executions. Towns and cities swarmed with ruffians, and brutal sports and brutal language existed to a frightful degree. Criminals were hung, five or six together, at Tyburn. Gibbets existed at all the cross roads throughout the country. The people were grossly ignorant, and altogether neglected. Skepticism and irreligion prevailed, until Wesley and Whitfield sprung up to protest against formalism and atheism. They were pelted with rotten eggs, sticks, and stones. A Methodist preacher was whipped out of Gloucester.

A hundred years ago literature was at a very low ebb. The press was in a miserable state. William Whitehead was poet laureate! Who knows of him now? Gibbon had not written his "Decline and Fall." Junius was the popular writer; political corruption was sacrificed in his letters. The upper classes were coarse, drunken, and ill-mannered. Bribery and corruption on the grossest scale were the principal means for getting into Parliament. Mr. Dowdeswell, M. P. for Worcestershire, said to the Commons, "You have turned out a member for impiety and obscenity. What half dozen members of this House ever met over a convivial bottle, that their discourse is entirely free from obscenity, impiety, or abuse of government?"

Though drunkenness is bad enough now, it was infinitely worse a hundred years ago. The publicans' sign-boards announced, "You may here get drunk for a penny, dead-drunk for twopence, and have clean straw for nothing." Drunkenness was considered a manly vice. To drink deep was the fashion of the day. Six-bottle men were common. Even drunken clergymen were not unknown.

What were the popular amusements of the people a hundred years ago? They consisted principally of man-fighting, dog-fighting, cock-fighting, bull-baiting, badger-drawing, the pillory, public whipping, and public executions. Mr. Wyndham vindicated the ruffianism of the ring in his place in Parliament and held it up as a school in which Englishmen learned pluck and "the manly art of self-defence." Bull-baiting was perhaps more brutal than prize-fighting, though Wyndham defended it as "calculated to stimulate the noble courage of Englishmen." The bull was secured to a stake in the market-place or the bull ring (the name still survives in many towns), and there the animal was baited by the rabble dogs of the neighborhood. One can scarcely imagine the savageness of the sport—the animal mutilation, the imprecations of ruffians worse than brutes, the ferociousness and drunkenness, the blasphemy and unspeakable horrors of the exhibition. The public mind of this day absolutely revolts at such brutality. Yet, less than a hundred years ago—on the 24th of May, 1802—a bill for the abolition of bull-baiting was lost in the House of Commons by sixty-four to fifty-one—Mr. Wyndham contending that horse-racing and hunting were more cruel than bull-baiting or prize-fighting!

The pillory was one of our time-honored institutions fifty years ago, and men and women used to be placed there for offences such as a wise legislature would have endeavored to conceal from public consideration. The horrid scenes which then took place, when men, women and children collected in crowds to pelt the offenders with missels, were so disgusting that they cannot be described. Not more seemly were the public whippings then administered to women in common with the coarsest male offenders. The public abominations and obscenities of the "good old times" would almost have disgraced the days of Nero.

But bull-baiting, cock-fighting, and other ferocious amusements have now departed. Even the village stocks have rotted out. Drunkenness has become disreputable. The "good old times" have departed, we hope never to return. The laborer has now other resources besides the public house. There are exhibitions and people's parks, steamboats and railways, reading-rooms and coffee-rooms, museums, gardens, and cheap concerts. In place of the disgusting old amusements, there have come a healthier, sounder life, greater enlightenment, more general sobriety, and a humane spirit. We have in a hundred years outgrown many of our savage tendencies. We are not less brave as a people, though less brutal. We are quite as manly, though much less gross. Manners are more refined, yet as a people we have not lost our pluck, energy, and endurance. We respect ourselves more, and as a nation we have become more respected. We now think with shame of the manners of a hundred years ago. —Samuel Smiles.

Children's Corner.

Seven Rewards to Overcomers.

1. To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the midst of the paradise of God. Rev. ii. 7.

2. He that overcometh shall not be hurt of the second death. Rev. ii. 11.

3. To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the hidden manna, and will give him a white stone, and in the stone a new name written, which no man knoweth saving he that receiveth it. Rev. ii. 17.

4. He that overcometh, and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations: . . even as I received of my father. And I will give him the morning star. Rev. ii. 26-28.

5. He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before his angels. Rev. iii. 5.

6. Him that overcometh will I make a pillar in the temple of my God, and he shall go no more out: and I will write upon him the name of my God, and the name of the city of my God, which is new Jerusalem, which cometh down out of heaven from my God: and I will write upon him my new name. Rev. iii. 12.

7. To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne. Rev. iii. 21.

Reader, will you be an overcomer, and make these glorious rewards your own?

The Pin and the Needle.

A pin and a needle, being neighbors in a work basket, and both being idle, began to quarrel, as idle folks are apt to do.

"I should like to know," said the pin, "what you are good for, and how you expect to get through the world without a head?"

"What is the use of your head," replied the needle, rather sharply, "if you have no eye?"

"What is the use of an eye," said the pin, "if there is always something in it?"

"I am more active, and can go through more work than you can," said the needle.

"Yes, but you will not live long."

"Why not?"

"Because you have always a stitch in your side," said the pin.

"You are a poor, crooked creature," said the needle.

"And you are so proud that you can't bend without breaking."

"I'll pull your head off if you insult me again."

"I'll put your eye out if you touch me; remember your life hangs by a single thread," said the pin

While they were thus conversing a little girl entered, and, undertaking to sew, she very soon broke off the needle at the eye. Then she tied the thread around the neck of the pin, and attempting to sew with it, she soon pulled its head off, and threw it into the dirt by the side of the broken needle.

"Well, here we are," said the needle.

"We have nothing to fight about now," said the pin."

"It seems misfortune has brought us to our senses."

"A pity we had not come to them sooner," said the needle."

"How much we resemble human beings, who quarrel about their blessings until they lose them, and never find out that they are brothers till they lie down in the dust together as we do." —Madison Record.

How a big Grape-vine gets to the Centennial.

Every visitor to southern California has written about the largest grape-vine in the world which lately grew near Santa Barbara. I say lately, for it grows there no longer. It passed through San Fransisco yesterday on its way to Philadelphia. It is to be exhibited there during the Centennial. This vine was dying of old age. It had failed rapidly of late years, and almost ceased to bear. Hence the sacrifice on the part of the owner is not as great as it seems at the first blush. And he has another vine called the young mammoth, which is the second largest in the world, and bids fair in a few years to equal the size and fruitfulness of the old mammoth.

The vine now on its way to Philadelphia is from sixty to a hundred years old. Before it began to droop its foliage covered an area of over ten thousand square feet, or a quarter of an acre. It produced annually six tons of grapes, worth at the lowest rate paid by the wine-makers $120. The trunk or body of this vine was 5 1-2 feet in circumference. Eight feet from the ground it branched into twenty large limbs. One of these limbs is 27 inches in circumference, and is consequently as large as the body of Queen Victoria's vine at Hampton Court, England, which is the largest and most celebrated vine in Europe. So the trunk of our mammoth vine is nearly three times as large as the largest vine in the Old World.

But how are they taking this immense vine to Philadelphia? It has been carefully "sectionized," that is, cut into pieces which will go into boxes five feet wide and eight feet long. There are seven of these great boxes. When they reach their destination, the trunk will be unpacked and set up, and then the limbs and branches will be attached to it in regular order, and the skeleton of the vine reproduced. The foliage and fruit that made it so beautiful in its prime cannot, of course, be exhibited. But the trunk and branches will give the visitors at the Centennial some idea of how things grow in California.—Herald and Presbyter.

Traveled Dogs.—The captain of a Nahant boat has a fine, curly dog, which never misses making a trip with his master if he can help it. He likes the bustle and little excitement of getting under way, and going on shore again, as well as old sailors love the sea. He is quite sociable and well acquainted with the regular passengers. They know his peculiarities, and he knows some of theirs. If he does not regularity "beg," he is still sharp enough to "hang around" those who are rather liberally disposed. He generally gets his penny or five-cent piece, and then off he bounds to the refreshment table, and lays it out in cakes as orderly as a boy. He would scorn to eat it off the floor like a dog which had never been taught good manners. He hunts up his master and puts the cake in his hand, and then stands by decorously and eats it, piece by piece, as it is broken off for him. Another smart Yankee dog has a taste for visiting. He goes down to the depot and steps aboard the train, without the customary little ceremony at the ticket office; and when it reaches the right town he bounds off and pays a visit to some family friend of his master. He never makes a mistake about the town or the train, and is such a fine, intelligent fellow, he always meets with a welcome. He usually spends two or three days on his trips, and no doubt picks up considerable dog lore in his travels. I do not know whether the mightier dogs show him any attention on his return but he is on good terms with them all. —Presbyterian.

Home and Health Hints.

Thermal Architecture.

The following are some of the great advantages of having the rooms of our houses surrounded with good nonconductors of heat.

1. Such a room will be of an even temperature throughout, not too hot near the stove nor too cold near the walls.

2. The room can be kept just as comfortable in the coldest weather as in any weather.

3. There is no need of having a stove red hot, consequently the air is never vitiated by being in contact with red hot iron.

4. Many terrible and fatal accidents would be avoided by its being nearly impossible for the clothes of women and children to take fire by coming in contact with the stove.

5. There is no danger of burning your house from the stove or pipe, as there is no need of a great fire.

6. There is far less danger of a fire spreading from such a house to another house; because there are no empty air spaces in the walls to create a draft.

7. There is no danger of children taking cold by playing about the windows; because the windows are always double.

8. The walls are never damp, and windows are seldom either wet or frosty.

9. Only about half the usual quantity of bed-clothing is necessary in such a house.

10. There must be a very great saving in the expense of stoves and pipe. For if such things are not heated red hot we don't know how long they might last.

11. The saving of fuel, being about three-fourths of the quantity generally used, would amount to enough to pay the national debt in a few years.

12. Large ventilation may be allowed without lowering the temperature too much. Thomas Filer.

Fullersburg, Ill., Feb. 5th, 1876.

Those Plants.—Many persons who have the care of window plants seem to think that the operation of watering is one of the simplest matters incident to their charge. It should be borne in mind, however, that the duty of the water is to dissolve and convey to the roots of the plants the food which they need; some plants must have a season of comparative rest. And if such are watered liberally during this time they will keep on growing, and the necessary rest is not obtained. When any one says that they succeed very well with certain classes of plants, such as the fuchsia, calla, lobelia, and ivy, and fail with others, they may be at once set down as being profuse waterers, who by too much water injure or destroy such plants as will not bear it. Many plants are permanently injured by water remaining in the saucer; others often suffer from a bad selection of the soil.

Some amateur florists fail with a certain class of plants, of which the begonia may be taken as a type, because they shower the leaves with cold water, but for this very reason they are eminently successful with another class, of which the camellia will serve as a type. As a general rule, the texture of the leaf may be taken as an index of its power to resist the application of water. Plants having porous, open or fleshy leaves covered with soft down, should be seldom, if ever moistened, while those having glossy or hard leaves will do all the better if washed frequently. Ivies, hoyas, and coboeas seem to laugh at us after a good dashing, but begonias coleus, and plants of the same class do not appear to appreciate it.

Seceding Masons.

A few weeks since it was announced in the Cynosure that the list of seceding Masons read by the secretary of the last National Convention would be published in March. It is believed this list comprises only those who have publicly renounced the lodge. It will remain standing during the month and other names will be added as friends send them in. It is hoped by this means a complete list can be made. Send only names of those who have openly abandoned the lodge. The figures donate the number of degrees taken.

Conn.—X. A. Welton, Bethlehem, 3.
Calvin Hatch, Farmington, 4.
Rev. A. Palmer, E. Cumberland, 15.
Ill.—D. E. Middlekauf, Foreston, 3.
I. A. Hart, Woodstock.
W. A. Bartlett, El Paso, 3.
Linus Chittenden, Crystal Lake, 3.
*A. Pierce, Chicago, 3.
J. C. Graham, Viola, 3.
W. E. Coquillette, Marengo, 16.
Milo Starks, Ashton.
James Andrews, Amboy, 3.
Cyrus Larkin, Elgin, 6.
Ind.—J. T. Horne, Fairmount.
Arthur Robinson, Indianapolis, 3.
W. M. Givens, Center Point, 3.
E. Thomas, Oakland City, 3.
J. W. Hussong, Sanford, 1.
Andr. Zeek, Xenia.
Ioa.—Jos Travis, Waterloo.
A. S. Allen, Clear Lake, 3.
S. Ranks, Algona, 3.
James Hankins, Mason City, 7.
G. A. Loomis, Casey, 3.
Mass.—S. D. Greene, Chelsea, 3.
Henry M. Tower, Spencer, 3.
Mich.—D. Pratt, 1.
Rev. A. Springstein, Ypsilanti, 3.
Miss.—Eli Tapley, Columbus, 3.
Mo.—Fred Hyde, Esq., Unionville.
Geo. Stuart, Avalon.
N. Y.—D P. Rathbun, Lisbon Center, 3.
J. B. Nessell, Ellington, 3.
P. Dwight, Henderson, 5.
L. Hakes, Clay, 7.
E. H. Hitchcock, Gowanda, 7.
Jason McKee, Watertown, 4.
Rev. Sniffen, Watertown, 7.
Myron Smith, Syracuse.
S. Rose.
N. R. Luce, Clymer, 7.
Ohio.—J. H. H. Woodward, Cincinnati.
J. G. Rownd, Summerfield, 3.
F. Craig, Summerfield.
Thos. Henderson, 3.
H. Cogswell, Mansfield, 7.
*C. G. Finney, 3.
E. P. Hart, Toledo.
Franklin Paine, Painesville, 3.
W. Ashley, Sparta
—Way, ——
Wesley Harris, Sparta.
Geo. Hibbard, Pagetown.
Robert Northway, Colebrook.
Curtis Cogswell, Deer Lick, 3.
Pa.—J. R. Baird, Cochrans Mills, 17.
Joel Swartz, Williamsport, 3,
A. Rudisill, York, 3.
Vt.—*E. B. Rollin.
J. R. Taylor, Brandon.
W. H. Henderson, Brandon.
Jonas Brown, Highgate.
*Deceased.

How true are the words of Sir Robert Peel when he says, "That nation is most secure from every attack from without whose political and commercial relations, intercourse and dealings with other nations have been so consistently just, honorable and beneficial, that it is to the interest of all nations that none should attack it" and that "every regiment foreign nations enlist, and every one we disband adds proportionately to their ultimate weakness and to our ultimate strength."

—Dr. Schaff announces that the American Bible revisers have finished the Pentateuch and Psalms, and are at work on the minor prophets. Of the New Testament the Gospel and Acts are completed, and the Epistles are in hand. The English Committee with three years advantage in starting, have about two-thirds of their work accomplished; the Americans about one-third.

—Among the converts in connection with Rev. E. P. Hammond's labors at Lancaster, Pa., recently, was an actor who has determined to study for the ministry.

News of the Week.

Washington.

The union meetings conducted by Mr. Hammond are daily increasing in interest, and over 200 have professed conversion.——Congress is engaged in investigating Gen. Schneck, the minister to England, and there is evidently need of it.——It was reported last week that the President had asked Gen. Babcock to be no longer private secretary, but the report is contradicted. The position of Bristow is in a state of indecision.—The gold gamblers of New York and the inflationists in Congress have secured an order for counting the gold in the U. S. treasury. The sum is said to be $13,800,000 instead of $73,000,000 as has been reported.

The Country.

A bill abolishing capital punishment, passed by the Legislature of Maine, has been signed by the Governor of that State.——A terrible accident occurred on the Harlem Branch R. R. to Rutland, Vt., last week. A sleeping car was thrown off the rails and burned. Most of its inmates were injured and two, Mr. Chas. H. Bissell, proprietor of the Sherman House, Chicago, and his son were burned to death.——The Republican convention of Indiana have nominated G. S. Orth, minister at Vienna, for governor and he has accepted.——An independent "greenback" party have nominated officers for Indiana and Illinois and Senator Booth of California is proposed for President.——On Friday last Plymouth Church committee met at a private house to examine Bowen. The latter appeared and read his defense and on seeking to retire the door was locked in his face, whereat he rushed out of a back door and in his trepidation caused quite an uproar, chiefly through the papers.——Friend William Welsh, ex-member of the Indian Peace Commission, favors the proposition to turn over the Indian Bureau to the War Department. He believes two-thirds of the appropriation for the Indian service is used for the election of U. S. Senators.

Foreign.

The English House of Commons has ratified the vote of the Ministry for the purchase of the Suez Canal shares.——The returns so far received from France show that 234 Republicans, 91 Monarchists and 55 Bonapartists have been elected to the Assembly. The Republicans declare that any revision of the Constitution, except in a Republican sense, is now impossible.——The Carlist cause is now considered as hopelessly lost. Don Carlos was Saturday in the neighborhood of Irun. It is stated that he crossed the frontier to France during Saturday night, and then issued a manifesto announcing that he generously relinquished the struggle in order to promote the happiness of the Spanish people.——Most disastrous floods are reported to have occurred in the provinces of Upper Austria and Moravia.——Jamaica advices state that the condition of affairs in Hayti is alarming. The revolutionists have purchased the steamer Octavia, taken in ammunition and sailed from Jamaica for Port-au-Prince. President Domingue has ordered the Cuban refugees to quit the country within thirty hours, on penalty of being delivered up to the Spanish gun-boats. A monetary panic is imminent. The bills of exchange of large houses have been returned protested.

—It is said that Illinois is the great whiskey State, having paid whiskey tax from 1863 to 1874, amounting to $150,769,411 15, and the total collections in all the States for the same time amounts to $1,812,495,336 33. This is a bad record and any more entries in it ought to be stopped forthwith.

ESTABLISHED 1867.

EZRA A. COOK & CO.,

STEAM PRINTERS,

LITHOGRAPHERS,

STATIONERS

—AND—

Book Binders.

NOS. 7, 9, 11 & 13

Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

We were in the Stationery, Printing and Lithographing business before the Cynosure was started.

WE PRINT

Books, Pamphlets, Catalogues, Business Cards, Show Cards, Letter Heads, Bill Heads, Note Heads, Circulars, Hand Bills, Posters, Checks, Drafts, Notes, Certificates of Deposit, Certificates of Stock, Diplomas, etc.,

WE BIND

Blank Books, Magazines, Catalogues, Checks, Drafts, Notes, Certificates, Bank Pass Books, Etc., Etc.

WE LITHOGRAPH

Business Cards, Letter Heads, Note Heads, Bill Heads, Circulars, Checks, Drafts, Certificates of Stock, Certificates of Deposit, Plats and Charts; also elegant Diplomas for Colleges, Literary Societies, and Agricultural Societies, in one, two or three Colors. Samples and Prices sent on Application.

All work executed in the

BEST STYLE,

at the

LOWEST MARKET RATES.

We fill Orders Promptly, and Guarantee Good Work.

Special Attention Given to Orders by Mail.

Samples and prices sent promptly when desired.

Address:

EZRA A. COOK & CO.,

7, 9, 11 & 13 Wabash Avenue,

CHICAGO.

Masonic Books,

FOR SALE AT THE CYNOSURE OFFICE.

☞All books sent post paid, on receipt of retail price, but BOOKS SENT BY MAIL ARE NOT AT OUR RISK.

Books ordered by express are sold at 10 per cent discount and SENT AT OUR RISK. Party ordering must pay express charges.

Those who wish to know the character of Freemasonry, as shown by its own publications, will find many standard works in the following list.

No sensible Mason dares deny that such men as Albert G. Mackey, the great Masonic Lexicographer, and Daniel Sickels, the Masonic author and publisher, are the highest Masonic authority in the United States.

Allyn's Ritual of Masonry,

Illustrated by a large number of engravings, and containing a Key to the Phi Beta Kappa, Orange nd Odd-fellows' societies. Price, $5.00.

Mackey's Masonic Ritualist;

OR

MONITORIAL INSTRUCTION BOOK

By ALBERT G. MACKEY,

Past General High Priest of the General Grand Chapter of the United States, Knight of the Eagle and Pelican, Prince of Mercy," Etc. Etc. Price, Cloth $2.25, Tuck $1.75.

Mackey's Lexicon of Freemasonry,

Containing a Definition of Terms, Notices of its History, Traditions and Antiquities, and an account of all the Rites and Mysteries of the Ancient World. 12 mo. 526 pages, $3 00.

MACKEY'S MANUAL OF THE LODGE

OR

Monitorial Instructions in the Degrees of Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft, and Master Mason; with Ceremonies relating to Installations, Dedications, Consecrations, Laying of Corner-stones &c. Price, $2 00

MACKEY'S TEXT BOOK

OF

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

Illustrating the Laws of Freemasonry, both written and unwritten.

This is the Great Law Book of Freemasonry 570 pages. Price, $2.50.

Webb's Monitor of Freemasonry,

LARGE EDITION, WITH NOTES

By ROB. MORRIS, — Price, $1.50.
Pocket Edition, 75 cts.

SICKELS' FREEMASON'S MONITOR.

Containing the Degrees of Freemasonry embraced in the Lodge, Chapter, Council and Commandery, embellished with nearly 300 symbolic Illustrations, Together with Tactics and drill of Masonic Knighthood. Also, forms of Masonic Documents, Notes, Songs, Masonic dates, installations, etc. By D. Sickels, 32 mo uck. Price $1.50. Cloth $1.00.

Richardson's Monitor of Freemasonry.

A Practical Guide to the Ceremonies in the Degrees conferred in Masonic Lodge Chapter, Encampments, etc, Illustrated Edition. In cloth, $1 25: paper, 75 cts.

Chase's Digest of Masonic Law.

Comprises a Complete Code of Regulations Decisions and Opinions upon Questions of Masonic Jurisprudence. Price, $2 25.

Duncan's Masonic Ritual and Monitor

Illustrated with Explanatory Engravings Price $2 50

GENERAL AHIMAN REZON AND FREEMASON'S GUIDE.

By Daniel Sickels, 33°

The most perfect Masonic Monitor published in the United States. Embellished with nearly 300 Engravings, and Portrait of the Anthor, Containing Monitorial Instructions in the Degrees of Entered Apprentice, Fellow-Craft, and Master Mason, with Explanatory Notes and Lectures; with the Ceremonies of Consecration and Dedication of New Lodges, Installation of Officers, Laying Foundation Stones, Dedication of Masonic Halls, Burial Services, Masonic Calendar, Ritnal for a Lodge of Sorrow, Masonic Trials, etc.
Bound in fine cloth extra, large 12mo.....$2.00.

TRUE MASONIC CHART; OR, HIEROGLYPHIC MONITOR.

By Jeremy L. Cross, Grand Lecturer.

With a Memoir and Portrait of the Anthor, Containing all the Emblems explained in the Degrees of entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft, and Master Mason. Designed and arranged agreeably to the Lectures.
12mo. Cloth.....$1 50

FEMALE MASONRY.

Manual of The Order of The Eastern Star.

Containing the Ritnal, Symbols Lectures etc., of the five Degrees of "Adoptive Masonry:" Jeptha's Danghter; Rnth, Esther, Martha and Electa, profusely illustraited and handsomely bound.
Price.....$1 00.

Odd-fellowship, Masonry, The Grange,

and the Knights of Pythias.

(A Sermon Preached by Rev. J. Sarver, Sunday Dec., 19th, 1875 in the Evangelical Lutheran Church, Leechburg, Pa. Published by request.)

—:o:—

"Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers; for what fellowship hath righteonsness with unrighteousness? and what communion hath light with darkness? And what concord hath Christ with Belial? or what part hath he that believeth with an infidel? And what agreement hath the temple of God with idols? For ye are the temple of the living God; as God hath said, I will dwell in them and walk in them; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people. Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you." 2 Cor. vi: 14-17.

The Lord forbids us to say "peace, peace; when there is no peace." Truth and error can never be reconciled. Between righteousness and unrighteousness, light and darkness, Christ and Satan, there must needs be discord and oposition. Christianity as the only true religion, tolerates no system of false religion, be it heathenism or any other form of infidelity. False gods, false doctrines and false worship of all kinds, the true God must condemn and resist to the very end. And he requires his people to do the same. Hence, Paul here warns Christians against having any communion with infidels in their errors and unbelief. As temples of the living God, they must keep themselves pure and free from all "pollutions of idols." With heathen unbelievers, deists, and all deniers of Christ, they must avoid agreement in spiritual things. The word of God allows no religious fellowship with any who worship false gods, or who worship the true God in a false manner.

We propose to show that certain secret societies teach a false religion, and that union with them is forbidden on account of their false doctrins. Among these, we class Masonry, Odd-fellowship, the Knights of Pythias, the Grange, and others.

That all these, whether of earlier or later origin, are alike anti-Christian in their character, influence and tendency, is evident to thoughtful men, who have weighed the subject properly. To know them aright is to condemn them. To expose them is a solemn duty which we owe to Christ and his cause. This is a great moral question that must be met. All evangelical churches and ministers, in fidelity to their Master, will have to take their stand openly, fully and firmly against these secret orders. May God speed the day!

Beginning with Odd-fellowship and dwelling on it chiefly, let us now, in the light of Holy Writ, examine its religious doctrines and principles, as set forth in its own standard books and documents. We propose to deal with principles, not with persons; to discuss, not Odd-fellows, but Odd-fellowship as a system. It is not our province to judge its members, but its principles we may criticize and judge according to their merits. The founders and framers of this society are chiefly responsible for its evil character and fruits. The great mass of its common members have had no hand in making it what it is. They have simply organized lodges on the foundation laid by others. They are to blame also, in proportion as they neglect to examine the principles of the order and thus fail to know what they are, or as they wilfully and knowingly endorse its false doctrines.

It is, of course, the duty of all, before joining any society, to study and understand its principles, but our judgment of ordinary members of this order, must be tempered with charity because the system has been devised and drawn up with great care and cunning. Truth and error have been artfully commingled, thus presenting a strange mixture of good and bad in its composition. Its teachings are varied to suit men of all creeds or of no creed. Here is something for Christians and there something for deists, infidels and idolaters. And all this is set forth in such smooth and plausible terms as to remind us of Satan, "transformed into an angel of light." No wonder that honest, unsuspecting members are deceived, for it is enough "to deceive, if possible, the very elect." Hence we pity, rather than blame those who are unwittingly caught in this net. But the more carefully we examine its religious doctrines, the more clearly and fully do its unchristian sentiments come into view, until the true nature of Odd-fellowship can no longer be mistaken, and the supposed "angel of light," proves to be an angel of darkness.

Let us then procced with our invcstigation and see what kind of an institution it is as represented in its own books and papers. "The Odd-fellows' Improved Pocket Manual," by Rev. A. B. Grosh, * is endorsed and recommended by sixty-seven Right Worthy Grand Representatives of the Grand Lodge of the United States, "is a complete and faithful history of the principles, instructions, work and organizations of the order." In addition to this it received "similar endorsements by various Grand and Past Grand Masters, Grand Scribes and Grand Secretaries," all of whom testify in substance that the Manual is "by far the best book on Odd-fellowship ever published." These endorsements are found on pages 7 and 8 of this book. Our exposure will be based chiefly on quotations from the Manual. We shall also quote from "The Odd-fellows' Pocket Companion," from a "Digest of Laws" prepared by the Grand Lodge of the United States and from another prepared by the G. L. Pa., and from two or three journals called "The Heart and Hand," the "Odd-fellow," and the "Lodge Bulletin." In quoting from these different documents, the page and date will be given for reference by those who wish to read and examine for themselves.

*From "Heart and Hand," of Jan. 22d, 1876, we quote as follows: "Rev. Bro. Grosh, is a member of Donegal Lodge, Marietta, Penn. He is a clergyman of the Universalist Church," No evangelical clergyman could write or endorse a book like the "Manual."

I. Odd-fellowship is or teaches a religion.

You will find its creed on page 114 of the Manual or 361 of the U. S. Digest. The candidate for admission into the order, is asked "Do you believe in the existence of a supreme, intelligent Being, the Creator and preserver of the universe?" An atheist, one who denies that there is a God, cannot be received. Belief in some sort of a Supreme Being is necessary to membership in the order. The Christian church requires faith in the Triune God, Father, Son and Holy Ghost, as set forth in the Apostles' Creed. The one is a creed no less than the other. Odd-fellowship therefore has a religion, because it has a religious creed.

The order makes use of the Bible in its own way and for its own peculiar purposes. The Manual says, on page 222, that "no lodge can be held without it." From the Bible, it derives and perverts, as we shall presently see, various emblems, lessons and precepts, including the ten commandments. Moreover the order has its ritual, its order of worship, its prayers, ceremonies intended for funerals, dedications and installations, and for opening and closing the lodge meetings.

It has its altars, its High Priests and Grand High Priests, its Chaplains and Grand Chaplins for the purpose of carrying out its ritual. The order also teaches a method of salvation of its own devising to which your attention will soon be directed. All these things are manifestly parts and appliances of religion. Any society which adopts and uses a ritual, an order of worship as Odd-fellowship does, thereby alone virtually adopts a religion.

The Manual clearly contradicts the idea that the order is simply, as some maintain, an association for mutual aid and relief. On page 47 and 48 occur these words: "The order as founded by Bro. Wildey, was (at first) simply a humane institution,—its main objects were to relieve brethren, bury the dead and care for the widow and orphan. But gradually there were infused into its lectures and charges much moral and (unsectarian) religious instruction; and at each revision these principles were increased and deepened and strengthened, until its beneficial and relief measures from being ends, have become means to a higher and greater end. * * * His (Wildey's) cherished aims and details were all retained, but directed beyond the merely social and physical, to the moral and spiritual * * * * * and lead man to a true appreciation of his whole duty, whether to God, himself, or to his brother man." On page 110 we learn that the "pecuniary benefits" of the order are "hardly a tithe (tenth) of its aims and objects." On page 261, "that those who unite with us * * for the loaves and fishes have mistaken their aim." On page 161 we find this language—"so may our light aid in dissipating the ignorance which yet obscures those true relations that bind man to his Creator and to his fellow men." On page 369 the order is represented as "teaching our duty to God, to our fellow-men, and to ourselves." The "Odd-fellow," May 1871, says, "It is the great aim of the brotherhood of the Odd-fellows, to give to their adherents a correct understanding of the relation between God and man." This is the very office and work of religion, and the Bible itself aims at nothing more. The Lodge Bulletin, July 1871, says in plain words; "Odd-fellowship has a morality, a religion or theology." * Many more passages of the same import might also be added from the Manual, but those above given will serve to excite further inquiry, and thus bring to light other proofs from this and other sources. A comprehensive view of the nature, scope and design of its teachings must convince any honest mind that Odd-fellowship inculcates a religion, "the universal religion of nature," which its members are urged to embrace and practice. To this end it adopts the shrewd policy of allowing no liberty in the lodge, to discuss or dissent from its doctrines, thus giving the leaven a chance to work silently and freely, "till the whole is leavened."

This religion is a human device of such a form and spirit as to suit men of all nations and faiths—Jews, Mohammedans, heathens, deists, infidels, universalists, materialists, rationalists, and errorists of every shade. See Manual p. 373—388. The Pocket Companion p. 309 says; "Jew or Gentile, Catholic or Protestant, is as such, welcome to our lodge." No unbelief short of Atheism can exclude men from the order, whose religion is loose and liberal enough to embrace them all on equal terms.

II. Odd-fellowship teaches a false religion.

This point has just been indicated in general terms. Let us now examine in detail, some features of this false religion.

1. O. F. denies the Lord Jesus Christ. Odd-fellowship claims as one of its fundamental principles, "the brotherhood of man," and professes to make the order, "universal as the family of man on earth," which is a false profession however. * To this end it needs a platform, so broad, so latitudinarian, as to suit the utmost laxity and diversity of faith. To this end it receives into fellowship all who believe in a Supreme Being of some kind, without defining particularly who or what that Supreme Being is. By this happy device all can be accommodated, and no offence is given to Jew or Gentile or any one else. Faith in Christ is not made a condition of membership, because such a condition would offend and exclude from the order all who deny him. But such a sad breach in the brotherhood must by all means be avoided. Odd-fellowship must stand as it is, no matter what follows. Hence Christ is officially and intentionally shut out, in order that his deniers and enemies may be induced to come in.

*"The Heart and Hand," Jan 22d, 1876, has an article entitled, "Our Religion;" the writer speaks of "the universal religion of nature taught in our temples."

(CONTINUED.)

ANTI-MASONIC BOOKS,

(Not our own Publications.)

For Sale by EZRA A. COOK & CO

13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

[FOR CATALOGUE OF PUBLICATIONS OF EZRA A. COOK & CO., See page 15.]

☞ All books sent post paid, on receipt of retail price, but BOOKS SENT BY MAIL ARE NOT AT OUR RISK.

Books ordered by express are sold at 10 per cent. discount and SENT AT OUR RISK. Party ordering must pay express charges.

Elder Stearns' Books.

Stearns' Inquiry Into the Nature and Tendency of Masonry With an Appendix.

SEVENTH EDITION.

338 Pages, in Cloth.....60 cents.
" " " Paper.....40 "

Stearns' Letters on Masonry.

Showing the antagonism between Freemasonry and the Christian Religion.
Price, 30 cents.

Stearns' Review of Two Masonic Addresses.

In this scathing review the lying pretentions of the order are clearly shown.
Price, 10 cents.

Levington's Key to Masonry.

This is Rev. Mr. Levington's last, and in the judgment of its anthor, best work on Masonry. The contents of the first chapter are as follows:

"Commencement and growth of Speculative or Symbolic Freemasonry—A table showing the thing at a glance—The use that the Atheists made of it—Identical with Illuminism—Its connection with the French Revolution, and with the Irish Rebellion—The action of the British Parliament with regard to it—Proofs of its diabolical purposes—Its Introduction, doings, progress and designs in the United States."

The contents of the Eleventh chapter are thus startling:

"Knights of the Golden Circle—Graphic account of them by a seceding Knight, and remarks thereon, showing the identity of the order with Masonry—Quotations from Sir Walter Scott."

This work is thrilling in statement, and powerful in argnmt. 425 pageness,
Price, $1.35.

Light on Freemasonry,

BY ELDER D. BERNARD,

TO WHICH IS APPENDED A

Revelation of the Mysteries of Odd-fellowship by a Member of the Craft.

The whole containing over five hundred pages lately revised and republished. Price $2.00

The first part of the above work, Light on Freemasonry, 416 pages in paper cover, will be sent post paid on receipt of $1.

FOR SALE BY

United Brethren Publishing House,
DAYTON, O.
and by
EZRA A. COOK & CO.,
18 Wabash Ave, CHICAGO.

Finney on Masonry.

BOUND IN CLOTH, PRICE $1.00,

CHEAP EDITION,

Twenty-five dollars per hundred, by express and not less than 25 copies at that rate.

BY MAIL, POST-PAID:

Per doz.....$3 75.
Single copy.....85 c

ODD-FELLOWSHIP

JUDGED BY ITS OWN UTTERANCES;

Its Doctrine and Practice examined in the light of God's Word.

BY REV. J. H. BROCKMAN.

This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-Fellowship, in the form of a dialogne. It was originally published in German.
Price, bound in Boards, 75 cents.

GOOD TEMPLARISM EXPOSED.

Obligations, of the Initiatory Fidelity, Charity, and Royal Virtue Degrees.

This is a small book containing only the Obligations and some of the Odes of the Good Templars.

Single Copy, Post paid, ... 10cts.
Per Doz. " 75
Per 100 by Express, ... $4.50

Bernard's Appendix to Light on Masonry,

Showing the Character of the Institution by it's terrible oaths and penalties. Paper covers, 25 cents.

ANTIMASONIC TRACTS.

WE NOW HAVE 25 ENGLISH TRACTS, ONE GERMAN, AND ONE SWEEDISH

These tracts are sold at the rate of $1.00 per 1000 pages.

"THE ANTI-MASONS SCRAP BOOK."

Contains 24 Cynosnre Tracts, bonnd together, and is just the thing to select tracts from. Price 20 cents. See advertisement.

For information about Free Tracts see advertisement headed "Free Tracts."

Address EZRA A. COOK & Co.,
13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

TRACT NO. 1:

HISTORY OF MASONRY.

BY PRESIDENT J. BLANCHARD, OF WHEATON COLLEGE.

This is now published in three tracts of four pages each. Price of each, 50 cents per 100; $4 per 1000.

TRACT No. 1, PART FIRST—Shows the origin of Speculative Freemasonry, and is entiled "HISTORY OF MASONRY."

TRACT No. 1, PART SECOND—Is entitled "DESPOTIC CHARACTER OF FREEMASONRY"

TRACT No. 1, PART THIRD—Is entitled "FREEMASONRY A CHRIST-EXCLUDING RELIGION."

TRACT NO. 2:

MASONIC MURDER,

By REV. J. R. BAIRD, of Pleasantville, Pa., a seceding Mason who has taken 17 degrees. A 2-page tract at 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 3:

SECRETS OF MASONRY,

BY ELI TAPLEY.

This is a 4-page Illnstrated Tract, showing the signs, grips and pass-words, of the first three degrees. 50 cents per 100, or $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 4:

GRAND! GREAT GRAND!!

BY PHILO CARPENTER.

This is a 2-page tract, calling the attention of the public to the despotic and ridiculous titles of Freemasonry. Price 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1,000.

TRACT. NO. 5:

Extracts From Masonic Oaths and Penalties, as Sworn to by the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island.

This tract is a reprint of a tract published in 1834, and is a very weighty document. A 4-page tract at 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 6:

Hon. John Quincy Adams' Letter.

Giving His and His Father's Opinion of Freemasonry (1831.);

AND

Hon. James Madison's Letter,

Giving His Opinion of Freemasonry (1832).

Both of these letters, in one 4-page tract, at 50 cents per 100: $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 7:

SATAN'S CABLE-TOW.

A 4-page tract. This is a careful analysis of the character of Masonic oaths, and shows them to be most blasphemous and unchristian; and the Masonic Cable Tow is clearly shown to be the Cable Tow by which Satan is leading thousands to eternal death. 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 8:

Is a 2-page double tract, "ILLUSTRATED." The first page represents a Mason proclaiming the wonderful wisdom and benevolence of the order, with an article below, entitled "Freemasonry is only 152 Years Old," and gives the time and place of its birth.

The second side is entitled, "Murder and Treason not Excepted," and shows that the Masonic order is treasonable in its constitution, and is both anti-Republican and anti-Christian. Price 25 cents per 100; $2 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 9, ILLUSTRATED:

FREEMASONRY IN THE CHURCH.

Copy of a petition for the higher degrees of Freemasonry, in which Blasphemous and Despotic Titles are enumerated and prayed for. The Copy was printed for the use of "Occidental Sovereign Consistory S. P. R. S.," 32d degree—a Chicago Lodge—and was ordered by a deacon of a Christian Church who is Grand Orator of the Grand Lodge of Ill.

TRACT NO. 10:

CHARACTER AND SYMBOLS OF FREEMASONRY.

A 2-page tract, (ILLUSTRATED) by its "Grand Secretaries, Grand Lecturers, Perfect Prince Freemasons, Grand Inspector, Inquisitor Commanders, Grand High Priests," etc. The wonderful symbolical meaning of "the Cable Tow," "the Sqnare and Compass," "the Lamb Skin, or white Apron," and "the Common Gavel," are given in the exact words of the highest Masonic authority. 25 cents per 100 or $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 11;

Address of Niagara County Association, New York.

TO THE PUBLIC;

Concerning the Morgan Murder, and the character of Freemasonry shown by this and other Masonic murders. 50 cents per

TRACT NO. 12:

JUDGE WHITNEY AND MASONRY.

This tract contains a condensed account of Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois, on charge of unmasonic conduct in bringing Samuel L. Keith the murderer of Ellen Slade. and a member of his Lodge, to justice, with Judge Whitney's subsequent renunciation of Masonry.

An 8-page tract, $1.00 per 100; $8.00 per 1000

TRACT NO. 13:

DR. NATHANIEL COLVER ON MASONRY,

and

HOWARD CROSBY, D. D.,

Chancellor of the University of New York, on SECRET SOCIETIES. A donble 2-page tract 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 14:

GRAND LODGE MASONRY.

ITS RELATION TO CIVIL GOVERNMENT AND THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION.

Opening address before the Monmouth Convention, by PRES. J. BLANCHARD of WHEATON COLLEGE. This is a 16-page tract at $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 15:

MASONIC OATHS NULL AND VOID.

A clear and conclusive argument proving the invalidity of any oath or obligation to do evil. By REV. I. A. HART, Secretary National Christian Association. Published by special order of the Association. 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 16:

HON. SETH M. GATES ON FREEMASONRY.

PROOF THAT THE INSTITUTION THAT MURDERED MORGAN IS UNCHANGED IN CHARACTER

This is a letter to the Monmouth Convention by Hon. Seth M Gates who was Depnty Sheriff of Genesee County, and also Secretary of the Leroy Lodge at the time of Morgan's Abdnction. A 4-page tract, 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 17:

Origin, Obligations and Expenses of The Grange.

WITH A CONSTITUTION OF A FARMERS' CLUB.

This little tract ought to be put into the hands of every Farmer in the United States. Four-page tract, 50 cents per 100; $4 00 per 1000

TRACT NO. 18:

HON. WM. H. SEWARD ON SECRET SOCIETIES.

Extract from a Speech on Know-nottingism in the U. S. Senate in 1855. The testimony of JOHN QUINCY ADAMS, MILLARD FILLMORE. CHIEF JUSTIC MARSHALL and others, is added.

A 2-page tract, 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO, 19.

BRICKS FOR MASONS TO LAY.

WASHINGTON, MADISON, MARSHALL, RUSH, HANCOCK, ADAMS AND WEBSTER, give brief clear testimony against the Lodge A 2-page tract 25 cents per 100; $2.00 per 1000.

TRACT NO. 20:

OBJECTIONS TO MASONRY.

By A SECEDING MASON, of Cornton, Vermont.

This tract contains many strong arguments against the Lodge drawn from personal experience, observation and study of its character. A 4-page tract at 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

TRACT NO. 21:

MASONIC CHASTITY.

BY EMMA A. WALLACE,

The author, by wonderfully clear illustration and argument, shows the terribly corrupt nature of Freemasonry. No true woman who reads this will ever speak with approbation of this institution A 4-page tract 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

TRACT No. 22.

LINUS CHITTENDEN ON FREEMASONRY.

The Author a Seceding Master Mason states his objection to the Lodge, drawn both from experience and observation, in a clear concise and forcible style,

A 2 page tract, 25 cents per 100, $2.00 per 1,000.

TRACT No. 23.

MASONIC OATHS AND PENALTIES.

ADDRESS OF REV, A. M. MILLIGAN AT THE PITTSBURGH CONVENTION.

This is the clearest and most conclusive argument to show the wickedness of masonic oaths and the duty to disregard and repent of them that we have ever seen.

A 4 page tract, 50 cents per 100, $4.00 per 1,000

TRACT NO. 24.

SHOULD FREEMASONS BE ADMITTED TO CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP?

The principles and teachings of Freemasonry taken from the highest masonic authorities are compared with those of the Bible, several Masonic Oaths are given in whole or in part with the comments of Rev's. Moses Stewart, Nathaniel Colver, and Charles G Finney, on this character. Those who love a pure Christianity should aid in the circulation of this tract. A 4 page tract, 50cts. per 100, $4.00 per 1,000.

TRACT NO. 25.

The American Party,

ITS OBJECT, ORGANIZATION, PLATFORM AND CANDIDATES.

Some of the ablest men in the nation have pronounced our platform the best that has been presented to the American people for the past fifty years Our Candidates are men of acknowledged ability and honesty, and if every voter in the United States could read this onr "POLITICAL TRACT," our Candidates conld undoubtedly be elected. One friend pledges a dollar for every other dollar contributed and this 8 page tract costs but $1.00 per 100, or $8.00 per 1,000.

TRACT NO. 1, IN SWEDISH;

translated by Prof. A. R. CERVIN. A 15-page tract at $2.00 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

ENOCH HONEYWELL'S TRACT.

TO THE YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA. Postage 5cts. per 100, TRACTS FREE.

GERMAN CYNOSUCE TRACT A.

Six Reasons why a Christian should not be a Freemason.

By Rev. A. GROLE, Pastor, German M. E. Church, Worchester, Mass

This is our first German Tract, and it is a good one; it onght to have a large circulation. A 4 page tract, Price 50 cents per 100; $4.00 per 1,000.

FREE TRACTS.

A Tract Fund for the Free Distribution of Tracts

HAS BEEN SECURED AND SHOULD NEVER BE EXHAUSTED. A friend has pledged this fund a dollar for every other dollar received, so EVERY NEW SUBSCRIPTION TO THE TRACT FUND COUNTS DOUBLE, and thus $10.00 pays for 20,000 pages of tracts.

The distribntion of these tracts has already saved hundreds of yonng men from the lodge, but there is a great lack of funds to snpply the constantly increasing demand for Free Tracts.

During the year ending July 1st, 1875 a little less than 150.000 pages of Cynosnre Tracts were gratnitously sent out, mostly in very small lots. The present demand is fully 100.000 pages per month. but fnnds are lacking to meet it.

Many of our most earnest workers in this canse of God are poor men, who wonld be gladto circulate thousands of pages of Antimasonic literature if they could have them free.

SHALL WE NOT HAVE AN INEXHAUSTIBLE TRACT FUND?

"THE ANTI-MASONS SCRAP BOOK."

Contains 24 Cynosnre Tracts, bonnd together and is just the thing to select from. Price 20cents. See advertisement page 15.

Enoch Honeywell Esq., pays for an unlimited number of his tract addressed "TO THE YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA." It is an excelent tract, bearing the printed endorsement of Executive Committee of the National Christian Association. He has furnished the public over 150.000 pages of these tracts during the past year.

TRACTS FREE. If sent by mail, 5 cts per 100 is charged for postage,

Send Contribntions and orders to

EZRA A. COOK.

Secretary of Tract Committee 13 Wabash Ave, Chicago, Ill.

Descriptive Catalogue of Publications of Ezra A. Cook & Co.

13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

BOOKS.

FREEMASONRY EXPOSED,
by CAP'T. WILLIAM MORGAN.

THE GENUINE OLD MORGAN BOOK:—republished with engravings showing the Lodge Room, Dress of candidates, Signs, Due Guards, Grips, Etc.

This revelation is so accurate that Freemasons murdered the author for writing it. Thousands have testified to the correctness of the revelation and this book therefore sells very rapidly.

Price 25 cents.

Per Doz. Post Paid..... $2.00
Per hundred by express, (express charges extra.)..... $10.00

ODD FELLOWSHIP ILLUSTRATED.

A complete exposition of the Lodge Encampment and Rebecca (Ladies') Degres. The Signs, Grips, &c., shown by engravings.

Single copy, post paid,..... $ 25
Per Doz., " " 2 00
Per Hundred, Express charges extra,..... 10 00

EXPOSITION OF THE GRANGE.

EDITED BY REV. A. W. GREESLIN.

Illustrated with Engravings showing Lodge Room, Signs, Signals, etc.

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 25
Per Doz., " " 2 00
Per 100 Express charges extra..... 10 00

Judge Whitney's Defense Before the Grand Lodge of Ill.

Judge Daniel H. Whitney was Master of the Lodge when S. L. Keith, a member of his lodge, murdered Ellen Slade. Judge Whitney, by attempting to bring Keith to justice, brought on himself the vengeance of the Lodge, but he boldly replied to the charges against him, and afterwards renounced Masonry.

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 20
Per Doz. " " 1 50
Per 100, Express charges extra..... 8 00

History of The Abduction and Murder of Cap't. Wm. Morgan,

As prepared by Seven Committees of Citizens, appointed to ascertain the fate of Morgan.

This book contains indisputable, legal evidence that Freemasons, abducted and Murdered Wm. Morgan, for no other offence than the revelation of Masonry. It contains the sworn testimony of over twenty persons, including Morgan's wife, and no candid person after reading this book, can doubt that many of the most respectable FREEMASONS. in the Empire State, with others were concerned in this crime.

Single Copy, post Paid,... ..... 25 cents.
Per doz. " ..... $2,00.
Per 100, Express Charges Extra,..... 10.00.

Valance's Confession of The Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan.

This confession of Henry L. Valance, one of the three Freemasons who drowned Morgan in the Niagara River, was taken from the lips of the dying man by Dr. John C. Emery, of Racine County, Wisconsin in 1848; The confession bears clear evidence of truthfulness.

Single copy, post paid,..... 20 cents.
Per doz. " ..... $1.50.
Per 100 Express Charges Extra,..... 8.00.

The Mystic Tie or Freemasonry a League with the Devil.

This is an account of the Church Trial of Peter Cook, and wife of Elkhart, Indiana, for refusing to support a Reverend Freemason; and their very able defence presented by Mrs. Lucia C. Cook, in which she clearly shows that Freemasonry, is antagonistic to the Christian Religion. Single Copy, post paid,..... 20 cents

Per dozen, post paid..... $1 50
Per hundred Express charges Extra..... 9 00

NARRATIVES AND ARGUMENTS.

Showing the Conflict of Secret Societies with the Constitution and Laws of the Union and of the States, by FRANCIS SEMPLE.

The fact that Secret Societies interfere with the execution and pervert the administration of Law is here clearly proved.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 20
Per doz. " " $1.75
Per 100 Express charges Extra..... 9.00

THE BROKEN SEAL.

OR PERSONAL REMINISCENCES OF THE ABDUCTION AND MURDER OF Wm. MORGAN,

By SAMUEL D. GREENE,

Price in cloth, $..00. Paper covers, 50 cents.
In Paper Covers per Doz. Post paid..... $4 50
" per hundred by express (ex. charges extra $25.00

Capt. Wm. Morgan was Mr. Greene's neighbor in Batavia, N. Y., and a member of the same lodge with him at the time of the great excitement in 1826. The titles to these chapters are sufficiently exciting to give the book a large sale:—"The Storm Gathering;" "Abduction of Morgan;" "Attempted Abdnction of Miller and his Rescue;" "What became of Morgan;" "What Morgan Actually Revealed;" "Confession of the Murderer;" "Allegations against Freemasonry, etc."

THE ANTI-MASON'S SCRAP BOOK,
CONSISTING OF 21 CYNOSURE TRACTS.

In this book are the views of more than a Score of men, many of them of distinguished ability, on the subject of Secret Societies.

The dangerous tendency and positive evil of organized Secrecy is here shown by the most varied and powerful arguments and illustrations that have ever been given to the public.

Lecturers and others who wish to find the best arguments against the Lodge, should send for this book.

Those who wish to circulate Antimasonic Tracts ought to have the book to select from.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 20 cents.
Per Doz. " $1.75
Per 100, Express charges Extra,..... $10.00

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion.

A clear cutting argument against the Lodge, from a Christian Stand point.

Single Copy post paid..... $ 05
Per doz. " " 50
Per 100 Express Charges Extra..... 3 00

President H. H. GEORGE, On Secret Societies.

A powerful address, showing clearly the duty of Christian Churches, to disfellowship Secret Societies.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 10 cts.
Per doz, " ..... 75 "
Per 100, Express charges Extra, ... $4.00.

PHELPS, SECRET SOCIETIES Ancient and Modern.

A NEW BOOK OF GREAT INTEREST.

This work is particularly commended to the attention of Officers of The Army and Navy, The Bench and The Clergy.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

"THE ANTIQUITY OF SECRET SOCIETIES, THE LIFE OF JULIAN, THE ELEUSINIAN MYSTERIES, THE ORIGIN OF MASONRY, WAS WASHINGTON A MASON? FILMORE'S AND WEBSTER'S DEFERENCE TO MASONRY, A BRIEF OUTLINE OF THE PROGRESS OF MASONRY IN THE UNITED STATES, THE TAMMANY RING, MASONIC BENEVOLENCE, THE USES OF MASONRY, AN ILLUSTRATION, THE CONCLUSION."

Single Copy, Post Paid..... 50
Per Doz " " $4 75
Per Hundred, Express Charges Extra..... $25 00

HON. JOHN QUINCY ADAMS' LETTERS
to Col. Wm. Stone, Edward Livingstone, and others, on the nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties.

Price, post paid..... $ 50
Per Doz., " 4 50
Per 100, Express Charges extra..... 25 00

COLLEGE SECRET SOCIETIES.

Their Customs, Character and the Efforts for their Suppression.
BY H. L. KELLOGG.

Containing the opinion of many prominent College Presidents, and others, and a FULL ACCOUNT OF THE MURDER OF MORTIMER LEGGETT

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 35
Per Doz " " 2 50
Per 100 Express charges extra..... 15 00

MINUTES OF THE SYRACUSE CONVENTION,

Containing addresses by Rev. B. T. Roberts, Chas. D. Greene, Esq., Prof. C. A. Blanchard, Rev. D. P. Rathbun, Rev. D. S. Caldwell, Mrs. M. E. Gage, Elder J. R. Baird and others. Unpublished Reminiscences of the Morgan Times, by Elder David Bernard; Recollections of the Morgan Trials, as related by Victory Birdseye, Esq., and presented by his daughter, Mrs. C. B. Miller; Secretary's report; roll of delegates; songs of Mr. G. A. Clark; paper by Enoch Honeywell; Constitution N. C. A.; reports of committees, and a report of the political meeting.

Single Copy, post paid, ... 25
Per doz. " " $2.00
Per 100 Express Charges Extra..... 10.00

Paoceedings of the Pittsburgh Convention,

Containing Official Reports; Addresses by Rev. D. R. Kerr, D.D. Rev. B. T. Roberts, Rev. G. T. R. Meiser, Prof. J. R. W. Sloane, D. D., Pres't. J. Bianchard, Rev. A. M. Milligan, D. D., Rev. Woodruff Post, Rev. Henry Cogswell, Prof. C. A. Blanchard, and Rev W. E. Coquillette, also Report of the POLITICAL MASS CONVENTION, with Platform and Candidates for the Presidential Campaign of 1876.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 25 cts.
Per doz " $2,00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 10.00

SERMON ON MASONRY,
BY REV. W. P. M'NARY,
Pastor United Presbyterian Church, Bloomington, Ind.

This is a very clear, thorough, candid and remarkably concise Scriptural argument on the character of Freemasonry.

Single Copy, Post Paid,..... 5
Per Doz,..... 50
Per Hundred, Express Charges Extra..... $3 00

THIRTEEN REASONS

Why a Christian Should not be a Freemason. By Rev. Robert Armstrong.

The author states his reasons clearly and carefully, and any one of the thirteen reasons, if properly considered, will keep a Christian out of the Lodge.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 5
Per doz. " " 50
Per 100, Express charges extra, ... $3.00

SERMON ON MASONRY,
BY REV. JAMES WILLIAMS.

Presiding Elder of Dakota District North-western Iowa Conference, M. E. Church, A SECEDING MASTER MASON.

Published at the special request of the Nine Clergymen of different denominations and others.

Single Copy, post paid..... 10
Per doz. " " 75
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... $4.00

MASONRY A WORK OF DARKNESS

ADVERSE TO CHRISTIANITY, and Inimical to a Republican Government.
BY REV. LEBBEUS ARMSTRONG, [Presbyterian.]
A Seceding Mason of 21 Degrees.

This is a very telling work and no honest man that reads it will think of joining the lodge. Single Copy, post paid,..... 20cts.
Per doz, post paid,..... $1.50.
" 100, Express Charges Extra..... 8.00.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy.

Address of Prest. J. BLANCHARD, before the Pittsburgh Convention.

This is a most convincing argument against the lodge.

Single Copy, Post Paid..... $ 05
Per Doz " " 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

GRAND LODGE MASONRY.

Its relation to civil Government and the Christian Religion.
By Prest. J. BLANCHARD, at the Monmouth Convention.

The Unchristian, anti-republican and despotic character of Freemasonry is here proved from the highest masonic authorities.

Single Copy, Post Paid,..... $ 05
Per Doz..... 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

SERMON ON SCERETISM
BY REV. R. THEO. CROSS.

This is a very clear array of the objections to Masonry that are apparent to all.

By Rev. R. T. Cross, Pastor Congregational Church, Hamilton, N.Y.

Single Copy, Post Paid..... $ 05
Per Doz..... 50
Per 100, Express Charges Extra..... 3.00

Sermon on Secret Societies,
BY REV. DANIEL DOW, Woodstock, Conn.

The special object of this sermon is to show the right and duty of Christians to examine into the Character of Secret Societies, no matter what object they profess to have.

Single Copy, post paid..... $ 05
Per Dozen, " " 50
Per 100 Express charges extra..... 3 00

HISTORY OF THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

Its origin, objects, what it has done and aims to do, and the best means to accomplish the end sought; The Articles of Incorporation, Constitution and By-laws of the Association, Conditions of the Carpenter Donation with Engraving of building to be donated by Mr. Carpenter; Tables showing the number of Pastors and communicants in churches that exclude members of Secret Societies, Tabular view of Local, County State and National Conventions, and list of organizations Auxiliary to the National Christian Association; Brief opinions of Eminent Men on Secret Societies, and Testimonies of Religious Bodies against them. This book will be found invaluable by all who wish to know the character of this reform and how they may do the most to further its objects. It should be in the hands of every Antimason.

Price post paid,..... 25 cents each,
per doz;..... $1,50
25 copies or more by express at 8 cents each.

NEW BOOKS

HAND BOOK

—OF—

FREEMASONRY,

A COMPLETE

Illustrated Exposition,

—OF—

BLUE LODGE MASONRY

—BY—

EDMOND RONAYNE,

LATE PAST MASTER OF KEYSTONE LODGE, NO. 639, CHICAGO, ILL.

Single Copy, post paid,..... 50cts.
Per doz. " " $4.00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra,..... 25.00

RITUAL OF THE

GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC

WITH SIGN OF RECOGNITION,
PASS WORD GRIP ETC,

—AND THE—

RITUAL OF THE

MACHINISTS AND BLACKSMITHS UNION,

(THE TWO BOUND TOGETHER.)

Single Copy, post paid,..... 25
Per doz. " $2.00
Per 100, Express Charges Extra,..... 1000

Publishers' Department.

The Mail List.

No. of Sub. Sat. Feb. 26	4,026
" " " " 19	3,958
Gain in one week,	68

The total gain in the last four weeks, during which time about two hundred names have been removed, is 145. The gain in the last eight weeks has been 513. This week there are about two hundred more to remove but we hope we to continue to gain on the losses. Now that the number is above four thousand shall we not keep it there?

Wm. Hallowell, Lanark, Ill., sends a club of nine subscribers for a year. James Peterman, Fredericksburg, O., sends a club of seven for a year. Lois B. Smith sends eight; three for a year, two for six months and three for three months.

Two hundred and eighty-five subscriptions expire in March. If each one on renewing sends as many new ones as possible the list will continue to increase. Next week we report the Cynosure debt.

Rising in the World.

You should bear in mind that nine-tenths of us are, from the very natures and necessities of the world, born to gain our livlihood by the sweat of the brow. What reason have we, then, to presume that our children are not to do the same? If they be, as now and then one will be, endowed with extraordinary powers of mind, these powers may have an opportunity of developing themselves; and if they never have that opportunity, the harm is not very great to us or to them. Nor does it hence follow that the descendants of laborers are always to be laborers. The path upwards is steep and long, to be to be sure. Industry, care, skill, excellence, in the present parent, lay the foundation of a rise, under more favorable circumstances, for the children. The children of these take another rise; and by and by the descendants of the present laborer become gentlemen. This is the natural progress. It is by attempting to reach the top at a single leap that so much misery is produced in the world; and the propensity to make such an attempt has been cherished and encouraged by the strange projects that we have witnessed of late years for making the laborers virtuous and happy by giving them what is called education. The education which I speak of consists in bringing children up to labor with steadiness, with care and with skill; to show them how to do as many useful things as possible, to teach them to do them all in the best manner; to set them an example in industry, sobriety, cleanliness and neatness; to make all these habitual to them, so that they never shall be liable to fall into the contrary; to let them always see a good living proceeding from labor, and thus to remove them from the temptation to get at the goods of others by violent or fraudulent means, and to keep far from their minds all the inducements to hypocrisy and deceit.—William Cobbett.

SUBSCRIPTIONS RECEIVED DURING WEEK ENDING Feb 26th, 1876, from M J Andrews, J Adams, C E Brookhard, J Burge, J L Barlow, B W Bowman, E Bascom, W M Boyd, J M Bishop, H P Bible House, W Blakeslee, H Cogewell, B P Crocker, J A Conant, T F Curry, D Countryman, P Cromwell, C Compton, E DeGray, S Durkee, S Fry. J Fetterhoff, M E Fish, W Hallowell, J S Hickman, J Holm A Hard J D Haughawout, W A Harper, D Kneisley, J T Kiggins, L E Learned, J A Morehouse, R Moore, M Matthieson, C McMillan, J Miller, J McConnell, M B Nichols, W I Phillips, J Pixley, J Peterman, H H Robinson, R Rogers, L Raymo, J Shaw, J Seger, L B Smith, A Story. J Taylor, W C Teter, L J Ward, A Wright.

SOMETHING NEW.

A CHART OF MASONRY

Showing the degrees from the first to the thirty-third, entitled

Degrees of Ancient Accepted Scottish Freemasonry,

According to a Mannal by Wm. M. Cunningham 33d Degree.

Designed by Rev. P. Stoddard, to explain Freemasonry, as shown by Morgan's Exposition and Richardson's Monitor.

A Neat Lithograph 22x28 inches.

Single copies finely colored, post paid.....	$ 75
Per dozen " " " "	5 00
Per 100 " " " " Express charges extra.....	35 00
Single copy, colored, varnished and mounted postpaid.....	1 00
Per dozen colored, varnished and mounted, post paid.....	7 50
Per 100, colored, varnished and mounted, express charges extra.....	50 00

25 COPIES OR MORE SENT AT THE 100 RATES.

TERMS FOR THE CYNOSURE.

$2.00 per annum, in advance.
20c " " " " for postage.

All who canvass for the CYNOSURE are allowed a cash commission of twenty per cent. or twenty-five per cent in books at retail prices, one-half this percentage on renewals, and any one sending $100. for the CYNOSURE during three months, will be entitled to an extra five per cent.

All responsible persons who desire to promote this reform are authorized to act as agents.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO, Feb. 28, 1876.

Grain Wheat—Spring, No. 1..	$1 09¼	1 09¾
" No. 2.....	1 02	1 02½
" No. 3.....	79½	80
" Rejected.....		68
Corn—No. 2.....	41⅝	42
Rejected.....	33	32¼
Oats—No. 2	31	31¼
Rejected.....		27
Rye—No. 2.....	64	65
Bran per ton.....		10 00
Flour—Winter.....	4 75	7 50
Spring.....	3 00	5 25
Hay—Timothy.....	8 00	12 00
Prairie, "	5 00	8 00
Mess Beef.....	8 50	10 00
Tallow.....		8¼
Dressed Hogs.....	9 25	9 70
Lard per cwt.....		12 75
Mess pork, per bbl.....		21 25
Butter fancy yellow 33c.; common to choice roll.....	16	24
Cheese	9	13¼
Eggs.....	14	15
Seeds—Timothy.....	1 95	2 80
Clover	8 25
Flax	1 15	1 25
Poultry—Turkeys per lb dressed	12	15
Chickens " "	9	11
Apples from store.....	3 00	4 00
Broom corn	3	11
HIDES green to dry salted.....	5	12
Lumber—Clear.....	38 00	40 00
Common.	11 00	12 00
Fencing.....	12 00	13 00
Shingles.....	2 75	3 00
WOOL—Washed.....	39	53
Unwashed.....	25	33
LIVE STOCK Cattle, Choice..	5 00	5 40
Good	4 25	4 75
Medium.....	4 50	4 25
Common.....	3 00	3 75
Hogs.....	7 00	9 00
Sheep.....	3 75	7 00

New York Market

Flour.....	$ 3 50	9 00
Wheat—Winter.....	1 19	1 50
Spring.....	1 00	1 36
Corn.....	60½	64½
Oats.....	45	52
Rye.....	87	88
Lard.....		13¾
Mess pork.....		22 75
Butter.....	15	33
Cheese...	6	12½
Eggs.....	21	22

How to Send Money.

Post office orders, checks or drafts on Chicago or towns east of Chicago, and currency by express may be sent at our risk. If it is not possible to send by either of the four ways named, money in a registered letter may be sent at our risk, but it is not as safe.

The date at which subscriptions expire is with each subscriber's name on the address label. Send renewals before this date occurs. Notice if this date is changed to correspond; if not or if the paper fails to come, write without delay.

We discontinue during the first part of each month all subscriptions which expire during the preceding one except such as are ordered continued with a promise to forward the money soon. Address all letters with subscriptions or orders for Books, Tracts and donations to the Tract Fund to EZRA A. COOK & Co., 13 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

ADVERTISING RATES.

1	square, 1 insertion,			$2.00
1	square (1 inch deep)	one	month	7.00
1	" "	2	"	10.00
1	" "	3	"	15.00
1	" "	6	"	25.00
1	" "	12	"	40.00

Discount for Space.

On 2 squares 5 per cent, On 3 squares 10 per cent
On 4 " 15 " " On 5 " 20 "
On ¼ col. 25 per cent On one col. 30 per cent

Agents Wanted!

TO SELL THE PUBLICATIONS OF

EZRA A. COOK & CO.

Liberal Terms Offered.

Capable persons who are in need of pecuniary aid may clear

Handsome Profits,

While at the same time aiding the cause of Reform. Apply to EZRA A. COOK & CO., No. 13 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

$250 A MONTH—Agents wanted everywhere. Business honorable and first class. Particulars sent Address J. WORTH & Co., St. Louis, Mo. 1yrJul

$77 A WEEK guaranteed to Male and Female Agents, in their locality. Costs NOTHING to try it. Particulars Free. P. O. VICKERY & CO., Augusta, Me. 6m.dec.30-75.

SAVE MONEY

by sending $4.75 for any $4 Magazine and THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE (regular price $6), or $5.75 for the Magazine and THE SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE (regular price $3). Address

THE TRIBUNE, New-York.

Postage on the Cynosure.

THE POSTAGE ON THE CYNOSURE MUST BE PAID AT CHICAGO. It is twenty cents a year.

The cost of postage now depends entirely on the size and weight, and therefore some smaller papers charge but fifteen cents; and others about the size of the Cynosure charge twenty-five cents a year for postage.

If the subscription price of the CYNOSURE was $2.50 or $3.00 a year, the price of many religious papers containing no more reading matter, we might afford to pay the postage ourselves, but at $2.00 a year we cannot do this with our present Subscription list.

Therefore let all send the postage, 20 cents a year, 10 cents for half a year with their renewals.

The commission on one new subscription for a year will pay the postage on your own and the new subscriber's paper. We would rather have the postage paid by commissions than in any other way.

When postage is not paid we shall have to shorten the time of subscription sufficiently to pay it.

NEW CLUB RATES

—FOR—

1876.

CLUB RATES.

No commission is allowed on club rates. Club rates are intended for those who wish to give the ommission to subscribers.

Club Rates Including Postage.

Papers Addressed to one or different Post Offices as desired.

2 to 4 Subs., 1 year, Old or New sent at one time, at	$2.00 each
5 to 9 " " " " " "	1 80 "
10 to 14 " " " " " "	1.70 "
15 to 19 " " " " " "	1.60 "
20 or more " " " " " "	1.50 "

Subscription Papers and Circulars sent free on application.

Excelsior Marriage Certificate.

It is decidedly the most BEAUTIFUL, TASTEFUL and SENSIBLE thing of the kind I have ever seen."—Rev. F. G. Hibbard, D. D.

"The most SCRIPTURAL, BEAUTIFUL and APPROPRIATE Marriage Certificate I have ever seen."—Late Rev. H. Mattison, D. D.

"SOMETHING NEW AND BEAUTIFUL, which we pronounce the handsomest thing of the kind we ever laid eyes on."—Meth. Home Journal, Phila. Contains two Ornamental Ovals, for Photographs

A BEAUTIFUL LITHOGRAPH 14 1-4 by 18 1-4 inches. 25 cts each, $2.25 per doz- $15 per 100.

For Sale by Ezra A. Cook & Co.. CHICAGO.

CALIFORNIA

Have you any thought of going to California? Are you going West, North, or North-West? You want to know the best routes to take?

The shortest, safest, quickest and most comfortable routes are those owned by the Chicago and North-Western Railway Company. It owns over two thousand miles of the best roads there is in the country. Ask any ticket agent to show you its maps and time cards. All ticket agents can sell you through tickets by this route.

Buy your tickets via the Chicago & North-Western Railway for the West and North-West, and for

SAN FRANCISCO,

Sacramento, Ogden, Salt Lake City, Cheyenne, Denver, Omaha, Lincoln, Council Bluffs, Yankton, Sionx City, Dubuque, Winona, St. Paul, Duluth, Marquette, Green Bay, Oshkosh, Madison, Milwaukee, and all other points West or North-West of Chicago.

If you wish the best traveling accommodations, you will buy your tickets by this route, and will take no other.

This popular route is unsurpassed for speed, comfort and safety. The smooth, well-ballasted and perfect track of Steel Rails, Westinghouse Air Brakes, Miller's Safety Platform and Couplers, the celebrated Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars, the perfect Telegraph System of Moving Trains, the regularity with which they run, the admirable arrangement for running Through Cars from Chicago to all points West, North and North-West, secures to passengers all the COMFORTS IN MODERN RAILWAY TRAVELING.

PULLMAN PALACE CARS

are run on all through trains of this road.

This is the ONLY LINE running these cars between Chicago and St. Paul, Chicago and Milwaukee, or Chicago and Winona.

At Omaha our Sleepers connect with the Overland Sleepers on the Union Pacific Railroad for all points West of the Missouri River.

On the arrival of the trains from the East or South, the trains of the Chicago and North-Western Railway LEAVE CHICAGO as follows:

For Council Bluffs, Omaha and California, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Palace Drawing Room and Sleeping Cars through to Council Bluffs.

For St. Paul and Minneapolis, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Palace Cars attached on both trains.

For Green Bay and Lake Superior, Two Trains daily, with Pullman Palace Cars attached, and running through to Marquette.

For Milwaukee, four Through Trains daily. Pullman Cars on night trains, Parlor Chair Cars on day trains.

For Sparta and Winona and points in Minnesota, One Through Train daily, with Pullman Sleepers to Winona.

For Dubuque, via Freeport, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Cars on night trains.

For Dubuque and La Crosse, via Clinton, Two Through Trains daily, with Pullman Cars on night trains to McGregor, Iowa.

For Sioux City and Yankton, Two Trains daily. Pullman Cars to Missouri Valley Junction.

For Lake Geneva, Four Trains daily.

For Rockford, Sterling, Kenosha, Janesville, and other points you can have from two to ten trains daily

New York Office, No. 415 Broadway; Boston Office, No. 5 State Street; Omaha Office, 253 Farnham Street; San Francisco Office, 121 Montgomery Street; Chicago Ticket Offices: 62 Clark Street, under Sherman House: corner Canal and Madison Streets; Kinzie Street Depot, corner W. Kinzie and Canal Streets; Wells Street Depot, corner Wells and Kinzie Streets.

For rates or information not attainable from your home ticket agents, apply to

W. H. STENNETT, MARVIN HUGHITT,
Gen. Pass. Ag't, Chicago. Gen. Sup't, Chicago.
[Eastern.]

THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.

"In Secret Have I Said Nothing."—Jesus Christ.

EZRA A. COOK & CO., PUBLISHERS, NO 13 WABASH AVENUE.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, MARCH 9, 1876.

VOL. VIII., NO. 22.—WHOLE NO. 309
WEEKLY (post paid) $2 20 A YEAR

Contents.

	Page
EDITORIAL ARTICLES:
Possibilities	8
A Weak and Wicked Statement	8
The War Secretary's Fall	8
CONTRIBUTED AND SELECT ARTICLES:
Three Notable Oaths	2
The Connection between the Englishand Continental Lodges	2
War and the Bible	3
REFORM NEWS AND NOTICES;
From The Illinois Agent in Henry and Bureau Counties; Lenawee Co,, Mich.; Past Master Ronayne in New York	4,5
CORRESPONDENCE:
From Batavia, N. Y.; Rochester History in the Times of Morgan and Finney; "Bogus" and Genuine Frauds; Yates City Lodges a Happy Family; Our Mail	6,7
POLITICAL	4
List of Seceding Masons	5
N. C. A. Department	9
Odd-fellowship, Masonry, the Grange and Knightsof Pythias	12
THE HOME CIRCLE	10
CHILDREN'S CORNER	11
The Sabbath School	7
Home and Health	11
Temperance	4
Farm and Garden	7
Religious Intelligence	9
Publishers' Department	16

Clubs of Ten, Seventeen Dollars!

Clubs of Twenty, Thirty Dollars.

See Sixteenth Page, Top of Fourth Column.

13 WABASH AVE., CHICAGO, March 4, 1876.

DEAR READERS OF THE CYNOSURE:

In accordance with the view which we expressed in the letter we addressed to you last September, the past fall and winter has made a good record of work accomplished in the Anti-masonic reform.

Interesting and important

STATE MEETINGS

have been held in New Hampshire, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa and Missouri. In addition to these many other large, enthusiastic meetings have been held in various places.

The last ten thousand dollars of the fifty thousand towards securing the

NATIONAL PUBLISHING HOUSE

in addition to the first $20,000 (the v lue of the house offered by Philo Carpenter) and $8,400 of the third $10,000 which will, we have faith to believe, be entirely raised before April next, has been secured.

During the past six months public initiations have been given by Past Master Edmond Ronayne with scarce an exception to remarkably large audiences in Rochester, Syracuse, Lockport, Spencer, Batavia, Seneca Falls and Breesport in the State of New York; in Peoria, Elmwood, Farmington, Lanark, Crystal Lake, McHenry, Warren, Rossville and Nunda, in Illinois; in Scranton, Pennsylvania; in Sugar Creek, Wisconsin; in Mason City, Waverly, Colo and Clear Lake in Iowa; in Xenia, Greenfield and Dayton in Ohio; in Fenton, Flint, Brighton, Ypsilanti, Pleasant Valley and Howell in Michigan; in Marion, Kendalville, Albion and Ligonier in Indiana, and at probably a dozen more places of which we have no record. The effect of on public sentiment has been truly wonderful. The most timid good men have been emboldened to speak freely of the character of Freemasonry and the very boys on the street have by practicing the signs, grips, and pass-words in public, aided in making the order odious to the community.

THESE OPEN INITIATIONS

The following letters are fair samples of the many testimonies to in arrousing the people and strengthening the cause of reform.

MR. RONAYNE'S GREAT EFFICIENCY

Of Mr. Ronayne's exposition at the New York State Convention one member of the convention gives a glowing report from which we quote a closing remark:

"Time fails me to tell all, but let me say such floods of light have never been poured on Rochester, nor such an intense desire manifested to know of this great evil since Morgan was abducted and paid the penalty for exposing the craft."

Another writing of the same meeting speaks more specifically:

Long before the hall doors were opened, the crowd began to gather, filling all the outside spaces clear down into the street; and upon opening the doors still the numbers came quickly filling the hall, permanent seats, stools and standing room until it would hold no more, when the doors were shut enclosing 1,700 people, and turning away more than 500 anxious to enter. . . . . Thus Masonry was exposed in Rochester as never before; and hundreds went away to despise an institution they had hitherto supposed to be a good one "because there are so many ministers in it," satisfied that neither ministers nor salt-petre can save it when it shall become known in all its naked hideousness."

FARMINGTON, Ill., Nov. 20, 1875.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—Our slumbers here have been broken in upon this week by brother Ronayne for which we feel disposed to thank both him and the Lord. Assisted by Bro. W. H Marsh, he initiated a candidate into the first and third degrees of Masonry, showing not only that its ceremonies are a ridiculous farce, but that its oaths make it a dangerous institution in our republican government; while its observances paralyze the piety of its church-going members. Few, if any, listened to his lectures without being convinced of the truthfulness of his exposure; and a healthy agitation now seems to pervade our community. Some who have been members endorse the statements of Bro. Ronayne and speak freely of its baleful influence upon themselves. Those who have been friends of this movement, but silent, are now speaking freely. Surely a brighter day has dawned upon us. Yours,

P. P. CHAPMAN.

The interest in the POLITICAL MOVEMENT

has not been cultivated much, but now that the political tract is ready for circulation this branch of reform promises to stir the sluggish and poisonous political atmosphere in a healthful way whatever else it may accomplish.

Those working for the success of by writing for its columns and by enlarging its subscription list have a report for the past six months for which to be thankful to our Heavenly Father from whom every "good and perfect gift" comes. The columns speak for themselves. The large debt which grimly threatened the successful growth and usefulness fo the Cynosure has been vigorously and resolutely attacked. The cash receipts for Cynosure subscriptions have paid the current expenses of the paper and $1,464.14 of the $2,519.01, which was its indebtedness November first. The debt on the first of this month was $1,054.87. We will mention on the sixteenth page the names of all who have secured clubs of five or more since our new club rates were published, for the encouragement of those who are now working for subscriptions. So much for the fall and winter work.

THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE

What will be donethis spring and summer?

The National Christian Association will, we trust, establish its

"HEADQUARTERS"

in a pleasant and permanent home.

THE NATIONAL MASS MEETING will be held in Chicago from the 20th to 22nd of next June. Several State meetings will be held.

We anticipate a thorough circulation of the

NEW POLITICAL TRACT

with desirable results.

Having learned from our recent letters that some could not canvass this winter on account of mud, or of sickness, or of business, we have thought that, perhaps, they can work when those who have been canvassing are otherwise occupied.

We propose as the spring and summer work for the Cynosure that a sufficient numberof subscriptions be secured to pay the current expenses of the paper together with the remaining debt of $1,054.87. On our part, we agree that, as soon as this debt is paid, we will buy

NEW TYPE FOR THE CYNOSURE.

We promised about three years ago that if you would put the Cynosure out of debt we would enlarge it. You did so and on the first of April, 1874, the paper was enlarged. We now promise to procure new type As soon as the paper is out of debt again. We have been slow to suggest this for we know that the expenses of a paper, generally, are greater than the receipts during the spring and summer months. That the fall and winter is the favored time for enlarging subscription lists. Yet if you can pay $1,460 00 on the debt during the past four months by the efficient labor of a very few of our subscribers, when compared with the whole list of four thousand,

IT CAN BE DONE.

We do not wish those, who by practice have learned how to secure subscribers, to cease their efforts, but we do ask those who feel that they can and ought to do more to increase the circulation of the paper than they have done, to do so.

CLERGYMEN

have opportunities to do this at almost every season of the year. One clergyman sent in a club of ten, secured simply by presenting the importance of the paper to his parishioners as they called upon him in his study. Another clergyman who had just sent in thirteen names from Oregon speaks of the "pleasant task" of securing subscribers for the paper and adds: "The people are seeking light. By means of reading and reflection they are more likely to become informed than they would by groping their way through a room with a bandage upon their eyes."

The spring and summer is especially favorable for LADIES' WORK.

But aside from the importance of having the Cynosure pay its way, which is indispensably necessary, it is important that the paper be very generally read in order to mould or direct popular sentiment Often when reading an argument or statement in the paper, we say, almost involuntarily, "I wish a hundred thousand citizens of our country could read this," and that would be a small proportion out of our nearly 40,000,000 inhabitants.

Our list, now scarcely four thousand, will profitably bear as much labor as its readers can bestow upon it. Within five or ten miles of hundreds of our subscribers we presume there are intelligent persons who are able to pay for the Cynosure, who know very little or nothing of the merits of the paper and yet who would subscribe for it if the matter was properly presented. We hope none of our readers will leave an undue share of this work for the Cynosure to rest upon those who will do more than their part if others neglect it.

FAITHFUL AND LARGE-HEARTED PERSONS

Let all whom God anoints for this department of labor take hold together and destroy the debt of the paper by the successful descent of their clubs. Not pugilistic weapons of wood and iron but two, five, ten, twenty or more new subscriptions and in acknowledgment of the victory the Cynosure will beam upon its readers through its new type with a clear, beautiful and none the less penetrating radiance.

CLUBS OF NAMES,

Yours truly,

EZRA A. COOK & Co., Publishers.

Three Notable Oaths.

BY PROF. W. O. TOBEY.

We find in the Scriptures a record of three oaths which are worthy of an analysis.

The first is that oath which Saul imposed upon his army, when pursuing the Philistines (1 Sam. xiv.). The king swore that he would destroy any man in his army who should taste food until evening. He took this rash oath to compel his men to pursue the enemy without loss of a moment's time. There were several serious results of this folly. One was that the people were cruelly distressed with hunger that day, and as Jonathan, Saul's son, truly said: "My father hath troubled the land" by his oath. Again, the people being forbidden to do a lawful and reasonable thing, were tempted to do an unlawful thing. For in the evening being "faint" with hunger "the people flew upon the spoil" and ate sheep, oxen and calves "with the blood" in a manner forbidden by the law of God. Another result was, that Jonathan having merely tasted some wild honey in the woods before evening became a violater of the king's requirement and thus occasioned no little trouble. As the king suspected that somebody had violated the command, he took another oath that he would put the guilty one to death even though it were his son Jonathan. As it actually turned out to be his heroic son, he was led to take still another profane oath and called upon God to kill him if he would not carry out his oath to kill Jonathan. Thus one wicked oath leads to others more profane.

When unnecessary oaths are taken affecting men, some may come under those obligations ignorantly, as Jonathan did, or they may thoughtlessly place themselves under them, and in the end these innocent and unsuspecting persons may be doomed to death as Saul doomed Jonathan, and as many no doubt have been marked for death by certain oath-bound orders of the past and present. The execution of these murderous oaths is a violation of the common notion of humanity, and the people will rise up in stern protestation as they did in behalf of Jonathan, and as they did in indignation all over this country after the murder of William Morgan. As a commentor says of the case of Saul, "Reckless zeal, profane swearing and great cruelty may all be united, and under cover of regard for truth and duty, stifle even natural affection and lead to the commission of the most abominable crimes."

A second reckless oath is that taken by King Herod. (Matt. xiv.) He promised with an oath to give the daughter of Herodias whatsoever she would ask, on a certain occasion. This rash oath taken without regard to probabilities, led to the murder of John the Baptist. When she asked for the head of the man of God Herod was "sorry"; yet for his wicked oath's sake he ordered John to be beheaded. Thus the king committed murder in the fullest sense, and the unhappy wretch was ever afterward haunted with the presence of the murdered prophet. When he heard of Jesus, he declared that John had arisen from the dead. His guilt filled him with an ever-present fear of seeing John coming to life again. It is said on the best authority that the murderers of William Morgan became fearful and gloomy, and passed their lives in a strange state of mind.

The third oath now in mind was taken by more than forty Jews who bound themselves together neither to eat nor drink till they had killed the Apostle Paul. (Acts xxiii. 21.) There can be no difference of view as to the desperate nature of this oath of secret conspiracy which was providentially exposed.

In the three cases I have given there is a noticeable culmination in the clearness of the wickedness of these three oaths. The last, which appears to be the worst, does not owe its extreme enormity to the fact that a worse object was to be gained, than in the other two; for all contemplated or implied the destruction of human life, and in fact Herod's oath brought about murder, while the oath of the forty Jews did not result in murder. Why, then, does the last one seem more horrid than the others? Simply because it was connected with an element, secrecy, which made it more certain in all human probability that the desperate end would not be thwarted. But this conspiracy proved abortive. It had in itself the elements of weakness. All large conspiracies fail of their object no matter how desperate the oath may be.

It is impossible to organize men secretly on a large scale. A few persons may keep a secret, but in proportion as the circle is enlarged, the certainty of exposure is increased. Fifty persons, as perhaps in this case, are not apt to preserve a secret. When hundreds and thousands pretend to be bound together by an oath of secrecy, it is preposterous, and such men may be set down as impostors and worse than a few successful secret keepers, for in the long run more mischief is done by their wholesale imposture than by a few keepers of secrets. The very idea of secrecy is destroyed by the indefinite extension of a secret, yet the would-be secretists are none the less guilty of whatever crime their conspiracy meditates.

The Connection between the English Continental Lodges.

The assertion has gone abroad, and is as gullibly believed by the "profane" as it is carefully fostered by the "initiated," that English Freemasonry is quite different from the Continental, and that whilst the latter occupies itself with politics and is guilty of plotting against State, Christianity and society in general, in the forms of republicanism, infidelity, communism and socialism, the latter is an innocent child, and occupies itself with nothing but convivial amusement and philanthropic exertions.

Against this wide spread belief of the innoxiousness of the secret craft in England it is nearly useless to bring forward such facts as Voltaire's having, when in his younger years a fugitive in England, been received into the inner order, where he promised on oath to help to destroy the Christian church, whence also his device Ecrasez l'infame [Crush the infamous, viz. church]; of Orsini's having prepared his murderous attack on Napoleon III. in England; of Mazzini's and in fact of all fugitive revolutionists' kind reception and protection in England, "the land of freedom," where they were allowed—and assisted—to plan their rebellious schemes against their own countries to bring them under the thraldom of the lodge. Such instances, which can be adduced by scores, count for nothing, because, forsooth, in England every one is free, and it is unfair to charge the harmless English Masons with complicity in any revolutionary conspiracy of foreigners.

We abstain here, for good reason, from speaking of the inner order, of the Supreme Grand Royal Arch Chapter for Scotland, of the Royal Order of Scotland Herodom of Kilwinning, of the General Chapter of the religious and military Order of the Temple (Knights Templar), of the Supreme Grand Council of the old and accepted Scottish Rite of 33 degrees; no, it suffices for our purpose to speak here only of the Reformed English Freemasonry dating from 1717, 24th June.

In Ireland, it is said, there was a Provincial Grand Lodge working already in 1726 in Munster, instituted by the English Grand Lodge. Sure it is that in 1730 Lord Viscount Kingston was elected Grand Master in Dublin, exactly a year after his Lordship had been Grand Master in England.

In Scotland the Reformed English, or democratic system was introduced on the 30th of November 1736, when William Sinclair renounced the hereditary right of the family of Sinclair of Roslin to the patronship of the old Scotch Freemasonry.

In France, we are told, Lord Derwentwaters, M. Kelyne Esq., Heguerty, Esq., and some other English noblemen founded a lodge in 1725 at Paris. Lord Durwentwaters is said to have been the first Grand Master, and this lodge to have received its first regular constitution from the Grand Lodge of England. Later on other lodges were instituted at Paris by the same English Grand Lodge, for instance in 1729 the Lodge Aumont; in 1746 the "English" lodge at Bordeaux.

In Hamburg a lodge was instituted in 1733 by the English Grand Master Count Strathmore, who gave the license to eleven "German gentlemen and good brothers." In 1740 Br. Luttman received from England the patent as Provincial Grand Master.

In Saxony, Br. von Marschall was named in 1737 by the Grand Master Darnlay, Provincial Grand Master of Upper Saxony.

In Hanover, it is the Lodge "Friedrich" which received it patent already in 1744. But Br. Hinuber received from London the license to open a Provincial Lodge in 1755.

In Frankfurt a. M. the Lodge "Union" received its constitution from England in 1742, and was elevated to the rank of Provincial Lodge for Franconia and the upper and lower Rhine.

In Berlin "the Grand National Mother Lodge" got its constitution on the 13th September, 1740, but as Grand Lodge only 24th of June, 1744.

The "Grand Lodge of Prussia, Royal York," at Berlin, was constituted by England in 1760, as Grand Lodge on the 11th June, 1798.

The "Grand Lodge of Germany" at Berlin, instituted by Zinnendorf on the 24th June 1770, according to the Swedish system, came of course into collision with the Lodge "Royal York," but it obtained its recognition by England in consequence of an important treaty, dated Berlin, the 20th October, 5773, and London, 30th November, 5773 [because Masonry does not admit the Christian era, but reckons from the time of Adam and Eve]. This document shows the jurisdiction granted to the different German Grand Lodges by the London Grand Lodge at that time.

We cannot enter here into the history of these Grand Lodges which ended in 1870 with the union of all German lodges on the basis of the "Old Charges" of the year 1723, "for the use of the lodges in London."

In Holland several lodges were founded from England already before 1735. The English constitutions appeared there in French translation, 1736.

In Denmark, the Lodge "Zorobabel" got its patent and constitution from Lord Cranstoun on the 25th Oct., 1745; and the Lodge "St. Martin" from the Grand Master Lord Byron in 1749.

In Sweden, it is Br. Karl Fullmann, Secretary to the English Consul at Stockholm, who received first a patent as Provincial Grand Master for Sweden from the English Grand Master Lord Blaney, dated 10 April, 1765.

In Poland, the Lodge "The Virtuous Sarmate" received its confirmation as Provincial Grand Lodge from England in 1770.

In Russia, Captain John Phillipps is named in the book of the English constitution as Provincial Grand Master in 1783.

In Switzerland George Hamilton, Esq., English Provincial Grand Master, opened the first Grand Provincial Lodge in Geneva in 1737. The Lodge in Lausanne got its patent on the 2nd February, 1739, signed by the Duke of Motagu. Berne received its constitution as English Provincial Grand Lodge in 1818.

In Italy the first lodge was instituted in Florence in 1733 by Charles Sackville, Duke of Middlesex. The Lodge "Union" in Venice was founded by the English Grand Lodge on the 29th November, 1772.

In Naples and Sicily the lodges got their constitutions as Provincial Grand Lodges in 1770.

In Spain, Lord Coleraine instituted a lodge in Madrid in 1727 and in Gibraltar in 1738. In 1739 Lord Lovell, Grand Master of England, named Captain Lord James Cummerford Provincial Grand Master of Andalusia.

In Portugal, the Grand Lodge of England in Lisbon in 1732, through Br. G. Gordon.

In Turkey the first lodges were erected by the English Grand Lodge in 1838. Lately an English Provincial Grand Lodge of Turkey has been established with Sir Henry Bulwer. English Ambassador, as Grand Master.

In America, Br. Daniel Cox got in 1759 the first authorization to found lodges, from Th. Howard, Duke of Norfolk, English Grand Master; on the 30th April, 1733, Br. Henry Price another one from the English Grand Master Montagu, to be Provincial Grand Master of New England. They were followed by others for the different States of North America, which we leave here untouched.

It is pretty clear from the mentioned historical facts that it is English Freemasonry which has covered the face of the earth. The "Maconniek Weekblad" (Amsterdam, 1 June 1874) says, there exist now more than 11,100 lodges with at least a million Masons in the world [including the Grand Orients of France and the Scottish Lodges].—Catholic Examiner.

War and the Bible.

I find in the Cynosure of Jan, 27th, a review by James Barnett, of some of my remarks on the above topic, which appeared in a previous number of the paper as strictures on some of his views that the Old and New Testaments alike justify war.

Supposing that some of the readers of the Cynosure may not have thought as profoundly on the subject as might be profitable, and are liable to be mis led, as I think by the remarks of my friend, I will give them a brief examination.

He says, "It is a gross mistake to take the teaching of Christ in the fifth chap. of Matt. 'Ye have heard that it hath been said of old time, Thou shalt love thy neighbor and hate thine enemies, but I say unto you, love your enemies, do good to them that hate you,' &c., as countermanding any law of the Old Testament." Would it not have been altogether, consistent for him to have shown that the law of Moses, to which I alluded in my article, (See Deut. xxv. 17,18,19.), commanding Israel to "blot out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven," because they fought against them, and "smote the hindermost" of them, while on their way from Egypt, is in accordance with Christ's command, to "Love your enemies, do good to them that hate you," &c. He certainly should have shown that, and also, how any "interpretation" of this command of Moses, could make it accord with that of Christ's. But this he has not done, nor attempted.

He quotes, "Think not that I am come to destroy the law or the prophets: I am not come to destroy but to fulfill." And again, "All things whatsoever ye would that men do to you, do ye even so to them." "If," says he, "these passages teach anything, they teach that the moral law of God regulating the conduct of men with men, is unalterable; never has been changed." These passages say nothing about the moral law of God, as distinct from the rest of the law of Moses. It is the law, the whole law, he came not to destroy but to fulfill. If that law is not destroyed, or abrogated, because Christ says, he came to fulfill, then indeed, it is "unalterable, never has been changed," or abolished. Hence, he is in for keeping the whole law,—offering sacrifices of sheep and goats, and other slain beasts, on the Jewish altars—and for keeping their fasts, feasts, and holy days appointed by that law. Will he do it? Christ said, "One jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law till all be fulfilled," which clearly implies that when every jot or tittle is fulfilled, then the law shall pass away; and Christ had fulfilled it, when he said "It is finished;" it accordingly then passed away, as of any binding authority. Paul says expressly that Christ took away the "handwriting of ordinances which were against us, nailing it to his cross." Not only was the handwriting of ordinances abolished but that also which friend B. calls the moral law of God; for Paul says 2 Cor. 3 chap. that that which "was written and engraven in stones," was abolished, was "done away;" but Christ's law of love and good will was established in stead thereof. "The ministration of the Spirit" took the place of "the ministration of condemnation." Of course everything that should be maintained for man's good contained in the Decalogue, Christ incorporated in his code of morals, but he never adopted the penalties which Moses attached to the violation of his laws, or commands.

Friend Barnet seems to think that because our Saviour said, "All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them, for this is the law and the prophets;" there is no requirement under the law of Moses or by the prophets, contrary to the golden rule! Does he remember the wars of conquest and extermination carried on by Moses and Joshua against the Cannanites who were not even enemies to them at all, so far as any history discloses. Was that just as Christ requires us to do? Would that be doing as we would have others do to us? Moses by law appointed cities of refuge to which any one who should accidentally cause the death of another, might flee and be safe from the "avenger of blood;" but if he were caught outside of one of these cities, he might lawfully be killed by any of the deceased person's relatives. Who would dare advocate such a principle or law now? Would it be doing as we would like to be done unto if one of us should accidentally cause the death of any one, and perhaps be almost crazed with grief because of the occurrence? Samuel, the prophet, took Agag, the captive king and hewed him to pieces. Can a person do that way now and be fulfilling Christ's command to do good to all—even as our "Heavenly Father causes his sun to rise on the evil and the good, and sends his rain on the just and the unjust," and requires us to thus be like him.

Moses said, "A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up of your brethren, him shall ye hear in all things." The prophets prophesied of the coming of Christ, and of the peaceable and righteous character of his government. The ultimate end, or what both pointed to, was this "everlasting righteousness," that Christ should and did "bring in." "The law was a schoolmaster to bring us to Christ." "The law made nothing perfect, but the bringing in of a better hope did." Just in this way was the golden rule "the law and the prophets." They pointed to that which is perfect; not so themselves.

"The Christian, when assaulted by a robber may defend himself and property by taking life, and if an individual may do it, a nation may do it." This is mere assertion without a particle of proof. The first Christians for 300 years said positively to the contrary; and many of these sealed their testimony with their blood; of course I take it in preference of friend Barnett's. "I am a Christian and therefore cannot fight," was the reply when solicited to engage in warlike operations. My friend undertakes to prove his assertion by, "Christ said "He that hath no sword let him sell his garment and buy one. And they said, Lord, behold here are two swords. And he said unto them, it is enough." From this he ought to have learned that Christ did not mean carnal weapons but just such as Paul said belong to the Christian warfare, when he said "the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God," &c., and that the disciples did not comprehend his meaning, (as in various other cases they did not,) for he had said, "He that hath no sword let him sell his garment and buy one." Now there were eleven of them that he exhorted each to buy one by selling his garment. If he had meant carnal swords when he was told there were two present, he could not have said, that was "enough," when it would have required eleven to fill his injunction. Again, if he had intended they should have these swords for their physical defense at the approaching crisis, he would not have rebuked Peter for using one, and performed a miracle in healing the wounds made by it. Christ was not taken by surprise at finding the force too strong to be resisted by eleven adherents, with only two swords, as "enough!" and out of shear policy held his disciples back from his defense, as friend Bennett seems to understand it, because he knew beforehand what would come to pass; and if we are to depend upon his word, the reason why he rebuked Peter was, that "his kingdom is not of this world, else his servants would fight that he should not be delivered to the Jews." Then of course, his servants, or Christians cannot fight.

"Friend Edgerton presents in quotation marks, 'put away his wife for every cause,' as though it were the law of God in the Old Testament dispensation. But God never authorized such a law." I quoted Matt. xix chap. 3 verse; the Pharisees asked Christ 'Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife for every cause?' Christ gave his reasons why it should not be so. "They say unto him, why did Moses then command to give a writing of divorcement, and to put her away." He then clearly recognized it as the law of God by Moses, which friend Barnett denies by saying, "Moses for the hardness of your hearts suffered you to put away your wives, (or as Mark has it, wrote you this precept) but from the beginning it was not so.' (This is just what the Lord said in substance by Ezekiel. See xx. chap. 25 verse. "Wherefore I gave them also statutes that were not good, and judgments whereby they should not live." "This teaches me," says he, "that Moses gave a precept that was not from the beginning." Well, well, truly I think it ought to teach every one the same thing. That is just what I have been proving, namely: that Christ who came "to restore all things"—to bring them back as they were, at "the beginning," before ever sin entered into the world, has abolished Moses' law in regard to divorce, war, loving instead of hating enemies, &c.,—that all these are done away by Christ.

"Love to enemies was always through the old dispensation required by God's law." The character of this love, however, will be seen by the following: "If my enemy tries to murder me or another man, I, in love to him, prevent him from pursuing his wickedness by taking his life!" Now as every one must know that loving and hating are two opposite dispositions or emotions of mind, it must be clear that if this manner of treating an enemy be love, then an opposite course would be hatred. Thus, we must understand that when Paul said, "If thine enemy hunger, feed him, and if he thirst, give him drink;" he was simply exhorting to exercise a feeling of hatred towards him by so doing! and then of course to kill him and send him to perdition, would be an act of love. I cannot reach all the points in the article deserving notice, without making this too long, which perhaps is the case already.

WALTER EDGERTON.

Infinite toil would not enable you to sweep away a mist; but by ascending a little you may look over it altogether. So it is with our moral improvement; we wrestle fiercely with a vicious habit, which would have no hold upon us if we ascended into a higher moral atmosphere.

Heaven help the man who imagines he can dodge enemies by trying to please everybody! If such an individual ever succeeded, we should be glad to know it. Wear your colors, in spite of wind or weather, storm or sunshine.

A Syrian convert to Christianity was urged by his employer to work on Sunday, but he declined. "But," said the master, "does not the Master say that if a man has an ox or an ass that falls into a pit on the Sabbath day he may pull him out?" "Yes," answered Hayop, "but if the ass has the habit of falling into the same pit every Sabbath day, then the man should either fill up the pit or sell that ass."

Political.

This department is opened at the requett of numerous friends of the reform, and will be conducted in the interest of the American party. All who hold the principles of that party are invited to contribute briefly their views and queries or facts which will give information about candidates or principles.

THE AMERICAN PLATFORM AND NOMINATIONS FOR 1876.

FOR PRESIDENT

James B. Walker,
of Illinois.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT

Donald Kirkpatrick,
of New York.

PLATFORM.

We hold: 1. That ours is a Christian and not a heathen nation, and that the God of the Christian Scriptures is the author of civil government.

2. That God requires and man needs a Sabbath.

3. That the prohibition of the importation, manufacture and sale of intoxicating drinks as a beverage, is the true policy on the temperance question.

4. The charters of all secret lodges granted by our Federal and State Legislatures should be withdrawn, and their oaths prohibited by law.

5. That the civil equality secured to all American citizens by articles 13th, 14th and 15th of our amended Constitution should be preserved inviolate.

6. That arbitration of differences with nations is the most direct and sure method of securing and perpetuating a permanent peace.

7. That to cultivate the intellect without improving the morals of men, is to make mere adepts and experts; therefore the Bible should be associated with books of science and literature in all our educational institutions.

8. That land and other monopolies should be discountenanced.

9. That the government should furnish the people with an ample and sound currency, and a return to specie payment as soon as practicable.

10. That maintenance of the public credit, protection to all loyal citizens, and justice to Indians are essential to the honor and safety of our nation.

11. And finally we demand for the Americanpeople the abolition of the Electoral Colleges, and a direct vote for President and Vice-president of the United States.

OUR POLITICAL TRACT.

A special fund is desired in order to pay for half a million copies of this tract. Hundreds of reliable friends are ready to distribute them if others will pay for them. One friend pledges a dollar for every other contributed, and this tract of eight pages costs post paid but $1, per 100, and $8, per 1000. Can you possibly make better use of ten dollars if you have it to spare, than by aiding to put this tract in the hands of two thousand five hundred voters? We desire a special fund for this purpose, and it will be used for nothing else. Now is the time to distribute them while all have time to read and none have their votes pledged. Send on your contributions and your orders now if you would accomplish the greatest possible good.

Indana Politics.

The State Association of Indiana at their last meeting at Marion, Ind., appointed Wm. Hall and G. W. Champ of Grant Co., James McConnell of Noble Co., Cornelius Alderman of Wabash Co., John Hogue of DeKalb Co., H. C. Miller of Franklin Co., and C. F. A. Gantzsckow of Bartholomew Co., an Executive Political Committee with power to confer together and determine the propriety of calling a State Convention for the nomination of candidates to be voted for at the October election. The said committee are hereby requested to meet in Marion, Grant Co., on Saturday, April 1st, 1876, at 10 o'clock A. M. Brethren let us have a full attendance. Our cause is just, and we wish to perfect the best plan for the work before us, then knowing the right, dare to do it.

WM. HALL, Chairman.

Question the Candidates.

Our political column opened with a good list last week. We shall expect to hear from it.

Additional particulars will be of interest to Illinois voters. G. L. Fort, one of the candidates for the nomination of Governor is a member of Lacon Lodge. Prominent politicians of the Republican party who are Freemasons are: Jesse K. Dubois, Tyrian Lodge, Springfield; Charles H. Ham, editor of the Inter-Ocean, of Oriental Lodge, Chicago; Chas. H. Reed, prosecuting attorney, of Home Lodge, Chicago; Phil. A. Hoyne, U. S. Commissioner, of Wabansia Lodge, Chicago; ex-Mayor L. L. Bond, Wm. B. Warren Lodge, Chicago; A. C. Hesing ("Boss") proprietor of Statts Zietung of Lessing Lodge, Chicago; John V. LeMoyne, Andrew Shuman, John Wentworth, and ex-judge of State Supreme Court Lambert Tree, are all of Oriental Lodge, Chicago,—but this is enough for one week.

INDIANA ANTI-MASONS who wish to know the standing of political candidetes will find the following list of Republican nominees of value:

Governor—Godlove S. Orth, the present Minister to Austria.

Lieutenant Governor—Colonel Robert S. Robertson, of Allen county.

Judges of the Supreme Court—W. P. Edson, of Posey county; A. C. Vooris, of Lawrence county; H. C. Newcomb, of Marion county; John F. Kibbey, of Wayne county.

Secretary of State—Isaiah P. Watts, of Randolph.

Auditor of State—Wm. Hess, of Hendricks.

Treasurer of State—Geo. T. Hernott, of Johnson.

Attorney General—John W. Gordon, of Marion.

Reporter of the Supreme Court—L. D. Miller, of Warwick.

Clerk of the Supreme Court—Charles Scott, of Clark.

Superintendent of Public Instruction—O. H. Smith, of Spencer.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MODESTO, Stanislaus Co., Cal.
Feb. 19, 1876.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—I endorse all the anti-secret sentiments of the Christian Cynosure, and am doing all I can to overthrow secretism, but I cannot see how we as a nation have a right to interfere with God's law, for if I believe that God holds me accountable to him to keep the seventh day, how can I favor a law to compel men to keep the first day of the week? Will some friend give us a little light on the subject through the paper.

I have been fighting or opposing Masonry for thirty years, and feel to be laboring for God and the good of his cause while so doing. But I cannot agree with the second article in the platform of the American Party unless it can be shown that a Sabbath is the same thing in God's sight as the Sabbath. For myself, I see a great difference, and that the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord, and not merely a Sabbath. A SUBSCRIBER.

NOTE.—This friend is right in disagreeing so long as his convictions are unchanged. The articles lately published from the pen of Rev. A. M. Milligan are recommended to his careful reading. See Cynosure Feb. 17th and 24th.

An earnest brother in Champaign county, Ill., writes to send some tickets "in time to get them before the election, as I did not receive them four years ago until after the election. I think I can secure at least 25 votes for Walker and Kirkpatrick." Probably the tickets were detained before by the postal authorities somewhere on the way.

Temperance.

The attendance at the daily temperance prayer-meeting in Chicago has been unusually large during the past week.

The Illinois State Convention of reformed men's clubs met during the last week in February at Sterling.

Arrangements are being made for holding a daily Gospel temperance meeting at Philadelphia during the Centennial Exposition.

On the 13th of June next there is to be an International Temperance Convention at Philadelphia. During the same week the Woman's Temperance Union holds a meeting in that city.

Every mother ought to have and teach her children the Temperance Catechism by Rev. Jas. B. Dunn. It is just what our boys and girls need, and costs only sixty cents per dozen copies. Address Mrs. M. B. Holyoke, Room 3, 148 E. Madison St., Chicago.

Arrangements have been made to hold a Gospel temperance meeting at the Newsboys' Home in Chicago once each week.

There never was so much interest in the temperance cause in Philadelphia as now. Mr. Moody has preached some strong sermons on the subject. Every Friday the noon service is given to that interest, and hundreds of requests for prayer for fathers, and husbands, and brothers, and sons, are sent in. Hundreds of drinking men have crowded into the inquiry rooms and have found Christ there and gone out to live new lives.

Our earnest women are visiting saloons; sometimes going two and two, and at other times going in bands to hold prayer-meetings. Miss Wells, who is a visiting worker from another part of the State, visits six or eight saloons every day. She is well supplied with the Reform, our tract paper, and usually introduces herself by distributing them. Sometimes the saloon is crowded with young men. In her gentle way, with the power of God in her words, she then warns them to fly for their lives, as they would fly from the mouth of the pit; and not unfrequently they leave the saloon one by one, till she is left alone with the bartender. Those who go thus from the saloon find their way to the church or the Tabernacle Depot.

One saloon visited was crowded with men. As she distributed the Reform and talked with them, several desired to subscribe for it, and their names were taken. We found that they were all saloon-keepers met to plan in regard to their business during the Centennial.

They gathered around the ladies and very respectfully listened to the reading of a portion of the Scriptures, each man taking off his hat during the reading.

Thus about twenty saloon keepers were brought to listen to Gospel truth. —Christian Woman.

At Lampoc, Santa Barbara Co., Cal., there is a flourishing temperance colony. The children are organized into a juvenile temperance society, and there is a clause in every deed, prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating beverages.

Reform News and Notices.

IOWA STATE CONVENTION at Western College, Linn county, near Cedar Rapids, April 26th, next.

—The General Agent was laid up with a threatened attack of fever last week with friends in Medina county, Ohio. This week he is at the State Convention at Westerville. He has word for our readers on the editorial page.

—Elder Barlow's report of work in several towns in southern Michigan will appear next week.

—Letters from New Hampshire and Wisconsin are also waiting.

—A State Convention will be held in Connecticut during the last of April. Waterville is the point of meeting.

—Bro. Kiggins of Indiana has been making his war on county seats lately. From Feb. 19th to 22nd he was at Huntingdon, then at Wabash, seats of counties of the same name; Marion, of Grant county comes next, and Coatsville, in Hendricks, will be visited soon.

—Our New York friends are better —in health. Pres. Stratton is again marshalled behind his quill; and Elder Rathbun is reported better, but not able yet to leave home.

—Pres. Conant, of the Connecticut State Association is interesting himself for the Publishing House. Beside pledging himeelf for $100, he engages to work for other subscriptions.

—Bro. Mattoon writes that the cause is steadily growing in Williams county, northwestern Ohio, with some accessions, one a reformed Mason. Rev. J. K. Alwood, of the U. B. church removed to this vicinity from Indiana last fall, and is a standard-bearer in the reform. Bro. Mattoon looks upon him as a proper person for delegate to the National Convention in June. Friend M., come you along too.

The Illinois Agent in Henry and Bureau Counties:

The Old Wethersfield Church.—A Stronghold of Freemasonry.—The Tiskilwa Church Improves its Record.—A Brand from the Burning.

GENESEO, Ill., Feb. 25, 1876.

DEAR BRO. K.:—I left home on the 16th inst. and reached Wethersfield, Henry Co., that evening, stopping with Father Kent, who, with his excellent wife, is spending the remainder of more than eighty years of life in helping on every good work, and especially our reform.

On the following day we circulated an appointment for a lecture for that evening at the Congregational church in W., where I found a good audience, who gave good attention. Several Masons were present, but did not accept the invitation to deny anything that was stated. After the lecture I accepted the hospitality of Bro. R. Dickinson, who with his wife has long been a faithful laborer in the cause of pure Christianity. During the day I visited at your father's home and found out how you came to be an uncompromising reformer.

In the evening I spoke in the Free Methodist church in Kewanee to a fair-sized and very attentive audience. Our Free Methodist brethren in K. are feeble in numbers and wealth but strong in the Lord. The Masonic influence is very strong in K., and would gladly crush out all that opposes itself against this iniquity, but the Lord has faithful witnesses here who like their Lord will "never fail nor be discouraged" until truth shall triumph in the land.

One Master Mason in Kewanee acknowledged the correctness of my statements, and vindicated me from the slanders of those who love to cherish and publish a lie. May the Lord make him to be always faithful to the truth.

After preaching in the Congregational church in Wethersfield on the Sabbath, I went to Tiskilwa in Bureau Co., where I lectured twice in the M. E. church. Five of the seven trustees are Anti-masons and were cheerfully willing that the church should be used for that purpose, while the other two endeavored to resist their action. I was glad to learn that the pastor and most of the members have no sympathy with secretism.

While here I was kindly entertained by Rev. A. Baker and Bro. Pearson, who with others are battling for the right.

Leaving here on the early morning train I came to Annawan on the R. I. & P. R. R. where I stopped until the evening train. Going south three miles I called on Rev. B. Wagoner of the U. B. church, whom I found in the midst of a powerful revival. He is aided by Rev. T. Smith, to whom I listened at 10½ A. M. Bro. Smith is a moral phenomenon, and I can do no better than give you the facts as he gave them to me. He is thirty years of age, born in England and coming to America five years ago. Four years ago last fall he was in St. Louis, a drunkard, a gambler and a prize-fighter, and unable to read. Here he was converted under the preaching of Mr. Hammond and almost immediately commenced preaching. He has been laboring as an evangelist nearly ever since and for the last two years in the U. B. church. He seems to be eminently successful in his work. He is making good progress in his education; seems familiar with the Bible, is earnest, humble, and very laborious. May the Lord save him from the snare of the tempter.

From thence I came here on the evening train stopping with Dea. Little, whose heart is earnest, and his hands ready to help on every good work. The friends here respond to the claims of the Publishing House Fund and hope ere long to secure the labors of Mr. Ronayne. Yours in the Lord,

H. H. HINMAN.

From Lenawee County, Michigan.

CLAYTON, Mich., Feb. 27, 1876.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—About three weeks ago Elder Barlow came to our village and gave two lectures in Perkins' Hall to good congregations. The actions of the fraternity told the people that the Elder was telling the truth. After he was gone they said he lied. The Elder preached in the Baptist church Sabbath morning and evening, and left a powerful impression on the minds of the people for good. They offered him fifty dollars to preach for them two weeks. I have been trying to raise five dollars for the cause, and I thought there would be a good chance among the Baptist brethren, they were so taken up with the Elder. I told them I would pay two-fifths of it if they would pay the rest. I succeeded in getting twenty-five cents from the deacon, so you see there is twenty-five cents worth of Anti-masonry in the Baptist church in Clayton. I wish there was as much in our church, (M. E.) but I am trying hard to get the money (which is very scarce.) I have some promised which I will send to our State agent as soon as I can get it. May the Lord bless you in your good work. E. S. GRATTAN.

Past Master Ronayne in New York.

From a report by Rev. W. Post in the Reformer and Free Press the following report of the meeting at Rochester is taken:

Our Rochester Ronayne exposes of Freemasonry have passed. We cannot report success to the extent expected. The weather was very unfavorable.—The most of the time wind, hail, rain and snow prevailed. We find also that people are not fond of being night after night forced into the late hours of the night. The most delicious viands may be dealt out and received in such profusion as to seriously impair appetite and health. But we had a grand good time, and friend Ronayne was characteristically eloquent and impressive throughout. Not only will the exposes and lectures be like the good seed sown in good ground, but the hundreds of books disposed of (each ticket holder receiving one) will contribute largely towards the interests of the cause in this city and vicinity. We hope to reap a rich harvest, and to effect a perfect preparation for the National Convention if ever it may be held here.

Financially, for the reasons in part spoken of, the affair was a failure, about $200 indebtedness being thrown thrown upon us. Yet even this sum sits lightly when we consider the vast amount of seed sown and good done. It will all bring forth abundant fruit. What is $200 to the salvation from secrecy and ruin of even one precious soul? Though doubtless hundreds will be saved. We have neither the faith nor the spirit of sacrifice yet that we should possess. Our pretensions often are great, like some "sanctificationists," but when falling short in our expectations of moneyed returns, or personal favors, or are scoffed at, we become sore affected, and unlike the suffering Paul, are ready to cry out, Oh, it is no use, and fain would fly the field with its losses and persecutions—the heritage of all God's noblemen. We need a fresh baptism.

To conclude, let me reiterate our storm-tossed occasion here was a success, and we do believe the beneficial result will be greater than of that when the thousands attended our State Convention a few months since. The novelty of Ronayne's expose has passed away, and we are now settling down on the solid rock; the flood-wood is washing away, and the sterling material will show a more formidable front. God bless the faithful and pity the faint-hearted.

Yours most respectfully,

WOODRUFF POST.

The Wesleyan of last week reports the Syracuse meetings and contains some interesting correspondence from the local press, in which the editor, Bro. Stratton, has a part. We quote:

Mr. Edmond Ronayne, late Past Master of Keystone Lodge, Chicago, last week delivered two lectures in Shakspeare Hall, Syracuse, N. Y. The storms of wind and snow, and the recent popular "swell" of Sir Knights, whose tidal wave had swept over our community, and the usual difficulties of properly advertising were very unpromising indeed. But the meetings were very large although Euroclydon beat with blinding snow upon us. The lecturer held his audience as few men can. And although erudite ears may assume they hear an occasional shriek of the perishing King's English, people will yet stay and hear more and more.

* * "S. H. M." says the lecture "was not fit for chaste ears to hear." And yet this same unchaste gentleman, according to the published reports of the Grand Lodge of the State of Illinois, was for years chaste enough to be the Master of a prominent Masonic lodge in Chicago. Did Mr. Ronayne quote anything more unchaste than a charge this same "S. H. M." makes against Christians? He says:

"Who dare gainsay that Masons are not more just to each other than are our professing Christians? Do we ever hear of a Mason violating the chastity of a brother Mason's wife, sister or daughter; and can our professing Christians say the same thing and tell the truth!"

Did Mr. Ronayne volunteer any such assertion against Freemasons, unsuggested by the phraseology of the Master Mason's obligation? Indeed, were not the unchaste things he presented those of the institution itself, while on the other hand he seeks to give strength to his own position, by asserting the unchastity of male and female Christians with each other?

Finally, does he not give the inside track to Masonry over Christianity? Masonry in the comparison is not only given the palm for virtue in the above paragraph, but also in the assertion that the lecturer "failed to prove that professing Christians were as good and true, one to another and the rest of mankind, as are brother Masons one to another and the rest of humanity." One of the strongest Christian arguments against Freemasonry is that it claims to be as good or better than Christianity, when it is not.

L. N. STRATTON.

Seceding Masons.

A few weeks since it was announced in the Cynosure that the list of seceding Masons read by the secretary of the last National Convention would be published in March. It is believed this list comprises only those who have publicly renounced the lodge. It will remain standing during the month and other names will be added as friends send them in. It is hoped by this means a complete list can be made. Send only names of those who have openly abandoned the lodge. The figures donate the number of degrees taken.

Conn.—X. A. Welton, Bethlehem, 3.
Calvin Hatch, Farmington, 4.
Rev. A. Palmer, E. Cumberland, 15.
Ill.—D. E. Middlekauf, Foreston, 3.
I. A. Hart, Woodstock.
W. A. Bartlett, El Paso, 3.
Linus Chittenden, Crystal Lake, 3.
*A. Pierce, Chicago, 3.
J. C. Graham, Viola, 3.
W. E. Coquillette, Marengo, 16.
Milo Starks, Ashton.
James Andrews, Amboy, 3.
Cyrus Larkin, Elgin, 6.
Ind.—J. T. Horne, Fairmount.
Arthur Robinson, Indianapolis, 3.
W. M. Givens, Center Point, 3.
E. Thomas, Oakland City, 3.
J. W. Hussong, Sanford, 1.
Andr. Zeek, Xenia.
Ioa.—Jos. Travis, Waterloo.
A. S. Allen, Clear Lake, 3.
S. Ranks, Algona, 3.
James Hankins, Mason City, 7.
G. A. Loomis, Casey, 3.
Mass.—S. D. Greene, Chelsea, 3.
Henry M. Tower, Spencer, 3.
Mich.—D. Pratt, 1.
Rev. A. Springstein, Ypsilanti, 3.
Miss.—Eli Tapley, Columbus, 3.
Mo.—Fred Hyde, Esq., Unionville.
Geo. Stuart, Avalon.
N. Y.—D. P. Rathbun, Lisbon Center, 3.
J. B. Nessell, Ellington, 3.
P. Dwight, Henderson, 5.
L. Hakes, Clay, 7.
E. H. Hitchcock, Gowanda, 7.
Jason McKee, Watertown, 4.
[redacted] Rev. Sniffen, Watertown, 7.
Myron Smith, Syracuse.
[redacted] S. Rose.
[redacted] N. R. Luce, Clymer, 7.
Ohio.—J. H. H. Woodward, Cincinnati.
J. G. Rownd, Summerfield, 3.
F. Craig, Summerfield.
Thos. Henderson, 3.
H. Cogswell, Mansfield, 7.
*C. G. Finney, 3.
E. P. Hart, Toledo.
Franklin Paine, Painesville, 3.
W. Ashley, Sparta
—Way, ——
Wesley Harris, Sparta.
Geo. Hibbard, Pagetown.
Robert Northway, Colebrook.
Curtis Cogswell, Deer Lick, 3.
Pa.—J. R. Baird, Cochrans Mills, 17.
Joel Swartz, Williamsport, 3.
A. Rudisill, York, 3.
Vt.—*E. B. Rollin.
J. R. Taylor, Brandon.
W. H. Henderson, Brandon.
Jonas Brown, Highgate.

*Deceased.

Correspondence.

From Batavia, New York.

BATAVIA, N. Y., Feb. 26, 1876.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—Do Masonry and secret societies control four-fifths of the offices? I will give you the facts in regard to our county, Genesee, famous for Wm. Morgan's exposure of Freemasonry.

County Judge—unknown.

Sheriff—Mason, 33 degrees, Sublime Prince of the Royal Secret.

Under-Sheriff—Mason, 15 or 20 degrees.

Every Deputy Sheriff as far as I can ascertain is a Mason.

County Treasurer—Odd-fellow.

County Clerk—unknown.

Three Justice of the Peace in Batavia—two Masons, one Odd-fellow.

Supervisor of Batavia—Mason.

A majority of that relic of barbarism (grand jury) for the last ten years have been Masons.

Dear Cynosure, why not include the grand jury system with the other secret systems and dispose of it with the rest?

I think your correspondent from Batavia is mistaken in regard to the Post-master Tyrrell. He is neither a Mason or an Odd-fellow, as I am reliably informed, unless he has joined recently; and I never heard any one accuse him of being a Good Templar.

Yours truly, E. PALMER.

Rochester History in the Times of Morgan and Finney.

MIDDLEVILLE, Feb. 25, 1'76.

Editor Christian Cynosure:

I have just been reading in your paper of the 17th inst. an incident in the labors of Mr. Finney in Rochester, N. Y. I remember it very well. I remember that old theater, that old circus, and some of those old reformers of that day. I well remember the dry goods firm of Hill & Pete: they had a pretty large establishment and like all other merchants of that day they kept plenty of liquor. Well, the great reformation brought discord to that house. Hill saw the evil and Pete could not see it. Hill wouldn't sell it, and Pete would. So you see a house was divided against itself. The result was a quarrel and the house divided the goods and the bads, and there were six barrels of the bads (called brandy) in Hill's share, and I'll tell you what became of it. He hired that long, lean Yankee dray-man to load it on his cart and haul it down to Brown's square (a beautiful piece of ground down below Ainsworth's tavern where we used to hold our company trainings and general muster). Then the said Mr. Hill took an ax on his shoulder and walked down to the green and burst in the heads of the six barrels and the ground being thirsty it drank every drop of that stuff, Hill standing by with his ax to prevent stealing.

You may think such doings caused some talk in Rochester. It did; but that was a small breeze to the one raised when the lodge killed Morgan. You should have been there to have seen the row. Why, sir, every neighborhood was stirred as by an earthquake or the advent of a devil. Meetings were held in every school district, speeches were uttered in holy wrath in regard to the outrage; and I don't know but it would have been blood for blood if the sages of the day had not exerted their calm eloquence to stay the maddened torrent sweeping through the country like a deluge. But when the second election came there was a show of strength. I copy from a letter written at the time: "We anti's beat them on the east side of the river two to one and ten over, and on the west side we hoed them out by scores and thousands." CALVIN HILL.

"Bogus" and Genuine Frauds—The Boston Case.

WEST UNITY, O.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—We were glad to learn from the Boston Herald that one of the boldest and best laid schemes for the victimizing of an unwary public was brought to light in that place a short time ago, the victims of which numbered no less than two score and ten persons. We presume that they have never heard of the gigantic swindle now being brought to light by Past Master Ronayne of Chicago, the victims of which in the United States alone number no less than half a million. Lest we never have a better opportunity to compare them we will do it now so far as the Boston swindle has been brought to light.

We are informed that the victims took the cheapest way open to them to become masters of Masonry. Here the objects seem to be the same. The members were allowed to ride the goat at the nice price of $15, and that the required perquisite was simply the payment of their money; but when we are informed that many of them were in every sense of the word worthy to belong to the genuine lodge but for their poverty, we think the case might be stated thus: The required perquisite in the bogus lodge is money; in the genuine it is more money. Here again the difference is in favor of the bogus swindle.

Again, the hall was supplied with furniture appertaining to the lodge room. Here, again, there is no difference. But in one thing the Professor acted very unmasonically. It is said that according to the records they commenced operations about September 14. He should have destroyed the records and claimed that it originated in the Garden of Eden, or in the days of Solomon at least. He instructed them in the mysteries of the order. He explained the use of the various Masonic symbols, side-arms, sheep-aprons and other paraphernalia he had in the hall to impress his deluded victims. And what Mason is there, either bogus or genuine, who does not recollect how a "deluded victim" is impressed the first time these things, especially the sheep-apron, is explained to him?

But in an evil hour Mr. Felt and his friend Appleby were initiated, and not being satisfied as to the question whether the fraud was bogus or genuine, Mr. Felt visited Grand Worthy Master Everett of the Grand Lodge and found that the Professor was acting unbeknown to him, and furthermore that the Grand Lodge had not recognized him in his work! So it would seem to be illegal to teach the sublime mysteries of goat-riding in Boston without a special permit from Grand Worthy Master Everett, and the case was given to detectives Knox and Wentworth to work up. But why not go to the proper authority at once instead of going to G. W. M. Everett? Is it an admission that even in Boston justice speaks or is silent at the bidding of Masonry, or is it an admission that swindling, lying, thieving, bogus Masonry is so near like the genuine article that even a Boston detective could not tell the difference and that the question had to be decided by a Grand Worthy Master? Messrs. Felt and Appleby, being members of the bogus lodge, should their testimony against it be taken? or should they be considered "perjured villains?" As a Mason he claimed the right to form a lodge, if by doing so he violated any law, he must expect to suffer the penalty of course, but if Masonry is, as we have been taught, the hand-maid of religion, we think the Legislature of the State of Massachusetts was in small business enacting a law prohibiting any one from teaching it. He claims that his arrest was due to the antipathy of the Grand Lodge, which is probably not far from the truth.

We hope the whole affair will be brought to light, that the furniture of the lodge be brought into "open court," that the "deluded victims" be permitted to testify to just what use was made of each article, what their ceremonies, their oaths, their penalties, their grips, their signs and their pass-words; how he explained the use of the various Masonic symbols, side-arms, sheep-aprons and other paraphernalia of the lodge; and then if they, in their righteous judgment, shall decide that his method of teaching "goat-riding" Christianity and brotherly love, is not quite the thing, but that justice demands that his lodge be broken up and that he be compelled to "pine away on the soft side of a pine plank," we are ready with our "so mote it be." But go on with your reform; withdraw your charters from all similar organizations, and then if they don't stop their bogus, lying, swindling, thieving work, serve them the same way.

For the war, J. G. MATTOON.

Yates City Lodges a Happy Family.—How the Court is Managed.

GALESBURG, Ill., Feb. 14, 1876.

MR. EDITOR:—The Anti-masonic excitement in Yates City, is in a very interesting condition. It appears that my friend Alpaugh, some time ago had a warm discussion with Dr. J. D. C. Hoit, the secretary of Yates City lodge, No. 448, in regard to Mr. Ronayne's exposition. Mr. Alpaugh says he knows the exposition is correct as far as he has gone in Masonry; The Doctor got pretty hot and finally threatened to bring Alpaugh into trouble with the Odd-fellows lodge, of which Alpaugh is a member. And sure enough, in a few days Alpaugh was summoned to appear before the lodge to answer charges, and was not even informed what charges he was required to answer. Now this is a brilliant move on the part of the Masons and it is manifestly the design to make a cats-paw of the Odd-fellow's lodge to punish Alpaugh for circulating your paper. The Noble Grand, Mr. Westfall, is a Mason and a member of Yates City lodge, and if he can manipulate an Odd-fellow's lodge as easily as an W. M. can a Masonic lodge, Alpaugh will be an expelled Odd-fellow in a few days.

But the Masons are not satisfied with that, but propose to go back on their resolution not to recognize Alpaugh as a Mason, and have summoned him to appeal before Yates City lodge to answer chargee. Now the design of this move is also clearly manifest, after a sham trial he will be published as an expelled Mason and perhaps Grand Master Lounebury will thereby be exonerated from the charge of swindling Mr. Alpaugh out of his initiation fee of $10, through the medium of subordinate lodges at Yates City and Ipava. I gave you an account some time ago of the manner in which Alpaugh cornered up his high mightiness.

But I have said enough about Alpaugh for the present, and I now propose to speak of my own controversy with the lodge some time ago. I made a petition to the Circuit Court of Knox Co., Ill. for a writ of mandamus requiring John W. Hensley, W. M. of Yates City lodge, to furnish me a certificate of the action of his lodge with reference to my application for a dimit, said application having been made while I was in good standing and never having been answered. In my declaration, which was written by myself, I set forth in plain terms that after making application for a demit, I was expelled without trial, and in direct violation of sec. 62 of the Grand Lodge By-laws; that my expulsion was a put up job on the part of Grand Master Hawley, and Worshipful Master Pierce, of Yates City lodge; that Mr. Pierce had a personal interest in securing my expulsion, as he was the person who removed the black-balls from the ballot-box preparatory to balloting on the petition of Thos. Kersey, to be made a Mason in Yates City lodge about the middle of July, 1872; and at the time of my expulsion I was using every means in my power to procure an investigation of that transaction. I am prepared to substantiate my declaration if I can bring defendant to a trial. But ah! there is the rub.

On the first day of the term of court defendant appeared in answer to summons and made a motion that I be required to furnish security for costs. The court entered the motion on the docket and gave me time to answer it. Mr. A. L. Humphreys' att'y at law, volunteered to speak for me, as the court did not like to dismiss my case without my being present by myself or attorney. As soon as I heard how the matter stood, I came to this place and engaged Messrs. Humphrey and Snow to assist me. I then made a formal application to the court for permission to prosecute my suit as a poor man. The application was presented last Friday; the consideration of the same was postponed until Saturday morning, and then it was found that my petition and declaration were missing, so that the consideration of my case had to be put off another day, and then another. I am crowding up as fast as I can, but I have a powerful combination to contend with; the sheriff, clerk, and perhaps the judge are Masons. My opponent and his counsel and Mr. Snow of my counsel are Masons. The public, or at least that portion of the public who are outsiders, do not understand my case, and are indifferent in regard to it, and all Masons are bound by oath to espouse the cause of the lodge right or wrong, or at least such is the interpretation of the Master Mason's obligation, as given by W. M's. I did not know Mr. S. was a Mason when I engaged his firm.

W. H. Robinson.

[Sequel next week.]

OUR MAIL.

L. Raymo, Unionville, Mo., writes:

"The devil's kingdom is tottering in Putnam Co., now. We have driven his servants clear inside the inner wall, and now we propose to have a shout from the people that the walls may fall to the ground. They have gone back on all of their own publications and declare that all there is of Masonry is learned and the Mason has it in his mind. They are like a pot of boiling grease with water dropping into it. They have never been shown up here before. I went eight miles west to a small town yesterday, and read James Williams' sermon and then made a little speech for myself. I showed the people what adepts the Masons were at lying and slander and how they proposed to rule or ruin. I had asked a member of our church if he knew anything about Jas. Williams. "Yes," said he, "he sent a petition to the lodge and got black-balled, and now he's mad about it,' So quick are they at making up a lie. Bro. Orr read two sermons to his congregation yesterday. To-day he proposed to the Masons here that he would hold a discussion with them and we would prove that they were sworn to lie, that the system is anti-Christian, and that it is a religious institution. They don't feel like having any public discussion. They assaulted me through the public press as a 'subject for the Insane Asylum.' I made a reply to this article and they refused to publish it. We are preparing to call a Convention. Would be glad to have some help. If we cannot get it we will fight through it alone, as we feel that one man with Christ by his side is more than they all. Bro. Orr is fully awake on the subject. They are making all kinds of threats, starvation and death, but we propose to stick to them until we are compelled to quit."

D. Oglesby, Richview, Ill., writes:

"I have been watching for some one to set in motion a system of petitioning to the Gen. Con. of the M. E. church, which will meet next May in Baltimore. Of course it will be done—by all means it should be. You remember that four years ago they reported in part at least, as follows: 'Inasmuch as so many of us know so little about secret societies,' etc., etc. Now many of the same men are again elected, some of the very Committee men to whom the petitions were referred four years ago, and it will be interesting for many of us to know whether these good Masonic brethren have learned much during the four intervening years about secret societies. It would be Masonic with a vengeance to report to the world again, 'Inasmuch as so many of us know so little of secret societies,' etc. They cannot ignore the question now. It would be entirely too thin. And I do hope the readers of the Cynosure who belong to the M. E. church will all consider themselves a committee to obtain names to forward in due time to the Gen. Con. In order that this may be done with uniformity. I hope the Cynosure will publish in due time a form of petition. There is a strong Anti-masonic element in the old M. E. church and it should by all means let itself be felt at the Gen. Con. We, here at Richview, are made to receive the Gospel according to Masonry, that is at the hands of Masonic ministry. But we are biding our time. It is the same old story of slavery over again. We want the dissemination of light,—A MILLION OF CYNOSURES READ AND STUDIED, and TEN THOUSAND RONAYNE'S flying through the land."

The petition was published last week.

L. J. Ward, Kingsville, O., writes:

"The people of our town that are not Masons all have friends or relatives that are, and they seem to be afraid to learn the truth about Masonry. The sentiment that Masons express here seems to me to be just this: that God Almighty in his infinite wisdom, when he instituted the Christian religion failed to complete the happiness of man, but Satan set himself about it and got up Freemasonry which has proved itself perfectly adapted to the wants of man."

Robert Moore, Caldwell, O., writes:

"When Masons and jacks tell me that Masonry is a good institution, I tell them it is nothing less than Egyptian darkness of damnation."

Lewis E. Learned, Malone, N. Y., writes:

"A Freemason of four degrees said to me that Freemasonry was the strongest foothold the devil had on earth. I believe he told the truth."

Wm. C. Teter, Goshen, Ind., writes:

"Goshen is a regularly initiated secret den. I am happy to inform you that I have procured another new subscriber for the Cynosure. One who knows the working of the Odd-fellows, and feels that secret societies are a bane to civil and religious government. He is a physician and also an elder in the German Baptist church. He says, 'I know many young men are led into these meshes from mere curiosity.' Thinks you are doing a noble work, and bids you God-speed."

J. S. Hickman, Wellington, Ill., writes:

"I did not know that I was likely to effect anything until the other day I was threatened of having my mouth stopped d——d quick by a Mason. This encourages me to go on for the powers of darkness are being shaken."

Justus Miller, Pikeville, Ind., writes:

"The people here are afraid to subscribe for the paper. There is no one here except myself to advocate the cause of anti-secrecy, and my life has been threatened time and again, but I am not afraid. I put my trust in God. We need a good lecturer here and one that can go through the initiation ceremonies up to the third degree of the Masonic order. If I had two men that understood it as well as I do we would hold Masonic lodges right along. The Cynosure is doing a great work here, although I am the only man that takes it. When I have read it I send it to others to read."

Jas. Pixley, Hudson, Mich., writes:

"I am ashamed to think that I live in a country where they are all afraid of Masons."

Jas. Adams, Hennepen, Ill., writes:

"I would rather go to bed Saturday night without my supper than to be without the Cynosure in my possession. My prayer is that God may prosper you in the cause that you are laboring in, for our country seems to be cursed with secret combinations."

Sophronia Durkee, Glenwood, Ia., writes:

"I have from the Morgan times abhorred oath-bound secretism. Have taken Cynosure almost from the first and have done what I could under the circumstances to extend light. I loan my papers, and as long as I could I bought tracts and books; distributed tracts, sold some books and have loaned to those who cannot buy. But my sphere of action is very limited. I cannot go out much but I find many who are opposed to the lodge and would be glad of the Cynosure but they are like myself unable to take it. O when will the people rally to see their best interests! Most all hate these works of darkness but seem to think they must endure what cannot be helped. The Ritual of the Grange I have cut from my papers, put it together, and lend it to all whom I can get to read it. In God alone is my trust and I daily ask him to lead on all the reforms of the day and ever help us to remember him who is able to do this work."

God is not only the rewarder, but is himself the reward of his saints. A king may enrich his subjects with gratuities: but he bestows himself upon his queen.

The Sabbath School.

Lesson for March 19.—Absalom's Death.

SCRIPTURE.—2 Sam. xviii. 24-33. Commit 29-33; Primary Verse, 33.

24 And David sat between the two gates: and the watchman went up to the roof over the gate unto the wall, and lifted up his eyes and looked, and behold a man running alone.

25 And the watchman cried, and told the king. And the king said, if he be alone, there is tidings in his mouth. And he came apace and drew near.

26 And the watchman saw another man running: and the watchman called unto the porter, and said, Behold another man running alone. And the king said, He also bringeth tidings.

27 And the watchman said, Methinketh the running of the foremost is like the running of Ahimaaz the son of Zadok. And the king said, He is a good man, and cometh with good tidings

28 And Ahimaaz called and said unto the king, All is well. And he fell down to the earth upon his face before the king, and said, Blessed be the Lord thy God, which hath delivered up the men that lifted up their hand against my lord the king.

29 And the king said, Is the young man Absalom safe? And Ahimaaz answered, When Joab sent the king's servant, and me thy servant, I saw a great tumult, but I knew not what it was.

30 And the king said unto him, Turn aside and stand here. And he turned aside, and stood still.

31 And behold Cushi came; and Cushi said, Tidings, my lord the king: for the Lord hath avenged thee this day of all them that rose up against thee.

32 And the king said unto Cushi, Is the young man Absalom safe? And Cushi answered, The enemies of my lord the king, and all that rise against thee to do thee hurt, be as that young man is.

33 And the king was much moved, and went up to the chamber over the gate, and wept: and as he went, thus he said, O my son Absalom! my son, my son Absalom! would God I had died for thee, O Absalom, my son, my son!

GOLDEN TEXT.—"He that pursueth evil, pursueth it to his own death."

TOPIC.—The wages of sin is death.

—The Absaloms and Jim Fisk's may flourish for a while, but their end is a sudden destruction. Job xx. 5; xxi. 17; Ps. xxxvii. 1-10, 35, 36; Prov. xxiv. 19, 20. Matt. xvi. 26; Luke xii. 20.

—God either rules in or over the counsels of men, appointing that to defeat which would interfere with his plans or destroy his people. Gen. l. 20; Ps. xxxiii. 10; lxxvi. 10; Prov. xxi. 30; Acts v. 39; 1 Cor. i. 19; iii. 19.

—Both the Bible and experience show the great—very great—danger there is in putting off repentance and the baptism of a new birth beyond the years of childhood. To accept Christ now is a certainty—to postpone doing so is to remove it where it is only a doubtful perhaps. Prov. viii. 17; xxii. 6; Eccl. xii. 1; Lam. iii. 27; Is. liii. 6; Luke xiii. 24, 25; 2 Cor. vi. 2.

—Though troubles come upon us from the very hand of God, sent for our discipline, yet will he hear and answer the prayer of his servants. It was David's prayer that defeated the counsel of Ahithopel. 2 Chron. xxxiii. 12, 13; Ps. xviii. 6; l. 15; xci. 14, 15; cvii. 6; cxvi. 3-6.

—Those who humble themselves under the mighty hand of God shall be exalted in due time; thus those who are tried shall come forth as pure gold Deut. viii. 10; Job xxxvi. 7-10; xxiii. 10; Ps. lxvi. 10; Jas. iv. 13; 1 Pet. i. 6. 7; v. 6.—Nat'l S. S. Teacher.

Farm and Garden.

How to Increase the Price of Land.

It may not have entered into the minds of some farmers, says the Journal of Agriculture, that the price of land in any particular neighborhood is governed or regulated by the profits obtained from the cultivation of it. The increased profit from dairy farming never fails to advance the price of land. The introduction of fine stock of all kinds has the same effect. If every neighborhood would raise a purse and buy a Norman or Percheron stallion for use in the vicinity, and a good short-horn or two, and some first-class Berkshire boars, and improve the stock of all kinds kept on the farm in like manner, it would have the effect to raise the price of land in five years five dollars per acre. This is not all; it is really a clear profit of that much, for the enhanced value of the stock will more than pay the expense incurred. In what other way can capital be invested with more secure returns?

In many neighborhoods the price of lands has increased in consequence of similar exertions on the part of citizens $10 and even $20 per acre. In many places the price of land has increased $20 per acre by the establishment of a cheese factory without much other improvement in farming operations, which would be an aggregate increase on three miles square of $115 200. But the influence of such a factory would reach much further than this. One factory would be sufficient for the wants of the citizens for three miles each way, or just four times that sum, which would be $460,800, as the increased value of their real estate. The more clear profit there can be obtained from land, the more it is worth, the more it will sell for.

A school house can be built with a tax of fifty cents per acre on a district of two miles square, worth $1,230, and with this outlay a renter will pay fifty cents more rent every year for each acre than he would without it. The same renter would pay one dollar more for land which is in reach of a cheese factory. This would represent an increase of valuation for the township of $230,400, and every one knows that it would not cost any such sum of money to establish one, and if it did, it would pay a good interest on the money it cost in the sales of its products, and the increase of ten dollars per acre on the land would be clear gain. But the improved stock of horses, cattle and hogs offers the greatest margin, probably, of anything else, to advance the price of land with little cost.

Address of Anti-masonic Lecturers.

General Agent and Lecturer, J. P. Stoddard, Christian Cynosure Office, Chicago.

For State Lecturers see State Association list.

Others who will lecture as opportunity offers are—

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
W. A. Wallace, Dublin, Ind.
J. B. Nessell, Ellington, N. Y.
James Hankins, Mason City, Iowa.
R. B. Taylor, Summerfield, O.
N. Callender, Green Grove, Pa.
J. H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa.
P. Hurless, Polo, Ill.
J. C. Graham, Viola, Mercer Co., Ill.
J. R. Baird, Templeton, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Bourbon, Ind.
Josiah McCaskey, Fancy Creek, Wis.
C. F. Hawley, Millbrook, Pa.
W. M. Givens, Center Point, Ind.
J. L. Andrus, Mt. Vision, N. Y.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
D. S. Caldwell, Nevada, Wyandot Co., O
Samuel Hale, Mallett Creek, O.
A. Mayn, Promise City, Wayne Co. Ia
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
C. F. Wiggins, Angola, Ind.
S. L. Cook, Albion, Ind.
E Ronayne, Cynosure office, Chicago.
W. M. Love, Baker, St. Clair Co., M.
H. Cogswell, Mansfield, O.

The Christian Cynosure.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, MRCH 9 1876.

POSSIBILITIES.

With God all things are possible; with men some things are possible, and among them is one matter of special moment to every friend of reform just at this time. It is possible to secure an endowment fund of $50,000 for the anti-secrecy work, and it is possible to lose it, and the friends must decide soon or it may be too late. I am not an alarmist, nor do I at all distrust God, but without prophetic ken I can discover a crisis at hand, which is, in all human probabilities to determine the strength of our forces in this conflict for an indefinite period.

If this opportunity passes unimproved we may well ask when will God give another such glorious possibility? Probation has its limit and the sinner's "day of grace" an end. Good intentions and well-wishing will not save the soul; neither will "I wish you success," "God speed you in your work," or "you have my prayers," or "You will find plenty of friends who will not allow this matter to fail," or "Those who have made this offer will, if necessary, extend the time," suffice to meet the necessities upon us. Mr. Carpenter means just what he says and will do just as he agrees, and when he makes a proposal every way just, reasonable and possible, why not follow his example rather than surmise possibilities and procrastinate in the hope that something will happen or somebody come to the rescue. The thing to be done is to secure to this cause $1,400 before the first of April, 1876, and $10,000 additional before the first day of April, 1878, and the Christian, business, or common sense way to do it is for each man or woman, who has not already done so, to determine what God has made it possible, and hence proper, to give, and then send the money to the Treasurer, or send for a form of obligation to fill out and return, without waiting to see if the time will not be prolonged, or somebody else help over the crisis. Remember that the day is approaching, and if on the evening of the 31st of March the Treasurer finds a deficit it will be impossible to notify you and secure returns in time for the set time. Do what you can heartily as to the Lord and so receive the blessing. J. P. Stoddard.

A WEAK AND WICKED STATEMENT.

Martinsburg, Indiana.

Editor Christian Cynosure:—

The statement has been made by one who was formerly an earnest worker in the cause of anti-secrecy, but who has now gone over to the enemy; that the anti-secrecy society, i.e., the National Christian Association, will not admit any one belonging to the Disciples (Campbellites) church into their society, or allow them "to have any part or lot in the matter," or words to that effect. He quotss an extract from an editorial in the Cynosure about not admitting those "whose creed is that they have no creed, &c." The person referred to is an able preacher in the Disciples' church, and if his statement is allowed to pass unrefuted it will make much against the cause of truth among those who are not well informed. Will you in the columns of the Cynosure set the matter at rest and oblige. Many Friends of Reform.

REPLY.

It seems scarcely credible that any minister of the Gospel should make so week and absurd a statement as the one attributed to the pastor of the Disciples' (Campbellites) church in Crawfordsville, Ind. Ministers and members of the Disciples' church have acted with us from the first; and we must sooner believe some mistake has been made than that Mr. Martin of Crawfordsville has attempted to justify his apostasy to the lodge by attempting to convince his Campbellite brethren that their co-operation would not be welcomed by the National Christian Association opposed to secret societies. In both our Pittsburgh meetings "Disciples" were members, and two of their ministers were both prominent and eloquent.

True, we have said editorially, that our purpose is not to "form a sect whose creed is that there shall be no sect," but welcome co-laborers from all denominations who profess and call themselves Christians. Would Mr. Martin have us do otherwise? It has been the glory and pride of the Disciples church that they are anti-sectarian and not creed-bound. Is this Disciple minister angry with us for professing the same? Or is it possible that having been once an Anti-mason and apostaized, he wishes now by a wicked sectarian appeal to cover and conceal the fact that he is a Freemason by falsely pretending that he has forsaken us because we execlude Disciples! We hope that so unworthy a motive has not entered the heart of this brother, and that he will yet leave the hoodwink and low Masonic arts and return to "open field and fair play,"

THE WAR SECRETARY'S FALL.

Seldom has Washington been so shocked. Though familiar with charges of bribery and peculation, the sudden disclosure of the affair, the high position official and social of the culprit, and his confession were unusual, and formed a case that at once astonished and sickened the country. The House Committee on War Expenditures summoned a witness Caleb P. Marsh who testified that in 1870 he had been appointed post trader at Ft. Sill, through the influence of Mrs. Belknap; that he had sold his "chance" for $12,000 a year (after a time reduced to $6,000) and had paid Wm. W. Belknap, Secretary of War one half this sum in in stallments, taking his receipt therefor; that the present Mrs. Belknap, (sister of the one first named, who died in Dec., 1870) received the money finally, which has amounted to some $20,000, and was most anxious to have a different story told the investigating committee. These are the main points of the testimony, and Belknap is said to have broken down when confronted with them. Next day before the President had learned the story, the Secretary gave in his resignation which was accepted; and soon after, when the House met, the testimony was read and resolutions of impeachment passed immediately. It is also said that the President has ordered criminal charges to be prepared for prosecution in the courts. The whole affair is simply amazing in its suddenness and the overwhelmning downfall of its principal.

There are some features in this story of official corruption which may serve the part of extenuation in the final ver dict, or may show to the people tha their government shelters more than one culprit worse than Belknap. Marsh in his testimony says he wanted to leave the country, but Belknap insisted on his appearing before the committee. Mrs. Belknap urged him to state the case when called on to testify so as to show that the transaction was of a legitimate nature; but he told them, "I had better leave and get out of the country; that I would not perjure myself for any one; that I could afford to have my throat cut, but not to perjure myself." We all know where he learned that phrase,—and the self-confessed Freemason has now run off to Canada. The admission of this case to impeachment would open several others which the Democrats in Congress are said to have no desire should be resurrected. Two members of Congress, a Republican and a Democrat, have been as clearly convicted of bribery as Belknap, in the Pacific mail case, yet hold their seats. The case of Schenck, minister to England, is in many respects worse. What will be done with him? Foul corruption meets us on every page of the record of the leading parties. When will the people rebuke and punish it as it deserves?

—The spring campaign opens with vigor and great promise to the Cynosure. Read our first page prospectus and the Publishers' department.

—A somewhat lengthy article on "War and the Bible" appears this week. The discussion of this topic, if within due bounds, is proper. Although we do not agree with all friend Edgerton's conclusions, yet the main idea, that the kingdom of Christ is peace and that nations have peace by other victories than on the battle-field, as our platform states, most of our readers will agree with us in maintaining.

—Newton Bateman, President of Knox College, is on the roll of Central Lodge, Springfield, Ill.; Gen. John A. McClernand is member of the same lodge.

—Mr. Geo. S. Bangs, who started the fast mail train, is a Freemason, which may partly account for the many flattering notices he has received lately from the press, as well as his appointment as U. S. sub-treasurer at Chicago.

—J. A. Conant, the earnest reformer of Connecticut, and President of the State Association, will begin soon the publication of a reform journal in Willimantic, in which our cause with other legitimate and needed reforms will have due attention.

—The Telescope has the following pertinent note on Mr. Ronayne's remarkable work of uncapping the lodge:

"One of the able and live men in the exposure of the lodge is Edmond Ronayne, of Chicago. We do not speak of him as a Christian, but as a man. By the way, the fact that some complain of any one except the best Christians engaging in the promotion of the anti-secrecy reform is a high tribute to that movement. Those who attempt to discredit Mr. Ronayne because he is not an evangelical Christian undoubtedly have a 'hankering' after the lodge—afraid it will get hurt. Wade, Giddings, Stevens, and many other anti-slavery workers were not model Christians by any means."

—Rev. D. B. Douglas, former president of the Niagara county Association, N. Y., was prostrated by a paralytic stroke over a year ago, as many readers will remember. He still lingers as a letter from Mrs. D. in the Wesleyan informs us, though nearly helpless and speechless, and suffering greatly. Sometimes a hope will spring up that he may get better, but it is hardly entertained. Let prayer be made for this good brother on whom the Lord has laid his hand in sore affliction.

—In connection with the proposed exhibition of all the newspapers of the country in a special building at the Centennial, it is mentioned that the authorities of the Romish church lately applied to Geo. P. Rowell & Co., the largest advertising agency in the country, for a set containing a sample copy of every American journal to be sent to the Vatican at Rome. Such a collection involves considerable delay and expense; $240 being necessary for postage on the applications only. We must not forget that Romanism has great prospective interest in America. Every means of promoting its power will be looked up and used.

—It is announced that the "National Reform Association, organized to maintain existing features of the American Government, and secure a religious amendment to the Constitution of the United States, invites all auxiliary associations, and all bodies of citizens who favor this cause, without distinction of party or creed, to appoint delegates to attend the convention to be held in the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, beginning Wednesday evening, June 28th, at 7½ o'clock, and closing on the evening of Friday, June 30th, 1876." This is on the week following our Anniversary in Chicago. The proximity may prevent the attendance here of some supporters of our reform whese names and words would add greatly to our convention. Many however from the West will doubtless attend both.

—Friend Blanton of Kansas writes to the Kansas Chief, of Troy, whose editor had been threatened with loss of patronage for offending a Freemason. The editor, who has been the first officer of the Odd-fellow Grand Lodge of the State does not fear any such desertion on the part of his lodge friends; and he prints occasionally matter of the most vulgar character to please them. Mr. Blanton hoped to find one paper willing to print for him as well as the lodge. He says of ex-Senator Pomeroy: "I wrote Mr. Pomeroy, after he had delivered his Anti-masonic speech in Chicago, that unless he fought the thing bravely in Kansas to build up a party of his sentiment, Masonry would beat him from Dan to Beersheba. The result was, that a job was put up and carried out by Masons, that defeated him."

REPEATED:—We call attention again to part of Father Preston's letter of last week. We don't believe the enemies of the reform will have the privilege of taunting its friends about APRIL 1st:

"I understand there is still to be raised some $1,500 to $2,000, and the first of April is near, and if we fail to raise the $10,000, it will be 'All fool's day' to us with a vengeance. If we have a rich friend let us ask him to put in $100, $200, or $500. Friends, this cause is worthy of our best efforts and energies of head and heart and hands. I well know it is unpopular, and that those who make themselves conspicuous in it will be liable in a greater or less degree to persecution. 'I know the road. I've trod it through,' and while I have no taste or desire for martyrdom, I have long since made up my mind to do what I can to oppose and expose the principles and practice of the Masonic fraternity, and in this way to fulfil my mission and 'do my duty as I understand it,' regardless of expediency or consequences."

AN OLD ABOLITIONIST AND PRISONER for the cause of the slave realizes the exigences of the reform at this time. From a small salary which supports a very large family he lately sent one dollar for the Publishing House Fund, and now comes another, and with it a letter which every one will do well to read:

LELAND, Mich., Feb. 22, 1876.

DEAR BRO.—I wish to help a little more towards securing that Carpenter House! O let it not be a failure! Friends, of the cause rally. If need be let us be willing to make a sacrifice to secure so desirable an end. Think what advantage ground it would be to the cause! May God open the hearts of many to help. I am sure if I had the means of many it would not fail.

GEO. THOMPSON.

And here is yet another:

WINDSOR, O., Feb. 28, 1876.

DEAR SIR:—We want to record our names for $10 toward the building fund, payable inside of one year; would like to do more if we could, but my health is very poor; have not been able to do any business since the first of September last, but am very anxious that the amount be raised to secure the Publishing House, and my prayer is that God will not suffer the time to pass and House not secured, as it is so much needed. We live in the midst of secret orders. Our county papers boast of four secret orders in our township, and all in good working order. We think ours is the only Cynosure coming to this place. May God bless you, and help you to keep the Cynosure blazing hotter and hotter until the lodge power shall cease to be, is our prayer. Ever yours,

J. C. & M. L. HALSTED.

Religious Intelligence.

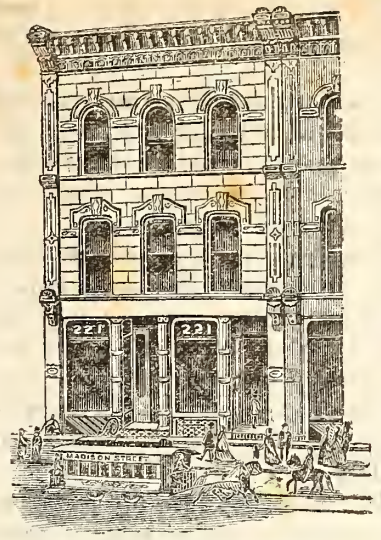
—The Reformed Presbyterian church corner of May and Fulton streets, Chicago, has for some time been unoccupied and the congregation scattered. The Free Methodist church, pastor M. L. Vorheis, has lately purchased the property and will hereafter occupy more comfortable and commodious quarters. May their graces increase with outward prosperty.

—Rev. W. E. Boardman and wife, the noted advocates of the "higher life," have gone to England to engage in evangelistic labor.

—The Newburgh, N. Y., papers speak of the wonderful revival in that place, which is said to be more extensive than ever before enjoyed. Already about 500 have united with the St. John's M. E. church, and others have gone to other churches.

—Revivals in the Wesleyan Methodist churches are reported in South Wright and Hart Circuit, Mich.; Carrol county, Iowa; Forestville, N. Y.; Spring Valley, Minn.; Concord, Pa.; and other points. Rev. J. A. McGilvra, who had been laboring in a revival effort with the Wesleyan church at Mason City, Iowa, was prevented from opening a series of meetings in the Baptist church of Algona, by the chicanery of the other ministers of the place who are bond servants of the lodge.

—Bishop Glosbrenner of the United Brethren church visits the conferences west of the Mississippi this year, and announces that he will be in California, Oregon and Washington territory in May and June.



—The evangelists Whittle and Bliss after five weeks of labor in St Louis have gone to Mobile, Ala. Their work in St. Louis has been greatly blessed to Christian people, their work tending especially to strengthen faith and promote sincere Bible piety. There was no great excitement connected with the meetings though the three daily services were well attended in spite of the all-absorbing government trials occurring at the same time; 4000 attended the last day.

—Dr. Andrew A. Bonar says that as a result of the work of Moody and Sankey in Glasgow, "they can lay their hands on 7,000 converts who hold out well."

N. C. A. Receipts for Feb. 1876.

PUBLISHING HOUSE FUND:
John Cassidy, Charleston, Ia.,	$50.00
C. Larkin, Elgin, Ill.,	50.00
C A. Blanchard, Wheaton,	40.00
M. McClaughry, F'tain Green, Ill.,	10.00
Jas. Taylor, St. Louis, Mo.,	1 00
M. B. Nichols, Tarrytown, N. Y.,	1.00
John Lazenby, Jacksonville, Ill.,	3.52
Amos Whitson, Valley Mills, Ind.,	5.00
Alex. Story, Columbia City, Iowa,	2.80
Jos. Day, Markesan, Wis., per L. D. Felt,	5.00
Geo. Thompson, Leland, Mich.,	1.00
E. D. J. Meyers, Coplay, Pa.,	1.00
Per General Agent,.....	20.00
I. Norton, Byron, Ill., $5; Wm. Ritely, Sharon, Wis., $10; Wm. Jackson, Marion, Ind., $5. Notes $1005.
Per Illinois Agent.....	20.00
R. Dickinson, E. Kent and S. Bennet, Wethersfield, and N. Smith, Geneseo, $5 each. Notes $80.
GENERAL FUND:
Collection 1st Ch. of Christ, Wheaton,	$17.76
do per Mrs. J. Blanchard,	10.00
Philo Carpenter,	100.00
Collected by Gen. Ag't,	7.15
" Ill. Ag't,	18.71
ILLINOIS FUND:
D. C. Dagger, Florid,	5.00
H. W. Marsh, Elmwood,	5.00
INTEREST:
C. A. Blanchard, on note,	10.00
Per Gen. Ag't,.....	10.70
Mrs. F. A. Perkins, 70c; G. W. Champ, $2; J. G. Mattoon $8 on notes.
Total,	$394.64

H. L. KELLOGG, Treas.

THE CARPENTER DONATION.

The above is a front view of the fine stone-front building on Madison street, Chicago, which Mr. Carpenter proposes to give the National Christian Association for head-quarters and publishing house. The terms of the donation are that $30,000 shall be raised by Apr. 1, 1878, to carry on the work of the Association. Send contributions to Treasurer of the N. C. A.

The National Christian Association.

PRESIDENT—Philo Carpenter.

DIRECTORS.—Philo Carpenter, J. Blanchard, Archibald Wait, I. A. Hart, C. R. Hagerty, E. A. Cook, O. F. Lumry, C. A. Blanchard, H. L. Kellogg, I. R. B. Arnold, E. S. Cook.

COR. SECRETARY.—C. A. Blanchard.

TREASURER.—H. L. Kellogg.

GENERAL AGENT AND LECTURER—J. P. Stoddard. Address last three at 13 Wabash Ave. Chicago.

The object of this Association is:—

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved; to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform to aid the Association in either of these ways: (1) to establish a Publishing House and Head-quarters in Chicago; (2) to carry on the general work; (3) to maintain the State agents. All donations, (drafts or P. O. orders) should be sent to the Treasurer; general correspondence, etc., direct to the Corresponding Secretary.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—I give and bequeath to the National Christian Association, incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois, the sum of——dollars for the purposes of said Association, and for which the receipt of its Treasurer for the time being shall be a sufficient discharge.

Corporate Members of the National Christian Association.

Philo Carpenter,	J. Blanchard,
A. Wait,	O. F. Lumry,
J. G. Terrill,	C. R. Hagerty,
E. A. Cook,	H. L Kellogg,
E. S. Cook,	J. P. Stoddard,
Jesse B. Blank,	I. A. Hart,
C. A. Blanchard,	J. W. Bain,
Wm. Leuty,	J. A. Bingham,
Isaac Preston,	I. R. B. Arnold,
B. F. Roberts,	A. M. Milligan,
A. D. Freeman,	D. R. Kerr,
J. B. Walker,	Moses Pettengill,
Milton Wright,	L. N. Stratton,
J. R. Wright,	Aaron Floyd,
M. R. Britton,	Abel E. Carpenter,
D. Kirkpatrick,	D. W. Lyons,
L. Taylor,	J. M. Wallace,
J. E. Roy,	G. B. Hubbard,
Peter Rich,	J. A. Conant,
*John Hubbard,	J. W. Wood,
Sylvanus Town,	Alex. Small,
Nathan Callender,	O. E. Burch,
Woodruff Post,	Geo. E. Sovereign.

*Deceased.

The Publishing House Fund.

On Monday morning, Mar. 6th, there remained FOURTEEN HUNDRED dollars to be raised.

The fund stood thus:

Cash in treasury,	$16.65
" invested,	1332.88
Notes,	7250.00
Total,	$8599.53

Leaving $1400.47 yet to be raised to complete the $10,000. There remain only three weeks and one day before April 1st, or counting the delay of mails less than three weeks' time for the above amount to be transferred to the Treasurer's books.

State Auxiliary Associations.

The following list will be found of great convenience. Let every friend of the reform put himself in communication with the proper officers, sending contributions, suggestions,—anything to push on the work.

CONNECTICUT.
President, J. A. Conant, Willimantic.
Secretary, D. J. Ellsworth, Windsor.
Treasurer, C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.
President, J. Dickson, Decatur.
Secretary, J. H. Snyder, Westfield.
Treasurer, H. L. Kellogg, 13 Wabash Ave. Chicago.
Lecturer, H. H. Hinman, Wheaton.

INDIANA.
President, Halleck Floyd, Dublin.
Cor. Sec'y J. T. Kiggins, Portland.
Rec. Sec'y, Wm. Small, Xenia.
Treasurer, Peter Rich, Westfield.
Lecturer, J. T. Kiggins, Portland.

IOWA.
President, M. S. Drury, Castalia.
Cor. Sec'y, Louis Bookwalter, Western College.
Rec. Sec'y, C. Compton, Steamboat Rock.
Treasurer, D. W. Lyons, Mason City.
Lecturer, James Hankins, Mason City.

KANSAS.
President, Rev. Mr. Bell.
Secretary, J. Dodds, Winchester.
Treasurer, S. Sexton, Topeka.

MICHIGAN.
President, C. Quick, Weston.
Secretary, C. B. Remington, Fenton.
Treasurer, J. H. Wilcox, Howell.
Lecturer, J. L. Barlow, Fenton.
Agent, C. B. Remington, Fenton.

MISSOURI.
President, N. E. Gardner, Avalon.
Cor. Sec'y, A. D. Thomas, Arbela.
Rec. Sec'y, E. W. Carpenter.
Treasurer, Wm. Beauchamp, Avalon.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.
President, J. F. Brown, Bow Lake.
Secretary, S. C. Kimball, Center Strafford.
Treasurer, Kimball Cole, Lake Village.
Lecturer, S. C. Kimball, Center Strafford.

NEW YORK.
President, L. N. Stratton, Syracuse.
Secretary, W. A. Sellew, Rochester.
Treasurer, M. Merrick, Syracuse.
Lecturers—L. N. Stratton, Syracuse; D. P. Rathbun, Lisbon Center; Woodruff Post, Rochester; A. F. Curry, Almond.

OHIO.
President, H. H. George, W. Geneva.
Secretary, Wm. Dillon, Dayton.
Treasurer, J. G. Mattoon, West Unity.
Lecturer, Wm. Dillon, Dayton.

PENNSYLVANIA.
President, A. L. Post, Montrose.
Cor. Sec'y, N. Callender, Green Grove.
Rec. Sec'y, J. W. Raynor, Uniondale.
Treasurer, W. B. Bertels, Wilksbarre.
Lecturer, J. W. Raynor, Uniondale.

WISCONSIN.
President, J. W. Wood, Baraboo.
Secretary, U. D. Lathrop, Millard.
Treasurer, Joshua Parish, Delavan.

Notice to Indiana.

WESTFIELD, Hamilton Co. }
2d month, 23, 1876 }

The Treasurer of the Indiana Anti-secret Association wishes to inform those that are behind on pledges for this and also for last year, that the money is much needed for carrying on the work of our reform. Send as soon as possible to the Treasurer,

PETER RICH.

Notice to Illinois.

I wish to visit every town and village in Northern and Central Illinois during the months of April and May and publicly work the Masonic degrees for two or three evenings in each place as may be agreed upon. Being an old member of the Grand Lodge of Illinois I am desirous of striking as heavy a blow possible here in my own State. Will the Anti-masonic friends in each locality see to it at once that arrangements are made to carry this programme into effect and communicate directly with this office. Papers friendly to the cause will confer a favor by giving this notice extended publicity.

E. RONAYNE, Past Master Keystone Lodge, No. 639, Chicago.

The Home Circle.

An Appeal.

E. J. H.

America, my own loved home,
The land to freedom sealed;
Sealed with the blood of heroes slain
On many a battle field.
But shed alas! in vain! in vain!
The chains of slavery yet remain.

Believe you not? come with me now
Into the lodge-room's mystic shade;
And see that poor, deluded slave,
Bind on his chains in darkness made;
Then tell me not, my land is free,
Which harbors thousands such as he.

Wake, wretched man, tear off the blind,
And see thee as thou art, a slave.
Wrench off the chains! Be free; be free!
Ere thou dost sink, where none can save,
A land of slaves, should ne'er be mine,
Dash down the human skull of wine.

And, must my call be all for naught?
Nay e'en the dead would leave the tomb,
And grasp once more their battle sword,
To know their hopes are lost in gloom,
Who fought, and bled, and died, that we,
Might call our land, "Land of the free."

Centennial Tea Parties.

BY MRS. EZRA A. COOK.

A very pleasant way for young folks and old folks, and in fact for people of all ages, who feel patriotic, to celebrate this centennial year of our country's independence is to have a tea party.

The first essential towards preparing for such a party is to "enquire" of the Lord concerning it. If after prayer it seems wise to have one, make all the preparations for it heartily as unto God, so that it may be a Christian, ennobling affair, worthy of an intelligent, self-governing people.

We attended one on Washington's birthday. The exercises opened at seven o'clock. They were divided into four parts: first, appropriate speaking and singing; second, the entrance of people representing as well as they could the notables of Revolutionary times.

First, President Washington and family took their places upon the platform accompanied by Marquis De Lafayette. Then at frequent intervals the following historical characters were announced: John Adams and lady, Gen. Marion and lady, Gen. Greene and lady, Gen. Stark and lady, Major Mollie Pitcher, with glittering epaulettes, John Jay and lady, Samuel Adams and lady, Stephen Hopkins and lady, Roger Sherman and lady, Oliver Ellsworth and lady, Jonathan Trumbull and lady, Patrick Henry and lady, Alexander Hamilton and lady, Robert Morris and lady, Benjamin Franklin and lady, Benjamin Rush, John Winthrop, Daniel Boone, enveloped in furs, Cornplanter and Red Jacket in Indian dress, Benj. Lincoln, Baron De Kalb, Kosciusko in Polish uniform, Bardagarh Markaryin, an Armenian in costume, Gen. Knox.

Those who took these characters reviewed Marshall's "Life of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence and Presidents," Abbot's "History of the Presidents," "Life of Samuel Adams," Benjamin Franklin, etc., etc.; thus reviewing easily and pleasantly much valuable and important history. The lady representing Mrs. Benj. Franklin said to me, "My husband has been reading the life of Benjamin Franklin for the last three weeks."

The third part was a good supper served by anciently dressed young men and maidens with older superintendents.

The fourth and closing part consisted of good, old-fashioned songs, well rendered, and instructive remarks of a historical character by the representative of Samuel Adams.

The boys in the audience must have gone home impressed with the importance of integrity, truth and their duties as citizens, to read with zest the histories of one hundred years ago. While all who participated in the evening's recreation seemed pleased and profited.

Do not allow such a party to degenerate into shallow jollity or coarse buffoonery, but remembering that "foolish talking and jesting are not convenient," make them mirrors in which old and young may see their solemn and responsible duties as citizens of the United States of America.

Higher Life.

The believer can never attain to a higher life in Christ than that he now enjoys. For he is "complete in him." "Entire, wanting nothing." His standing is what Christ's is, and where it is, in the heavenlies. He is made the righteousness of God in him, than which there can be no better or higher. His place is that of a son in God's family, and hence heir of all things, even of God himself in all he is and has; of Christ in all his adorable perfections as his Saviour; of the Holy Spirit, himself the earnest and seal of his inheritance. Heaven is his, and he is a citizen of it already, "For our citizenship is in heaven." Phil. iii. 20. Already "glorified." Rom. viii. 30. For all things are yours." 1 Cor. iii. 21. There can be nothing plainer or more precious than this. This is not an attainment to be made by us, but has been already made for us. Such a standing as Adam or an angel never enjoyed, and never could have in himself. Look into your families. What is the standing of your own children? They are a part, a diffusion of yourself, and heirs of all you are and have. They are now members of your family. Neither you nor they ever raise the question of their sonship. Their relation can never be altered or improved. Their sonship and heirship are assured facts, and constitute the basis of all exhortation to filial obedience. They are not made sons by their "entire consecration," but their entire consecration is based on their sonship.

Precisely so are we brought into the relations of sons, and justified from all things, and made free from the law of sin and death in order that we may "stand fast in the liberty" of our sonship. Hence, the grand mistake that nearly all the writers we have read on the higher life make is in exhorting their readers to "attain" to what every true believer already professes—completeness in Christ.

But we suppose what they really do mean, so far as their minds are not confused on the above points, is to try to bring us up in our walk and conversation to the holiness and dignity of our high calling of God in Christ Jesus, to make the inner and outer life of the believer correspond with his heavenly standing.

This is as it should be; but let us not begin by seeking what we have already attained. This will save us much confusion and needless work. Instead of weeping and praying and struggling and consecrating ourselves to attain completeness in Christ, let us, as the great Apostle did (Eph. iv.), make this attainment the grand argument on which to base our expectations to a holier life. Being already citizens of heaven, let our walk and conversation here below comport with the dignity of our heavenly calling. Col. iii.; Eph. iv. Because we are sons, and sit with Christ in heavenly places, therefore live as the sons of God should live before men, and not as we are sometimes exhorted to do—the very reverse of this—offer to God so much consecration for so much grace. This is legalism in its most insidious forms.

But I am asked, "Is the believer ever complete or perfect in himself?" Never in this life. It is one thing for us to be in Christ, complete in him, and for Christ to be in us. We find everything in Christ, he finds nothing good in us. Nevertheless, Christ is in us the hope of glory—"a well of water springing up unto everlasting life." Now what we need is to have Christ in us rise up to a level, and so lift us up, to what we have already in Christ. Blessed be God this is that to which we shall one day attain when this mortal shall put on immortality. The stream will one day rise as high as the fountain.

But that now and here we ought to walk worthy of this high vocation, even as Christ walked, is as much our exalted privilege as it is our solemn duty.

Depend upon it the Spirit of God will never glorify any but "the things of Christ"—not even his own work in the soul. He will daguerreotype the image of Christ on our hearts only while we are beholding the face of him whose glory alone can produce it. Here lies the grand mistake of ninety-nine out of every hundred Christians—their thoughts are occupied with the work of the Spirit in them—in noticing the process of regeneration and sanctification instead of looking to Jesus who is the Author of them. With many the Gospel reads: "It is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that the Holy Spirit came into the world to save sinners."

Again we repeat it that misplaced truth is the worst form of error. Satan is satisfied if he can do any thing to divert the mind from the person and work of Christ, especially if he can turn the eye within, or have the whole energies of the soul absorbed in some phase of self-work. But faith has to do only with Christ. "Jesus only" it sees when Moses and Elias, the law and the prophets, have vanished away back into the heavens whence they came.—Herald and Presbyter.

"Who is a friend like me?" said the Shadow to the Body. "Do I not follow you wherever you go? Sunlight or moonlight, I never forsake you." "It is true," said the Body, "you are with me in sunlight and moonlight, but where are you when neither sun nor moon shines upon me? The true friend abides with us in darkness." Jesus Christ is emphatically such a friend.

Baxter's Imprisonment.

Baxter was comparatively a young man—forty-five years of age—when he left Kidderminster. His after years, more than thirty, were spent in London and vicinity, preaching as occasion offered, and continuing his labor of writing. Indeed, he said writing was his labor, and preaching his recreation. Among his other writings was a commentary on the New Testament, in which he wrote with some severity of the persecutions suffered by the Dissenters, complaining that for not using the Prayer-book men were driven from their homes and locked up in dungeons. For this he was proceeded against and brought to trial before Jeffreys, and then occurred one of those disgraceful scenes which marked the judicial life of that infamous judge. Learned and distinguished counsel appeared in Baxter's defense, and numerous influential friends gathered around him. But Jeffreys would not listen to argument or entreaty; counsel were stopped in their addresses, and made the objects of vile abuse. At length Baxter attempted to speak, commencing as follows: "My lord, I have been much blamed by Dissenters for speaking respectfully of bishops ——." "Baxter for bishops!" roared out Jeffreys, "that's a merry conceit, indeed, I know what you mean by bishops—vassals like yourself; Kidderminster bishops; factious, sniveling Presbyterians. Richard, dost thou think we will let thee poison the court? Richard, thou art an old knave. Thou hast written books enough to load a cart, and every book as full of sedition as an egg is full of meat." Resistance was of no avail, and Baxter was convicted and sentenced to imprisonment and to pay a heavy fine. Such was the treatment of a man of whom Macaulay says: "No eminent chief of a party has ever passed through so many years of civil and religious dissention with more innocence than Richard Baxter. He belonged to the mildest and most temperate section of the Puritan body."

And thus it happened that two men of England of that age, whose names are held in most reverence, and whose works are to this day most extensively read throughout Protestant Christendom, were suffering persecution at the same time and for the same cause—freedom to worship God according to the dictates of their own consciences and of their own understanding of the Holy Scriptures. For while the author of Saints' Rest was a condemned prisoner in the King's Bench Prison in London, John Bunyan, the author of the immortal allegory, The Pilgrim's Progress, was immured in the common jail of Bedford. Baxter lay in prison eighteen months, when he was released through the intercession of influential friends.—Harpers' Mag.

READ THE BIBLE PRAYERFULLY.—Let prayer not only precede and follow your perusal of inspired truth, but let it accompany it. In a passage of singular pathos, Mr. Wesley has given us a picture of himself as he occupied himself in his most retired hours with the Book of God before him. It is the embodiment of much sacred wisdom and simplicity of spirit; so I adduce it: "Here, then, I am far from the busy ways of men. I sit down alone; only God is here. In his presence I open, I read his Book; for this end, to find the way to heaven. Is there a doubt concerning the meaning of what I read; does anything appear dark or intricate—I lift up my heart to the Father of lights: 'Lord is it not Thy Word? If any man lack wisdom, let him ask of God. Thou givest liberally. and upbraidest not. Thou hast said, if any be willing to do thy will, he shall know. I am willing to do; let me know thy will.' I then search after and consider parallel passages of Scripture, comparing spiritual things with spiritual. I meditate thereon with all the earnestness and attention of which my mind is capable. If any doubt still remains, I consult those who are experienced in the things of God, and then the writings whereby, being dead, they yet speak."—Good Works.

Children's Corner.

Uncle Job's Gift.

Johnnie sat perched on the barnyard fence, his hands thrust down deep in his pockets, his blue eyes wide awake with wonder. A novel position for Johnnie; ordinarily, his brisk little body bobbed to and fro like a windmill; and no wonder. Aunt Martha regarded him, amazed, from the kitchen window.

The fact is Johnnie was thinking—as only boys can think when some great surprise is upon them. His soberness dated back to the early morning.

"Come down to the meadow," uncle Job had said, "when the clock strikes three. I am going to make you a present."

Such a future to an eight-year old boy! Johnnie's joints stiffened instantly; he could not eat his dinner, much less eke out the interval with his usual sports; his life seemed lost in that speck of afternoon. So upon the fence-post he perched, his blue eyes wide open with wonder, his fingers hammering great holes in his trousers' pocket.

Clang, clang, clang—the town-clock struck three! The fence that had known Johnnie suddenly knew him no more; straight westward he trotted his brisk little body till, breathless, he stood in the meadow, where uncle Job was diligently stacking hay.

Johnnie approached the hay-rifts with a kind of awe.

"Please, uncle Job——."

That gentleman looked up with a smile; it seemed like dinner to Johnnie, when he was impatient for dessert.

"On time, eh, my boy?" said uncle Job cheerily; and then throwing down his rake, he drew Johnnie towards him, and continued,

"I was to make you a present, I believe, Johnnie. And so I will—the grandest one you ever had in your life. You mayn't like it at first. It ain't a top, nor a jack-knife, nor anything like that; but it's so beautiful that it shines all over; and though it's easy broken, you can break it ten times a day, and yet use it again whenever you like. It's meant for use, too; it thrives better by wear and tear; the only trouble is to keep it, Johnnie."

Here Uncle Job paused, but Johnnie was too absorbed to notice. A present he mightn't like perhaps, though it was so beautiful it shone all over; a present he could break at will, and yet use it whenever he pleased; a present it was hard to keep—neither a top nor a jack-knife——.

"What can it be?" he exclaimed at last, aloud.

"It's a rule," broke in Uncle Job softly. "A golden rule."

Johnnie stared straight down into Uncle Job's eyes. No mischief there; rather an earnestness, deep and solemn.

The boy seemed bewildered. He was familliar with rules masculine, feminine, and neuter; but golden ones were strange to his experience. For, you see, Johnnie was a little waif that Uncle Job had recently adopted, and his native atmosphere had not favored these extra buds and blossoms. Still Johnnie knew what gold was, and, after a minute, he turned, his blue eyes brimming with curiosity—

"Show it to me, Uncle Job, please."

Uncle Job made no movement towards his pocket, though Johnnie eyed it closely. He said, simply:

"Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

Johnnie's lip quivered. There was no beauty to him in the unfamiliar words. He seemed lost in the belief that a great disappointment was in store for him.

"But the present," he gasped.

A big tear rose in Uncle Job's eye. He tightened his arms around Johnnie, and kissed his sad little face.

"My boy," he said, "will you say those words with me?"

Johnnie complied, wonderingly; and out upon the summer air floated like a hymn—

"Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

Then continued Uncle Job, softly:

"Johnnie, this is all I have for today—these dozen words. No gift at all, you think it, now; but if you keep it, it'll make you so rich and happy that you won't wonder Uncle Job thought it worth a half-mile trip to the meadow. And, Johnnie—you know one gift don't hinder another—there are hosts of tops and jack-knives yet to get, and host of days to get them in," and Uncle Job's eyes twinkled so mysteriously that Johnnie was moved to a merry laugh.

Johnnie had great faith in Uncle Job. He could not understand it, yet he believed implicitly all he had heard, and that, if he kept the golden rule, he would be the richest and happiest boy in the world. So he listened eagerly to Uncle Job's explanations, and to try always to act towards others just as he would like them to act towards him.

I wish I could tell you all the wondrous trials he made, and how bravely he strove to reap the promised good. For it was not always smooth walking in Johnnie's path; he had his trips and tumbles; he turned sometimes to the right and left. But by effort he grew strong, and his reward was rich indeed. No boy was loved like Johnnie; none had so many friends. And, to manhood grown, no gift does he regard more gratefully than the one Uncle Job gave him that summer afternoon.—The Methodist.

Geographical Puzzle Answered.

I was awakened early one morning by a Chinese seaport (Shanghai) and as the air was a country of South America, (Chili), I wrapped myself in my cloak made of a part of the Chinese Empire, (Thibet), and lined with a cape in the southern part of the United States, (Sable), and busied myself in a town on the Schuylkill, (Reading), until an island east of Labrador, (Sable), called me to breakfast. A group of islands in the Gulf of Mexico, (Pines), burned brightly on the hearth, and another group, lying west of Africa, (Canary), greeted me with a cheerful song. Soon a lake of North America, (Slave), brought me in my breakfast, which consisted of an Asiatic country, (Turkey), and a river of British America, (Fish), well seasoned with a lake in the western part of North America, (Salt), and a South American city, (Cayenne). To these were added a group of islands in the Pacific, (Sandwich), and a plentiful portion of an island in the Atlantic, (Maderia). As I am naturally fond of another group of islands in the Pacific, (Society), I chatted with a city in Ohio, (Marietta), and after I had satisfied my appetite, which was at first a town in southern N. H., (Keen), I ate a large group of islands lying east of India, (Philippine), with her. As she was suffering with a headache, I bathed her head with a city on the Rhine,(Cologne), but stopped suddenly on discovering that the North American lake, (Slave), was a city of China, (Pekin)! I assured him that he never would obtain a city in the western part of Missouri, (Liberty), unless he mended his ways, although my disposition towards him was a group of islands in the Pacific, (Friendly); but should his conduct prove satisfactory, he might look forward with an African cape, (Good Hope), to obtain a town in Kentucky, (Liberty), in due time. I then went out and enjoyed a Newfoundland cape, (Race), after a lake in British America, (Great Bear), and after I returned, finding that the children were making a lake in N. Y., (Racket), I sent them all to bed, wishing a good deal of a Scottish cape, (Wrath), upon them.—Selected.

Home and Health Hints.

Thermal Architecture—No. 2.

A house, to be easily warmed, must be constructed, as far as is practicable, like an ice-house, a refrigerator, or a fire-proof safe; because whatever is good to keep the heat out of a house is equally good to keep it in. This comprises the whole theory; and is sufficient to enable any ingenious and scientific person to become master of the art in a short time.

I will give a statement of the construction of my house. It was, originally, a common balloon-frame house, constructed in the usual manner, and consequently very cold; requiring from 12 to 15 cords of wood to keep a family from suffering severely during the winter.

By filling the spaces in the walls with sawdust, and putting from four to six inches of the same on the ceiling, providing a good nonconductor under the floor, and furnishing the whole house with double windows and good double outside doors, the consumption of fuel is so reduced that six or seven cords of wood a year is sufficient for two families; and will keep them perfectly comfortable in the coldest weather. The nonconductor under a part of the floor is a stratum of straw, well-packed between the floor and boards nailed to the lower edges of the joists. Under the rest of the floor, the nonconductor consists only of a tight air chamber, which I find is just as good under a floor (though it is not in a wall), and is far less objectionable.

To construct a medium-sized house in this way ought not to cost, at the outside, more than $50 or $60 extra, which in some cases is less than the amount saved in fuel every winter (except this present). But the part of our house that I occupy is far better than this, costing nearly double, consequently it does not pay so great a percentage. I have expended about 50 dollars on my house for the same purpose that Sam Patch used to perform his big jumps: "To show that some things can be done as well as others." I don't hesitate to state, publicly, that my house requires only one-sixth of the usual quantity of fuel. I think I can convince any candid person who will make me a visit in cold weather that such is the fact. And every such person is respectfully invited to give me a call. My private opinion is that it requires only an eighth.

In my first number I forgot to state one very important advantage of such a house; which is that such a house is much more comfortable in hot weather as well as in cold.

I will reply to any objections, and answer any questions on this subject that shall come to my notice through the papers. THOMAS FILER.

THE RIGHT WAY TO BOIL EGGS.—There is an objection to the common way of boiling eggs which people do not understand. It is this: The white, under three minutes' rapid cooking, becomes tough and indigestible, while the yelk is left soft. When properly cooked eggs are done evenly through, like any other food. This result may be attained by putting the eggs into a dish with a cover, as a tin pail, then pouring upon them boiling water, two quarts or more to a dozen eggs, and cover and set away from the stove for fifteen minutes. The heat of the water cooks the eggs slowly, evenly and sufficiently. and to a jelly-like consistency, leaving the center or yelk harder than the white; and the egg tastes as much richer and nicer as a fresh egg, and no person will want to eat them boiled after having tried this method once.

ANTI-MASONIC BOOKS,

(Not our own Publications.)
For Sale by EZRA A. COOK & CO
13 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

[FOR CATALOGUE OF PUBLICATIONS OF EZRA A. COOK & CO., See page 15.]

☞All books sent post paid, on receipt of retail price, but BOOKS SENT BY MAIL ARE NOT AT OUR RISK.
Books ordered by express are sold at 10 per cent. discount and SENT AT OUR RISK. Party ordering must pay express charges.

Elder Stearns' Books.

Stearns' Inquiry Into the Nature and Tendency of Masonry With an Appendix.

SEVENTH EDITION.

328 Pages, in Cloth.....60 cents.
" " " Paper.....40 "

Stearns' Letters on Masonry.

Showing the antagonism between Freemasonry and the Christian Religion.
Price, 30 cents.

Stearns' Review of Two Masonic Addresses.

In this scathing review the lying pretentions of the order are clearly shown.
Price, 10 cents.

Levington's Key to Masonry.

This is Rev. Mr. Levington's last, and in the judgment of its author, best work on Masonry. The contents of the first chapter are as follows:
"Commencement and growth of Speculative or Symbolic Freemasonry—A table showing the thing at a glance—The use that the Atheists made of it—Identical with Illuminism—Its connection with the French Revolution, and with the Irish Rebellion—The action of the British Parliament with regard to it—Proofs of its diabolical purposes—Its Introduction, doings, progress and designs in the United States."
The contents of the Eleventh chapter are thus startling:
"Knights of the Golden Circle—Graphic account of them by a seceding Knight, and remarks thereon, showing the identity of the order with Masonry—Quotations from Sir Walter Scott."
This work is thrilling in statement, and powerful in argumt. 425 pagenes,
Price, $1.35.

Light on Freemasonry.

BY ELDER D. BERNARD,

TO WHICH IS APPENDED A

Revelation of the Mysteries of Odd-fellowship by a Member of the Craft.

The whole containing over five hundred pages lately revised and republished. Price $2,00

The first part of the above work, Light on Freemasonry, 416 pages in paper cover, will be sent post paid on receipt of $1.

FOR SALE BY United Brethren Publishing House,
DAYTON, O.
and by
EZRA A. COOK & CO.,
13 Wabash Ave, CHICAGO.

Finney on Masonry.

BOUND IN CLOTH, PRICE $1,00.
CHEAP EDITION,

Twenty-five dollars per hundred, by express and not less than 25 copies at that rate.

BY MAIL, POST-PAID:

Per doz.....$375,
Single copy,..... 35 c

ODD-FELLOWSHIP

JUDGED BY ITS OWN UTTERANCES;

Its Doctrine and Practice examined in the light of God's Word.

BY REV. J. H. BROCKMAN.

This is an exceedingly interesting, clear discussion of the character of Odd-Fellowship, in the form of a dialogue. It was originally published in German.
Price, bound in Boards, 75 cents.

GOOD TEMPLARISM EXPOSED.

Obligations, of the Initiatory Fidelity, Charity, and Royal Virtue Degrees.

This is a small book containing only the Obligations and some of the Odes of the Good Templars.

Single Copy, Post paid,..... 10cts.
Per Doz. " 75
Per 100 by Express,..... $4.50

Bernard's Appendix to Light on Masonry,

Showing the Character of the Institution by it's terrible oaths and penalties. Paper covers, 25 cents.

Odd-fellowship, Masonry, the Grange,

and the Knights of Pythias.

A Sermon Preached by Rev. J. Sarver, Sunday, Dec., 19th, 1875, in the Evangelical Lutheran Church, Leechburg, Pa.

(Published by request.)

——:o:——

(CONTINUED.)

Odd-fellowship claims to be "unsectarian" in its religious character. That is, it professes to show equal favor and honor to all religions, whether Jewish, Mohammedan, heathen or Christian. See Manual, p. 376—388; Pocket Companion 127—129. It regards these religions as so many sects and makes Christianity no exception. From its stand-point, therefore, Christ is the founder of a sect! And since it cannot recognize any "sectarian distinctions," it refuses to recognize Christ. Indeed, it could not consistently recognize Christ, as God, any more than it could Moses, or Mohammed, or Zoroaster, or Confucius. Hence it ignores him entirely in his mediatorial character, and thus virtually arrays itself against him. "He that is not with me," says Jesus, "is against me; and he that gathereth not with me, scattereth abroad." Not to confess Christ is in effect, to deny him.

Thus we see that the denial or non-recognition of Christ, enters into the very nature and basis of this society. It cannot do otherwise than deny him, without a change in its fundamental principles. The fact is, that the whole system of Odd-fellowship is so planned and framed, from the beginning to end, as to leave no room or chance for Christ to be admitted.

This necessarily leads to the exclusion of Christ from its ritual, its order of worship, its prayers. The Manual contains many forms of prayer for different purposes and occasions. We have examined them carefully, but have not found one in which Christ is acknowledged—not one in which God is approached through his merits and mediation. And the Chaplain is positively forbidden to use any but the given forms. Manual p. 304, 360, 461 and 514. On p. 514, it says; "It is optional with the lodge whether to use them or not, but no others can be lawfully substituted." The Pocket Companion p. 166 says, it is the duty of the Chaplin, "to open and close the meetings with prayer, using none other than the prescribed form."

The Pa., Digest p. 248 says, "if any prayer be offered, the following form must be used." The U. S. Digest p. 341 says the same thing in substance. Hence the law of the order prohibits the use of any prayers, but those which it officially prescribes. Thus it excludes Christ from its Ritual by its official act and authority. This prepares the way for any Jew, heathen, deist, or infidel to act as chaplain, if he is only a "moral man." See Pocket Companion, p. 166. The truth is, unbelievers alone are suited for that position. We are at a loss to see how an orthodox Christian, who knows the Bible method of prayer, can accept the office, or perform the duties of chaplain in these societies.

What judgment then, must we pass upon a Ritual from which Christ is excluded; or upon a method of prayer which ignores him as the only mediator between God and man? Are not all men by nature children of sin and wrath, under the guilt curse and penalty of divine law? And how dare they approach the holy and righteous God, without Christ to atone and intercede for them? Jesus has plainly declared, "I am the way, the truth and the life; no man cometh unto the Father but by me." "Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, he will give it you." No prayer is therefore acceptable to God, unless offered in firm reliance upon Christ's person and work.* The Holy Scriptures teach in positive terms, that other foundation can no man lay, that there is none other name under heaven, given amongst men, whereby we can be heard, pardoned and saved.

To rely on anything but the blood of Christ, in our prayers, is to offer "strange fire" on God's altar, to render unto him a false worship and thereby provoke his anger against us. When the two sons of Aaron "offered strange fire unto the Lord," He struck them dead instantly for their rash presumption. He thus made them an example and a warning to others for all time to come. Are not men guilty of like sin and folly, when they offer to God Christless prayers and depend upon their own works and virtues for acceptance? Yet Odd-fellowship prescribes such prayers in its Ritual, and forbids the use of any others. Thus it institutes a false worship, which God hates and condemns.

*The Lord's Prayer is no exception to this principle. That prayer is intended exclusively for Christians, (Luke ii: i.) who know that God is their Father only through faith in Christ, (Gal 3: 26,) who expect to be heard only as they pray in Christ's name, John, 16: 23. Moreover the matter and spirit of that prayer are essentially Christian. Hence Christ is, as he intends virtually in the Lord's Prayer, which is thus offered in his name by his own disciples. But these secret societies intentionally and officially exclude Christ from the only forms which they allow to be used. Nor is there a single word in all their instructions pointing men to Christ as the only way to God's favor, while every page of the Gospel thus points men to Christ. There is no analogy at all between the two cases, and those who favor Christless prayers find no refuge in the Lord's Prayer.

2. Odd-fellowship teaches salvation by works.

The word of God teaches very clearly and explicitly, that salvation is bestowed upon us as a free gift, through faith in Christ, without any merit or worthiness of our own. "By grace ye are saved through faith; and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God. Not of works, lest any man should boast." The Gospel, from first to last, is filled with this precious doctrine, which is held by all evangelical churches.

But the order teaches the very opposite doctrine. According to the Manual, page 156 and 157, "the charitable (who minister to the needy and suffering) live with a conscience void of offense toward God and man * * * and their departure from earth is but a translation to a blissful immortality." On page 257 and 258 this language occurs: "Let us not forget that while we cultivate the perfection of our fraternal duties, we shall improve in the knowledge of Deity, of our duty to him, to our neighbor and to ourselves; Friendship will bind us together. Truth will direct us, and love will make our labors easy; so that, at the last, when we are summoned from the terrestrial lodges to the Grand Lodge celestial, we may leave form and ceremony behind, find our work approved, and, as the mysteries of Heaven are unveiled to our admiring vision, we may arrive at its perfection and enjoy its benefits throughout ages eternal." The Pocket Companion, page 27, says, the instructions or doctrines of the order, "lead him (the Odd-fellow) to obedience of the commands of his divine Maker, in which he cannot fail to be blessed in life, death, and eternity." On page 41 and 42 we read—"He who practices this charity and teaches it to others, shall be crowned with honor, and come down to the grave in peace, with the full assurance of a blessed future."

In these and many other passages of like meaning, Odd-fellows are plainly taught that they can save themselves by their own works and virtues. This, of course, applies to all the members of the order. No matter of what creed or character they may be; whether Jews, Gentiles, Turks or infidels; if they practice the principles and perform the duties just mentioned, they shall "come down to the grave in peace, with a full assurance of a blessed future," "their departure from earth is but a translation to a blissful immortality."

Odd-fellowship here teaches that men "cannot fail to be blessed in life, death, and eternity through obedience of the commands of their Divine Maker." Thus it perverts the ten commandments from their proper use and defeats the main object for which they were given. Paul says, "the law" is intended to be "our school-master to bring us to Christ." It does this by giving us a "knowledge of sin," guilt and misery, by nature, and making us feel our need of a divine Saviour. God designs the moral law to lead men to Christ. But the order makes use of it to lead men away from Christ, by teaching them to depend upon their own works for salvation.

Works done in the name and for the sake of Christ, it is true, God approves and rewards in heaven, in the case of those whose title to heaven rest on other grounds. Works of this kind, however can be wrought only by Christians already justified by faith. The apostle says, "whatsoever is not of faith, is sin." "Without me, "says Jesus," ye can do nothing." But even such works simply confer upon those who are saved by grace, a higher degree of happiness, than they would otherwise have enjoyed in heaven. Salvation is in all cases the free gift of God, and the only effect or value of good works is to make salvation more blessed. But Odd-fellowship cannot possibly perform works acceptable to God, because it has nothing to do with Christ or with faith in him, as we have already shown.

3. It teaches that God will give "eternal life" to all men, as his natural or created children.

If this doctrine conflicts in any degree with the doctrine of salvation by works just considered, we leave the order, which teaches both doctrines, to reconcile them. God has two kinds of children, natural and spiritual. His natural children are such by creation and embrace the whole human family. His spiritual children are such by regeneration and faith in Christ. The latter only are heirs of salvation or eternal life. This distinction between men, who have God as their common Maker, is clearly taught and recognized throughout the Bible. Our first parents made in the divine image were, before the fall, the true spiritual children of God by creation. But through and since the fall, the spiritual character and relations of men are entirely changed. God is no longer by creation their spiritual Father, nor does he own them as his spiritual children. On the contrary, all men are now born in sin and "by nature the children of wrath," under the power of Satan and subject to eternal death, until they are "born again," as Jesus says. According to John, "as many as received him, (Christ) to them he gave power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name; which were born not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God." And St. Paul says, "Ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus." It is therefore necessary to salvation, that the natural children of God by creation, become his spiritual children by the new birth from above. Otherwise, says Jesus, they "cannot enter into the kingdom of God."

But Odd-fellowship entirely ignores original sin, total depravity, the necessity of regeneration, repentance, faith in Christ and sanctification by the Holy Ghost. It takes no account of the

